Looking for 'Fame' on ABC: Jonas Brothers return for Season 2 of 'Claim to Fame'

Family trees bear interesting fruit. From eye and hair color to skin tones, personal preferences, behaviors and more, a family connection can have a lot of bearing on a person and their relatives. One less common thing that runs throughout some family trees is a little business called "show," and that family/fame connection is precisely what drives one of ABC's most popular returning reality shows.

"Claim to Fame," hosted by celebrity brothers Kevin and Franklin Jonas, heads into a second season Monday, June 26, on ABC.

The series first made waves in July of last year, when it premiered to wide-eyed audiences craving the "Big Brother" -esque housing situation and looking to flex deduction skills that are generally relegated to private investigators and seasoned detectives.

Designed as less of a "whodunit" and more of a "who is it," the premise of the series is that 12 celebrity relatives — each flying under the radar — live under one roof while engaging in games, personal conversations and deception to hide who they are while trying to uncover the identities of those around them. As they form alliances and make their educated guesses about one another's famous lineage, each contestant must do their best to stay in the game throughout the weekly eliminations. At the end of the season, the last relative standing takes home the $100,000 prize.

Last season's winner was LC, the "secret" eldest sister of "Nope" (2022) actress Keke Palmer. LC's real name was revealed to be Loreal Palmer, while her competitors in the two-episode finale were Logan, who turned out to be country singer Jason Aldean's cousin, and Pepper, revealed to be the granddaughter of late Rat Pack member Dean Martin ("Ocean's 11," 1960).

In a discussion with People magazine following the Season 1 finale, Palmer shared her shock at how emotional the process was for her.

"It's a game, but real people are involved and real feelings," said Palmer. "I used to watch reality TV and when I'd see someone have a breakdown, I'd be like, 'Oh this is so dramatic,' but now I apologize to those people who I thought that about. I was not expecting the emotional toll that it took."

Despite the very real ups and downs, however, Palmer thanks the show for bringing her a new circle of friends and the platform to share her dreams of a future making horror movies (not to mention the money to help put that dream into action).

"It was just such a unique experience, bringing people together who otherwise probably never would've even met," Palmer explained. "I'm walking away with 11 new friends."

Other famous relatives in the premiere season included Chuck Norris's ("Walker, Texas Ranger") grandson Maxwell; Zendaya's ("Euphoria") cousin Michael; X, identical twin of Laverne Cox ("Orange Is the New Black"); Brittany, daughter of Green Bay Packers quarterback Brett Favre; model Cindy Crawford's niece Lark; and Whoopi Goldberg's ("Sister Act," 1992) granddaughter Amara, among others.

While this year's cast of characters has been kept under wraps for obvious reasons, there is no doubt that the carefully crafted curation of celebrity relatives will be at least as shocking as the show's inaugural year. (Curious fans can do a quick Google search of the official poster, however, to start guessing immediately.)

Hats off: chefs face a labyrinth of challenges in new Hulu show

The out-of-the-box, out-of-the-ordinary cooking competition, "Secret Chef," pits chef against chef in a blind taste-test-off when it premieres Thursday, June 29, on Hulu.

From executive producer David Chang ("Ugly Delicious") — himself a renowned chef and restauranteur, having founded the Momofoku restaurant chain — this new, "sly" twist on the cooking competition genre asks 10 chefs, ranging in skill and specialty from professionals to home cooks and social media influencers, to perform in a range of cooking challenges, all performed from the depths of a kitchen unlike any other.

The show, as complex as it is straightforward, isolates its competitors in a secret labyrinth of secluded, underground kitchens, connected only by an ongoing conveyor belt. Each chef gets a kitchen of their own, not knowing who inhabits the other nine. With no guidance from any hosts, mentors or fellow chefs, each contender has only one source for instructions: a mischievous, animated chef's hat, which appears on screen to task the chefs with increasingly complex cooking challenges. They must rely solely on themselves as they chop, blend and sauté towards the finish line, when their dishes disappear, whisked away on a conveyor belt.

