Sheriff talks crime in Middleburg

By Kile Brewer

MIDDLEBURG – Monday’s town hall meeting in Middleburg offered Clay County Sheriff Darryl Daniels and a few of his top-ranking deputies the chance to speak directly to the community.

The event – the second event of its type – began with Daniels saying how poor the turnout was at a similar event in the Oakleaf community. About 35 residents joined more than a dozen CCSO deputies who took up much of the room inside the Middleburg Civic Association building.

Drugs and school resource officers became the top two topics of discussion for the event. Attendees appeared extremely concerned with the drug problem in the area, with some raising concerns over having personally observed drug deals in broad daylight. The sheriff and his staff assured attendees they are there and will continue to eradicate drugs from the area and Clay County.

“We’re still going to be out there. I’ve seen people upset that we’re stopping vehicles and we’re doing things that are holding them up as they go places, and I apologize for that, but I’m not going to apologize for trying to stop the drug trade out there,” said Chief Wayne McKinney. “[In the last two months] we did 472 traffic stops. One of the things I found interesting was the total vehicle searches we did was 126 and we made 98 drug arrests, that’s a pretty

School Board signs SRO agreements

By Wesley LeBlanc

FLEMING ISLAND – All Clay County high schools and junior high schools are set to receive resource officers until the end of the 2019 school year.

During its regular June 7 meeting at Fleming Island High, the Clay County School Board voted to approve four different agreements that work together to ensure junior high and high schools receive the added security of a resource officer on campus during school hours. These agreements were created in collaboration with the Board of County Commissioners, the Clay County Sheriff’s Office, the City of Green Cove Springs and the Town of Orange Park, and their respective police departments.

The first agreement signed was between the board, the BCC and CCSO, and lasts from July 1 to September 30, 2018. This agreement acts to put a school resource officer in Bannerman Learning Center, Keystone Heights High, Clay High, Middleburg High, Fleming Island High, Ridgeview High, Orange Park High and Oakleaf High. It also stations an SRO in Wilkinson Junior High, Lakeside Junior High, Lake Asbury Junior High and Oakleaf Junior High.

This agreement, as well as the other three signed that night, come as a way to abide by the recently-passed, but significantly underfunded, Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School Public Safety Act that requires each Florida school district to assign at least one SRO to every school using one of three given options: SROs, school guardians via the Guardian Program, or

Clay County Memories

By Mary Jo McTammany tamctammany@comcast.net

Captain Jacob Brock and frontier East Florida made a perfect match

Jacob Brock was born in Vermont, at his father's farm on the Connecticut River; he was destined to remain a river rat the rest of his life. Brock worked and trained as a mechanical engineer, married and fathered four children in Hartford, Connecticut.

By the late 1840s, he and his four children were in Charleston, S.C. In 1849, he commissioned the construction of his first ship, The Darlington. She was a beauty. With competition in Charleston heating up after almost three years, Brock moved south to the St Johns River. In the fall of 1853, Brock and his steam-powered side-wheeler, Darlington, began year-round scheduled service on the river from Jacksonville to Enterprise, 205 miles south on the river from Jacksonville, at Lake Monroe. This decision would be the key to his success. A seasonal commercial service, settlers now had a dependable method of shipping goods to market and reliable transportation for passengers and supplies.

The area was still in a fragile and budding era of civilization with periodic Indian attacks. Duval County, which still included Clay County in 1850, counted just a little over a thousand souls. Settlers were isolated and having consistent contact with the outside world in the form of Brock and the Darlington became a hugely comforting part of the equation. Locals fondly referred to the ship and her captain as the Old Reliable Line.

Brock lived big, he risked big and he reveled in hard work, enjoying life and the people along the river. Middleburg was his first base of operations and a logical choice because the area was teeming with activity and provided a continual supply of cargo.

The shrewd Captain Brock noticed increasing numbers of Northern and European tourists eager for a sportsman's experience and constructed the Brock House in Enterprise. Men hunted and fished all day, then gathered with good brandy and strong cigars to laugh, spit and tell tales.

In 1860, Brock added the newly constructed, Hattie Brock, to his already expanding fleet. Named for his daughter, the side wheeler Hattie was equipped with powerful engines and posh accommodations for 75 to 100 passengers.

The rumblings of secession were already gathering on the horizon and Jacob Brock enthusiastically volunteered his ships and himself to the service of the Confederacy. Basically, Brock like most successful frontier pioneers, simply didn't like to be told what to do by anyone – governments included.

Bigger than life, Capt. Jacob Brock arrived in frontier Florida in the early 1850s with his steamship, the Darlington, and began plying the St Johns River.

In early 1862, a Union fleet attacked Fernandina and Brock raced to rescue fleeing Confederate sympathizers. Captain Brock and his passengers were captured. The Darlington escaped and was hidden by a loyal crew. Brock remained in prison in Boston for most of the war.

Not until the spring of 1864 was the Hattie found concealed in a remote tributary south of Palatka. A small crew was boarded to take possession and progressed to Enterprise to refuel. There, they suffered a severe and colorful tongue lashing from the porch of Brock House by none other than the boat's namesake, young Hattie Brock. Granted, she was raised as a Southern belle but after all her father was a sailor.

Brock regained his ships after the war and picked up the pieces of his freewheeling, rollicking life. The Brock House in Enterprise became a particular favorite of Northern politicians and former military men. The Captain was never one to allow political differences to interfere with a good time and hosted with equal success Rockefellers, Goulds, Beechers, Pres. Ulysses Grant and Gen. William Sherman.

But times were changing and it took more than a fearless willingness to risk and good stories to succeed on the river. Florida tourist trade was becoming a gold mine and competition from the big boys was fierce. Jacob Brock amassed a fortune but was outmatched by immense bankrolls of the Baya and DeBary steamship giants.

Brock died at his shipyard in Jacksonville in May of 1877.

Clay schools to see new leadership in the fall

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – Clay County School Superintendent Addison Davis announced four administrative changes within the school district involving three principal positions at different schools.

Stephanie Jackson has been named the new principal of Grove Park Elementary School replacing Scott Voytko who had served the previous four years as principal. Jackson comes to Clay after having served for four years as principal of Pine Forest School of the Arts in Duval County Public Schools where she began her career 13 years ago as an eighth-grade teacher.

Jackson taught for three years before accepting her first instructional coaching position. She served as an Instructional Coach at Andrew Jackson High for one year before becoming a Regional Reading Coordinator for Florida's Office of Differentiated Accountability, where she served lower performing middle and high schools in Duval County. Jackson has been an assistant principal at both the middle and elementary school levels. Jackson has two sons and a husband who also serves in the field of education.

Justin Faulkner is the new principal of Orange Park Junior High replacing Al De Jesus who had been at the school for four years. Faulkner is in his 12th year with the Clay County School District and moves over to OPJH from Orange Park High where he served as an assistant principal

Youth Connection sees first success stories

By Wesley LeBlanc
Staff Writer

ORANGE PARK – Six months ago, obtaining a high school diploma seemed nothing less than a herculean task for two Clay County students.

The possibility was always there but it was more pipe dream than anything else. Now, though, Tavian Raggins, 19, and Milena Carter, 18, are not only high school graduates, but looking at a future that's wide-open, bright and finally, within their reach.

Raggins' and Carters' success stories are the first to emerge from a new organization formed last fall called the Clay Youth Connection.

In its infant stages, Clay Youth Connection worked to address housing challenges its members new existed within the community. They heard stories of students on the verge of dropping out of high school due to instability in their housing.

Clay Youth Connection worked with the Clay County School District to identify students who were temporarily displaced and give them a place to live, so that a lack of sleep on a proper bed, or a void of breakfast, will no longer be a hurdle they face in their high school education.

While the Moosehaven retirement community stepped up to become the home of the Clay Youth Connection, the program became the sole mission of Orange Park Town Council Member Connie Thomas.

"We had a lot of people concerned about a lady always on the side of a road in town and it turned out that she was homeless," Thomas said. "That's when I decided to learn more about the homeless in Orange Park."

After looking into the homeless problem, Thomas discovered a dark truth hidden within the town: homelessness doesn't affect just adults; it affects children too, and many of those children, despite their situation, still attempt to make it through school. Thomas brought this to the attention of Moosehaven's Executive Director, John Gapes, and everything fell into place.

Before Clay Youth Connection, Raggins was living with his mom, dad, four brothers and his sister. Not only did Raggins struggle to find a private and personal space within the house he called home, he was void of basic necessities that a student needs to be successful in school: a backpack, pens and pencils, paper and more.

"School was, and is, very important to me but I was struggling," Raggins said. "I couldn't focus at home and that affected my work in school."

Before Clay Youth Connection, Raggins was, in his words, "just barely making it." He knew he needed a change of scenery and a place to focus, but his family wasn't growing smaller anytime soon and his parents weren't buying a new house. One day, though, Raggins heard about the Clay Youth Connection while attending class at Orange Park High and how it could help him.

"When I heard about it, it sounded like something for me," Raggins said. "I looked into it and knew I needed this."

Raggins, determined to make something better of his education, explained to his parents what the program was and they begrudgingly agreed – they were not excited about saying goodbye to their son for half a year.

"I mean, they hated it when I first told them," Raggins said. "Once they saw how I changed, and how beneficial it was to me, their feelings changed."

Not only did his parents' feelings change, Raggins himself became a new

Fight over judicial vacancy ratchets up

By Drew Wilson
FloridaPolitics.com

A state appeals court Tuesday morning quickly stepped into a legal battle about whether a Northeast Florida judge should be elected or appointed by Gov. Rick Scott and cleared the way for an appointment process to at least temporarily continue.

The 1st District Court of Appeal issued an order after a flurry of activity that included Scott administration attorneys filing a request late Monday to block a ruling earlier in the day by Leon County Circuit Judge Charles Dodson.

Drew Wilson

The lawsuit, filed by Jacksonville attorney David Trotti, is part of a handful of disputes in recent years about whether the governor has the power to fill certain judicial seats – or whether the seats should be filled through elections.

Trotti contends that an upcoming vacancy created by the retirement of 4th Judicial Circuit Judge Robert Foster should be filled in the November election, while Scott's lawyers say the position should be filled through appointment.

Foster was expected to leave office Jan. 7, 2019, which would be the end of his term, because of a mandatory retirement age. But on April 2, Foster sent a letter to Scott making the retirement effective Dec. 31, four business days ahead of schedule.

The Scott administration takes the position that the governor's acceptance of a judicial resignation before the start of an election-qualifying period creates a vacancy that will be filled by appointment, rather than election. The 4th Judicial Circuit is made up of Duval, Clay and Nassau counties.

In the challenge filed by Trotti, Dodson ruled last week that the seat should be filled by election and issued an injunction against the Scott administration and a judicial nominating commission from moving forward with an appointment process. The state appealed Dodson's ruling last week, which placed an automatic stay on the decision.

