Clay man hopes to unseat Rep. Ted Yoho

By Wesley LeBlanc
Staff Writer

FLEMING ISLAND – It's not often that a sitting U.S. Congressman faces an opponent from their own political party, however, this year that is the case with U.S. Rep. Ted Yoho(R-3) of Gainesville.

Judson Sapp

First elected in 2012 after defeating incumbent Rep. Cliff Stearns of Ocala – a feat many pundits believed could never happen – Yoho faces a primary challenge from a Clay County man who has never ran for political office.

On Aug. 28, Republican voters will head to the polls to choose between Yoho and Judson Sapp, 40, of Fleming Island. The winner of that race will go on to face the top vote-getting Democrat who will emerge from a field of three candidates on that side of the aisle – Yvonne Hayes Hinson, 70, Tom Wells, 67, and Dushyant Gosai, who did not return calls for this article.

Born and raised in Clay County, Sapp graduated from The Bolles School before attending Florida State University where he received a bachelor's degree in philosophy. According to Sapp, his degree weighs heavily into both how he lives his life and

Kid Market teaches students entrepreneurial skills

By Wesley LeBlanc
Staff Writer

FLEMING ISLAND – At Paterson Elementary School, there's a class of fifth graders learning things that some adults still don't know today.

Last year, teachers Tara Hancock and Beth Williams, and their fifth-grade classes, created a "Kid Market." The market is a project that spans months, teaches students about finances and allows students the chance to open and operate a business. And it's not just simple finances either. Students learn about supply and demand, interest rates, loans and profit and loss. It all begins by developing a full-blown business plan, including a business name and logo.

"This entire unit is about entrepreneurship," Hancock said. "Last year was our first time, and they begged to do it again this year. We weren't going to do it every year but since they were so motivated, we couldn't say no."

The key component of this project, above all of the talk of business and finances, is critical thinking. The project is designed in such a way that each student must think critically about each decision to ensure their business

Where do Clay's guests come from?

By Wesley LeBlanc

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – Despite how close Jacksonville might be to Clay County, it is not the city responsible for bringing the most people here.

Brian London

That's the latest finding from a visitor study conducted on behalf of the Clay County Tourist Development Council. At its May 16 meeting, council members received updated information about the types of guests who come to Clay County and for what reasons.

Despite the belief that Jacksonville would likely be the city most responsible for bringing people into Clay, council members were surprised to learn that a city nearly three hours south of Clay County took that title.

"Orlando is at the top and that could be because it's one of the larger metro areas in the state," said Brian London, a Jacksonville-based tourism economist with the Washington-D.C.-based firm of Destinations International. "Specifically, the ZIP Code 32827 is the population we studied from Orlando."

In fact, not only is Jacksonville not No. 1, it's actually No. 5 five on London's list of

Clay County Memories

By Mary Jo McTammany tamctammany@comcast.net

Making moonshine was a way of life in early Clay

In the early 1800s, more and more families drifted down from the mountains and rural areas of Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee to make new homes in today's Clay County. They came as prepared as they were able. Most arrived by wagons and carts piled high with household furnishings trailing precious livestock and bringing with them the family "receipt" for home brew.

Homemade liquor was simply a part of life like planting, or churning or slaughtering hogs. It was a natural way of using all resources carefully because survival often hung by a thread. Public consumption was pretty much restricted to men but any quick-witted youth knew that the worst trouble he could find would result from messing with his grandmother's sippin' wine.

Before prohibition laws, turning out a few batches of shine was just a form of diversification for the family business. It fit right in with raising crops, keeping cattle, hogs and chickens and cutting timber. It all put food on the table. No one made a career out of making moonshine but the short turnover time from mash to cash was hard to resist – especially at tax time.

In the early days, tending to a batch of shine in the woods around Black Creek was also a time for socializing. The oak barrels suggest this operation somewhere in Florida was a class act.

Also, they prided themselves on the quality of their product. Good shine, it is claimed, is 100 to 105-proof and doesn't result in hangovers or cause knee-walking in the wet grass like the official bonded whiskey can.

The bubbles tell the story, so they say. When you gently shake moonshine in a clear mason jar, if it's 100-proof or better – small uniform bubbles will form in clusters, move to the center, connect and hold their shape a moment.

The best shine was aged in oak barrels (probably hauled from the mountains on those wagons), brought more money and was the drink of choice among professional men. It was especially sought by the

Special Olympics team needs community's help to get to National Games

By Karassa Stinchcomb
For Clay Today

FLEMING ISLAND – Eleven Clay County residents are headed to Seattle, Wash. in July for the Special Olympics USA.

The team, which is made up of two coaches, four partners and five athletes, will be competing in volleyball and track and field. This year's USA Games will also celebrate Special Olympics' global 50th Anniversary.

Despite making it to Nationals, the team is struggling to raise enough money to go to make the trip. They need to raise $15,400 and have only raised about 48 percent – $7,435, according to Ronna Smith, the county director and volleyball coach.

"We have held several fundraising events, cruise-ins, car washes, online donations and tip-a-cop, but we still need more," Smith said.

Special Olympians from Clay County are asking the community's help to raise funds so they can compete in the Special Olympics USA games this summer.

Zach Fishburn, 23, an athlete, has competed in the Special Olympics for five years and competes in volleyball, football, bowling and golf. He competes to meet people, have fun and see if someone can push him past his best.

He was shocked when he learned he was going to Nationals.

"It was definitely a surprise. When we got to camp, we didn't know we were going to make it, and when we did, we were excited," Fishburn said. "We win as a team, we lose as a team."

This year's trip will mark Zachary's second visit to the Special Olympics' USA Games. He first attended in 2014 where he competed in golf.

The Clay County Sheriff's Office has helped bring awareness and funding to the organization.

Christopher Padgett, a law enforcement officer, has been involved with the organization since 1999, but participated in his first Torch Run in 2009.

City addresses Memorial Day cancellation

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – With the cancellation of the 30th Annual Memorial Day RiverFest, city staff is working to refund vendors and reschedule a similar event in which it will honor veterans.

City staff is currently working on contacting RiverFest vendors for refunds, which will be made in full. Staff are also looking to reschedule the bloodmobile to take donations for its latest blood drive.

The city cancelled its May 28 Memorial Day event by only using Facebook, which led to about 100 guests showing up in Spring Park on Monday hoping to take part in the festivities.

"City Council and staff understand how much residents look forward to the event every year, and the decision to cancel was not made lightly. It was based on a forecast given to the City early Sunday by Clay County Emergency Management that called for isolated storms in the morning and heavy downpour with strong winds throughout the afternoon and into the evening," states a prepared statement from city hall.

The City had concerns that subtropical storm conditions would reach Green Cove Springs early in the day and cancelled the event for the safety of residents, veterans and visitors. However, the Spring Park pool was still open to the public free of charge on Memorial Day and brought in an estimated 250 visitors throughout the day.

Grants awarded for projects at Camp Blanding

TALLAHASSEE – The Clay County Development Authority will oversee a $500,000 grant to make improvements at the Camp Blanding Joint Training Center. The grant, a portion of nearly $3.5 million in grants announced by Gov. Rick Scott, is part of the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity's Defense Infrastructure Grant Program and the Defense Reinvestment Grant Program.

"This project will restore approximately 37,600 square yards of degraded asphalt road surfaces on [Camp Blanding.] This resurfacing corrects the deteriorating surface and increases the designed structural strength and load bearing capacity, and thus supporting sustained movement for high gross vehicle weight equipment associated with mobilization and emergency response. This also results in an extended surface life of 15 to 25 years," said Josh Cockrell, executive director of the CCDA.

Cockrell said the grant strengthens the Authority's strategic partnership with Camp Blanding and will improve transportation and access to the installation, which comprises approximately one-fifth

What Florida candidates are doing on Facebook

By Danny McAuliffe
FloridaPolitics.com

Social media giant Facebook recently unveiled its database of candidate and issue spending. It archives all political ads dating back to May 7.

The information provides insights to what extent candidates are prioritizing digital spending on Facebook along with its subsidiary Instagram.

Danny McAuliffe

The changes are a direct result of Facebook coming under scrutiny for giving way to Russian trolls during the 2016 election and enabling some to disperse messages of hate. The changes bring with them more intense verification and thorough disclosure processes. The most noticeable change to the average user is likely the "paid for by …" descriptor now attached to candidate- or issue-related ads.

In announcing the changes, Facebook founder and CEO Mark Zuckerberg wrote, "One of my top priorities for 2018 is making sure we help prevent interference and misinformation in elections. These changes won't fix everything, but they will make it a lot harder for anyone to do what the Russians did during the 2016 election and use fake accounts and pages to run ads."

Zuckerberg also suggested the changes would result in more careful and message-conscious approaches, as each ad would now be easily traced back to who purchased it.

"I hope they'll also raise the bar for all political advertising online," wrote Zuckerberg.

The search option for the database is simple; typing in a candidate's name or a political organization's title will yield ads related to the search term, including who's paid for them. Also provided: an estimated amount it took to advertise the ad, its status currently (active or not) and the number of impressions it has garnered.

Florida Politics has queried some terms related to 2018 races. It's early yet, and results vary by candidate and group, but there already are some takeaways. For example, the Florida Democratic Party is inundating Facebook with anti-Rick Scott ads, meanwhile, U.S. Republican Rep. Ron DeSantis, who's running for Governor, can't

Hurricane preparedness begins now

By Amy Zubaly and Jacob Williams

Following an 11-season lull without a hurricane hitting the Sunshine State, the past two very active Atlantic hurricane seasons have appropriately caused Floridians to be much more vigilant with storm preparations.

Amy Zubaly

Last year's hurricane season was among the strongest on record, and forecasts are predicting another active year with the potential for 14 to 18 named storms, including seven hurricanes with three becoming Category 3 or higher. We could be facing another year with hurricanes as destructive as Irma, Maria, Matthew and Hermine.

If you haven't already, now is the time to begin preparing. Be sure to have a hurricane preparedness plan for your family or business. Your family's hurricane preparedness plan should include contact information for everyone in your family, medical information (including prescriptions), established emergency meeting locations and evacuation routes. You'll also need a well-stocked emergency supply kit. The 2018 Florida Disaster Preparedness Sales Tax Holiday, which runs June 1 through June 7, is a perfect time to stock up on emergency supply kit essentials, such as batteries, flashlights, radios and tarps – all tax-free.

In addition to having a plan and emergency supply kit, there are other things homeowners and business owners can do to help mitigate property damage and power outages. Hire a tree professional to assess the trees on your property, remove dead trees and trim branches that could damage your home, business or nearby power lines. Know what you need to pull inside in the event of a storm, such as patio furniture, toys and heavy planters. These items can easily become projectiles in high winds and cause significant damage to both property and power lines. Additional information on hurricane preparation can be found at www.floridadisaster.org.

As you prepare for another busy hurricane season, so have Florida's public power utilities. Downed trees are often the cause of power outages during a storm. Public power communities across the state routinely clear trees and branches away from power lines to minimize outages. We also conduct regular inspections of utility poles, lines and equipment and upgrade those as needed.

Over the last two years, Florida's public power utilities have taken many steps to storm-harden their systems

Reader questions sexual discrimination happened

I read with interest the circumstances described in the recent article titled "Sexual Discrimination Allegations" resulting from comments by a member of Orange Park Town Council.

Any elected official should know the language of the charter under which they serve and act accordingly. Situations like this neither reflect the language of the town charter or portray the image citizens want for their council or town.

Nominations and elections for Mayor or Vice-Mayor positions are not based on sex, race, religion or how long you've been on the council.

Section 2.05 of the Charter of the Town of Orange Park states: "After each regular or special election for council members, the council shall meet and elect from among their number a mayor and vice-mayor who shall perform the duties of such offices for one (1) year or until his successor is duly elected and qualified."

The result is each council member can nominate and vote for the person of their choice.

Serving as mayor or vice-mayor does not give you any more power than any other member of the council.

According to the article, no one nominated that council member for vice-mayor. When this happens and you desire to be considered, nominate yourself.

Facebook

quite seem to figure out the new rules.

