For more than 60 years, Bristol's Miss Fourth of July crown has passed from one young woman to another. On Saturday night, that crown passed to 19-year-old University of Rhode Island student Daniela Lopes.

"I'm definitely really excited," Ms. Lopes said after receiving her Miss Fourth of July sash and crown. "I'm proud to represent the town." This was Ms. Lopes' first Miss Fourth of July pageant, although she entered the Little Miss competition years ago.

In this year's Little Miss Fourth of July competition, 8-year-old Lily Sarnowski was named the Split council OKs 2.5% pay hikes for employees

Republicans want smaller raises, but Democrats set them higher

BY ERIC DICKERVITZ

edickervitz@eastbaynewspapers.com

The Bristol Town Council's Democratic majority got its way last Wednesday, when it approved salary increases for non-union town employees of 2 1/2 percent for many, and no more than 5 percent for any. The Republicans on the council tried to decrease those pay raises, to 1 1/2 percent for most, but failed.

The motion to approve the revised salary adjustments was adopted 3-2, with Democrats Nathan Calouro, Edward Stuart Jr. and Timothy Sweeney voting in favor.

Council Chairwoman Mary Parella made a last-ditch effort to set the raises lower, but only fellow Republican and council vice chairman Halsey Herreshoff supported her.

After that motion failed, Councilor Timothy Sweeney presented a revision that reflected salary increases of 2 1/2 percent for most of the town's 41 non-union employees. An exception is the town clerk, who will receive a 5 percent increase (lower than a 12.9 percent increase originally recommended by the town council). Three employees will receive no raises under the revised plan. That motion passed by the 3-2 vote.

Collectively, the raises for this group of employees will cost the town $44,723 next fiscal year. The largest increase goes to Town Clerk Louis Cirillo, whose new salary will be $71,711. Raises will go into effect on July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year.

Coast Guard chief is new Bristol harbormaster

While hiring new harbormaster, town eliminates assistant job

After serving in the Coast Guard for 20 years, Chief Gregg Marsili will take on new duties as Bristol's next harbormaster. After an extensive vetting process whittled down a field of 14 applicants to three qualified candidates, Mr. Marsili was chosen over interim harbormaster Matthew Calouro and David Sylvaria Jr.

As part of the hiring process, the Bristol Town Council and Town Administrator Tony Teixeira interviewed each of the three top candidates in closed-door sessions. On Wednesday, May 22, the council reconvened in executive session and, after deliberating for more than two hours, chose Mr. Marsili. The decision was made 3-0, with Councilor Nathan Calouro, brother of candidate Matthew Calouro, recusing himself from the harbormaster discussions, and Councilor Edward Stuart Jr. abstaining.

A small gathering of interested parties waited inside Town Hall for the council's decision. Prior to making the announcement public, the council communicated its decision to each of the three candidates while still in executive ses-

Council Chairwoman Mary Parella issued a statement regarding the decision.

"Given the high importance of this position in Bristol, which has particularly attractive and active harbors, the council organized an especially thorough process of selection over a period of five months. Mr. Marsili was chosen based upon his outstanding credentials and demonstrated success in activities closely aligned to his duties as becoming harbormaster. The council considered the safety of the town's waterways to be paramount, and cites Mr. Marsili's experience as a demonstrated capability to provide strong, basic control of the harbor patrol function."

The statement went on to acknowledge the service provided by interim harbormaster Matthew Calouro, thanking him for "his excellent leadership and service."

Although the selection was made by a council majority, the position reports to the town administrator. Mr. Teixeira was satisfied with the council's choice.

"All three candidates brought very strong points they could bring into the position," said Mr. Teixeira. "It is unfortunate for Matt (Calouro). He's invested 14 years in the system."

full-time assistant harbormaster in Bristol, while his father-in-law, Joe Cabral, was part-time harbormaster. Upon Mr. Cabral's retirement in December, Mr. Calouro agreed to become interim harbormaster while the position description and salary were redefined and a search committee assembled to screen applicants for the job. As a result of the reorganization of the department, the assistant harbormaster position has been eliminated in favor of a full-time harbormaster and administrative assistant. He also holds the harbormaster position for the Town of Warren.

Mr. Marsili's qualifications include a bachelor of science in Management, extensive experience in maritime law enforcement, search and rescue, vessel maintenance, and navigation. Mr. Marsili, a recipient of many service accommodations, currently holds the rank of chief and is officer in charge at the Aids to Navigation station in

The harbormaster salary is $58,000. Mr. Marsili will begin his new duties in June.

Grants will pay for walking tour app, more

The Rhode Island Historical Preservation and Heritage Commission has given three grants, totaling about $13,000, to support three preservation projects in Bristol. The first grant of $3,000, managed by the Bristol Historical & Preservation Society, will support the development of a smartphone application that guides users on walking tours of Bristol's historic districts.

The second grant of $4,000 will fund an existing conditions assessment and maintenance plan for the historic buildings at Mount Hope Farm. The third grant of $6,000 will support a planning study of the Bristol Industrial Park/Bristol Rubber Works that will guide redevelopment by the Mosaico Community Development Corporation.

Sakonnet River Bridge tolls are just a month away

Bristol joins Portsmouth and Tiverton in lawsuit to prevent tolls

Drivers crossing the Sakonnet River Bridge Friday for the first time passed beneath the new toll "gantry," the support towers for which went up quickly the day

Drivers "should not be alarmed they won't be charged a toll tomorrow," said David Darlington, chairman of the Rhode Island Turnpike and Bridge Authority. He said that won't happen until late June or, more likely, early July.

The bridge authority is trying to determine whether or not to charge tolls over the Fourth of July, Mr. Darlington said. "To avoid the drama" of starting tolls just before the Fourth (a Thursday) ... we may wait until the following Monday," although that decision has not yet been made.

While the structure was in place this Friday, it still needs wiring, cameras and E-ZPass scanners. work that will take another two or three weeks.

After that, the $2.3 million system must all be tested. The "fidelity" of license plate pictures must be honed to make sure that identifications are accurate and nobody is charged who should not be.

"So we are talking five or six weeks altogether," he said.

The open-road tolling system is being installed by Law Enforcement Systems, the company hired by the authority to handle the

Mr. Darlington said transponders are available now, but that customers should wait until an official announcement is made to take advantage of a purchase price credit that has been set up.

The transponders cost $20.95, an amount that will be credited to the motorist's toll account — "so in effect it will be free," he said. The same deal was available when E-Z Pass started at the Newport

Transponders will be available via the authority website, at the Jamestown headquarters, and at every area AAA office.

out of state in the northeast part of the country, from Illinois to the east and from North Carolina

The work is going on despite the fact that bills before the state legislature aiming to block tolls have not yet been decided. Also not resolved is a lawsuit filed by Portsmouth, Bristol and Tiverton challenging the legality of the toll

Mr. Darlington said the Authority is obliged to proceed with tolls. As it now stands, tolls are authorized. If that changes, "we would not charge tolls." What would become of the new equipment (whose total cost is $2.3 million) has not been decIded.

The 'open-road tolling' system means there will be no toll booths nor toll takers. Toll rates, already approved by the Federal Highway Administration, are 75 cents for vehicles with Rhode Island E-Z Pass tags, $3.75 for out-of-state E-Z Pass, and $5.25 for vehicles without E-Z Passes of any kind.

Restraining order filed

The Town of Portsmouth didn't wait long to respond to news of the toll gantry going in. In the motion filed by Town Solicitor Kevin P. Gavin last Thursday in Rhode Island U.S. District Court, the town asks for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction.