But Monday, Dodson again ruled in favor of Trotti and vacated the automatic stay – and complained that the Scott administration had essentially ignored his earlier injunction. Dodson pointed to a May

Drama and power grabs

If you were looking for something entertaining to watch on television this week, you should have checked out Clay County's newest drama.

It's called "Power Grab: the story of a misinformed chairman."

The story began to unfold last fall when the Board of County Commissioners appointed the Charter Review Commission. Under state law, because Clay County government operates under a charter-based form of government, the county commission is required to empanel a Charter Review Commission every four years to review the county's governing documents.

Eric Cravey

According to CRC chair Amy Pope-Wells, this week's installment of the commission's drama began to unfold June 1 when she said she received "42 messages" from constituents who were concerned about a Clay County School District employee who was seen assisting a candidate file for office at the Clay County Supervisor of Elections office while, she believed, was on the school board clock at the time of the spotting. Ooh, looks and sounds like a spy drama, doesn't it?

However, to the outside, it looks like Cornfield County.

"When consulting with the CRC attorney. He advised that we collect all the information and share it with them, with the body[meaning the CRC members]," Pope-Wells told county commissioners Tuesday.

I would have loved to have been able to hear the county commission members' inside thoughts when Pope-Wells was speaking, especially since she was speaking about something that was absolutely none of her business or that of the CRC.

But, thank God for true leaders like Gayward Hendry. He was the only county commissioner who sought to gingerly tell Pope-Wells she was off base. Way off base, in fact.

"I don't see as there's anything to resolve," Hendry said.

Pope-Wells refused to understand what Hendry said.

Allow me to assist.

You were appointed to attend to matters involving the Clay County government and its charter. The Clay County School District does not fall under nor is governed by the county charter. Deductive reasoning – which we're supposed to be taught in about third grade if my memory suits me right – creeps in and tells us Pope-Wells did not clearly understand her duties.

Or, she perhaps is attempting to grab some freshly-titled power of her own in hopes of running for public office herself one day. A lot of previous CRC members have done just that – Travis Cummings, Brian Campbell, Michael Kerekes, to name a few from recent

16 hearing in which he said the nominating process should “cease immediately.”

“If the governor and secretary of state had any doubt about that, there should have been a motion for clarification or something of the like filed,” Dodson wrote Monday. “Instead it was as if I had not ruled. The nominating process kept going. My order was not even a bump in the road.”

But Scott administration attorneys filed a motion late Monday with the 1st District Court of Appeal requesting reinstatement of the stay on Dodson’s earlier ruling. They said the Florida Constitution and earlier cases – including a case filed by Trotti in 2014 – make clear that Scott has the authority to appoint a replacement for Foster.

The appeals court Tuesday morning issued an order giving Trotti until Friday to respond to the Scott administration’s motion. It also said the appointment process can at least temporarily move forward.

“The automatic stay ... shall remain in effect to permit the Fourth Circuit Judicial Nominating Commission to continue its interview and nomination process, pending a final ruling on the (Scott’s administration’s) motion for review by this court,” the one-page order said.

Trotti, who lost the 2014 case, sought to qualify to run for Foster’s seat but was denied. Dodson’s ruling last week said Trotti should be listed on the state Division of Elections website as qualifying to run for the judgeship. Dodson wrote that the “creation of an artificial appointment” had occurred.

But in the motion filed late Monday, Scott’s attorneys said Dodson’s order would put Trotti into office by “default.” Qualifying for judicial races ended last month.

“Here, the undisputed facts establish that Judge Foster’s resignation was tendered and accepted by the governor before the election process commenced at the beginning of the candidate qualifying period,” the motion said.

“The governor is therefore constitutionally authorized and obligated to fill the vacancy by appointment, and the secretary of state is prohibited from qualifying candidates for a judicial seat that will not be filled by election. Because appellee’s (Trotti’s) arguments are contrary to the language of the Florida Constitution and well-established precedent, he cannot demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits.”

years. Perhaps, the saddest scene from this week’s installment of “Power Grab” is that the BCC chairman made a poor attempt to tell Pope-Wells that the school district was not under the CRC’s body of work it had been tasked with. Yet, Pope-Wells continued to ramble on giving those attending the meeting in person, online and on cable a glimpse into her really confusing bad information.

She even threatened to hold another CRC meeting if she does not get an answer from the school district regarding the employee’s time card she said she requested as a public document. This is a power grab. Back home in Georgia, I could hear my uncle telling Pope-Wells, “You need to mind your own business and get back to work.”

Her comments regarding the school district, at face value, looked like an attempt to cast shade on that body’s integrity.

And for those constituents who messaged Pope-Wells. Please, take a Leadership Clay class so you can learn more about Clay County or something similar.

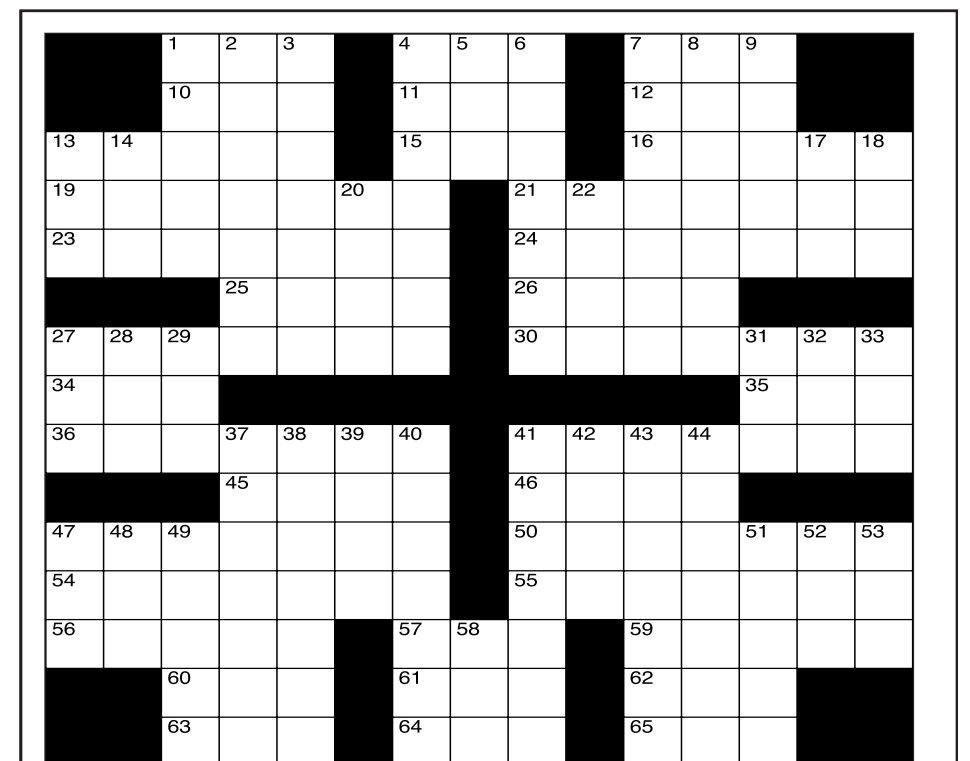

The CRC is scheduled to hold its final public hearing on June 13, after we go to press. In that hearing, commission members – if they all show up – have their last opportunity to hear from voters about two proposed charter amendment questions that will be on the ballot this fall. On average, about seven of the 15 appointees have not been attending meetings since the pay hike issue was brought up and quickly passed.

One ballot measure asks voters to modify the current term limit ordinance to allow county commissioners to serve three, four-year terms, whereas, currently the charter only allows two, four-year terms.

The other amendment asks voters to kill a 10-year-old citizen-initiated charter amendment that capped BCC member pay at $37,500. This ballot measure gives BCC members pay hikes for the next four years.

Perhaps it’s time for the county commission to address whether a CRC is an actual viable entity it needs to utilize in the future? If nothing else, please thoroughly educate these CRC members as to clearly what their roles are.

Regardless of what you do, please become informed.

ORANGE PARK – Brian and Eric Rolf are proving that the age-old adage about not mixing business and family doesn't apply to them.

Brian Rolf, 42, and his father Eric, 69, opened their second Metro Jacksonville-area Pet Supplies Plus store on May 26 at 510 Blanding Blvd. in the Orange Park area.

When asked about going into business with his father, Brian laughed at the "never mix business and family" idea.

"We've always been close," said Brian. "It's always been a dream of ours to work together at some point."

Father and son took their own routes before realizing that dream, however.

Eric was a Miller and Coors distributor for 40 years in Ohio before selling his business almost 10 years ago. Brian said that his father felt it was both the right time to sell and still early enough for him to pursue another venture.

Brian went the military route, serving over 16 years in the Marine Corps as an FA-18 pilot before retiring in 2014. He elected to take early retirement as a major, rather than be sent to the Pentagon to work behind a desk as he believes would have happened if he'd stayed in and been

BCC approves agreements, funding for SROs

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – After months of meetings and discussions, the Clay County Board of County Commissioners approved agreements with the Clay County School District to place school resource officers in every school.

The first item up for discussion was the board's duty to approve a resolution that would direct the Supervisor of Elections to place a 1 mill ad valorem tax on the August 23 ballot. The tax referendum was approved with a 3-2 vote by the school board now goes to the voters for a decision. The tax increase would result in an additional $10 million for the school district that would provide $5.6 million to be used to fully fund school resource officers in every school, and $4.4 million that would go into the general fund to be used on things like school hardening as well as keeping up with updates to curriculum. The money would not flow into local coffers until 2019.

There wasn't much discussion from the board as this vote is primarily a duty of the commissioners to more or less forward the ballot item from the school board to the Supervisor of Elections. However, Chairman Gavin Rollins took issue with this requirement prior to calling role on the vote.

"What happens if we don't vote for this?" said Rollins, who teaches ESE History at Oakleaf High School. "Why does it come to us if it's ministerial, if we have no choice in voting on it, then why does it even come to us?"

County Attorney Courtney Grimm answered with quotes from state statutes that order the school board to submit things like this to the BCC, and another that says the BCC is the only board with

Christopher Cory 'Turtle' Cates

Christopher Cory "Turtle" Gates, 28, of Middleburg passed away unexpectedly Sunday, June 3, 2018 at his residence. Christopher was born in Gainesville and had for most of his life in Green Cove Springs. He was a 2008 graduate of Clay High School and had worked as an over-the-road truck driver. He enjoyed fishing, hunting, and playing in the mud with his vehicles, including at Hog Waller in Palatka.