Here's a brief breakdown, as of Friday:

U.S. Senate

Republican Gov. Scott has run 30 ads since May 7, each one with less than $1,000 behind it. Eleven of the ads are either in Spanish or prefaced with Spanish and interpreted in English below.

Democratic incumbent Bill Nelson in the same time has launched 53 ads, a majority of which were solicitations for campaign donations.

Governor's race

In the Republican primary race for Governor, Adam Putnam's Florida Grown committee has run 12 separate digital ads touting the Agriculture Commissioner's vocational-technical program announced last week. Most of those were backed with buys ranging between $100 to $499, though one sits below $100, two are within the $1,000 to $5,000 range, and one has crossed into the $5,000-10,000 range.

Florida Grown also backed three ads with pro-life abortion messages, one fell in the $100 to $499 range, the other two were fueled by $500-$999 buys.

Putnam's spending on Facebook draws a stark contrast with DeSantis, who attempted to run one ad in May – only to see it taken down "because it goes against Facebook's advertising policies," reads the archive.

On the Democratic side, former Miami Beach Mayor Philip Levine has run 35 ads on Facebook since May 7. Most of the ads fall within the less than $100 or $100 to $499 range, but two have crossed the $1,000 mark: a video touting his progressive record as mayor and another expressing his support for teachers.

Former Congresswoman Gwen Graham, in contrast, doesn't seem to be focusing as much on digital spending – on Facebook, at least. A search of her name reveals that she's only had two ads, both spanning a day, since May 7. Both were backed with less than $100.

Tallahassee Mayor Andrew Gillum has run 37 ads on Zuckerberg's platforms. And at first glance it appears Gillum is getting the most bang for his buck – good news for a campaign behind in the money chase. The Gillum camp dished out between $100 – $499 to push out an Orlando Sentinel editorial on Florida's record on health care. Over the article, Gillum wrote, "Our state ranks at the bottom of the barrel when it comes to access to affordable healthcare – we have a health care crisis. As Governor, I'll fight for 'Medicare for All', an expansion of Medicaid, and protections for women's health care and pre-existing conditions."

It grabbed the mayor anywhere between 100,000 to 200,000 impressions, or the number of instances an ad is on-screen for the first time for a user. To reach the same amount of screens, Levine spent in the $1,000 to $5,000 range, though that amount of spending also netted the Miami Beach Mayor impressions exceeding 200,000 in one instance.

Orlando businessman Chris King, who's consistently in third or fourth in the polls, has launched 33 ads since May 7, all but one of which was accompanied with $100 or less. He is, however, the second Democrat, following Levine, to finance a TV spend.

Cabinet races

In the recorded period, the candidates for Cabinet seats who've advertised on Facebook are as follows: Chief Financial Officer Jimmy Patronis, who's running for reelection, Agriculture Commissioner candidates state Senator Denise Grimsley and Baxter Troutman, and state Rep. Jay Fant, who's running for Attorney General.

U.S. Representatives

Two of the most vulnerable Florida Republicans, Reps. Carlos Curbelo and Brian Mast, both are active on Facebook. Mast has run 19 ads on his own accord since Facebook began archiving posts. Curbelo has just one, but has been supported with two others from a climate change-focused group. The Congressional Leadership Fund has dedicated a decent amount of digital spending for both candidates, though as of now it has yet to show up.

Former congressman Alan Grayson and incumbent Darren Soto, who will duke it out in the Aug. 28 primary, both were not active during the recorded period.

In the closely watched Democratic primary for CD 27, Donna Shalala has spent between $100 and $499 on five ads, while state Rep. David Richardson has spent similar amounts on five ads as well. The three other candidates did not spend anything.

Dems and Republicans

The Florida Democratic Party has hit Facebook consistently during May, sharing just two messages: defeat Scott and reform gun laws. Of the 133 ads by Dems in the recorded period, 55 targeted Scott while also solicitng donations. Only one Scott-focused buy exceeded $100.

Interestingly, a search for "Republican Party of Florida" yields a goose egg.

and maximize responsiveness. We participate in hurricane drills, exercises and preparedness meetings throughout the year. And, we maintain open lines of communication with our network of mutual aid partners in the event we need to call upon them for personnel and equipment to assist with power restoration efforts.

While personal preparation and preparation among public power utilities are key to weathering a storm, we cannot stop the sheer force of Mother Nature. Following landfall of a tropical storm or hurricane, we know there will be damage and power outages. But, by working together to prepare in advance, we can restore your electricity faster, which allows us all to return to our daily routines more quickly and begin the work of rebuilding the communities we all call home.

Moonshine

Northern powers of industry who vacationed in the area.

The manufacture of moonshine involved the entire family like any other activity on the farm. Men often hired out to work for someone else from daylight to dark or were collecting free roaming cattle two counties away. Tending the still became the responsibility of women and children.

Even the smallest youngster knew to give a holler if one of the huge hogs that stayed in the shade under the house rose up and sauntered toward the still. But ...if a hog caught a whiff of fermenting mash it usually took a broom and a stick to change his mind. Cows, too, will get in a still and give milk that some say smells enough like alcohol to bring a good price.

Once the shine had dripped into whatever containers were available, the job was just beginning for these early brewers. Aging someplace cool and dark was necessary to produce the quality these old-time distillers demanded. It was customary to bury in batches. This could lead to new problems. Sometimes the location of a cache was forgotten and found only when an unsuspecting mule fell in the hole. Often the corks blew off and the aroma would attract a whole nest of rattlesnakes.

They didn't do it strictly for the money although a few dollars surely could make a difference. They made moonshine so that, at the end of the day, they could sit on the stoop and sip from a tin cup and feel connected to the generations behind them and, perhaps, those to come.

Clay County history becomes part of school curriculum

By Kenneth Detwyler Jr.
Correspondent

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – The 1894-era jail along Idlewild Avenue housed everyone from death row inmates to mental health patients to out-of-town bank robbers.

In the present, steps away from that jail, the Clay County School Board announced that county history will be incorporated into eighth grade U.S. History courses in its schools.

The program which is currently being taught in schools, reintroduces students to their community in a way that most have not experienced, as they answer the question, "What had the greatest impact on Clay County's development?"

"It's not only fun and its rigoris," said Terry Connor, chief of secondary education for the school district. "These students have to jump into historical documents and get down to the nitty gritty."

The new curriculum is a joint venture between the Clay County School Board and Clerk of Court office, under whose umbrella the County Archives fall. The Clerk's office is in charge of maintaining the county archives which are an instrumental resource in this new curriculum.

Officials announced the new initiative May 26 at the Clay County historical triangle in front of the historic courthouse. School Board and Clerk of Courts officials were treated to a tour of the historical sites and received a hands-on look at what students will be learning about in the new curricula.

While wearing protective gloves, Clay County Archivist Vishi Garig, in center, reads from a Clay County historical document May 26, while Clay County School Board Chairman Carol Studdard looks on from left. At right, Joseph Lorentzson is dressed in period garb as he portrays a turn-of-the-century Clay County Sheriff.

"I want our students in Clay County to know the rich history of this country, so when they go to Hibernate or Rideout, or anywhere in Clay County, they know the history," said Carrol Studdard, School Board chairman. "This is just my proudest moment, I'm thrilled to death."

According to Studdard, she received the initial inspiration for this new initiative after reading the book "Margaret's Story: The Third Novel in the Florida Trilogy" by Eugenia Price. The book chronicles the family of Margaret Seton and Lewis Fleming, who owned Hibernia Plantation. Studdard went to Hiberna and visited the graves of Fleming and others mentioned in the book. Afterwards, she took the idea of teaching county history in the schools to her constituents and passed the baton to curriculum specialists who collaborated with teachers and the Clerk's office to begin working on what this would look like in the classroom. The end result was the inaugural "Celebrate Clay History Week."

Some future plans for the program include appearances by archives specialists and history experts as guest speakers in Clay County Schools, development of additional Clay History curriculum for year-round use, field trips to historical sites and promotion of the Clay County Historical Archives new website as a resource for students of all grade levels.

"This is going to develop a lot of civic pride," said Kelly Watt, a school district social studies specialist. "These kids are going to know their roots, they are going to see that history isn't something that happens elsewhere. Clay County has its own story to tell."

Julian Bruce (JB) Green

Mr. Julian Bruce (JB) Green, age 89, of Gainesville, formerly of Keystone Heights and Miami, Florida, passed away Tuesday, May 22, 2018 at Oak Hammock Continuing Care Retirement Community in Gainesville. He was born in Miami, Florida on July 25, 1928 to Marvin J. and Janie Griffis Green. He was employed as a firefighter with the City of Miami Fire Department for twenty five years, where he rose to the rank of Lieutenant, and was made an honorary captain at retirement. In retirement, he moved to Keystone Heights, FL with his wife to live in a home that he designed and largely built, and pursued his love of gardening, fishing, and hunting. He moved to Oak Hammock in Gainesville in 2004, where he was the first chair of Oak Hammock's community gardens, and also an active member of the Woodworker's group. He was happiest when outdoors, or telling stories about the fire department, his encyclopedic knowledge of Florida history, particularly the Miami area he grew up in and the communities around Starke, Florida, home of his mother's extensive family.

He joked with almost everyone he met, and continued to make jokes even through his final illness. Mr. Green was preceded in death by his parents and his 8 siblings. He is survived by his wife of 65 years, Nancy; his son Bruce (Sheri) of Wacissa, FL; his daughter Kathleen (Winston), of Cary, NC; his grandsons, John (Ita) of Largo, FL, Adrian, and Wade of Durham, NC, and great grandson, John, also of Largo, FL. A memorial service and reception will be held June 2, 2018 at Oak Hammock in the Oak Room at 3 p.m. Memorial contributions may be made to Haven Hospice of Gainesville, or the Miami Firefighters Benevolent Association. Please visit his memorial page at www.williamsthomasfuneralhome.com.

Former patients celebrate life after trauma

By Chase Carle
For Clay Today

ORANGE PARK – Corey Wiley, 43, of Fleming Island had his life changed forever on May 20, 2017.

Wiley was riding his motorcycle on County Road 220 when a vehicle pulled out in front of him, hitting Wiley and ejecting him from his motorcycle. He was rushed to Orange Park Medical Center where he would spend almost 8 weeks, some of them in a coma. But a little less than a year later, at Orange Park Medical Center's second annual Trauma Survivor's Day, Wiley stood with his fiancé Sonya and his daughter Deijon as they celebrated his ongoing recovery process.

Wiley, a Marine veteran, suffered a traumatic brain injury in the accident. He suffers from apraxia, an inability to perform purposeful tasks and aphasia, the loss of ability to understand or express speech. However, while Wiley still struggles with some memory issues, his speech is improving and he is able to walk with assistance.

Wiley's story was just one of several told at the second annual Trauma Survivors' Day at Orange Park Medical Center on May 16, which is Trauma Survivors' Day and May is Trauma Awareness Month.

Sarah Miller, the injury prevention coordinator for trauma at OPMC, said that the day is about bringing the survivors, their families and the trauma center staff together to see one another and talk about the recovery process.

While all survivors are invited, the response can vary.

"Some patients were able to go back to their status quo and so they don't really want to come back and relive it all again, others aren't ready to talk about it yet, but it can be therapeutic for some patients," said Miller.

Darryl Auston, director of orthopedic trauma services at Orange Park Medical Center.

Some patients even see the celebration as a way to "pay it forward" in the sense of helping newer patients and talking to them about what can be a long and difficult recovery.

It wasn't just the survivors and their families who were being honored though. Every year the hospital presents an award to a staff member as "recognition for going above and beyond." The staff member is not told about the award ahead of time to ensure they're surprised at the ceremony.

This year, the hospital honored physical therapist Richard Harper for his role in the early mobility program. It's a program where therapists guide patients through therapy routines while still in their hospital beds. Harper was noted for his willingness to take on a teaching role for the other therapists and nurses.

"I don't do anything special," said Harper. "I just come to work and try and treat each patient as if it was my own family in the bed."

