Red Sox invite cancer survivor, and his teammates, to Fenway

BY TED HAYES

ory Burke's long, scary road took a happy detour Saturday night.
Cory, 13, a Kickemuit Middle School student and standout youth baseball player who battled cancer for a year before being declared healthy about a month ago, spent the night at Fenway Park courtesy of the Boston Red Sox. He and his teammates on the King Philip Little League's All Star Team got a chance to tour the park, go behind the scenes and even walk out to the Green Monster, the most famous left field wall in baseball. The fact that Cory and at least two of his coaches are Yankees fans didn't matter — "This is awesome," he said as he and his buddies were called out just before the first pitch at 7:10 p.m.

The trip was only the latest in a string of extraordinary events that surrounded Cory and his team this summer. After he was diagnosed last fall with Ewing's Sarcoma, a form of bone cancer, Cory had to leave his teams, both the Kickemuit Wildcats and King Philip, to concentrate on his treatment. But even as he underwent chemotherapy and other treatment in Boston, he cheered on his buddies from the sidelines. It did the trick as both teams went on to win big this summer. In June, the Wildcats won the state Middle School championship for the first time in 18 years, and a month or so later the King Philip

Council adds another liquor license to town

New BV license goes to Gooding Grille

BY CHRISTINE O'CONNOR

coconnor@eastbaynewspapers.com

Bristol has increased the number of its liquor licenses from 29 to Town councilors unanimously approved to amend the town ordinance regulating full liquor licenses during its meeting Sept. 18.

The initial request to add a liquor license came from restauranteur Steve Parrot. He told councilors on Aug. 7 that he intended to open a restaurant at 200 Gooding Ave. - formerly Sage Bar and Grill - but only if he could be granted a full liquor license. The building was bought out of receivership by Pete Sebring, who transferred both the victualing and liquor licenses to the former YMCA building on Hope Street where he plans to open an oyster

That left 200 Gooding Ave., without a liquor license, and Mr. Parrot's need for the town to cre-

"I don't want to sponsor any establishment that doesn't serve food," said Councilman Halsey Herreshoff during the Sept. 18

Mr. Parrot assured council members that his restaurant Gooding Grille, would be a familystyle restaurant offering guests a full menu: steaks, seafood, pasta, soup, chowder prime rib and pizza. Menu items would range in price from $5 to $17, he said.

"(Financing) is based on whether we get a full license," Mr. Parrot told council members. "And I made that request for a license based on what I brought to the table as an experienced restauranteur, someone who has been in the industry for 35 years. I was a corporate director for Ruby

"I've never had issues in any of the states I've operated in."

Before approving the additional license and designating it to Mr. Councilman Nathan Calouro hesitated, suggesting that the council give Mr. Parrot a limited license now and review his progress in a few months. A limited license would allow Mr. Parrot to sell beer and wine, but not liquor.

"A lot of time councils want to put on training wheels," Mr. Parrot said. "But we have people in town who are getting licenses that have never been in business before. I have. I understand the law, rules and the way the process goes. We want to be upstanding citizens and be an asset to the communi-

Had the council voted in favor of a limited liquor license, Mr. Parrot said there would be an immediate economic impact to the restaurant.

"When people go out to a restaurant, and someone's in the group who only drinks a vodka martini with dinner, they'll make a decision to go somewhere else because they can't get what they want here," he said.

Police Chief Jose Canario recommended that the council grant Mr. Parrot's request, adding that "if he steps out of line we'll be right there to remind him."

Mr. Parrot is hoping to open Gooding Grille by mid-to-late October. He is working in conjunction with Bristol resident Asia Davidson, and Massachusetts general contractor Brandon Craf-

Steel drums, just hookah and no scavenger hunt

The Bristol Town Council made the following actions during its meeting Sept. 18:

Steel drummin' at Nacho Mamma's

A request by Nacho Mamma's owner Michael Sinno to offer musical entertainment one night during the week was approved. A musician will be playing the steel drums, un-amplified, from 6 - 9 p.m. on Thursdays at the State Street Mexican restaurant. The entertainment is part of Nacho Mamma's Reggae Night.

No bar, or added hours for hookah lounge

Rami Jenblat, owner of My Shisha Cafe on Wood Street, asked that he be allowed to keep his business open an extra hour, from 11 p.m. - midnight, on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. The council denied his request, referring to Police Chief Josue Canario. Chief Canario told Mr. Jenblat that he preferred to keep the business hours "as-is" because it's "working well right now." Mr. Jenblat presented the council with a petition signed by his neighbors, stating they were OK with the additional hour. Still, the council's denial stood. Mr. Jenblat's request will be reviewed again at the next council meeting, once more information

Mr. Jenblat's request to sell beer and wine was also denied, for the same reasons. Under the town's ordinance regulating liquor licenses, all BV holders must serve a full food menu, which My Shisha Cafe does not.

Glowbash Scavenger Hunt denied

The council denied a request by Sara Chiappone, event coordinator of the Glowbash 5K Scavenger Hunt, to hold the event at Agave on Hope Street. A similar event held last spring drew concerns about safety among citizens and officials because participants were wandering the streets.

Public service appointments

The council approved the following Bristol residents to serve on public boards: Ethan M. Tucker and Jerry Dauterive, Economic Development Commission, term expires 2016.

Noise Committee disbanded

Councilman Nathan Calouro moved to disband the noise committee, which was approved by all councilors present. The 15-member committee was formed 2009, following several neighbor complaints that events at Blithewold were too loud. The committee conducted research and proposed a noise ordinance, establishing decibel limits for events and zoning districts, which was later adopted by the council.

Getting the most from Social Security

Plan well, retire well.

That's the motto of Josh Wells, president of Euclid Financial Services, who stresses that knowing how to maximize Social Security benefits is critical to building a sound retirement package.

While some people believe that Social Security may go the way of the dinosaur before long, it is still one of the most important sources of income for retirees, according to Wells.

There are more questions than ever about Social Security, and one of the most frequent is, "When should I apply for Social Security benefits?" There is a lot to consider before you receive Social Security, and when to start collecting benefits may be the single most important decision you make.

In fact, timing could be everything!

Social Security benefits makeup 20% to 50% of retirement income for many middle-income married couples, with lifetime benefits reaching upward of $500,000. Social Security is adjusted for inflation, and it is backed by the government and guaranteed

It makes sense to maximize such a vital asset, Wells has shown clients how to earn tens of thousands of dollars more over the span of your retirement. Here are some core concepts and techniques on which Josh concentrates to help his clients get the most out of Social Security.