Surviving are his parents, Chris and Tena Gates of Middleburg; a sister, Tiffany Cates of Orange Park; and a nephew, Brantley Cates of Orange Park. No services are scheduled at this time. Friends may sign the online register at www.themastersfuneralhome.com Memorial gifts in Chris' memory may be sent to Masters Funeral Home, 3015 Crill Ave., Palatka, FL 32177.

Michael Frederick 'Mike' Ward

Michael Frederick "Mike" Ward was born on April 30, 1938 in Cincinnati, Ohio. He was raised by his loving mother, Dorothy Louise and his father, Joseph Ward. Both his parents were in show business, and Mike was born into humor and the love of theater.

Michael was joined at the age of 2 by his sister Rayleen Fair. The two grew up humbly in Detroit and had a bond that remained tight until his passing. Those that knew them have heard the countless stories of fun and mischief the two of them found together. They shared a great love of the Detroit Tigers, and even recently, Mike and Rayleen would spend time on the phone watching their beloved Tigers play.

Michael attended John J. Pershing High School in Detroit and graduated in 1956. His senior year he was voted Class Clown, which came as no surprise to those who knew him best. His repeated jokes and antics sometimes saw him kicked out of class. Numerous classmates have shared stories about how Mike was ready to have fun at the drop of a hat, and he would often bring the hat!

After high school, Michael joined the Air Force in 1957. He absolutely loved playing sports and seeing the world, all while serving his country. Many were the stories that were told of his time in England and in Aviano, Italy. Each story revolved around football, baseball, basketball, and enjoying life to the fullest.

After leaving the Air Force in 1969, Michael worked as a DJ for KHAT radio where his love for music deepened. He had a large collection of records and passed the love of the Everly Brothers, Bill Haley, and Frankie Valli on to his daughters. He also sold real estate, a passion that would stay with him for the rest of his life. Michael joined the Navy after the birth of his first daughter in 1971. He was stationed in Bremerton, WA and was the leading journalist aboard the USS Constellation and was involved in many community relations efforts in various ports of call. After being transferred to Hawaii, he was the Senior Journalist on the staff of the Commander in Chief Pacific. He had the opportunity to meet or interview notable political figures, including Admiral Stockdale and President Jimmy Carter. During this time he received the Joint Service Commendation Medal. He also received his AA degree from Chaminade University and became a member of the Toastmasters while stationed at Barber's Point. Finally he was sent to NAS Jacksonville where he worked for the Public Affairs Officer for the Navy Recruiting District - Jacksonville. He fell in love with northeast Florida and decided to make it his permanent home.

After retiring from the Navy in 1985, Michael became a real estate appraiser working for Miller, Hollis Wilson, and Brad Long and Associates, before finally joining Steve Vockell and Associates as a contractor before becoming an owner. Michael absolutely loved his work and loved going to work every day. Although he "retired" last month, he was seen at the office until June 1st, and he'd have had it no other way. Throughout his life, Michael had many interests and talents that brought so much fulfillment and joy to his life. He was an avid sports fan; there wasn't a sport he wouldn't watch on TV. Those who know him well know that golf was at the top of his list, although one could argue the Detroit Tigers occasionally took over that top spot! He loved watching football, baseball, golf, dancing, bowling, dog racing, and horse racing... just to name a few. Throughout his life he played countless sports as well, and while baseball was his first love, golfing was his last. He excelled at every sport he tried.

Michael had the theater in his blood and this was evidenced by his involvement in both the Big Orange Barbershop Chorus and the Orange Park Community Theater. He loved to sing and act and be in the spotlight. He never learned to read music, but had a deep love for the harmonies of barbershop music. He made countless lifelong friends through the Big O and even after he left the chorus, he never stopped singing. He also performed numerous plays and musicals at OPCT. In the 80's it wasn't uncommon to see him in a lead role on stage. When he wasn't acting he was directing, and when he wasn't directing he was producing. The theater brought him so much happiness and he thoroughly enjoyed sharing his gift with so many. Michael had three daughters: Angela Rae, Dortheanne Joy, and Jeanette Kay. All three of his daughters remember growing up with a Daddy who took them bowling, who introduced them to Jerry Lewis movies, and who demonstrated a deep love for animals. They remember trips to Epcot and seeing the "geodesic dome," summer vacations in Daytona Beach, and road trips to St. Louis where he tried to teach them how to harmonize. Angela will carry on his love of language and writing. Dortheanne carries forward his analytical mind and love of math, and Jeanette will continue to share his sharp wit, sarcasm, humor, and ability to make us all laugh until we cry.

For the last 27 years, Michael shared his life with his wife Cindy. Michael and Cindy met as children and even went to prom together. They reconnected later in life, and were married April 19, 1991. Mike and Cindy loved to do so much together. Cindy could be found at his side in the theater, on the golf course, attending performances, at the dog track, traveling, cheering on their grandchildren, and just enjoying life together. The two of them made countless loving memories and truly lived to the fullest.

Michael died suddenly in his home with his wife by his side on June 4, 2018. He is preceded in death by his father, Joseph Ward, mother, Dorothy Ward, step sons; Ken & Richard Olson. He is survived by his wife Cynthia Olson-Ward, his sister Rayleen Fair, daughters; Angela Anderson (Todd), Dortheanne Bone (Shawn), and Jeanette Scott (Brian), step-sons; Bill & Charles Olson, grandchildren; Autumn Anderson, Holly Anderson, Desirae Sanderson (Austin), Kaylin Roberts, J. Reagan Roberts, Avarie Roberts, Anthony Andrescavage, Michael Andrescavage, Lea Olson, and Callen Bone, great-granddaughter Hailey Roberts, his wonderful nieces; Chelly, Becky, Bonnie, and Kelly, many grandnieces and nephews, great grandnieces and nephews, and countless friends and loved ones who will each miss him dearly.

Funeral Services were held at 11 a.m. on Monday, June 11, 2018 with visitation one hour prior to service in Hardage-Giddens Funeral Home of Mandarin with John Meeks as Officiant, followed by interment in Jacksonville National Cemetery, 4083 Lannie Rd, Jacksonville, FL 32218 at 2:00 p.m.

Arrangements are under the care and direction of Hardage Giddens Funeral Home of Mandarin 11801 San Jose Blvd. Jacksonville, FL 32223. www.hgmandarin.com (904) 288-0025.

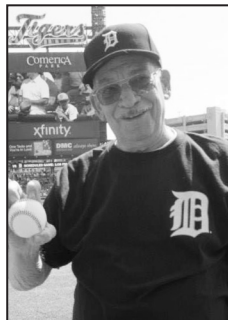

Zachary Dahl Ferguson

It is with much anguish and of great love, we bid farewell to our oldest son, Zachary Dahl Ferguson, age 32, lost to us during a MH episode on the afternoon of Tues., June 5, 2018. Zach attended St. Patrick's(Jax), Sacred Heart(Jax), Annunciation(Mbrg), and Middleburg High; all caring and welcoming to our family.

He is survived by his father, Carlton Ferguson, 60, his mom, Cathleen, 59, his brother Shane William, 30, and his brother, Kevin Montgomery, 19.

His very inquisitive mind, gigantic smile and giving heart is sorely missed from this day forward.

Jeffrey L Whitson

Jeffrey L Whitson, 59, passed away on Friday afternoon, June 8, 2018 at his home in Jacksonville, Florida. Jeff was born July 21, 1958 in Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

With gusto, Jeff pursued his passions of politics, political strategy, campaign management, government affairs, policy initiatives, and economic development. But his greatest accomplishment was his love and dedication to his family. And if you were a friend of his, you were family, too. He encouraged everyone to live up to their full potential and he would often express his genuine concern if he saw that you needed a swift kick in the butt to get back on track. Jeff was full of wise anecdotes, witty nicknames for his peeps and the weakest dad jokes ... ever! He always enjoyed spending time with his family and friends for fellowship, colorful conversation or political strategy over a "damn good" cigar. And he was also well-known, if not overzealous-bordering-obnoxious, for being a proud supporter of The Ohio State Buckeyes. Preceded in death by his father, James L Whitson, Jeff is survived by his mother Carolyn Whitson of Grand Island Florida: brother, John Whitson and wife (Sharon); loving wife of 29 years, Kathy; son, Jeremiah (JJ) Whitson and wife, Heather; Zachary Whitson and wife, Marisa; stepdaughter Ibrey Hudgens and husband, Ryan; daughter, Caroline Marie Whitson-Portlock and husband, Justin; son, Jordan Whitson, mother-in-law, Helen Mayer, brother-in-law, George Mayer, sister-in-law, Karla Powers, niece, Jessica, nephew, Chad, and six grandchildren.

Family will receive friends at a Celebration of Life which will be held at the San Jose Country Club, Friday June 15, at 7529 San Jose Boulevard in Jacksonville, FL 32217 between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. A private service with full Military Honors will be held at the Jacksonville National Cemetery for family. Jeff served in the Armed Forces of the United States Navy on the USS Sea Devil and was honorably discharged in July 1982. In lieu of flowers, please support the Northeast Florida Red Cross

Joseph A. 'Jody' Herwig III

Joseph A. Herwig, III, "Jody" to all who knew him died suddenly on May 17, 2018.

Jody was born in Orlando, Fla. on December 19, 1957. He attended Buchholz (Gainesville) and Orange Park High Schools. Jody was a talented pen and ink artist with many interests: scuba diving, ship-model building, auto racing to name a few. Jody was a good man with a big heart. Jody is survived by his parents Joseph A. Herwig, Jr. (Janice) and Edee Herwig; siblings, Mark E. Herwig and Jennie Lyn Herwig Steeg (David); niece/nephew Vanessa and Marco Herwig as well as aunts/uncles and cousins. He was a loving brother and uncle and will be missed by many. Family and friends will gather to celebrate his life from Noon - 4 p.m., Saturday, June 23, 2018, at his brother Mark's home located at 26052 Foam Flower Blvd., Wesley Chapel, FL 33544. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Alachua Conservation Trust - Springs Eternal Project at AlachuaConservationTrust.org.

SJR State to add advanced manufacturing program

PALATKA – St. Johns River State College will use a $1.38 million grant to establish an advanced manufacturing training program at the school.

As part of the Governor's Florida Job Growth Grant program, the new degree program will train students to be part of the next generation of engineering technicians. The new programs will include an Associate in Science program as well as college credit certificate programs in mechatronics and robotics as well as non-degree training for production technicians.

According to the Florida Chamber Foundation "By The Numbers" report, "Manufacturing continues to be a leader in helping Florida diversify its economy and create new jobs. Florida's manufacturing has grown 3.4 percent over the last year. And in the last four years, Florida's manufacturing has continued to grow at a rate more than three times higher than the nation overall."

SJR State President Joe Pickens said he is grateful for the role the college gets to play in preparing students for new jobs in this field.