The ceremony ended with what the hospital called a "chain of survival." Everyone involved in the process – first responders, hospital staff, family members and the survivors themselves – all joined hands in a large circle. The circle ended with each person releasing a butterfly as a symbol of hope.

Darryl Auston, the director of orthopedic trauma, said Trauma Survivors' Day is big for the doctors and other staff as well.

Auston said that while in normal hospital situations, the doctor and patient build a relationship over a period of time before any procedures are done, but that's not how it works in trauma.

"Our relationship with them is backwards," said Auston. "Days like this are how we get to know them and hear about how they're doing."

Auston also talked about how different the process is for the family members as well since they don't even meet the doctors until after their loved ones are out of surgery and admitted to the hospital.

"They're putting an insane amount of trust in us, sight unseen," said Auston. "They're literally trusting us with their loved one's life without ever meeting us. That's not something we take lightly."

Orange Park Medical Center's trauma center has treated more than 3,000 patients since 2016, according to Trauma Medical Director Miren Schinco.

Property values increase in Clay County

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – Property values continue to rise in Clay County, according to Clay County Property Appraiser Roger A. Suggs.

Suggs said the 2018 taxable value of all properties in the county is estimated at approximately $10.5 billion, which is an annual increase of more than $595 million.

Suggs submitted the working taxable value estimates to the Clay County taxing authorities on June 1.

Estimates for Clay County taxing authorities

Source: Clay County Property Appraiser

Taxing Authority	Taxable Value	Total % Change	New Construction	% Change (less New Construction)
BCC	$10,515,000,000	6.00%	$217,000,000	3.83%
School Board	$11,810,000,000	6.00%	$226,000,000	3.97%
SJRWMD	$10,589,000,000	6.00%	$217,000,000	3.82%
Green Cove Springs	$442,000,000	11.00%	$20,000,000	5.91%
Orange Park	$553,000,000	4.25%	$2,350,000	3.80%
Keystone Heights	$62,200,000	4.50%	$47,000	4.36%
Penney Farms	$14,879,000	7.00%	$43,000	6.69%

The statutory assessment date for the 2018 assessment roll is January 1, 2018. Therefore, the overall increase in value is a reflection of the upward direction the real estate market has taken during 2017. Although market values have increased, the assessed values of properties with a homestead exemption will be limited or 'capped' at a 2.10 percent increase (excluding any additions or improvements) and non-homestead residential and commercial properties will be limited or 'capped' at a 10 percent increase due to constitutional amendments passed by voters in 1992 and 2008, respectively. Taxable value is based on the market value minus differentials ('caps') and exemptions.

Robust permit activity and new construction are contributing factors in the taxable value increases in the county and most taxing authorities. Although new construction is still significantly lower than the peak that took place in 2006 when property valuations were $650 million, the taxable value of new construction has remained positive over the past six years. During that time approximately $217 million in new property was added to the portfolio during 2017.

Eighth graders get peek at college life

By Kile Brewer
Staff Writer

ORANGE PARK – As students transition from middle school into high school, they also need to start thinking about enrolling in college.

Students can begin taking dual enrollment courses, which are offered through state colleges in Florida, in their freshman year of high school. Each year, hundreds of Clay County students graduate from high school with enough college credits to earn an Associate's degree alongside their high school diploma. St. Johns River State College's "OP Rallies Program" works to expose kids to these options before they're even out of the eighth grade.

"A lot of kids are already starting to think about college at this point," said Mikki Johns, the college's recruitment specialist. "Many of those kids are interested in dual enrollment so that they can get started in college while they're in high school."

Tuesday morning, 218 students from Wilkinson Junior High School in Middleburg arrived on busses at the SJRSC campus where they were separated into about six groups and toured throughout the campus. Students were shown through the buildings and taken to the administrative

8 students awarded scholarships in name of fallen officer

MIDDLEBURG – Eight graduating seniors from Middleburg High were recently awarded scholarships in honor of fallen detective David White, the Clay County Sheriff's Office deputy who was killed in an exchange of gunfire during a February 2012 meth lab raid in Middleburg.

Kamryn Davis was awarded the $3,000 Detective David White Memorial Scholarship, Hunter Padgett was awarded the $2,000 Pinch-A-Penny Scholarship, Catarina Calabretta and Annalea Rix were both awarded $2,000 scholarships from the Clay Electric "Round Up" program. Douglas Evans, Cody Carroll, Scott Kneer Jr. and Alexis Newbern were each awarded $1,000 scholarships from the Black Creek Bowl Association through its annual Black Creek 5 K.

Students were recognized May 24 at the MHS Senior Awards Night ceremony held at First Baptist Church Middleburg by BCBA President Patti Kohler and by Jennifer White, a member of the BCBA Scholarship Committee and wife of Detective White.

In its six years, the scholarship program has awarded more than $60,000 in scholarships to local youth.

the community. We stop traffic and make people stop and look at what we're doing," Padgett said." Tip-a-Cop brings both awareness and funding."

Tip-a-Cop is usually held at the Fleming Island Longhorn Steakhouse, and for three nights, officers help serve tables, take orders, run food to tables and everything else a server does. After the guest receives their check, they have the opportunity to place an extra donation to the Special Olympics. All of the money goes to the Special Olympics organization.

Nicole Stanley, an athlete from Orange Park, has competed in the Special Olympics for 14 years in a variety of sports: volleyball, football, golf, softball and bowling. She has been to a lot of events and loves making new friends.

"It's a new state and place to meet new friends," Stanley said. "I am really excited!"

Sarah Redmond, a partner, has volunteered in the Special Olympics for nine years.

"I'm most excited about competing as a team. Everything we've worked for, thus far, being put into play and competing as one unified team."

> "You might not think there's a lot you can do, but there are so many volunteers needed for every sport, every county game, we could always use more. You won't be disappointed because it'll open your eyes to see what a great organization this is.
> – Sarah Redmond

Fishburn, Padgett, Redmond, Smith and Stanley all have the same message for the Clay County community: donate and volunteer.

"You might not think there's a lot you can do, but there are so many volunteers needed for every sport, every county game, we could always use more," Redmond said. "You won't be disappointed because it'll open your eyes to see what a great organization this is.

The live ceremony is scheduled to air on ESPN July 1 and the Games run until July 7.

County Fair wins statewide awards at Fair Conference

ORLANDO – Clay County Agricultural Fair received two awards at the 2018 Federation of Fairs and Livestock Show Convention.

The Clay County Agricultural Fair placed first in the "non-Fair related agricultural event/program which is produced or co-produced by your Fair" category for its partnership with the Annual Farm City Luncheon. The luncheon is produced by the Florida Agricultural Extension Office, Clay County Farm Bureau, Clay County Cattleman's Association and the Clay County Agricultural Fair, the luncheon serves to unite stakeholders from Clay County's agricultural industries.

The fair also placed second for its new Goat Yoga event in the category that honors "newly-established or evolving program/exhibit at your fair which promotes agriculture to the fair going public." Goat Yoga was held on the first Friday and the last Saturday of the 2018 fair and attracted more than 400 participants from all over.

"I am continually surprised and appreciative of the recognition we receive. Our volunteers and partners make everything we do possible, they deserve the recognition!" said Tasha Hyder, general manager of the Clay County Agricultural Fair.

Fleming Island resident wins statewide award

FORT MYERS – A statewide economic development organization honored a Fleming Island resident with its prestigious Eunice Sullivan Economic Development Professional of the Year Award.

Cathy Chambers, who serves as a board member for the Clay County Development Authority, received the award May 22 at the 2018 Florida Economic Development Council annual conference in Fort Myers.

The Eunice Sullivan Economic Development Professional of the Year award is given annually to recognize the achievements of an outstanding Florida economic developer. The award was first given in 1985 and was renamed in 1991 to honor Eunice Sullivan for her dedication and commitment to the economic development profession and the Florida Economic Development Council.

Chambers also serves as senior vice president of strategy and business development for JAXUSA Partnership, the multi-county economic development agency that is under the umbrella of Jax Chamber, the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce.

Cathy Chambers

"Cathy is a highly respected voice for economic development in the Northeast Florida region and the state," said Jerry Mallot, president of JAXUSA Partnership and 1997 recipient of the Eunice Sullivan Award. "Many business decision-makers and site consultants have recounted that they are drawn to the region because of Cathy's professionalism, credibility and knowledge. She consistently impresses our clients resulting in their investment in the region which is good, not only for them, but also for our community."

offices, dual enrollment offices, workforce education classrooms, criminal justice classrooms, the college's Florida Arts program, as well as programs that assist with academic success and provide extracurricular activities around campus.

"I want the students to see that classroom learning can continue [after high school]," said Wilkinson Science teacher Bill Kotziers. "There's a path to a better future beyond high school."

Kotziers stood in a group of students alongside Wilkinson Coach Anthony Wallace as the two prepared to take the students around campus with their assigned tour guide from the St. Johns River faculty.

"The kids need to know that they already have options," Wallace said. "A lot of students say they're undecided, but the faster they decide, the faster they can start taking advantages of programs like dual enrollment."

The tours focused on exposing the students to the idea of college, instead of serving as a big recruiting session aimed at getting them all to attend SJR State. Nobody was being pushy or telling kids that they have to attend college to be successful. Instead, the event focused on providing them with all of the options they will be presented with when they enroll in their first year of high school, as well as the potential for more education beyond their senior year.

"These days kids need to know their options going into high school," said Brooke Elasik, SJR State recruitment and orientation coordinator. "[OP Rallies] are important because they can start earning college credit as soon as they get to high school. They just have to qualify for dual enrollment and maintain a certain GPA to get their feet wet in college courses next year."

Railroad work to close segment of Kingsley Avenue

ORANGE PARK – Motorists who frequent Doctors Lake Drive at Kingsley Avenue will have to plan a few detour trips in the coming weeks.

CSX Corp. and the Florida Department of Transportation will close a segment of the railroad crossing as part of a project to replace the crossing surface. Construction is expected to begin Thursday, June 7 at 3 a.m. and is scheduled to be completed by June 21 at 6 p.m. The roadway will reopen early if work is completed ahead of schedule or could be closed longer if there are weather or other unforeseen delays.

During the closure, traffic will be detoured via U.S. Highway 17/Park Avenue, Wells Road and Blanding Boulevard as seen in the map below. According to the FDOT press release, "Rail is an important component of a healthy economy. It is a cost-effective way to move people and goods efficiently, ultimately saving companies and people money."

Contractor fraud charge for Baker County man

MIDDLEBURG – A Glen St. Mary man faces charges of engaging in contractor business without a license after a brief investigation by authorities.

Gerald Howard

The Clay County Sheriff's Office arrested Gerald Hugh Howard, 44, on May 29 at 11:50 a.m., after being contacted by a Middleburg man who said he paid Howard in December to replace his home's roof.

According to the police report, Evans gave Howard a check for $3,000 to begin the job. The check was endorsed and cashed by Howard. Evans gave Howard a second check for $3,000 on December 29, 2017. Howard again endorsed and cashed the check. Evans gave Howard another check on January 22, this time for $1,000. This check was also endorsed and cashed by Howard.

Police said 162 days have passed since the beginning of the contract and Evans' roof remains unfinished. Evans repeatedly reached out to Howard through text messages and phone calls since Jan. 9.

Officers made contact with Howard at the office of his probation officer. Howard was interviewed and taken into custody after providing both a verbal and written statement. Howard is on active probation for the same offense. He is currently out on bond.

Woman facing car theft charge

FLEMING ISLAND – A Green Cove Springs woman is facing charges of grand theft auto and operating a motor vehicle without a valid license.

The Clay County Sheriff's Office arrested Allyson Mallory McManus, 30, on May 28 at 1:37 a.m. after she was found sitting in a vehicle at a park on Lakeshore Drive North on Fleming Island.

According to the police report, when an officer approached McManus to conduct a suspicious vehicle search, she told the officer she was waiting on her boyfriend and provided her ID to the officer.

