Dr. Kay Jenkins of Stone Bridge Dental calls it a career

BY BRUCE BURDETT
bburdett@eastbaynewspapers.com

Much has changed, both in her life and in dentistry, since Dr. Kay Jenkins set up shop in north Tiverton decades ago.

She and her former husband Paul Bazzoni opened an office at 27 Main Road, yards from the Fall River line. They lived in a small apartment upstairs.

It was an easy commute, she says, but "you took the job home with you. It was like living in a dorm room."

Patients with a toothache "knew just where to find us. Nights, holidays, especially holidays — Easter morning, Fourth of July, they knew we were home. Toothaches happen."

Years later they moved south to 1750 Main Road to more spacious offices and launched what has grown into Stone Bridge Dental Group. Dr. Bazzoni retired in February, 2012. Dr. Jenkins will retire at the end of this month.

"I have been so very lucky to do exactly the work that I wanted to do from a very young age," Dr. Jenkins said. "I am excited about retirement but know I will miss the work, miss the people most of all. It has been my life."

It all started with braces

Dr. Jenkins knew she must become a dentist when she got braces at around age 12. "That's not the reaction most people have to getting braces but I thought it was such a great thing to take teeth from being ugly to looking really nice."

There weren't many women dentists back in the 1960s though and, with a houseful of youngsters and expenses to consider, "my father wasn't keen on sending me to dental school — way too much money."

So she went to Northwestern University Dental School in Chicago and received her diploma in dental hygiene instead. She worked as a dental hygienist from 1970 to 1974 while attending the University of Delaware for her pre-dental requirements, then returned to Northwestern where she finally earned her doctor of dental surgery degree in 1978, followed by a year of residency at Michael Reese Medical Center in Chicago.

It's back to school in Tiverton

Schedule changes, laptops highlight start of school year

BY TOM KILLIN DALGLISH
tdalGLISH@eastbaynewspapers.com

TIVERTON — With the start of a new school year in Tiverton on Tuesday, Superintendent William Rearick took the opportunity to highlight what's new and different for students and teachers.

The new mix includes longer periods in the classroom, new laptops, evaluations going digital, and planning for new or refurbished facilities.

And more students. Early and unofficial figures for the total school population show an increase of approximately 30 students over last year's enrollment of 1,917. That's likely to change as families and students, some new to the district, settle in. More reliable numbers typically arrive in October.

The 80 minute class

High school students, said Mr. Rearick, will see a "slight" modification of their class schedules.

"Starting this fall," he said, "an eighty minute period has been added to the weekly schedule. Every course will rotate through this period, which means that every content area will have access to this extended period. The remaining five periods will be 51 minutes long."

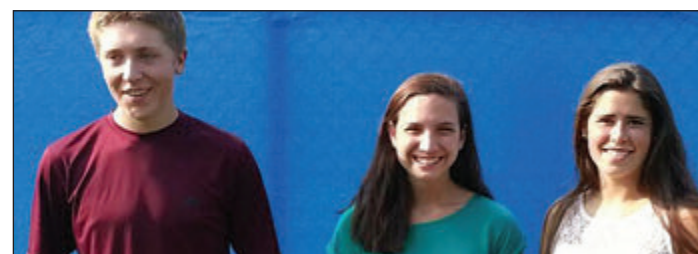

High School Principal Steven Fezette said this means that every teacher and all students will regularly have an opportunity for an extended block of time in which to teach or learn about a subject.

SCHOOL: Laptops, new schedule await

"This will provide more consistency in the area of science," Mr. Fezette said. For example, a laboratory class on a planned-for basis could run for 80 minutes, giving students and teachers more time to set up and complete a laboratory exercise.

New laptops

"Teachers at the middle school and high school are being given refurbished laptops to replace their desktop computers, which on average are five to seven years old," Mr. Rearick said.

Some 150 refurbished Dell laptop computers (standard size) have already been delivered to the school and been deployed to staff, teachers and classrooms, said Tiverton School Department Director of Technology Alfred Notarianni.

They replace the 160 older desktops, at a total cost of approximately $60,000.

The new equipment will facilitate the implementation of a Student Information System (SIS). It will also enhance the ability of students and faculty to do things with other districts, and to take and teach courses in conjunction with other schools.

The equipment ties in with a newly completed wireless capability in the schools which, with the aid of a $200,000 grant earlier this year, resulted in the installation of wireless equipment in the ceilings of all classrooms, instructional (laboratories, shops, etc), and other areas (guidance, counseling, administration) in all five school buildings.

Curriculum planning

"The district will continue its implementation of a new K-12 English language arts (ELA) and math curriculum which will integrate with the common core standards," Mr. Rearick said.

"This shift is designed to provide our students access to a more rigorous curriculum," he said. "The new curriculum will also support students in taking the new PARCC Assessments, which will be given twice during the school year."

The acronym "PARCC" refers to the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers.

It is an online assessment tool that will soon be replacing the NECAP (New England Common Assessment Program) tests in Rhode Island schools.

PARCC testing, when it arrives, is expected to be all be online. It is keyed to common core curricular requirements.

Mr. Notarianni has said that the soon-arriving online PARCC testing is one of the drivers for the installation of wireless systems in Tiverton schools and those elsewhere in the state.

School construction, facilities

Mr. Rearick said that "this year the district will be working on developing a plan to implement the recommendations that came from a recently completed facilities study, conducted last year by RGB Architects."

The Tiverton School Committee, he said, has formed a facilities subcommittee comprised of volunteers from the community and members of the school committee.

"This subcommittee is responsible for reviewing the recommendations made in the facilities study," Mr. Rearick said, "and then prioritizing them, in the form of recommendations to the school committee."

Church celebrating a centennial

Members of Little Compton's St. Andrews by-the-Sea Episcopal Church celebrated their church's 100th birthday over the weekend.

On Saturday evening, parishioners gathered for a centennial gala whose guests included the Rt. Rev. W. Nicholas Knisely, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Rhode Island. Bishop Kiseley with the Rev. Peter Tierney dedicated the reconstructed parish hall.

In addition to that rebuilt parish hall, the church enters its second century with a re-designed logo that symbolizes the parish's focus on the future while hearkening back to its historical roots as "the fishermen's church."

On Sunday morning, Bishop Knisely celebrated Holy Eucharist with the parish whose members hail from Little Compton, Tiverton, Westport and beyond.

St. Andrew's by-the-Sea got its start in August, 1914, when Laura Lloyd Wainwright drove to Tiverton to persuade the Rev. John A. Gardner of Holy Trinity Church to hold a service for the summer visitors. The pair organized an evening prayer service for 125 worshipers at the "Casino" or Clam House at Sakonnet Point.

Mrs. Wainwright soon convinced her husband to donate an oceanfront garage that was transformed into a summer chapel. In 1918, the chapel was moved to a 4-acre pasture near the Sakonnet Golf Club.

In 1998, a new building for St. Andrew's by-the-Sea was created from the bones of the former Guild Hall just north of the Little Compton Commons where it remains today.

DENTIST: Dr. Jenkins wraps up Tiverton dental career

"I get tired just thinking about it all ... so much energy at that age."

With the steel and auto industries in collapse, the midwest was a depressed place, so the young dentist couple looked east. She had family in Vermont and they made a side trip to Rhode Island. "We loved the rural character, especially in this corner of the state."

And they discovered that the Fall River area had a shortage of young dentists.

"It seemed like the area offered good opportunity for someone starting out."

Easing the anxiety

The practice they started has grown and changed over the decades, as has dentistry. Early on, for instance, fillings were gold or silver. Now they are tooth-colored composites that are much easier to work with.

And when the practice started youngsters were much more cavity-prone than today.

"Dentists in those days just kept drilling and filling."

But as fluoride became prevalent, that mostly changed. Many people make it through adolescence these days without any cavities, never mind the once-common extractions.

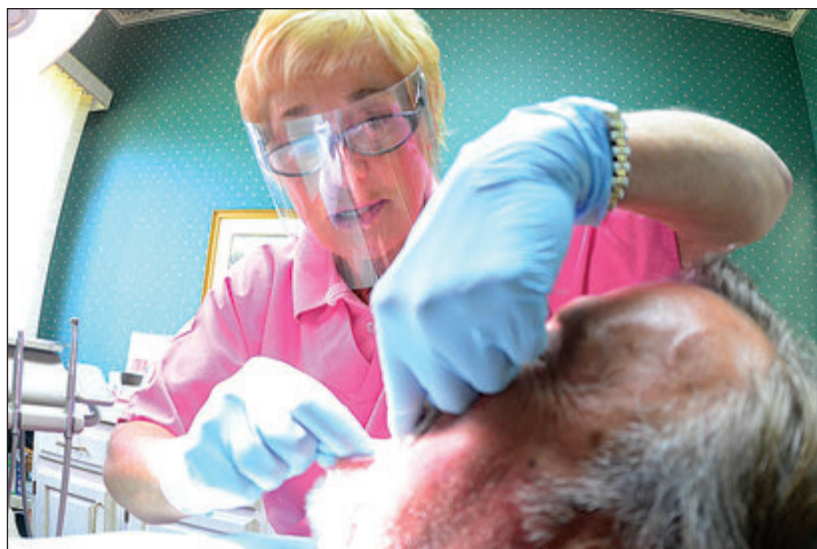

"Going to the dentist is just a happier experience all around these days," and that's perhaps the biggest change Dr. Jenkins has experienced.