ACTUARIAL CREDITS

At age 66, you can receive your full Social Security benefits, but you are eligible to receive 75% of full benefits at 62. If you delay the onset of benefits past age 66, you earn delayed actuarial credits until age 70. Those credits increase your benefits ny 8% per year so that at age 70 you receive 132% of your full benefits.

SPOUSAL STRATEGIES

Married couples can tag-team each other's benefits. One spouse can delay his or her benefits, allowing them to grow by claiming "spousal benefits." Once the delayed benefits reach their maximum level, the spouses can switch. The average married couple leaves about $120,000 in retirement and spousal benefits on the Social Security table. It does not have to be that way. With a little planning and an eye on your goals, retirement really can be the golden years.

LIFE EXPECTANCY

That is one of the most over looked, yet one of the most important factors in the Social Security decision making process. Because men and women are living longer, the second biggest question we face is: "How do I not out live my money?" Real planning, that's how. The average man now lives to age 76, which is up from just a few years ago, and women live even longer. So do not hope to die early, plan to live

LOOKING AHEAD

Tax-saving vehicles can protect your income and grow your retirement fund. Remember to plan for required minimum distributions that you or you and your spouse will need to live comfortably and enjoy activities and hobbies.

EVALUATE ASSETS

Look at all assets as a whole. When planning for retirement, you have to account for all your money, not just Social Security. All your assets have to work

When it comes to choosing the right Social Security income path, it is wise to have an expert help you navigate the maze of options. To learn more about Social Security and the strategies available to maximize benefits, attend one of Josh's lectures. If you reference this ad, he will mail you a free ticket to attend.

The Bristol Warren School District is showing positive gains in proficiency among students taking the New England Common Assessment Program science test.

The Rhode Island Department of Education released its NECAP science scores Monday, with Bristol Warren showing a proficiency rate of 42.1-percent. That's an increase of 14.1-percent since the tests were instituted in 2008. However, that figure is down by 5.8 percent over the 2012-2013 test.

The NECAP tests are designed to measure student performance on grade level expectations and grade span expectations in reading, writing, math, and science. Tests are administered to students in grades 4, 8 and 11.

Proficiency in the 2012-2013 NECAP science test at the school-level was: Colt Andrews, 50-percent; Guiteras, 53.2-percent; Hugh Cole, 41.7-percent; Rockwell, 70.8-percent; Kickemuit, 31.2-percent; and Mt. Hope High School, 42-percent.

Almost all schools showed a slight decline over the 2012-2013 test, with the larger decline showing at Hugh Cole, 17.2-percent

Mt. Hope High School was the only district school that showed a gain over the previous test, with an increase of .04-percent.

This is the last year students will take participate in the NECAP. Two years ago, RIDE moved to test the students on a different platform - the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers, or PARCC. The new program promises to better measure student performance through technology-enhanced test items. The tests resemble more closely content students are learning in the classroom, and less like a fill-in-the-bubble test.

PARCC tests are taken on a computer, ensuring a more engaging and interactive test.

The new test will be administered starting in the 2014-2015 school year.

Students get cash for perfect attendance

Fund establishes award for students with perfect attendance

If succeeding academically weren't motivation enough, there is now a financial incentive encouraging students to attend school every day.

An anonymous donor set up a recurring financial award for students at Mt. Hope High school who graduate with perfect attendance for each of the four years he or she has attended the school.

Dubbed the "4 Attendance Award," it will be presented to a high school senior who has attended 720 continuous days of instruction. The student(s) will receive $720 for this accomplishment, one dollar for each day of attendance.

Why is 720 the lucky number? Superintendent Melinda Thies said "that sum is equal to the number of degrees in 4 pi radians."

The award is the brainchild of an anonymous donor who established the Four Attendance Award Scholarship Fund with an initial deposit of $10,000.

"The one caveat to the creation of the fund is that the donor remains anonymous," Ms. Thies said. "The only clue to this mystery is the name of the award itself."

The award sends a great message to students, as well, Ms. Thies said, that attendance is very important.

"If you are there every day, you will succeed and do well," she said.

Carrington Henley, who graduated in June with a perfect record throughout his school career, is the first graduate to receive the award.

Bristol police log: 'Everyone shut up'

The following report is compiled from the Bristol Police Department call log for the week of Sept. 16-22, 2013:

Monday, Sept. 16

Police were called to an area of Opechee Drive for a report of vandalism. Someone had removed a town tree.

Police responded to a home on High Street for a possible noise violation. It was deemed to be a loud television, and the owner was told to turn it down.

Police were called to an area of Sherman Avenue for a report of a disturbance at 2 p.m. Two males were standing on opposite sides of a car, arguing. One man, identified as Edward V. Verna, 19, of 237 State St., Bristol, allegedly continued to yell belligerent remarks at the other male after officers told him to stop. Mr. Verna was then asked to calm down, at which point he allegedly brushed by the officer, shoving him with his right arm. The officer restrained him and charged Mr. Verna with disorderly conduct.

Police were called to an area of Monterey Road for a car accident. A dog was struck and killed.

Police arrested Manuel J. Barboza, 56, of 381 Wood St., Bristol on charges of domestic assault, a felony, following an investigation that he allegedly struck a female with the handle of a hoe. The female had filed a report the day before, alleging that she and Mr. Barboza were working in her garden when they started arguing about vegetables. At that time, she told police he picked up a hoe and hit her in the face with the handle. She had an injury over her left eye, which required stitches.

A caller reported that a male was in the area of Wood and State streets yelling obscenities and "looking for a fight." He was dispersed by police.

Tuesday, Sept. 17

Police responded to a home on Garfield Avenue because a resident found an open gun box while throwing out his trash. Officers confirmed it was a styrofoam container that held an airsoft gun.

Police arrested Jason W. Almeida, 37, of 173 Bradford St., Bristol, on charges of violating a no-contact order. He allegedly placed a phone call to a female who had a restraining order against him.

Wednesday, Sept. 18

A Mt. Hope Avenue caller reported that an unwanted male party kept ringing her doorbell at 7:47 a.m.

A caller reported that a young male was riding down Chestnut Street with his back down on a skateboard.

Police were called to the courtyard of a home on Wood Street for report of a verbal confrontation.