The Associate in Science in Engineering Technology will prepare students for employment in advanced manufacturing as process and production technicians, industrial machinery mechanics, quality assurance technicians, programmable logic control technicians and operators, and industrial engineering technicians. The core classes of the engineering technology program align with the national Manufacturing Skill Standards Council Production Technician Certification.

The mechatronics certificate program is part of the Engineering Technology degree program and the Advanced Manufacturing specialization designed to prepare students for positions in industrial engineering, maintenance and technology.

The mechatronics certificate program, part of the Engineering Technology degree program and the Advanced Manufacturing specialization, is designed to prepare students for employment in the areas of industrial engineering, maintenance and technology or provides supplemental training for persons previously or currently employed in these occupations. The content includes instruction in advanced manufacturing equipment maintenance techniques, operation of various industrial components, tools and instrumentation, quality and control testing, material handling protocols, robotics applications, hydraulics and pneumatics. Upon completion of this program, the student will be able to install, maintain and troubleshoot automated environments, general robot systems and simulators. Core classes and non-degree boot camps will begin this fall and will be taught on SJR State's Palatka campus. Expansion of course and program offerings is planned for the Clay County campus in 2019. For more information, contact TechEd@sjrstate.edu or call 386-312-4259.

Hospital to launch $2.9 million expansion

ORANGE PARK – Orange Park Medical Center will spend $2.9 million to add 2,100 square foot to its Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

The expansion will add five new NICU beds to the already existing unit. The new beds are designed and equipped to address either level II or level III subspecialty newborn care, with ability to care for babies born at less than 32 weeks gestation and 1,000 grams as well as babies born with critical illness, at all gestational ages.

With the new expansion, Orange Park Medical Center's NICU will more than double the beds available for newborn babies. The hospital, which delivers over 2,000 babies each year treats around 500 of those babies in their NICU.

"There is a great need for more critical care neonatal beds in our community," said Kathy Hester, Orange Park Medical Center's Chief Nursing Officer. "As prematurity and neonatal abstinence syndrome rates continues to rise we are taking action to make sure we are prepared to help care for those in need."

Neonatal abstinence syndrome is defined as a group of problems that occur in a newborn who was exposed to addictive opiate drugs while in the mother's womb.

Included in the hospital's upcoming upgrades will be new technology that allows a bedside camera to share live-streaming video through a secure and closed system. This new feature will provide 24/7 access to families allowing them to see their new baby when they are unable to be at the hospital. TMPartners is the architect and Commercial Construction Services is the contractor on the expansion project. Construction will begin this summer and is expected to be complete in early 2019.

Penney Memorial Church welcomes youth choir

PENNEY FARMS – Penney Memorial Church will hold a special service on June 24, at 10:30 a.m. to welcome the 60-member Youth Choir from the Damascus United Methodist Church in Damascus, Maryland, to sing in the historic French-Norman sanctuary, dating from 1926.

The service has been specially structured to include several numbers by this talented group. This appearance will mark the end of the choir's Florida tour, before returning home for the summer.

Penney Memorial Church is located at 4465 Poling Blvd. in the Town of Penney Farms. Interested members of the public are invited to attend this special service. For more information, call the church office at (904) 284-4574 or Cathie Parrott at (904) 529-1496.

LifeSouth in emergency need for blood donors

JACKSONVILLE – The recent storms and inclement weather have negatively affected the community's blood supply, and LifeSouth is asking blood donors to help.

The Metro Jacksonville area is currently in emergency need for all blood types at Wolfson Children's Hospital, Orange Park Medical Center, Memorial Hospital and all Baptist Medical Centers.

All blood types are needed, and donors are asked to donate now to ensure local hospitals have the blood necessary to help patients suffering from traumas, cancers and chronic illnesses. "We need donors to come in every day, and when we experience a slowdown due to weather, we ask our community to rally and donate blood to help maintain the local blood supply," said Ed Keith, district director for LifeSouth.

First time donors are welcomed to try blood donation and LifeSouth asks regular donors to come to a blood drive or blood donor center and bring a friend.

All donors receive a thank you gift, and a mini-physical, including blood pressure, temperature, iron level and cholesterol screen. Donors must be at least 17 or 16 with parental permission, weigh a minimum of 110 pounds and be in good health. A photo ID is needed. LifeSouth now has a donor center open at Baptist Medical Center at 800 Prudential Dr. where donors can give during regular hours. LifeSouth's bloodmobiles will also be out at many locations in coming days. For additional information, call LifeSouth toll-free at 888-795-2707.

Melrose woman claims top Lottery prize

TALLAHASSEE – The Florida Lottery announced that Katherleen Duggan, of Melrose, claimed a top prize in the $2,500 A WEEK FOR LIFE Scratch-Off game at Florida Lottery Headquarters in Tallahassee. She chose to receive her winnings as a one-time, lump-sum payment of $2,040,000.00. Duggan purchased her winning ticket from Hitchcock's, at 7380 State Rd. 100 in Keystone Heights. The retailer will receive a $4,000 bonus commission for selling the winning Scratch-Off ticket.

Sen. Bradley and Co. to embark on Disney cruise fundraiser

By A.G. Gancarski
FloridaPolitics.com

FLEMING ISLAND – Republican state Sen. Rob Bradley is doing his part to stem the impending "blue wave" in Florida politics, via a fundraiser on the open waters.

Specifically, a July 20-23 Disney Cruise, booked in May via the Fleming Island Republican's Working for Florida Families political committee.

Those dates indicate the cruise will be aboard the Disney Dream, christened by Jennifer Hudson in 2011. The itinerary shows the vessel plans to anchor in Nassau on the second day of the journey, followed by a stop at Disney's private island Castaway Cay on Day 3.

The second night of the three-night fundraiser will give attendees the opportunity to "party like a pirate" – not the scary kind, of course.

Per Disney's description, the celebration of all things swashbuckler encourages guests to dress up like a buccaneer and "eat like a scalawag" – options include "Jolly Rogers Barbecue Rib Salad" and "Pirates Gold-en Pot Stickers" – before hitting the deck with their mateys for a Pirates of the Caribbean-themed party and fireworks show.

The booking, including event venue, lodging, food, and beverage, came in at $65,260. The Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman told us Thursday that the expenditure covered "costs associated with an upcoming fundraiser" for the committee, with "all proceeds [going] toward 2018 Senate races."

This will be a group sail, not a charter, Bradley added.

There is recent precedent for a Disney cruise fundraiser.

According to reporter in the Miami Herald, former House Speaker Steve Crisafulli organized a similar event in 2013.

The buy-in then was a $50,000 contribution to the Republican Party of Florida.

Disney and subsidiaries have donated over $45,000 to Bradley's committee since its inception, illustrating a shared political vision. Contributions to Bradley's committee swelled after he was named the Senate budget chair in November. Working for Florida's Families pulled in back-to-back-to-back six-figure hauls heading into the 2018 Legislative Session, and since Bradley's District 5 seat isn't up this cycle, much of that cash is indeed likely to go toward boosting the re-election campaigns of his fellow Republican Senators.

Correspondent

ORANGE PARK – Many students across Clay County are finding themselves back in school this summer, taking advantage of the school district's free summer meals program.

The long-running service allows children, 18 and under, to receive free hot meals at select schools. Adults accompanying the children can partake in a meal for just $2. Food is available Monday through Friday with breakfast from 8-9 a.m. and lunch from Noon-1 p.m.

"Hunger doesn't stop when the school year ends, so it's important that we continue to serve meals to our community," said Susan Glover, director of Food and Nutrition Services for the Clay County School District.

One of those meal locations is at Orange Park Junior High where the cafeteria has been packed each day with children from the Bright Minds Camp and those walking from the surrounding neighborhoods. OPJH and Montclair Elementary are the newest free lunch sites in the county. To qualify, schools must have at least 50 percent of its student population receive free or reduced lunch and be in a geographic area of need.

This summer marks the end of the program at Middleburg Elementary due to low turnout from previous years. However, families in the Middleburg and Clay Hill high percentage of the people we actually search that actually have dope in their car.”

According to the Sheriff's Office, they are finding the drugs through more enhanced investigations at routine traffic stops. Patrol vehicles are stopping cars for moving violations, but will ask the driver first if they have anything illegal in their car, and then they will ask for permission to search the car. If permission is denied, the sheriff reminded the audience that they can legally say no to a search, and they will bring a police dog to do a quick sniff-sweep of the exterior of the vehicle. According to the sheriff, and the law, the entire stop should take no longer than the 30 minutes allowed for a typical traffic stop.

“If you ain't doing nothing wrong, you ain't got no problems,” Chief Kenny Stivers said. “The dogs are trained to hit on dope scent – if you don't have dope in your car, but the guy who rode with you to Winn-Dixie was smoking dope, the dog is going to hit on your car. So understand, OK, take some responsibility. If you've got a pothead friend, don't let him ride in your car.”

The sheriff then went on to talk about the amount of police work that is done on a daily basis that the department does not publicize, including the recent seizure of four kilograms of uncut fentanyl and $55,000 cash, and the same person being caught with a trafficking amount of heroin on Fleming Island, according to the sheriff.

Clay County Sheriff Darryl Daniels shakes hands with Gary Newman Monday evening at the Middleburg Civic Association building during the sheriff's town hall meeting with the public.

“There's a lot of things that go on that you have no idea about what's happening. There's men and women who work in an undercover capacity that put their lives in serious danger to keep you safe and you'll never ever hear about them,” he said. “You'll never hear about the fruits of their labor because we don't publicize everything.”

The drugs the sheriff discussed Monday were recovered as part of an active investigation alongside the State Attorney's office, according to Public Information Officer Chris Padgett, and no arrests have been made as the narcotics unit is still gathering evidence to ensure all parties involved are caught.

“Narcotics is a different realm because they work [with undercover officers and confidential informants] on these types of cases,” Padgett said. “Documentation doesn't always get submitted because it is very active intel.”

As the drug arrests conversation died down, the sheriff was asked about what was going to happen regarding School Resource Officers in Clay County Schools. The sheriff took a firm position early on that he was not happy with the plan set in motion by the Clay County School District, and that going forward he expects deputies serving as school resource officers in each school.

“I'll say this, that is not the ideal scenario for Clay County – my opinion – but the school board has elected to fund school resource officers being in the high schools and junior high schools and then they would like for guardians to be in the elementary schools,” Daniels said. “It came down to money, not Sheriff's Office money, school board money. The law says that the school board owns the SRO program.”

Daniels said that the guardian program wasn't something he had to agree to. Despite his distaste for the idea, though, he said he would support it temporarily.

“I don't have to participate in the guardian program, I can say, ‘We're not gonna do a guardian program in Clay County,’ now that puts it back on school board to fund up school resource officers for all the schools,” he said. “Where are they going to get the money from in short fashion? They're not, so this is the prudent thing to do.”