Taking the anxiety out of the dental visit has always been important to her, she said, and co-workers and patients say Dr. Jenkins is especially skilled at it.

"Kids today who were raised on fluoride have never had the terrible experiences that so many of my age did," and as a result are less apt to avoid appointments when they get older.

Even the needles — "we don't use that word with the little ones" — are better. Back in the day, needles were sterilized and re-used — "they were bigger, they became dull and they hurt more. Today's disposables are so much better."

"Now I just tell the youngsters that 'I'm going to give you a little squirt with the sleepy medicine.' They often have no idea a needle is involved — hardly even feel it."

RICHARD W. DIONNE JR.

Dr. Kay Jenkins tends to a patient at Stone Bridge Dental Group during her last few days on the job.

Most children actually seem to like going to the dentist now, she said. "We count teeth, give them a nice cleaning and send them home with a new tooth brush — pretty good."

Fluoride has made teeth stronger but can't do much to help prevent what Dr. Jenkins says may be the foremost cause of tooth damage she has seen "in 45 years of bending over open mouths ... I fix more teeth due to damage done from clenching and grinding in sleep than just about anything else. Maybe it's due to the stress of our society. I don't know. Maybe we should all slow down." Many of those told they are 'grinders' don't even know it.

She'll miss most of the job but certainly not the paperwork — the insurance and state regulation issues "that eat up so much of our time. That's another big change from the old days." Insurance matters alone keep one person busy full time at the practice.

And she's happy to put aside the stress that comes with the territory.

Dental patients are not the only ones who get stressed, Dr. Jenkins said. She said she has always been the type to take her patients' concerns — "not just their dental concerns but the things that are going on in their lives" — home with her. I can't help it."

But overall, "dentistry has been everything I imagined it would be, hoped it would be back when I was that 13-year-old with braces. It has been wonderful — and went by so fast."

She expects now to spend much more time out on the golf course at Green Valley Country Club in Portsmouth and out in the garden.

"As people have found out that I am retiring, they have said so many nice things to me — I've been with some of them for many, many years. Generations within families.

"That means so much to me ... Those ties — that's what I will miss most."

'Crossings' draws chorus of concerns

offices.

The occasion was a planning board meeting to hear from proponents and opponents alike; 80-100 people showed up at Tiverton High School auditorium.

About 30 people spoke over the course of three-and-a-half hours.

"Carpionato has somebody who knows how to run a hotel," said resident Barbara Pelletier, who also represents the Town of Tiverton at the Newport County Chamber of Commerce.

About an-hour-and-a-half into the meeting, Ms. Pelletier went to the microphone and told the audience, "I would love to see Tiverton look like Middletown. It's a very, very positive thing."

The developers spoke first

The first six speakers (for a little over an hour) were all from Carpionato, proposing the 64-acre, $80-$100 million project.

"I couldn't be more excited about this project," said Joe Pierik, who directs leasing in New England for Carpionato. Live, work, shop, and play, he said, "that's what people want today."

"We're thrilled to be at a point where we can make an investment," he said.

Carpionato Senior Vice-President Kelly Coates said, "We'll make it a place" that's "owned emotionally by the citizens of Tiverton."

He stressed the "walkability" that would prevail inside the development, with red brick pathways, and a series of fountains and roundabouts. Residential units would be luxury, no subsidized rentals, no affordable housing, most likely young people and "empty-nesters," he said.

Others from the Carpionato team talked about site design, stone walls and landscaping, setbacks, sewers, water flow, storm water, the hotel proposed for the site, restaurants, roadways, office space, parking, traffic, and sight lines and an anticipated "anchor tenant."

At the east end of the proposed development, drawings show a building that's 100,000 square feet in total size, divided into two parts, one 40,000, the other 60,000.

"I think this project will be an economic engine for the town," said Joe Lombardo, Carpionato's planning consultant. "This is a great opportunity for the town to implement its vision."

This project will generate an estimated $1.3 million in annual revenues for the town, he said.

The residents' turn

The first two residents to speak, Bruce Hathaway and Ginny Gouveia, expressed concerns about the amount of traffic the project would generate.

"The roads will run better than they do today," said Mr. Coates.

"The size and scale of this project is too big for Tiverton," said Carol Herrmann, a school committee member who lives on Main Road in front of where the project would be located. Traffic at 3 p.m., when school gets out, "would be a nightmare," she said.

She asked what would happen if the later phases of the project do not materialize. She said the town's Comprehensive Plan speaks of "serving local needs."

Carpionato "brings in chain retails," she said, and "national chains drain resources from local communities."

As an example, she pointed to the failing Harbor Mall nearby in Fall River.

"I would ask you to commission an independent economic study," she said to the planning board.

"Our quality of life will plummet" as soon as ledge blasting starts on the site during construction, Ms. Herrmann said. "I ask you to remember to represent the citizens of Tiverton as our priorities and values are represented in our comprehensive plan."

"What's going to happen to the smallness of our community," said Susan Benesch. "One of the reasons we bought property here is that it's a small bucolic community."

"We don't need to become like East Main Road or West Main Road," she said, "and Harbor Mall is gone ... I ask you to not permit this development."

Another resident, H.C. Osborn, said that studies show that anchor stores are downsizing and malls are closing.

"The internets are taking over the small stores. Who's going to be your anchor store. That seems to be like a dying breed."

Turning around to the audience, Mr. Osborn asked, "And who in the crowd thinks we'll get a tax rebate?"

Howard Benesch said, "how can we be sure that what's being proposed will actually be finalized."

Calling the town's Industrial Park on the other side of Route 24 a white elephant, Mr. Benesch said, "I would propose that these gentlemen rethink the project by utilizing the white elephant."

Another speaker said, "I wholeheartedly support the project and propose that the town should consider economic support for it. We need this development."

Constance Fleckenstein said that Harbor Mall and Swansea Mall are both "dead," and said, "we don't need high income housing, we need low income housing."

"The one concern I have," said Wayne Karzenski, "is the retail portion is way out of scale for this town. It's not in proportion."

Another speaker asked whether local resources should be used to support people who are from out of town.

"This puppy's going to be running 18 hours a day," another speaker said. "This project will devastate residences along Souza Road. What about these people? Are they disposable?"

Mike Burk said, "I don't hear a lot about how this is going to integrate with the rest of the community."

Former council member Cecil Leonard said, "Tiverton needs business, but we have to be careful about what business we need ... Where are all these residents and young professionals and so on and so forth, and customers, going to come from?"

And about Carpionato, Mr. Leonard asked, "Are they going to stay and run the development, or are they going to build it, sell it, and leave?"

But council member Jay Lambert said, "This is exactly the type of development we should have."

Tom Little, who said he moved to Tiverton from Barrington, agreed. "This is a perfect set up, and I think you ought to consider it."

Susan Anderson, who lives in the historic district that abuts the proposed development, said she is concerned about the district's fate.

"All the houses in the historic district will be lost," she said, and its National Register designation may be lost.

The public information meeting was continued to September 23, at which time the public will again have an opportunity to speak.

Search continues for stolen Sailor's Valentines

Westport police continue their hunt for 11 intricate Sailor's Valentines stolen from Marguerite's Restaurant overnight on Friday, Aug. 15.

The pieces, painstakingly crafted by local artist Barbara Chadwick and valued at over $15,000, were removed from the 778 Main Road restaurant's walls during a night-time break-in through a restaurant window.

The break-in was discovered the next day. No other items were taken from the establishment.

Westport detectives said Monday that they continue to search for both the artwork and the thief or thieves.

Police are asking the public to assist by providing any information possible about the crime or the location of the stolen art collection.

Sailor's Valentines are described as intricate shell mosaics using hundreds of small shells, displayed in a shadow box. Ms. Chadwick's collection had been on display at the restaurant and was the subject of a recent article in a New Bedford newspaper.

A Sailor's Valentine called 'Bouquet in Scallop Shells' was among those stolen last Friday.

'The Kate Cory'

'Rose and Shining Star'

The Chadwick family has offered a reward up to $5,000 for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the suspect(s).

Anyone with information is asked to contact Westport Police at 508-636-1122 or Detective Ryan Nickelson at 774-264-5174 who is leading the investigation.

Bagging profits

Those maroon trash bags were vilified by many when Tiverton launched its 'pay-as-you-throw' trash system a few years back, but now it seems that the town is a trend-setter.

Fall River is among the latest to charge for trash bags (theirs are purple) and people aren't much happier about it than were their neighbors to the south.

But they'll cool down soon enough, experience suggests, and may just become model recyclers in the process. It turns out that pay-as-you-throw actually works.

Tiverton went from near worst ranked recycler to near best in its state almost overnight after it moved into the maroon bag business.

Before the bags, "pretty much everything went straight into the trash hopper — straight into the dump," the public works director said. Now though, rather than spring for $2 per trash bag, many residents have become ruthless recyclers.

All of which pays dividends for town and taxpayers alike. The sale of bags nets the town about a half million dollars a year, Tiverton earns a modest state recycling bonus, and most important, its landfill doesn't fill quite so fast, forestalling the inevitable costly closure. No calculation is available, but it may just be that, by buying maroon bags, townspeople actually wind up saving money.

In the face of relentlessly rising landfill 'tipping' fees, Tiverton's example has not gone unnoticed by its neighbors. Towns that don't yet charge a trash toss fee may not be far from doing so.

There will be grumbling but it won't last. A few bucks per bag isn't such a bad deal after all.

