coverstory BY SARAH PASSINGHAM Gilded twang: CMT Music Awards name the year's top tracks

It's the time of year to celebrate the best songs about trucks, whiskey, small towns, good times and bad benders. The 2023 CMT Music Awards name fan-favorite winners live Sunday, April 2, on CBS, and will be available to stream live and on demand on the Paramount+ streaming service. The 57th annual ceremony is making history by packing up from its longtime home in the city of country music, Nashville, Tennessee, to broadcast for the first time from the Moody Center in Austin, Texas.

Hosting duties are old (10-gallon) hat to country music darlings Kelsea Ballerini and Kane Brown, who will MC the show for the third consecutive year. Both artists are nominated this year, even going headto-head in the Video of the Year category, where Ballerini's music video for "HEARTFIRST" is up against Kane's duet with his wife and fellow singer/songwriter, Katelyn Brown, "Thank God."

The Browns will be performing along with country ballad queen Carrie Underwood, who holds the record for most CMT Music Award wins with 25 awards. Underwood boasts two nominations this year for two different videos. "Hate My Heart," her breakup pump-up song from her 2022 album Denim & Rhinestones, is nominated for Video of the Year, while "Ghost Story" (from the same album) is up for Female Video of the Year.

There are nine categories that make up the CMT Music Awards, and the winners are determined entirely by fan votes via CMT's website (CMT.com). Early votes really count for the night's top title of Video of the Year, whose 16 nominees became a top six on March 27. From there, it's a race to be one of the final three that will be announced on the day of the show. Social media votes decide the ultimate winner.

Joining the aforementioned artists, the rest of the sweet 16 nominees for Video of the Year are "Bonfire at Tina's" by Ashley McBryde, Caylee Hammack, Brandy Clark & Pillbox Patti; "No Body" by Blake Shelton; "Human" by Cody Johnson; "Worth a Shot" by Elle King featuring Dierks Bentley; "Pick Me Up" by Gabby Barrett; "wait in the truck" by HARDY featuring Lainey Wilson; "Down Home" by Jimmie Allen; "Wild Hearts" by Keith Urban; "Rich Man" by Little Big Town; "Coun-

Female Video of the Year nominated songs not covered in the Video of the Year race include "W/hat He Didn't Do" by Carly Pearce; "Heart Like a Truck" by Lamey wilson; "Humble Quest" by Maren Morris; and "Actin' Up" by Miranda Lambert.

Wilson leads this year's nominations with four nods, followed by the show's co-host Brown, Johnson and first-time nominee Jelly Roll, who each have three nominations to their name. Jelly Roll's video for "Son of a Sinner" is up for both Male Video of the Year and Breakthrough Male Video of the Year, and his live performance of the song from "CMT All Access" earned him a nod in the CMT-Digital-First Performance of the Year

Male Video of the Year nominees "Rock and a Hard Place" by Bailey Zimmerman; "She Had Me at Heads Carolina" by Cole Swindell; "Like I Love Country Music" by Kane Brown; "The Kind of Love We Make" by Luke Combs; and "Waster On You" by Morgan Wallen all join "Human" in a competitive race this year.

Stewart explores tea, boils lobster and more in Season 2 of 'Martha Cooks'

Though coffee is recognized as the morning beverage of choice in this country, tea has its devotees as well. One of them is Martha Stewart, and in Season 2 of "Martha Cooks," she explores how to use it in several different ways in one episode.

Dropping its nine episodes Monday, April 3, on The Roku Channel, the new season finds Stewart at a friend's Westport, Conn., tea shop, where she learns the finer points of teas and tea-making. Then she returns to her kitchen at her Bedford, N.Y., farm to embark on an ambitious dish called sugar and tea-smoked chicken.

The process involves brining a whole bird in salt for several days, then smoking it with tea and sugar in a Dutch oven. Stewart and niece Sophie clear out while the poultry smokes and return to a mahogany-colored chicken unlike anything anyone has ever seen.