'Great disappointment'

Chee Laureanno, a leader of the TivertonSTOP anti-toll group, called the arrival of the equipment "a great disappointment."

"They are obviously very confident," she said Thursday. "We have to rely on what our representatives are telling us — that it's not over yet, but quite frankly it seems like it's all a lot of words now ... that equipment speaks for itself."

"The impact of this toll is going to be devastating, but obviously those in power don't care. We have to remember them at the polls," Ms. Laureanno said.

TivertonSTOP leader Jeanne Smith of Portsmouth said she remains hopeful of beating the tolls despite the construction.

"If our leadership does not repeal this toll ... and lets this go through, I say shame on them and shame on our governor ... We might as well be a gated community down here with a big 'Stay Out' sign."

Portsmouth Town Council member David Gleason said he too was upset by the news on the tolls. Mr. Gleason said he thinks the state and RITBA "are working against us" to get the gantry installed "before the bridge is technically completed."

"Everything is choreographed, in my mind," he said.

Rachel Miller of the Rozalia Project visited Bristol, where she spoke to members of Save Bristol Harbor at their annual meeting on Tuesday, May 21.

Using a 60-foot research vessel, the Rozalia Project uses robots and video technology to study the ocean floor and promote the health of the marine ecology. The next morning, the Rozalia Project invited students from Guiteras School in the morning, and Mt. There, Ms. Miller spoke of the challenges and importance of keeping the world's oceans clean.

Speaker says, 'Make every day Memorial Day'

Wreath-laying, parade and crowd recognize 'the ultimate sacrifice'

In a town rich with military tradition, Bristol welcomed soldiers in dress uniforms who stood among the gravestones in front of the War Memorial at the North Burial Ground on Memorial Day. They, along with others who arrived at the morning ceremony, were there to pay their respects and honor those who have died while serving the United States of America.

A crowd of spectators, many of whom served or are related to those who served, gathered around the contingents of military, police and fire personnel who stood at attention for the annual ceremony. Bristol Veterans Council president Karl Antonevich helped place a wreath at the foot of the monument.

Despite the mild temperatures and the sunny morning, the playing of Taps and the report of cannon fire were chilling reminders of those who fought and died in military service.

Among the local, state and federal officials in attendance, Mr. Antonevich introduced the chief marshal for the event, a 20-year military veteran who understands the struggles that those in the military face. Bryan Palumbo, who spoke with great emotion, commented that having only two days set aside to honor veterans — Veterans' Day for those living, and Memorial Day for those who have died — is not nearly enough. He also noted that unlike past generations, when young men would get drafted into military service, today the average American does not realize how many soldiers are still in Afghanistan and stationed in other parts of the world. He doesn't want their service to be forgotten.

"Instead of just two days, try to remember them in the morning and when you go to bed at night," he said. "Make Memorial Day every day."

Mr. Palumbo also reflected on the families of military personnel who, at best, have to acclimate themselves to moving on a regular basis, and at worst, to go on living when a loved one dies in battle. In addressing the crowd, Bristol Town Administrator Tony Teixeira echoed that sentiment.

"Reflect and honor all who have made the ultimate sacrifice. We have all been touched by the ultimate sacrifice men and women have made. Today we remember these soldiers," Mr. Teixeira said.

Retired Navy Captain Dick Devault was the guest speaker for the Memorial Day observance, noting that the long weekend is casually observed as the "unofficial beginning of summer."

"I suspect many do not stop and reflect on the significance of

U.S. Air Force World War II veteran Arthur Lasker and granddaughter, Melissa Astrologo, 10, pose for a photo after the ceremony.

Memorial Day because they are not directly affected," he said.

After the wreath was in place at the North Burial Ground, Ryder Ferris recited Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, before the military divisions, fife and drum corps, Mt. Hope marching band and other units marched down Hope Street to the Burnside Memorial Building.

Hundreds of spectators lined the street and cheered in support for the uniformed men and women, a stark contrast to the more somber tribute among the graves. Cannon and rifle shots from the Bristol Train of Artillery rose above the lively music played by the Mt. Hope band.

Khaki-colored armored vehicles inched their way by wide-eyed children, who waved at the men and women in camouflaged clothes. As was done in the North Burial Ground, personnel gathered in the Memorial Garden, where Forrest and Hunter Rodrigues repeated the Gettysburg Address.

Mr. Antonevich read a list of conflicts that were fought for America freedom, from the Confederate War through "Afghanistan and all other conflicts," with a cannon salute for each battle, in remembrance of those who died in conflict.

Karl Antonevich of the Bristol Veterans Council and parade chief marshall SFC Bryan Palumbo salute the wreath they placed at the foot of the soldiers memorial during the playing of Taps.

Council got it right

ongratulations to the new Bristol Town Council for making the right decision and hiring a qualified professional to be the new harbormaster.

The search for a new harbormaster began at about the same time this council took office, following Joe Cabral's retirement after more than 30 years in the office. His son-in-law, Matt Calouro, was promoted from assistant harbormaster to interim harbormaster, and skeptics presumed he was the favored candidate from day one.

The harbormaster search process, including a search committee, was conceived and proposed by Councilwoman Mary Parella and was approved by the last town council. The current town council followed through with that process, and the outcome is both surprising and refreshing.

We give this council credit for not only overseeing a professional and legitimate search, but for also redefining the Bristol harbormaster position and office. The harbormaster bor patrol officers must carry guns, and whether the town's waterways demand both a harbormaster and assistant harbormaster.

Along the way, that committee made good decisions and created a demanding, professional job description for an office that has underperformed, and at times mismanaged, Bristol's harbor and waterfront, for years.

The council followed its lead and made two bold decisions. First, it hired a highly qualified new harbormaster, Coast Guard Chief Gregg Marsilli — an "outsider" — into an influential management position. Secondly, it eliminated the assistant harbormaster job, deciding that one full-time harbormaster is enough.

We hope the town council will continue to bring the harbormaster's office and position in line with other town departments and shift complete hiring and management control of the office under the town administrator.

This council got it right, and we look forward to positive changes on our waterfront.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A friend's passing sparks good, old memories

To the editor:

Dr. Joe George's recent passing reminded me of my chance first meeting at Colt Park with the distinguished Villanova professor, whom I had never met before but felt I knew him from all his praises sung to me by my old (forever young) fellow Colt High teacher Joe Sousa - when he and I and my dear late friends, my beloved mentors and fellow teachers and administrators Nat Candelmo, Eddie Travers and Frank Canario, all labored happily at the old Colt Memorial High next to Linden Place. Not only a place but a wonderful state of mind.

That day, my wife Louise and I had paused to take a breather on one of our almost daily walks at Colt State Park, near the entrance to Samuel Pomeroy Colt's palatial cow barn guarded by the two cast iron lions. A friendly young man stood there, and we introduced ourselves.

He said: "I'm Joe George."

I replied, "You know, my nephew from Morristown, N.J., played football for Villanova!"

"I had him in my history class. I knew Jon well," said Dr. George.

Small world (and look, there go the Castigliagos on the path up ahead.)

Was it that same day Louise and I pushed on and ran into Ralph Celone with his faithful old dog? Several of my former Colt High students from a favorite graduating class – Suzanne Hazen, Barbara Barlow, Judy Borges, Matilda Sansone, Billy Goglia, Nancy Securo – still keep in touch with me and also drop in and visit Ralph at his extended care facility.

Not too long ago, I was getting into my car after a Colt Park walk and a pretty young woman who jogged by with her daughter stopped, pointed at me and said, "See that man over there? He taught me how to think."