To the editor:

It appears to be open season on the Little Compton school committee and administration. Letter after letter in this newspaper paints a picture of an evil school committee and administration bent on destroying our children's education, firing teachers, wasting money, and conducting themselves badly at school committee meetings.

That's strange. I attend virtually every school committee meeting and do not share this viewpoint. I video record each meeting for playback on Cox on behalf of the Little Compton Taxpayers Association and as a public service. What I have observed over the last year is a collection of angry, rude, and pushy people second guessing almost every school committee decision. They are disruptive and unruly to the point where it's hard to conduct a coherent meeting. I sometimes disagree with the school committee, but I don't throw a tantrum like these people do.

This started with the advent of the Little Compton Community First (LCCF) group that attended all the meetings and played a role in stirring up the crowd consisting of teachers, some parents, and people who are running for school committee in this year's election.

In her letter of August 21, Polly Allen (candidate for school committee) took the committee to task (Don Gomez in particular) for restricting public input to a specific time during the meetings and not allowing any debate. What she didn't say is why Mr. Gomez put this new policy into effect. It was because of the unruly conduct stated above. The meetings were steadily degenerating into a three-ring circus with people shouting, interrupting, demanding certain decisions, making wild accusations, and in one instance threatening a physical attack. This is shameful and is the reason for the new public input policy.

In his August 21 letter, Brett McKenzie chastised the school committee (Joe Quinn in particular) for awarding a $5,000 bonus to the superintendent, Kathy Crowley, for her extensive work - on her own time - in coordinating the school renovation project. Mr.

McKenzie ignores this and cites budget as a reason not to recognize Mrs. Crowley's efforts. What he didn't say is that Mrs. Crowley subsequently declined the bonus asking that the money be spent on the students instead. In the end, this was really an attack on Joe Quinn for the positions he takes on the school committee and his being the chairman of the Taxpayers Association.

Our students perform exceedingly well in state testing. This is no accident. It was through the efforts of the teachers, school committee and the administration that this is the case. Most of what I see at the school committee meetings is a dedicated group of people who voluntarily serve the public on their own time and have brought very good results to the town despite the endless attacks from people who seem unable to act civilly in meetings and who have an ulterior motive - the November election.

Note: I am writing on my own behalf and not the Taxpayers Association.

Unbalanced report ignored 'lawyers gone wild'

To the editor:

I am writing in reference to the biased, filtered and inaccurate story published in your paper regarding the Superior Court sentencing hearing for James and Melissa Pelletier. Your article was completely one-sided, I was misquoted, and clear favoritism was shown to Tiverton solicitors. The article extensively quoted Gina DiCenso and Andrew Tietz and substantially limited the comments I had given to the reporter covering the hearing, thereby slanting the facts. Perhaps this paper should take a lesson from The Newport Daily News, which through its reporter Marcia Pobeznik, was able to more accurately quote both sides.

As I indicated to Mr. Dalglish, the reporter covering the hearing, based on the comments of the judge, the Town of Tiverton should seek a return of all of its legal fees totaling an amount of $103,111.80 pursuant to the fact that the solicitors failed, per the judge, to properly amend the charge to cover the days in which it sought fines. This entire situation, as I said, is a case of lawyers gone wild, whereby, Ursillo, Teitz & Ritch, Ltd charged the town approximately $103,000 to torment my client with the end result being a $1 fine returned to the taxpayers.

Not only did the town solicitors fail to amend its complaint as required, it also asked for fines clearly beyond its authority and in violation of the Constitution. The solicitors flaunted the law and utilized the justice system to attack Mr. and Mrs. Pelletier, as they were both charged criminally, for what was simply a neighborhood dispute. I explained this to Mr. Dalglish, after the hearing and also expressed my opinion that the Tiverton taxpayers should look into a malpractice suit if all fees paid out regarding this lawsuit are not returned to them.

The signs are there — summer's winding down

To the editor:

Although there is still a bit of August to go the birds are trying to remind me that summer is coming to a close.

Not too long ago a little flock of inquisitive chickadees were flipping around through the trees right over my head and this morning there was a titmouse in the bird bath. I count these as winter birds and don't think they have any business in showing up so early. Small flocks of tree swallows can be seen in the evenings and I suppose that soon we will see them lining the telephone wires. However, keep feeding those gummingsbirds until October 15!

If you have been lucky enough to drive through shaded, damp woodlands, the sweet scent of clethra is still there. The last of our sweet smelling wild plants. In the "back 40" the Joe Pye weed is in full bloom - some of them as tall as six feet. During the day they are kind of a muddy puce, but when that evening sun hits them the fields absolutely glow pink. The loopy swamp looses-trife and the big flowered marsh mallows are also pink and merit a visit every afternoon as they almost shout, "look at me" surrounded as they are by a semicircle of dark trees

There are plenty of milkweed plants, and I keep looking for the tell-tale little holes that show a baby monarch caterpillar at work, but no luck. Nor have I seen any adults. What a pity. It must be the destruction of their winter habitat that is to blame.

The evenings are shorter, but that golden late sunlight is still there.

Tiverton man gets five years for drug, firearm crimes

TIVERTON — A Tiverton man has been sentenced to five years in federal prison for trafficking cocaine and possessing a firearm in furtherance of his drug trafficking activities.

Announcement of the sentence came last Wednesday from United States Attorney Peter F. Neronha and Newport Police Chief Gary T. Silva.

At sentencing, U.S. District Court Judge John J. McConnell, Jr. also ordered Mr. Andrade to serve three years supervised release upon completion of his prison term.

Mr. Andrade pleaded guilty on May 21, 2014, to one count each of possession with the intent to distribute cocaine and possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug trafficking crime.

At the time of his arrest by Newport police on Nov. 8, 2013, Mr. Andrade was in possession of a loaded .22 caliber handgun and a plastic container containing 39 packages of cocaine totaling 366 grams, quantities deemed consistent with distribution.

All were concealed in a secret compartment behind the front seat of Mr. Andrade's car.

Mr. Andrade also turned over $4,435 in cash that he was carrying on his person, police said.

POLICE REPORT

Tiverton police: Residents report blasting nearby

Tuesday, Aug. 19

After a Main Road vehicle stop at 10:29 p.m., Alyssa K. Korzeniowski, 24, of Fall River, was charged with possession of, and driving while in possession of, scheduled substances (heroin, alprazolam), possession of marijuana, and two traffic offenses.

Thursday, Aug. 21

Between 11:01 and 11:37 a.m., eight callers from Paul James Drive, Beth Road, Cheryl Drive, and Linda Road reported hearing and feeling blasting taking place near their homes. Police did not indicate the source of the blasting.

At 3:34 p.m., a caller reported that someone had gained entry into a Main Road residence through a side door and taken jewelry and a computer.

After a traffic stop on Route 24 at 11:39 p.m., Paul M. Henriques, 26, of Westport, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (2nd offense), refusal to submit to a breathalyzer test, driving with an expired license, and driving with open alcoholic beverages in his car. After being taken to the station, struggling with officers, and banging on his cell block, he was also charged with assault and disorderly conduct.

Saturday, Aug. 23

At 2:34 p.m., Ryan D. Farias, 28, of 92 Russell Drive, Tiverton, was charged under an affidavit and arrest warrant with domestic vandalism.

After allegedly throwing an object at a relative, Paul M. Bento was charged at 9:12 p.m. with domestic disorderly conduct.

Michael Santos, 40, of 214 Chace Avenue, Tiverton, was charged at 5:05 p.m. with domestic breaking and entering.

Little Compton Police: License plate issue leads to drug charge

Thursday, Aug. 21

After stopping Allen J. Weeks, 28, of Fall River, for a license plate violation on Sakonnet Point Road at 10:39 p.m., and after officers discovered pills inside a container that were not prescribed for him, police charged Mr. Weeks with possession of diazepam and with possession of marijuana.

Saturday, Aug. 23

Police responded at 12:53 a.m. to an address on Stony Brook Drive for a call about an unwanted male at the residence. After an investigation, they charged Lori Elmslie, 49, of 7 Stony Brook Drive, Little Compton, with domestic simple assault.

Pesky baseball tourney a local hit

TIVERTON — It's a fun event, its organizers say — an annual baseball tournament in July for players nine years old and younger.

This year, the Tiverton Little League hosted the 13th annual Pesky Peckham Scholarship Tournament during the week of July 23-27.

Many towns — “from near and far,” say organizers — sent their teams of players to Tiverton for the occasion.

This year's tournament featured a total of 29 games, played by 16 teams. “It was a rousing success,” said organizers. “All participants had a blast.”

Three of this year's four scholarship winners from the Pesky Peckham tourney proceeds are (from left) Wyatt Nolan, Avery Pacheco, and Sarah Barboza. Missing is Eli Roeske.

Plymouth won this year's championship, defeating Marlboro by a 6-1 score in the final game.

Proceeds from the tournament go towards scholarships for graduating Tiverton high school seniors who came through the Tiverton Little League baseball and softball programs.

The four $1,000 scholarship winners this year were Tiverton High School students Sarah Barboza, Wyatt Nolan, Avery Pacheco, and Eli Roeske.

The tournament is held every year in July to honor the memory of Pesky Peckham, a longtime coach and manager in Tiverton Little League, who passed away in 2002.

Several of Pesky's family members, including sons, daughters, and grandchildren, are active participants and volunteers in Tiverton Little League and other Tiverton youth sports, said Tiverton Little League spokeswoman Claudia Linhares.

The tournament began in 2002 with only two teams participating.

