n Friday, Aug. 8 at Mount Hope Farm, the message was simple: Get unplugged. Get outdoors. Enjoy nature. Nearly 30 people gathered at the farm's rustic Cove Cabin, overlooking picturesque Mt. Hope Bay, where Rhode Island Land Trust Council Director Rupert Friday and Mt. Hope Farm Executive Director Jennifer Bristol kicked off Rhode Island's Land Trust Days, a series of events through Sept. 28 that showcase Rhode Island's natural treasures.

"We're losing farms and open spaces," Mr. Friday said, in his opening remarks. "These are the places that form the fabric of our communities."

With 127 acres of preserved open space, Mount Hope Farm has become "a center of

While bookless classrooms are still several years away from reality in Bristol Warren schools, the district is taking strides to incorporate the use of iPhone and iPad technology into the 2014-2015 curricu-

The Bristol Warren Regional School Committee received a presentation of the district's plan at its meeting Tuesday night. Superintendent Mario Andrade and Assistant Superintendent Diane Sanna outlined the district's plan, and reasons for such a plan, to utilize available technology as an education tool.

"(It's) not changing because it's the latest and greatest thing coming down the pike," Mr. Andrade said. The goal, he said, is to have "college and career-ready children."

During the presentation, Mr. Andrade demonstrated how, by using a free, interactive web based program, teachers and students can communicate with one another at any time by typing, voice recording or video. Part of the process is to encourage teachers and students to share their studies, discoveries, ideas and questions using such social media platforms as Twitter and Facebook. Teachers will also be able to increase their use of applicable websites in their lesson plans.

Last year the school district purchased laptops for every student in grades three and four. This year the district approved spending to outfit fifth graders with similar technology. The future goal is to utilize available technology and encourage a Bring Your Own Device (BYOD) philosophy, in which students and teachers can benefit from and take advantage of teach-

Despite efforts to raise the sunken boat, Manuel Pereira's shrimp boat is damaged beyond repair.

Sunken Demi Lynn scrapped, beyond repair

The Demi Lynn, a 40-foot shrimp boat that sank at its berth at the Warren Town Wharf late last month, has been scrapped, a total loss.

Members of the United States Coast Guard inspected the vessel after it was raised following the accident on Sunday, July 27. Inspectors determined the boat was too far gone to save, and ordered it scrapped. Following that, workers removed the engine and other component parts before dismantling the wooden hull. It was later taken to the Central Landfill in Johnston.

The accident brings to a sad end the Demi Lynn's long, long story in Warren. She was owned by Bristol resident Manuel "Butch" Pereira since the 1970s, and he used her to fish for Mantis Shrimp in Narragansett and Mt. Hope bays. But the wooden-hulled vessel was much older, having been built in the Officials are still trying to determine what sunk the Demi Lynn; Warren Harbormaster Ed Cabral said he is waiting for the Coast Guard to release its findings on the incident. Mr. Pereira, meanwhile, is responsible for thousands of dollars in cleanup costs incurred righting and salvaging the boat, as well as containing some 300 gallons of diesel fuel that were aboard when she went down.

day, Aug. 24 from 5 to 8 p.m.

Four noted local chefs will prepare a four course dining experience and interact with the guests during the event. The chefs include Sai Viswanath of the DeWolf Tavern, Riz Ahmed of the Hourglass, Eli Dunn of Eli's Kitchen and Joe Simone of Simone's. All are award winning, notable chefs.

Local farms and fishermen will be highlighted for their contributions of fresh produce, meats and catch of the day.

The setting will be in the meadow adjacent to the historic Gov. Bradford Inn and surrounded by terraced gardens and old stone walls. The bar will be set in the historic potting shed. The event will focus on the national trend of supporting local, fresh food producers.

Proceeds will benefit two Bristol entities: Explore Bristol and the town's new Quinta-Gamelin Community Center on Asylum Road. Reservations cost $125 each. The labor group alleges the authority has improperly installed water pipes

BY ERIC DICKERVITZ

edickervitz@eastbaynewspapers.com

The union representing Bristol County Water Authority workers has accused the authority of improperly installing water pipes as part of its "war" against the water company, charges the authority denies.

The UWUA AFL-CIO recently declared "war" on the water company, after the authority changed its time clock procedures when employees are called into emergency service. Employees are now paid from when they begin work, not when they answer the phone calling them into work, which had the been previous practice.

In a letter dated July 16, 2014, national union representative Bobby Mahoney sent an information request to BCWA Executive Director Pamela Marchand. In it, Mr. Mahoney outlined three years' worth of records he would like copies of; a copy of the BCWA organizational chart; and information connected with the new time clock system implemented by the BCWA.

Mr. Mahoney explained the basis of his request in an e-mail sent to Ms. Marchand, dated July 21

"We intend to attack your administration for doing a poor job for our members and the citizens of Bristol County. We intend to do conduct (sic) a forensic audit and investigate your administration's work practices to be clear on that subject."

Among the allegations in Mr.

Mahoney's e-mail, he refers to a comment in which Ms. Marchand called the prior administration the "Flintstones," making reference to the cartoon "modern stone-age family" from the town of Bedrock.

"We think you and your administration should pay more attention to the job at hand. Such as making sure the contractors are putting in the pipes to the Authority's specifications and covering the pipes with a foot of sand instead of rocks, which seem to be the case under your watch," the e-mail stated.

Although Mr. Mahoney wasn't clear on which job he was referring to, Ms. Marchand assumes that he was referring to the Poppasquash Road project.

"It does not require a foot of sand," she said of the specifica-

The pipe was installed, she said, as required and to specification.

"We have a contracting engineer on site. We have pictures," she said of the project's progress. "It's all in there."

Mr. Mahoney could not be reached to answer questions regarding his allegations.

Hundreds rock for the Swifts

Benefit concert last week raises $23,000 for family

BY TED HAYES

he rain didn't keep away more than 1,500
East Bay residents last weekend, when friends of Warren's Swift family held a fundraising concert at Burrs Hill to help the family cope with ever-mounting medical expenses.

Natalie Swift, 47, has been battling Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, otherwise known as ALS or Lou Gehrig's Disease, for more than a year. Still, with faith and a giant support base in Warren and Bristol she, her husband Neil and their six children are doing OK.

That is in no small part due to events like Saturday's, which was put on by the Natalie Swift Foundation. The rain stopped by 3:30 p.m. and left nothing but dry skies for the five-hour concert, which began at 5 p.m. Though the bands were a focus, it was as much a family and friends' gathering and party as it was a concert. Food, a raffle, auction and prizes broke up the night for attendees

Swift supporters' first concert, held last summer, raised close to $70,000 for the family. And while this one did not bring in as much, it still resulted in a $23,000 donation to the family — "a significant amount," said family friend and volunteer James Harper. Mrs. Swift and her family had a great time, and she said she had fun talking to friends and family throughout the course of the evening.

The funds raised Saturday will help the Swifts pay medical and other associated expenses.

Phoenix accepting statements from candidates

The Bristol Phoenix will be publishing written statements from political candidates throughout the 2014 campaign season. Each candidate for local office will be allowed to print one statement per week, free of charge, in an effort to better inform voters prior to Election Day.

We hope candidates use their space (up to 200 words per week) to talk to voters about the issues, not about themselves. We encourage candidates to state a clear opinion; propose a concrete idea; critique or praise public policy or decisions; outline differences between candidates; respond to another candidate's criticism; or make any other statement deemed acceptable in the judgment of the editor.

We will not allow statements that are biographical in nature. This is not the forum to tell voters about how many times someone has been board chairman or how many charities they support.

It should also be noted that we will not edit the statements prior to publication. We will print statements exactly as submitted by the candidate. Also, we do not intend to publish the statements online. They will be available only in the published newspaper.

Bristol candidates can email statements directly to editor Patrick Luce at: pluce@eastbaynewspapers.com. The deadline is Friday at noon for the following week's publication.

Bristol Police Log: Assault, speeding bus, poor bar service

The Bristol Police Department responded to the following calls between Aug. 4 and Aug 10:

Monday, Aug. 4

Officers reportedly helped break up a fight at Bristol Toyota on Metacom Avenue at about 1:30 p.m.

A caller reported an intoxicated man was walking down the road at Wood and Congregational streets. Officers responded but found no problem.

Police responded to noise complaints on Catherine Street at 9 p.m., and on St. Elizabeth and Chilton streets, around 11:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Aug, 5

A man wearing a red shirt and black hat reportedly hopped a fence into an apartment complex on State Street and entered the apartment above the caller. Police investigated but found no crime.

A man wearing a tan shirt and flannel hat reportedly walked into a home on Reservoir Avenue, then quickly left. There was no charge filed.

ON THE WATERFRONT

Alexander Oliveira, 27, of 511 Baker St., Fall River, Mass., was arrested on a 6th District Court bench warrant.

Kevin Jay Stoddard, 43, of 403 E. 6th St., Sheridan, Ind., was charged with driving under the influence, refusal to submit to a chemical test and driving in possession of a controlled substance after he was involved in an accident on Hope Street just after 10 a.m.

A caller on Catherine Street reported just before 5 p.m. that she was unable to get out because a National Grid truck is blocking the road.

Reports came in around 8:30 p.m. that two men were trying to steal a dinghy at Union Street Beach. Officers spoke with the owner of the dinghy who said he relocated the boat.