I recognized my Colt student, Pricilla Ruggiero. Her parents owned Priscilla Frocks – and Nat Candelmo did their taxes (and everyone else's). It's funny how my casual conversations with Dr. George charged my forgetful old batteries that day with so many fond memories of all our fine students and teachers at old Colt Memorial High. Rest in peace, Dr. George.

Stop by and talk to your state senator

To the editor:

As the General Assembly enters the final month of the 2013 session, there are several important issues that remain front and center for District 11 (Portsmouth, Bristol, Tiverton) and our state. As I have over the last two years, I will be holding my next constituent office hours Monday, June 3, at Foodworks in Portsmouth from 6 to 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served

I am always available by phone and email, but these office hours give anyone with particular interest in specific legislation an opportunity to come and discuss it. We can review any of the bills that are still in committee or scheduled for a vote. I have received hundreds of communications regarding issues important to our local citizens, including enterprise zones, renewable energy tax credits, and concerns with local DEM regulations.

Of course the legislation regarding elimination of a toll on the Sakonnet Bridge remains a primary focus of discussion. Anyone who wishes to review these items or any others should please attend. I feel it is critical that your elected officials should not only be around during election years, and these sessions give me the opportunity to connect with constituents. I look forward to seeing you there.

Dr. Christopher S. Ottiano Portsmouth Senator, District 11 Customer escorts pony into liquor store police bring him back to clean up the mess

thayes@eastbaynewspapers.com

Just before 8 p.m. on Memorial Day, a man leading a Shetland pony by reins walked into the Patriot Wine and Spirits store on Main Street in Warren, walked through the aisles and left the way he came, but not before the pony left a large, stinky present right inside the main entrance. Craig Dion was the manager on duty at the time.

"I couldn't believe it," he said. "We get a lot of weird stuff, but this tops everything I've seen in here in the last six or seven the front desk.

"She was quiet and didn't say much, but I came out just as he was leaving" and spotted the mess the pony left behind, Mr. Dion said. "I chased the guy down and said, 'You need to clean this up!"

Though the man, later identified as William Saviano, didn't respond, a man he was with came in and made a half-hearted attempt to clean up the poop.

"He kind of took a plastic bag and scooped it up some" and left, Mr. Dion said.

Not satisfied, Mr. Dion called police, who tracked down Mr. Saviano a few minutes later. Police brought him back in a cruiser, where officers ordered him to scrub out the offending substance. There was no word on what became of the pony.

Mr. Dion said he was happy just to get an air freshener in the door, and get the poop cleaned up. There was no need to press charges, he said.

Warren Police Lt. Roland Brule said that when police caught up to Mr. Saviano, he told them that he had brought the pony to a children's birthday party, then stopped for a beer on his way home.

Police makes arrest for DUI, assault and threatening town officials

Monday, May 20

Police arrived at the corner of Chestnut Street and Sherry Avenue at 11:23 p.m. to find a vehicle that struck a utility pole and a man standing nearby. When police approached the man, identified as Austin J. Lake, 18, of 50 Opechee Drive, they allegedly noticed the smell of alcohol on his breath. After finding that he could not successfully complete a field sobriety test, police charged Mr. Lake with driving under the influence of alcohol.

Wednesday, May 22

Police were called to a Bourne Street residence at 2:31 a.m., where a woman said that Brian Grandgeorge, 22, of 39 Bourne St. Apt. 3R, was inside, drunk and was becoming violent toward her. The woman alleged that Mr. Grandgeorge threw items onto the floor and when she attempted to pick them up he kneed her and spit on her. Police arrested Mr. Grandgeorge and charged him with domestic simple assault/battery.

At 7:20 a.m. police went to the home of Alphonse Leite, 39, of 118 Church St., where they served a warrant for his arrest. According to police, a woman who has a restraining order against Mr. Leite received a number of telephone calls from a blocked number and suspected they were from Mr. Leite. Police investigated the calls and determined they were made by Mr. Leite, in violation of the order. He was charged with violation of the protective order.

A woman reported that her wallet was missing after she and an acquaintance traveled for business, and payroll checks that were in the wallet had been cashed. Police investigated and charged John T. Corcoran, 20, of Darien, Conn., with obtaining money under false pretenses.

Representatives from a Metacom Avenue business contacted police after capturing video surveillance of a man in a truck pull onto the property in the early morning hours and place a load of metal into the truck. A police officer observed the suspect truck on Metacom Avenue at 12:47 p.m. and guestioned the driver, Kevin Dasilva, 35, of Tiverton, who allegedly admitted to taking the metal and selling it as scrap. Mr. Dasilva was charged with larceny under $1,500.

Thursday, May 23

Police investigated a complaint after a resident found a letter in his mailbox that made threats to police and a member of the Bristol town council. The letter stated that if a Bristol police cruiser tailgates the individual, he will get out and beat the officer with a coal miner's ax. Among the other content in the letter, the writer also made threats to physically harm a town councilman. Police went to the home of John M. Almeida, 39, of 2 Scott Lane, and charged him with making threats to public officials.

Saturday, May 25

After receiving a call to report a reckless motorist, police stopped a vehicle that fit the description at 10:45 a.m. on Metacom Avenue to check on the wellbeing of the driver. When police checked the driver's identification, they found that Samantha L DiMemmo, 31, of Warren had an active warrant. She was charged on a bench warrant issued by Sixth District Court for failure to appear for a pretrial conference in connection with a Providence Police charge of shoplifting.

At 8:41 p.m., police went to the home of Joshua J. Almeida, 26, of 299 State St. Apt. 3, after a woman complained that he assaulted her and made threats toward her and her family. According to police, the alleged victim said that when she attempted to retrieve personal items from the apartment, Mr. Almeida would not let her inside. She also claimed that two days earlier, Mr. Almeida grabbed her by the neck and choked her while pushing her out of their child's room. The woman also claimed that Mr. Almeida made threats that he would harm the woman, her parents and the couple's child. Police arrested Mr. Almeida and charged him with domestic simple assault/battery.

Guidelines for sending us your college graduation notices

If you want to let Bristol know that you (or your child) is graduating, now is the time to get the information to the Bristol Phoenix office, 1 Bradford St.

Some colleges and universities do not include parents' names, honors received or employment plans, and most do not include photographs.

Due to the large volume of notices we receive, the Bristol Phoenix can only print a graduation notice once. So, submit additional information or a photograph as soon as possible. We need digital photos e-mailed or sent on a disc as a high-resolution jpg or tif. Or, we accept glossy photographs.

We will begin running the notices in June as space permits, and will print all the students from a particular university or college together (so, please be patient).

Drop off any material at the office at 1 Bradford St., mail it to Community News, P.O. Box 90, Bristol 02809, or e-mail it to Lynda Rego at lrego@eastbaynewspapers. com. Include a phone number where you can be reached during the day.

For more information, call 253-6000, ext. 107.

Learn how to grow a cutting garden Saturday

"Growing a Cutting Garden," a two-part series, begins from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, June 1, at Blithewold Mansion, Gardens & Arboretum, 101 Ferry Road.

For gardeners, the ultimate pleasure is to be able to cut flowers from their own garden to beautify their home and give it a fresh look and feel. Guests will meet at Blithewold's greenhouse, then accompany gardens manager Gail Read into the cutting garden, where she will share what she likes to grow for cut flowers. The June session of the two-part series highlights cutting-garden annuals and planting plans.

Bristol historical society to meet and hear a talk

On Monday, June 3, at 7 p.m., the Bristol Historical & Preservation Society will hold its monthly meeting in the Herreshoff Community Room, Rogers Free Library, 525 Hope St.