Allyson McManus

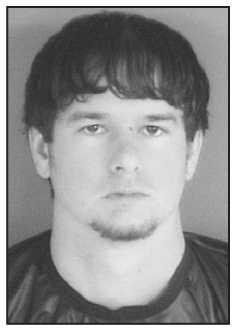
The officer ran a check on the ID and learned that McManus had never held a valid driver's license in Florida and she was also on supervised probation. A search of the vehicle's tag matched a report of a stolen vehicle out of Jacksonville.

McManus was taken into custody and, at press time, remained in the Clay County Jail with bond set at $5,505.

Firearm theft ends in arrest

ORANGE PARK – An Orange Park man arrested on May 26 at 12:29 a.m. is charged with grand theft and grand theft of a firearm.

The Clay County Sheriff's Office arrested Jared Michael Pressel, 29, at a home on Silver Bluff Boulevard after his mother reported that Pressel had stolen several items from her bedroom. Pressel reportedly stole a firearm valued at $500 and a set of engagement rings valued at $6,700.



Jared Pressel

According to the police report, the victim confronted Pressel about the items after they'd been missing for over a week. After speaking to Pressel, she contacted police and reported the theft.

Pressel was taken into custody and gave both verbal and written statements to police. Pressel currently has active warrants for his arrest in both Virginia and North Carolina.

Pressel was transported to the Clay County Jail where he was since been released.

cities that bring people into Clay County. Following Orlando is Tampa, then Gainesville, then Atlanta and finally, Jacksonville. As part of his presentation, London explained a general profile of the people that visit the county from each of those cities.

According to London, 85 percent of the people from ZIP Code 32827 are married couples who live in single family housing. They are generally well-educated professionals who already have a running start on prosperity. These people are further categorized by a dedication to hard work and sacrifice to improve their economic circumstances and despite their usual visits to theme parks, when they visit Clay County they're actually looking for the opposite of Disney or Universal Studios.

"They don't necessarily want theme parks when they travel because they have those at home," London said.

London suggested that Orlando visitors are looking for slower-paced and not-so-flashy attractions and events. He also suggested that when marketing to Orlando, it's important to utilize cell phones and computers as a preferred method of communication.

Tampa, on the other hand, sways more young and restless, according to London. These visitors are singles paying rent, embracing "foodie" culture and looking for something to spend their income on. According to London, Tampa individuals have a disposable income and are looking for things not only in their city to spend money on, but things outside of it as well.

"Something like your [county] fair might bring them here," London said. "To get them here, like Orlando, market to their TVs, their computers and their phones."

According to London, Gainesville visitors are best described as people still completing their college education or people who just recently landed their first career-like job following their completion of college. Because of this, they are also picking where they want to vacation for the first time in their life.

"They have their own money now and they get to decide where to go," London said. "They might not necessarily come to Clay to stay for a bit but they might be passing through and while doing so, stop for something going on in the area."

He also said many Gainesville residents might be college students coming back to Clay County to visit their families.

Before getting to Jacksonville, London said Atlanta is a single and ready to mingle market with a lot of money. Their residents spend money on new technology, clothes, leisure activities and more and, because of that, London said they might be more interested in what there is to do on a day-to-day basis in Clay County rather than a one-time event. He also said Atlanta visitors are, like those of Gainesville, potentially passing through the area and decide to stop in Clay for the day.

Finally, London described Jacksonville as primarily a white-collar workforce with 19 percent of Jacksonville residents being married without children or single living in single family housing. Their incomes are modest but above the average net worth and they are very family-oriented. London said they might prefer an event that brings the entire family together, such as the Clay County Agricultural Fair. This market primarily spends their time playing online video games when using the internet, watching TV or reading the newspaper and these three things are where London suggested marketing dollars go to when trying to reach the Jacksonville market.

"You could also categorize Jacksonville as metro fusion," London said. "They're single, young, diverse and looking for activities to keep them busy and spend their money on."

The metro fusion market of Jacksonville is one of the most diverse markets of the five London discussed with 30 percent of the market being African-American, another 34 percent being Hispanic and another 20 percent being what London described as foreign-born, or someone who was born out of the country and later moved to America to live here.

One of the first questions the council asked after London finished his presentation was why Jacksonville was number five and not number one, despite being so close in proximity to Clay County. According to London, it's because Jacksonville is a very competitive market.

"Folks in Jacksonville are our friends and we need to make sure that they are constantly aware of things there are to see and do here," London said. "As an alternative, they are things for them to see and do elsewhere in the region. We are competing for those dollars and it's important to stay out in front of them."

Moving forward, London told the council that there are five things to focus on now that they've profiled those who visit Clay County. The next steps are determining who's heard of Clay County, what they think of the area, what external impacts affect the county, what the implications of this data are and how the Clay County community spends its resources.

"Obviously, some of our focus is going to be dictated by marketing conditions and opportunities that come to us or that we come across so we have to keep our eyes on that," Tourism Development Council Chairman Mike Cella said. "We have to make sure that we don't miss something that would be worthwhile for Clay County, especially in getting people to visit."

It's important to note that this came from voluntary surveys at ticketed events such as the fair or Highland Games, and at non-ticketed events such as the Orange Park Fall Festival.

Following London's presentation, Clay County Director of Tourism and Film Development Kimberly Morgan informed the council that overall, tourism in Clay County was up from 2015 to 2016--the council has only just now received statistics from 2016 and those from 2017 can be expected at a later date.

"Tourism-related jobs is up 7 percent in Clay County," Morgan said. "In Northeast Florida, that number was flat and in that state, that number decreased a little bit so I just want to brag about Clay County a little bit."

Morgan said that visitor spending has increased by 5 percent to $169.2 million dollars and as a result, tourism revenue has gone up by 6 percent.

In other news, the council agreed to on a way to utilize grants funds left over from events in Clay County. For those unfamiliar, the Tourism Development Council gives out grants each year to sponsored events, such as a musical at the Thrasher-Horne center, to signature events, which are events that attract a minimum audience of 20,000, or to special events, which are events with less of a crowd but still achieve decent attendance nonetheless. Signature events can receive a maximum of $45,000 while a special event can only receive a grant up to $3,500.

According to Morgan, a decent portion of the funds in these grants go unused. For example, a signature event awarded $45,000--which like all of the TDC grants, must be used to market outside of the county--might only utilize $35,000. The TDC agreed to create a rollover line item in the budget where these extra funds can go. These extra funds can be used to help smaller events that don't qualify for a grant market their event outside of Clay County. No motion was necessary but all members of the council did agree that this was a good idea.

Clay County educator honored with award and $10,000

LARGO – The Clay County School District's 2018 School-Related Employee of the Year has taken that same honor on the state level. On May 16, Education Commissioner Pam Stewart named Stephanie Melton, an exceptional student education behavioral health assistant at W.E. Cherry Elementary in Orange Park was named Florida's 2018 School-Related Employee of the Year.

Stewart made the announcement during a State Board of Education meeting in Largo. Melton received a $10,000 prize.

"I am thrilled to recognize Stephanie Melton as the 2018 School-Related Employee of the Year," Stewart. "Working full time while pursuing a degree in Education has not stopped her from finding time outside of the school day to help her students and their families. Her passion for meeting students' individual needs is obvious, and she is truly deserving of this honor."

Education Commissioner Pam Stewart and Clay ESE assistant Stephanie Melton, right.

Clay County School Superintendent Addison Davis said the honor proves Melton's commitment goes beyond the classroom.

"She represents the core values of our school district and is an exemplary educator. Ms. Melton has dedicated her life to teaching and changing the lives of students with special needs at school and in our community," Davis said.

Melton, a W.E. Cherry alum, has worked at the school for 10 years. During the eight years she has served in this position, she is committed to honing her skills to meet students' individual needs. For instance, she learned sign language to communicate better with non-verbal students.

Despite working two jobs and pursuing a postsecondary degree in Education, Melton makes time to support students and their families after school and on the weekends. She also assists local non-profit organizations in raising awareness about special needs. For eight years, she has organized the annual HEAL Zoo Walk for Autism; through her efforts, significant funds were raised and W.E. Cherry Elementary School received five iPads for ESE classrooms.

Water-weary plants

By Wayne Hobbs
Environmental Horticulture Agent

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – As we come to the end of the one of the wettest Mays in the history of our region, your instinct may be to think that this is a great year for plants. However, just like you may be tired of having rain in the forecast, many of our plants are feeling the stress of continually wet soils as well.

As our true rainy season begins, it may be time to consider the negative effects of too much rain on your garden and landscape plants.

Turfgrass

With rain comes frequent mowing of turf throughout the spring and summer but did you know too much water can lead to many lawn issues? First of all, depending on your soil type and landscape location, your lawn can actually die out in sections just from staying wet. If you have a dark black soil within your yard that never seems to dry out, you will likely have problems in your turf that are extremely difficult to correct.

Wayne Hobbs

Excess rain and standing water can also lead to disease in turf, with Pythium root rot, brown patch and take-all root rot taking a foothold whenever it stays wet for an extended period of time.

To manage water stress issues in your yard, ensure proper drainage, choose the right turfgrass, and make sure your irrigation system is not running unnecessarily during wet periods. You can also check your required rain sensor on your system to make sure it's operating properly and have it repaired or replaced if needed.

Ornamental Plants

The stress created by having wet roots can also manifest itself on landscape plants. During these times it is very common to see leaf, flower, or fruit drop; which can be very worrisome. Start off by making sure plants are well suited to their location, matching the wettest areas of your yard with water loving species. Some diseases (leaf spots, mildews, and other fungi are rampant) can also become more of an issue during wet periods so contact your local UF/IFAS Extension office with any identification questions.

If your landscape plant's roots become fully saturated, rake any existing mulch away from the plants main stems and observe it for decline. Following this stress, symptoms can occur immediately or show up months in the future so keep an eye out for problems.

Citrus

A special concern of many citizens in our county is citrus and it can have some very dramatic responses to wet weather. Leaf, flower and fruit drop is very common during high stress years. Since last summer and Hurricane Irma, our orange trees are going to likely have a rough time throughout the early parts of this year as they recover.

To maintain good citrus health, it is essential to provide proper fertilization and care along with keeping mulch, stone, vegetation or any ground cover away from the main trunk of the tree. For more information, visit http://edis.ifas.ufl.edu/hs132.

However, please note that citrus greening can cause fruit drop, leaf drop, and branch dieback as well. If you notice odd, asymmetrical yellow blotching on your plant's leaves, abnormally ripening fruit that may appear lopsided, or general tree decline, it may be wise to contact your UF/IFAS Extension Office about getting your plant tested.

If you have any horticultural, agricultural, 4-H, or family and consumer science questions, contact the University of Florida/IFAS Clay County Extension Office online at http://www.clay.ifas.ufl.edu or call by phone at (904) 284-6355.

Seed and soil

What quality soil does your life provide for the Word of God to flourish? Jesus taught us that the seed of His word is sowed generously. But He also said that much of the seed falls on poor soil where it cannot grow.

Read the parable of the Sower in Matthew 13. Jesus says there are various reasons why God's Word does not flourish in every life. In His parable, He makes it clear the seed that is sowed must have fertile, prepared soil to grow and have a successful harvest.

When the explanation of the parable is given to the disciples, it becomes apparent that seed will only grow when it is planted in prepared ground.

The reason seed does not produce a harvest is because some has fallen on the hardened pathway, some on rocky ground without much soil, and some fell where thorns grew. The basic point is the ground is not prepared for the seed.

When His word is sent to us we must be ready to receive it.

In the metaphor, the soil of our lives that does not allow the word of the Lord to bring a harvest is a shallow life. One failure is giving up when Satan contradicts God's Word and we listen to him. Then, there are those who give up because of persecution or trials. Others are destroyed by cares of the world and deception of riches.

These are the explanations Jesus gave to describe why people hear His Word but do not follow through with a life of victory.

But the last category of "life's soil" is the good soil. This is the person who receives the Word, understands its promise and power and as a result bears good fruit for the Sower. Jesus said that person's life will be abundantly blessed.

"As for what was sown on good soil, this is the one who hears the word and understands it. He indeed bears fruit …" Matt. 13:23 (ESV)

how he plans to work in Congress, should he be elected. He has garnered endorsements from former state Sen. Jim Horne, former Clay County Sheriff Rick Beseler and Green Cove Springs City Councilman Van Royal.

