Advice to BHS grads: Slow down and enjoy every step of the journey

BY JOSH BICKFORD

jbickford@eastbaynewspapers.com

An hour before Sunday's graduation ceremony, people were already beginning to fill the bleachers at Barrington High School's Victory Field.

The crowd continued to swell as 2 p.m. drew near, and by the time the soon-to-be graduates filed onto the track, the bleachers were filled and hundreds of people lined the fence, waiting to cheer on members of the Class of 2018.

Nearly 300 students received their Barrington High School diplomas on Sunday, June 3, in a ceremony that celebrated the students' impressive academic and athletic achievement as well as their "intangibles."

Barrington High School Principal Joe Hurley said the Class of 2018 will be remembered for its "kindness, the willingness to work together, and a caring and compassionate nature..."

ON PAGE 8: See the complete list of Barrington High School Class of 2018 graduates.

Mr. Hurley also offered some advice to the graduating class. Referencing a song by Kenny Chesney, Mr. Hurley told the young men and women in the Class of 2018 "Don't Blink."

"My advice to each and every one of you is to slow it down by taking the time to appreciate the things you truly love and are

Beauty and the Beast is this weekend

Hampden Meadows School bringing classic tale to the stage

Arts Alive! and Hampden Meadows School will present Beauty and the Beast this weekend. Four performances are scheduled.

"What makes 'Beauty and the Beast' so timeless? There is something about the story that is so powerful that we want to return to it again and again," said Dena Davis, artistic director of Arts Alive!

"The 'happily ever after' comes with two powerful lessons: True love is when you are willing to sacrifice yourself for another, and, it's not what is on the outside, but what's on the inside that counts."

Hampden Meadows School students have been working hard in rehearsals and are excited for the upcoming performances.

There will be four shows — Friday, June 8 at 7 p.m., Saturday, June 9, at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m., and Sunday, June 10 at 1 p.m. All performances will be held at Barrington High School.

"Our epic venture to re-tell this story has been a collaborative joy," added Ms. Davis. "The passion and care that these young actors give to their performances is inspirational. As the children explore the intricacies of the human experience through a play, they are learning more than just storytelling — they are learning empathy, compassion and real-life lessons which ultimately make them better people. Another reason the arts play such a valuable role in education!"

Tickets are available in advance online at <https://artsalivebarrington.org/> for $7, or at the door before each performance.

'Moms' celebrate recently-signed legislation

Group visits RI Statehouse as governor signs 'red flag' and bump stock ban bills

On Friday, June 1, the Rhode Island Chapter of Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense In America celebrated as Rhode Island Governor Gina Raimondo signed into law the “red flag” legislation that allows courts to disarm individuals who are believed by law enforcement to represent a violent threat to themselves or others, and a ban on bump stocks and other rapid-fire gun modifications.

Rhode Island is the eighth state to prohibit bump stocks following the Las Vegas mass shooting, and the fourth state to pass a red flag law following the Parkland, Fla. mass shooting.

Both pieces of legislation moved swiftly this session as compared to the domestic violence gun bill, which passed into law in 2017 after many years of study and debate.

Many Barrington residents attended the bill signing ceremony at the Rhode Island Statehouse.

Third grade students at Sowams School recently completed a Rhode Island map project which highlighted local attractions and landmarks.

Sowams students map local landmarks

Sowams School third-graders share projects about Del's, the Newport Mansions, RIPTA, and lots more

BY JOSH BICKFORD
jbickford@eastbaynewspapers.com

There was a project about Iggy's dough-boys, and another about Fort Adams.

One project featured a model of a Newport mansion, while there was also one that explored Bristol's Colt State Park.

For the second straight year, third-graders at Sowams School worked on a map project that focused on all things Ocean State-related. After completing research projects about different Rhode Island-themed subjects, students created special placards that were then placed all over a huge — 16-foot-by-24-foot — floor map of Rhode Island.

The plastic floor map travels to different schools all across the state as part of a program offered by the Rhode Island Geography Education Alliance. At Sowams School, the third grade classes led by Jenny Gaynor, Susan Fagan and Kathryn Carey were involved in the project.

Students have the option of building a model to go with their project or creating an online slideshow. Students' project placards are given a small "quick response" code, or QR code.

During the recent family night at Sowams School, students and their parents could use tablets and phones to scan the codes and check out the presentations.

One of the placards promised a slideshow about Block Island, and there was another that was focused on Rhode Island diners. There were other placards for the New England Patriots, Del's Lemonade, Fishing, Brown University, and Lime Rock Lighthouse.

Third-graders Anna Bahena and Molly Thurston completed their project on The Elms. The two girls also created a model of the famous Newport mansion.

"We used shoe boxes and covered them (with paper)," said Molly. "There's some fake grass."

Anna said she helped make some of the bushes.

Both girls said they would like to visit the mansion and, if they were allowed, play a game of hide-and-seek inside.

"I would like to run around the inside," added Anna.

The map, which allows students to complete some project-based learning, has become so popular that Sowams School Principal Jim Callahan recently approached the Barrington Education Foundation and requested a grant so the school could purchase its own Rhode Island floor map.

BEF obliged.

Help the environment — get rid of your lawn

Special presentation will highlight land trust meeting

The Barrington Land Conservation Trust will hold its annual meeting on Wednesday, June 20, at 7 p.m. at the Barrington Public Library Auditorium.