The topic for the meeting is "Bristol Families in Cuba: The Fales, Smith and Wilson Families through Letters and Pictures," with Claire Benson presenting this phase of the society's Bristol/Cuba connections. Bristol's harbor was once filled with sailing ships setting off for ports around the world, but especially to the Island of Cuba. After the War of 1812 and the gradual end of the slave trade, Bristol families set out for Cuba, planning to make their fortunes by owning and managing sugar and coffee plantations.

The presentation, with pictures and letters, will explain how these families lived and worked in Cuba and how they were changed by living there, and how they changed Bristol, too.

Ms. Benson is a board member and has volunteered for the society for a number of years. She has done extensive research into the Bristol-Cuba connection.

Light refreshments will follow the program, which is free and open to all. For more information, call 253-7223 or www.bhpsri.org.

whales throughout whaling history will be on display. Were right whales really "the right whale to hunt"? Come find out. The exhibit is free with admission.

- from 11:30 to 12:30 p.m. on Sundays, June 2 to 16. Head outside and investigate some crazy critters. You never know what you might find on an Audubon wildlife refuge. Programs are for ages 3 and older and are free with admission. Register online.

- June 16: Father's Day Creature Feature: Owl presentation
- Preschool storytimes are on Thursday and Friday, June 6 and 7, with "Clara Caterpillar" by Pamela Duncan Edwards and Henry Cole at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Thursday and at 10 a.m. only on Friday. Children ages 3 to 5 enjoy the reading of a nature story, with hands-on activities, followed by creation of a nature craft. Adults must accompany children. The fee is $6 for children ($5 for member children). Registration is required as space is limited.

- A lecture on "Why Black Whales are called Right Whales" by Michael P. Dyer, maritime curator at the New Bedford Whaling Museum," kicks off a new exhibit on the endangered right whale. The lecture for adults is from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday, June 6. Over the centuries considerable uncertainty has pervaded the naming of right whales (eubalaena glacialis). It has been variously termed by whalers, laymen and scientists, and attaching the proper name to the proper species has resulted in a certain degree of misunderstanding. Join Mr. Dyer on a historical journey to investigate the reasons behind the popular name of the right whale. The lecture is $10 ($8 members). Registration is required.
- A saltmarsh exploration is from 9:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, June 8, at the Narragansett Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve on Prudence Island. Salt marshes are a wonderfully diverse habitat to explore, from the unusual plants to the tiny critters living in the mud. Visit several saltmarsh sites around the island and get hands-on experience with seine netting, water quality testing, and plant/animal identification, and hear of the potential impacts of climate change and rising sea levels on coastal areas. The event is for kids (age 8 and older) and adults alike. Rour the island via a passenger van and take several short walks to access the various marshes. Learn about the unique history of the island in addition to the beautiful natural features that make Prudence a true gem. The fee is $15 adults and $8 children ($12/$6 members). Register online at www.asri.org.

- "Quiet Moments in Nature," an exhibit of photography by Dave Slipp, is open through June 29 at the center. The Bristol photographer has enjoyed the outdoors since he was a young man and spending time in nature has always refreshed his spirit. The exhibit is free with admission.
- Passport to the Trails is through Sept. 30. Head out with your passport, visit Audubon wildlife refuges across the state, and discover the varied habitats and creatures that call Rhode Island home. Along the way, you will be directed to a "hidden" stencil template at each refuge. Make a crayon or pencil rubbing at each destination and return the completed passport to Audubon by Sept. 30 for a reward and to be entered in a grand prize raffle. Just visit the Audubon Environmental Education Center to receive your free passport. Visit www.asri.org for program details, participating refuges, and trail maps.

Mt. Hope win puts girls' softball team in second place

The Mt. Hope High School girls' softball team secured a playoff bid with a 10-0 win over Middletown last Friday.

Mt. Hope's Jess Delawder had a good day offensively, as she had one RBI and scored three of the Huskies' 10 runs. She doubled in the fourth inning and singled in the fourth inning, as the Huskies batted around their order.

Alyssa Olsen and Courtney Amaral also had doubles in the game, while Jessica Cerce had a triple with a deep fly ball to left field. The Huskies scored an impressive eight runs with two outs in the fourth inning to bring the score to 9-0.

Middletown managed just four hits off pitcher Madison Reis, who allowed no earned runs, walked none and struck out two during her five innings of work.

Mt. Hope never trailed after scoring one run in the second on an RBI single by Hanna Forsberg. The game-winning RBI came off Amaral's bat, when she brought in Vivian Ramos, who scored on a sacrifice fly from third base after reaching, and then stealing two bases.

This win puts the Huskies in second place in their division as they begin the playoffs.

"We haven't beaten Middletown since before 2010, so it was a huge victory for us," said assistant coach Meredith Friedman.

Mt. Hope seniors won their last home game with a 10-0 victory over Middletown.

LEFT: Madison Reis was the winning pitcher in Friday's game. RIGHT: The Mt. Hope bats were hot in the fourth inning, when they batted through the order.

Theresa G. (Seyez) D'Agostino

Actress, singer, storyteller, she loved life in every way

Theresa G. (Seyez) D'Agostino

passed away peacefully on Wednesday, May 8, 2013. She was the wife of the late Louis D'Agostino and the daughter of the late Joseph and Emelia Seyez. Theresa lived most of her 82 years in Warren.

Theresa always wore a smile and was upbeat and positive even during the toughest of times. Her faith in God carried her through always Theresa had great stories to tell. Growing up in war-time, she recalled collecting scrap metal on the railroad tracks with her two younger sisters, Margaret and Betty. She recounted The Hurricane of '38, when middle sister Margaret was nearly blown horizontal while clinging to a telephone pole. As a child she described getting up on cold winter mornings and scraping the hard frost that had formed on the inside of the window with her fingertips.

Theresa loved the theater and excelled in dance and musicals. In the '50s and '60s she portrayed significant roles in local productions with the Barrington Players and the TAM Repertory Company. These included the plays "The Boy Friend," "The King and I" and "South Pacific." She danced in the chorus line of the "Can-Can" — the oldest in the group by 10 years.

While working and caring for the family, she managed to earn her nursing degree with high honors. She subsequently served the State of Rhode Island at multiple medical facilities before retiring from the Rhode Island Veterans' Home in Bristol.

Retirement only gave "Terry" more opportunities to experience life's riches, and she did to the fullest. She loved travel and was always up for an adventure. Terry traveled extensively with her two sisters and with her church's missions. This included travel to Jamaica to suffer the needs of the people, whom she never forgot in her prayers and her charitable devotions.

Terry was an avid rustic tent camper and enjoyed many trips with her children, grandchildren and extended family. She used this time to nurture and create loving relationships. This would continue until Terry's last overnight camping trip in 2006, where she celebrated her 76th birthday sleeping on a cot in the woods.

Terry is survived by her four children, Michael, Eric, Mark and Melissa; five grandchildren, who lovingly referred to her as either "Spaghetti Grandma" or "Brown Grandma," and four great-grandchildren.

Please join Terry's family and friends at a memorial service on Saturday, June 8, at 10 a.m. at Barrington Baptist Church, 25 Old County Road, Barrington. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations can be made to Crossroads Rhode Island or Petco Foundation.

LEGAL NOTICE

FINAL AND PUBLIC EXPLANATION OF A PROPOSED ACTIVITY IN A 100-YEAR FLOODPLAIN

TO: All interested Agencies FEMA, RIEMA, Groups and Individuals

This is to give notice that the Town of Bristol under Part 58 has conducted an evaluation as required by Executive Order 11988 and/or 11990 in accordance with HUD regulations at 24 CFR 55.20 Subpart C Procedures for Making Determinations on Floodplain Management, to determine the potential affect that its activity in the floodplain and wetland will have on the human environment for the Silver Creek Improvements project under the State of Rhode Island CDBG-DR grant. The activity is the restoration and improvement of the Silver Creek pond spillway impacted by the March 2010 floods. The area is located at 199 Chestnut Street in the Town of Bristol, County of Bristol, Rhode Island. A portion of the project will go through approximately 5 acres of wetlands and Special Flood Hazard Area (Zone AE).