But it doesn't stop there. In another subversion of traditional cooking competitions, this show features no judges – at least, not exactly. At the end of the competition, the chefs will partake in a series of blind taste tests, experiencing each other's creations firsthand as the conveyor belt moves along – all without knowing the competitor behind the dish. They must rate the presented plates based on food alone, with no knowledge of whether it was prepared by an all-star chef or a hobbyist cook. Only once a winner has been chosen will identities be revealed and the labyrinth unlocked.

Produced by Dave O'Connor ("Abstract: The Art of Design"), food writer Chris Ying and Christopher C. Chen ("Ugly Delicious") of Majordomo Media, along with Vox Media Studios and Wheelhouse's Spoke Studios, and helmed by showrunner Patrick J. Doody ("Nailed It!"), this unique new cooking show puts food and flavor above all else, upending expectations of chefs and viewers alike when it premieres Thursday, June 29, on Hulu.

Age is just a number for Goldschmidt

Only a few names resonate with consistency and grit, but at the age of 35, Paul Goldschmidt has some doubters questioning whether his best days are behind him. Currently, the St. Louis Cardinals hold a 25-35 won-lost record with a 14-18 record on the road. Despite the lessthan-ideal start to the season, the Cardinals are third in total home runs with 80 on the year — 10 of those coming from Goldschmidt.

Goldschmidt was traded to the Cardinals back in 2019 after a successful stint with the Arizona Diamondbacks, helping kickstart his career. Since his arrival in St. Louis, he's been a vital part of the team by adding more all-star and Silver Slugger awards to his resume. At this point in his career, Goldschmidt is well known for his power at the plate and defensive awareness, establishing himself as one of the most consistent offensive and defensive threats in Major League Baseball.

While the team struggles to establish a winning record, it doesn't seem to have bothered the first baseman. Goldschmidt currently ranks 18th in batting average. His on-base percentage ranks ninth and he's 19th in the league in slugging (.615 in his last 10 games).

Putting the team on his back for much of the year, Goldschmidt has single-handedly made strong plays throughout the season, scoring in 28 games this year (48.3%), including multiple runs in nine games. Goldschmidt has had at least one RBI in 27.6% of his games this season (16 of 58), and accounts for three or more of his team's runs in one game.

Currently sitting at the bottom of the NL Central (fifth), Goldschmidt and the Cardinals will look to get back to their winning ways as they take on the Chicago Cubs. Catch all the action Sunday, June 25, live on ESPN.

June 27 "Movie: M3GAN"

When Gemma (Allison Williams) suddenly becomes the caretaker of her orphaned 8-yearold niece, Cady (Violet McGraw), she's unsure and unprepared to be a parent. Under intense pressure at work, Gemma decides to pair her M3GAN prototype — a life-like doll — with Cady in an attempt to resolve both problems. But, her decision has unimaginable consequences.

June 28 "Documentary: Anthem"

Reflecting on "The Star-Spangled Banner," this documentary follows acclaimed composer Kris Bowers ("Bridgerton") and Grammy-winning music producer Dahi as they take a musical journey across America. They look to create a new sound, inspired by what the country's national anthem might be if it was written in today's time.

June 28 "Documentary: Eldorado: Everything the Nazis Hate"

The film looks at Berlin in the late Golden Twenties, where the legendary Eldorado nightclub is a decadent escape for the LGBTQ+ community, alongside the city's rich and powerful. The club acts as a backdrop for the first LGBTQ+ movement in history, as the film visualizes for the first time how their emerging identity was intertwined with the Nazis' twisted relationship to homosexuality within their own ranks.

June 28 "Disney Gallery: Star Wars: The Mandalorian – The Making of Season 3'

This docuseries pulls back the curtain on all of the hard work, acting, special effects and creative power that goes into making "The Mandalorian." It includes interviews with the cast and crew, as well as special behind-the-scenes footage of the process, bringing audiences an in-depth look at the newest episodes of the 14time Primetime Emmy-winning series.

OF HOW I MET YOUR FATHER ON HULU

Q: What attracted you to "How I Met Your Father"?