Wednesday, Aug. 6

Tires were reportedly stolen overnight from Bristol Toyota on Metacom Avenue.

A full gas can fell off a truck on Metacom Avenue just after noon, causing a small gas spill. An officer removed the can from the road and waited for the owner to return to collect his gas can and a court summons.

There was a fight at Subway on Metacom Avenue around 3:30 p.m.

An intoxicated man with lacerations on his face was riding a bike at Wood and State streets, according to a caller. Police dispersed the man.

John Furtado, 63, of 51 Walley St., Bristol, was arrested on a 6th District Court bench warrant for an original charge of disorderly conduct.

Officers responded to a neighbor dispute on State Street. No arrests were made.

Trash cans were reportedly stolen from Bristol Auto Salvage on Broadcommon Road

Offciers dispersed a man sleeping on the sidewalk at Franklin and Hope streets.

A RIPTA bus driver was reportedly speeding and driving recklessly on Metacom Avenue around 6 p.m. Officers issued the driver a warning.

Officers dispersed a group of juveniles who were hanging out in front of Midland Farms on Wood Street around 6:30 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 7

A caller reported a possible breaking and entering in progress on Doran Avenue around 1 p.m. It turned out to be a realtor trying to sell the bankowned property.

A bicycle was stolen on Wilson Street.

Officers were again called to Sousa Street for a neighbor dispute, a common call for Bristol Police.

Two men were reportedly sitting in a suspicious vehicle on River Street just after 8 p.m. They were gone when officers arrived.

A bat reportedly flew into a home on Hope Street just after 9 p.m.

A reportedly intoxicated woman called police around 10:30 p.m. to report she was receiving poor service from employees at a pub on Thames Street.

Friday, Aug. 8

Kids were reportedly playing in the road on Etelvina Court around 1:30 a.m.

A caller at Mt. Hope Avenue and Siegel Street called to complain about the noise a neighbor was making changing a tire on his car just after 6 a.m.

Carrie T. Chase, 37, of 10 Narragansett Ave., Jamestown, was charged with forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses at Enterprise Rent a Car on Metacom Avenue. She allegedly took a $300 money order intended to pay for a car rental. She admitted taking the money order after turning herself into police, according to reports.

Officers responded to a small fire in a wood chipper next to a garage on Magnolia Street around 3 p.m.

Two men were reportedly fighting in the road on St. Elizabeth Street. They were gone when officers arrived.

Richard T. Difrenna, 44, of 363 Wood St., Apt. 2, Bristol was charged with simple assault.

Saturday, Aug. 9

A motor boat was reportedly stolen from a home on Sandy Lane.

Officers investigated a possible larceny on Agave on Hope Street.

The Warren Police Department called Bristol Police about 3:30 p.m. to report a woman with blonde hair walking southbound on Hope Street appearing to be disoriented. Officers were unable to find the woman.

A caller reported a car driving recklessly and speeding on Jones Avenue around 5 p.m. The car was on private property.

A caller reported a suspicious man outside Sip N Dip on Hope Street around 10:30 p.m. There was no problem. The man was waiting for a ride.

Sunday, Aug. 10

A caller reported he was being followed by another car while driving down Metacom Avenue just after 2 a.m. The caller drove to the police station, where he declined to file a formal report.

A caller on Sherry Avenue reportedly smelled gas in the neighborhood. Officers and Fire Department personnel investigated but could find no evidence of gas in the air.

A lawnmower was stolen from a home on Masterson Street.

John M. Dasilva, 47, of 34 Croade St., Apt. 2, Warren, was arrested on a Superior Court bench warrant.

Derek Bouchard, 27, Bray Lane, Bristol, was charged with violating a protective order after officers were called to the home for reported of a verbal argument. Mr. Bouchard was charged despite the fact that the victim tried to have the restraining order removed. A judge reportedly refused to do so.

A woman broke into a home on High Street. The call came in 20 minutes after the alleged break-in. Offciers investigated and filed the report.

Christopher Wood, 22, of 40A Magnolia St., Bristol, was arrested on a 2nd District Court bench warrant.

Explore Bristol, BMA combine for 'bigger voice'

pluce@eastbaynewspapers.com

With the goal of speaking with a louder voice, Explore Bristol and the Bristol Merchants Association are combining efforts to support local business and help boost the local economy.

"The two are better together," said Alayne White, president of the BMA. "Which is kind of the mission of the BMA ... we're trying to be a big voice for small business."

The two organizations will officially announce their collaboration during a "Better Together" party at DeWolf Tavern Thursday at 6 p.m. The groups will work together to speak for local businesses and help boost the economy by marketing the town to potential visitors and new residents. That was the goal of each organization separately, along with other groups in town. All the voices speaking separately can create a lot of noise, something the collaboration should help clear up, according to Mike Byrnes, head of Explore Bristol.

"There's always been a lot of confusion about who does what and who people should contact," Mr. Byrnes said. "It seems like it would make sense to merge and all pull with one oar. We're all seeking the same objective — to promote Bristol, promote local business, and try to enhance the economic vitality of local businesses."

One key way the groups accomplish that is through the Explore Bristol website (www.explorebristolri.com), which highlights events and activities going on in town, includes a directory of businesses, a calendar of events and a list of resources for visitors and prospective new residents. The groups have also hired Lou Hammond & Associates, a New York public relations firm with a history of marketing towns to tourists.

"Bristol is such an easy place to visit. It's a great 24-hour road trip place," Ms. White said. "That's why we're joining, so we can really sustain business. We want to attract people not only to visit, but to move here. We want more people who are cool here."

The BMA is working on its downtown merchants events, including the Halloween Walkabout and one of the biggest events of the year, the Holiday Preview Nov. 21-22. The groups are also promoting Bristol's Bounty from Land and Sea, a farm to table event, on Aug. 24. Those type of events, in addition to larger events like the 4th of July, help bring visitors into the town.

"As people feel the need to step away from tech, the do want to visit places like Bristol. It's a little slice of Americana," Ms. White said. "There is such a place for Bristol on the tourism map. We need to communicate that to the point of absurdity."

For more information on the organizations or to volunteer for upcoming events, contact Kathleen Seguin kathleen.seguin@gmail.com Alayne White alayne@alaynewhite.com.

Trust is strength

ublic trust is an essential ingredient in an effective government. Residents need to know their leaders are working in their best interests in order for the town and its people to thrive.

The best way to do so is to keep tabs on government leaders. When business is conducted in the light of day, there is less chance of the corruption that has notoriously affected Rhode Island throughout much of its history, which increases public confidence and trust, further strengthening a government.

The Access to Public Records Act serves that very purpose. Not only does the letter of the law ensure that all residents can attain government documents they need — land surveys, accident or arrest reports, etc. — the spirit of the law makes the government more accountable to those it is supposed to serve.

When it's followed properly, that it.

Part of the APRA requires that employees of a municipal or state agency who handle public records requests must be formally trained on the open records statute, training the Attorney General's office provides at its open government summit. However, a recently released audit shows that six towns — including Warren — have failed to certify that any employees are trained to properly handle records requests. Several state agencies — including the General Assembly, the body that actually approved the APRA — also failed the test conducted by Access/RI and Muckrock.

It may seem like a technicality to some, but the certification plays an important role in ensuring an open government. It assigns specific individuals to handle records requests, helping prevent the runaround designed to make an organization appear compliant without actually complying. It also takes the "ignorance of the law" excuse away from those agencies that would sooner operate behind closed doors.

Equally important, training employees in properly handling requests assures the public that government agencies are taking the APRA seriously, not just giving lip service.

All state and municipal government agencies must be accountable to the people they serve, and they must be held accountable when they fail to do so. Warren, Charlestown, East Greenwich, Newport, Johnston and Richmond need to take the Access to Public Records Act seriously and immediately train staff members so residents can trust they are working in the public's best interests.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bristol rolled out red carpet

To the editor:

I just wanted to thank your great town for its exceptional hospitality for myself and my brothers. We had a very memorable trip this past weekend.

I was a little nervous about going, but this road trip of ours exceeded my expectations. It was the highlight of my summer!! We were trying to find our great grandfather's grave. (Manuel Mello 1869 - 1927). It was a very difficult task because, to our surprise, it was unmarked. Without the help of your town, it would have been impossible.

I would like to thank everyone for their kindness. Everyone was so friendly and helpful. From the two ladies who tried to help us at the cemetery, to the reception desk at the Quality Inn Somerset, the guy in the liquor store across the street who always had a quick joke for us, the waitresses at the restaurant, Jillian's, where we had our traditional Portuguese dish—steak with an egg on top.

I'd like to thank George Lima from the funeral home, who was busy with his own father, but went out of his way to give us a helping hand. I would also like to thank David Barbosa from the cemetery, who had all the information we needed. He had all the books, maps and many stories to share with us. He certainly went above and beyond with his kindness, friendliness and hospitality.

Another highlight of mine was to meet Town Clerk Louis P. Cirillo. It was truly an honor to finally meet him in person.

None of this could be possible without the help of my own cousin, George Cooper. He introduced me to Lorraine Pacheco, whose husband was the son of my grandfather's sister. She welcomed us into her home, shared stories and even gave me a photo. I am so grateful to George Cooper and his family. He spent so much time with us and showing us around. He was exceptionally kind to us, generous with his time and very hospitable. I can't thank him enough for making this past weekend one that I will never forget.