The Town of Bristol has considered the following alternatives and mitigation measures to be taken to minimize adverse impacts and to restore and preserve natural and beneficial values: 1) the action must take place in a flood plain because the project is the replacement of a spillway in an existing pond that serves as stormwater management and is located in a flood plain; 2) other alternatives were considered including expanding the existing pond to the west (not in a flood plain) which was not selected because there were constraints in the area that would limit the amount of available flood storage that could be achieved; 3) impacts to the wetlands will be temporary in nature and disturbed areas will be restored with native plant species; and, the existing pond and open channel of the creek, which is a benefit to the wetlands, will be retained. The project will also include installation of a low flow channel to reduce any additional sediment from entering the wetlands which is also beneficial to the wetlands. The project will be in compliance with RIDEM regulations and permitting requirements.

The Town has reevaluated the alternatives to building in the floodplain and has determined that it has no practicable alternative. Environmental files that document compliance with steps 3 through 6 of Executive Order 11988 and/ 11990, are available for public inspection, review and copying upon request at the times and location delineated in the last paragraph of this notice for receipt of comments. This activity will have no significant impact on the environment for the following reasons: 1) the plans will be consistent with the Rhode Island Department of Environmental Management requirements and permits for working in a wetland, including installation of appropriate erosion controls.

There are three primary purposes for this notice. First, people may be affected by activities in floodplains and those who have an interest in the protection of the natural environment should be given an opportunity to express their concerns and provide information about these areas. Second, an adequate public notice program can be an important public educational tool. The dissemination of information about floodplains can facilitate and enhance Federal efforts to reduce the risks associated with the occupancy and modification of these special areas. Third, as a matter of fairness, when the Federal government determines it will participate in actions taking place in floodplains, it must inform those who may be put at greater or continued risk.

Written comments must be received by the Town of Bristol at the following address on or before Friday, June 7, 2013: Antonio A. Teixeira, Town Administrator, Town of Bristol, 10 Court Street, Bristol, Rhode Island, 02809, 253-7000 ext, 126, Attention: Diane M. While the girls went backstage to change into more formal attire, last year's Little Miss winner was introduced and escorted to the stage by her father. Typically the outgoing Miss Fourth of July is also called upon to help the new contestants during the question and answer part of the judging. This year, 2012 Miss Fourth, Alexandra Absi, was unable to attend the pageant, so 2011 Miss Fourth, Cassandra Lyn Guercia, stepped in. Although she had been studying abroad in Spain, Ms. Guercia arranged to arrive two days before the pageant, offering to assist in any way she could.

For the poise and presentation portion of the pageant, the contestants emerged from a floral covered archway to applause and cheering. As each girl stepped to the microphone, Ms. Guercia handed the younger girls their prepared responses, or held a basket so the older girls could draw a question.

When it was time for the older girls, each question was followed by a short pause, allowing the contestants an opportunity to think about their responses.

Making it all look good

BY CHRISTY NADALIN cnadalin@eastbaynewspapers.com

ngel Tucker is a food photographer, one of a number of young working artists who, over the last decade, chose to make the East Bay her home and who have collectively helped drive Warren's artistic renaissance. One of many in the Cutler Mills complex, Angel shares a large but inviting space with another artist, part of which looks like a photographer's studio, with a tripod, lights and umbrellas. The front half of the space feels more like a home, complete with an office, kitchenette, and seating area anchored by a cluster of random, but comfy chairs. The walls are lined with shelves stuffed with props and other eclectic objectsincluding some mid-century cross-sections of plants from the collection of Angel's father, a botanist. It resembles a post-graduate apartment. Or a sitcom set. Indeed, a good friend of Angel's, playing hooky from her grown-up job in Boston, is hanging out for the day. I'm jealous; it looks like a great place to relax and chat, and Angel herself is affable and easygoing, with a manner that could let her work with a room full of excited kids as easily as she manages the uncommunicative comestibles that are the subject of most of her work.

Food photography is a particular specialty, and it found Angel organically. After studying communications at Syracuse University (where she met her husband, furniture-maker Jonathan Glatt, who was studying jewelry design at the time) they moved to Hoboken, New Jersey, and she looked for work in New York City. She found plenty, photographing for magazines, public relations firms, and television and film clients; but it was ultimately a food photographer who gave Angel her big

After a number of years, she and Jonathan were ready to move on. It was a toss up between Rhode Island or Asheville North Carolina, but RISD (for Jonathan) and The Museum School in Boston (for Angel) tipped the scales in favor of the Northeast. After living in Providence for a year they were itching to fix up an old house, and found their home in the former parish house of St. Mark's Church in Warren; it's been a labor of love ever since.

In 2003 Angel moved into the Cutler Mills studio. In addition to her commercial and art work, she also teaches photography at Bridgewater State, and she and Jonathan are raising two young boys: Phineas, four and a half, and Desmond, 19 months.

Today, the table in the area of her studio where she shoots is heaped with food, in a way that, if I were to take a photo, it would look like a self-congratulatory instagram of my shopping cart, with the "buy local" angle providing the moral authority. But Angel is preparing to shoot a cover of local food products for Rhode Island Monthly, and through her lens, groceries become art.

Which is why it should surprise nobody who is familiar with her work that the James Beard House emailed not long ago to invite her to exhibit in their Manhattan headquarters. There was only one possible answer, and it wasn't no. "That's like a chef saving that he doesn't want to be nominated for a James Beard award!" Angel said. "It's different than having your work hang in a traditional gallery-it's being seen by foodies, not art patrons. It's a very different audience."

Looking forward, Angel is happy working in this market. She's the proverbial big fish in a small pond—a far cry from when she was working in Manhattan. "I'd love to do more cookbooks," she says. But the local market keeps her busy, and she still has the occasional NY client. And her name? Like the old-school cross-sections, the root is in her father's love of plants. "My name is actually Angelica, which is a medicinal herb—one of the first listed in the "Big Book of Herbs" my father wrote several years ago. My sister is Melissa, that's a lemon balm," she said. And her brother? "My father wanted to name him Basil, but my mother put a stop to that. So he's Arthur.'

Angel's show, "Still life with..." is currently hanging at the James Beard House at 167 W. 12th St., New York, and will be there through June. The opening reception will be held May 31, from 6 to 8 p.m. For more information on Angel and her work, www.angeltucker.com.

Favorite ways to catch striped bass

e have a lot of bait in the Bay: Atlantic Menhaden and silversides are out there, and last week many coves and rivers experienced a worm hatch. This all translated into a great week of striped bass and bluefish fishing. See "Where's the bite" below for details.

With all this bait and action, why is it that some days you just cannot get a bite? You scour waters, trolling lures and tube & worm, cast in the shallows and around structure with soft plastics, hard plastics and surface poppers. You hit all your favorite spots, where you have caught fish and where others have caught fish, and still...no bass. Do not lose faith. It's a matter of persistence, mixing it up, paying attention to tide and current, and yes, trying to match what the striped bass are eating (or would like to eat). Here are my top ten ways to catch striped bass. I used five of them this week to mimic the bait in the water: casting swimming lures and plastics to mimic silversides and worms; using live and chucked Atlantic Menhaden; and trolling with tube and worm, to catch nine striped Trolling with umbrella rigs. I like to use this technique trolling in deeper parts of Narragansett Bay, off Newport or Block Island with a variety of squid, shad, worm or eel umbrella rigs. Hook two fish at the same time and you will experience a great fight.