A: I'm extremely lucky to have gotten the opportunity to play Sophie. I am so attracted to parts that are extremely relatable, and this one happens to touch on just trying to find love in this world that we live in with all the options that there are, and how hard it is to meet someone face-to-face. And the fact that she has this lovely friend circle that, kind of, comes together in a strange way, it was all just really attractive to me.

Q: What do you feel that you have in common with Sophie?

A: Even though I'm in a totally different place in my life, I just felt like I was drawn to Sophie. She doesn't give up. She's kind of struggling. The odds are kind of against her in her career, but she's leaning on this little pack of weirdos that she finds one night. And they run off into the sunset together and have all of these experiences that young people have, just trying to find their footing. It was just a great script.

Q: What do you think about the show being careful to stay separate from the earlier "How I Met Your Mother" while also paying homage to it?

A: I think it's important to know that we are our own show. The original show was so amazing, and (the cast members) were so tied into one another and just did such an amazing job, but this is its own show.

We clicked pretty fast. We were like, "Huh, we have a show. We did it. We look like we are best friends. We like each other." It kind of all fell into place, and we just hope that that magic comes across when other people watch it, because we are like, "We think we did a good job."

In focus

"WHAM!" (Netflix - Documentary Premiere, July 5)

In 1982, best-of-friends teenagers George Michael and Andrew Ridgeley set out to conquer the world as Wham! — and by June 1986, they played their very last gig at Wembley Stadium, having done exactly that. The amazing story of how they dominated the charts around the world with timeless and classic pop songs in just four years is told for the very first time and in their own words,. The film includes unprecedented access to both George and Andrew's personal archives, including never-before-seen footage alongside rare, candid and previously unheard interviews, as the documentary charts their incredible journey from school friends to superstars.

"The Out-Laws" (Netflix - Movie Premiere, July 7)

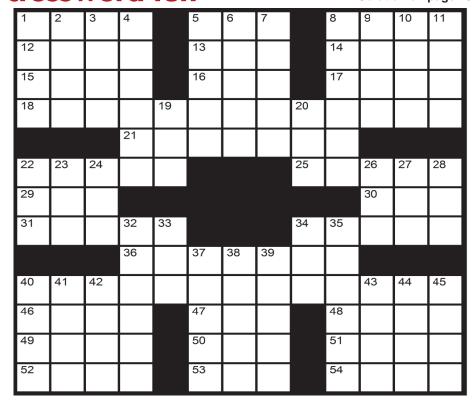

This action comedy stars Adam Devine as Owen Browning, a straight-laced bank manager about to marry the love of his life, Parker (Nina Dobrev). When his bank is held up by the infamous Ghost Bandits during his wedding week, he believes his future in-laws (Pierce Brosnan, Ellen Barkin), who just arrived in town, are the infamous Out-Laws.

Murray and Johansson get 'Lost in Translation'

Some of the story may be a nightmare for Bill Murray's character, but "Lost in Translation" succeeds in large part because it plays out like a dream.

Currently streaming on Peacock, the 2003 comedy helped Sofia Coppola establish herself as a filmmaker in her own right, beyond wearing the mantle of being the daughter of "The Godfather" and "Apocalypse Now" talent Francis Ford Coppola. Her location filming in Japan has an ethereal quality that lets viewers also experience the fish-out-of-water feeling that Murray's character – an internationally popular actor who's overseas to film a television ad – clearly has as he tries to negotiate a foreign culture when he isn't even all that comfortable with his own.

Luckily for him, another visiting American also is having trouble assimilating, giving him a kindred spirit to associate with. Played by Scarlett Johansson, she's a soulful and wiser-than-her-years wife who's left to her own inventions while her photographer husband (Giovanni Ribisi) goes off on the assignment he's there for. She makes an immediate connection with the actor, especially since they have the same sort of offbeat sensibility when it comes to looking at the world with bemusement.

Writer-director Coppola makes that the main story, but she also gives Murray plenty of room to evoke his brand of humor in vignettes that show his character at work ... or at least trying to work. He truly does get lost in translation when it comes to communicating with the director of his commercial, an energetic fellow who takes a lot of time and motion to convey what supposedly is only a two-word order. Also quite funny is Murray's encounter in his hotel room with a masseuse sent to attend to his presumed needs.