Following a brief business meeting, Mark Richardson will present a talk entitled "Replace your Lawn for More Biodiversity." Mr. Richardson's multi-media presentation will explain that traditional lawns are resource-heavy — they require irrigation, fertilizer, and pesticides to thrive in the New England climate.

He will make the case that most residents would be better off reducing or eliminating lawns altogether and he will discuss how people can replace their lawns with native plants that are functional, beautiful, and environmentally friendly.

Mr. Richardson oversees the New England Wildflower Society's botanic garden, Garden in the Woods, and its native plant nursery in Whately, Mass. He studied ornamental horticulture at the University of Rhode Island and helped run a mid-sized ornamental plant nursery before finding his passion in public horticulture. He is the author of a new book "Native Plants for New England Gardens."

Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

Stray cat scanned, returned to its owner

Barrington police responded to a County Road real estate office on Friday, June 1, after a stray cat turned up there. The police officer brought the cat to the Riverside Animal Hospital to be checked out — workers at the animal hospital scanned the cat's microchip. The scan revealed that the cat belonged to a Bristol resident. Police called the Bristol woman who came to pick up her cat; the Bristol woman said her cat had gone missing two weeks earlier, on Friday, May 18.

Police: No parking on Nayatt

Police chief says cars parked on side of road are dangerous

Barrington Police Chief John LaCross is reminding residents and non-residents that parking is not permitted along Nayatt Road.

Recently, people unable to find parking spaces in the dirt lot at the Tillinghast Place property owned by the Rhode Island School of Design on Nayatt Road, instead parked their cars, trucks and SUVs along the edge of Nayatt Road.

Chief LaCross said the parked cars created a dangerous situation for motorists, bicyclists and pedestrians on Nayatt. He said parking is not permitted on Nayatt, and added that he may request "No Parking" signs be installed along the road.

Local legislators sponsor 'Safe Schools' and weapons ban bills

Members of RI Coalition Against Gun Violence visit Statehouse

More than 50 members of the RI Coalition Against Gun Violence attended a Lobby Day at the Rhode Island Statehouse in late May to advocate for the passage of the Safe Schools Act (H7591, S2289) and the Assault Weapons Ban (H7766, S2493).

Barrington Representatives Jason Knight and Joy Hearn, and Senator Cindy Coyne are sponsors of these two bills.

Rhode Island is one of only four states that generally allows the carrying of concealed guns in K-12 schools. The Safe Schools Act would ban the concealed carrying of guns in Rhode Island K-12 schools except for peace officers, which includes police officers (including retired officers) and school resource officers.

The RI Police Chiefs Association supports this bill.

The Assault Weapons Ban is a bill to ban the sale, transfer, manufacture and importation of military style weapons and high capacity magazines. Neighboring states Massachusetts and Connecticut — and 8 other states — already ban weapons of war for civilian use.

All workshops will be open to the public with several targeted for seniors, students, and homeown- ers."

The Rhode Island Department of Health recently awarded $42,000 in grants to 10 local groups, including $4,900 to Barrington, to work on projects related to climate change education and community resilience. The grants are aimed at helping communities prepare for, respond to, and recover from the adverse effects of climate change.

In alignment with the RIDOH's Climate Change Program's mission, Barrington officials intend to use the grant to assist in the creation of a multi-faceted community outreach program that will "function to both raise awareness of and motivate actions to mitigate the harmful health risks from climate change that are associated with extreme heat, mosquitos and ticks, storms, and flooding."

The outreach program will be a week of workshops that will be held in August.

EDITORIAL

A level playing field

It's time the Rhode Island Interscholastic League levels the playing field. For too long, public high school sports teams have been forced to play against private high school sports teams that recruit players from a wide region.

Our gripe is not with the private school teams. Our gripe is with the league that allows the privates to compete against the publics for the same titles.

One does not need to have an extensive sports background to see the challenge public high school sports teams face each year when they step on the pitch, court or track oval against private school sports teams. In many cases, the student-athletes from Barrington High School, East Providence, Portsmouth and beyond are facing off against hand-picked all-star teams.

In fact, the public school teams in Rhode Island face the double-hit of losing talent (often some of their best) to local private schools and then having to play against that same talent twice a year during the regular season and again in the playoffs.