Over the years, teams have come from a wide variety of towns, including as far away as Holland, Pennsylvania.

“The ‘Pesky’ Tournament, which is characterized by a spirit of fun and originality, has become a ‘must’ event yearly for several Rhode Island and Massachusetts towns,” said Ms. Linhares.

WEDDINGS

Nathan Charles Titcomb - Joy Elizabeth Mitchell

Joy Elizabeth Mitchell and Nathan Charles Titcomb of Tiverton were united in marriage on Saturday, June 28, 2014, at St. John's Episcopal Church in Barrington. The Rev. Canon Robert S. Taylor officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony. A reception followed at Glen Manor House in Portsmouth.

The bride is the daughter of Patricia and Leeds Mitchell III of Bristol.

The bridegroom is the son of Neil and Carol Titcomb of Branford, Conn.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of Alençon lace with a sweetheart neckline and beaded embroidery, with a chapel-length train. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses, calla lilies and hydrangeas.

Alyse Ivaniski was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kaleigh Crowell, Aimee Audette and Lindsay Armstrong Mitchell.

Christopher Titcomb was best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Matthew Mitchell and Leeds Mitchell IV, brothers of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Providence Country Day School and Muhlenberg College. She is a master's degree student in the school psychology program at the University of Rhode Island and a future school psychologist.

The bridegroom is a graduate of

Nathan and Joy Titcomb

Branford High School and Roger Williams University. He is a yacht rating specialist at the U.S. Sailing Association.

AT THE SCHOOLS

THS students receive AP Scholar Awards

TIVERTON — Nine students at Tiverton High School earned AP Scholar Awards in recognition of exceptional achievement on the AP exams.

The College Board's Advanced Placement (AP) Program provides students with an opportunity to take rigorous college-level courses while still in high school, and to earn college credit, advanced placement, or both for successful performance on the AP exams. About 18 percent of the 1.6 million students worldwide who took AP exams earned an award.

Madison E. Panell qualified for the AP Scholar with Honor Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.25 on all AP exams taken, and grades of 3 or higher on four or more of the exams.

Eight students qualified for the AP Scholar Award by completing three or more AP exams with grades of 3 or higher. The AP Scholars are Aidan J. Bradley, Katelyn A. Caraveo, Jocelyn M. Pacheco, Kirsten A. Petrarca, Briana L. Resendes, Abigail R. Rezendes, Samantha Rollings and Rebecca M. Turner.

ROOFING

We Will Save You Money... Guaranteed!!!

*4 Things You Need to Know
When Hiring a Roofer:*

1. We recommend to NEVER give a roofing contractor a deposit of any kind prior to job completion. Everyone knows someone burned by a contractor.
2. We recommend NEVER to do business with a roofing contractor that has been in business less than 10-15 years. 80% of roofers go out of business within the first 5 years and then your warranty is worthless.
3. We recommend NEVER to have your roof replaced by XXX Home Improvements, XXX Construction or any other name that does not include "Roofing." Most of these companies do not have proper roofing insurance.
4. We recommend to ALWAYS check with the Rhode Island Contractors Board @ www.crb.gov/ to check out the company and their track record.

On Tuesdays, a watercolor class is from 1 to 3 p.m. with instructor Madeleine Diogenes. The fee is $3.

On Wednesdays, chorus, under the direction of Starr Medeiros, meets at 12:30 p.m. The fee is $2. Wii bowling is at 1 p.m.

SHIP counseling

LITTLE COMPTON — Pat Walker from the Portsmouth Multi-Purpose Senior Center, in partnership with Child and Family Services, is available on the first Thursday of the month, Sept. 4, from 9 a.m. to noon for one-on-one consultations. SHIP (Senior Health Insurance Program) counselors can discuss Medicare, Medicare Part D, supplemental insurance, Medicare Advantage plans, and other health insurance options. SHIP counselors assist beneficiaries in making the most appropriate choice for their health care needs.

Appointments are for a one-hour session at the Little Compton Wellness Center, 115 East Main Road. To schedule a consultation, contact Pat at 683-4106 or e-mail pmpsc@outlook.com.

Little Compton seniors

LITTLE COMPTON — The Little Compton Senior Citizens Club meets at noon on the first Thursday of the month, Sept. 4, at the IOOF hall on the Commons. Refreshments, a penny sale and bingo will follow the meeting.

Some of the finest cooks in Little Compton are volunteering their time to prepare delicious meals for senior lunches at 11:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the Little Compton Community Center.

Pick up a menu at the community center. There is a $3 suggested donation for the disabled and seniors age 50 and over, and a $6 suggested donation under age 50. Call to reserve at least 24 hours in advance at 635-2400.

Instructor Debbie Gagnon provides low-impact, interval-aerobic movement with dance elements. The class focuses on core muscle groups and cardiovascular fitness in a safe and effective manner. It is $5 per class ($3 members). The Little Compton Community Center underwrites a portion of the costs of the class to keep the price affordable to seniors.

Also at the community center is senior bingo on the first and third Mondays of the month at 12:30 p.m., popcorn and movies on the second Monday of the month at 12:30 p.m., and cards and cookies on the fourth Monday of the month at 12:30 p.m.

An optional workshop/lecture and Q&A is at 6:30 p.m., with the concert at 8 p.m. Doors open at 7:30. BYOB and food are allowed. Tickets are $12 in advance and $15 at the door for the concert, $8/$10 for the workshop, and $18/$20 for both.

Will Woodson and Eric McDonald are two of the finest proponents of traditional Scottish music today. Their unique approach, while rooted in the old and new music of Scotland, is also informed by the traditional music scene of their native New England. Border pipes, wooden flute, tin whistle, guitar, mandolin and voice fuse to create a detailed fabric of tunes and songs. They live in Portland, Maine, where they share a teaching studio.

■ A new exhibit "Weather Systems," is at the Van Vessem Gallery from Aug. 30 to Sept. 28. It features the work of Brooke Mullins Doherty, including site-specific installations with fabric, wire, thread and light, along with acrylic paintings and monoprints.

An artist's reception is from 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 30. The gallery is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Thursday to Sunday and during concerts at the adjacent Sandy-woods Center for the Arts.

Ms. Doherty is from New Bedford and teaches at Bristol Community College, Lasell College, Cape Cod Community College and CCRI. She has also taught sculpture courses at UMass-Dartmouth. Her sculptures, drawings, and prints have been exhibited in numerous solo and group exhibitions.

■ Red Eye Flight with Bob Kendall will perform on Saturday, Aug. 30, at 7:30 p.m. Doors open at 7. BYOB and food are allowed. Tickets are $12 in advance and $15 at the door. Red Eye Flight is a Rhode Island-based Americana band whose members have been playing together for nearly a decade.

While the individual members had been playing in other projects and other genres for decades before that, Red Eye Flight's sound really came together in 2006 when Tim Murphy (guitar and vocals) and Derek Escher (guitars, mandolin, vocals) met Ken E. Taylor (bass, vocals and more). And it developed further when Rand Torman (drums) joined in 2010, and Kelly Cleveland added her vocals and percussion in 2011.

At its core, the band's sound rises up out of strong vocal harmonies set against electric and acoustic instrumentation to create soundscapes that evoke this country, from Western highways to the open ocean.

■ A variety of yoga and fitness classes are offered at the center. Kundalini yoga is on Mondays from 6 to 7:30 p.m. with Deb Brown. Zumba is on Wednesdays from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

On Thursdays, restorative yoga is from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m., vinyasa yoga is from 7 to 8 p.m. and Sexy Meditation is from 8 to 9 p.m., all with Beth Hammond.

On Saturdays, Sexy Yoga for Couples is from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and Sexy Yoga for Women is from 8 to 9 p.m., both with Beth Hammond.

'Cat to School' adoption sale at the Potter League

SAKONNET AREA — The Potter League for Animals is having a "Cat to School" Sale with reduced adoption fees on cats 8 years and older for only $25 from Wednesday to Sunday, Aug. 27 to 31. Mature cats make great pets, especially with the winter months coming.

The cat adoption extravaganza will be held for five days only. All cats are spayed or neutered, examined by a veterinarian, have age-appropriate vaccinations, treated with Merial Frontline flea/tick preventatives and have microchips. Adoptions include a cardboard carrier, a collar and ID tag, and bag of Hill's Science Diet cat food.

The Potter League is at 87

Oliphant Lane in Middletown. Visit www.PotterLeague.org to view all their adoptable animals.

In their own words, customers say it best for NEKB

We enjoyed working with New England Kitchen and Bath, and would highly recommend them. Mike has a down-to-earth, no-pressure approach that makes the planning process very comfortable. He listened to our ideas and worked with us to get the most out of our space while giving us cost-saving options. A good example is the custom-looking storage wall he created for us by putting together standard-sized cabinets in a creative way. He also gave us an option that saved the cost of adding new heating to our project. In addition, we wanted to do the demolition and the painting ourselves, and we appreciated the guidance that NEKB gave us with that.

Gerry and his crew worked hard to stay on schedule and on budget and coordinated the work of the sub-contractors so everything ran smoothly. Their attention to detail and the quality of their work showed in every aspect of the installation. The Dynasty cabinets are beautiful and very well constructed. The order arrived on schedule and when we found a scratch on one drawer, NEKB immediately requested a replacement without us having to ask. We are very happy with our new kitchen and thankful to the staff of NEKB for making it a great experience.