Coppola has an excellent collaborator in cinematographer Lance Acord, who gives "Lost in Translation" the sort of style that mirrors how a tourist might experience Japan, with plenty of neon lighting up views of heavily traveled urban areas. At the same time, there's a visual gentility to quieter regions to which Johansson's alter ego ventures in day trips away from the hotel. Even a late-night fire drill that clears the hotel has a certain lyrical look.

Joel McHale

OF CRIME SCENE KITCHEN ON FOX

Q: What's Joel McHale doing now? I haven't seen him in anything since "Community."

A: The short answer is that he's been having fun while he looks for his next "Community." And there's a chance he's found it.

Joel McHale is still best known as the superficially charming, fast-talking Jeff Winger on the cult-favourite 2010s sitcom "Community."

He has a healthy sideline as a comedy talk-show host, thanks largely to his lengthy run as host of E!'s "The Soup" from 2004 to 2015. But that gig ended in 2015, the same year as "Community."

Since then, McHale has tried leading a few new sitcoms and a couple of hosting gigs, while filling the rest of the time with truly fun-sounding movie roles (for example, he played his former "Community" co-star Chevy Chase in the 2018 comedy-history movie "A Futile and Stupid Gesture"). So far none of his lead or hosting roles have lasted. For example, he had a sitcom in 2016-17 called "The Great Indoors" and a talk show called "The Joel McHale Show With Joel McHale" in 2018, but both were cancelled after a season.

But he's broken the one-season curse with two new shows at the same time: his new sitcom, "Animal Control," which was recently renewed for a second season on Fox, and the baking-competition show he hosts, "Crime Scene Kitchen," which debuted its second season earlier this month. Getting a renewal for "Animal Control" is kind of a big deal. Fox largely chose to step away from scripted shows its upcoming 2023-24 season, which had to build in the midst of the writers' strike. Renewing "Animal Control" is a big commitment to staying in the Joel McHale business. The love that people still have for "Community" has also continued paying off for McHale. For example, when all production was shut down during the pandemic, he and fellow "Community" alum Ken Jeong did a podcast together, virtually, where they just chatted and answered fan questions about the show. And he appeared on an episode of Jeong's own sitcom, "Dr. Ken," in 2016.

Flower power: Charity Lawson returns to find love in 'The Bachelorette'

After a devastating and emotional letdown during the Season 27 "hometown" episode of "The Bachelor," Charity Lawson left (the season's Bachelor) Zach Shallcross and returned home single, worried she may never find her match. But "Bachelor Nation" has spoken, and now the roses are in Lawson's hand, as she returns to impress as the star single in the landmark 20th season of "The Bachelorette," premiering Monday, June 26, on ABC.

Lawson – now 27 and who works as a child and family therapist from Columbus, Georgia – won over the nation with "confidence, compassion for helping others and [a] magnetic smile," according to ABC. She solidified her "genuine desire to find love by taking risks and supporting those around her," generating a fan base that propelled the travel-loving therapist into the spotlight.

"I've waited forever to find the love of my life. ... It blows my mind that I could meet my person and be engaged and literally have my happily ever after," Lawson said in a recent interview with People magazine. While it's not guaranteed, the chances are higher than ever for Lawson to succeed in finding her fairytale dreams come true, as 25 of the country's finest young men have lined up to vie for one of Lawson's roses.

Hailing from every possible profession — from firefighter to wrestler, underwater welder to yacht captain — these hopeful bachelors will need more than an exciting career to win Lawson's heart. According to ABC, Lawson is looking for "a life partner who loves dogs, thrifting and a good tailgate, but, above all else, someone who is honest, empathetic and values her for who she is." With parents that have been married for 47 years, these potential matches have a lot to live up to, as "Lawson has been instilled with the confidence of knowing what she deserves and is eager to find a lasting love matching their example" (ABC).

Why it's a goodbye to 'Big Sky'

Q: Why was "Big Sky" canceled? — Don Carr, Bridgeport, Conn.

A: We'd suspect that the ultimate determining factor for ABC was the fact that the ratings for the third (and, in the end, final) season didn't improve much, despite the show having a major cast addition for it in Reba McEntire. Hiring her had to have cost a pretty penny, at a time when series expenses were and are being scrutinized more closely than ever.