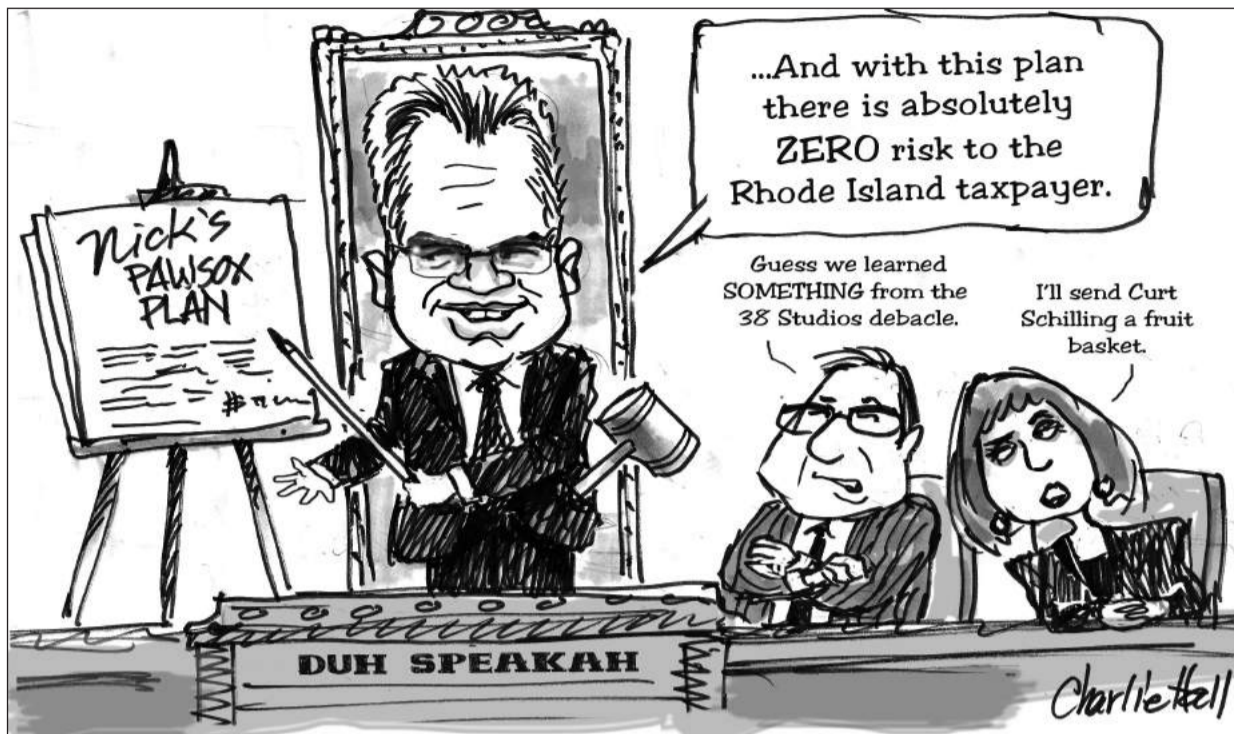

Barrington High School's boys and girls lacrosse teams should be especially irked by the system. The BHS boys' lacrosse team was eliminated from the playoffs by Moses Brown in the semifinals this spring, while the BHS girls lost to Moses Brown in the girls' championship.

The Interscholastic League makes a choice to allow the private schools to play against the public schools. LaSalle, Bishop Hendricken, Prout, St. Raphael's and the other Rhode Island private schools could take their games to private school leagues, such as the New England Preparatory School Athletic Council. There, the Rams, Hawks, Quakers and others could play against similar teams that recruit. Many would likely flock to see a basketball game pitting Hendricken against St. Andrew's School or Tilton School or Vermont Academy.

It's time officials take a serious look at the inequities in Rhode Island high school athletics. It's time they get serious about leveling the playing fields.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Standing watch over sacred grounds

To the editor:

These are but a few of the many souls — named and unnamed — whom we honor reverently in well-kept cemeteries across our small New England town of Barrington.

General John A. Logan, regarded as the most important figure in the movement to recognize Memorial Day, called on his fraternal organization the Grand Army of the Republic and the entire nation to "...cherish tenderly the memory of our heroic dead, who made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes..."

The Barrington Cemetery Commission has since its establishment in Jan. 1909, worked without end (and without taxpayer dollars) to honor the memory of our war dead; our military veterans; and residents from every background who are laid to rest in the six pastoral cemeteries under our care throughout town.

As one of three commissioners, I speak for the body when I write that it is a distinct honor to be tasked with the oversight of our sacred grounds and to stand watch over each of our citizens who rest here in hallowed peace.

All voters' lives matter

To the editor:

The town meeting does not meet the needs and does not respect the will of all the people and families who live in Barrington.

I would think that this was very clear at an FTM that arranged for babysitting, special parking and shuttle services when very few people showed up to take advantage of these services. Two sides were divided in the room with a large space between back and front. This meeting was meant for taxpayers and should not have included high school students' dramatic exposés.

Citizen taxpayers are giving up.

The feeling was palpable as I walked out of the meeting shaken, and regretting that I spoke in anger at the disinterested group of the town government sitting on the stage with many others who felt they are not represented either but were able to hold their frustration back as we left that meeting early. Sorry to say the smarter ones of us gave up a few years ago because they know they are not going to be represented. As for the people getting up and leaving after the antiquated vote was taken, we left not because our students have or are going to graduate, many of us have been lifelong residents who see and fear that because no one is listening we will not be able to stay in Barrington.

"When a majority of citizens disagrees with the economic elite and/ or organized interests, they gradually lose. Moreover because of the strong status quo bias built into the U.S. political system, even when fairly large majorities of Americans favor policy change they do not get it." — The Princeton Study

*Writer 'likes to hear himself talk'To the editor:

I'm all kinds of amused that I was the subject of a defensive diatribe by Mr. Fuller in this past week's Letters to the Editor, and just had to answer before I go back to my "leftist" life. By the way, "puritanical" was such a hilariously inept assessment of me that it just leaves me chuckling.

I must admit to not having an American Civics class in middle school. The topic was not considered an essential course of study in the British educational system in which I was raised. As to US History, it is entirely possible I was out sick the day that was covered. Regardless, over the years of my multiple degrees I have managed to gain a reasonable understanding of the historical context and contents of the US Constitution, and still don't think its concepts are contradicted by the signs, as Mr. Fuller seems to indicate by his ongoing referral to them. Indeed, quite the reverse.

If indeed our laws are our sanctuary, we wouldn't need to express the concern and sadness that those laws are currently being violated. The wide-ranging vilification of people with differing views, countries of origin, or sexual orientation is at the very heart of what is currently the climate of conservative America, and the antithesis of this country's origins.