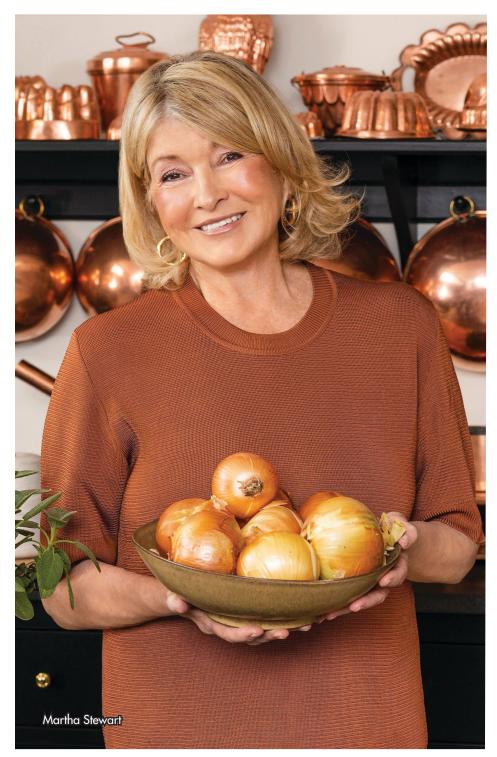

Also this season, Stewart heads to Maine to learn all there is to know about boiling lobster, gets a visit from chef and restaurateur Jamie Oliver, who demonstrates how to make several one-pot recipes, and does a brunch with chef Ignacio Mattos that's complete with cocktail, waffles and an omelet tricked out with caviar and creme fraiche.

At 81, it's clear that Stewart isn't slowing down and the recipes this season prove that her creativity is still at a peak level. But if you find that you still need more Martha, here are a few options you can stream right now.

"Martha Stewart Living" (Roku): Stewart arguably made her name on TV with this 1993-2004 syndicated half-hour series based on the same-named magazine, in which she presented segments on cooking, gardening, craft making and decorating. Not only was it informative, it was a regular presence at awards season, garnering numerous Daytime Emmy Awards, including four for Stewart herself as outstanding host

"Martha Knows Best" (discovery+, Spectrum, HGTV Go): Gardening is front and center of this HGTV series that finds Stewart offering up tips to callers and celebrity friends and showing off projects and improvements at her 150-acre estate in Bedford, N.Y.

"Martha Bakes" (Roku): Well, of course she does, and in this 2011-18 Hallmark Channel series, she shares baking tips and techniques that enable the home baker to produce the most impressive desserts and pastries in their own kitchen. And the confections run the gamut, so whether it's lemon meringue pie or brown butter shortbread, there will likely be something to capture anyone's imagination.

playerprofile BY GEORGE DICKIE McIlroy seeks first win at Augusta National

At 33, Rory McIlroy has accomplished just about everything there is to accomplish in golf - multiple wins in majors, a FedEx Cup championship, money list title, World No. 1 ranking. But there is one glaring omission that is preventing from realizing another, a Masters title that would give him a career Grand Slam

Indeed, the native of Northern Ireland has played well at Augusta National over the years, with a fourth place finish in 2015, ties for fifth in 2018 and 2020 and last year's second place standing thanks to a sizzling final round. But no wins to show for it.

Entering Sunday 10 strokes back a year ago, McIlroy made birdies on six holes and an eagle on another in a round highlighted by a brilliant hole-out from a bunker on No. 18, to finish the day at eight-under 64. Unfortunately, it was not enough to overcome the deficit he had put himself in through the first three rounds and he wound up three strokes behind Scottie Scheffler, who bagged his first major.

As for this season, he's happy with his performance overall and at Bay Hill in early March in particular, despite losing the lead in the final round and finishing second to Kurt Kitayama. He feels his driving and his overall play are getting to where he wants them to be just as the big tournament is coming into view

He'll be looking to don his first green jacket when he tees off in the golf year's first major, the Masters, which airs Thursday through Sunday, April 6-9, on ESPN and CBS, from Augusta National in northwest Georgia.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Catherine Haena Kim

OF THE COMPANY YOU KEEP ON ABC

Q: What spoke to you about "The Company You Keep"?

A: Honestly, I've been calling this my dream role ever since the first read. There are a couple of different reasons that drew me to it. First, I love that you have two characters in Charlie and Emma who are very seemingly different at first glance. But you happen to meet them when they're going through the exact same moment in both their lives. And it's that moment when you meet somebody and they just get it, they get you, and you think, 'Oh, it's you. It's gonna be you.' And then it's on. And I love that you have this Asian American female protagonist and she's navigating love and struggles in career and then she goes home to a mom that's just a lot. And I just was really excited about playing a character like that that's really fully fleshed out, especially on network TV.

Q: Did your chemistry with Milo come right away?

A: I'm really grateful because he's such a generous scene partner and also a fantastic producer. And we had the luxury of doing some rehearsals with our director for the pilot Ben Younger and an acting coach that he personally loves working with, Kim Gillingham. So I think having that creative space to collaborate and create trust together before we ever stepped on set when you're being pulled in a million directions and the hours are crazy, it was just really nice.

And also Milo and I got to sit down and talk a few times before we actually started about our characters, our relationship as characters and also just in general how we wanted our set to be. I think things always trickle down from the top and we talked a lot about the kind of set we wanted to create as the lead actors in this show. Making sure that we do know everybody's name and making sure that it's a kind and professional set and then making sure everybody has fun because work is always stressful ... and we're very mindful that everyone still goes home and has lives outside of work, even if we get to do things that are little kid dream stuff.