Casting soft plastics, various bait types and weights to fish different depths. Many anglers love this technique and use it successfully in the spring. Make sure the plastic baits are scented, and if they are not, add some scent. Who wants to eat plastic?

Buck tail jigs with pork rind squid strips. I have had success with this method to get under schools of bluefish and to the striped bass on the bottom.

Live eels. Used by shore and boat anglers, some fishing guides use this as their primary method to catch killer stripers. Hook the eel through the mouth and out one eye. Going between the eyes usually kills the bait. I use circle hooks because bass (small and keeper size) tend to swallow the bait whole and often get hooked low. Circle hooks generally slide out of the fish and hook it on the corner of their mouth on the way out allowing you to release fish you are not keeping alive and

Bass plentiful in Bay: Angler Joe Daniels of Warwick with a 12-pound striper he caught last week at the Hurricane Barrier, live-lining Atlantic Menhaden.

Live menhaden. Snag the live bait with a weighted treble hook or net them. Hook the bait through the bridge of the nose, find a pod of fish and put the live menhaden into the pod of bait and let it swim. Used when menhaden are running strong, particularly up the Providence River in early spring.

 Chunking fresh or frozen menhaden. You can anchor (and chum); drift fish or fish the moving bait pods with chunks. Some anglers use a weight slide to get the bait down to the striped bass.

Surface plugs. I have caught hundreds of I school bass in the spring using surface plugs of all types.

Swimming lures. A great way to catch fish in coves, on rivers, etc. My favorite is a grey Yozuri Crystal Minnow.

Parachute squid jigs. These are often used in there are squid). Anglers successfully use this method off Newport, Narragansett and Block Island.

Trolling with tube and worm. I have had great success in the Bay using lead line weighted with two or three ounces of lead between the line and a five foot fluorocarbon leader. I find that bubblegum or red colored tubes work best (the tube hook is tipped with clam worm). The idea of added weight is to get the line down to where the fish are. Tube and worm trolling has been a successful technique for the southwest side of Block Island using 300 ft. of wire line out in 35 to 45 feet of water. Amber colored tubes seem to work best there.

Where's the bite

Striped bass: Steve McKenna, noted shore angler and author said, "Striped bass fishing this month is outstanding... the best ever. In April I landed one bass in twelve trips... so far in May I have landed 162 striped bass with some keepers mixed in. A confirmed 25-pound fish was caught last week from shore and I heard rumors of a 50-pounder being caught too. This is quite early to be catching fish this size from the beach."

John Littlefield of Archie's Bait, East Providence said, "Striped bass fishing has been very good, many customers have been

n May 20, in Moore, Oklaĥoma, rescue workers clawing through debris searching for survivors of a devastating tornado found a teacher sheltering three small children with her body in a destroyed school. Around the same time, some 1661 miles away, a gathering of 600 teachers in Cranston, R.I. were whining about too much paperwork in their efforts to oust Education Commissioner Deborah Gist from her job. What's wrong with this picture?

How these educators could miss the optics of their demonstration while the heroism of their counterparts in the South was unfolding is hard to conceive. Perhaps it is because their self-centeredness makes them stare only at their respective belly buttons instead of the big picture. Nobody outside of them gives a darn about how much paperwork they have. Plenty of folks in the private sector have more paperwork to do on more days, and for more hours.

The fact is that the Commissioner is the best thing to happen to Rhode Island education. She wants a sheepskin from high school to mean something so admission directors at universities don't chortle when there is an applicant from this state trying to get into a place of higher learning. Everyone should be striving to bring children the joy and satisfaction of real accomplishment.

The attack on Ms. Gist is disingenuous. An open letter from a purported educator named "Mary Teixeira" making its way around media outlets filets the Commissioner for her supposed disrespect of educators by putting them down. Nothing could be further from the truth. Since that has been a rap for some time, on more than one occasion I have questioned the Commissioner on "Newsmakers" to see if this were true. She could have easily directed blame for the educational morass onto teachers, the unions, and the multi-page contracts filled with teacher prerogatives and very little about children's education. She never took the bait. She steadfastly backed them up as professionals.

Another attack on her was her use of the New England Common Assessment (NECAP) as an evaluative tool of a child's mastery of a subject. First of all, there are a half-dozen other tests that can be used by a district. Children don't have to show anything other than progress to graduate. The biggest irony is that the use of tests as one barometer was not instituted by her but was a mandatory gauge by the department of education before Ms. Gist set foot in Rhode Island.

The real ire from the teachers was evident by the time spent grousing about Commissioner Gist's audacity in promoting the concept that teachers should be evaluated. Unlike the rest of the public who work in the private market where evaluations are a fact of life for promotions and pay raises, the attendees at the rally want the automatic perks of being a teacher unchallenged, no matter how badly Johnny can't read or do math. The one saving grace from the hootenanny last week was that only 600 out of thousands of Rhode Island teachers attended.

Governor Lincoln Chafee will soon show whether "Chafee can be trusted" in his decision to support her reappointment. He can be a hack and tool of the unions, or he can be a statesman. Which will it be, Governor?

Senior athletes set to compete this weekend

5k, Track & Field events on Sunday

The Rhode Island Ocean Tides Senior Games will hold two events this Sunday, June 2, both at the Wheeler School Athletic Complex in Seekonk, MA. At 11 a.m., the multi-terrain 5k run is set to start, with a Track & Field competition following at noon. Events span the distance from a 50 meter sprint to a 5000 meter run. Other traditional Track & Field events include high jump, long jump, triple jump, shot put, discus, and javelin.

Ocean Tides chairwoman Nancy Dobie, a retired Seekonk physical education teacher, who cofounded Ocean Tides along with Julie Baldwin, a retired physical education teacher, coach, and athletic director at the Wheeler School, appreciates the importance of staying active. Ocean Tides gives "seniors" (anyone over the age of 40 is eligible) the opportunity to continue to compete athletically, decades after they have put high school and college sports behind them. She is also proud of her former students, with whom she often gets to reconnect, years after graduation. Students like Mark Searles, the Channel 10 Meteorologist, who is serving as the official starter and awards presenter at the June 2 event. Mr. Searles ran in the Boston Marathon in April, finishing before a terrorist attack derailed the event, along with the lives of the hundreds of spectators injured and the three killed, in the blast. Mr. Searles will be wearing the shirt he ran in that day, and dedicate the Senior Games event in the memory and spirit of the Boston Marathon. "It's so nice to see former students like Mark again," Ms. Dobie said. "They have done so well in their lives, and we are so proud to have them come back and support us."

The Senior Games run from March through September. In addition to this weekend's events, competitions are held in bowling, basketball, golf, sailing, swimming, and triathlon. For more information, visit www.riotsg.org, email Rhodytides@aol.com, or call 401/253-1425.

using clam tongues and clam worms. Albert and Kevin Bettencourt of East Providence fished the Rumstick Point area and landed three bass in the 13to 17-pound range."

Mary Dangelo of Maridee Bait and Canvas, Narragansett said, "There was a striped bass blitz in Wickford Cove last Thursday and customers are reporting good fishing off the shore at George's Restaurant in Galilee for both striped bass and blues."

Angler Joe Daniels of Warwick said, "(I was) snagging pogies ... near the hurricane barrier and then live-lining for stripers." Joe caught bass to 32" and 12 pounds using this method last week. Captain BJ Silvia of Flippin Out Charters said, "Fishing for bass and blues off the southern end of Prudence Island was outstanding Saturday... all the striped bass and blues you wanted."