Mr. Fuller repeatedly referring to the Constitution to validate why we shouldn't feel the need to express those concerns is, once again, completely missing the point. We do need to express them. Within the current climate of our society, as determined by the political administration that has been in charge since 2016, those civil liberties we "should" have are overshadowed by prejudice, fundamentalism, religious heavy handedness in a country that was founded on the separation of church and state, and an outrageous misuse of power.

The Hate Has No Home Here signs are saying, that's not okay, that's not the climate we think is ethical, nor is it the climate of which the United States should be in the midst. Especially given this country's origins and the tenets on which it was built, tenets which are still respected and valued by the majority of its people. Is Mr. Fuller saying America is only America if its views are those of the original 20? Seriously?

I would argue that hundreds of years of "revisionist" legal changes, amendments, and reforms are what cause nations to thrive, including this one. The ideals, however, are still revered by the many.

Twelve years before the Constitution was drafted, the United States birthed itself by declaring independence from Britain. In its opening, they declared, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

I embrace my own "impudence". If the founders of the United States didn't themselves exhibit impudence, your nation would still be part of mine.

I would venture a guess that Mr. Fuller just likes to hear himself talk. "Full of sound and fury, indicating nothing."

As to the metanoia Mr. Fuller seems to think I need, it's a presumption lacking in veracity to determine that I need to undergo a shift in my spiritual views in order to understand his, which in itself is not only hypocritical but also corroborative of my original assertion that he was missing the point.

I don't recall specifically referring to Mr. Fuller as being a white, male, Christian Republican nor did I at any point indicate individuals fitting this description would not be welcome in my home.

Did I call Mr. Fuller a bigot or a racist? I must have missed that part of my letter. Regardless, if that is what he identifies as being, I wouldn't presume to dispute that.

But Mr. Fuller, in answer to your question as to whether you would be welcome in my home, the answer is a definite no. Not because of your political or religious affiliation, or the color of your skin, or because you possess a penis, but because of your condescending, bombastic attacks on individuals you know nothing about beyond their support of the Hate Has No Home Here signs.

Plus, you're really annoying and I have better things to do.

With that said, it's clear we'll have to agree to disagree, but I would much rather forego further personal attacks. I'm a nice person, but I also don't take abuse, and your letter was such. Just stop.

GRADUATION: Class of 2018 praised for its achievements, sense of community passionate about, and enjoy every step of this exciting journey that you are about to embark on," he said.

Senior class president Sam Read offered a welcome address to the families and friends of this year's graduates. He said he was initially thrilled to be given the opportunity to share a speech during the graduation ceremony but panicked a bit when he tried to figure out how to mention all the accomplishments and achievements for the students in the Class of 2018.

Sam worked through the challenge and offered this unique solution: He told his classmates, who were all seated at that time, that he was going to read statements and if they answered yes to any of the statements then they should stand up.

As Sam rolled through his statements — anyone who has planned an event at the school; anyone who has been a member of a championship team; anyone who has performed in a school play, etc. — more and more members of the Class of 2018 began standing. Before long, each and every graduate was standing.

"Ladies and gentlemen, these are the great members of the Class of 2018," Sam said, as applause filled the air.

The class president then led his classmates in a round of applause for all the parents, teachers and staff members who have supported them over the years.

Madyson Borek shared her essay with the large crowd and spoke about the friendships students have made with teachers. She also thanked the local educators.

"You've done so much more for us than you will ever know," she said. "You guys are the reason we're walking across this stage today. The reason we're walking across it and not running across it to get away."

Following a performance by the high school choral ensemble, George Connelly shared his essay.

George said there has been one constant for the Class of 2018 — "community." Referencing a quote, he said "Without a sense of caring, there can be no sense of community." He then added: "I've seen it first hand, and my classmates have seen it first hand: this class cares."

POLICE REPORT

Police called to dog park for alleged animal cruelty

Tuesday, May 29

An 8-year-old Barrington boy was bitten on the lip by his family's dog. Police received a call from the Rhode Island Department of Health, alerting the police to the incident. Police spoke with the family, which said the dog was up to date on its rabies vaccination. The dog had allegedly been licking the boy's face when it then bit his upper lip.

Wednesday, May 30

Police assisted during a vehicle repossession in the Bay Spring area of town.

Police officers responded to an Alfred Drown Road home after a resident's dog had "an encounter" with a raccoon. The dog's owner told police that the 4-year-old golden retriever was not injured, and was also up to date with its rabies vaccination.

A Sowams Road resident told police he received a notice from a collection agency about an overdue utility bill for a multi-family home in North Providence that he used to own. The Barrington man told police he sold the multi-family in 2004. The unpaid bill was from 2015.

Police responded to Adelaide Avenue for a noise complaint. One neighbor said the other was playing the radio too loudly; the two resident's homes are located close to one another. Police officers ran a noise meter to see if the radio exceeded the allowable decibel level, but it did not. Police were later called back to the two homes for a related issue. Officers told the residents to try to be more mindful of each other. No one was charged.

Thursday, May 31

A Barrington woman told police someone cashed a fraudulent check against her bank account recently. The woman said the fraudulent check was written out for $1,000 and was later cashed at the TD Bank branch in Barrington. Officials said it appeared the check was "old."

Friday, June 1

Police responded to a Preston Drive home for a report of an injured raccoon in the garage. The officer later euthanized the raccoon.