It was 45 years since my last visit to Bristol. I hope to return much sooner. You have a beautiful town, one that made us feel so welcome! Thank you, thank you!

I started to work on my family tree about two years ago when my father passed away. I have about 300 names on my family tree. I am still looking for a picture of my great grandfather. I'm sure my dad would be proud of all the work that I have done. I wish I could have shared it with him.

Proposal helps stem brain drain

To the editor:

I recently reviewed the proposal by Gina Raimondo, Democratic candidate for governor, to develop a loan forgiveness plan for Rhode Island college graduates. This happens to be a topic that is very important to many in the small business community, and hopefully will help stem the tide of the "brain drain" from our state.

Also, as a parent of two college age children, I am keenly aware of the level of indebtedness our young people are accumulating. There is an urgency to not only help our children, but match their talents with the great companies in our state.

We all recognize the growing importance of earning an education, or learning a trade beyond a high school diploma. It is necessary for a person's future success and for our state's economic growth.

Raimondo's proposal to work with our state's employers to create a loan forgiveness program for students who put down roots in Rhode Island after graduating from one of our colleges or universities interests me as a small business person.

As a Rhode Island-based employer, Blackstone Caterers employs 10 college graduates from Rhode Island who needed student loans. They graduated from the University of Rhode Island, Johnson & Wales University and Providence College. While many of them have already repaid their loans, they all are happy to be able to find substantial work opportunities here in Rhode Island.

Blackstone Caterers is proud of our young and talented staff and even more proud that they chose to stay in Rhode Island, making our great state their home. I am sure there are Rhode Islanders who wish they had this same opportunity.

Additionally, my wife, Linda's life work has been committed to helping college students navigate the financing of a college education. She has been working in higher education for more than 20 years in financial aid administration. She is currently a member of a Rhode Island board dedicated to keeping health care providers in the state through a loan repayment program. We are both committed to Rhode Island and helping our college graduates achieve success in finding meaningful, substantive employment in our state.

Blackstone Caterers would be happy to be a part of any future loan forgiveness program to help our kids pay back their student loans and stay in Rhode Island. Let's help our kids get good jobs here in Rhode Island while they help our state grow.

Bristol's Madison Castigliego won the statewide Pitch, Hit and Run competition, earning the right to compete on the field at Fenway Park.

Local girl pitches, hits and runs her way to Fenway

BY ERIC DICKERVITZ

At 14 years old, Madison Castigliego can remove Fenway Park from her list of fields of dreams now that she's had the opportunity to play at the famed home of the Boston Red Sox.

Madison, who represented Bristol and Rhode Island in the 2014 Pitch, Hit and Run competition, an event sponsored by Major League Baseball, won both the Bristol event and the sectional event held at Pawtucket's McCov Stadium.

"I did it last year so when I got to McCoy (this year) my whole thing was that I wanted to make it to Fenway," Madison said.

The skills competition tests participants who attempt to pitch six balls at a target, run from short stop (an infield position between second and third base) to home plate, and hit a ball from a tee in a straight line for distance. Then the judges calculate the results for an overall score.

Madison excelled at all three. Before heading to Fenway, she won the statewide sectional competition held at McCoy Stadium, where she competed against 15 girls from across Rhode Island. In Boston, the field was narrowed to just three girls, each of whom won their state.

field, but there are certain spots you couldn't go," she said of her time on the field at Fenway.

"I would have wanted to go on to Nationals," Madison said of her performance, which fell just short.

But she did get to throw out the first pitch at a Pawtucket Red Sox game, and continues her promising softball career. After pitching for her team at Kickemuit Middle School, playing with a team at the East Bay Fastpitch league and planning to play for Bay View Academy where she will attend next year, her time on the diamond is far from over.

"When you find out you're not just good in Bristol, it's kind of able moments from their personal iPads and iPhones, wherever they

But before the technology transformation can take place, the district needs to initiate change by replacing some old methods with new, technology-based methods, and enhance those new methods so that both expectations and student outcomes rise.

The first plan of action for the district will be to engage teachers in professional development so they are familiar with available technologies and can utilize them for educational purposes.

School committee member Karen Lynch said she recognizes the benefits of bringing technology colder to education, but wondered how effective it would be if not all teachers bought in to the idea.

"If half the staff is using it and half the staff is not," Ms. Lynch asked, "what is our ability to mandate our teachers?"

As he sees it, Mr. Andrade said the technology transformation isn't going to be hit or miss. It will be a gradual change that complements the curriculum, resulting in students gaining a higher level of critical thinking, and gain the aptitude for digital test taking.

"The investment is in our educators. The idea is not about technology; it's about instructional goals. If teachers are not integrating (technology), my question would be are you an effective teacher," he said.

While the school district still has work to do to ensure that all classrooms have wireless connections to utilize the technology, the plan is for "a small cohort of teachers" to begin training using it in the class-

School committee member Bill O'Dell questioned the investment of time and money needed to make such a transformation work. Administrators are confident that money is available through Title II grants, and the investment of time and money are worthy investments for this goal.

The question isn't "are you getting bang for our buck," Mr. Andrade said. "But are the students benefitting."

the community," Mr. Friday said, with events, miles of walking trails and a popular farmer's market that draws hundreds of visitors who want to buy local.

From Cove Cabin, a location that Ms. Bristol called "the most beloved view in Bristol," the group walked to the site of King Philip's Chair, a natural rock formation where Metacomet (also known as King Philip), sachem of the Pokanoket tribe, would hold meetings with other members of the tribe.

A handful of seashells could be seen on the "chair," placed there by other visitors who paid their respects to the fallen chief.

"The Pokanoket tribe still holds ceremonies here," said Helen Jader, a member of the Rhode Island Land Trust Council. "This is where King Philip would have met and planned their attacks on the colonists. This is a very, very sacred place."

Ms. Jader explained the significance of Mt. Hope and the former tribal land that surrounds it. Although its height has been reduced for modern military purposes, in the colonial days Mt. Hope in Bristol — as well as Masachusetts' Mt. Wachusett, and New Hampshire's Mt. Manadanock — allowed for relatively speedy smoke signal communication among the tribes.

And while Plimouth Plantations in Massachusetts is widely known for its role in the first Thanksgiving, Ms. Jade was quick to give her historical perspective on the Native Americans who took part.

"People think of Plimouth. Forget about it. They came from here," she said of the feast partici-

many outdoor events planned for land trusts across Rhode Island.

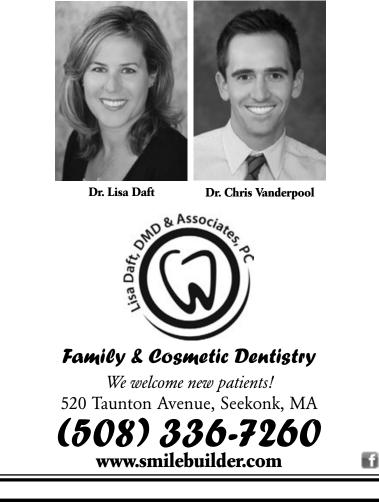

"We expect thousands of Rhode Islanders will come out and discover these amazing, yet often hidden, natural gems that are so close by," Mr. Friday said. "These outdoor places provide environmental benefits to water, air and wildlife, and the opportunities they make available for recreation and fresh food help individuals and families to feel happier and healthier."

Land Trust Days will feature more than 50 guided walks, family festivals, farm tours, scavenger hunts, kayak trips, campfire storytelling, barbeques, geocaching and other activities planned to showcase the best of the outdoor places that make Rhode Island a special place to live.

At Mount Hope Farm, whose grounds are open and free for the public to enjoy, Ms. Bristol simply wants more people to discover the beauty of this Bristol gem.

"We want to see your boots on the ground at Mount Hope Farm," she said.

Bristol man runs to fight cancer

A Bristol man is joining 60 others to pound the pavement in memory of their fallen friend and to raise money for cancer

Bristol resident Christopher Fortune is scheduled run the 42nd annual New Balance Falmouth Road Race in Falmouth, Mass., as a member of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's team. Fortune, along with more than 225 Dana-Farber teammates from New England and beyond, will cover the sevenmile course with a goal to raise $700,000 for cancer research at Dana-Farber. In 2014, the Dana-Farber team celebrates its 12th year of participation in the race's Numbers for Nonprofits program.

Fortune, is a member of "Team Lanzoni," a group of more than 60 people from the 99 Restaurants who have run the Falmouth Road Race to support Dana-Farber for the past seven years. Team Lanzoni runs in memory of their friend and colleague, David Lanzoni, who lost his battle with cancer in 2006. Since its inception in 2006, Team Lanzoni has raised more than $1 million for Dana-Farber through its Falmouth Road Race participation.

Each Dana-Farber Falmouth team member commits to raise or contribute at least $1,250. The team this year is striving to raise an average of $3,100 per runner. All money raised will benefit the Jimmy Fund, which solely supports Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, raising funds for adult and pediatric cancer care and research to improve the chances of survival for cancer patients around the Upcoming performers are Rolie Polie Guacamole on Aug. 22.