Daniels said at one point that maybe someone from the school board, or that Superintendent Addison Davis should have been invited so that they could have answered questions specifically related to their budget and decisions regarding the issue. Though not present Monday evening, Davis responded to some of the questions asked from the school's perspective.

“As Superintendent of Schools, I agree that funding should be placed on visibility and accessibility of law enforcement,” Davis said. “In our school district it was an underfunded mandate. With that said, it's very clear that, to have school resource officers in every school would be $5.6 million, which we do not have.”

promoted to lieutenant colonel.

Brian spent several years as a contract pilot with the Department of Defense where he flew intelligence reconnaissance missions for Special Operations Command in Africa and Southern Italy.

After relocating from San Diego to Jacksonville with his wife and three children, Brian's goal of working with his father became real. Brian had earned a master of business administration while on active duty and said that he wanted to put that degree to use rather than become a commercial pilot.

“The lifestyle of a commercial pilot didn't really work for me,” said Brian.

After a few years of searching, Brian and Eric decided to open a Pet Supplies Plus store together. They're 50-50 partners in the business. Brian lives in Jacksonville and fills the owner and operator role while Eric still lives in Ohio and oversees a lot of the behind-the-scenes aspects of the business.

“We're big pet lovers and animal lovers and we loved the business model that they had,” said Brian.

The first location the Rolf's opened was in Atlantic Beach in the summer of 2016. After two years of success with that location, they expanded and opened the store in Orange Park.

One of the first things you notice upon walking into the store is how organized everything is. Not a single bag of food or toy is out of place.

“I inspect everything like a Marine Corps Officer,” said Brian. “I want to make sure everything is as clean and organized as possible and I think our customers really appreciate that.”

Another standout feature of the store is their self-service pet cleaning station. For $10 per half-hour customers can bring their pets in and give them a bath right in the store. Everything they need is provided from soaps to towels and the store cleans up afterwards.

There is also a groomer on site who provides a variety of services. Orange Park groomer Brian Robinson has already gathered himself a repeat customer base, according to Brian Rolf.

The Rolf's have partnered with multiple local rescue organizations including Safe Animal Shelter, Clay Humane and The London Sanctuary. All three organizations participated in the grand opening and customers were able to vote for their favorite organization. The winning organization received a $1,000 gift card from the store while the other two received $250 gift cards.

They also plan to hold adoption events at the store on weekends, according to Brian.

The store isn't just for the pet owners as animals are welcome too.

“As long as they're on a leash, we've had everything in here from dogs, cats, puppies, kittens, snakes, a couple weeks ago at the Atlantic Beach location we had a goat come in on a leash,” said Brian. “We'll get rabbits and other small animals in harnesses, big birds on people's shoulders, you name it and it's come in.”

When asked about any future expansion plans, Brian said that they'd like to expand eventually but it depends on the real estate and the areas that they feel need the concept.

“This isn't a concept that you move into a St. Johns Town Center or somewhere like that,” said Brian. “This is one that you move into an area with an established neighborhood. Even on Blanding Boulevard we're surrounded by neighborhoods.”

That thought plays into why the Rolf's like the Pet Supplies Plus model in the first place. They saw it as being very neighborhood-oriented and people-friendly.

PET ADOPTIONS

Rosco

Rosco is a precious 2 year and 11 monthly old male brown Pitbull mix. He is full of love. He is a loving dog and plays well with other dogs, but he needs special attention. Rosco always has to have a job to do. If he were to have another dog to play with, he might fare well. We are hoping that someone who has home-based work, with a large yard will take the time to teach Rosco how to divert his attention from chewing to playing. If you are ready for a challenge and a real rescuer come and foster Rosco today and give him a chance!

The silver poodle

When Lisa, my now adult daughter, was about 7 or 8 years old, she decided she wanted a silver poodle. Her mother and I were against it. But she continued to ask for the little dog. Over and over she begged for the pet she so desperately wanted.

One day she brought home a story she had written as an assignment in school. She titled it "The Silver Poodle." It was about a little girl who wanted a silver poodle more than anything in the world. But her parents would not get her one.

It was a sad story. And it touched our hearts. So, with a new understanding, my wife and I discussed getting her what she wanted most. The following Saturday, we went out and bought her a beautiful silver poodle. She named him Pierre. We soon learned that Pierre was a mean dog. He hated children. He was constantly growling, barking and snapping at everyone in the family except me. By default, I soon became responsible for his care. One day he bit my hand and that was the end of Pierre's welcome in our family.

At various times as they grew up, my children had pets. Mostly they had dogs. They had big ones and little ones. All the pets are remembered. We still talk fondly about them and how our hearts were broken when we lost them. We remember Pierre differently.

A lot of things in life do not turn out the way we expect. And sometimes the thing you want the most may not be the best thing for you.

You may have a "silver poodle" today. You finally got something you wanted more than anything. You were willing to do anything to have it. You believed it would make you happy. Now you have it and you realize it would have been better if you had never received what you wanted most!

Live to have what God desires for you. He has a good plan for you. Come to the place in your life that you want what God wants for you. You will then be in joyful contentment.

person. At Moosehaven, he was given school supplies, food, a place to sleep, live and call his, constant guidance and a job.

While all of these amenities served to keep Raggins focused on the goal, and certainly allowed him to do so, it was his life coach that allowed Raggins to grow into the young man he is today.

"My life coach would come and just talk to me, and we'd talk for hours and hours," Raggins said. "I just needed someone to talk to, someone to give me guidance and advice, someone to be there for me and even though we only met once a week, she was that person for me."

After graduating, Raggins moved back home and is now waiting for the call of duty, which he's hoping comes next month.

"I'm joining the Army and I'm hoping to go in July," Raggins said.

For Raggins, the Army is the route he thinks best suits him and his goals in life.

"I want to be financially secure, continue my education which they'll pay for, get insurance and everything else," Raggins said. "I think it's the right step for me and I can't wait to get started."

None of this – a high school diploma, a job, a new outlook on life and the Army – would have been possible without Clay Youth Connection. According to Raggins, the program showed him just how successful someone can be, and how beneficial it is, to have stability in your life.

At an event held at First Baptist of Orange Park to celebrate Raggins and Faulkner strives to impact instruction, so it is rooted in academic rigor that leads to a successful future for all students.

Jennifer Roach is the new supervisor of Instructional Personnel. Roach has been with Clay County District Schools for 15 years, serving as a teacher at Clay Hill Elementary and Swimming Pen Creek Elementary, Reading Coach at Bannerman Learning Center, assistant principal of RideOut Elementary, vice principal at Lakeside Junior High, coordinator of Information Services and, most recently, principal of Plantation Oaks Elementary.

Chastity Lee, once board approved on June 28, will replace Roach as principal of Plantation Oaks Elementary.

Carter's accomplishment, Raggins, in front of his many mentors and sponsors, said he's beyond happy to be in the position he's in right now.

"All of this is because of you, and the best is yet to come," Raggins said.

While Raggins struggled to focus on education before Clay Youth Connection, Carter struggled to find a supportive backbone from her loved ones, affecting not only her education, but every other aspect of her life as well.

Before joining the Clay Youth Connection and graduating from Ridgeview High, Carter's family life could best be summed up as abusive.

"Before all of this, I lived with a very abusive family, my family," Carter said, during celebration for her and Raggins. "I was very shy. I couldn't even look people in the eye."

Today, Carter is still a tad shy, but her gaze is clear when you're talking to her. She's now smiling and confident, not only in her abilities, but who she is.

"I'm a different person now," Carter said. "When I first got to Moosehaven, I immediately lost it."

"I couldn't stop crying because everyone was so nice to me," Carter said, fighting back tears. "I wasn't used to that. I was used to being surrounded by mean people."

Once she was free of abuse, and safe in the hands of Moosehaven and Clay Youth Connection, Carter said she broke from her shell.

"Everything changed," Carter said. "School, work, my friends, my life – all of it. All of it changed."

Now that she's a high school graduate, something Carter admits seemed

Lee joined Clay County in the 4th grade as a student at Doctors Inlet Elementary, graduated from Middleburg High in 1992 and went on to pursue an undergraduate degree in elementary education at the University of North Florida.

Lee has 16 years of teaching experience in Clay County and in 2011, she graduated from the University of North Florida with a master's degree in educational leadership.

Lee has served as an assistant principal at Shadowlawn Elementary for the last three years and has recently completed the Clay County School District's Emerging Leaders Program.

far-fetched before Clay Youth Connection, she's heading to Virginia Beach to be a nanny for the summer to save money for another thing she never thought possible – college.

When Carter returns from Virginia Beach, she's going to pursue her passion for art as a graphic arts major at St. Johns River State College.

"I've been doing art since I've been able to hold a pencil in my hand, maybe even before that," Carter said with a chuckle.

While attending college, Carter plans to move back in with her family, but this time, she believes things will be better. In fact, according to her, things are already better.

"We're working on it and things are definitely getting better," Carter said. "The main problem was removed so now we're just working through the emotional state of our relationship."

"I think everything will be OK," Carter said.

Thomas said she is happier than she ever thought possible to see the program work the way every stakeholder imaged.

"I consider this one of the greatest blessings of being an elected official," Thomas said. "To be a small part in these children's lives is a huge moment for me and I'm ready for the next round of [Clay Youth Connection]."

Next school year, Clay Youth Connection will still be the same as it was. This time, though, those involved have learned what works, what doesn't and what can be improved on. They're also planning to receive help, either via a partnership or simply as a support, from Touchstone, a youth crisis center functioning in Duval County.

"What we did this year was spectacular, and I'm so excited to have Touchstone join in on this," Thomas said. "I can't wait to see how Clay Youth Connection grows from here."

outside security forces. These options can be used in any combination as well. For the past four months, the Clay County School District and Board have worked to comply with the new act via multiple meetings and negotiations among elected officials.

The first agreement signed will come with a cost of $245, 878 from the district's general fund, but during the meeting, Superintendent Addison Davis said that there is a chance the BCC covers this cost.

"Mrs. Kopelousos did call me today and she said that the BCC potentially would be willing – she'd have to have a conversation with them – to cover the $245,000 if the school district was willing to have a three-year agreement resolution to use our gymnasiums in order to allow, whether it be PAL, or YMCA, to continue to engage with our school system and use, after hours, our gyms, in order to give places for kids to participate in the evening," Davis said.

While nothing is official, if the BCC were to follow through with this, Davis said the board would need to make an official motion to approve such a plan and ensure that it is financially sound, as the board would still be responsible for providing supervisors to these areas after hours and paying for things like heating and air conditioning.

The second agreement signed during the meeting was essentially a continuation of the first agreement. This second one would see SROs maintain their occupation in the schools listed above from October 1, 2018, to September 30, 2019. Doing so will cost the school board $1,923,669, and will come from the general fund. Both of these agreements not only place an SRO in the 12 listed schools, but also provide one lieutenant, two sergeants, one investigator, two relief SROs and one training deputy for additional services related to the SROs.