A Nayatt Road resident contacted police about an issue with her neighbor. The resident told officers that she had met with the building inspector, who had advised her to remove some bushes to improve a dangerous road intersection near her home. The woman had followed the instructions, but the woman who had initially complained about the "line of sight" said she still could not see around the corner well enough. That woman later approached the Nayatt Road resident who had the bushes removed and started yelling at her. Police responded to the property and told the original complainant that she needed to stay off her neighbor's property and if she had any other issues she should call the police.

Saturday, June 2

Police are investigating some vandalism that occurred on Salisbury Road and Brook Street late Friday night or early Saturday morning. More than a half-dozen residents on those two streets discovered Saturday morning that someone had smashed their mailboxes. Police are asking anyone with more information to call the confidential tip line at 437-3933.

An officer responded to the Haines Park dog park at about 10 a.m. after someone called the station to report a possible case of animal cruelty. The unidentified caller told police an elderly man was hitting a pit bull with a plastic leash. When the officer arrived at the park, he asked the people there if any of them had called in the incident. No one said they did. One resident, did, however, say that a man had tried to stop one dog from mounting another dog.

A Wildflower Road resident told police his wallet, phone, car keys and house keys were all stolen from a locker at the Bayside YMCA. The man said he had secured the items inside a locker and placed a combination lock on the locker, but someone forced open the locker and stole the items. The man later tried to "ping" his phone, which showed that it was somewhere in the area of Half Mile Road. Police searched that area but could not locate the phone.

A Cedar Avenue man told police someone called his home and claimed to be a computer technician, and said he had overcharged the man and wanted to give him back $300. The caller then asked for the man's bank account information. The resident initially shared the information, but then, realizing it may have been a scam, contacted the bank and closed his account.

Monday, June 4

Police responded to a Fales Avenue home to check on a resident. The man told police someone had been calling his home and threatening to kill him.

Girls lacrosse reaches finals, loses to Quakers

Barrington battles back from early deficit

The Barrington High School girls lacrosse team fell behind 7-2 in the first half of the Division I state championship game against Moses Brown, but battled back to eventually tie the score 7-7 before losing to the Quakers 18-11.

Barrington entered the play-offs as the number three seed and faced a tough, top-seeded Moses Brown team.

"Moses Brown has a stellar girls' lacrosse program — coached well and led by some of the best players in the nation," said Barrington High School coach Olivia Ougheltree.

"We came out strong against them, played competitively, and for that, I cannot be more proud of my girls."

Hope Robertson led Barrington's offensive attack. The senior scored five goals, while Clare Gaffney and Tess Gagliano each finished with two goals and two assists. Ann Berkery and Hope Vetromile each scored single goals. Megan Mahoney and Elizabeth Lewis also played well for Barrington.

"In my first year as the head coach at Barrington, I couldn't have asked for a better group of girls. Led by a determined and energetic senior class, this team bought into a new coach, a restructured program, and big expectations. During the last few weeks of the season, it was evident just how hungry this team was. They played with heart, they played with composure, but most importantly, they played as a team," said Ougheltree.

The first-year Eagles coach said the future is bright for Barrington girls lacrosse, and also wanted to praise the contributions of this year's seniors: "Special thanks to our senior class - Aly Vetromile, Annie Berkery, Clare Gaffney, Hope Robertson, Megan Mahoney, and Parker Kirkwood."

Barrington girls finish second at state track meet

Kate Zitzmann and Annika Kelly lead Eagles to strong finish

The Barrington High School girls track team, powered by some impressive performances, finished second at the state track championship, held at Brown University on Saturday, June 2.

Annika Kelly finished second in the discus and the hammer throw. Annika, a junior, recorded a distance of 122 feet, 10 inches in the discus, and threw the hammer 169 feet, 2 inches.

Kate Zitzmann was strong in some running events. The senior finished second in the 1,500 with a time of 4:44.70, and was fourth in the 800 with a time of 2:20.73. She also ran a leg of Barrington's 4x400 meter relay team, which finished third.

Caroline Livingston was impressive at states. She finished third in the 1,500 and fifth in the 800. Tea Bishop finished eighth in the 800, and Stephanie Chun was eighth in the 1,500.

Julia Howarth finished sixth in the 400 meter race, and Lily Sefranek was seventh in the 3,000.

Barrington's relay teams performed well at states. The 4x400 team of Audrey Gravelle, Julia Howarth, Jordynn Palethorpe and Kate Zitzmann finished third, as did the 4x800 team of Tea Bishop, Stephanie Chun, Lyndsey Turgeon and Meghan Zitzmann. Barrington's 4x100 meter relay team of Julia Howarth, Abigail Walter, Jillian Walter and Olivia Middleton raced to a sixth place finish.

In addition to running a leg of the 4x100 relay, Middleton also finished fifth in the long jump with a distance of 16 feet, 10 inches, and was seventh in the triple jump with a distance of 34 feet, 4.75 inches.

Faith Polando and Sydney Polando performed well in the hammer — Faith finished seventh with a distance of 152 feet, 1 inch, and Sydney was eighth with a distance of 149 feet, 5 inches.

Wicker, Jamie Gunness, Ethan Major and Eliot Laidlaw broke the 2015 school record, clocking an 8:05.51. The time was strong enough for a fifth place finish in the event. (The previous record was held by Grant Auber, Gerald Guerrieri, Max Guerrieri, and Sam Somera.)