"Philosophy teaches you to listen to an argument and weigh both sides before making a decision," Sapp said. "Politics have become a team sport and it shouldn't be like that. Let's weigh the argument and when it isn't Constitutional, let's use common sense to work through our problems and disagreements."

Beyond his degree, though, Sapp believes his time serving as CEO of W.J. Sapp & Son Inc., his family's railroad construction business, will serve him greatly in Congress, specifically when it's time to make a deal.

Tom Wells

"You take the best deal you can get," Sapp said. "If you have a deal that is 100 percent bad and a deal that is 20 percent bad, you take the 20 percent bad deal because it's the best you can get. You take that deal today and renegotiate when you can and that's common sense."

Wells, who is based in Gainesville, is a theoretical physicist who earned his bachelor's degree at California Tech and his doctorate at the University of Maryland. His education has taught him how to work with what he's got and how to solve a problem despite parameters set around it.

"Throughout my education and working for the Department of Defense and various other companies, you get a lot of problems where you have very little support. You're expected to find the problem and solve it and while looking at these [work-related] problems, I began looking further out and I saw in dismay the continuing demise of democracy," Wells said. "That's why I'm taking what I've learned and hoping to bring it to Congress."

Hinson, who also calls Gainesville home, is planning to use her master's degree in special education to take a more holistic approach to problem-solving in Congress, should she win the seat.

"We all need hope, insurance, good healthcare, to take care of our children, to restore our families and unify them once more and we all want to provide great education for our children," Hinson said. "Well, all want our earth in good health – we only have one – and together we can thrive. I believe we all want that and I don't think these are isolated things."

For Hinson, there are five pillars that her platform stands on – education, family, health, justice and the earth. While she views each pillar as important, Hinson seems especially passionate about education and that might be due in part to her 45 years as an educator, with 15 of those years spent as a principal. She is retired now.

"Right now, I feel like schools, especially public schools, are under attack. Resources are being moved away from the public to a pseudo-privatized system," Hinson said. "I know personally how education can transform a person's life and family as it's the cornerstone of America but right now, education is being used for profit and it shouldn't be that way."

For Sapp, he believes parents should have more options on the table when deciding how their children will be educated, but he also believes schools are currently underfunded. Clay County teachers are about to receive a health insurance premium hike, and not only does Sapp think there should be more money available to education, but to educators as well to help with drastic increases like this.

"Our teachers are about to receive a massive insurance increase, a 29 percent premium increase, and that's just not acceptable," Sapp said. "And this isn't just teachers getting hit by insurance, it's all of America. It's time for a real change for insurance in America."

Specifically speaking, Sapp believes Congress should allow a more competitive marketplace, abolish employer mandates, reduce coverage requirements and provide more transparency in the marketplace such as price disclosures. Both Hinson and Wells agree that American healthcare needs reform but unlike Sapp's desire for a more competitive marketplace, Hinson and Wells believe the country should adopt single-payer healthcare, more specifically in the form of HR 676.

"[HR 676] establishes medical care for all and gives all of us free healthcare that includes all necessary care, medical and dietary, dental, etc.," Hinson said. "The Congressional Budget Office reviewed it in 2014, the bill is complete, and it said we could save $380 billion. There are people in America that can't buy groceries because they have to make a choice between groceries and drugs and we should not be living with these extremes."

Wells believes in HR 676 as well, although he said it needs to be more fleshed out, and he believes the reason America hasn't yet adopted single-payer healthcare is because of corporations and their relationships with members of Congress.

"These corporate donor owners of our Congress suggest laws to Congress, like those regarding health care, and these laws get passed and it gives tax money to those companies with no benefit to us," Wells said. "In Switzerland, they spend $7500 per capita and in America, we spend $10,500 per capita. Despite the extra trillion we spend, 115 million Americans are not covered by adequate health insurance."

All three candidates believe strongly about veterans and say it's time the country treats them better, specifically in how they're cared for following their time in the military.

"We sent people to war and don't know how to truly bring them back," Hinson said. "We need to help them transition back into life. Veterans deserve more than we are giving them."

Wells specifically believes that incumbent Yoho, who could not be reached for comment for the story, has not treated veterans well enough, despite what the Congressman actually says.

Yvonne Hinson

"Ted Yoho went to town halls and forums last cycle and would frequently say to veterans in the audience that over half of his staff time was spent dealing with veterans issues," Wells said. "If your party didn't cut the administrative budget of the VA and leave 370 staff positions unfunded, then you would probably get zero complaints. Veterans only complain when it's justified and they certainly have things to complain about with Yoho and his party."

Sapp agrees that the VA is underfunded and certainly needs change.

"Our veterans, men and women who risked their lives to protect ours, deserve better," Sapp said. "Veterans Affairs need a complete overhaul from the ground up."

In terms of his party, the Republican party, Sapp believes it's time for the era of New Republicans. Specifically, he believes it's time that his party truly take government out of individuals' lives and pocketbooks as much as possible. For him, the Grand Ole Party has lost its luster.

"I believe the party has become very polarized. We're called the Grand Ole Party for a reason and I feel we've lost our shine," Sapp said. "It's time to pass the torch to a new generation and party leadership needs to be cognizant of that.

"As a Republican, there's a lack of support for the President from the party," Sapp said. "Right now, what we're seeing is one man's will despite Congress. I will support our President."

For Wells, he believes it's time for both parties, not just Democrats like himself, to remove corporations from their pockets.

"I would share that many people with good intentions have gone to Congress and upon arriving there, they get poached," Wells said. "The reason is that the environment is designed to corrupt and in both parties, each Congressman is basically required by party leaders to spend several hours a day calling big donors begging for big money."

Hinson believes the Democratic Party has no faith in winning the seat this year.

"I frankly don't believe the Democratic Party believes this is a winnable seat but

A wife of noble character who can find? She is worth far more than rubies ... She watches over the affairs of her household and does not eat the bread of idleness. Her children arise and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praises her.

Market

runs as smooth and efficiently as others. At the end of the day, that means making money.

Other students at Paterson Elementary are given fake dollars they can use to purchase items from the Kid Market. Depending on the items being sold, which includes lemonade, virtual reality experiences, rainbow bracelets and more, a student might make a lot of money. Sadly, they might not make much money at all but, according to Hancock, everything that happens is to serve the learning experience.

A student whose profits soar might learn how to startup a successful business. A student whose profits don't do so well might learn what steps need to be taken to prevent lower profits next time. Regardless, these fifth graders are learning the basics of entrepreneurship.

One student even learned about direct competition. For last year's market, Logan Enyedi, 10, ran a business that sold rainbow bracelets and it did fairly well. This year, though, Enyedi's sales are lower and he blames his two classmates across the room. "My business is Beautiful Band Bracelets and they're rainbow bracelets that took me forever to make," Enyedi said. "I did them last year and this year, [the business across the room] decided to copy me so, yeah."

"My stuff isn't selling as good mainly because I have that competition," Enyedi continued, pointing at the kids across the room, which prompted a friendly back-and-forth. "Next time, I'm just going to be even better."

Of the 26 kids who have set up shop during this year's kid market, some of them, like Enyedi, decided to go solo. Others, though, teamed up with other students. That's exactly what Sadie Parish, 11, and Hannah Ladd, 11, did.

STAFF PHOTOS BY WESLEY LEBLANC

Sadie Parish, 11, and Hannah Ladd, 11, teamed up to sell keychains during Kid Market.

"We just had this great breakthrough about working together," Ladd said. "We were both stuck brainstorming ideas and then Sadie said, 'Let's do keychains,' and that's what we're doing."

Part of the Kid Market, according to Hancock, is market research. For this, students had to ask their fellow peers what kinds of goods and services they'd be interested in. That's where Parish's idea of keychains came from.

Emma Reavis, 11, was so inspired by Kid Market that she sees herself as a future business owner. Reavis put a new spin on lemonade wit her company Llama-nade!

"I thought about how every kid just loves keychains on their backpacks and they always seem to love and buy keychains," Parish said. "Every store you go to has keychains that you can buy so I thought it would be a big seller."

And a big seller it has been. Ladd said they've already had to raise the prices of their keychains to account for the ebb and flow of their business' supply and demand, something they learned they might have to do as business owners.

One student, Emma Reavis, 11, was so inspired by this project that she sees herself as a future business owner one day.

"I really like this and maybe I'll do it when I grow up," Reavis said. "Everyone that's tried my lemonade has said it's really good and I should go setup at the pool or something."

Reavis' business is a lemonade stand that not only sells the popular summer drink, but cookies as well. Her family suggested she name the business, "Lemmanade" but Reavis had other plans.

"I just really love llamas so I named it 'Llama-nade'," Reavis said. "That made it easy to pick a logo too."

The Llama-nade logo is a hand-drawn llama with a speech bubble that says, "Llama-nade" and under it, the words "It's Llamalicios." Each student learned marketing by devising a slogan for their business as well.

While Reavis had a lot of fun working on this project, she warns those interested in starting a business about the hard work they have in front of them.

"To people out there, if you want to start a business, you have to go through a whole process," Reavis said. "It's not just, 'Oh, I'm going to do a lemonade stand and it's going to be so much fun and I'm going to get all the ingredients and just sell it,'."

"No, it's not that easy," Reavis said. "You have to get all of the permits and you have to do a lot of things before you can start a business."

Going into the project, Reavis thought it would be easy but she's learned that, like many things in life, it's challenging but that challenge is equally rewarding.

"When I first did this last year, I was like, 'this will be easy'," Reavis said. "But now, I know it's not easy and it's pretty hard but I like it. That's what makes it fun."

I'm out here to show my party that there is an option and that I believe it's winnable," Hinson said. "We need someone to take a holistic approach and restore domestic tranquility to each and every family and that will be my goal."

Financially speaking, Dushyant, who could not be reached for comment, has come up with the least in his campaign having only raised $1,298, but has spent $1,118 so far. Hinson has raised the second-least so far with $12,871.92. The Florida Election Commission said she's raised $17,872 but $5,000 of that was a loan Hinson took out. So far, she's spent $9,545.42 and she attributes this amount of money raised to the lack of her party's support.

"[My finances raised] just go back to the Democratic Party and how they really don't think this seat can be won," Hinson said. "But I have faith. We can win this."

Wells raised $19,515.73 and while the FEC said he's raised $22,515.73, which includes a $3,000 loan from Wells. To date, he's spent $19,791.91.

Of those opposing Rep. Yoho, Sapp has raised the most so far with $58,595 and has spent $34,769.36.

Yoho, though, has raised significantly more than his opponents cashing in at $466,058,64--the reason this number is so much higher likely has to do with the fact that Rep. Yoho is the incumbent. So far, he's only spent a little more than half of his contributions with his expenditures coming in at $240,300.59.

Overall, Sapp's platform can be best summarized as a platform whose foreign policy is that America comes first and that the country should stand with its allies and firmly against its enemies. Sapp also believes in the right to keep and bear arms, the right to life and is himself, pro-life, a more accessible and competitive healthcare market, less government in your life and your pocket, stronger border security and a staunch stand against illegal immigration. Finally, he believes America deserves more quality education, with more choices for parents, and a stronger dedication to honoring the country's veterans.

"We are at a unique time in human history where Florida 3 can actually make a difference," Sapp said. "On Aug. 28, if voters aren't happy with Congress, they can make a choice and vote someone else in. If you're happy with the way Congress is doing business, I'm not your choice."

For Wells, his platform is based quite heavily on the belief that corporations should no longer have their hands in the pockets of Congress members and that by removing their hands from the pot, America across the board can be changed for the better. Wells believes in single-payer healthcare for all Americans, criminal justice reform and an end to systemic racism and oppression and reform in American income. He believes that middle-class and lower-class working Americans have been overshadowed by the upper-class and big-money corporations. Finally, he believes in clean air and water for all, including a tax on greenhouse gas sources that can be used to reward those using clean and renewable energy, a better education system, the legalization of marijuana and an inexpensive and expedient pathway to citizenship for those wishing to come to America legally and for the 11 million undocumented immigrants living, working and paying taxes in the U.S.