Breakfast in the barnyard on Saturday

Spend the morning getting upclose and personal with the heritage livestock at the Coggeshall Farm Museum on Poppasquash Road. Participants join one of the museum's costumed interpreters to help with the morning chores and learn about farm animals in 18th-century Rhode Island.

Come on Saturdays through Oct. 11 (except Sept. 20) and hunt for eggs, milk the cow, brush the horse and turn out the sheep while finding out what makes the farm's animals so special.

After the animals' breakfast, return to the farmhouse to help cook jonnycakes on the hearth of the 1790s tenant farmhouse. Dress for a morning in the barnyard. The program begins promptly at 9 a.m., so arrive about 10 minutes early. The fee is $10 for adults and $6 for seniors and children 3 to 12 ($7/$5 for members). Children under 3 are free.

Farmers' market is at Mount Hope Farm

The Mount Hope Farmers' Market is open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays, rain or shine, in the south pasture at Mount Hope

Farm, 250 Metacom Ave.

Stop by for fresh produce, mushrooms, flowers and herbs, honey, cheeses, seafood, breads, pies, baked goods, local meat and chicken, jams and jellies, and more.

Linden Place to host downtown walking tour

Linden Place Museum will host a walking tour, "Tales of the Slave Trade," that focuses specifically on Bristol's DeWolf family and their involvement in the slave trade. Featured in the PBS film "Traces of the Trade," the DeWolfs were Bristol's premier family in the 18th and early 19th centuries.

The guided tour begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 16, at Linden Place, 500 Hope St., the Federal-style mansion built by architect Russell Warren for George DeWolf.

The tour continues through the center of town to the waterfront on Thames Street. It ends at the historic DeWolf Tavern, once a DeWolf waterfront warehouse, where tour-goers enjoy a rum cocktail and ask questions.

The tour is $20 ($15 for Linden Place members) and includes a complimentary drink. Reservations are required; the tour is limited to 15 people. Call 253-0390.

'Kids in the Kitchen' down on farm Saturday

Kids and their families will get a chance to learn how to cook farm-raised produce over the fire at the hearth of the colonial tenant farmhouse at the Coggeshall Farm Museum on Poppasquash Road from 1 to 4 p.m. each Saturday in August.

Start by selecting seasonal produce, investigate old recipes in an 18th-century cookbook, and then prepare a dish the way it was done 200 years ago. For safety reasons, one adult may not accompany more than two children.

The cost is $25 for adults and $17 for children 3 to 12 and seniors 65+ ($20/$15 for members). Space is limited, and reservations are required. To register, call 253-9062 or e-mail info@coggeshallfarm.org.

Hearth cooking workshop on Sundays

Coggeshall Farm's Historic Foodways and Hearth Cooking Workshops are continuing all year long. Leave the kids at home, and grab your spouse or friends and come spend an evening in the candlelight on Sundays at 4 p.m.

Cook several 1790s receipts from Amelia Simmons' American Cookery, the first American cookbook, originally published in 1796. A night out paired with farmraised meat and produce cooked over the hearth.

Evenings are for age 16 and up. The cost is $60; $50 for members. Space is limited, and reservations are required by calling 253-9062 or e - m a i l i n g info@coggeshallfarm.org.

Artists are invited to 'Paint Bristol'; more plein air sessions are on Sundays

"Paint Bristol," a plein air event sponsored by Bristol Art Museum, is on Saturday, Sept. 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A wine reception to view the results is in the Livingston Gallery at the Bristol Art Museum on Sunday, Sept. 7, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Artists are invited to register to take part. This year, artists are asked to set up their easels on Hope Street from Constitution to Bradford streets and/or State Street from Hope Street to the docks. This way, people can see the artists at work. Artists can choose any time between the scheduled hours on Saturday to "paint the town"; but, be careful not to block sidewalks or entries to homes or businesses.

Then, each artist may show at least two pieces of their work at the reception on Sunday. Feel free to invite friends and relatives as the reception will be open to the public

Artists must drop off their work, wet or dry, wired and ready to hang, no later than 11 a.m. Sunday at the newly refurbished museum. Volunteers will help artists label and hang the finished pieces. Anyone interested in selling their work, may do so with the museum taking a 20 percent commission. For more information, e-mail janelavender@verizon.net.

It is $20 to participate. Send your name, address, e-mail address and phone number with a check for $20 made payable to Bristol Art Museum to: Bristol Art Museum, P.O. Box 42, Bristol, RI 02809, by Aug. 24.

Plein air sessions

Annual plein air painting sessions sponsored by the Bristol Art Museum and the Portsmouth

Plein air sessions continue in Bristol and Portsmouth through Sept. 14. As part of the series, "Paint Bristol" is sponsored by the Bristol Art Museum. Artists are invited to paint around the downtown area on Saturday, Sept. 6, and then bring their pieces to the art museum on the next day for an exhibit and wine reception.

Arts Guild are continuing on Sundays from 3 to 6 p.m. this summer. All levels and media are welcome. There is no instruction, but a short critique follows the sessions.

Fees are $5 a session; $4 for BAM and PAG members. These are drop-in sessions, which are canceled if it rains. For more information, contact Suzanne Lewis at 254-1668 or suzannelewis@fullchannel.net.

AT THE LIBRARY

Creative writing class returns on Thursdays

A creative writing class for teens and adults is at the library on Thursdays at 6 p.m. on the main floor. Greg Allen, a graduate student, will lead the class throughout the summer. The plan is to write a short flash fiction story and then follow the process to find the right journal to submit the story to for publishing.

No sign up is needed. Meetings are every Thursday, except Aug. 14. For more information, call and ask for Charlotte.

Freaky Friday Parade and last summer show

Youngsters and adults are invited to march in the Freaky Friday Parade on Friday, Aug. 15. Come in costume. You could come as a scientist, a circus performer, a clown or even an experiment. Bring something to make noise on like a drum or a rattle. Make a sign or help carry one of the library's.

At 10:15 a.m., the parade lines up behind the library. At 10:30, the parade steps off for a walk to State Street and back to the library on Thames Street. All are welcome.

The last show of the summer reading program is Casey Carle's Bubble Mania. It begins right after the parade at 11 a.m.

Fantasy/Science Fiction Book Club to meet

The last meeting of the Fantasy/Science Fiction Book Club is on Monday, Aug. 18, at 6 p.m. for a movie and book, "I am Number 4" by Pittacus Lore, in the Herreshoff Community Room with pizza and popcorn. You don't have to read the book to come to the movie. Suggested for readers in middle school and high school. Copies of the books are available at the library. Ask for Miss Charlotte.

Chess Club meets on Wednesdays

The Chess Club meets on Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m. on the third floor. Players at all levels are invited to join in the games. New members (teens and adults) are always welcome.

Refreshments are served. For more information, call the library and ask for Tom.

Teen summer reading contest is concluding

The teen summer reading contest concludes tomorrow, with the final weekly drawing. The prize is either a "Spark a Reaction" T-shirt

The grand prize of a gift certificate to The Wrap Shack will drawn on Tuesday, Aug. 19, at a pizza party in the Herreshoff Community Room.

Adult Summer Reading Contest winding down

The library's Adult Summer Reading Contest, "Literary Elements," concludes next week. Entry forms are at the library.

A weekly prize drawing is each Friday, with the grand prize of a Kindle Fire HD given away on Aug. 20 at the "Dinner and a Book Chat" celebration. Read three books, complete the entry form and submit it at the main circulation desk to enter. The more you read, the better your chances of winning a prize.

You must be present to win the grand prize. See the staff for details or check the website.

Rogers Free Library is at 525 Hope St. Extra parking is in the rear of the building off Thames Street. For more information, call 253-6948 or visit the website at www.rogersfreelibrary.org.

Audubon has eco stories, crafts, seaglass jewelry, bird banding and a wetlands walk

Enjoy warm summer days (or rainy days) at the Audubon Society of Rhode Island's Environmental Education Center at 1401 Hope St. on the Bristol/Warren town line.

The center also features a lifesized model of a Right Whale, harbor seal display, marine and freshwater aquarium exhibits, tide pool tank, along with trails and a boardwalk to the bay on the 28-acre wildlife refuge. The center is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sun-

The usual admission fee is $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and $4 for children 4 to 12 years (under 4 are free). However, it is waived on the first Saturday of each month for Free Family Fun Day courtesy of a grant from the Citizens Bank Foun-

■ "Eco Stories and Art" is from 10 to 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 16, for all ages. Spread out your blanket, bring a snack, and soak up the beautiful summer weather while enjoying a story outdoors. An Audubon naturalist will read a nature story, then help kids create

The program will move indoors in case of bad weather. No registration needed. Free with admission. The program will repeat on

- A Nature Craft Table for ages 3 and older is every Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon through Aug. 30. Get creative with the kids! Stop by for the nature craft of the week. Free with admission.
- A sea glass jewelry workshop for adults is from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 16. Create a beautiful pendant with sea glass found on local beaches. Learn how to choose the right piece of glass and transform it into fun, creative jewelry using quick and easy wire wrapping techniques. The program includes all materials; but, if you found something special on the beach, bring it.

Registration is required as space is limited to 12 participants and classes fill quickly. The fee is $30 ($25 members). Register online.