In focus

"Waco: The Aftermath" (Showtime — series premiere, April 16)

This new series, coinciding with the 30th anniversary of the events at Mt. Carmel that began on Feb. 28, 1993, focuses on the fallout of the Waco, Texas, disaster — the trials of the surviving members of the Branch Davidian sect and the rise of homegrown terrorist Timothy McVeigh. The five-episode series also provides a broader context for the growth of the American militia movement, which foreshadows attacks such as the Oklahoma City bombing and the storming of the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6. Featured stars include Michael Shannon, John Leguizamo and Giovanni Ribisi.

"Ciao House" (Food Network — series premiere, April 16)

Hosted by Chef Alex Guarnaschelli and Tuscan-born Chef Gabriele Bertaccini and shot on-location in Italy, this new competition series brings 10 up-and-coming culinary stars together in a breathtaking Italian villa where they'll compete against one another as individuals and in teams to prove their mastery of Italian cooking. From real-life nonnas to a head butcher of a three centuries-old family butcher business, they face challenges accompanied by a local experience steeped in tradition.

'Creed' rocks in carrying forth the 'Rocky' saga

What a clever repurposing of a famous character.

A movie icon, still played by the same actor, usually doesn't get the freshening Sylvester Stallone gives Rocky Balboa in "Creed" - a smart, entertaining extension of one of screen history's most famous franchises.

The title of the film (which TNT shows Tuesday, April 4) suggests the main relationship that involves another boxer: Adonis Johnson, the illegitimate son of Rocky's old rival and eventual comrade, Apollo Creed. The younger man, well-played by Michael B. Jordan (reunited with "Fruitvale Station" filmmaker Ryan Coogler), also wants to be in the fight game ... despite the upper-class life his family is trying to shoehorn him into.

He bolts and heads for Philadelphia, and you can guess who he wants to train him. Like Rocky did, he eventually gets a onein-a-million shot, his being against a British champ ... and the cinematography in the fight sequences (by Maryse Alberti) is really energetic and thrilling.

So is watching Stallone embrace his inner Rocky fully again. After "Rocky III," he seemed to be on auto-pilot with the role. However, having handed it over to a different director and writers (which couldn't have been an easy decision for him, since the Oscar-earning Rocky character was completely his brainchild), he seems eager for the challenge, and it's a pleasure to watch.

In fact, "Creed" is smartly cast right down the line. As she has in her stage work, Phylicia Rashad affirms how much she can do beyond "The Cosby Show's" Clair Huxtable as Adonis' maternal figure, and Tessa Thompson also impresses as his vocally gifted new love.

celebrity q&a BY JAY BOBBIN Melanie Lynskey of Yellow JACKETS ON SHOWTIME

Q: Filming on Season 2 of "Yellowjackets" is complete, but Season 3 has been ordered. Will you have much downtime before that begins production?

A: I was trying, but it didn't really work! I don't know if I'm allowed to say what it is yet, but I took a job, so I'm going back to work.

My dream when I started acting was that I wouldn't have to have another job, and that I could make a living at it. I never needed to be rich or famous. I just wanted to do work that was interesting to me, and that has happened. Honestly, everything else feels like the cherry on top.

Q: Frequently shown on cable, "Up in the Air" is one of the most popular of your many movies. What are your memories of making it?

A: It was just a dream from beginning to end. That whole thing was so fun and exciting and creative, and George (Clooney) is just the nicest person you could ever work. It was just great.

Q: You're also known for the great kindness you show others on social media. Is that easy for you to maintain?

A: Sometimes, people will write something mean to me ... and it happened a lot after "The Last of Us" (the recent HBO series on which Lynskey guest-starred). People had all kinds of feelings about it, but life is hard for everybody. Everyone is a human being who's struggling, and people act out in all kinds of different ways.

I don't think some of them really think about the fact that they're addressing these messages to a human being. For me, there's no point in engaging every person. I'd rather engage (those who are) positive. That's the best way to go about your day.

reality†V BY GEORGE DICKIE Adventurers take on the brutal elements of the 50th State in USA's 'Race to Survive Alaska'

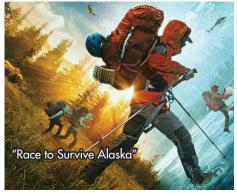

Alaska is not only the largest by area of the 50 states but also is home to some of the most diverse climates and environments on the planet. And many of them are on display in an adventure competition series coming to USA Network. In "Race to Survive Alaska," which premieres

In "Race to Survive Alaska," which premieres Monday, April 3, eight teams of two trek along 100 miles of Alaskan coastline through inhospitable terrain, from swamps and suffocating rainforest to mountain ranges and glaciers, to claim a spot in the finale where they'll have a chance to win a $500,000 grand prize.