A Wood Street business woman asked to speak to police about juveniles playing in front of her store, allegedly harassing her customers.

Thursday, Sept. 19

A caller reported that she was assaulted by her husband.

A caller reported that loud music was coming from Ultimate Fitness on Gooding Avenue. The owner was advised to turn it down, and classes ended at 5

Police received several calls about an elderly male walking Mt. Hope Bridge at 5:10 p.m. He was transported to the hospital by Bristol Rescue.

After stopping a car for a registration

Pedestrian struck on Hope Street

A Providence man was treated for serious injuries Tuesday morning after being struck by a car driven by a Bristol woman on Hope Street. Roger Castro, 57, was conscious when medics arrived and transported him to Rhode Island Hospital. Police and Bristol Rescue were called to an area of Hope at State Street around 8:28 for a report that a pedestrian was hit by a car. According to witnesses, Mr. Castro had just got off the RIPTA bus and was attempting to cross Hope Street from behind the bus. That's when he was struck by Mary Dwyer, 76, of Highland Road, who was traveling northbound. Mr. Castro hit the windshield, and Ms. Dwyer pulled over to the side of the road.

"At this time, there had not been any citations for violations," said Dep. Chief Steve Contente. Mr. Castro was not in a crosswalk.

check at the intersection of Hope and Wardwell streets, police arrested Robert N. Bruneau, 52, of Fall River, Mass., on a bench warrant. Mr. Bruneau was a passenger in the car that was stopped.

Jason W. Almeida, 37, of 173 Bradford St., Bristol, was arrested on charges of violating a no-contact order. Police arrived to a home on Bradford Street where he had been knocking on the door of a female's apartment, who has a restringing order against him.

Police were called to a home on Wood Street for a noise complaint at 11:55 p.m. Upon arriving, officers saw a male, who acknowledged the officers, enter the home shouting "everyone shut up." He was identified as Thomas Tobias Williams, 20, of Jamestown. A background check of Mr. Williams revealed an active warrant for his arrest out of Narragansett for possession of a schedule I-V drug. He was taken into custody.

A caller reported that a male was looking inside mail boxes on Rosedale Drive. It was a realtor who was dropping off paperwork.

Police arrested Jonathan Child, 27, of Smithfield, on charges of aggravated assault. On Sept. 7, 2012, police were called to the parking lot of New England Tent for a disturbance. Police approached three males, one of whom was bleeding. The male who was bleeding told police that Mr. Child allegedly ran him over with his car. The male and Mr. Child had an argument over money, and which point Mr. Child got into his car to leave. The male told police he stood in front of Mr. Child's car to prevent him from leaving, but Mr. Child allegedly revved up his engine and went forward. The male jumped into the air and was struck by Mr. Child's front bumper, landing on the windshield. He refused treatment, and said he wished to press charges.

Friday, Sept. 20

Police were called to a home on Thompson Avenue for a noise complaint. There were no issues. The decibel reading was 20, and they were playing video games.

A State Street caller reported that the smoke coming from her neighbor's house was bothering her. Nothing was showing when police checked the area.

A caller reported that one of her patients was making threats to her secretary over the phone.

Police responded to an area of Lafayette and Leahy drives for a report that a male dog had gotten loose and was chasing people who were walking. The dog owner and officer were unable to catch the dog, but continued to try.

A caller reported an alleged house party at a home on Richmond Street. Two people were sitting on the deck talking. Officers advised them of the noise ordinance.

Saturday, Sept. 21

Police were called to an area of DeWolf Avenue for a report that construction was taking place before 8 a.m. The workers were advised of the noise ordinance and said they'd pick back up after that.

A Valley Drive resident reported that his tires were slashed.

A Sherman Avenue resident reported catching a loose dog and had it tied up. The dog was found wandering Norman Street. It was taken to the animal shel-

A caller reported that there were three males standing at the top of Mt. Hope

Brayton Point almost as dirty as all of Rhode Island's power plants

All of Rhode Island's power plants combined, release nearly as much carbon pollution as Massachusetts' Brayton Point, located across Mount Hope Bay in

That finding is detailed in Environment Rhode Island's latest report, America's Dirtiest Power Plants, which was released last Friday. The top five dirtiest power plants in the state, listed in order, are Entergy's Johnston facility, Manchester Street Power Station in Providence, Tiverton Power Plant, and the two Ocean State Power facilities in Harrisville. The report analyzes the nation's power plants, highlighting the top 50 which emit the most carbon dioxide. None of Rhode Island's power plants made that list, however.

"Here in Rhode Island, we sit in close proximity to one of New England's biggest polluters," said Channing Jones, a field associate with Environment Rhode Island, during a press conference Friday. "Brayton Point emits nearly as much carbon pollution as all of Rhode Island's power plants combined, at 3.3 metric tons of carbon pollution annually. That's the equivalent of close to 700,000 passenger vehicles."

Mr. Jones, along with state and local officials, and representatives from other local environmental groups, held a press conference Sept. 20 at the Mt. Hope boat ramp. Brayton Point's two smoke stacks were clearly visible puffing emissions, and served as the perfect backdrop for Environmental Rhode Island's platform.

"Even as policies as regional greenhouse gas initiative works to cut carbon pollution and promote clean energy here in New England," Mr. Jones said, "power plants remain the single largest source of carbon pollution in America.

"Scientists predict that extreme weather will become increasingly significant and severe unless we cut the carbon emissions that are causing the problem. If we want a cleaner, safer future for generations to come, we can't afford to ignore power plants' overwhelming contribution to global warm-

U.S. Sen. Sheldon Whitehouse highlighted the effects of global warming in Bristol, where the temperature in the bay had increased by 3 degrees over the winter, and increased by 4 degrees this sum-

"On a good day, Rhode Islanders shouldn't have to stay inside because of the invisible gas in the air, which is dropping the ozone layer," Sen. Whitehouse said. "The seas in Newport are also 10-inches higher."

The release of Environment Rhode Island's report coincides with the release of the Environmental Protection Agency's new standards regulating fossil fuel emissions for new power plants. The EPA's restrictions on existing power plants is set to be unveiled next year.

According to Environment Rhode Island's report, Georgia Power's Plant Scherer is the dirtiest power plant in America, which emitted more than 21 million metric tons of carbon dioxide in 2011.