"I have been inoculated and immunized against corruption," Wells said. "I have eight grandchildren and each of them is a shot in the arm. I will not deviate from my stances for them now, in office or any time thereafter."

Hinson's platform again goes back to her five pillars of education, family, health, justice and the earth. Hinson thinks that it's time to ensure prosperity for America's middle-class, strengthen American families and take a multi-faceted, 21st Century approach to healthcare. Finally, Hinson promotes stronger regulations on semi-automatic firearms and gun safety, a justice system that's actually just, with an end to mass incarceration and systemic oppression, and she plans to fight for a safe and forward-thinking approach to the environmental issues America faces not only today, but will one day face in the future as well.

"I believe I have gifts and talents that could make a difference in America," Hinson said. "I began paying attention, watching, waiting, looking and seeing. We need more compassion in administration. We need someone who can see the entire picture of America and we really need a change."

Devils suffer season-ending third inning

By Randy Lefko

VERO BEACH – Clay High's softball girls played nearly even softball in their Class 6A semifinal against defending 6A champion Land O'Lakes High, but a single error in the third inning proved fateful as Clay lost 5-0 in the state semifinal game Wed., May 23 in Vero Beach.

Land O'Lakes lost 5-1 to American Heritage, a 3-0 winner over Lake Wales, for the 6A title on Thurs., May 24. Land O'Lakes beat American Heritage 3-1 in the 2017 final.

VERO BEACH – A ground ball toward third base seemed routine, especially with Baylee Goddard manning her post on the corner, as the Oakleaf High softball team faced off against Hagerty High in the Class 8A championship game on May 24 after a rain-soaked week of tournament play that saw the game schedule shifted three times.

"I do think think going that long without facing live pitching took a toll on every team there," said Oakleaf coach Christina Thompson. "Look at the scores (all 1-0). But it was an equal playing field. We all had to deal with delays and we all had to find ways to keep our kids focused. I'm proud of our performance. I would have liked a different outcome, but I'm proud of what they were able to achieve."

In the blink of an eye, though, Oakleaf High's shot at a second consecutive Class 8A state title turned into disaster as the ball bounced off the base and over Goddard's left shoulder to score the only run of the game in Hagerty's 1-0 win for the title.

Oakleaf (30-3), who had survived a 1-0 win over Lakewood Ranch in their state semifinal the day before, was facing baserunners on second and third after a single, a sacrifice bunt, a passed ball and an intention walk put the Knights' defense in position to end

VERO BEACH – Keystone Heights scored the first run of their Class 5A semifinal on Tues., May 22 against West Nassau but gave up four runs in the fourth; two with a throwing error, to end their season with a 4-1 loss to the Warriors in Vero Beach.

With the game moved from an 8:30 a.m. start to 2:20 p.m. and a 90-minute rain delay in the sixth inning, Keystone Heights ends their season at 20-11 under coach Jessica Marquart.

LYNN HAVEN – Led by senior pitcher Connor Solomon, the Clay High baseball team avenged a 3-0 region championship loss last year to Mosley High of Lynn Haven by turning the tables to a 2-0 region title on May 22. The win puts Clay into the Class 6A Final Four championship tournament to be held in Fort Myers May 30-June 1.

"Our boys were ready to play," said Clay coach Josh Persinger. "We have been talking about this game for 364 days. In the weight room, all summer, every conditioning every practice. We knew on the bus ride home last year we wanted to do everything we could to get back here."

Clay entered the region championship game with region wins over Stanton Prep and a nine-inning bonanza over Ponte Vedra High. Mosley, a state runnerup the past two years, advanced with region wins over Fort Walton Beach and West Florida.

Clay High senior pitcher Connor Solomon has had two huge games with wins over Ponte Vedra and Mosley as the Blue Devils head to a Class 6A semifinal against Tampa Jefferson.

In 2017, Mosley lost in the state semifinal to eventual 6A champion Archbishop McCarthy who beat Tampa Jesuit 5-1 in the championship game.

At the 2018 Final Four tournament, Clay will face Tampa Jefferson at 10 a.m. on May 30 with Barron Collier to face Merritt Island in the other semifinal at 1 p.m. also on May 30.

Clay (25-7) and Tampa Jefferson (20-8) are both district runnerups while Barron Collier (19-12) and Merritt Island (23-6) are both district champions from their respective regions. Merritt Island, Jefferson and Barron Collier were all region semifinalists in 2017.

In 2012 and 2014, Clay made the Final Four under coach Rob Thompson with a 5A finals' loss to Tampa Jesuit in 2014.

"The first time Clay had ever made the Final Four was in 2012 and ironically we matched up with Ponte Vedra," said Persinger, who was an assistant coach. "Who knew at that time it would be the beginning of a huge local rivalry that has peppered the history books 7-8 times in a short in a short period. Lanoux, Bigilin roller coaster ride ends with ninth inning double

By Randy Lefko

FLEMING ISLAND – Fleming Island High senior pitcher Caleb Lanoux and interim head baseball coach Grant Bigilin, both with resurgent end-of-season heroics for the Golden Eagles' baseball team, had their topsy-turvy yet exhilirating ride end with the crack of a double to centerfield as Strawberry Crest, equally a new player on the Class 8A baseball scene, won a 2-0 nine inning clash Tuesday night at Fleming Island High School.

Teary-eyed and silent was Fleming Island High head coach Marty Lanoux, in the dugout, but still recovering from heart surgery a month ago, when asked of his son's efforts to put the Golden Eagles in position for a possible state tournament berth.

"We found out ways to close games in the latter part of the season," said Marty Lanoux. "Baseball is baseball and the little things count. We didn't get the hits we have had the past three games."

Fleming Island played nearly toe-to-toe with the tough hitting Strawberry Crest Chargers until the ninth inning where two singles and two steals set up a two-run double off the centerfield fence.

"We just put everything on the table and see what happens," said Lanoux, who mastered three region playoff wins for the Golden Eagles to get the historic championship game. "We dreamed of a game like this, just not this ending."

The region final game itself was a first-time championship home game to be played at Fleming Island High School.

"We played so many close games this season with one or two run losses that we didn't want to feel this way once the playoffs started," said Bigilin, who played in 2011 on Fleming Island's last region final team under coach Don Suriano. "Obviously, we played a good team tonight. Our 2011 game was on the road. It was a lot of fun and we had a load of people here supporting the team. It's been a great ride."

Fleming Island High baseball coach Grant Bigilin, front, got rugged play from senior pitcher Caleb Lanoux in the Golden Eagles region final playoff run this year.

Fleming Island held court with Strawberry Crest behind a gallant third pitching start from Lanoux and some standout play at shortstop from Noah McCollum that kept the Chargers from advancing despite numerous baserunners making it to third base.

"We are going to miss Caleb for sure," said Bigilin. "He is such a tough competitor and he makes the rest of the team do the necessary plays to make the outs out there. He's been the heart and soul of this team."

In the first inning, Fleming Island got smacked with a hard grounder to third baseman Zack Mercer that quickly put a baserunner in play, but McCollum retali-

Another Justino slings rock for Broncos

MIDDLEBURG – With dad Rob Justino roaming the sidelines and older brother Dan Justino watching as a fan, the third Justino signal caller for Middleburg High, Joe Justino, showed off some scrambling and throwing ability in the Broncos' 20-7 spring game loss to Westside High May 25 at Middleburg High School.

Joe Justino, a junior, follows the footsteps of dad Rob, an assistant coach still on the Middleburg sideline and a passing record holder for Middleburg High as well as Liberty University, and older brother Daniel Justino, now battling for a field goal kicking slot at the University of Florida after directing the Bronco offense in his senior year in 2015.

"He showed some good pocket composure in there in his first varsity shot," said Middleburg coach Karl Smeltzer. "He rolled out well and kept his eyes downfield to hit some receivers on the run."

Another familiar face on the Bronco sideline was former Fleming Island High head coach Frank Hall, who was dismissed three years ago amidst unfounded claims of misappropriation of booster funds at Fleming Island High School. Hall, never charged with a crime nor disciplined for wrongdoing, was replaced unceremoniously as Fleming Island High's coach and replaced by assistant coach Damenyum Springs, who is now the head coach.

"Having a full coaching staff is important for as young as we are and to get a coach like Frank Hall to come back to coaching can only help our kids," said Smeltzer. "He brings a lot of big game experience to us."

With Hall as a defensive line coach, Smeltzer has himself, Rob Justino and defensive coordinator Alan Burnsed all standout coaches with years of experience.

"When we went to playoffs two years ago, we had a full coaching staff," said Smeltzer. "Last year, we were down two for the end of the year. It makes a difference."

Joe Justino struck first on the run on the opening drive for Middleburg after directing a 11 play drive behind the running of senior tailback Tyler Bryant and an over-the-shoulder catch by wideout Jay Lane, a sophomore, for 42 yards to Westside's 33 yard line. Justino stayed with Bryant and Lane with passes and handoffs to the Westside 11 yard line before hitting junior wideout Trevor Todd on a slant left to the Westside nine yard line.

"Lane came in last year at the end from junior varsity and did a nice job," said Smeltzer. "Tyler is a seasoned player at running back, but we put him at safety because of an injury to our starter last Thursday. He misread one of the Westside scores, but he will learn the schemes if we are going to use him."

From the nine, Justino bootlegged right and floated a scoring pass to a wide open lane in the end zone to finish the drive while also using nearly five minutes of the clock.

Westside would retaliate with a 75 yard straight up the middle of the field with defensive back Calvin Suggs and Anthony Havens giving chase unsuccessfully.

Justino was getting little help up front from his offensive line, led by 6'-3", 285 pound juniors Cole Leclair and Colby War-

Raiders show off Collier's speed

BALDWIN – With three members of the Orange Park High's track 4 X 400 relay team; led by Class 3A third placer Alex Collier at tailback, the Raiders' football spring game became an exercise in releasing Collier downfield as many times as possible. The result was a 14-14 halftime score with 3A-Baldwin High at Baldwin High School.

"We were missing a couple of key offensive weapons and Alex stepped up to show what he could do with 10-15 reps," said Raider head coach Tom Macpherson, noting the absence of wideout/quarterback Terrance Johnson and running back Zykiem Sermons. "With everyone we have healthy, we should be able to carry the ball two or three different ways."

With that being said, Baldwin opened with an 80 yard slant pass to touchdown against cornerback Kadin Elmore, who let wideout Richie Coffey get inside leverage, catch a great pass from quarterback Gavin Screws and rumble untouched to paydirt to put the Raiders behind 7-0 in less than a minute. Elmore was a member of that Raider 4 x 400 relay team.

"Baldwin came in with two guys that will be NCAA Division I prospects at receivers and we messed up the coverage on that first play," said Macpherson. "We were having trouble with open field tackles and position and that we have to correct."

After Coffey's theatrics chilled out the Raider fan section, Collier reignited them

ORANGE PARK – Sandalwood High School distance runner Terrance Sessoms held off veteran runner Christopher McCraffrey to win the Florida Striders Memorial Day 5K held Monday in Orange Park.

Sessoms, 18th in Class 4A cross country in 2016, held off a late charge from McCraffrey to win by eight seconds with his 16 minute, 22 second effort. Alejandro Hernandez, 23, finished third in 16:47.

For the women, Lauren Scott, 26, won by a minute over U.S. Olympic Trials Marathoner Kim Pawelek Brantly with an 18:45 effort. Bishop Snyder High runner Gianna Forte, 17, finished third in 20:03.

Masters winners were Gary Myers, 45, of Orange Park, in 17:18, and Regina Sooey, 47, of Jacksonville, in 21:06.