An important message for T• Sakonnet Times subscribers

Thank you for reading this newspaper, and thank you for pausing to read this letter. As General Manager of the company that publishes this paper, I am proud of what we do. With a fairly small news team, we gather a lot of news from your hometown.

In one month (July), this newspaper published 88 news articles, 17 letters from readers, 30 columns and 18 obituary notices. We also published 21 pages of Things to Do; recognized thousands of honor roll students; told you about hundreds of college graduates; celebrated births, weddings and engagements; and printed more community group announcements than you can shake a stick at.

That's one month. One newspaper.

Collectively, we publish seven newspapers, and we employ 12 full-time journalists with more than two centuries of accumulated reporting experience. Besides reading this paper, you can see most of their work on our website, eastbayri.com, where you essentially get seven newspapers for free.

In one month on the site, we posted 395 total pieces of "content," 222 news stories, 67 reports on police or criminal activity, 20 sports stories, and 46 obituary notices. In most cases, we posted the news immediately, as soon as we had it, sometimes moments after it happened.

I'll tell you what this is all about.

Beginning next month, our website will be open to subscribers only. If you subscribe to one of the newspapers, you can read the website for $1 more per month. If you don't subscribe to a paper, it will be $3 per month.

We will still allow a limited number of "free" articles per month — most likely 4. After that, we're going to ask you to subscribe.

Why are we doing this? Because we have to.

The economics of newspapers have changed, but not as much as you might think. We've been hearing that "print is dead" for a decade now, but print is definitely not dead. Our papers reach nearly 30,000 homes each week, and hundreds of businesses use the hometown paper to reach customers every week.

Though we are honored to serve a role in this town as community watchdog, steward or resource, we are very much a business. We always have been. Like the business you work in, we need to make money to survive. And we can no longer afford to sell on one hand (newspapers), what we give away for free on the other (website).

We hope you understand the changes, and we hope you continue reading us in every way you have been — renewing your annual subscription and visiting our website often. We will be providing more details on the "how" part of our digital subscriptions soon. In the meantime, if you have any feedback, please call or email me.

And again, thanks for reading!

Sincerely,

Last call

TIM MARSHALL

Bicyclist Kaiya Leibovitz enjoys a delicious break at The Fruity Cow in Warren on the last Saturday before the Labor Day weekend.

Making the most of summer treats on the East Bay's most seasonal route

BY CHRISTY NADALIN
cnadalin@eastbaynewspapers.com

The official last weekend of summer is upon us, and the living is easy.

Or not. It's Labor Day weekend, when the smell of barbecue in the air competes with the smell of newly-minted highlighters and pencil shavings; the sound of summer's crickets interrupted by the cracking spine of a never-read chemistry text. You can almost feel the desperation, as the last moments are squeezed out of the season.

There are few more quintessentially summer foods than ice cream, nor more universal summer activities than a nice bike ride. For more than two decades now, we've had access to a truly excellent route in the East Bay Bike Path, and if you have not yet carved out time to enjoy it this summer, there's no time like the present. And it's loaded with opportunities to treat yourself.

No guilt — biking takes energy. You will need to fortify. Call it snackerise.

Beginning at mile negative-zero, at Independence Park in Bristol, duck into the Daily Scoop (446B Thames St. Bristol; 401/254-2223), for your first scoop of the day. There are too many great flavors here to choose just one, but black raspberry chip (either the ice cream or the low fat version), might be a good choice (you will see why later.)

With nearly a mile under your belt, at Asylum Road, you are probably parched. Thank goodness there is an enterprising Del's franchisee with a mobile cart. Take a load off — biking's thirsty work!

Back on the path, miles to go before you rest (roughly three, to be exact,) provides the opportunity to get your appetite back up in time for the next pitstop. This one's a triple threat: at the junction of Child Street in Warren, you are faced with a brick-and-mortar Del's, The Fruity Cow, and, for the holiday weekend at least, a makeshift retail stand of the Old Time Kettle Corn Company.

At this Del's (65 Child St., Warren; 401/247-2210) you'll find many more choices than the same ol' that's stocked in the trucks. Don't miss your chance to try grapefruit, cherry, blueberry, or mango/peach, before wheeling your bike across Child Street for a bag of kettle corn and a paleta — a Mexican popsicle — from The Fruity Cow (8 Turner St., Warren; 401/289-2089). With flavors like habanero hotsicle, roasted banana and cardamom, and Mexican chocolate, there is nothing quite like it out there.

Yes, this is a lot of food at once. Assuming you were cursed with only two arms, store your paleta upside down in your Del's cup until you can give each proper attention, and ignore the horrified stares of your fellow, health-conscious bikers.

It's nearly another 2 miles until the next stop: the Barrington outlet of The Daily Scoop. (230 County Road, Barrington; 401/245-0100). Try that flavor that was your second choice in Bristol. If you got one of the raspberry chips, get the other and decide if the yogurt is really a fair substitute or if next summer, you should just stick with the hi-test.

Around mile 9, follow the signs a half mile off the path to hit the Crescent Park Carousel (Bullocks Point Ave., East Providence; 401/433-2828.) While technically a detour, it's worth the trip to grab a few clamcakes and cover the three food groups you've been missing all day: clams, batter, and things that are fried. You've worked hard, so forego the bouncing horses in favor of grabbing a nap on one of the immobile sleighs, dozing off to the soothing sounds of calliope music.

When you rejoin the bike path, stop at the hydration station to refill your water bottle — and grab a pretzel rod. The one you bought at Del's back at mile 4 probably dissolved before you could down it.

At mile 10, pull in to the delightfully retro Dari Bee (240 Bullocks Point Ave., Riverside; 401/433-1931) because you know what you've been missing? Soft serve.

There are about 4 miles left between you and the end of the line, but until the bike path is restored over the Washington Bridge, you are facing a long empty stretch with nothing to do but...exercise.

You've got 9 long months to work it off; no need to start now.

**Disclaimer: Consider spreading these indulgences out over the course of a smart, well-balanced summer.*

Labor daytripping

It's one of our favorite excuses: the East Bay is not a place to leave on a summer weekend. After all, people come here to vacation. Still, it's a great big world out there and there's a lot to see, especially this weekend, with events happening all across the state and a couple of perennial favorites getting underway in (gasp!) a neighboring one. So gas the car, update your GPS app, and pack a cooler: you've got three days to blow, you can spend one of them on the road. Here are a few top pics:

The Rustic goes retro

The landmark drive-in is going strong, and this weekend it's going to tug at the strings of your classic movie-loving heart with 70's and 80's (and 90's) throwbacks in all their double-feature splendor. "Jurassic Park" and "Jaws"; "E.T." and "Raiders of the Lost Ark"; and "Grease" and "American Graffiti" will be presented in crisp, all-digital format. Admission is just $25 for two great films, and cars made before 1980 will only be charged $15 (registration proof may be required). Gates open at 4 p.m. on Sunday; 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. Rustic Tri Vue Drive-In, 1195 Eddie Dowling Highway Route 146 South, North Smithfield; 401/769-7601.

Rhode Island Philharmonic in Bristol

This Sunday August 31, the RI Philharmonic Pops will once again perform at Independence Park in Bristol. Led by Resident Conductor Francisco Noya (pictured), the Summer Pops 2014 program features a variety of compositions including Grieg's "In the Hall of the Mountain King", Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries", and music from "Spiderman" by contemporary composer Danny Elfman; as well as Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Michael DiMucci will warm up the crowd beginning at 5 p.m.; the Philharmonic will follow.

The rain date will be Monday, September 1.

17th annual Rhythm & Roots Festival

The hottest festival of music and dance in New England, Rhythm and Roots is a grand finale to a Rhode Island summer. This two-and-a-half day, five-stage, all-ages festival takes over Ninigret Park, 4890A Old Post Road, Charlestown. World-class musicians perform roots music on several stages, offer free workshops, and bring vibrant energy to the crowds on the dance floors. Entry includes free family activities such as crafts, professional storytellers and performers, Mardi Gras-themed parades, the popular Cajun Kids Academy, and artisan crafts, clothing, ethnic foods, beer, wine, ice cream, gifts and more for sale. Advance tickets for Friday only: $40; Saturday only: $60; Sunday only: $60; or $150 for all three days. Children 12 and under are free with a paying adult. You might want to get a room — Charlestown might as well be in Connecticut. For more information visit rhythmandroots.com.

Tour the Island of Sodor with Thomas

Little engineers won't believe their eyes — or their ears. Thomas the Tank Engine returns to Edaville USA, and for the first time ever at Day Out With Thomas, he will be able to talk to his fans. This fun-filled event offers little engineers and their families the opportunity to take a ride with Thomas the Tank Engine, star of the popular Thomas & Friends series, meet Sir Topham Hatt, Controller of the Railway and enjoy a day of Thomas-themed activities including arts and crafts, storytelling and more. The ride is approximately 25 minutes, and you can take it from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., this weekend or next, at Edaville USA, 5 Pine St., Carver, Mass. For information, tickets, and directions call 781/254-5005 or visit edaville.com.

Travel back in time

You won't have to go far from Sodor to enjoy another alternate reality, also in Carver. King Richard's Faire opens for its 33rd season this Saturday, August 30, and will run through October 19. Immerse yourself in the sights and sounds of the Renaissance, when people josted on horseback and fought with swords, all without benefit of antibiotics. With live, interactive entertainment, music, fantasy and fun; an artisans market; and hearty faire fare including corn, chowder boules, and the now-iconic giant turkey drumsticks, it's as sure a sign of autumn in New England as falling leaves and Pats jerseys. Located at 235 Main St. (Rt. 58) in Carver, Mass. Call 508/866-5391 or visit kingrichardsfaire.net for more information.