Police were called to a home on Metacom Avenue for a report of a domestic disturbance in progress. Upon arrival, police saw two females at the end of the driveway, one of whom was upset. The female told officers that she had allegedly been slapped in the face by Ilidio Antonio Silva, 45, of 52 Primrose Drive, Bristol. She told police that Mr. Silva was helping the other female to get her car started when the two got into an argument. The injured female stepped between the two, inserting herself in the argument. At one point, she told officers, she thought Mr. Silva was going to hit her so she put her hands up to cover her face, knocking the hat off Mr. Silva's head. chewing power. But when they erupt and are squeezed by other teeth because of a jaw too small to accommodate them, they can be trouble. These are called impacted wisdom teeth. If the wisdom teeth erupt only partially, bacteria can get into the opening and cause infection. The infection associated with impacted wisdom teeth can be guite painful. It will generin the jaw. As the teeth try to force their way out, they can also damage the adjoining teeth.

Depending on the severity of the situation, your dentist may refer you to an oral surgeon for extraction of the troublesome teeth. One of the challenges with extracting a wisdom tooth is that the tooth can have as many as five roots. Sometimes the oral surgeon has to actually break the tooth and remove it in segments. Talk with your dentist about what your strategy should be if you are anticipating the arrival of wisdom teeth.

Responsibility lies with the pet owner tatistics don't lie.

According to Dogsbite.org, a national non-profit group dedicated to raising awareness about vicious dogs, pit bulls killed 151 Americans and accounted for 60 percent of the total recorded deaths (251) from 2005 to 2012. By nature, pit bulls are an aggressive breed.

But that doesn't mean a pug would never attack, or that a collie is always friendly. The onus is on the pet owner to maintain a civil animal. Any breed can become vicious. It just so happens that pit bulls and rottweilers are more susceptible to having a vicious disposition than most. With that knowledge, every possible step to prevent an attack should be taken, before sanctions are handed down forcing an owner to do so.

As a pet owner, you are responsible for the well being of that pet, as well as those people who may interact with your pet. It's a sad thought, but if your dog is predisposed to bad behavior, then think of the worst possibility and take action to prevent it.

Yesterday, Josh Brightman had to answer to a vicious dog panel for a second time about Buster, his 2-year-old pit bull. On Aug. 28, he got loose and nearly attacked a mail carrier. He's lucky that's all that happened.

Buster went before a vicious dog panel last year for the same reason: He allegedly charged at a mail carrier while living on Noyes Avenue. He may not have bitten anyone, but at that time, the panel set in place measures to hopefully ensure Buster wouldn't in the future.

What they didn't account for was Mr. Brightman's 3-yearold daughter. This time, the little girl gained access to Mr. Brightman's front door. Once she opened it, the dog barged past and ran out into the street.

Now Buster has to wear a muzzle any time he's out of his home. Responsible enough, that is if Mr. Brightman upholds that order. If not, it's a criminal offense and he could be arrested.

Mr. Brightman installed locks on both the inside and outside of his front and back doors, high enough so his daughter couldn't reach them. Hopefully this prevents Buster from escaping again.

And hopefully he'll never hurt anyone.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A vision for Bristol a reality

Dear Editor:

A new vision for the Bristol Art Museum began three years ago when Friends of Linden Place offered the museum the opportunity to renovate the c.1867 Carriage House into a permanent home. For fifty years, beginning in 1963, when the museum was established by three dedicated local women and Ethel Barrymore Colt Miglietta's offer to use the ballroom at Linden Place for art exhibits, the vision has developed into a reality.

It is time to raise the curtain on the new museum and see the result. The two floors covering space of 4,375 sq. ft. will accommodate art exhibits, art classes, artists' rental studios, lectures and more. This focused vision to convert the interior has been conducted within the building and has reached its final stages. Hours of time and talent by the architect, the construction company, the project supervisor, the building committee and volunteers occurred behind the scenes. The initial decision by the museum was to hire a structural engineering firm to produce a plan to stabilize the foundation which resulted in a prolonged and arduous project. Many brick piers were replaced, a ventilation system was installed and materials were selected and saved for future historic reference. A new main entrance on Wardwell Street to access the museum was created by opening up the exterior wall. The beauty of the building's architectural style has been preserved and Phase One of the renovation was completed in December, 2012.

In January of 2013, Phase Two began with architectural documents and designs sent to interested builders in the area. The builder who had previously produced quality work and was familiar with the structure of the building was selected. The former carriage house, built by the DeWolf family, including its barn-like features, large carriage doors, and multi-paned arched windows, has finally come into its own as a Cultural Center for the Arts.

We appreciate the generous contributions by our donors towards the renovation during this period and the Champlin Foundation grants which have been successfully matched by the museum's fundraising efforts. The Bristol Art Museum continues to exhibit quarterly exhibits at the Rogers Free Library for regional artists and to present the Annual Art al Fresco Exhibit, which attracted over 350 people in July.

We appeal to the community to help complete the final phase of "Building for Art". The museum, a non-profit organization, is seeking volunteers to serve on committees for the upcoming exhibits, educational programs, lectures and events. Contributions may be sent to Bristol Art Museum, PO Box 42, Bristol, RI 02809. For more information on remaining naming rights and to become a volunteer, contact 401 253-4400 or email info@bristolartmuseum.org.

Fundraiser to benefit Mobile Loaves and Fishes

Dear Editor:

"Mobile Loaves and Fishes"...what is it? It's a very simple concept really. It's people helping people. It's people turning toward suffering and helping others rather than turning away.

In 2011, 14.7% of Rhode Islanders were living below the poverty line. Tracy C .O'Neill of "Go Local" states that the "Latest statistics show that 23,000 Rhode Island children under the age of eighteen lived in extreme poverty in 2012. Overall twenty-two percent (22%) or more than 47,000 of Rhode Island's 215,484 children were living below the federal poverty threshold, an increase of 2.6 percent over prior years." So I guess there is ample opportunity to turn toward others' suffering and to help, if we are only willing.

Mobile Loaves and Fishes is a network of catering trucks that are similar to those that perhaps you are accustomed to see pulling up to work sites to feed workers. Instead, every evening our trucks pull up somewhere: to Social Park, Burnside Park, Crossroads or the Urban League and we feed those out of work, the working poor, and the homeless. We feed Vets suffering from PTSD. We pull up to a multitude of locations, wherever the homeless are and the volunteers working the truck do all that they can to make the burdens of others lighter. The distribute meals, hygiene products, and basic clothing. They smile and treat those they serve with dignity and kindness.

