Puttin' on the mitz': The Sandlers take Netflix in new comedy

Life is a tapestry of tiny moments, but some moments are more significant and formative than others. Whether you looked forward to a quinceañera, a sweet 16, your senior prom or another teenage milestone event, it seems more than likely that the day came and went with a certain level of anticipation and expectation. Unfortunately, those two feelings often team up to create unattainable standards, as is the case in Netflix's newest family comedy.

In "You Are So Not Invited to My Bat Mitzvah," premiering Friday, Aug. 25, on Netflix, Stacey Friedman (Sunny Sandler, "Grown Ups," 2010) is dead set on having the perfect bat mitzvah party. The film is based on the young adult (YA) novel of the same name by Fiona Rosenbloom, in which Stacey's desires are made very clear: all she wants is "the perfect BCBG dress to wear, her friends by her side, and her biggest crush ever, Andy Goldfarb [Dylan Hoffman, "Next"], to dance with her (and maybe even make out with her on the dance floor)." So naturally, when the day doesn't exactly go off without a hitch, Stacey is massively disappointed.

Adding insult to injury, Stacey always seems to be in competition with her so-called best friend, Lydia (Samantha Lorraine, "The Walking Dead: World Beyond"), who is also hosting her bat mitzvah around the same time. When popularity, romantic crushes and other middle school dramas creep into the picture for Stacey, her flubbed ceremonial rite of passage threatens to ruin her reputation.

While the last name Sandler is most closely associated with "Billy Madison" (1995) and "Happy Gilmore" (1996) comedian Adam Sandler, the entire Sandler family is on board for this new production. The plot may revolve around the character played by his youngest daughter, Sunny, but Sandler's wife, Jackie Sandler ("The Wrong Missy," 2020), stars as a member of the Rodriguez-Katz family, while their eldest daughter, Sadie Sandler ("Pixels," 2015), plays Stacey's sister, Ronnie.

Directed by Sammi Cohen, the creative mind behind Hulu's coming-of-age romcom "Crush" (2022), "You Are So Not Invited to My Bat Mitz-vah" is just one of a series of recent films and television shows to highlight various moments in Jewish life around the world. Following the streamer's expansion into Israel in early 2016, audiences everywhere were introduced to a plethora of content they may have been otherwise unfamiliar with.

As was the case with Netflix's expansion into other countries, the streamer quickly began to offer Hebrew subtitles and dubbing for English and other language titles within Israel. Even more notably, Netflix also became a bridge between the Israeli tainment industry and the West, encouraging onscreen representation and inclusivity for the Jewish diaspora.

Series like "Unorthodox," "The Club" and "Fauda" quickly gained popularity alongside films such as "Maktub" (2018), "Shiva Baby" (2021) and "Tick, Tick ... BOOM!" (2021), about late Jewish Broadway legend Jonathan Larson (Broadway's "Rent," 1994), and Netflix began promoting more widespread Jewish content in the United States as well. In this regard, the Sandler family seems the perfect choice to front an American bat mitzvah comedy.

Despite the fact that the Sandlers tend to stay out of the limelight in the media, the well-known patriarch has shared his delight about his daughters following in his comedic footsteps. And if the Sandler girls' real-life bat mitzvahs are anything to base Netflix's new movie on, this is not one to miss.

Ready Jet go: Celebrity chef Jet Tila hosts new how-to show

As a renowned chef, entrepreneur, "culinary anthropologist" and Food Network star, Jet Tila has made quite the name for himself. His innovation, creativity and delicious, Asian-inspired dishes have inspired many to try something new, and Tila's mission to spice things up in kitchens across America has only just begun, as he teaches chefs, cooking enthusiasts and kitchen newbies alike in his new show, "Ready Jet Cook," airing Sundays on Food Network.

According to a biography of the chef, highlighted on the Food Network website: "Jet has roots deeply embedded in the industry and ones that significantly establish him firmly in the art form he is most passionate about: storytelling through food. Along with a host of accolades and achievements, Jet's television career is vast and includes being the new floor reporter on 'Iron Chef America,' 'Parts Unknown with Anthony Bourdain,' 'Chopped,' 'Cutthroat Kitchen,' 'Beat Bobby Flay,' 'Guy's Grocery Games,' and 'The Today Show.'"