■ Bird banding will be demonstrated on Sunday, Aug. 17, from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. for ages 6 and older. Experts capture, band, measure and release songbirds in order to record their movements. Birds will be gently removed from tall "mist nets" set in the shrubby habitats on the grounds of the Environmental Education Center.

The migratory habits and life history of each captured species will be discussed. Participants are encouraged to bring a camera and binoculars. Programs are limited to 15 participants, so register early. The cost is $8 adults and $6 children ($6/$4 members). Register

- "Wading into Wetlands" is on Tuesday, Aug. 19, from 10 a.m. to noon. Discover the important role that water plays in our lives. The exploration will include active sampling of this fascinating fresh water habitat. Dress appropriately and wear clothes that can get dirty. Adults must accompany children. The program is weather dependent. Recommended for ages 6 and up. The fee is $7 per child; $5 member children. Register online.
- An art exhibit by Denise Melucci, "The Blue Series: A Day in the Life of an Endangered Whale," is open through Aug. 30 during regular hours. Ms. Melucci, a native of Rhode Island and a self-taught artist, presents paintings of whales in their natural habitat, fighting to survive in today's world. Free with admis-

Daniel F. DeMatos

Happy Birthday to our angel above! You were a man of such unique and rare qualities. We were so very proud of you. What we remember and miss the most was your caring manner and your sacrificing way. Your priority was always to be sure your family was taken care of and that we most admired!

We love and miss you, your kind heart and all your talents (especially your talent for making us laugh so hard our insides hurt)... Dan, you are gone from our sight but never in our everyday living memory! We miss you like crazy!

uild it and they will come, some say. And it is certainly true with Stef's Salon and Spa which opened in June and has been a hopping spot ever since. It's all brand new, from the inspired décor, to the handsome modern furnishings, to the sparkling salon hair styling stations. Even its location in the recently completed Patriot's Plaza in Portsmouth is new. For Stef Medeiros, an eight-year hair styling veteran, Stef's is a dream come true, a goal she aspired to since becoming a professional hair stylist after cosmetology school.

Both Stef and her cousin, former Bristol salon hair stylist Jessica Fialho, thank their many former customers who have followed them to this beautiful new location. And they are delighted to welcome the many new customers who have joined the loyal list. They are all enjoying the popular Stef's Summer Special, a free Keratin shampoo and conditioner with any Keratin treatment.

The new salon and spa is easing into the services it offers, beginning with hair styling for women, men and children, color including highlights, lowlights touchups, as well as facial waxing services. Once a new spa professional is on board, massages, facials and other spa services will expand the offerings.

Owner/stylist Stef Medeiros and her cousin, stylist Jessica Fialho, are delighted to welcome both former and new clients to Stef's Salon and Spa in Patriot's Plaza in Portsmouth.

"Finding just the right professional who will fit in with our concept of refreshing and relaxing is key," says Stef, who has set aside dedicated spa service space.

Stef's will feature and sell the Goldwell line of color and products. Moroccanoil and Devacare, as well as other well established brands. The salon is open five days a week, Tuesday through Saturday, and late appointments are available on request.

Congratulations are in order to Stef for fulfilling another dream -- a destination wedding in the Dominican Republic, scheduled for August. For this grand occasion, the salon will be closed Saturday August 16 and reopen on Tuesday August 26.

Check out Stef's Salon on Facebook for more information and upcoming specials.

Volunteers needed to keep Bristol blooming

pluce@eastbaynewspapers.com

Wanted: Someone who cares about beautifying Bristol and is willing to donate a couple hours a week to the cause. Morning person preferred.

"That's the problem... we need people who want to get up early," said Ray Massey of Bristol Blooms, the non-profit organization responsible for the flower baskets hanging from the historic lamp posts throughout downtown Bristol.

The baskets have been blooming with begonias, petunias and lobelia since they were hung along Hope, State and Bradford streets in early June. They've been thriving all summer long, and that's not because they've been left on their own. A small group of volunteers have been regularly caring for the baskets, no small job considering there are 140 hanging throughout downtown.

The biggest job is keeping the plants watered. Mr. Massey and a volunteer from the town Parks and Recreation Department are currently the only team keeping the flowers hydrated on a regular basis. The pair meet at 5:30 a.m. three days a week, pick up the Parks and Recreation water truck and spend about two hours and 150 gallons of water giving the flowers a drink. Other volunteers from the group help as well, but a second dedicated team would make maintaining the baskets all the easier, Mr. Massey

"If we had two teams, that would be great. We could work on schedules," said Mr. Massey, noting he usually waters on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, though the schedule could fluctuate to meet volunteers' needs. Anyone interested in volunteering can contact Stan Dimock, who has also been helping water the plants all summer long, at

The participation of volunteers is what has allowed the beautification project to take place in the first place, Town Administrator Antonio Teixeira has said. "It's been a whole community effort. We're very appreciative. This is a great endeavor that beautifies the downtown area," he said.

In addition to watering volunteers, Bristol Blooms is continually seeking money to keep the project going year after year. The 140 baskets hung this year cost about $30,000, all of which Bristol Blooms raised through fundraisers and donations. Next year, the group is hoping to expand the project, hanging 200 baskets, which will come at a cost. Residents are invited to "adopt a lantern," and individual donations can also be made to Bristol Blooms. Email bristolblooms@gmail.com or visit the organization's Facebook page for more information.

Bristol Blooms volunteers Jackie Cranwell, Ray Massey and Charlie Powers water one of the flower baskets hanging from lamp posts in downtown Bristol. More volunteers are needed to keep the baskets blooming.

Just 30 minutes from Newport and 20 minutes from Northern R.I., visitors can enjoy convenient access to the mall with easy on-off ramps, and free parking! With more than 80+ retailers, 12 restaurants (+2 with outdoor seating) and Showcase Cinemas --

Barrington's Kevin Doyle to receive National Heritage Fellowship

National Endowment for the Arts honor is the nation's highest in the folk and traditional arts

Kevin Doyle, an Irish step dancer, is among a select group of artists and jazz musicians who are being honored for mastering the artistic skills and preserving the cultural traditions of their respective art forms.

Governor Lincoln Chafee had high praise for Doyle. "On behalf of the citizens of Rhode Island, I congratulate Kevin Doyle for his recognition by the National Endowment for the Arts," he said. "As a retired RIPTA bus driver, he exemplifies the very best our state has to offer. His love for Irish Step Dancing and the arts is clear and should encourage others to pursue their passions."

Senators Jack Reed and Sheldon Whitehouse, and Representative David Cicilline, also offered their congratulations, with Reed noting that Doyle "makes Irish step dancing look easy, but he is someone who has poured many years of hard work, sweat, and soul into honing his craft. I think it is great that he is being recognized on a national stage and making Rhode Island and our Irish-American community

dance under his feet, Rhode Island-born Kevin Doyle is a son of County Roscommon through his mother Margaret Taylor Doyle. He is a grandson of County Longford through his father John, whose Irish parents came to live in Providence, Rhode Island's Fox Point in the early 1900's.

At the age of eight, Doyle, along with his sister Maureen, began to learn their first Irish dance steps from their mother. He recalls his mother lilting (a way of vocalizing rhythmically using syllables rather than words) old tunes like "McLeod's Reel," which she had learned from her own mother in Ireland. In the 1960s, Doyle studied at the Pat Fallon School of Irish Dance with visiting Boston instructors Steve Carney and Mary Sullivan, and at the McCorry School of Dance in Pawtucket, where he learned steps traceable to the old dance masters of Ireland.

Through apprenticeship awards with the Southern New England Folk and Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program and Rhode Island State Council on the Arts, Kevin taught his daughter Shannon traditional Irish dance and she has gone on to become an Irish dance teacher herself. In 2013, Doyle was awarded a Folk Arts Fellowship from the Rhode Island State Council on the Arts.

Doyle will be traveling to Washington, D.C. in September, where the 2014 NEA National Heritage Fellows will be honored at an awards ceremony on Wednesday, September 17, and a concert at George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium on Friday, September 19. Both events will be open to the public and the concert will be streamed live at arts.gov.

Being unplugged has been nice but my mind wanders back to something I always think about when I travel: how RI compares to where I am. We have seen plenty of evidence that shows Rhode Island at the bottom of almost every measure of success and that people leave Rhode Island and don't come back. While I don't plan to change my address (ever) I do like checking out the things that other states do better. It's clear that Rhode Island definitely has room for improvement.

These western states could not be any different from Little Rhody. In the "where are you from" conversation that inevitably occurs locals have been quick to remind us that both Rhode Island and Delaware could fit into Yellowstone Park together. We went to a dinner show where one of the jokes was based on the fact that no one from Rhode Island is ever there. On three separate occasions people have said some variation of "Rhode Island is the only state I haven't been to and I don't know why I would go." While it's nice to live in the country's best kept secret, we would benefit tremendously from a boost in visitors.

While the Sox have conceded for the season, I think it's time that Rhode Island fought to be a contender in tourism revenue. But our state's puny budget for promotion — $400,000 — shows that growing this sector of our economy is not a priority. Our tourism website (visitri.com) is embarrassing and to confuse matters, there seems to be two

The guy next door

Staying true to himself, Ahmed Ahmed finds comedy doesn't discriminate

Actor, comedian, producer, and director Ahmed Ahmed is on top of his game, starring as "Ahmed" on TBS' hit comedy series "Sullivan & Son" and touring the U.S. this summer performing a sellout stand-up show with three of his costars.