PET OF THE WEEK

Meet Simon and Nala

These two beautiful cats are making their home at the Warren Animal Shelter. They have both been at the shelter for a while now and really need to find a permanent home. Simon is a vocal Siamese cat that might be better in a home with no small children. He likes to be petted but when he has had enough he will let you know. He is about 9 years old, gets along with other cats, is up to date on his shots, and is neutered. Nala loves to lay around and watch what is going on. She is not very vocal, and can usually be found up on the cat tower taking it easy. She is between the ages of 3 and 5, up to date on shots, and spayed. Nala is a good cat and would make a great addition to anyone's family. If there is anyone out there that can help find homes for these two — or add them to your own family — please call the shelter at 401/245-4569.

Bristol Harbor Festival is this Saturday

The Bristol Harbormaster's office and local Bristol fishermen are teaming up to host the inaugural Bristol Harbor Festival and Blessing of the Fleet. The event will kick off with a 5k road race through downtown Bristol at 10 a.m. on Saturday August 30. The festival will continue at Rockwell Park on Thames St. and include a stuffie competition, children's activities, music, commercial fishing exhibits, boating safety info, boat tours and a dunk tank.

The Blessing of the Fleet will be held at 3 p.m., followed by a littleneck boil with a cash raw bar at 5 p.m. Registration for the 5k road race is available online at eventbrite.com and tickets for the littleneck boil can be purchased at the Harbormaster's office for $20 per person; free hotdogs for kids. For more information contact the Harbormaster's office at 127 Thames St, Bristol; 401/253-1700.

Providence has a bench full of talent

Providence is a great city with some enormous problems. Some of them are typical urban problems like crime and the high cost of housing while others are uniquely Rhode Island: there are jobs to be had, but no residents with the skills to fill them. We all know that Providence has been teetering on the edge of bankruptcy for at least five years and only a series of clever accounting tricks and last minute infusions of cash have allowed the city to make payroll. If the last mayor inherited a category 5 hurricane, the next one will have the responsibility of doing the post-disaster clean up.

Cara CROMWELL

While more than 80 percent of Rhode Islanders don't live in Providence, the problems of the city impact all of us: our income taxes go to Providence and a big chunk of them never leave the capital city. For no other reason that this, people all over the state should care about who fills the leadership vacuum in Providence. It goes without saying that Providence has a great fan base of residents committed to the city's future and the last few weeks have shown that there are real stars in her clubhouse.

When Buddy Cianci first declared his intention to run for mayor once again – this time as an independent – much of the political chatter focused around who, if anyone, could beat him in what began as a four-way race. The thought was that despite his record, Buddy has a real base and could find 30 percent of voters at almost any time, making a four-way race an ideal situation for the rise of Buddy. When that became clear, Lorne Adrain (I) dropped out, making Buddy's math more difficult by creating a three-way race.

In recent weeks, revelations about the Democratic frontrunner, Michael Solomon, have led some observers to call him "Buddy lite" suggesting that he would be no better than Buddy at moving Providence forward. The Providence fan base realized that even if Solomon could beat Buddy in a three-way, the same insider politics would once again rule the city and so last week Brett Smiley left the race, throwing his support to the anti-Buddy/anti-Solomon candidate, squeaky clean former judge Jorge Elorza.

Ego usually keeps candidates in races they cannot win, declaring themselves contenders to the end and I have to admit that I thought this race would be no different. I

Matthew McCabe caught a record-breaking cobia off Newport last week. Manny Macedo of Lucky Bait & Tackle in Warren said, "We weighed the fish in at 36.2 pounds and if that weight holds this will be a state record. The fish was 48.5 inches with a girth of 23.5 inches. Matthew lives in Warwick and his family, who were visiting from Florida, came in the shop earlier in the week and bought clamming rakes and a few other things for a weeklong vacation. And then he returned with this record-breaking fish. It's very exciting."

Here is Matthew's story. "My brother-in-law (Todd Taylor) was up from Port St. Lucy, Florida. We tried to fish on my dad's boat over the weekend but we had engine trouble and never made it to Block Island. So we thought we would try fluke and black sea bass fishing off Newport.

It was eleven o'clock and we were bottom fishing with pieces of squid between Brenton Reef and the second red can off Castle Hill Light. The water was not moving very fast, the drift was not right. So, I put my 17' boat in gear to do a little power drifting. We went about twenty feet and bam... that was it... the rod bent in half. As it came to the boat the first time I thought it was a shark then it jumped out of the water and Todd said, "That's no shark, it's a cobia."

Cobia migrate along the Atlantic coast on a seasonal basis. In spring, they move from southern Florida, to the Carolinas as water temperatures rise. That's right — I said the Carolinas. Cobia are a warm water fish, and catching them in Rhode Island is rare.

Last year, I wrote about three cobia caught in Rhode Island waters including one caught by Greg Vespe of Tiverton. "What a fight... the fish cleared the water by three feet and then dug under the boat and ran...boy they are tough fish," said Vespe as he recounted his fight with a cobia he caught off the south side of Gould Island in the East Passage of Narragansett Bay. "The fish weighted 17 pounds, not really big for a cobia but what a fight."

Cobia are becoming more popular in the northeast now that the ocean and Bay water is getting warmer, but catching them is still rare.

"If Todd wasn't with me we would have lost this fish. When we pulled it out of net the 20 pound fluorocarbon hi/low rig was broken so if he didn't net the fish we would have lost it for sure. The fish nearly spooled me twice on two separate runs, we finally netted it the third time we brought it to the boat. It kept diving deep, as deep as it could, moving all around under the boat. I was afraid it was going to get cut off on the engine." said McCabe.

A favorite food of cobia are crabs and they are commonly called "crab-eater". They often cruise in packs of 3-100 fish, hunting for food during migration in shallow water along the shoreline. They will follow rays, turtles, and sharks, sneaking in to scavenge whatever is left behind.

The Rhode Island Department of Environmental Management lists the largest cobia caught in Rhode Island as 35 pounds and 48" long caught by T. Parsons south of Hope Island in August of 1995. So Matthew McCabe's fish at 36.2 pounds is sure to be a state record once certified. Congratulations Matthew, your cobia is a very nice fish.

West Bay anglers pig roast

The West Bay Anglers will hold a pig roast Saturday, September 27; at 1 p.m. at the FOP Lodge in Warwick. The public is invited to attend and tickets are $30 each. Call Frank Tameo at 401/463-3331 for information or to make a reservation.

Rhode Island schedules ASMFC meeting on striped bass

A public hearing on possible striped bass regulation options proposed in the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries 's Commission draft Addendum IV (to Amendment 6) of the Interstate Fishery Management Plan for Atlantic striped bass will be held Wednesday, September 17; 6 p.m. at the University of Rhode Island, Coreless Auditorium, South Ferry Road, Narragansett. For information contact Nicole Lengyel of DEM's Fish & Wildlife Division at 401/423-1940.

Where's the bite

Striped bass. "Block Island was phenomenal this year but things slowed a bit and now fish have moved onto Watch Hill reef with anglers catching fish in the 20 to 30 pound range trolling umbrella rigs and snapping wire (with jigs)." said Mike Wade of Watch Hill Outfitters, Westerly. "We have small school bass in the 16" to 18" range off East Providence and this week bluefish had the water boiling a few times," said John Littlefield of Archie's Bait & Tackle, Riverside. Elisa Martin of Snug Harbor Marina, South Kingstown said, "The Block Island bass bite on the southwest side is fair to good. Not like it was but we did weigh in a 45 pound fish this week."

Matthew McCabe with the record 36.2 pound cobia he weighed in at Lucky Bait & Tackle, Warren.

Summer flounder (fluke) fishing remains very strong on the southeast side of Block Island in 70 feet of water and at the East Fishing Grounds with just about all fish being caught over two pounds." said Elisa Martin of Snug Harbor Marina. Fluke fishing was slow this week in the Bay. I fished the West Passage of the Bay around the Jamestown Bridge and south to Austin Hollow and Beavertail and the bite was off. "A customer caught twelve fluke at the Newport Bridge, at Hull Cove and off Newport," said John Wunner of John's Bait & Tackle, North Kingstown. "I know there are fluke a Sabin Point, we have had a few anglers catching them but not many people are targeting them there," said Littlefield. Wade said, "Fluke fishing outside of Little Narragansett Bay (Westerly) has been good with anglers hitting fish at 40 to 60 foot depth."

Bonito and false albacore reports have not been good. "We had bonito a couple of weeks ago but have had no reports of fish in the area now. We hope they come back soon with the false albacore," said Wade.

Offshore fishing for tuna this year has been good. "Small to medium size bluefin and yellow fin are being caught in fairly good numbers. We weighed in an 80 pound bluefin a couple of weeks ago. Overall fishing has been good close to Block Island (with anglers not having to go too far). Anglers are catching one or two fish a trip consistently which is pretty good," said Wade. "It's been a good tuna year," said Martin. "Tuna fishing south of the Dump and in the Shipping Lanes are yielding bluefin, yellow fin and Wahoo. Now everyone is waiting for the giants (bluefin)."