Had "Big Sky" gone to a fourth year, the network probably would have wanted or needed a "name" of the same caliber (McEntire wasn't expected to return) and whether the cost would be worth the return would have to have been part of that conversation. It likely was an easier decision to cancel the series rather than continue it when its ratings potential apparently had reached a plateau.

BEST KIRK DOUGLAS MOVIES

"Champion" (1949): Douglas fought his way into stardom, quite literally, with this gritty portrait of a boxer with a tumultuous private life.

"Ace in the Hole" (1951): Director
Billy Wilder's unsettling drama casts an unseemly Douglas as a reporter who milks a tragic story for his own professional benefit.

"The Bad and the Beautiful" (1952): Hardly a glossy picture of the entertainment world, this drama casts Douglas as a producer with – appropriately in his case – a lot of enemies. Turner Classic Movies presents the film Tuesday, June 27, during the last night of its "Hollywoodland" salute to showbiz stories.

"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" (1954): The Jules Verne literary classic became a classic Disney movie, with Douglas' Ned Land up against James Mason's Captain Nemo as well as the ocean elements.

"Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" (1957): Great friends off-screen, Douglas and Burt Lancaster invest their camaraderie into their portrayals of Old West legends Doc Holliday and Wyatt Earp.

"Paths of Glory" (1957): Hardly a traditional war movie, director Stanley Kubrick's drama blasts a passionate Douglas in an examination of what makes a hero – and what doesn't.

"Spartacus" (1960): Douglas reteamed with Kubrick on this epic about a slave who went up against the Roman Empire ... much as Douglas, also a producer here, went up against Hollywood's establishment by insisting that blacklisted Dalton Trumbo get name credit for his script here.

"Town Without Pity" (1961): A very gritty approach lends power to this drama about several American soldiers on trial in Germany for sexual assault, with Douglas as their defense attorney.

"Lonely Are the Brave" (1962): Some of Douglas' best work is in this Western, about a contemporary cowboy determined to maintain the practices of the old frontier despite considerable opposition.

"Seven Days in May" (1964): An intended military coup and political coup puts two career soldiers (Douglas and Lancaster, reunited) on opposing sides, with extreme tension, in a Rod Serling screenplay.

"Cast a Giant Shadow" (1966):

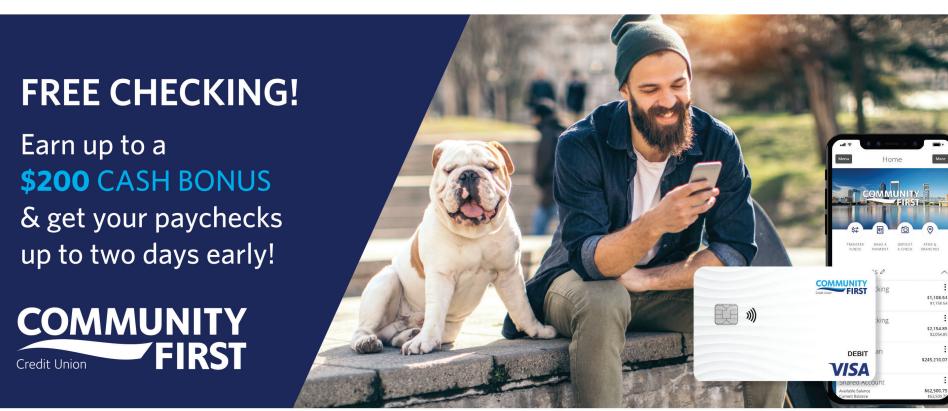

The true story of Colonel David "Mickey" Marcus, who helped build the Israeli Defense Forces, gives Douglas a fine showcase within a cast that also includes John Wayne and Frank Sinatra.

"The Way West" (1967): Sharing starring billing with Robert Mitchum and Richard Widmark, Douglas is effective as one of a wagon train's leaders.

"The War Wagon" (1967): Douglas and John Wayne pour on the star power in this wonderfully traditional Western about the plot to rob an armored stagecoach.