During this time, they'll have to live on provisions and what food they can forage and catch, be on the lookout for threatening wildlife such as bears and fight off constant physical and mental exhaustion, which can result in infighting between teammates.

And the competitors here are a mix of elite athletes and survival experts, which executive producer Brian Lovett ("Deadliest Catch") says made for an interesting complement of skills.

"Part of what this race does is it's a great equalizer ...," he explains. "You could haul ass through the race but then once you get to survival camp, you don't know what to do. So somebody who comes in who might be slower, once they get to survival camp, they know where to find food, they know what leaves and everything to eat or where to forage or to hunt ... which would then give them an edge because they're resting and replenishing better than some of the faster teams. ... So we'll see who would gain an edge in this race."

Following each of the teams in this series, which was filmed last summer in the state's southeast, were a camera person and a guide/ medic, which not only helped the production team keep track of the locations of all the racers but also advise them on what to do in an inevitable bear encounter.

"If (they) did spot a bear," Lovett says, "they'd know how to react, whether that be with bear spray or knowing when you should or should not do something like that. ... You're not going to try to scare off that bear; you're going to leave its area and go around."

celebritypipeline Carol Burnett will mark a big birthday in a big way

Q: Is it true that the special marking Carol Burnett's 90th birthday is going to be shown on her actual birthday? – Kim Ferris, Fruita, Colo. A: It is. April 26th is that date, and NBC will broadcast the two-hour tribute to the comedy icon, which was taped at the start of March. We spoke with her soon after that, and she told us that she was "gobsmacked" by the event and the turnout of celebrities who wanted to give her their best wishes. She also said that she was pleased that the occasion was a true "show" in performance terms.

Among the many guests you can expect to see when the result is televised are Julie Andrews (Burnett's longtime "chum," as she puts it), Katy Perry, Cher, Kristin Chenoweth, Bernadette Peters, Billy Porter, Jane Lynch, Aileen Quinn, Amy Poehler, Bill Hader, designer Bob Mackie, Ellen DeGeneres, Kristen Wiig, Laura Dern, Lily Tomlin, Marisa Tomei, Sofia Vergara, Steve Carell, Susan Lucci, Tracee Ellis Ross and "Carol Burnett Show" colleague Vicki Lawrence.

bestof ...

"Carrie" (1976) As a warm-up to his movie stardom, Travolta made himself evident as one of the tormentors of the telekinetic title heroine (Sissy Spacek) in the first film to be made from a Stephen King novel.

"Saturday Night Fever" (1977) He was a television star already thanks to "Welcome Back, Kotter," but Travolta hit the Hollywood map in an even bigger way with his earnest performance as aspiring Brooklyn dancer Tony Manero. Here's a classic example of a role that fit like a glove.

"Grease" (1978) Even if Travolta and Olivia Newton-John were a bit far along to be age-appropriate as teen romantics Danny and Sandy, their teaming in the musical has held up beautifully for 45 (!) years.

"Urban Cowboy" (1980) Travolta's early winning streak continued as he wooed, won, lost and won back Debra Winger ... no "bull" about it. (If you've seen the movie, you know the reference.) "Look Who's Talking" (1989) Though a baby who talks (with the voice of Bruce Willis) is the show-stealer here, Travolta's presence adds much to the popular comedy, which yielded two sequels. "Pulp Fiction" (1994) Thanks to filmmaker and fan Quentin Tarantino, Travolta got back in the game as Samuel L. Jackson's hit-man partner.

JOHN TRAVOLTA'S 10 TOP MOVIES

"Get Shorty" (1995) Elmore Leonard's small-time enforcer character proves an excellent match for a cool and confident Travolta.

"Broken Arrow" (1996) Travolta clearly has fun playing a bad guy, a military pilot who goes rogue and steals nuclear weapons, but a colleague he betrayed (Christian Slater) is determined to stop his plans.

"Phenomenon" (1996) As an everyday fellow struck by lightning and made extraordinary, Travolta does heartfelt work that's genuinely lovely.

"Michael" (1996) The title role of a decidedly unconventional archangel lets Travolta have a good time performance-wise in director Nora Ephron's comedy. "Face/Off" (1997) Travolta has a blast channeling Nicolas Cage – and vice versa – in director John Woo's switched-identities thriller.

"Primary Colors" (1998) Look closely under the Clintonesque makeup and manner. That's really Travolta as an ethically malleable president.

"The General's Daughter" (1999) Travolta is in fine form as a military detective whose probe of a female officer's death uncovers unseemly information about superiors linked to her.

"Hairspray" (2007) Only someone as self-confident as Travolta would cross-dress to camp it up as Edna Turnblad, mom of the tale's heroine.