Across the United States, MLF has served 3,476,578 meals and has a staff of 17,599 volunteers. MLF currently owns 16 catering trucks located in five cities in four states: Austin, Texas, Providence, Rhode Island, San Antonio, Texas, New Bedford, Massachusetts, and Minneapolis, Minnesota. Their fundamental mission is to feed the hungry and their broader mission is to empower individuals to serve their communities.

Mobile Loaves and Fishes Rhode Island is hosting their annual fundraiser on Oct. 22. It will be held from 6-9pm at the Shriners' Imperial Room in Cranston, R.I. The guest speaker will be Jim Hummel. Tickets may be obtained or donations made by calling Bill Sweeney, coordinator of MLF at St Mary's Church in Bristol, at 253-1195.

Any organization with a dedicated group of individuals can sponsor the truck and become involved. Currently there are nine participating churches sponsoring the truck and volunteering here in Rhode Island. For more information visit http://mlf.org/locations/providence/

Support our schools through these free programs

Dear Editor:

Now that the new school year is under way, educators, volunteers and parents are working collaboratively to provide a successful year for our children, one that is filled with the promise of wonderful experiences and inspiring learning opportunities. And here's how we can assist them with their efforts. There are two programs I encourage you to consider supporting, and best of all you don't have to do anything differently than what you have done in the past. The first is to save your Box Tops for Education: Those pink 10¢ coupons found on many of our popular food products. Just cut them out and place them in a convenient container on your kitchen counter or in a drawer. Once you're ready to make your donation, drop them off at one of our four elementary schools or Kickemuit Middle School. Our schools' Parent Teacher Organizations will send them in for cash awards. So, please don't throw these coupons away; they can really add up and make a difference.

The second way to support our schools is through the Stop & Shop A+ School Rewards program. By registering your Stop & Shop customer loyalty card, you will be able to earn cash for our schools with each shopping trip you take from October 4th through March 20, 2014. Here's how to register: Just go to www.stopandshop.com/aplus and choose "Customer Registration" from the "Our Stores/A+" menu on the left side of the screen. You will type in the first three letters of your last name and your card's 13 digits, and then click "Continue to listings." From there you'll select the state and city of your child's school. It's that simple. And you can choose up to two schools. If you'd prefer to register in person, I will be at Stop and Shop this Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. I hope to see you there.

In closing, please consider these words of the educator Mary Jean Le Tendre, "America's future walks through the doors of our schools each day." Let's offer them our support, whether or not we have school-age children. It just makes "cents" for all of us.

Thanks to the firefighters, police department

Dear Editor:

We would like to thank the Bristol Fire Department and the police officer who responded to the fire at our house early in the morning of Sept. 13. Although we were very lucky in that it was both small and contained things could easily have been much worse. We appreciate your professionalism and service. Never more than when standing outside with a toddler and two dogs at 2:30 a.m. and a basement full of smoke. I would also like to make people aware of the dehumidifier recall, details can be found at this site http://www.cpsc.gov/en/Recalls/2013/Gree-Recalls-12-Brands-of-Dehumidifiers/. Everyone should check to make sure they don't have a device on that list.

Comments were out of line

Dear Editor:

I am so appalled at the comments of Walterheisenberg and GoodBytori in regards to (the 9/11 baby) story (on Eastbayri.com).

This was a very nice, heartwarming article and their disgusting opinions turned my stomach.

I hope that the Bristol Phoenix monitors "hate" comments a little more carefully, and stops people like them from commenting in such a derogatory manner. A good healthy debate is one thing, but their comments, especially Walterheisenberg's comments, were way off color!

There is enough heartache in the world, no one needs to be exposed to such hateful, derogatory comments.

Thank you.

Lots to love about Bristol

About 130 participants crowded the basement of St. Mary's Church in Bristol last Thursday for the start of the Visions for Bristol forum. The crowd was a well-represented cross-section of people, with participants as young as 17. "I thought the evening was terrific," said Diana Campbell, event coordinator. "I loved that so many people came out and were so energized to talk about the town. It's refreshing to see such a diverse crowd so engaged in their own future." The evening started by asking participants what they liked most about Bristol, and what they couldn't possibly live without. To that end, most said the family-friendly nature of the town, the open, green space, the historic district and the inviting atmosphere of Bristol. The topic then turned to trends that may affect Bristol, either national, local or international. Some suggestions were a lack of gun control, the decline in revenue stream, Bristol as a tourist destination and the increase in technology. The two-night forum wrapped up last night, and a full report will be featured in an upcoming issue of the Bristol Phoenix.

When Ralph E. Peters Jr., joined the town's burial commission, a large part of the North Burial Ground was overgrown, unkept and unsightly.

That was in 1982.

Over the years, Mr. Peters worked tirelessly with others on the burial commission to transform the town-owned cemetery. However, he died Sept. 23, 2007 before realizing the plans he helped set into motion.

"Politics in Bristol in the early 80s was volatile," said Town Clerk Lou Cirillo. "And Ralph wasn't a very political person. He rose above the tumultuous discontentment, and that's a testament to who Ralph was."

Mr. Cirillio was among many who spoke about Ralph during a dedication ceremony Sept. 19 at

"We did a lot of horsing around at that camp."

Mr. Peters' nickname stemmed from his first camp sleepover experience, Mr. Cirillo said.

"Ralph said he went off to camp with a bunch of rich kids, and being a sexton's son, they didn't have much," Mr. Cirillo explained. "And his mom sent him off with a blanket and two cans of beans."

ment Project this spring, the Town of Bristol requested the ability to choose which downtown stops to eliminate. RIPTA and town council members reached an agreement as to which stops would be removed on Aug. 29.

In a recent in-depth review of their bus stops, RIPTA estimates that nearly 10 percent of the 5,000 bus stops in its statewide system do not adhere to RIPTA's own Service Guidelines; many stops are too close together. The guidelines reflect the industry standard of approximately 900 feet (about a two to three minute walk) average distance between stops. The distance slightly increases or decreases dependent upon the route type and community density. RIPTA will be removing bus stops to meet policy standards. These changes are designed to minimize impact on the riders while increasing efficiencies.

The Town of Bristol is responsible for the physical removal of the bus stop signs and covering of the "bus only" parking spaces.

With the three stops eliminated, that leaves five RIPTA bus stops along Hope Street.