Age group winners for the women were Ana Chiang, 10, in 24:25; Grace Adams, 13, in 21:05; Mei Chiang, 14, in 19:49; Ashley Carpenter, 22, in 21:35; Jackie Dorociak, 27, in 20:54; Casey Mitten, 30, in 22:05; Jessica Jewell, 36, in 22:22; Barbara Beard, 44, 21:24; Kristine Williams, 46, in 21:33; Dena Gaucher, 50, in 25:32; Karen Prewitt, 55, in 24:56; Kathleen Kaye, 60, in 23:15; Rhonda Fosser, 67, in 25:30; Susan Branley, 71, in 27:39 and Kay Campbell Jones, 76, in 35:23.

bad those guys wanted it. 2014 was a special group of kids and almost all of them have reached out to us congratulating this team on their road to state."

Barron Collier, 5A champs in 1997, 3A runnerup in 1991 and a Final Four finisher in 2006, lost to Mosley in the state semifinals in 2016 before Mosley lost to Archbishop McCarthy in the championship game.

Tampa Jefferson had a string of Final Four appearances from 1943-1962, but have been region finishers since 1985.

Merritt Island was 5A champs in 1999 and 2000 but have 11straight region finishes since 2005.

Against Mosley, Clay struck first with a Kevin Jackson single in the opening inning followed by a Nick Barrie bunt that put a scoring run in place, but a grounder to Tyler Spence and a flyout to Josh Lemen ended the threat.

"We did somethings different logistically, we learned from our mistakes on travel and pregame procedures," said Persinger. "I think Mosley knew we were different before we even got off the bus."

Mosley got a walk with their first at bat, but Zack Morris and Andy Yarbrough execute a double play to squash that early effort.

"Zach Morris transitioned into a new role at shortstop and has done a good job," said Persinger. "Find a way is kind of what we preached and they have so far."

In the third inning, still 0-0, Barrie and Spence both got singles to set up a sacrifice bunt from Lement that scored Barrie.

Solomon blasted the next inning with three of his four strikeouts.

"Everything we heard about Mosley was they put the ball in play," said Persinger. "We were curious how that was going to play out because Solomon has been a strikeout guy all year."

In the fourth inning, Chase Holman walked before Yarbrough reached on an error with Garrett Chun pinchhitting a hard grounder to center field that scored pinchrunner Bryce Parker to put Clay up 2-0. Yarbrough would follow Chun with a single but Barrie hit a line drive to centerfield for the final out.

A heads up defensive effort from left fielder Dylan Faulkner got a double play at second base with Mosley batter B. Roberson caught trying to run to second base.

"Back to back games that made a huge impact on the game and possibly changed the outcome," said Persinger, noting Faulkner's home run steal against Ponte Vedra last week. "Both were huge blows to the opposition as they could have been momentum swings."

In the fifth, Solomon exerted his arm with simple grounders and a line drive to Spence at third base as Mosley could not get an outfield hit.

Clay's final defensive gem came in the sixth with shortstop Zack Morris and Andy Yarbrough punching out a second double play off a grounder in the shortstop hole.

"In the sixth inning, they had runners on first and second with one out and their best hitter up. A home run would have made it a 3-2 ball game going into the top of the seventh with all momentum from Clay gone," said Persinger. "Conner and Coach Travis McQuaig worked great together on that sequence and ended up getting an inning ending double play to finish the sixth."

Mosley made one final effort to score runs with a seventh inning double, but Solomon induced two grounders to leave the baserunner at second base.

Clay outhit Mosley 7-4 with both teams getting two field errors.

Clay High relief pitcher Andy Yarbrough is strong finisher for the Blue Devils who came in to complete a region semifinal thriller against Ponte Vedra High.

ated with his own double play with a snag of a line drive and a toss out at first base to extinguish the error.

In the second inning, a second error at third to Mercer put runners in play with McCollum knocking down a deep grounder, but offering to throw to first base to leave two runners in play.

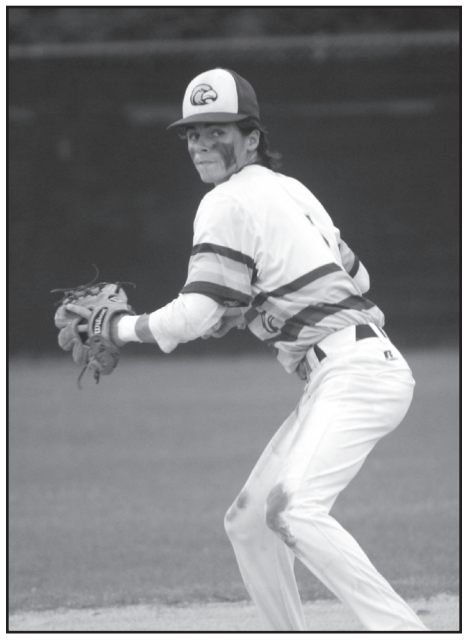
From there, though, Lanoux settled the score with two strikeouts and a grounder back to McCollum to keep the baserunners in place.

"It's baseball, the breaks went their way," said Marty Lanoux. "Calab has a knack for bearing down in tough situations."

For the next five innings, both teams would be shut out from putting baserunners in play with Strawberry Crest getting another error-induced runner in the fourth, but Fleming Island second baseman Collier Summers ending the inning with a nifty grab and throw.

Both pitchers added two strikeouts apiece in the fourth and fifth innings to keep the game tense.

In the top of the sixth, Lanoux left a runner on base with an inning-ending strikeout while Fleming Island got two baserunners in the bottom of the sixth on walks, but two strikeouts ended that effort.



Fleming Island High shortstop Noah McCollum had a highlight reel night against Strawberry Crest in Golden Eagles 2-0 region final loss.

Fleming Island had one final shot to end the game with Justin Hawkins getting to first by getting hit with a pitch, but Adam Peck was struck out to put the game into extra innings.

Peck would then steal an out on the foul line fence in right field on a good effort on a high fly ball with Summers getting an umpire out call on an interference call at second base that completed a double play.

Fleming Island final at bats in the ninth got a walk to Cole Belcher but grounders to end the game.

Devils

1-0, 2-0 game either way," said Clay coach Matt Lewis. "That's championship softball; one mistake can be costly."

Clay, advancing with a series of opportunistics hits and baserunning to defeat region opponents Paxon, Ridgeview and West Florida, came out storming on the arm of pitcher Morgan Crutcher who opened with two strikeouts on the first two Gator batters to set a tone for the Blue Devil defense.

"This team lost just two games this season to non-playoff teams," said Lewis. "Our losses after those two are against teams that are playing in this tournament. A young team like this; just three seniors, DeNapoli, Kumpf and Stone, started clicking and meshing as a team about midseason when we completed our lineup as it stands."

In the Blue Devils' initial at bat, Charlotte DeNapoli got to third base on a series of errors on Land O'Lakes pitcher Callie Turner, a University of Tennessee commit, who also threw a wild pitch and had a passed ball to set the Blue Devils up in scoring position. A bunt by Marianne McDonald down the third base line got DeNapoli tagged out and Haley Stone struck out to end the inning.

"We get a break there and we score and the whole game changes," said Lewis. "That third baseman was smart and did not forget about Charlotte being behind her. Smart play."

The second inning went three up and three down for both teams with Crutcher getting groundouts and Turner getting two strikeouts.

Clay High first baseman Sydney Lewis was a key batter for the Blue Devils and even suffered a hit to her helmet as Clay played even ball with defending Class 6A champion Land O'Lakes High in their 5-0 loss in the state semifinal match after giving up runs in the third inning.

In the top of the third was when disaster hit for Clay. Crutcher hit the opening batter, Brooke Stanley, who got to third on a double from Destiny Rodriguez before Stone bobbled a sharp grounder that may have made it to McDonald at shortstop and let two runs in.

Land O'Lakes batter Shelby Wesbrook would hit a sharp grounder to Stone that Stone handled before Turner smack a grounder to second base that Clay's Ali Sarman threw to catcher Kaitlyn Kumpf for a shot a a tag out.

The ensuing call, safe at home for a third run, caused Lewis to discuss with the home plate umpire.

"We thought there was interference on the play, but, in the end, it's championship softball and things happen quickly and the umpires are top notch," said Lewis. "I'm still going to put my two cents in for my kids just to keep the intensity up."

From there, Crutcher hit a second batter to load the bases before a single scored two more runs.

Turner stayed tight on the mound for Land O'Lakes but Kumpf got a single off an error between two strikeouts in the third inning.

In the fourth, Clay showed some defensive spunk after a centerfield blooper put a baserunner in place.

"We wanted to not let the game get away and I told the kids to keep playing hard," said Lewis. "I can't be more proud of getting there and also taking on the state champions with plenty of dignity and pride."

A sharp grounder got misplayed by McDonald to put two baserunners in play, but Crutcher buckled down with a strikeout and then orchestrated a opportunistic sequence with a Crutcher stab at a sharp grounder that sophomore second baseman Ali Sarman snagged and and completed the out to end the inning.

"They were still fighting for a shot to keep the game close," said Lewis. "Ali earned her start spot at second late in the season and has been one of best infielders for us."

Land O'Lakes again got two baserunners in the top of the fifth, but a great throw to Kumpf from left fielder Delaney Anfinson nailed a scoring attempt by the Gators.

Clay would get a first walk off Turner in the bottom of the sixth; to Denapoli, to spark some juice into the Clay batting lineup, but McDaniels hit into a groundout a second base.

Clay's final baserunner was Sydney Lewis who was hit in the helmet but Anfinson hit a flyball and Paolo Jorge-Silva struck out to end the game.

Indians

(delays and moving fields) and the conditions (RAIN) are not what you are used to of course if affects the team," said Marquart. "But everyone who played that morning including West Nassau were all in the same boat and they just so happened to handle it better then we did. They are a great team and took advantage of our walks and errors and found a way to win."

In the first inning, a single from Ashleigh Jennings and sacrifice bunt from Ashton Ludwig set up Bailey Story's run scoring single to put the Lady Indians on top quickly.

In the bottom of the first inning, though, West Nassau got stung with two flyballs off pitcher Megan Moncrief; one with a sprinting snag in centerfield from Jennings and a grounder to third base.

Keystone Heights batter Cami Worley was hit by West Nassau pitcher Skylar Whitty in her second inning at bat, but stayed at first after a groundout to Northway.

In the bottom of the second, West Nassau tagged Moncrief with two run-scoring singles on top of two walks to load the bases and score four runs total.

Keystone Heights got just one run-scoring threat with Northway reaching on a sharp grounder to third and stealing second, but she remained there with Jennings flying out.

Keystone Heights batter Savannah Channell and her Indians' teammates were stifled from West Nassau pitcher Skylar Whitty who got 10 strikeouts in 4-1 state semifinal win in Vero Beach.

"The team was very sad and the drive home was very quiet," said Marquart. "Eight seniors who have been a part of this team for six years, it crushed them. But what an opportunity and experience to be able to make it to state. I am very proud of this team for that accomplishment and just for the pure hard work that they put in this year."

Keystone Heights batting order featured speedy outfielder Ashleigh Jennings who had one hit and scored in Indians' 4-1 loss to West Nassau in the Class 5A semifinal.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Connor Solomon
Clay High School

Clay High senior pitcher Connor Solomon went two-for-two with outstanding pitching performances with his most recent Tuesday's Region 1-6A championship effort, a 2-0 win over Mosley High, that put the Blue Devils into the Class 6A Final Four in Fort Myers on May 30. Solomon pitched last week against Ponte Vedra in Clay's 4-2 win in the region semifinal.

ner as a handoff to fullback Justin Borchardt went nowhere and Havens mishandled a pitchout that lost five yards on the fumble scramble.

"Both of those guys are massive and athletic," said Smeltzer. "We get the blocking down, we'll move people."

Defensive back Calvin Suggs, an athletic 5'-7", 157 pounder, had some welltime pass breakups as a highlight for the Bronco defense with a jumping swipe in front of Westside's top wideout, senior Javon Gantt, a 6'-4" leaper.

"Calvin's dad was a great running back for Orange Park High back when and Calvin, Jr., has a smart football mind," said Smeltzer. "He played well against a Division I prospect that Westside had out there."

With 3:20 left in the first quarter, Justino ran eight plays with a scramble for 14 yards the highlight for a first down at the 40. A third down slant to Todd gained five yards, but Middleburg had to punt.