They continue: "Born from the first Thai food family of Los Angeles, California, a family which established the first Thai markets and restaurants in the U.S. — Jet brings innovation and artistry into the traditional Thai food fold to create a signature style that is at heart, his own."

Now, Jet is sharing his expertise with us, the viewers at home. For the first time, the chef will be giving detailed tutorials on how to cook some of his best, most delicious dishes, each aimed to highlight Jet's favorite flavors from all across Asia. Throughout the series, Jet turns up the heat (in more ways than one), dishing out Panang Chicken Curry, Sichuan Mapo Tofu, Hong Kong-style Chicken Chow Mein, Korean Short Rib Tacos, his own signature Pad Thai recipe and so much more, taking aspiring cooks (or hungry onlookers!) step-by-step through the process of making mouth-watering, Asian-inspired meals.

With two cookbooks to his name – the award-winning "101 Asian Dishes You Need to Cook Before You Die: Discover a New World of Flavors in Authentic Recipes" and, written with his wife, Allison: "101 Epic Dishes: Recipes That Teach You How to Make the Classics Even More Delicious" – Tila has endless recipes to share, and does so with enthusiasm, experience, and an easy-going, approachable attitude.

Alcaraz looks to defend title at US Open

Carlos Alcaraz is looking to defend his title at the 2023 U.S. Open in New York City's Flushing Meadows, airing live on ESPN [US] / TSN [CA] from the USTA Billie Jean King National Tennis Center, Aug. 28 to Sept. 10.

It's the fourth and final Grand Slam tournament of the year, and with a total of 128 players in the men's and women's singles categories, the competition looks to be fierce. Reigning champion Alcaraz will look to make a repeat performance after beating Casper Ruud (World No. 5, at press time) at last year's U.S. Open, becoming the youngest player ever to reach world No. 1.

At just 20 years old, Alcaraz's continued rise through the ranks in his short career has been nothing short of amazing. Coming out of Rafael Nadal's tennis academy, the Spaniard has drawn many comparisons to his idol with his dedication, work ethic and confidence in his abilities.

Coming off a Wimbledon victory against the legendary Novak Djokovic (current World No. 2), Alcaraz holds a 430-point lead in the men's ATP rankings over Djokovic, whom he beat in a six-set match to win the second Grand Slam title of his career. It also continued his epic rivalry against Djokovic as he was able to stop the Serbian from increasing his men's record total of 23 major titles and ending "The Joker's" 34-match win streak at Wimbledon.

With Djokovic confirming his participation at this year's U.S. Open, he remains firmly in the hunt for his 24th Grand Slam major, but that won't come without a fight from the sport's brightest young star, Carlos Alcaraz. Tune in to ESPN [US] / TSN [CA] Aug. 28 to Sept. 10 to catch all the live coverage from the U.S. Open.

BY ADAM THOMLISON

James Purefoy

OF THE PHILANTHROPIST ON NBC

Q: I know it didn't last, but I loved the drama series "The Philanthropist." What has its star been doing since then?

A: You're right that it wasn't a hit, and so "The Philanthropist" was really just a blip in star James Purefoy's long and successful career. It was, however, a great showcase for his combination of grit and refinement — a combination he displayed again as a villainous cult leader in the Fox drama "The Following" from 2013 to 2015.

More recently, he did lengthy arcs on TV dramas "Pennyworth" and "Malpractice" and appeared in the historical PBS miniseries "Marie Antoinette."
But he's not just a TV guy. Lately, he's launched his own, unlikely film franchise: the "Fisherman's Friends" movies.

It started as an independently made British comedy, "Fisherman's Friends." It was a runaway hit, based on a true story of a group of fishermen from the British region of Cornwall who sang sea shanties to pass the time but suddenly launched to fame after getting a global record deal.

The success of the first led soon to a sequel, "Fisherman's Friends: One and All," released last year. Purefoy stars in the films as one of the singers, and signed on as a producer of the sequel.

The series' success must have been welcome for Purefoy, whose big-screen career was a bit tarnished by a pair of all-time flops. In the same year he did "The Philanthropist" (2009), he had the title role in the big-budget adventure film "Solomon Kane," which didn't even earn back half of its $45-million budget. He followed that up with a leading role in 2012's "John Carter," one of the most notorious bombs of all time.