CORY: His love of the Yankees stems from grandfather

All Stars won the State District 2 championship before falling in the state finals. It was King Philip's fist District 2 title in 29 years.

"What an amazing summer," said the league's Joe Simeone, who went along Saturday night even though he, like Cory, is a staunch Yankees fan.

Saturday night's trip to Fenway was a long time coming. Cory had already visited Fenway twice this year at the invitation of the Jimmy Fund, throwing out the first pitch one night and serving as a bat boy another. He had a chance to go two other times, but turned both down as they conflicted with his King Philip team's playoff games. Turnsaid, as the Sox were playing the Yankees.

Several teams from across New England were invited to Saturday's game, but it was an invite only event. King Philip got in after Sox officials asked him during his last visit whether he was on a baseball team. He told them about his Little League team, and the offer was extended.

The team jumped at the chance. About a dozen players, plus various coaches and parents, met locally prior to the game and drove up in two vans. They got to the park around 5:30, were ushered into the Champions' Club, a waiting room and reception area behind right field, and mugged for cameras and ing down those two were tough, he horsed around for about half an hour before being led onto the field. For some, it was their first trip to Fenway.

"I was thinking about wearing a little Yankees pin," joked Mr. Simeone as they waited to walk out onto the field. "But then I said 'Naah."

As they waited, Cory's father Jerry paced excitedly, occasionally glancing over at his son.

Cory's doing well, he said. He's working to get strength back in his throwing arm, and he's growing back all his hair. A devout Red Sox fan - Cory got his love of the Yankees from his grandfather, he said - Mr. Burke has been blown away by the support Cory's received over the year. And he's proud of his son for being as strong as he's been.

"It's just been amazing," he said. "It was pretty tough."

Even with a clean bill of health, Cory is not done with treatment. He has to go to Boston every three months for full body scans, and there's much physical therapy ahead of him. But he's happy and healthy, and optimistic. Cory Santerre, his coach, said that optimism extends to the team. The kids had a great summer, learned a lot about life and sacrifice and teamwork, and will remember 2013 for years.

Feet away, Cory and friends were goofing around, laughing and shoving and being kids. There was no thought of cancer or hospitals or any of that stuff, as the roar of 37,569 baseball fans — a sellout filled the park.

Huskies run past Westerly 28-14

Mt. Hope needs to adapt to season of road games

BY ERIC DICKERVITZ

edickervitz@eastbaynewspapers.com

With only three home games this year for the Mt. Hope football team, the Huskies proved last Friday night that they don't need home field advantage to deliver a solid performance. They won their first league game against Westerly, which borrowed East Greenwich's Carceri Field while their home stadium undergoes construction. The Huskies overpowered Westerly to a 28-14 win.

Two of the touchdowns came via quarterback Kyle Valenzuela, who scored on a 1-yard run midway through the first quarter and a 23-yard run in the third quarter. Running back Corey Jackson helped with the win with a 4-yard run in the second quarter. But the most celebrated touchdown of the game came in the fourth quarter, when Aidan Silva caught a Westerly punt and ran a 65-yard return for the final Huskies touchdown. After the carry, his Huskies teammates surrounded Aidan, celebrating both the touchdown and the running back's birthday.

"I knew he had it in him," head coach Brian Cote said as he celebrated on the sideline.

Aidan took his contribution to the win in stride.

"I had the chance. I figured I had to take advantage of it. It felt pretty good," he said.

After each Huskies touchdown, Valenzuela successfully added the point after kicks cleanly through the uprights.

The game was plagued by penalties, with each team racking up seven. Those errors cost the Huskies 65 total yards.

Near the end of the first half, the Huskies were poised for a huge gain when a pass intended for Silva was intercepted on the Westerly 10-yard line. Westerly was unable to convert and with under a minute left in the half, the score remained tied at 14 at the half.

For 60 minutes of play, Mr. Cote and the Huskies' coaching staff were at times jubilant at their players' performance and frustrated by the number of penalties they committed.

"Penalties are killing us," Mr. Cote said in frustration.

Leading the offense in rushing was Valenzuela with 76 net yards. Nick Murgo carried for 75 yards to set up the scoring attempts.

On defense, Murgo led the team in tackles, taking down Westerly players in nine unassisted tackles and assisting in six takedowns. Bill Francis had 5 unassisted and 6 assisted tackles and David Ramos had 3 unassisted and 6 assists.

Francis and Marcus Goff kept pressure on Westerly's quarterback, each adding a sack to the Huskies' defensive game.

At the end of the game, with the first regular season divisional win under their belt, the coaches' frustration eased.

"I think you took 10 years off my life," Mr. Cote said as the players met on the field post-game. "We made this game way harder than it needed to be. The question is can we be disciplined enough to win a state championship? We need to get more discipline. We made that game tougher than it needed to be, but we gave the effort."

On Friday, Sept. 27, Mt. Hope will host Johnston High School where the East Bay Warriors peewee football team will play at half-

East Bay Warriors come up big in second half

The undefeated East Bay Warriors Jr. Midgets had a big win over previously unbeaten rival Portsmouth this past Saturday, winning 22-8 in an exciting game that had the Warriors down 8-6 in the first half and Portsmouth within one touchdown of a win for much of the second half.

The Warriors opened the scoring in the first quarter on a completion from Matty "Ice" DeFelice to Jeff "Prime Time" Silvia. The missed extra point left the score at 6-0 until Portsmouth connected on a long touchdown pass in the second quarter. Adding a successful point after kick, Portsmouth led 8-6 for the remainder of the half.

Jeff Silvia opened the second half with a long kick-off return, which led to a drive in which Josh Pompey scored on a 10yard run. Silvia added with the extra points, giving the Warriors a 14-8 lead. That score would remain the same until the 4th quarter when DeFelice threw his second touchdown pass of the day, a tight spiral to Pompey who completed the pass for a touchdown. Adding Silvia's point after kick extended the Warriors' lead to 22-8.

At quarterback, DeFelice connected consistently with touchdown passes, including a long third down completion to Max Moskala.

The defense also proved to be solid throughout the game, holding the Patriots to only one touchdown.

The key group in this game was the offensive line and tight ends, including AJ Bernado, Keith Stephenson, Caden Cabral, Dylan Martins, Connor McKenna, Dylan Thiboutot, Alex Tainsh, Zach Burke, Tyler Rego, and Mike Trexler. Jeff Silvia, Luke Swift, Colin Sullivan, Max Moskala, Jeremey Thiboutot, and Zach Silva also provided blocking from their running back and receiver positions.