Eliot Laidlaw also set a new Barrington High School record in the 3,000 meter race. Laidlaw clocked an 8:49.50, which eclipsed the old mark set by Cyrus Cousins in 2011.

"We had some great work on the track too from our young hurdlers Jack Cheng and Walter Joachim-Delpoio, with Walter close to scoring in the 300 intermediates," wrote Barrington coach Bill Barrass.

Against Woonsocket, Barrington's George Promades got the start and pitched 4 and 2/3 innings of 3-hit, no-run ball with 4 walks and 4 strikeouts to earn the victory. Nick Peecher closed out the visitors with the final out, leaving runners stranded on base.

They left a runner on third with 1 out in the first, and bases loaded with 1 out in the third. The Eagles grabbed a 1-0 lead in the third on a single and rbi by Michael Pfeffer. They hit into a double play in the fifth to end a rally.

The Eagles offense was led by Zeleznik with 2 singles, Pfeffer with a single, double and rbi, Marra with a single, Johnson with a single and Matt Macaluso with a double.

AT THE LIBRARY

Poitier film series

Librarian and film enthusiast Doug Swiszczy is presenting a five-week Sidney Poitier film lecture series in the library's Salem Family Auditorium. Films are on Fridays at 1 p.m. and are preceded by commentary from Mr. Swiszczy. They are free and open to all.

On June 8, the final film is "In the Heat of the Night." The award-winning 1967 film features Poitier as Virgil Tibbs, a Philadelphia homicide detective who must endure the prejudices and small-mindedness of a racially hostile Mississippi town as he helps the local police chief (Rod Steiger) solve a murder case.

The film won five Academy Awards, including Best Picture and Best Actor for Rod Steiger. Although more than 50 years old, the film still resonates in the racially divided America of the 21st century. Lee Grant plays the widow of the murdered man. The color film runs for 110 minutes and is unrated.

For more information, visit the website or call Mr. Swiszczy at ext. 304.

Tech classes

Meet author Bob Wyss for a book presentation and signing of his book, "The Man Who Built the Sierra Club: A Life of David Brower" published by Columbia University Press in 2016, at library on Tuesday, June 12, at 6:30 p.m.

The talk is part of the library's Meet the Author series.

David Brower (1912-2000) was a central figure in the modern environmental movement. In many ways, he was a 20th-century Thoreau. Mr. Brower transformed the Sierra Club into a national force that challenged and stopped federally sponsored projects that would have dammed the Grand Canyon and destroyed hundreds of millions of acres of our nation's wilderness.

Guidelines for sending us college graduation notices

If you want to let everyone know that you (or your child) is graduating, now is the time to get the information to the Barrington Times. Some colleges and universities don't send out complete notices (including parents' names, honors received or employment plans) and most do not include photographs.

Due to the large volume of notices, the Barrington Times can only print a graduation notice once. So, submit additional information or a photograph as soon as possible.

'Dancing' on the spectrum on stage

New play explores romance and relationship between a dancer and a teacher on the autism spectrum

BY F. WILLIAM OAKES

Star crossed lovers and the attraction of opposites; now that's a story as old as stories itself.

In the play "Dancing Lessons," now at 2nd Story Theatre, this age old trope is given a new and timely twist. In this poignant, quirky heartwarming play, a Professor with Asperger's syndrome needs to learn to dance. He finds instruction from a dancer with an injured leg. From this unlikely meeting springs romance, insight and mutual understanding.

When I attended a recent rehearsal, 2nd Story Theatre Artistic Director Ed Shea explained that "these two characters are etched mired in the vast expanse between left brain and right brain." The teacher is very literal minded, focused on the facts of the matter. The dancer, as artists are wont to be, has little concern for such mundane matters. This dichotomy inherent in the play meets in the middle between the joy of 'dancing' and the hard scholarship of 'lessons.'

Learning can and should be a joy as well, and language connects us all. Talking can be like learning to dance. But we are all each wired differently and perception varies widely. Onstage language is action itself, it is freedom. But learning to listen and decipher is the key to that freedom.

At the rehearsal I attended, considerable insight was provided by Nick Gallop of the Asperger/Autism Network. "The thought process of existence takes over the body," he explained, to live on the spectrum is "to be overwhelmed by the intensity of thought." A friendly and gregarious man, Mr. Gallop was generous enough to come and share his insights and experiences with the cast of "Dancing Lessons." This proved to be an illuminating and wonderful experience.

Mr. Gallop aided and assisted the actors on the realities of living, and thriving, with the Asperger's diagnosis. Much of this consisted of "trying to do what 'neurotypicals' expect and the struggle to "imitate neurotypical behavior." This is, he explains "often a choice between being more lonely and being yourself."

"Assimilation," he expounds, "is a mask." Diagnosed at age 8, he recalls his life "on the spectrum," an Asperger's diagnosis that affects one in 68 Americans. He describes a hyper-awareness that shapes his ends and notes the struggle to imitate "what neurotypicals expect."

"I have a lot of social anxiety," he continued. "I can come off as antagonistic without meaning to." The act of processing the phenomena of life and assuming "transitions between modes of thought without logic can be difficult," and Mr. Gallop describes the internally "manual and not automatic way" he has had to catch himself to react in ways that he is not familiar with. Learning to add vocal inflections to indicate a joke he's making, for example, and overcoming "expressing empathy with an almost robotic feel and the impulse to explain everything he's feeling to everyone."