Suggs struck again with another pass breakup, but Gantt got beyond Bryant at safety for his second score of the night from 42 yards away.

In Middleburg's ensuing drive, head coach Karl Smeltzer started giving Havens his shot int he backfield for gains of three yards before Justino found Lane again for a 13 yard pass for a first down at the 42.

Former Fleming Island High head football coach Frank Hall returned to the gridiron sidelines as a defensive coordinator at Middleburg High and directed the Broncos' defense in their spring game against Westside on May 25.

Middleburg punted away the ball.

Middleburg stopped the Westside run game momentarily on the next drive with defensive end Dylan Keller and linebacker Brody Senn stepping up to the line of scrimmage before Gantt pulled down a 42 pass over Havens who was in perfect inside position, but no match for the jumping ability of Gantt. From the 25, Westside would score five plays later with Gannt grabbing his second score of the night and a 21-7 halftime lead.

"He just got out-athleted," said Smeltzer. "He had great position, but just got outjumped."

with a 25 yard first carry into Baldwin territory that put the Raider offensive line in good position for the fleet-footed back.

From there, quarterback A.J. Mealer found wideout Cameron Broughton in the flat for 18 yards to the Indians' 18 yard line.

Orange Park's offense stalled there and kicker Shaq Magwood missed a field goal to leave the score at 7-0 with 8:52 still in the first quarter.

Baldwin would get consistent 8-10 yard gains on the Raider defense to keep the ball moving downfield, but it was a costly late hit penalty that kept the Indians alive. An offensive pass interference call against Coffey on an end zone pass in front of defensive back Antwaun Cooper pushed Baldwin backward before defensive lineman Jacob Moore sacked Screws to push Baldwin back as far as the Baldwin 48.

After a lousy punt from Screws landed Orange Park at their own 40, Collier again sliced off left tackle and sprinted 35 yards to the Baldwin 25. Mealer would take a bad center snap to the four yard line on a nifty scramble before two shots from Collier were stopped. A face mask penalty gave Mealer a first down at the one yard line where he split right and dove over the goal line to put the Raiders on the scoreboard.

Shagwood's PAT kick tied the game at 7-7 with 3:35 still in the first quarter.

Baldwin came right back with a long drive of 11 plays that saw the Indians get seven first downs, but, at the Raider nine yard line after a facemask and roughing the passer kept Baldwin moving again, Orange Park safety Kareem Williams broke up an end zone pass to put the Raiders offense back on the field at the Orange Park eight yard line.

"We don't have many very big guys, but guys like Kendy Charles, David Araujo and Alex Moore were getting after it for the defense," said Macpherson. "Araujo is a state weightlifting medal winner and we have him on the line after being a linebacker last year. Kendy is just a defensive standout."

After the defensive stop, Collier rumbled behind 280 pound tackle James Rhodes to find open grass and blasting 80 yards with an escort from 400 speedster Sean Dixon, a wide receiver and the third 400 meter track specialist.

Orange Park's defense stopped Baldwin on the next series. The Raider offense stalled at the 40 with 5:14 to halftime.

Baldwin came back with another long drive with five first downs coming with a mix of bubble screens and their passing game to tie the score on a six yard touchdown run with 2:58 left in the half.

Both teams had five down series to end the half at 14-14.

Mauloni named to conference All-Freshman team

By JUDolphins.com

JACKSONVILLE – Following an effective regular season which brought the most regular-season wins since 2006 (37) and the most series sweeps since 1999 (6), eight members of the Jacksonville University baseball team received ASUN Postseason Honors, the conference announced Tues., May 22 at its annual postseason banquet.

Jacksonville, after losing to Stetson and North Florida in the ASUN tournament over the weekend, were recently selected as the No. 2 seed for the NCAA regions in Gainesville, the 15th time the program has been selected to play in the NCAA championship tournament. Florida is the No. 1 (42-17). Jacksonville and Florida both join the 63 team field with games beginning June 1. The Dolphins won an 8-4 decision over the Gators on April 17.

For the second time in the last three seasons, the Dolphins placed three on the ASUN First-Team All-Conference list. First-baseman Angel Camacho, second-baseman Chris Lehane and shortstop Scott Dubrule earned a spot on the top team, while pitchers Chris Gau and Chris Mauloni were tabbed Second-Team All-Conference.

Additionally, Mauloni, an Oakleaf High School graduate; pitcher Trent Palmer and outfielder Duncan Hunter were placed on the All-Freshman Team. Camacho and Evan Fernandez were named to the ASUN All-Academic Team for the second time in their collegiate careers, while Lehane was given his first All-Academic Team distinction.

the Knights' defense in position to end the inning on any grounder.

"Hitting was not a factor for any team last week," said Thompson. "All four of the 8A state playoff games were won 1-0. When you have high caliber teams competing, and great pitching, it will lead to low scoring games. Our defense as a whole was exceptional that game (Lakewood Ranch), and Davis (pitcher Madi Davis) threw lights out."

For Hagerty (26-5), freshman batter Taylor Krapf, who earlier in the game, had two flyouts and was hit by a pitch to earn her solo base for the game, stayed alive with a long flyball to left field and foul of a sacrifice bunt attempt to move pinchrunner Olivia Lipari to second base. Lipari took over baserunning duties after a sharp grounder from Hagerty senior pitcher Ashley Worrell got snatched by Goddard on a dive in front of shortstop Kaylee Lambrecht, but a late throw to first base put the Huskies on base. Krapf would get a bunt to move Lipari to put the Huskies in scoring position, but a long flyball to right field put two outs on the scoreboard.

Hagerty's next batter, senior Gabi Mathre, who had three hits in three at bats, was awarded first base to give the Knights' defense a better shot at ending the inning off a grounder. The walk was Oakleaf's lone walk for the game between pitchers Cambria Arturo and Madi Davis, who entered in the fourth inning.

With the two outs and two runners in place, Davis' first pitch to Krapf got under catcher Angela Agurkis' glove as both runners advanced to scoring position a base closer.

Davis would regroup with a strike on a mighty swing as Krapf looked to end the game with a big hit. A long foul ball toward left field followed before Krapf got a pass on a nearly perfect Davis strike that put the count at two balls, two strikes.

Davis' next pitch headed inside Krapf's strike zone and Krapf's swing put the ball headed straight to Goddard at third.

Goddard, shadowing Lipari at third base, slid right to cover the base, but the ball hit the corner of the base and bounced over Goddard's left shoulder as it headed to left field with baserunner Lipari on the move to home plate.

Oakleaf High's Baylee Goddard got to third base in the final at bats for the Lady Knights but did not make the trip home as their trip to Vero Beach to defend the 2017 Class 8A title finished with a 1-0 loss to Hagerty High School.

"There is nothing that Baylee could have done on that ball. It was just a very unfortunate bounce," said Oakleaf coach Christina Thompson. "It hit the bag just before she was due to receive it."

With baserunners still on the corners; first and third base, two-hit batter Tyler Miller was struck out swinging to end the inning.

Down 1-0, a bottom of the seventh inning Oakleaf comeback was not entirely out of the question as Goddard, who had struck out twice, blasted a single through the shortstop hole and was moved to second on an Agurkis' bunt. A fielder's choice grounder from AspenWindesheim put Goddard at third for what could have been yet another suicide squeeze bunt run to tie the game and lead to yet another thrilling Oakleaf finish.

This time, as opposed to seventh inning thrillers versus Fleming Island and Tallahassee Lincoln that kept the Knights' title hopes alive, batter Madison Mifsud grounded to third base to end the inning with the third out.

"Madison is a great hitter," said Thompson. "If (she) squeezed in that situation and they were smart enough to go to first, the game would have been over as well."

Oakleaf got to the championship game with a 1-0 win over Lakewood Ranch that avenged a nine inning 7-6 loss earlier in the season at the Oakleaf Tournament of Champions.

Against Lakewood Ranch, on Wed., May 23, Oakleaf won 1-0 in typical seventh inning fashion only in the first inning with Katie Kistler singling, Lambrecht flyballing her to second with Rebecca Koskey walking and stealing second to put Kistler at third. a Goddard bunt pushed across the lone run across.

"The combination of her (Davis) on the mound, and a hungry defense behind her added up to only the second shutout for Lakewood Ranch this season," said Thompson. "The only other team to shut them out was the 2A state champions (Academy of the Lakes) who's pitcher is headed to Alabama."

Davis went the distance on the mound for Oakleaf with three strikeouts and six hits, but with excellent defense behind her thwarting 11 runners left on base. Lakewood Ranch left runners at first and second in the second with Davis striking out for the third out.

In the third, Agurkis nailed a baserunner with Lambrecht on a steal attempt to end that inning.

In the fourth, Windesheim snagged a high foul ball on the first base fence with Davis striking out the third out.

In the fifth, Goddard sprinted up on a popped up bunt attempt to snag the first out of that inning with an communication error between Destiny Pacetti, in left field, and Lambrecht on a short blooper put a runner at first base, but a flyout ended that threat.

In the bottom of the fifth, Kistler would get her second hit of the day, but Lambrecht would strike out to leave her there.

Lakewood Ranch got s single and walk in the sixth, but Koskey snagged a grounder to second base to end the inning.

In the bottom of the sixth, still 1-0, Goddard walked, but grounders kept her from advancing.

In the fateful seventh, with Oakleaf up 1-0, Lakewood Ranch would get a single, a stolen base and a fielder's choice grounder to Windesheim at first base before Davis hit a batter to have baserunners on first and third. On her first pitch after the hit batter, Davis got a pop up just inside the third base line that she snagged on the run and nearly toppling to salvage the final out.

Oakleaf High graduate Chris Mauloni is one of top relievers in country for the JU Dolphins.

"These student-athletes are definitely deserving of this recognition. Each one of them had a great year, and played a major role in the success of our team this season," said Jacksonville University head baseball coach Crhis Hayes. "We are very appreciative of the ASUN for honoring these young men."

A product of Oakleaf High School in Jacksonville, Mauloni is the first JU player to be selected to the All-Freshman Team and given a top-team honor in the same year since Michael Baumann in 2015. Arguably the top freshman closer in the country, the 6-2, 205-pound arm made a statement in late-inning situations for the Dolphins, crushing the team's single-season record for saves, and surging to become the program's all-time leader in the stat, accumulating 18 on the season, the second-most in the NCAA to-date. In 25 appearances, Mauloni tied for the league lead in games finished (5), dealing 44 strikeouts with a 1.80 ERA and a record of 3-1. The rookie allowed opponents to hit just .168 off him and struck out the side to close out a game three different times.

The only member of the Dolphins to earn Preseason All-ASUN honors, Camacho, a graduate of Creekside High School, has been a mainstay in the team's lineup this season, as one of two players to start all 54 regular-season contests.

In his fifth year donning a Dolphin uniform, Lehane, a red-shirt senior and Fletcher High School graduate, finished the year second in the ASUN Conference in batting average (.345) and on-base percentage (.436), while leading the league and setting the JU single-season program record in sacrifice hits with 17.

Dubrule earned his third career ASUN Postseason honor, after making the All-Freshman and All-

Tournament Teams in 2017. Starting all 54 games at the shortstop position, the 5-10, 175-pound sophomore powered his way to the ASUN regular-season batting title, hitting .350, while also steadying the league in hits (76) and finishing second in at-bats (217). Leading the team in both multi-hit (25) and multi-RBI (14) performances, Dubrule earned his second career ASUN Player of the Week honor on May 14, after batting .500 with 12 RBI in four contests, which included a record-tying seven RBI performance on May 13 against USC Upstate.

A 2017 ASUN All-Tournament Team member, Gau spent the duration of the 2018 campaign as the Friday night starting pitcher. Making 14 starts on the mound, the 6-4, 205-pound junior held a 7-3 record in a league-high 98.1 innings, throwing a pair of complete games. With a 2.47 ERA, lowest among Dolphin starters, Gau tossed a team-high 84 strikeouts.

The second JU relief pitcher to earn a spot on the All-Freshman Team, Palmer accumulated a 3-1 record in 23 appearances out of the pen, dealing 42 strikeouts with a 3.00 ERA.