Despite these 12 schools receiving the boosted security, there are still a number of Clay County schools not covered in those two agreements. That's because the school board signed two more agreements that utilize the Green Cove Police Department and Orange Park Police Department in place of CCGSO. To that end, the school board signed an agreement with the Town of Orange and its police department to use their already existing DARE officers as SROs. These officers will continue to provide DARE educational assistance but now, they'll be acting as the SROs for their respective schools as well. These schools include Grove Park Elementary, Orange Park Elementary and Orange Park Junior High. In total, this agreement will cost the school board $210,801 and last from July 1 to June 30, 2019.

The fourth and final agreement is virtually the same as the third, and is a collaboration between the school board, the City of Green Cove Springs and its police department. This agreement also lasts from July 1 to June 30, 2019, but it costs less with a total of $143, 534. It places an SRO in Charles E. Bennett Elementary and Green Cove Springs Junior High.

Board members virtually had no discussion on the agreements, while Davis explained that the BCC might potentially cover the cost of the first agreement. Because each of these four agreements were met with a motion that passed 5-0, it would seem that the school board is in complete and total agreement.

How they're going to afford the new security plan is a question met with some dissension amongst the school board members.

When it was time to vote, the board voted 3-2 to approve a ballot measure asking voters to approve a one-mill tax to fund the new security program, with the balance being used for operating expenses. Board members Mary Bolla, Janice Kerekes and Carol Studdard voted yes, while Betsy Condon and Ashley Gilhousen voted no.

"Shall an additional one (1) mill of School District ad valorem millage tax, beginning July 1, 2019, and ending June 30, 2023, be approved to enhance the safety and security of students and staff, and provide for necessary operating expenses of the School District?" the ballot question reads. According to Condon, her constituents claim the ballot measure is too vague. She also stated that she feels the board has not yet scrubbed the budget enough in an effort to free up additional funds.

"I don't feel confident that we have scrubbed every single line item of our budget to look for additional ways that we can find funds differently, and think differently," Condon said.

These sentiments were echoed by Gilhousen, who also voted no. Despite Gilhousen and Condon's votes, this ballot question will be seen by voters who make their way to the polls come August.

Meals

communities are in close proximity to the Wilkinson Junior High location.

"Everybody likes a free meal, it's not that McDonald's food or that unhealthy stuff. It's good, healthy food, the same stuff we feed them at lunch," said Patricia Walsh, OPJH cafeteria manager. "They get up out of bed and come up here to get their breakfast and lunch, because mama was at work and they need something to eat besides cereal or that sugary stuff."

Since the program's launch, kids have been very receptive. Leona Fordham, 5, enjoyed the food so much, that she was unable to pick just one favorite meal. While her brother Toray, 8, was mostly excited to eat some ice cream. They were among the students who recently packed the OPJH cafeteria to receive a free hot meal.

"This is our third year doing it, it helps out a lot with summer food costs, since we are low income" said Shelley Clessas, the Fordham siblings' babysitter. The fact that Clay County can do this and support this is great, because there are a lot of kids that go hungry, it's near and dear to my heart."

Additionally, the district is currently testing a food truck for use in the Clay County schools. By next summer, the truck will help further expand the free summer food service, replacing the Mobile Bus which operated in previous years. The district food truck is tentatively scheduled to hit the streets beginning Aug. 20.

The Summer Meal Program runs now through Aug. 2, during that time the district remains committed to making sure its children won't have to worry about going hungry this summer.

"Order, order, order; that is my pet peeve, I want the last child to have the same thing as the first child," said Glover. "As far as running out food, it should not happen."

Juveniles arrested for string of vehicle break-ins

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – Two juveniles face charges of burglary following an investigation by the Clay County Sheriff's Office.

On June 12, CCSO received multiple calls about several vehicles being burglarized in the Chief Ridaught subdivision on County Road 220. While officers were on scene investigating this incident, an additional officer who was responding to a separate incident involving two juveniles, determined through his investigation, the two juveniles were involved in the vehicles being burglarized.

"We would like to emphasize these vehicles were unlocked. As a reminder, lock your vehicles and do not become a crime of opportunity," states Sgt. Keith Smith, public information officer in a press release.

In a previous media alert regarding the break-in investigation, CCSO officials said 29 firearms have been stolen this year in multiple burglary cases the department is investigating.

Mother leaves toddler in car for hours

GREEN COVE SPRINGS – A St. Augustine woman who went on a drinking binge at a Clay County bar faces child neglect charges after leaving her toddler child in her car unattended while she imbibed.

The Clay County Sheriff's Office booked Stephanie Lynn Ward, 35, a resident of Hardwood Trail in St. Augustine, in the Clay County Jail on June 7 after she was arrested in St. Johns County and transported to Clay County.

Stephanie Ward

According to the police report, Ward had been seen drinking at Saloon 17 just north of Green Cove Springs on U.S. Highway 17 where a bartender claimed to have served the woman drinks from about 4:30 p.m. until 9 that evening. When Ward went to leave she was heavily intoxicated, according to the report, and came back into the bar to get help jump starting her car.

Upon helping Ward, the bartender and others inside the bar saw a child in the backseat of the vehicle sitting in a child's car seat. Witnesses said the child was sweating and crying. The bartender went inside to call 911 but Ward had left by the time she had placed the call. She was later arrested in the Nocatee community in St. Johns County.

Ward faces a felony for child neglect and was released from Clay County Jail on $25,000 bond.

Sowing seeds of learning

MANGO, Fla. – Members of the Clay County Leafastic 4-H Horticulture Club captured second place in a statewide judging competition held here last weekend.

Christopher Mize, 11, of Orange Park, Makayla Rathjen, 11, of Keystone Heights, and Taylor Thigpen, 11, of Green Cove Springs, were there silently peering over a room filled with plants, cuttings, produce and flowers on June 9. There, they went up against the expertise and training of 4H youth from all around the state whose skills were put to the test. Time spent working to learn about plants with their club, in their own gardens, and using Florida 4H and Master Gardener resources was now put to the test. As the minutes ticked by, the only sound in the room was pencils scratching as they worked to identify the 100 plant samples and judge eight different offerings of vegetables, fruits and horticultural plants.

Along with learning and competition opportunities like these, 4H also teaches youth sound leadership and organizational skills. They complete record books throughout the school year that document what they've learned about specific topics they choose for the year, and demonstrate their knowledge through public speaking. They stand up in the community as civic-minded individuals who perform community service. They present publicly to adult groups, fundraise to meet their the power to request such things from the Supervisor of Elections.

"The Board of County Commissioners is the only one within the county that can then request the Supervisor of Elections to open the books," Grimm said. "The school board can't do that without going to you."

Rollins continued his criticism of the obligation to vote in favor of the resolution as he called for the vote and the other four members gave their verbal approval, with the chair waiting until all four yes votes came in to make a statement and vote no.

"The legislature needs to fix that because that's crazy. It takes away the whole point of voting, because what is voting if you have to vote?" he said. "I'll go on record and vote against it even though I'm technically not allowed to supposedly, just to see what happens, I don't know if they'd come lock me up or what, but 4-1 on that, I guess."

Commissioner Mike Cella took an opportunity to state his agreement with Rollins on the frivolous nature of the requirement, but that he felt like it's just something they have to do as part of the job.

"I agree with you that it is ministerial in our duties to be able to do that. I don't technically agree with the language, but we don't get to decide that," Cella said. "The voter will ultimately get to decide what they want to do with that when this shows up on the ballot, so we're just moving that along and they'll be able to make that decision."

The next topic for discussion came in the form of two agreements between the BCC, the school district and the sheriff's office regarding the funding of school resource officers first for the time between July 1, 2018 and September 30, 2018, and another agreement for the time period between October 1, 2018 and September 30, 2019.

The agreements outline who pays what going forward with the three-party cooperation for meeting the state requirement for school resource officers. In the first agreement that ends on Sept. 30 this year, however, the current agreement has the school board paying $245,000 for the additional officers. Talks with representatives from the district might result in a different agreement being made with the school board to allow the county to use school facilities in return for their payment of that $245,000 plus about $43,000 capital expenses, altogether totaling about $289,000.

Rollins and commissioner Diane Hutchings – who also chairs the board of the charter school St. Johns Classical Academy – took issue with the agreement, with Hutchings saying they already pay the school district money and should already be able to use the facilities.

"My point is, and I'm going back to how you all reacted when we wanted to use the Thrasher Horne and we give them money, so that's why this is putting kind of a question in my mind," she said, referring to a bill they considered too expensive from the Thrasher Horne Conference Center rental for the county's recent veteran appreciation event.

Rollins agreed, citing a recent event he was involved in that was planned at Clay Hill Elementary that had to be moved.

"At the last minute they shifted and said, 'Sorry, you can't use the elementary school,' and it wasn't a conflict of scheduling, so I'm not sure where the conflict was," Rollins said. "I would say, generally, that it would be helpful if the relationship with the school district wasn't just when they needed money, it was continued on in terms of other facilities and that type of thing."

Following these comments, Cella came forward with some additional information about the use of facilities, which has been an arrangement he's tried to organize since being elected to the board.

"Programs that are organized and supervised, those are things we can't do as a community because we don't have an indoor recreation facility," he said. "So we turn to schools, which should be the community center for our different neighborhoods, and I'm sure we can work it out."

According to Cella his hometown hosts events for kids at the various schools and helps build a sense of community, and with this agreement on the table he thought this would finally be the time to make things happen.

"My feeling was that we have something they are in need of at this point in time so this would be a good opportunity to tie those two together. I talked to the County Manager about maybe a three-year deal and the superintendent was amenable, at least from what I saw at the last meeting, that he would, under the first three years, take that cost on in terms of maintenance," Cella said. "Kids in this community have been waiting long enough for a program that they can take advantage of. Move them off the couch and out from in front of computer screens and phones and let them run around a little bit."

Once the board had heard these terms, they agreed to vote the agreements through unanimously with the expectation that the school board would allow the county to use their facilities for three years in exchange for the county's payment of that $289,000.

Davis said he has a shared goal with Daniels to put school resource officers in every school across the county.

"I aspire to put SROs in all of the schools, but right now we don't have the [financial]resources to do that," Davis said. "We're doing what we can while still focusing on teaching and learning. We can't remove instruction and curriculum and continue to provide accelerated opportunities for our students to compete not just locally but nationally."

Daniels cited the July 1 deadline for the school district to submit a list of applicants' names to the sheriff who will then move into the 144 hours of training required by the state for those chosen as guardians.