Eventually he studied psychology in college with an aim to understand and to help, got his degree and now works for the Asperger/Autism Network. "Removing the mask in order to explain the mask" and provide a greater understanding. "I'm a rebel for not agreeing to other classifications" of what one might assume the life on this spectrum is all about. "It's not hard, it's not easy. It's how I process."

The human mind/body connection is a mysterious thing, and that is something that is deftly explored in Mark St. Germain's pithy and insightful play. The professor Ever Montgomery and dancer Senga Quinn "each teach each other and grow from characteristics the other lacked in the beginning," Ed Shea explained. How we perceive and process this world we live in is an

POLI-TICKS

Dr. Munoz has the right medicine for Rhode Island's ills

One of the great benefits of writing a column is that you get to meet interesting people. It is even more rewarding when you listen to somebody who is young and who has altruistic plans that can actually work.

One such person is Dr. Luis Daniel Munoz, an independent candidate for governor. Previously, I wrote a column about his candidacy, which focused on his innovative plans for economic development which would spur the creation of medical devices and the nanotechnology of the future. On May 30 he held a press conference to elaborate on his idea of a new type of community health initiatives as well as education of a new work force. Here are some of his ideas:

MEND-i (Mend and Innovate Community Health) represents a new type of community health centers which improves access to quality and timely health care. Participating community health systems would adopt the latest telemedicine and home monitoring technologies in order to provide accessible, affordable and higher quality care for all Rhode Island families.

Through Skype and other conferencing mechanisms, addiction services, mental health services, and care coordination for seniors and veterans would be available online. Being able to "dial-up" professionals online not only would improve care delivery but also would reduce hospital costs by saving lives through better preventive measures.

DINO (Dynamic Intelligence for National Opportunity) — Doctor Munoz believes that investing in people by creating a nationally recognized tech-force that will power great industries has to be a laser focus on the state's educational efforts.

Starting in middle school, children have to be exposed to "idea creation" through after-school initiatives on creative and vocational training. By leveraging private and public technical universities and colleges by the time a student is in high school, these after school programs will produce a highly skilled and civically engaged talent force. Credits would be transferable to the universities and the older students would interact as mentors for younger students through programs at the YMCA, YWCA, and other community centers.

Given the expected rapid changes in technology, Dr. Munoz wants course offerings to be vetted by business metrics and real time work at businesses. Juniors and seniors would have the opportunity to be part of a work force as interns and, parenthetically, earn money for college. Real life experience would count as credits toward graduation and also cut down on course redundancy.

RINO (Redefining Intelligence for National Opportunity) — Dr. Munoz sees the need to have frequent retraining programs for adults. This initiative would embody necessary language learning services, certification credits and business course work (e.g. business ethics, professional rhetoric, and finance).

In effect, RINO is the adult version of DINO and would be open to adult learners and non-traditional students. The education would try to anticipate the growth, for example, in database professions from medical coding to robotics with learning how to code and react to alert sensors, etc. This program would focus on intermediary and high demand technical and managerial jobs in healthcare, manufacturing, sensor diagnostics and database management.

Nobody would ever accuse Dr. Munoz of being a small thinker. His bottom line is undoubtedly correct: Educational excellence is about building people, not buildings. He is an asset in the debate over Rhode Island's future.

important issue for this playwright, who penned a play seen a while back at 2nd Story: "Freud's Last Session" in which Freud met C.S. Lewis and issues of faith and reason were much discussed.

With this play, the internal conflict between science and imagination is explored. There is a intersection between their concerns that does not exactly match up; much as music and mathematics are intrinsically linked, but an equation is not a sonata.

"Truth is more than data," Senga exclaims, to which Ever replies, "yes but it is only the chemistry of the brain that creates imagination." In the midst of the budding romantic relationship, we see a microcosm of the big questions that civilization has always wrestled with since Aristotle warned in his Poetics that the dramatic arts "are a lie that tells the truth."

In the course of this play, each character's train of thought operates on different schedules; Ever's makes a lot of stops to halt and process while Senga's takes a more direct route. The characters are lovingly and endearingly played by the talented young actors, Cam Torres and Rachel Tondreaul. To watch their initial courtship dance is to fall in love. This is so wonderfully painful," Senga exclaims, and Ever notes that "I want my brain to stop it, but my body won't listen. I'm confused but not disturbed."

Watching these talented actors rehearse, Nick Gallop exclaimed about the play that "the dialogue that brings them together is amazing." These words ring true, and Mr. Gallop brought considerable verisimilitude to these proceedings, remarking and consulting exactitude of the reality presented here, right down the mechanical details of sensory issues such as the difficulty Ever might have in making eye contact while delivering a particular line.

Theatre is an art form both literal and figurative. Through very specific words and actions it can convey the ineffable and help us understand ourselves, and each other, in ways we didn't necessarily grasp before. Our daily conundrum is that while truth is stranger than fiction, we sometimes need a little fiction to explain that truth. Quirky, funny, engaging and just plain lovely, "Dancing Lessons" promises to help us all understand ourselves and each other a little bit more.

At 2nd Story Theatre, 28 Market St., Warren; though July 1. For tickets and information call 401/247-4200 or visit 2ndstorytheatre.com.

Good Health IN THE EAST BAY

All sunscreens are NOT created equal

According to the American Academy of Dermatology, 20% of Americans will develop skin cancer in their lifetime. Along with hats and protective clothing, sunscreen is one of the most important tools used to prevent skin damage and skin cancers.