Bluefish: Bluefish have infiltrated the Bay and are being caught from the Hurricane Barrier in Providence to Jamestown, Newport and Narragansett.

John Littlefield of Archie's Bait said, "Sabin Point has been hot for bluefish."

Fluke (summer flounder): Fluke fishing has been great too with some anglers reaching their limit (18" minimum size, seven fish/person/day), which was not the case for the past three to four years. Cote Laflamme of Smithfield, RI said he caught an eight pound fluke just off the center wall of the Harbor of Refuge, Narragansett. He also caught seven nice keeper fluke when fishing with the Frances Fleet (Galilee party boat). His favorite rig is a three way swivel with a teaser tipped with native squid and fluke belly. RISAA blogger John S. said Sunday, "... I put four keeper fluke in the box to 4.5 lbs along with about eight shorts, two sea robins and a skate. Most were caught just west of Green Hill Beach in 40+ feet of water.'

Captain Dave Monti has been fishing and shell fishing on Narragansett Bay for over 40 years. He holds a captain's master license and a charter fishing license. A gardener's late-May to-do list am not a list writer, but I wish I was. Lately, every time I go out into the garden I feel pulled in so many different directions that I'm sure I look to the neighbors like a shooting gallery bear bobbing up and down and back and forth. It has occurred to me that if I just brought a notebook outside to write down all of the things that I want and need to do in the garden, I might not feel like I had to accomplish every single one of them right this minute. List writers seem better able to prioritize.

There are certain things I want to do, like finish laying stones for patios, pathways, and edges around the garden. I want to plant containers and arrange them artfully on the back deck. I want to buy more plants to plant in those containers. Or dig some up. But first I need to clear space on my potting bench. And then I probably should repot all of the root-bound houseplants I plunked on the deck last week in time for a little rain to wash off their dust and insect honeydew.

And ever since it rained, what's left of my lawn needs mowing again. But before I can do that, I have to pick up the piles of weeds I've left at intervals in great heaps. Because, wouldn't you know, despite my best efforts to over-plant my garden and crowd weeds out, they too have responded to the rain and grown. I blame them for distracting me from all of the other things I want and need to Like plant shopping. Now that the nights are warm it's safe to plant tender perennials and annuals. They'll be so much happier out of their nursery pots and growing in the garden so I'll really try to get to that next. Right after I cut most of my midto late-summer and fall-blooming perennials (such as aster, boltonia, phlox, anise hyssop, beebalm, Montauk and Shasta daisies, rudbeckia, and tall sedums like 'Autumn Joy') back by a third to a half. It takes hardcore optimism to behead growing plants. But nipping apical meristems generally signals plants to branch into much bushier, sturdier clumps. Flowering, particularly for anything that blooms as soon as July, might be set back a week or two and some plants' flowers will be smaller, but there will be more of them and the plants will be less likely to splay open under their flowers' weight.

I'm sort of proud of myself for remembering to add this task to my (mental) list—some years I have kicked myself come August, when the perennial sunflower, Helianthus 'Lemon Queen' blooms practically over my head and falls over. In the UK it's known as the Chelsea Chop because the timing coincides with their world famous flower show. Since that event is, alas, not always on my late-May radar, I'm in need of my own alliterative reminder. Maybe I'll call it the Lilac Lop or the Sneeze Snip...

I should probably also add "stop" to the very top of my todos. Just today, looking out my living room window, I noticed my beach rose (Rosa rugosa) beginning to bloom and I determined to stick my nose in it for my first real whiff of summer. But before heading out the back door I pocketed my pruners and weeder, just in case. And by the time I made it around to the front where the rose lives, at least an hour had passed and I almost forgot why I went outside in the first place. So I hope you take a lesson from my lapses. Write a list and don't forget to put the most important tasks at the very top: Stop. And Enjoy!

General Auditions

The Rhode Island Performance Exchange (RIPE) is pleased to announce their first general auditions for the Rhode Island performance community, Saturday June 1, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m., at 95 Empire St., Providence.

The auditions are open to performers of all kinds who are interested in being seen by many of Rhode Island's thriving theater companies. Intended to bridge the gap between companies and performers, the general audition will be a one-day event where any actor who wishes can sign up for a slot by emailing or calling RIPE. RIPE gives the performer five minutes to do anything to showcase his talents. More than a dozen local reperatory companies have signed up to watch the auditions.

Each company will have the opportunity to collect the headshot and resume of every person who auditions, and will use that information to cast throughout the rest of their season.

For more information, call 401/680-0683. If you are interested in hiring in the future, email info@riperformance.org for more information.

seem happy to be there cheering everyone on. Seeing playerswhose names meant nothing to me a year ago—win games and keep us contending is making this a great season to be a Sox fan. It's amazing how getting rid of a few bad apples can turn a team around.

We've got another local team that needs a new fresh start but I'm afraid they're headed for some same-old, same-old. The Bristol County Water

Authority should expect some hot water at their meeting on June 5 to hear from the public on the change in billing for rental properties. Many landlords received a note recently that said

Time for a Turnaround

BCWA is planning to start billing the owners of rental properties for water consumption. In other words, the property owners get to foot the bill for tenants' water

The BCWA has been toe-tapping around the reasoning for making the change. The first letter went out noting that the change would bring BCWA in line with "the billing practices of other water utilities," but BCWA sings a different tune on their website noting that the change is meant to, "reduce the amount of noncollectable accounts" and that since "the property owner has the responsibility for the water charges, it may be in their interest to receive the bill." My takeaway is that BCWA doesn't do a good job of collecting their payments, so they've decided to indenture local property owners to do it for them. It's a bad idea for several

We have so little affordable housing here and soon we'll have less. If you own a rental property in Bristol and you are suddenly going to be billed for the property's water usage, what's the first thing you are going to do? That's right—raise the rent. The property owner has to shield herself from the potential $500 water bill that comes when a tenant turns on the hose, leaves it on when he goes away for vacation, and then moves out a week later. By forcing property owners to take on that kind of financial risk, rents will go up for everyone and the rental market in town will change. This will hurt seniors, young families and those who want to live in the East Bay but struggle to pay the Growing up in Bristol we frequently had water shortages and there were watering bans in effect for the better part of many summers. Lawns were crispy and the few that weren't were viewed suspiciously and observed with accusing whispers about 3 a.m. waterings. One man even had a nice painted sign on his gate that noted his water came from an artesian well. Today my kids have "Don't be a waterhog" tees that they received for participating in the annual poster content for BCWA. Water conservation has always been top of mind in Bristol, and presumably with the BCWA, until now. As someone who has considered drinking out of her rain barrels, I find this anticonservation message most disturbing. We all know that if water is "included" in the rent, and using it does not put a dent in one's own wallet, the incentive to conserve water is gone and waterhogs will be popping up everywhere.

After everything that BCWA has dealt with in terms of public scrutiny and criticism for being badly managed, it is amazing to me that they would follow their 11% rate hike with this poorly thought-through idea. If they need to improve their billing, they should look at other best practices rather than looking at other RI utilities for their old practices. Instead of changing the payer, update the payment system. Encourage people to go "paperless" to save on paper, postage and personnel. For people who still choose a paper bill, leave the blue envelope out and save money on that. Work with the college to make sure that students pay their bills before getting their transcripts and work with property owners who have had problem tenants in the past.

The good news is that there's time for a turnaround at the BCWA, but unless they rethink their strategy quickly, they may be riding the pine on June 5 and wishing they were playing for a different team.