The 4-0 Warriors take a bye week this coming weekend before facing Old Rochester on Sunday, October 6, at 1:30 p.m. on the road.

Joseph Esmond Hodder Jr.

Naval Academy graduate and World War II veteran

Joseph Esmond Hodder, Jr., loving husband of Elinor Allen Hodder, is in the peaceful presence of the Lord after his passing away at home on Sept. 18, 2013.

Joseph was born on Aug. 31, 1926 in Brooklyn, New York to Joseph Esmond Hodder, Sr. and Barbara Alice (Edel).

Joseph moved to Auburn, N.Y., at the age of 8 where he remained for many years. He graduated from the Annapolis Naval Academy and served in both World War II and the Korean War. He resigned as a lieutenant.

Joseph was an electrical engineer in management at the New York State Electrical Gas Company in Binghamton, N.Y for the majority of his professional career after the military until his retirement in 1987. He enjoyed retirement first in Bristol, R.I., followed by Tucson, Ariz., and finally in Waverly, Ohio. He was a resident of Bristol Village in Waverly.

Joseph enjoyed gardening in his leisure time as well as golf, reading, home repairs, exercising and swimming. He loved following studies of the Civil War. He was an avid football fan especially the Naval Academy and the Patriots.

Joseph was a loving father, grandfather and great-grandfather. He is survived by two daughters Barbara Krause (Gary) of Endwell, N.Y., and Elizabeth Moscuzza of Port St. Lucie, Fla.; two sons Philip Hodder(Judy) of Port St. Lucie, Fla., and John Hodder of Stuart, Fla. He also has two loving step-children, Joseph Blair (Mary Ann) of Ardmore, Penn., and Sherrie Thomas (Tom) of Malta, Ohio. His grandchildren he leaves are Philip Trofibio, Nicholas Moscuzza, Kevin Hodder, Kristina Caldwell (Dan), Thomas Blair (Keramet Reiter), James Blair, Abigail Blair, Matthew Thomas (Jilian), Maureen Thomas and Natalie Thomas. His great- grandchildren he leaves are Kade and Kensley Hodder, Lily and Wilhomena Caldwell, Philip Trofibio and Leiah Thomas. Joseph also leaves behind his sister Marion Barbara Ellis of Chester, N.Y., and numerous nieces and nephews.

In addition to his parents, Joseph was preceded in death by his brother Richard Hodder and his son Joseph Hodder.

A memorial service will be held in the spring of 2014. Memorial contributions may be made in his honor to the Alzheimer's Association or to the Bristol Village Foundation of Waverly, Ohio.

Mary Lillian Prezioso Wilcox

Volunteered with the Meeting Street School

After 85 years of a rich and joyful life, Mary Lillian Prezioso Wilcox died at the home of her daughter, Madlyn, and her son-in-law, Mathew, who had been tenderly caring for her for the past six years.

Mary was a graduate of Colt High School in Bristol, where she met her husband of 57 years, Malcolm Wilcox, who died suddenly in 2007.

She was employed for 20 years with the State of Rhode Island, Department of Human Services.

After retirement, Mary enjoyed volunteering for the Meeting Street School.

Mary was a woman of strong faith and a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church in Bristol and Saint Brendan's Parish in Riverside, where she and Malcolm lived for over 40 years.

Among Mary's many hobbies, her favorites were singing, golfing, knitting, ceramics and reading, but her greatest joy was spending time with her grandchildren: Kayla, Mathew, Michael and James.

Mary will be missed by her children, Gail Turcotte and Madlyn Waskiewicz; her brothers, Michael and Gabriel Prezioso; her sister, Dora Hinken; her sons-in-law, Mathew Waskiewicz and John Turcotte; and her four grandchildren, who adored her.

Mary brought joy to many and always had a smile to give.

A celebration of Mary's life will take place on Thursday, Sept. 26, from 4-7 p.m., under the tent at Blithewold Mansion, Gardens & Arboretum, located at 101 Ferry Road, Bristol. A spiritual ceremony will commence promptly at 5

Gifts in Mary's name are welcomed and may be directed to Home & Hospice Care of Rhode Island, 1085 North Main Street, 02904. Providence, RI, www.hhcri.org.

Dave shared 53 wonderful years of marriage with the late Hazel (Zekou) Mirabassi who died in 2006. An extraordinary family man, Dave was a father "loved beyond words" to Susan Siebeking of Melrose, David Mirabassi and his wife Jayne of Hingham, Janice Mirabassi and her husband Chip Tarbell of Wakefield, and Dean Mirabassi and his wife Ann of Erie, Colo.

He was the adored Papa of Julie and Phil, Jill and Mark, Micaela, Ashley, David, Matt, Analise, Max, Kevin, Carlie, Jim, Sarah, John, and the late Alexander. His six great-grandchildren – Ben, Jonathan, Allie, Katherine, William and Zach brought untold joy to their Great Papa.

Dave was born in Providence, R.I., to Olinto and Concetta (Cavallaro) Mirabassi. He lived his among his many family members and adored cousins, and maintained strong ties to the Bristol community throughout his life.

Dave began working for his father, a master homebuilder and mentor, during his teen years. After graduating from Colt Memorial High, he enlisted in the army and was stationed in Korea at the tail end of World War

Upon discharge, Dave enrolled on the GI Bill in the engineering program at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston. A gifted builder, Dave was employed after graduation by the John A. Volpe Construction Company in Malden, Mass., as a field engi-

After several decades, he moved on as the Senior VP of the company to begin his own business, Mirabassi Associates. Included among his major construction projects are Lahey Clinic, Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, Lawrence Memorial, Maine Medical Center, the Hopkins Center at Dartmouth College, most of the Jordan Marsh stores in the New England area, and Lafayette Place in Boston.

Dave Mirabassi's great love for life-long learning will be honored by establishing an engineering scholarship for future graduates of Melrose High School.

The Wax Pot is the right spot for you

■rom the moment you enter ■ the newly renovated space on Main Street in Warren, you'll know that you are in a place where your care and comfort are paramount. The Wax Pot, a waxing and skincare boutique, was opened a month ago by Susan Archambault a Board Certified Aesthetician in the states of Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Susan is a PC grad and former health services administrator whose interest in customer comfort and well-being is evident in the impeccable surroundings that include shining wood floors and a calming décor. An aesthetician in a Dartmouth, Massachusetts dermatology practice, she continues to provide part time services there while establishing her new practice in Warren. "I really love this area," she says, "and was so happy to find the right fit and space for my services," she adds.