- Very water resistant: these are effective for up to 80 minutes in water but then re-application is needed.

If no water is present, sunscreens are effective up to 2 hours. Alternately, if you are toweling off sweat or water, you are also toweling off sunscreen and will need to immediately re-apply.

But how do you know you are picking the right sunscreen for you and your family? Knowing what the language written on the back of a sunscreen package means is half the battle.

So now that you know the terminology, let's discuss types of sunscreen.

Broad spectrum sunscreen protects us from both UVA and UVB sun rays. UVA rays penetrate deeper into the skin causing wrinkles and breaking down the structure of the skin. UVB rays are more superficial and cause sunburns. By protecting your skin from both UVA and UVB you are ultimately helping prevent skin damage that can end in skin cancer, premature skin aging, and sunburns.

There are two major types of sunscreen, chemical sunscreens and physical sunscreens. What's the difference?

- Chemical sunscreens absorb the sun's rays to decrease skin penetration. They also typically contain chemicals like oxybenzone and avobenzone.

- Physical sunscreens, however, deflect the sun's rays and contain minerals like zinc and titanium dioxide. These sunscreens tend to be recommended for babies and those with sensitive skin.

Sun Protection Factor, or SPF, is defined as how well sunscreen protects you from sunburn. It is important to note there are no sunscreens that filter out 100% of sun's UVB rays. The AAD recommends using at least SPF 30 which filters out 97% of UVB rays.

- People with sensitive skin should also consider physical sunscreens that do not have fragrance, oil, PABA or chemicals

What is waterproof sunscreen? THERE IS NO SUCH THING. Sweat and water wash sunscreen from our skin. However, the FDA does recognize water resistance and has broken down sunscreens into two categories:

It's no secret that we spend a lot of time out in the Rhode Island summer sun. Sunburns usually occur in not enough sunscreen is used, if there is no reapplication, or if the product is expired. If you are planning on spending time in the sun, make sure you pick out the best product for you and make sure you reapply as needed. Or better yet, stay shady Barrington!

- Water resistant: these sunscreens are effective for approximately 40 minutes in water. After that time, reapplication is needed.

Film Lecture series saluting Sidney Poitier

Librarian and film enthusiast Doug Swiszczy concludes his Sidney Poitier film lecture series with a showing of In the Heat of the Night. The Award-winning Best Film of 1967 features Poitier as Virgil Tibbs, a Philadelphia homicide detective who must endure the prejudices of a racially hostile Mississippi town as he helps the local police chief (Rod Steiger) solve a murder case. Although more than fifty years old, the film still resonates in the racially divided America of the twenty-first century.

HEALTHY EATING

It's spring — eat more asparagus

Asparagus is a delicious spring vegetable, that provides many health benefits. You can find it in different colors during spring months, including green, purple, and white.

1. Asparagus has a good combination of soluble and insoluble fiber. These fibers take longer to digest, leaving you feeling full for longer.

2. It may keep your urinary tract healthy. It is high in the amino acid asparagine. This is a natural diuretic. It can help flush fluid from your body.

3. Loaded with antioxidants. Purple asparagus is full of the antioxidant anthocyanin. Cooking helps increase cancer fighting potential, but avoid overcooking.

4. Good source of vitamin E. Vitamin E helps to boost immune system. To boost your body's absorption, serve with a source of fat. Try roasting it with olive oil.

5. High in folic acid. Folic acid is important for women who are planning to become pregnant. It prevents neural tube defects.

6. Can boost mood. Asparagus is a good source of folate. Some studies have shown that people with low folate levels have decreased mood.

Classic waterfront home is a seaside oasis

Luxury and comfort abound at this spectacular 1908 shingle-style waterfront estate in the desirable Touisset Point section of Warren.

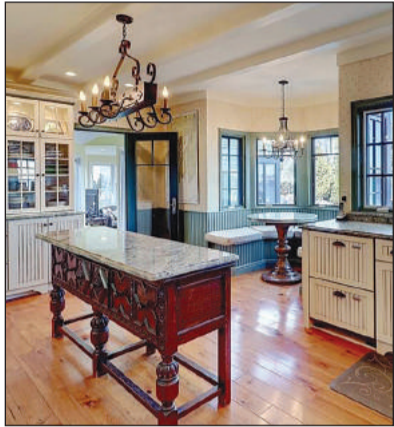

Meticulously maintained and recently updated, the original architecture references Queen Ann and Colonial Revival influences, setting the tone for luxurious seaside living.

A large gambrel roof sits atop a stone accented main level, where a deep porch and walls of windows face Mt. Hope Bay.

Situated majestically on nearly two acres of sweeping lawns to the water's edge, this home has more than 5,000 square feet of gracious living space.

A dramatic entry foyer with a double sided beach stone fireplace leads to the living and family rooms with panoramic water views of Mt. Hope Bay and beyond. The gourmet kitchen has a butler's pantry, and a delightful four-season sunroom, added in 2013, is in keeping with the original conservatory design.

A great room with coffered ceilings and stone fireplace is perfect for entertaining. The second floor comprises three bedrooms and bathroom and luxurious master suite with a gas fireplace and balcony overlooking the water, plus a newly designed master bathroom with radiant heat.

The finished third floor is the perfect retreat for a playroom or rec. room for the kids.

Additional features include a sandy beach, a shared dock, a three-car garage, exercise room and a private, three-room carriage house with 800 square feet of living area.

This Classic seaside home has it all — saltwater pool and a dock for fun on the water.