Three West Coast wines; a Spanish 'Priorat'

Monthly wine review includes an unfamiliar — but elegant — variety from Spain

> BY PETER ANDREWS CSS, CSW, MBA

Ravenna Riesling Columbia Valley, Washington 2009

Many believe Riesling is "too sweet" for them, but perhaps they have just not tasted a true Rieśling. Ravenna may not be a German Riesling, but it drinks just as well and has notes reminiscent of some of the best. In my opinion, Riesling is among the most complex white wines in the world. With age, Riesling will show notes like no other wine. This dry Riesling shows notes of honeysuckle, pear, apple, and slate-minerality. For anyone who thinks Riesling is too sweet, this is the one that will change their perception—for the better. $14.99

Pair with bacon wrapped seared scallops.

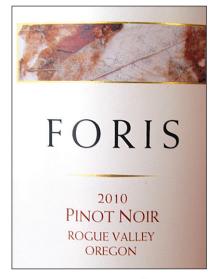

BR Cohn Silver Label North Coast, California 2011

Bruce Cohn is not only one of the best winemakers in California; he is also the Black Water Legend who managed the Doobie Brothers through their success. Opened in 1984 with Helen Turley (don't know her? Look her up, she's awesome) as their inaugural winemaker, BR Cohn has produced quality wine since day one. The Silver Label Chardonnay exhibits a dry, full and rich mouth feel with flavors of pineapple, pears, and creamy vanilla to wash it all down. $15.99

Pair with a picnic and double cream brie with honey.

Foris Rogue Valley, OR Pinot Noir 2010

Oregon is best known for their Willamette Valley Pinot Noirs, so why doesn't the Rogue Valley get any love? The Rogue Valley is the southernmost wine growing region in Oregon, while the Willamette is close to the most northerly. Who cares, right? Wrong! Rogue Valley Pinots offer a fuller, richer mouth feel than those of the Willamette Valley. For those of you looking for a luscious, almost fuzzy mouth feel with flavors of cherry and blueberry, this is your Pinot Noir. $19.99

Pair with grilled swordfish with a lemon caper butter sauce.

Senorio Convey Priorat, Spain 2009

What the heck is Priorat? Priorat is one of the most luxurious of Spanish reds. It is also one of two wine regions in Spain that holds the highest level of wine standards (D.O.Ca) by the Spanish Wine Governance. The other is the well-known Rioja region. The Catalan-named, Llicorella soils of Priorat, are red & black slate mixed with Mica. This soil reflects sunlight all day onto the grapes. It also absorbs heat to emit it all night, making for very ripe grapes. This wine is composed of 50% Grenache, 30% Carignan, and 20% Syrah, and is bold with an almost chalky texture from the Llicorella soil as well as dried fruit characteristics from the heat of the region. Priorat typically yields very hefty price tags, making Senorio Convey a phenomenal value. $15

Pair with herb-crusted lamb chops.

When Maureen, at last, has a shot at romance (and escape), Mag sets a chain of events in motion that showcases McDonagh's deft tragi-comic storytelling abilities. MEET Ian Barnacle: HIKER, PRESERVATIONIST, 2013 "30 UNDER 30" HONOREE an Barnacle, broker-manager of Barrington's Residential Properties office, is clearly doing what he loves. He may have been born into the industry (his mother, father, and grandmother have all been in real estate at one time or another) but his personal interests in architecture, historic preservation, land use and urban planning dovetail so nicely with his profession, it's clear that this was means to be.

What's also clear is his success, which speaks for itself. Named to the prestigious 2013 list of "30 under 30" by the National Association of Realtors' trade magazine at the age of 28, he is clearly at the beginning of a career destined to be one to watch.

Growing up in Providence and attending the Gordon School and the Wheeler School before graduating with a degree in English from Hampshire College in Amherst, Massachusetts, Ian was prepared to go on to graduate school when his mother suggested giving real estate a try. "So I did," Ian said. "And it stuck."

When he's not working, Ian is puttering around his garden, or in the kitchen of the home he just recently reoccupied after a kitchen and bath renovation. The Fox Point property dates to the 1820's, and he's been restoring it for about five years. "It's a new old house now," he says. "I've done so much to it." His commitment to preservation doesn't end at his front door. He's on the board of the Providence Preservation Society, and is serving as chairman of this year's Festival of Historic Houses, on June 8th. He also just stepped down as the president of his Fox Point neighborhood association, and has a collection of historic maps dating from 1862-1936 and detailing the development of the neighborhood over the years.

Ian also likes exploring Rhode Island, typically with his dog in tow. "I like to discover new parts of Rhode Island, hop in the car every weekend and find a spot to hike from Arcadia Management Area to Chepachet to the East Bay. There is so much to discover close to home, natural wonders and pleasant surprises."

Back in the Residential Properties office, Ian appreciates his colleagues for making it such a stimulating place to work, and the recognition by his trade's flagship publication is certainly another point of satisfaction for Ian. "There were more than 400 applicants, so I am very proud to be one of the 30," he said. "And it's because I worked hard through my 20's, with a great group of Realtors."

Loan rates based on $100,000 with 20% down payment & no PMI. Variable mortgages listed are for 30 years, adjusted annually. Points are a one-time charge equal to one percent of the mortgage. APR stands for annual percentage rate and reflects closing costs spread over the life of the loan. CAP is the most a variable mortgage can increase in one year. Savings and loans and Rhode Island loan and investment banks are included in the bank section of this chart. These rates, provided by the institutions on Monday of this week, are subject to change or special conditions. For more information, consumers are advised to call the institution. First-time homebuyers may qualify for lower-rate mortgages from the Rhode Island Housing and Mortgage Finance Corporation. Many credit unions only grant loans to members and limit membership to a defined group. When shopping for mortgage rates ask for explanation of closing costs. The pros and cons of third-row seating hird-row seating has become a priority for many people purchasing new vehicles. Many consumers actively seek out a car or SUV# with a third-row seat so they'll have plenty of room for passengers during commutes or school carpools. There are many advantages to a third row of seating, but there are also some disadvantages. Weighing the pros and cons before purchase will help shoppers determine if a third-row seat is really what they need.

ADVANTAGES

The primary reason for purchasing a vehicle with a third-row seat is to increase passenger capacity. Most standard cars and mid-size SUVs can seat 5 passengers comfortably. However, a third-row seat can add a spot for an additional 2 to 3 passengers.

The need for a third row of seats stems primarily from the increased prevalence of booster and other child safety seats, which tend to take up a lot of space. This enables more children to be seated safely, a boon to parents who carpool.

Third-row seats are also advantageous to commuters who carpool. Several adults can sit comfortably and ride into work together, splitting the cost of gas and tolls. Many vehicles with third-row seats offer good gas mileage, making carpooling an even greener method of getting to work.

The third-row seat can often be folded down and allow for more cargo room when not needed. In some models, a third-row seat can be removed entirely.

DISADVANTAGES

While the third-row seat offers more passenger room, it cuts down on storage space. Many vehicles that offer the extra row of seating do so at the expense of trunk or cargo space. There may be little more than a few feet of room to store groceries or luggage.

Vehicles with a third-row seat tend to be more expensive than comparable cars and SUV's without one. Some minivans are more expensive than simarly sized SUVs. If money is a factor, a third-row seat may not be an asset. In addition, insurance companies might charge more for a larger car.

Size might also be a disadvantage to some drivers. Larger vehicles might be difficult to park in urban areas and may require special parking spots in parking garages.

Third-row seats can be very advantageous for people who frequently transport several people. But they may not be the best option for individuals looking for a lower priced car or one with maximum cargo space.