"Sitting in Bars with Cake" (Prime Video Sept. 8, Movie Premiere)

Inspired by true events, this romcom follows best friends Jane (Yara Shahidi) and Corinne (Odessa A'zion) as they navigate life in Los Angeles in their twenties. Corinne, the ultimate extrovert, convinces her shy-but-extremely-talented home baker best friend Jane to commit to a year of baking cakes and bringing them to bars with the goal of meeting people and developing confidence - also known as "cakebarring." During their year of "cakebarring," Corinne receives a life-altering diagnosis, and the pair face a challenge unlike anything they've experienced before.

Not crazy about the West Coast to begin with,

Apollo 13 ★★★ (1995) April 1970 astronauts (Tom Hanks, Bill Paxton, Kevin Bacon) try to return alive. PARMT Fri. 8 p.m.

McClane has even less to like after he arrives at his spouse's elaborate office building (the skyscraper formerly known as Fox Plaza, doubling for the film's Nakatomi Plaza). It turns out he isn't the only visitor: Arriving at virtually the same time is a band of criminals led by the debonair and coolly lethal Hans (Alan Rickman), who's intent on stealing a fortune in bearer bonds.

Little do the bad guys realize they'll have the resourceful McClane to deal with, and not only does he have the larger picture of law and order to serve, he also wants to save his wife - who's among the hostages taken by the unwelcome guests. He gets some help from the outside, thanks to a beat cop ("Family Matters" alum Reginald VelJohnson) who has a hard time believing the building is under siege at first, but McClane also has additional hurdles posed by overeager federal agents and a reporter (William Atherton) who isn't above imperiling others to advance his career.

Skillfully directed by John McTiernan, who returned for the second of the four sequels ("Die Hard With a Vengeance"), "Die Hard" is everything that a movie of its sort should be ...which is why there have been so many variations on the theme that have seen other pictures labeled as "Die Hard" on a train, on a boat, on a plane, etc.

Vanna White

OF WHEEL OF FORTUNE ON PARAMOUNT/CBS

Q: Has Vanna White done anythina other than "Wheel of Fortune"?

A: TV icon Vanna White, who reveals the letters on and otherwise co-hosts the long-running game show "Wheel of Fortune," found her calling early in her career, but it wasn't her first try. She was a model and actress first, and was a contestant in the Miss Georgia 1978 pageant. She soon moved from Georgia to Los Angeles to try her luck on screen.

She didn't have a lot of it at first. She had roles in a few films and TV series, including the 1981 slasher film "Graduation Day" and the slightly more reputable 1981 thriller "Looker."

And then there's the odd case of "Gypsy Angels," a film she shot in 1980 (thus making it, technically, her first role) but which ran into myriad production problems. It wasn't released until 1990, by which point she was a major TV star. The fact that she played a stripper in the movie contrasted a little with the wholesome image she had built on

She started building that image in 1982 when she won an open casting call (beating more than 200 other would-be letter-turners) to get the coveted "Wheel of Fortune" gig. Almost all of her screen work since has been "Wheel"-related, at least. She has, for example, played herself on numerous shows and in a couple of films.

But to give your question a fuller answer, she's "done" a lot more than just entertain. She has an endorsement deal with Lion Brand Yarns due to the fact she's an avid crocheter. And she also has a sideline flipping houses and investing in real estate.

Lead vour own romantic adventure with 'Choose Love'

Viewer's choice: Netflix is putting the power back in the viewer's hands, as the streaming platform is releasing its latest endeavor into the interactive format with "Choose Love," premiering Thursday, Aug. 31.

Joining the likes of Netflix's other interactive programming, such as "Black Mirror: Bandersnatch" (2018), "Cat Burglar" (2022), "Headspace: Unwind Your Mind" (2021) and "Trivia Quest" (2022), "Choose Love" comes from director Stuart McDonald ("Crazy Ex-Girlfriend") and writer Josann McGibbon ("Runaway Bride," 1999), who both have ample experience in the world of romantic comedies - but never before like this.