But the road to success wasn't without more than his share of speed bumps.

An Arab-American (he was born in Egypt and brought to the U.S. when he was a month old), Ahmed was raised in Riverside, California, moving to Los Angeles at the age of 19 after deciding to try his hand at acting.

Being an ethnically Arab actor was a bit of an anomaly in Hollywood, but that didn't stop him. "I had lots of opportunities," he says, "playing terrorists and cab drivers."

"What I really wanted to do was play the guy next door. But I never got called in for those types of roles." Eventually, he told his agent to only call him with offers for mainstream roles. So he didn't hear from her again.

Ahmed ran out of money and ended up sleeping on the couch of one of the first friends he made in Hollywood: Vince Vaughn. He worked waiting tables and discovered he had a talent for stand-up.

Ahmed Ahmed

"The food was horrible," he says. "I had to compensate with service and laughter." This was in the 1990's, when a lot of stand-up comedians were breaking into acting with their own shows.

As a stand-up comedian for some 20 years, Ahmed did take an occasional self-deprecating shot at his Middle Eastern background. But after September 11, 2001, he had to be very sensitive to what audiences were interested in laughing at. To this day his humor tends more towards more universal issues of life as a 40-something single guy. It's gone well — after all, as Ahmed says, "funny is funny."

In its third season, executive produced by Vaughn, "Sullivan & Son" follows Steve Sullivan (Steve Byrne), a corporate lawyer who surprises his parents when he leaves his job to take over a bar owned by his father in Pittsburgh. Ahmed made his first appearance as unlucky in love, tow-truck driver (and best friend to Steve) "Ahmed" in season one, and joined the cast as a series regular in season two.

Ahmed and four of his costars are keeping their stand-up muscles toned (and promoting their show) in comedy clubs across the country through August. You can see Ahmed along with Owen Benjamin, Roy Wood Jr., and Steve Byrne at the Comedy Connection in East Providence this Friday at 8 p.m.

Currently the only Arab-American actor playing a non-stereotypical role on a comedy sitcom, Ahmed couldn't be happier. "I'm paid to laugh," he says. "It's the best job in the world."

A classic summer 'whodunnit' at 2nd Story

he season of summer in New England provides a plethora of singular sensations, priceless moments and fun traditions. We boast of our patriotic parades, the tang of salty air on our glorious beaches, waterfront seafood fests and the livin' is easy. Onstage the grand tradition is for good oldfashioned summer stock shows and in Warren 2nd Story Theatre promises to fill this bill with gusto with both a rousing murder mystery and a sweet old charmer of a play. This summer the theatre in Warren's century-old building on Market Street has two plays running in rep, Agatha Christie's "And Then There Were None" and Noel Coward's "Hay Fever", both playing now through Labor Day. Each play shares the same swell set but the similarities end there - apart from providing an opportunity to beat the heat with some sheer fun.

This week we'll concentrate on the murder mystery, I'll be brave enough to tackle the Coward next week. Frankly, I'm a little nervous. For, you see, in "And Then There Were None" ten guests who may or may not have done something wrong in their pasts have been invited to a mysterious isolated formula is familiar, you never really know how this is all going to play out. That's a truth that sustained Christie during her 50- year writing career and one that buoys up her own theatrical adaptation of her novel. Sure, the characters and situation, like summer theatre itself, might be stock. But that doesn't mean it won't shock and surprise the heck out of you.

Fans of mysteries know well and savor all of the usual suspects, as you will all of the customary ruses and red herrings that abound. I myself portray a nervous Doctor quaking in his boots and if that's a guilty quiver you see before you, well, I'll never tell.

The other assorted guests trapped on the isolated "Soldier Island" on a naturally dark and stormy night comprise a wide variety of suspect sorts including a very pretty and pretty plucky heroine, the obligatory butler and housekeeper, a shady detective, a moralistic shrew, a dapper ne'erdo-well, a stern and reptilian Judge, a morose military man and, rounding out the field, the lovable rogue without whom no adventure is truly complete.

It is to this last suspect I now draw your attention, adding my observation based on being stuck on this island with him, that, though he is quite naturally charming, no nicer man has ever had to play the coarsely kidding caddish sort and that calls for considerable acting chops. The character's name is Captain Phillip Lombard; the actor is Jay Bragan and we spoke a bit whilst waiting for the proverbial axe to fall about all things mysterious.

Last seen on the 2nd Story Stage in "Harvey", Mr. Bragan is a graduate of the Trinity Rep Conservatory and has, for the past 10 years, been the Head of Performing Arts at Portsmouth Abbey School, directing three productions a year as well as teaching English. Happily, because he's on summer break, he's available to be stuck here on Soldier Island in a play directed by one of his teachers at the Conservatory, 2nd Story Artistic Director Ed Shea.

Teaching literature, directing plays and acting all require similar, though not identical, skills. I asked Mr. Bragan what it was like to 'switch hats' for his onstage role as Captain Phillip Lombard. "It's been five years since I've acted in a play", the ever-affable Bragan explains, "and I was a little worried that those skills may have atrophied a bit. But I was surprised at how quickly it all came back. Acting is so experiential that there has been little time to step outside the role and think like a director. And being in a play has been a good reminder to me about what my students have to go through!"

The murder-mystery genre fiction of Agatha Christie is, unlike most plays, an intricate little puzzle that the audience takes great pleasure in trying to solve. Though each of us onstage has a secret past we are also stuck together in a dire situation. To that end, in rehearsal our director, Ed Shea talked a lot about our job as actors to "feed the mystery" as opposed to trying to "play a character" and I asked Mr. Bragan to expound upon that idea.

"When Ed said that we are to "feed the mystery" and not get caught up in out own story, the play really opened up for me. I found that advice to be very freeing. I really began to take in that we are all creating the story together. It took off the selfimposed pressure of trying to be interesting and helped focus our collective attention on each other and not ourselves.'

"Back at the Conservatory", Mr. Bragan continues, "Ed taught us what an onstage "event" is. It's essential that actors know what the event specifically is in a scene so they can play it; otherwise that scene would have no focus. In my first scene in "And Then There Were None" I arrive with another character and we talk about the mysterious party we've been invited to on this formerly deserted house on an isolated island. We flirt with each other and establish our relationship somewhat, but the main event needs to be what we say about the house on the island. In this case the audience learns some vital information. If we focused more on our relationship the audience might be confused as their attention would be misdirected. So knowing what the main event is is crucial. I'm always aware of this as a director and am thankful to Ed for teaching such an important lesson."

In an attempt to try to incorporate the three sides of Jay Bragan, teacher, director and actor, I asked him about the importance of both seeing and participating in live theatre.

"Theatre and literature are both forms of storytelling", Bragan explains, "and acting is, for the most part, an oral tradition of story telling. Literature is powerful in that it evokes the senses, a good writer creates a world to experience. Agatha Christie has the wonderful ability to give each character their own voice. When I first read the play I was struck by how distinct each character already was just on the printed page. Their tone, syntax, idioms-all of these contributed to a very specific type of person. I found that to be impressive playwriting. The rich characters, as well as the skillfully crafted mystery, make this a delightful play.'

"But", Bragan points out, "there is the one element that other art forms do not have: theater is live. There is that immediate visceral quality to theater. Theater can help one appreciate literature all the more because all the elements of the story are right there in front of you, all brought to life."

So, audience, did either of us 'dunnit'? I'll never tell. But please join us on Soldier Island and help unravel the mystery, without you, there truly would be none.

"And Then There Were None" at 2nd Story Theatre, Warren, now through August 31. See listings for details.

mortality (F) reference points, as recommended by the 2013 benchmark stock assessment, and associated management measures to reduce fishing mortality to a level at or below the proposed target within one or three years.

With the approval of one of these options striped bass regulations will become more conservative. Specific options to be considered include bag, size, slot and trophy size limits for the recreational fishery and quota reductions for the commercial fishery.

The draft addendum includes a suite of management options to reduce recreational and commercial harvest under three reduction timeframes. The timeframes include (1) reducing to new fishing mortality targets in one year with a 25% reduction in 2013 harvest in 2015 (2) reducing mortality to its target within three years with a 17% reduction in 2013 harvest in 2015, and (3) reducing to its target within three years with a 7% sequential reduction in harvest for three consecutive years starting in 2015.

Fishermen and other interested groups are encouraged to provide input on the draft addendum either by attending state public hearings (RI, MA and CT meetings to be announced) or providing written comment. The draft addendum will be available on the Commission website (www.asmfc.org) under Public Input the week of August 11. Public comment will be accepted until 5 p.m. on September 30 and should be forwarded to Mike Waine, Fishery Management Plan Coordinator, 1050 N. Tom Giddings of The Tackle Box, Warwick said, "A customer caught a 44 pound striped bass off Narragansett this weekend." Nick McCarthy of Lucky Bait & Tackle, Warren said, "Michael and Jason Macedo landed bass to 39 pounds fishing with eels at Block Island aboard River Rebel Charters. And, Charlie Sores (noted local striped bass fishing exert and author) weighed in a 37 pound bass caught off Newport while trolling tube and worm. We also have customers landing bass with eels in the Brenton Reef area." "Fishing for bass has been good with customers at Block Island, off Brenton Reef and we heard from local Air Force pilots going in and out of Quonset Point, North Kingstown seeing schools of bass off the airfield. These are all positive signs for a good bass fall run," said John Wunner of John's Bait & Tackle, North Kingstown.