"There are people who, a little over 30 people, have applied to fill the roles as guardians. It's kinda odd because the people have to already be employees of the school district to even be considered for guardians," Daniels said. "The spirit of the way that the law is written was so that a current school employee who has a concealed weapons permit, who wants to be in this program, would be in the program. But the district went a different route, or is going a different route, and they're hiring from the outside and gonna make these people employees."

Daniels said he's not concerned with whether or not they're current employees as long as they pass a background check, psychological examination and other requirements involved in the 3.5-week training course. Daniels said that every time he gets the opportunity he asks Davis for the list of names, seemingly concerned with the amount of time it would take to train the guardians, but that he should be fine as long as he has the list by the July 1 deadline.

Davis said the district is treating the process with great importance, and they have had almost double the number of applicants that Daniels cited who are already undergoing interviews with a panel of experts who Davis pulled to help with the hiring.

"We have had over 65 apply, and we have been vetting internally this week,"

Davis said. "Included on the panel is a deputy from the sheriff's office to make sure we are selecting the right individuals."

Davis continued about the district's joy in the amount of interest they have received for the positions, and that he is working to get the candidates' information to the sheriff as soon as possible to get training underway.

"We are excited about the pull with 65 candidates, we'll be able to narrow that down to 30 candidates and probably send more than 30 to the training," Davis said. "We are excited that the Sheriff is willing to work with us to fulfill that need while we seek additional funding that would place SROs in every school. We'll have the list to him this week so they have it in hand a few weeks early."

Think twice before driving on worn tires in wet conditions.

Looks like we are in for a lot of rain this Summer so a great time to talk about new research from AAA that reveals when driving on relatively worn tires at highway speeds in wet conditions can increase average stopping distances by 87 feet.

Tires are critical to your safety. When in good condition they enable a vehicle to accelerate, steer and brake safely under a wide variety of road and weather conditions. Check tread depth, replace tires proactively, and increase following distances significantly during rainy conditions.

Slip an upside-down quarter between your tire grooves and look at Washington's head if you can see all of it, it's time to start shopping for new tires or we can check them for you. Stop in or call for an appointment.

Davis on the mound fuels Knights' second title run

Bad bounce foils second title

By Randy Lefko
Sports Editor

OAKLEAF – Not only did Madyson Davis throw a bucket load of strikeouts against the toughest batting lineups in Florida, she single-handedly made a leaping stab of a near-foul pop up that secured a second championship game for her Oakleaf High Lady Knights softball team.

“All I wanted to do was beat that Lakewood Ranch team so we could go to the final,” said Davis. “Some coaches say pitchers should not go after balls like that, but I know I have to go get balls like that. I remember jumping across the line and making the catch.”

Davis, who ended the season with a 18-2 season record behind 124 strikeouts and a 0.94 earned runs average, is selected as the Clay Today softball Player of the Year for her mound presence for the 2018 Oakleaf season. Davis becomes the second consecutive pitcher for Oakleaf to be named the Clay Today All County player

FLEMING ISLAND – Fleming Island High graduate and soccer ace Katie Nimitz has found her way to a handful of coaching experiences since her 2013 graduation and playing time at Lynn University in South Florida with goalie camps at the Clay County Soccer Complex and, most recently, as assistant coach at Quincy University (IL) (Div. II).

“I was just looking through the NCAA jobs site and saw an opening at Quincy and applied,” said Nimitz, who has guided the Clay County-based Florida SOL womens professional team to an unbeaten season start after a 2-1 win Saturday night over the FC Surge out of Miami at the Clay County Soccer Complex. “I like it there and

FSU's Rhett Aplin drafted by Kansas City Royals

TALLAHASSEE – Rhett Aplin, Fleming Island High baseball great and an FSU power hitter at first base, has been drafted by the Kansas City Royals in the 28th round of this week's Major League Baseball draft. Aplin batted .301 for the Seminoles with two homers and 35 runs batted in. Aplin, who started 60 games for Florida State in 2018, also hit for 18 doubles. Aplin also had a .919 fielding percentage at first base with just two errors in 455 putout attempts.

FSU, the Atlantic Coast Conference champions with an 11-8 win over Louisville, finished 43-19 in 2018 with a stint in the NCAA tournament with losses to Samford and Mississippi State knocking the Seminoles out in the NCAA regions. FSU coach Mike Martin became the winningest coach in NCAA baseball in 2018 surpassing 1,000 wins.

CHS alum Andy Toelken to Arizona Diamondbacks

COLUMBIA, Mo. – Former Clay High pitcher Andy Toelken, here celebrating a region playoff win in the Blue Devils' 2014 state runnerup season, was drafted in the 19th round of the Major League Baseball draft by the Arizona Diamondbacks. Toelken has been a standout relief pitcher for the University of Missouri the past two years after two years at St. Johns River State College. Toelken had 11 starts at Missouri with 127.2 innings pitched with 21 relief appearances and finished with a 2.53 earned runs against average.

CHS alum Dunning named to Southern League All Stars

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. – The Birmingham Barons are proud to announce that outfielder Eloy Jimenez, shortstop Danny Mendick, starter Dane Dunning, relief pitcher Ian Hamilton, and catchers Zack Collins and Seby Zavala will represent the Barons in the 2018 Southern League All-Star Game.

"It's an honor to host the 2018 Southern All-Star Game on June 19 and we look forward to providing Birmingham a fun and memorable event. Each year the Southern League All-Star Game includes the biggest Major League Prospects and 2018 will continue that tradition," Barons General Manager Jonathan Nelson said. "Our Barons All-Stars are certainly well-deserved and we look forward to seeing them perform on this stage at Regions Field."

Dunning, 23, and a Clay High graduate, was added to the North Division roster on June 11. Since joining the Barons on April 26, the right-hander has been one of the club's best hitters, posting a 4-2 record with a 3.22 ERA (18 ER in 50.1 IP) with a team-high 55 strikeouts over nine starts. The Barons have done well to back their starter, as they are 7-2 when Dunning toes the rubber this season. This represents the first career All-Star selection for the White Sox No. 6 prospect and the No. 66 prospect in all of baseball according to MLB.com.

The six players will play for the North Division on their home field for the All-Star game on Tuesday, June 19 at Regions Field at 7:05 p.m. Players were picked from a vote of Southern League general managers, field managers, broadcasters, and media.

FIHS alum Cooley named NAIA All-American

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Faulkner University's Reese Cooley has been named an NAIA second team All-American the home office announced June 5 via an NAIA press release.

The senior outfielder who played at Fleming Island High School helped lead the Eagles to a 54-9 record and their sixth consecutive NAIA World Series appearance this season.

Cooley was also named the Southern States Athletic Conference Player of the Year and was a two-time league Player of the Week selection.

He batted .385 over 57 games while knocking in 51 runs on 69 hits which included a team-high 15 homer runs and 13 doubles. Cooley also scored 64 runs of his own and stole 17 bases on 19 attempts.

Cooley started his college career at Chipola Junior College in Florida before transferring to Faulkner.

OHS Mauloni named frosh All-American

JACKSONVILLE – After his record-breaking season at Jacksonville University, freshman relief pitcher Chris Mauloni is now adding more accolades on the baseball field.

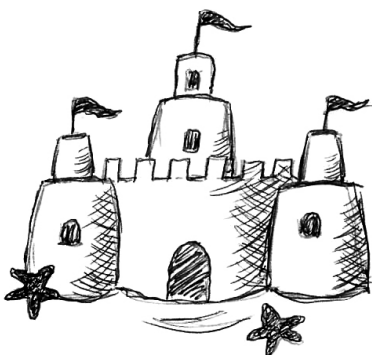

Mauloni, an Oakleaf High School graduate, was selected Monday as a first-team freshman All-America selection by the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association.

In his first year with the Dolphins, Mauloni recorded 20 saves to tie for the NCAA Division I lead and set a new single-season school record at JU.

He finished the season with a record of 3-2, an earned run average of 2.53, and a rate of one and a half strikeouts per inning to help JU reach the postseason for the first time since 2011.

Nadler returns to smash Pies' 5K field

By Randy Lefko
Sports Editor

JACKSONVILLE — Keystone Heights High grad Enoch Nadler has the 2020 U.S. Olympic Trials Marathon in Atlanta on his back bumper, but, on the way, the fleet-footed road racer made a stop in downtown Jacksonville Saturday night for a "speed" test.

"Five seconds faster than last year, I'll take it," said Nadler, 32, who now heads up the Florida Track Club elite racing team in Gainesville. "This is the last race of the spring. I had my two fastest track 5Ks beating my college times, my fastest 1500 meters and now this, my favorite race of the year."

Nadler not only revved his engine in defense of his title from last, but blasted the field with a five second improvement of last year's time.

"I credit a lot of the speed these past two years with training with fast people," said Nadler, a standout runner for the University of Florida after leaving Keystone Heights. "Our elite club improves each day and gives me a core group of fast runners to train with and that's key. It's very tough to train hard by yourself and my team keeps me sharp."

From the starting cannon's smoke-filled blast, Nadler exploded off the start line to put the chase on the women's field who had started two minutes earlier and had a $100 Equalizer bonus attached to the endeavor. With the Equalizer bonus as part of the equation, the first runner across the line; male or female, would capture the extra prize money.

"It definitely is a worthy chase," said Nadler. "I was coming here to test myself and go fast, but the extra cash on the line makes it more exciting."

Nadler would not take long to catch early womens race leader Ani Veltcheva, a 14 year old phenom and a two time Florida middle school state cross country champ out of Gainesville's Abraham Lincoln Middle School, who tested Nadler's resolve in the first two laps with her own seemingly-suicidal pace that put the stellar women's field on notice.

With racers taking a figure eight course from the Landing around the CSX building and in front of the Florida Times Union Center, Veltcheva kept her substantial lead on the women for two laps while Nadler hunted her down by ping-ponging around the women's field on the first of the four laps.

By lap three, Nadler had taken control of both fields and pushed his 4:40 per mile pace to the finish line for a 14:32 time with Tyler Stahl, 21, a very distant second at 15:28. R.J. Dorazil, 39, took third in 16:05. One other area athlete, Oakleaf High junior Dylan Nelson, 16, finished seventh in 17:00.

For Veltcheva, the pass by Nadler on lap three put a damper on her courageous start with veterans Crystal Davis and Claudia Jalon, both 24, giving chase with Jacksonville's Julie Stackhouse still in the three-racer mix.

On the final lap, Davis, a frequent racer in Orange Park, tapped on the accelerator just enough in the final 600 yard stretch in front of the Time Union Center to hold off Jalon for the top prize in 17:48. Jalon finished second in 17:52 with Veltcheva having enough reserve to edge Stackhouse for third with both clocked in at 18:11.