Shore fishing for scup at Sabin's Point and Colt State Park has been good, according to Littlefield. I spoke with Steve Burstein of West Warwick for a few minutes last week as he fished the public wharf in Wickford. In five minutes he landed a scup and a northern kingfish. Wade said, "Shore anglers are catching bass to 25 pounds at Nappatree and Weekapaug. Things were not good, but they are improving for shore anglers."

Tautog fishing reports have been nonexistent. However, spear fishermen are landing tautog. Not many anglers have targeted them yet. "A customer caught fifteen tautog at Conimicut Light last week and they were all shorts, it might be too early for tautog," said Littlefield.

Black sea bass and scup remain the go-to fish species for Narragansett Bay. Fishermen are catching them on or near docks, rock piles and structure. Angler Jack Leyden of North Kingstown said, "Black sea bass fishing was good today (Sunday) off Newport. Fish were in the 15 inch range and fairly easy to catch." "Customers are catching a lot of scup at Sabin Point, East Providence. There are 60 people there at night fishing. Since the scup have come to Sabin Point my worm sales have doubled. Tommy cod and now trigger fish have main an appearance at Sabin Point too," said Littlefield.

Books to read during the dog days of summer

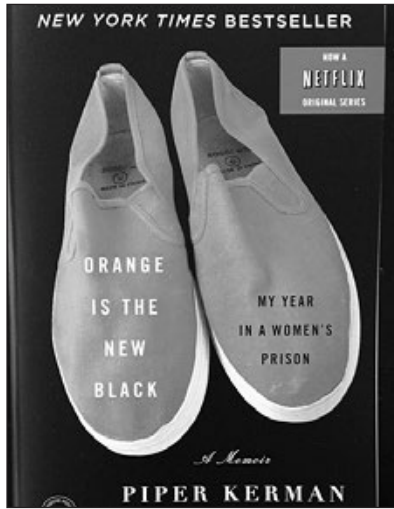

BY LYNDA REGO

lrego@eastbaynewspapers.com

After eradicating as many weeds in the garden as possible, it's time to sit back and enjoy the flowers during the dog days of August when it's nice just to sit in the shade and read.

As summer winds down, it's a race to squeeze in as much outdoor reading as possible. Following are just a few possibilities.

"Orange is the New Black: My Year in a Women's Prison" (2010) by Piper Kerman. I haven't seen the Netflix series based on this book (it sounds as if they sensationalized it), but the memoir is a mesmerizing look at Kerman's 13 months in the federal corrections facility in

Danbury, Conn. The Smith College graduate and Boston native foolishly confuses adventure with crime and is found guilty of money laundering (she transported a suitcase full of money for drug dealers). Luckily, her family, friends and fiancé are incredibly supportive and her prison experience wasn't as bad as I expected. But, it's still a cautionary tale and a horrifying look at how the system works (or doesn't) and the hapless people who find themselves mired in it.

ple of years. I think I ignored it because someone compared it to a book I didn't like. But, I'm so glad I picked it up. It's a clever, imaginative story of a boy on a mission to discover who killed his neighbor's dog. Christopher narrates the book and, (although he doesn't think he can tell a joke), he's a funny, but moving 15-year-old who is a genius with numbers and loves animals, but isn't so good with humans, hates the color yellow and being touched, and isn't so good at social niceties either. His detective work will take him outside his comfort zone and change his (and his parents') lives.

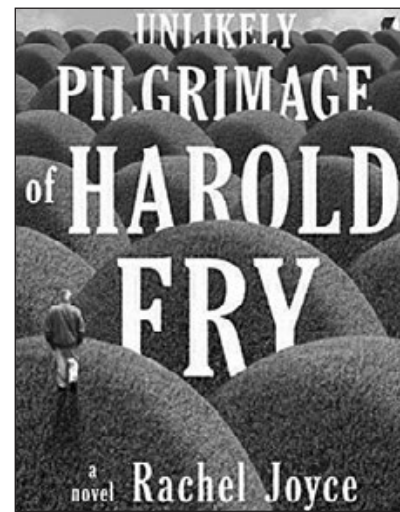

learning, and so much more. "Walking the stacks in a library, dragging your fingers across the spines — it's hard not to feel the presence of sleeping spirits," Clay says.

"The Dearly Departed" (2001) by Elinor Lipman. I'm working my way through Lipman's books and just love them. Whoever said you can't go home again hasn't read the plethora of books about characters who do just that. When Sunny's mother dies, she reluctantly returns to the small town (1,008 residents) in New Hampshire where she grew up. Margaret was an amateur thespian and died of carbon monoxide poisoning with her supposed fiancée — and that's just the beginning of a secret life Sunny knew nothing about. Lipman has been called a latter-day Jane Austen, and her books do have the same wry sense of humor and social interactions.

"Murder at the Kennedy Center" (1989) by Margaret Truman was another book that's been languishing on the shelf. It's a well-written murder-mystery set in Washington, D.C. Mac Smith, a retired lawyer turned law professor is pressed into service by Senator Ken Ewald (most likely the Democratic candidate for president in the next election), when his son is suspected of murder. Soon Mac and his girlfriend Annabel are investigating the cast of characters. What I found most interesting is that the story could have been set today (except no cell phones). Even some of the political references and shenanigans could have come from today's headlines.

"The Unlikely Pilgrimage of Harold Fry" (2012) by Rachel Joyce is an international best-seller and I can't recommend it enough. This charming, touching book is so easy to identify with. Harold Fry walks out of his house and his lifeless marriage to Maureen one morning to post a letter to Queenie, a former co-worker who is dying of cancer. Before the day is over, he will embark on an unplanned walking trek 600 miles north through the heart of England to see her. He leaves a message at the hospice to say he is coming and she is to wait. Harold feels that as long as he walks, she will live. As he walks, he relives his life, remembering things he thought forgotten and regretting so many choices. Each person he meets along the way has a story, and he realizes that everyone is just putting one foot in front of the other. Meanwhile, back home, Maureen is having small epiphanies of her own.

"Mr. Penumbra's 24-Hour Bookstore" by Robin Sloan. This fantasy novel is a delight to those enamored of books and/or computers and was hard to put down. The story of the mysterious bookstore of the title, its owner and its purpose are ferreted out by new employee Clay Jannon, a designer who's expert at using social media, but is downsized. As the new clerk on the night shift at the bookstore, Clay finds the store's customers curious and he becomes very curious himself. The story touches on old vs. new, friendship, love, love of books and

TRASH OR TREASURE?

POLI-TICKS

Say What??

Kudos to GoLocalProv and reporter Arielle Confino who recently investigated whether our candidates for Governor put their money where their respective mouths are. Each candidate speaks rhapsodically about creating jobs in Rhode Island. Yet, when it comes to where they put their donors dollars, with less than 3 weeks away from the primary, 72 percent of funds expended to get them elected are given to out of state political consultants, media buyers and direct mail vendors.

Look, you might think that this is no big deal but it is rather insulting to your intelligence and to the many fine consultants et al who try to earn a living in the state. Here's some of the politicians' rhetoric, all sourced from their television advertisements:

Pell: "...We need to invest in our future again."

Yet, Mr. Pell has spent about 83 percent of his funds on out of state companies.

Raimondo: "...Turning our economy around means making things in Rhode Island again."

Ms Raimondo has spent 76 percent of her contributions on outside vendors.

Block: "...We will put money back in your pocket and together we can fix R.I."

Mr. Block was talking about rooting out governmental waste and cutting taxes, but it still is cheeky to spend 66 percent from his coffers on outside firms.

Fung: "...I became Mayor of Cranston...and helped create 1000 jobs... I will do the same as governor."

Mr Fung dished out 51 percent to outside companies, plus he flew himself to Ohio to film an ad in a diner in Columbus, Ohio while taking on camera about creating Rhode Island jobs.

Good grief, folks!

This state is awash with competent campaign personnel who are extremely savvy political consultants and pollsters. Jim Gaffney, Victor Profughi and Tony Pesaturo come to mind. There is no better creator of political ads than Rob LaChance of Tin Can Alley. Media buyers like Ed Valente are experts and secure prime placement for their clients.

What is so disconcerting about the outside spending is the lack of insight and judgment exhibited by the candidates. There is a huge disconnect between what these candidates preach and what they do.

The irony is, of course, the outside firms sometimes are oblivious to the nuances of politics in this state so they can end up doing the candidate more harm than good. As a matter of fact, couldn't one of these out of state geniuses cautioned even one of the candidates how hiring them to make an ad about building job growth in Rhode Island might cause a backlash? If they are so smart why couldn't they see this spending as a campaign issue even if the gubernatorial candidate had no sense?

The bottom line is that all the candidates seem insincere about the promises of job creation when they didn't care two cents about doing so during their campaigns, except for their own insiders who run the operation. One can only imagine what is in store for the job seekers here outside of the winning "team." It is also strikingly pathetic that all the campaigns seek non-paid volunteers to get them elected but pass over them for any real jobs or training.

Attic yields 'GPS' of yesteryear

Q. I have this old compass I found in my dad's attic. It is in a 6" square wood box. It is marked "Kelvin White Boston". Can you tell me something about it and if it is worth anything?

A. What you have is called a dry mariner's compass. The dry mariner's compass has been around since the middle ages, possibly as early as the 1300's. It consists of a pivoting magnetic needle on a gimbal (to be able to handle the rolling of the waves) and is attached to a compass card also called a wind rose. The needle is housed in a box with a glass cover to protect the paper compass card and where the needle can move freely. The box would be placed where the needle lined up with the keel of a ship. As the ship changes direction, a magnetic needle will always point north.