"Offshore fishing has been hot," said Elisa Martin of Snug Harbor. "Yellowfin and bluefin tuna were caught this weekend at the Gully and at the Suffix with thresher and make sharks being taken south of Cox's Ledge." "Tuna trips are starting to book and reports from the canyons are hot!" said Roger Simpson of the Frances Fleet. "The first tuna trip is set for August 27 to 29, leaving August 26 at 10 p.m." Visit francesfleet.com for information and reservations.

Summer flounder (fluke) fishing on the south side of Block Island has been very good but fishing along the southern coastal shore has been fair. "Conditions have to be right to catch fluke along the coast, but they are there," said Elisa Martin of Sung Harbor Marina. "Customers are catching large numbers of fluke off Newport but many of them are undersized." "Customers are catching some keepers right under the Mt. Hope Bridge from shore," said Nick McCarthy of Lucky Bait & Tackle. "Fluke fishing in the bay has been difficult; one customer caught seventeen fish, all shorts," said John Wunner. Roger Simpson said, "Last week on a few trips the weather was so gorgeous and calm that there was very little drift... biggest fluke for the week was around 8 pounds." Capt. Rich Hittinger, RISAA vice president said, "Fluke fishing has been very good. We had some good luck off Sakonnet two weeks ago, but recently we have had a very good bite at Block Island. Many of the fish are over three pounds and I would say four out of five are over 18", so most are recreational keepers."

"Bonito reports are starting to come in from Watch Hill. They are on their way," said Elisa Martin.

Shore fishing. John Brangaccio of Cardinal Bait & Tackle, Westerly said, "Fishing has been very, very slow. Anglers fishing from the beaches and jetties are not landing much... just scup and bluefish are being taken. At Ft. Wetherill, Jamestown, last weekend school striped bass and bluefish were surfacing... just out of shore angler reach." Last week seven year old TJ Giddings of Warwick landed three keeper scup in twenty minutes when fishing with his dad at Rocky Point, Warwick. Scup are being caught in the bay and off coastal shores from boats and shore. Dave Henault of Ocean State Tackle, Providence said, "The scup bite under the Mt. Hope Bridge is good, as well as at Colt State Park, Bristol."

Black sea bass fishing has been excellent with anglers catching their limit when targeting fluke. Steve Brustein of West Warwick landed sea bass off Newport last week to 19". Roger Simpson said, "(The) biggest sea bass was 6.2 pounds!"

Fresh water fishing for bass continues to be strong with trout fishing starting to fade. "A customer caught a nine pound and a five pound largemouth bass when fishing at Lincoln Woods," said Dave Henault.

Captain Dave Monti has been fishing and shellfishing for over 40 years. He holds a captain's master license and a charter fishing license. Visit Captain Dave's No Fluke website at noflukefishing.com or e-mail him with your fishing news and photos at dmontifish@verizon.net.

What is 'Blue Willow?'

¬ his familiar pattern was first designed by Thomas Minton in England around 1780. It is the most famous china pattern in the world, and the longest continually produced pattern in history. The willow dreds of manufacturers (including in the United States). Examples may vary slightly but all have key features: a willow tree, an apple or orange tree, two doves, people on a bridge, a boat and a pagoda (tea house).

Supposedly, the original willow pattern was inspired by a fable. There are several versions but they are similar. A wealthy Chinese man lived in a magnificent pagoda under the branches of an apple tree near a bridge over which a willow tree drooped. His beautiful daughter was the promised bride to a wealthy merchant when the first blossom fell from the willow tree. However, she fell in love with her father's bookkeeper. The father found the two of them together and pursued them across the sea to a cottage on an island and was planning on putting them to death but the gods intervened and turned them into doves, symbolizing true love.

Blue Willow is a type of transferware. Developed in the mid 1700's by an Irishman named John Brooks, transferware is a method of which a design on a copper plate is transferred to the china thus allowing pieces to be mass produced. Chinese potteries were exporting their hand-painted blue and white china to England and sold to wealthy customers. Transferware made the blue and white designs affordable to the masses.

The best way to tell if you have an old piece is to see if it is marked. If it has a country of origin mark it was made after 1891. A lot of pieces are unmarked and they could be old or new. Because of this and the sheer volume produced, prices for blue willow vary greatly. There is helpful information on collecting and identifying willow on the International Willow Collectors website: www.willowcollectors.org.

Def Leppard: "VIVA! Hysteria — Live at the Joint, Las Vegas"

y best friend in high school had an older brother who had already turned us on to Def Lep-

is on to Def Leppard's "On Through The Night" and "High And Dry" albums. So when "Pyromania" was released we were already well versed in the band and what they could do. Overnight everyone in my high school starting wearing union jack shorts or t-shirts. MTV had "Photograph" in regular rotation and by regular I mean every 30 minutes. Radio was suddenly embracing them as a heavy metal Beatles. It was a good time to be young and into hard rock music.

Now decades later the band, having weathered death, loss of limb, drugs, overdoses, alcoholism, and an uncertain musical market, have reclaimed their former glory with "VIVA! Hysteria - Live at the Joint, Las Vegas". The live concert features classic songs as well as recent albums hits. Set in Las Vegas during their residency, the band seems to be on fire, even performing as the band "Ded Flatbird" and opening act for themselves allowing the band to play some of the really older songs that they would not have time to play during the main set. Clever. Very clever.

The concert is a testament to the staying power of this group. Pop hits aside, there are some killer tracks awaiting you on the release. "Wasted", "High And Dry", and "Rock Brigade" fall easily in place next to mega hits like "Animal", "Hysteria", and "Photograph". Listening to the audio took me right back to those crazy days and wild nights when Def Leppard ruled the airwaves and stone washed jeans were in.

Joe Elliot has never sounded better and he seemed quite comfortable in the Vegas setting. Phil Collen and Vivian Campbell are truly masters of their instruments and they weave a sonic tapestry in and around the time-honored classic songs. This interplay helped breathe new life into the songs. The concert performance would put bands half their age to shame. There is so much energy and power flowing from these living rock icons.

A must-have for any fan of hard rock and 80's hard rock, this will be a crowning piece in any collection. Production on this album is flawless, as is the performance. Great songs from a great band.

Is this the worst Congress ever?

n August 2, the two Republican congressional contenders who wish to dispatch incumbent Representative David Cicilline to the locker room appeared on

Arlene VIOLET

"Newmakers."
Both gentlemen, Cormack
Lynch and Stan
Tran, acquitted themselves well.
As I listened to their respective thoughtful responses I kept asking myself why either of these men would even want to go to Congress, given the woeful track record in D.C. Both candidates recognize the gridlock in Washington. Yet, their optimism of ending the unrelenting incompetence of Congress sounds like something out of Mary Poppins.

It's difficult to imagine a more ineffective body of decision-makers than the present Congress of do-nothing sycophants. Before their 5-week vacation they cobbled together a "solution" to the Veterans Affairs mess where former soldiers waited endlessly for appointments (let alone treatment.) As the reader knows, there are so-called Veteran Oversight Committees in both the House of Representatives and the United States Senate, so it's a difficult to swallow the absolute befuddlement of the solons over this botched health care delivery system. After all, they were supposed to be the guardians. With all the rhetoric about how each elected official values the members of the armed services it would have been just nice if they did their job rectifying the problems, as opposed to soliciting donations non-stop for their reelection bids.

Other major issues received a bubble gum paste job. Immigration reform is an oxymoron. The fat cats on Capitol Hill allowed the interest on Stafford loans for higher education to rise from 3.86 to 4.66 percent. This inaction came at a time when other interest rates hovered much lower. So much for political patter about how important education is. The country's transportation issues of crumbling roads and bridges got a thumb-in-the-dike treatment.

As bad as these cronies in Washington are, I suppose I mostly felt a twinge at the idealism exhibited by candidates Tran and Lynch since many folks just don't care. The United States has one of the lowest voter turnout rates of any democracy.

What is a dilemma in Rhode Island is the fact that the people who do turn out largely vote for the same gang who can't shoot straight for anybody other than their own self-interest. Voters will tell you at a cocktail party that they think most people elected in Rhode Island are unqualified but yet they do not insist on anything better. Given the apathy it's no wonder that politicians are hand-picked by the rich, de facto aristocracy or through the influence of political extremists.

So, given voter apathy and the pandering politicians, nothing really changes. Congress can have a favorability rating of 7 percent but it seems that we have gotten what we deserve.

Please understand that I admire the gumption of Messrs. Tran and Lynch. If I am totally honest, I would acknowledge that it is the voter here that has me most worried about the future of this country and the state. How have the citizens' expectations of what public service should be gotten so low that doing nothing has become a virtue? "First do no harm" has turned into "first do nothing and then do nothing again." How sad that the body politic is anemic on many levels.

MOs are all over the news. But what are they exactly? GMOs (genetically modified organisms) are plants and animals that have had their genes copied from other plants and animals to improve their quality. GMOs aren't a new concept, they have been in our food supply for over 10 years. Recently, more attention has been paid to them because the U.S. has no labeling laws that require companies to state if their products contain GMOs.