In the ensuing open Run for the Ples 5K, Steven Cartwright, 14, of Jacksonville, held of a 1200 runner field to edge Brad Smith, 48, of Ponte Vedra Beach, with a winning 17:30 split by four seconds. Top area male finisher was Josue Velazquez, 27, of Orange Park, in 16th at 18:42.

For the women's race, Val Kline, 32, of Jacksonville, was top female in 19:25 for 39th overall over Orange Park's Belissa Del Valle, 30, Keystone Heights High School miler Camryn Williams, 14, won her age group in 21:24. John Keester IV, 12, of Fleming Island, won his age group in 18:30. Joe Rivera, 51, of Orange Park, won his age group in 19:00.

of the year with last year's winner, Kelsey Sweatt, now at University of South Carolina-Upstate.

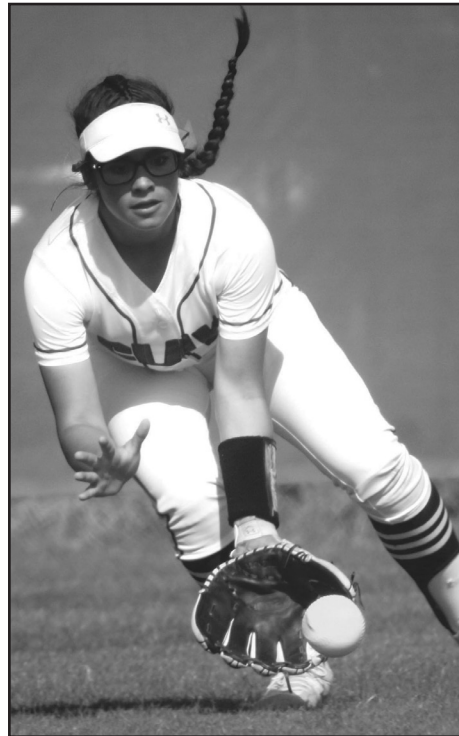

"I feel like the pitcher and catcher should be the top two players to lead the team's defense," said Davis. "There was a lot of pressure though, but Angela (catcher Angela Agurkis) was so important. A catcher is so important to a pitcher. She sees things with my mechanics and keeps me straight."

Against Lakewood Ranch in the 8A semifinal, a team that had beaten the Knights earlier in the season in nine innings, Davis ended a dramatic pitcher's duel with the snag of a flyball on the final out of the day to preserve the 1-0 win for Oakleaf. Davis' lone regular loss was an 8-4 decision in March to Bartram Trail.

In the championship game against Hagerty, a 1-0 loss, Davis was beset by an odd bounce off third base that allowed the lone run of the day.

"The batter had two strikes on her and I threw her a really nasty curve ball that should have been a curve," said Davis. "She should have been out and we should have been at bat. I threw a screwball next and she hit it right at the bag (third base). All I was thinking in the dugout is to keep the team pumped up for our at bats."

With three Clay County teams making it to the Final Four tournaments; Keystone Above: Clay High freshman right fielder Paolo Jorge-Silva earned her start in the 10th game and became a big bat for the Lady Blue Devils.

Center: Oakleaf High senior Rebecca Koskey was one of best batters in county with four homers and 35 RBIs.

Bottom right: Clay High senior first baseman Sydney Lewis was best at sacrifice bunts and was nearly flawless in the field.

Heights (5A), Clay (6A) and Oakleaf (8A), the abundance of talent spread around the county was quite possibly the best in the history of the county. Clay and Keystone Heights both lost in their semifinals while Oakleaf lost in the 8A championship game.

Behind Davis, the Oakleaf defense and two members of the Clay Today All County first team included third baseman Baylee Goddard and second baseman Rebecca Koskey, both returners to the first team roster. Koskey, a senior, proved her value to the Oakleaf not only with her team-leading 35 runs batted in and four homers off a .449 batting average, but by transitioning from her right field slot to becoming one of the best second basemen in Florida as coach Christina Thompson looked to replace a stellar graduating class of 2017.

"I know I have a good defense behind me," said Davis. "We lost some really good players, but this year's squad came together and made the defense just as good. Baylee is probably the hardest batter for me to get out because she is so strong. It's good for me because I face her and Rebecca and Angela many times during practice and I think it helps me when I face other teams knowing I've already faced some of the best batters around."

Goddard, a junior, was her usual intensely steady defender of the hot corner while her power at bat was evident with a walkoff homer to keep the Knights in the championship hunt at the prestigious Kissimmee Klassic and a third base appearance in the final inning of the state championship game that ended with a groundout with two outs. Goddard's batting average was a tad lower than 2017 mainly because opposing coaches were well aware of her batting power. Oakleaf's 1-4 batting lineup; Katie Kistler, Koskey, Goddard and Angela Agurkis formed one of the more formidable set of bats in the country.

Finishing off the infield are shortstop Molly Crawford, a Keystone Heights senior speedster, and first baseman Sydney Lewis of Clay. Crawford was built for speed and created a sense of hurry in opposing defenses with her raw speed to first base on would-be routine ground balls. Crawford had 42 runs batted in with three homers and 17 stolen bases.

Lewis, with 21 runs batted in to lead the Blue Devils, was masterful as a baserunner mover with her bunting prowess (13 successful sacrifice bunts) for coach and dad Matt Lewis, plus her field leadership at first base; six errors in 57 touches with two double plays.

"Sydney's best game was a three RBI day against Trinity Christian (4A run-ners) that had her nail a squeeze bunt for the third run and the win," said Matt Lewis. "She was solid at first base with just six errors in 387 opportunities."

Behind the plate, Oakleaf catcher Angela Agurkis, with a strong .436 batting average with three homers, added to her mystique as a top powerhitter in Florida with some well-place scoring bunts as coach Christina Thompson employed a handful of suicide squeeze bunts for game-winning opportunities. Agurkis, one of the more vocal defensive leaders for the Knights, also had 27 RBIs.

In the outfield, left field belongs to Oakleaf speedster Destiny Pacetti with Keystone Heights' senior Ashleigh Jennings manning centerfield and Clay freshman Paolo Jorge-Silva showing some prowess from the right field grass not only with her bat but also with her cannon arm. Jorge-Silva, with her .328 batting average and a late flurry of hits in the post season, will be a key player for Clay in 2019. Jorge-Silva had just two errors in 23 touches for an 87 percent fielding percentage.

"Paolo was our newcomer of the year with her first start in the 10th game," said Lewis. "Her two run single against West Florida (region final win 5-1) put that game out of reach. She was in top three of many offensive categories for us."

The Clay Today First Team pitcher is Clay High's Morgan Crutcher, just a sophomore, who time and time throughout the Lady Blue Devils' playoff run to the Final Four was the catalyst for Clay's defense. Crutcher struck out 146 batters with her 14 wins and a 1.315 earned runs average.

"Morgan had a nine inning playoff win, 2-1, over Ridgeview in the region semifinal and a 2-1 win in regular season play as two huge games for us plus the win over West Florida," said Lewis. "In 14 games she did not give up an earned run, but 17 unearned runs were scored. She also had eight shut-outs."

THE FLORIDA ROUNDUP
Fridays at 1PM on 89.9FM

WJCT’s Melissa Ross co-hosts this weekly statewide discussion about the issues making an impact around Florida.

1A

Weekdays at 10AM on 89.9FM

With a name inspired by the first amendment, 1A invites you to join the conversation and speak freely. Joshua Johnson hosts.

the team did great this season; Sweet 16 in the NCAA Division II tournament and a final 11th seed finish. I get to work on my master’s degree too.”

Nimitz, who coaches the Florida SOL with St. Johns Country Day School graduate Annie Bobbitt, said her Quincy team won the regular season record (17-4-1) in the Great Lakes Valley Conference, finished as runnerups to McKendree University in the conference championship, but had a strong enough season to get into the NCAA tournament. Quincy had 13 shutouts and allowed just 17 goals for the season to get the Quincy coaching staff; head coach Dave Musso, Nimitz and volunteer assistant Cody Smith as the Midwest Region Staff of the year. Musso has been GLVC coach of the year four times and this year was his second region coach of the year.

Nimitz, in her first season with Quincy, coached goalkeeper Megan Swanson to 17 wins (tied for most in a single-season), 13 shutouts (second most in a single-season) and 91 saves (third most in a single-season).

Quincy, the No. 2-seed, finished with a 2-1 win over Bellarmine in the NCAA second round before losing to top-seed Grand Valley State 3-1 in the quarterfinals.

In Florida SOL’s Saturday’s home victory, coming after a 5-0 season opening win over Puerto Rico Pride on June 4, Florida SOL scored late in the first half then quickly into the second half to get the two goals for the win.

With only five minutes left to play in the first half, Fleming Island High’s Brianna Paige, now at Nova Southeastern, took a feed from Oakleaf High’s Nicolette Conte, now at University of West Georgia, and beat the Surge keeper to get the first point of the game. The blast at the 40 minute mark gave SOL some solace going into the half break.

At the 43 minute mark, local favorite and Clay High alum Liz Fogarty, now at Mississippi State, found herself one-on-one with the goalie, trying to tame a wild pass. The ball came in right where Fogarty couldn’t comfortably head the ball, so she elected to attempt a kick.

“I was nervous to head it over the goalie” said Fogarty. “It bounced over and the goalie missed it. Me being so tall, I was thinking I’m about the rocket that thing over the goal, so I was just going to hit it with my leg. But the ball was too far in the air, it hit the ground, took a weird bounce and my Karate kick didn’t work, then the Goalie wrapped around me and got a poke at it.”

As she swung her leg, the ball took an odd bounce, allowing the Surge keeper to attack the ball, punching it away, thus robbing Fogarty of her chance for goal.

Still 1-0 at the half.

During the break, storm clouds were forming to the west and north. On the horizon, thunder could be heard, but no lightning was over the park yet, but the storm clouds on the field built quickly as both teams felt the urgency to score in case of the weather shortening the game. Noticeable were the acute passes and much stronger attacks on both sides.

With about 31 minutes left to play, Angeline Daly, an Auburn University player and graduate of 2016 state champ Ponte Vedra High School, put the ball in play off a corner kick, then rushed the net. The ball came out to the top of the foul area, and back to Daly.

She wound up and shot the ball, which ricocheted off another player and past the Surge keeper for goal number two only 14 minutes into the second half.

As the storms approach, the play tempo continued to crescendo. With some aggressive play, a foul was called on SOL, allowing a penalty kick for Surge at the top of the goal line.

The Surge successfully scored off the penalty kick for the final 2-1 score.

With 17:18 left to play, a bolt shot to the ground close to the field and the warning horn sounded forcing everyone to shelter. Within minutes, the field was awash in a deluge that quickly formed huge puddles. With the lightening continuing, both coaches finally agreed to call the game in the name of player safety.

SOL packs their bags to head across the state to play Florida Tropics FC in St. Petersburg for game three of their 2018 season.