Your Kelvin & Wilfrid White compass dates from the early 1900's. There were many manufacturers at the time. Old compasses in good condition with brass fittings and gimbals, dovetailed wood boxes range from $60- $500. Your compass would fetch in the $100-$200 range at auction.

CROMWELL: City well-served by Adrain, Smiley

can't remember a time when two candidates have dropped out of a race not because of lack of money or support – Adrain and Smiley had both – but because they wanted their supporters' votes to matter and for their city to be in the best hands possible when the dust settles.

Providence is a lucky city to have these stars on the bench and their commitment to the city's future bodes well for everyone in our little city-state. The primary election is now in the hands of the voters and for many, the choice is now clearer.

Fall Vegetable Gardening

The veggie season is far from over if you want to keep harvesting vegetables well into the fall. As you clear out an area that has produced all it can, turn it over and plant Lettuce, Broccoli, Cauliflower, Collards, Kale, and Cabbage. These will produce very well until we have a very hard freeze. You can also sow spinach for harvest this fall and plant enough to leave over the winter for harvest in early April. You can also be successful sowing mesclun mix for a great addition to your salads.

With any luck you can sow carrots and beets and have them to harvest well after frost. Cover them with straw to protect from frost.

In areas of the garden that you don't intend to replant, plant a cover crop of oats by mid September. If you clear out an area later, it is best to sow rye. Just be aware that rye will live through the winter and must be turned under early in the spring as it will quickly grow to four feet tall. Both covers will store nutrients that you will turn back into the soil in the spring and will prevent erosion.

Vegetable seedlings are available now.

Vinegar 101

Almost everyone has a bottle of white, distilled vinegar in the back of their cabinet. You might use it for cooking or cleaning. But did you know there are many types of vinegar that can be used in a variety of ways? All vinegar is made through the process of fermentation, and are acidic. Without added sugars or oils, they are generally calorie free, free of cholesterol, and sodium free.

Emily DELCONTE

Red or white wine vinegars are made by fermenting wine even further. Think of them just like you think of red and white wines. Use white wine vinegar in lighter dishes such as chicken and fish, and red wine vinegar in heavier meals that are looking for more flavor, such as beef and red sauces.

Rice vinegar is made from rice wine, rice vinegar is popular in Asian dishes such as sushi. It comes in white (best for vegetables), red (good for sauces and sweet dishes), and black (which has a smoky flavor).

Balsamic vinegar is made from grapes, and is aged for lengthy times for a deep flavor. Use it in sweet dishes such as over strawberries, or savory dishes such as salads.

Apple cider vinegar is usually unpasteurized, and made from apple cider. Try it as a salad dressing or marinade for a slightly sweet flavor.

Malt vinegar, made from barley, is a popular staple with french fries. But, it also pairs well with chicken dishes.

Check your cabinets for these different types of vinegar - you may have some that you've forgotten about!

Steamed Beets

SERVINGS: 4

- 6-8 whole beets, washed
- Cooking spray
- 2 tablespoons canola oil
- 2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon fresh parsley, finely chopped

1. Preheat oven to 425°F.
2. Trim beets, leaving 4 inches of stem on the top and the root ends. Steam for 15 minutes.
3. Rinse under cold water.
4. Slide the skin off the beets. Use gloves to prevent your hands from staining. Cut into 1 inch pieces.

5. Spray a baking pan with cooking spray. Place beets in pan.

6. Whisk together the oil, balsamic vinegar, salt, and pepper. Pour over the beets; mix until well coated.

7. Bake for 10 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley.

BTC presents Shakespeare's Julius Caesar

The Burbage Theatre Company presents a play about men who make mistakes; great men whose choice to act was met with grave consequences. In 44 BC on March 15th, certain few members of the Roman senate, as a means of preventing the ascension of a dictator, murdered Julius Caesar, one of the great rulers of the ancient world. Lead by the infamous Marcus Brutus in the name of honor and the general good, the faction of senators stabbed Caesar thirty three times on the floor of the Senate. What resulted was civil discord and the dividing of a great empire.

Eye Care

Presented by
Kendall A. Gibbs, M.D.
Eye Physician and Surgeon

JUST A SCRATCH?

Your first impulse after getting poked in the eye or otherwise scratching your cornea may be to self-treat it with an eye patch. While this may seem to be a good way to ease the accompanying pain, research indicates that initial use of eye patches slows healing and does not reduce pain. As a result, eye doctors may forego the use of eye patches or use them only sparingly. Since corneal abrasions do not affect vision to a great extent, it is rather pointless to condemn patients with scratched corneas to monocular (one-eyed) vision. Foregoing the use of an eye patch helps corneal abrasions heal more quickly on the first day following the injury.

Most corneal abrasions are preventable. Levels of protection include plastic safety glasses, polycarbonate lenses of varying thickness, industrial safety goggles with polycarbonate, as well as helmets with facemasks. We stress preventive health care for the entire family. We're located at 24 Bosworth Street, Barrington Shopping Center, Barrington, where we will discuss all the available options with you. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 247-2015 to schedule an appointment. We provide professional and personalized eye care for the entire family.

P.S. Having a corneal abrasion treated by the ophthalmologist is important because treatment may involve the use of antibiotics to reduce the risk of potentially serious infection.

MEET CHRISTINE BURGESS: LOVES ANTIQUES, WESTPORT BEACHES AND HUSBAND'S COOKING

BY JOAN D. WARREN

Christine Burgess brings a varied background of experience in residential real estate, fine arts and antiques to Milbury and Company. Christine's prior real estate experience includes residential real estate sales at Winchester, Mass.,-based Century 21 Fortin, along with the buying, restoring and construction of homes with her husband, Phil, for more than 20 years.

Christine is also involved in the arts and antiques world, working as an auction assistant for Skinner Auctioneers of Boston and Marlborough, Mass. Christine's ongoing experience with Skinner has her working with collectors, dealers, appraisers and auctioneers in many different areas, including Americana, China Trade and Asian Export, European Furniture and Furnishings, Paintings and Prints, Jewelry, Fine Silver, 20th Century Furniture and Decorative Arts as well. Prior to joining Skinner, Christine volunteered at both the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum in Boston and the Peabody Essex Museum in Salem, Mass., where she served as a docent for seven years. Christine's passion for arts and history continues in the South Coast, where she has served on a number of committees for the New Bedford Whaling Museum. Christine is also a member of the Westport Historical Society, Westport River Watershed Alliance, Westport Land Conservation Trust, the New Bedford Yacht Club and the Rhode Island Country Club.

Christine lives in Westport with her family.

WHY REAL ESTATE AS A CAREER?

"Finding the right home or listing a property is one of the most important decisions a person will ever make. Unlike business decisions, which can be based on simple dollars and cents, finding the right property is a multi-faceted decision involving many additional factors. Guiding someone through that process is something I greatly enjoy and an obligation that I take seriously."

WHAT DO YOU LIKE MOST ABOUT IT?

"Meeting interesting people from all different walks of life...Everyone has an interesting story to share...and I just love hearing those life stories!"

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU WEREN'T A REALTOR? "I would pursue my interest in dealing in antiques - especially fine estate jewelry."

HOBBIES: "Travel, travel, travel... art and antiques, music, reading and long walks with my dog."

WHAT'S YOUR FAVORITE PLACE TO HAVE DINNER? "In my husband's kitchen. He makes everything from scratch, including his stocks, harvesting most of the produce from our garden and using local sources for seafood, poultry and beef... I would say my favorite, overall, would be his lobster risotto made with his own lobster stock, local lobster meat, asparagus from our garden and Parmesan Reggiano. I, of course, happily volunteer to be on cleanup duty."

WHERE WOULD YOU LIVE IF YOU WEREN'T IN NEW ENGLAND? "California."

WHERE DO YOU GO TO RELAX? "The beach. Westport's beaches are

Christine Burgess

my favorite. Whether it's Horseneck State Beach, the private beaches such as Elephant Rock, Howland or Baker Beach; even the local town ones such as East Beach or Cherry and Webb. All offer so much to our community. It's where Rhode Island Sound meets Buzzards Bay... soft, soft sand, beautiful dunes and warmer water than most of southeastern Massachusetts. Whether you are into windsurfing, birdwatching or even just 'beaching it' with friends and family, Westport's beaches just can't be beat!"

BEST VACATION: "The South of France with my family."

FAVORITE MUSICIAN: "Joni Mitchell... or Oscar Peterson."

ADVICE FOR FIRST TIME BUYERS:

"Get your finances in order and get pre-approved. Also, be realistic about your expectations and don't be afraid of a little elbow grease to make your dream come true!"

Loan rates based on $100,000 with 20% down payment & no PMI. Variable mortgages listed are for 30 years, adjusted annually. Points are a one-time charge equal to one percent of the mortgage. APR stands for annual percentage rate and reflects closing costs spread over the life of the loan. CAP is the most a variable mortgage can increase in one year. Savings and loans and Rhode Island loan and investment banks are included in the bank section of this chart. These rates, provided by the institutions on Monday of this week, are subject to change or special conditions. For more information, consumers are advised to call the institution. First-time homebuyers may qualify for lower-rate mortgages from the Rhode Island Housing and Mortgage Finance Corporation. Many credit unions only grant loans to members and limit membership to a defined group. When shopping for mortgage rates ask for explanation of closing costs. Financial institutions that write residential mortgages that wish to be included on this list can get in touch with Classified Real Estate Advertising Specialist at 401-253-1000