A "choose your own romantic adventure," so to speak, this film welcomes viewers into the seemingly perfect life of Cami Conway (Laura Marano, "The Royal Treatment," 2022). She's working her dream job as a recording engineer, has a steady, long-term boyfriend she loves, and the future looks bright. That is \dots for now. What happens next is entirely up to you! As Cami's story continues, the film will intermittently prompt the viewer (you) with questions asking which direction Cami should go next. Should she choose a new career path? Rethink her relationship? The future is totally in your hands.

As Netflix describes: "Cami feels like she's missing out on life, but she isn't quite sure how. Maybe she's afraid of settling down for good with her boyfriend, Paul. Or perhaps she regrets abandoning the singing career she'd always dreamed of. What if Paul isn't meant to be her forever? What if Rex, the Brit musician, is? And what about Jack, the proverbial "one who got away, who's now suddenly back in the picture? As Cami faces an array of choices ranging from the seemingly innocuous to some major ethical dilemmas, viewers help her decide exactly what to do. The result? A bunch of possible storylines and endings, depending on what you pick."

The interactive journey begins (and begins, and begins again) when you press play on "Choose Love," streaming Thursday, Aug. 31, on Netflix.

Tony Bennett had a long relationship with TV

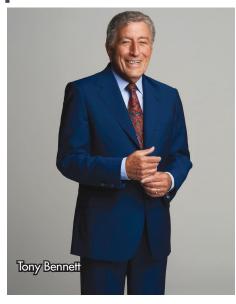

Q: I was so sorry to learn of the death of Tony Bennett. Did he ever do a TV series? - Jane Baldwin, via e-mail

A: While he didn't star in a weekly show himself, he did pop up occasionally on other people's series, often playing himself if not an extremely close variation of him. Among those were "77 Sunset Strip," "The Doris Day Show," "Cybill," "Entourage," "Blue Bloods," "Evening Shade," "Suddenly Susan," "30 Rock," "The Simpsons" (in voice only, of course) and "Saturday Night Live."

When Bennett appeared on television, it often was in a musical context, expectedly, His specials with Lady Gaga earned huge praise in the later years of his career, and besides being a frequent talk-show guest,

A very young Wood is part of this holiday staple as a Macy's executive's (Maureen O'Hara) skeptical daughter, who doesn't believe in Santa Claus ... until she meets the real deal (played by Oscar winner Edmund "Rebel Without a Cause" (1955):

Wood started to come of age as a friend of a deeply troubled town newcomer (James Dean) in this Nicholas Ray-directed drama classic.

"The Searchers" (1956): Regarded by many as the greatest Western ever made, John Ford's saga features Wood as the Comanche-abducted niece of the Civil War veteran (John Wayne) who pursues her.

"Marjorie Morningstar" (1958): One of Wood's more underrated movies foreshadowed the premises of some of her later ones, adapting Herman Wouk's novel about a would-be actress whose love for an aspiring writer (Gene Kelly) is opposed by

"Splendor in the Grass" (1961):

Speaking to a generation, which it still does today, Wood's performance for director Elia Kazan as a 1920s Kansas teen facing social pressures — and not doing particularly well in handling that — remains a major entry on the resumes of both Wood and her leading man, Warren Beatty. Turner Classic Movies presents the film as part of a night of movies about young people that extends from Friday, Sept. 1, into early the morning of Saturday, Sept. 2.

"West Side Story" (1961): Director Robert Wise's original, Oscar-winning screen version of the musical is destined to remain forever beloved for elements including Wood's portrayal of lovestruck heroine

"Gypsy" (1962): Wood does dynamic work as a burlesque performer striving to live out the dreams of her pushy mom (Rosalind Russell), the ultimate "stage mother."

"Love With the Proper Stranger"

(1963): Forming a dynamic duo with Steve McQueen, Wood is affecting as a saleswoman dealing with an expected pregnancy and the musician who's the father.

"Inside Daisy Clover" (1965): In her first teaming with Robert Redford — who credits her with having been a major proponent of his screen career — Wood plays an unlikely movie star who has a hard time dealing with the trappings of the Hollywood of the 1930s.

"Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice'

(1969): Nodding to social developments of the time, Wood rolled the dice with her image by playing part of a two-couple foursome experimenting with freedom in commitment and sexuality.

"Brainstorm" (1983): Completed after her death, Wood's final film is an intriguing science-fiction tale casting her as one of several researchers involved in developing a device that can read people's minds.