Are they safe? Many people think that GMOs are unsafe and should be taken out of the food supply. Some research has found that foods with GMOs are just as safe as conventional foods. However, there is some evidence that GMOs may cause some genetic side effects in people and animals that consume them. Also, there hasn't been much research on the long-term safety of these foods quite yet. Some think that eating GMOs can increase the incidence of food allergies or antibiotic resistance, but this is still unclear. We do know that GMOs can harm animals, insects, birds, and water sys-pesticides. In the U.S., the most common foods that contain GMOs are soy, corn, canola, and cottonseed oil.

Should I avoid GMOs? It's completely up to you. Although companies are not required to state if their products contain GMOs, many companies are happy to tell consumers that their products do not contain GMOs. It's easy to identify these in the grocery stores - just read the label.

Blackberry Buckle is a sweet taste of summer

BY LYNDA REGO lrego@eastbaynewspapers.com

When I was reworking my garden a couple of years ago, I removed an overgrown buddleia and thought about what to plant in its stead. If you're going to grow something, it might as well be something you can eat, I thought. So, next to two blueberry bushes, I planted two thornless blackberry bushes.

Last year, there were a couple of dozen berries. I kept tasting them, but they were too tart. A day before I planned to pick them, they all disappeared. Apparently, the birds knew they were ripe, too.

This year, I covered them with netting three weeks ago. I put some netting underneath, too. Every day, I collect a dozen or so berries. It's tricky deciding if they're ripe. They are fully ripe if you touch them and they fall into your hand, but then they must be eaten or used pretty quickly or they dissolve into juice.

Picking them while still a little tart and baking them is a fine solufar, we've had peach/blackberry crumble (a big hit) and this blackberry buckle, a moist, light cake surrounding the luscious berries. This is a combination of several recipes. Some called for twice as many berries, but I like this ratio best.

If the berries were fully ripe, I think I would skip the mashing step, and just place them on top of the batter. But, the store-bought berries or those that are a little tart benefit from a slight mash and some sugar.

Blackberry Buckle

Serves 8

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter
- 2 cups fresh blackberries
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- Pinch of salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup whole milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 tablespoon raw sugar (or sug-

Preheat oven to 350°.

Mash the blackberries a little (especially if they are really large). Blackberries are usually a tart fruit; if yours are, sprinkle with a little sugar, which will release some of the juices, too. Set aside. If berries are fall-apart ripe, skip the mashing.

Melt butter in a 10-inch cake pan or casserole dish in the oven. (Keep an eye on it, you just want the butter melted). Take out and flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add milk and vanilla extract and whisk just until well combined. Add the melted butter and whisk gently to combine.

In a large bowl, whisk together

Pour mixture into your still buttery pan and spoon the blackberries and their juices into the center. Sprinkle with raw sugar.

Bake until the top is golden brown and a cake tester inserted into the batter comes out clean, 50 minutes to 1 hour. Serve warm or at room temperature with whipped cream (or vanilla ice cream).

* I keep a jar of raw sugar in the cupboard to sprinkle on muffins, scones or desserts like this blackberry buckle. It gives them a sparkle and crunch.

WORLD-CLASS EYE INFECTION

If you wondered what was wrong with umn about pink eye has been brought Bod Costas eyes during the Sochi 2014 Winter Olympics, the sports announcer was forced by a common eye infection to miss nearly half of the event. "Conjunctivitis," also popularly referred to as "pink eye," is a highly contagious infection that is commonly seen among school children. It is caused by bacteria or a virus that inflames the thin membrane (conjunctiva) that lines the eveball and inner evelid. The conjunctiva becomes red and swollen, and there is often a discharge from the eye as well as the experience of blurred vision, a gritty sensation, and/or light sensitivity. Viral conjunctivitis, the most common type, usually clears up on its own in about a week.

This informative and interesting col-

"official" sites since visitrhodeisland.com displays alongside the state site. A smart investment in attracting more visitors will pay off by creating jobs and generating tax revenue, but this scattershot effort is clearly not working. Locally we have seen this kind of success through the efforts of Explore Bristol. Can you imagine if this effort were replicated statewide?

Several candidates for governor have seized on this issue and have pledged to put more money into tourism promotion. I would like to see the General Assembly share that commitment as well since a governor can propose whatever he or she wants but without General Assembly support, a governor's initiatives go nowhere. Rhode Island has so much to offer in such a small place that promoting all our assets together with a significant investment is the smart way to go. In typical "Rhode Island" fashion, our individual tourism bureaus are allocated funds but left to design and promote their own campaigns. Visitors from other states will be willing, if not thrilled, to move around the state taking in the sights. After all, they aren't Rhode Islanders, so driving from Providence to Newport and back is not considered a multiday journey.

One thing I have missed about home since we've been out here: a Rhode Island license plate. Day 10 of the license plate game and we've yet to spot one. It's a good reminder that Rhode Island is a great place to staycation in the summer. Now it's time to open our doors and invite the rest of the country over for a vacation. #### MEET DEB PLANT: PAMPERED CHEF WHO LOVES FOUR-LEGGED FRIENDS

Deb Plant is a professional Realtor from the Tiverton area. She has a vast background in sales and customer service, is a dog lover and volunteers to rescue Labradors in need of a good home. She and her family love to entertain and can often be found hosting family and friends for cookouts and days by the pool.

BY JOAN D. WARREN

WHY REAL ESTATE AS A CAREER? "I love working with people, learning their needs and helping them fulfill them. It's very rewarding. Whether it's getting a first-time buyer into their dream home (or sometimes getting them to have the vision to MAKE it their dream home!), working with a seller to enable them to move along to the next stage of their lives (and working through the emotional attachment

WHAT DID YOU DO BEFORE REAL ESTATE? "When my children were that often comes with the sale) or with an investor to build their business, I work to bring their dream to fruition and alleviate the stress that often comes up along the way.'

young, it was important to me that I was home with them. I discovered a national company that allowed me to pursue my passion of cooking while working nights and weekends, when my husband could be home with the kids. I did in-home cooking demonstrations with The Pampered Chef, selling top-quality kitchen tools and showing others that preparing food for your family and friends could be easy and enjoyable. After a couple of years, I became a director for that company and trained and supported others doing the same. I was with them for 10 years and recognized yearly as a top sales consultant in the company, earning incredible annual vacations. I met the most amazing people, many became close friends and several have been real estate clients or have referred me when they hear of someone purchasing or selling property. Probably 80 percent of my real estate business is referrals from others and repeat business."

BEST FAMILY DAY: "We have a huge family and do a lot of entertaining at our house ... seafood on the grill, everyone is in the pool, outdoor speakers are on, there may be a special drink ..."

WHAT ARE SOME OF YOUR HOB-BIES? "We have a 1970s Cape that we are in the midst of readying for some pretty major interior and exterior renovations. I'm thoroughly enjoying the process. We have three dogs, two Lab mixes and a Golden Retriever puppy. They are a big part of our lives and a huge source of joy. Enjoying time with my friends, when your children are young, it's easy to put yourself last. Stephen and Samantha are 24 and 19 now. It's easier to make more time for me now. I love to cook and entertain, and would like to develop a gym habit. That's still a work in progress."

FAVORITE PLACE FOR LUNCH: "Probably Flo's."

WHERE WOULD YOU LIVE IF YOU WEREN'T IN RI? "I don't think there's a prettier spot than here in Tiverton and Little Compton, the mix of farmland and Sakonnet River is breathtaking ... but I'd love to be on the water's edge. Downsizing one day to a perfect little cottage either on the Sakonnet or ocean is very appealing to me."

VOLUNTEER WORK: "In the past I organized many fundraisers for The American Cancer Society. More recently, my family has become involved with Save A Lab, a wonderful organization that rescues Labs and Lab mixes from the south and brings them north for adoption. We adopted our second dog through them 1 1/2 years ago and have enjoyed fostering pups in our home until they are ready to be adopted out forever homes. their SaveALab.org if you're considering a new four-legged family member!" WHERE DO YOU GO TO RELAX?

"Fogland Beach, no matter the time of year or weather!"

MARKET PREDICTIONS: "I think it's fair to stay we are still in a recovery, rates are low and stabilizing. It's a great time to purchase real estate and I see that trend continuing over the next 10 years."

House of the Week

Westport home has ocean views from every room

The town of Westport, Mass., is known for its beautiful countryside, lush farmland, a historic past and its sun-splashed coastline.

This large Colonial-style home is a six-bedroom residence nestled in the Acoaxet seaside neighborhood. A quintessential New England homestead, it offers expansive views of the Atlantic Ocean from almost every room.

Built in 1956, there are two full and two half-baths with a first-floor master suite, and five bedrooms on the second floor. The home has more than 2,500 square feet of living space. There is also an in-law or Au pair set-up on first floor, with a separate entrance that boasts a sitting area, bathroom and bedroom. The living room has a fireplace for chilly evenings when the boats are stored away and fall leaves on the trees are turning red and orange on the 11,000-square-foot lot.

Enjoy spectacular sunrises and sunsets from the wraparound porch all year long.

Walk to Elephant Rock and Howland beach clubs. The Cockeast Pond and Westport River are just a stone's throw away. The location of this property makes for comfortable living year-round and a relaxing place to call home.