Whether your interest is in skincare basics -- facials, cleansings, moisturizing -- or the more intensive skin peels, Susan begins her facial therapies with a free consultation and analysis to provide the utmost benefit to your skin. She is continuously on the lookout for advancements in services and products and feels she is at the point where sharing information and beauty tips has become second nature. HEARING: Dog must be muzzled at all times if outside home time, Mr. Brightman was ordered to keep Buster muzzled and leashed when off his Baker Street property, micro-chip and register the dog, display a "vicious dog" sign on his property, notify police if the dog gets loose, and pay a

On Wednesday, a panel consisting of Bristol police Sgt. Julie Veader, Special Agent Joe Warzycha with the Rhode Island Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and Portsmouth Animal Control Officer Ariel Fisher, further fined Mr. Brightman, and now required Buster to be muzzled anytime he leaves his house.

"I get that he's out with the dog when the dog is outside, but I'm taking your word on that," said Officer Warzycha. "But we don't have eyes in the back of our head. He could get loose and bite someone."

The panel was convened to address an Aug. 28 incident wherein Buster allegedly attacked a postal carrier, which essentially stopped mail delivery to that street for a week.

Mr. Brightman, along with seven supporters, showed up to Wednesday's hearing, held at the Bristol Police Department.

Derek Cobb, the postal carrier who alleged he was attacked by Buster, was also present.

Mr. Cobb told the panel that he had parked his mail truck on a nearby street and walked to Baker Street to deliver the mail, a route he's had for about six weeks. As he delivered mail to 6 Baker, he approached the next home, 8 Baker, and saw Buster out of the corner of his eye trot down the steps of 10 Baker.

"I saw him come off the porch, and I was just like, hey buddy what are you doing out?" Mr. Cobb said. "He then started to growl, show his teeth, and the fur on his back and shoulders stood

Mr. Cobb said he shouted at the dog on three separate occasions, each time Buster would continue to walk toward him after looking behind him. It was on the third time that Mr. Cobb took out his pepper spray and sprayed the dog in the face.

"I felt bad about it too," he said, adding that he'd been attacked by a dog before.

The dog had gotten loose because Mr. Brightman's 3-yearold daughter Mya, had opened the front door, looking for her dad. As she did so, Buster pushed past her and ventured outside.

"I heard him barking and looked out the window and saw him standing in the street," said Nancy Lowney, who has lived in the apartment above Mr. Brightman for the past two years. Mr. Brightman only recently rented the firstfloor apartment about eight months ago.

"I know Buster and am familiar with him, so I didn't know how he got out," Ms. Lowney told panelists. "I was going to just run downstairs and keep him in my apartment until (the owners) got home."

But by the time she reached the driveway, the dog had already been brought inside by Mr. Bright-

Mr. Brightman had already insured Buster for up to $500,000 voluntarily, and therefor that sanction was not imposed.

"He's showing responsibility with that," Sgt. Veader said, "so I don't think it's necessary to make that a rule."

Only testimony about the incident was allowed to be heard. No one was allowed to offer comments about the dog's historical behavior, charisma, or lack thereof.

The post office altered the way it delivers mail to Baker Street as a result of the Aug. 28 incident. Mr. Brightman installed two mailboxes where the property line meets the street, allowing mail delivery from within a mail truck.

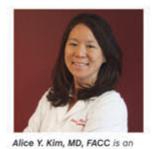

"We don't have to leave the safety of the truck, so coming into contact with another dog is not likely," Mr. Cobb told panelists.

The panel told those in attendance up front that it would not, and legally could not consider euthanizing Buster because it had not bitten or violently attacked a

Mr. Brightman is also not allowed to sell or get rid of Buster, ensuring that the town is able to keep track of the dog. Should Mr. Brightman no longer want Buster, the dog would have to be eutha-

Buster is only one of two dogs in Bristol deemed "vicious." The owners of the second dog, also a pit bull, are currently contesting that judgement in district court.

best schools in the state, but if you are from the East Bay, odds are good you have never heard of it.

Calculator Club is not what you think. There is only one calculator in the room, operated by the contestant on deck, and if the game goes according to plan, the calculator will be the slowest "computer" in the room as each student attempts to solve ten complex math problems in a row, before the calculator can generate its answer.

Calculator Club is taught by Dan Corley, the Head of School. Corley's own children are the 4th generation of his family born on Providence's West Side.

Back in the 1980's, he decided to do something about the lack of educational opportunities for children in his neighborhood. "My neighbors knew that I was a Brown graduate and a teacher," he said. COMMUNITY PREP: A great scholl expands its reach priest, Mr. Corley and his former Brown roommate, Bob Hahn, who went on to become a member of the Council of Economic Advisers under President George H.W. Bush, opened Community Prep in 1984, in the John Brown Settlement House.

Its mission: to serve culturally and economically diverse students who are well-qualified to benefit from a rigorous academic education.

Accordingly, 90% of the students at Community Prep receive substantial financial aid to help offset the burden of the $14,000 tuition. But there's an inverse to that: even the neediest student must pay a minimum of roughly $850. There is no such thing as a "free ride" at Community Prep.

There's a very good reason for this mandatory buy-in, which is certainly significant enough to pinch many low-income families. "Children benefit greatly when parents and teachers work together," says Mr. Corley. "The fact that all of our parents pay something for tuition is indicative of their commitment to their children, and this partnership helps to motivate the students to excel."

And excel they do. Each family signs a "RESPECT" contract, an acronym for the ideals of Responsible, Enthusiasm, Support, Prepared, Effort, Communicate, and Trustworthy. The students' dedication to their contract is apparent, and the halls of Community Prep are full of children who are polite, kind, supportive, and above all, clearly happy.

Community Prep left the Settlement House years ago and is hoping to expand adjacent to its current location on Somerset Street, across from some of their administrative offices as well as the Davey Lopes Recreational Center, which the Community Prep students utilize for physical education and recess space. The school is currently in discussions with Providence Mayor Angel Tavares to buy or lease Somerset Street to unite the properties as one campus.

Back in Calculator Club, Adrian returns to the room, flush with excitement over his victory: he is the first 6th grader to beat the calculator 10 out of 10 times.

Someone else is in the hot seat now, and Mr. Corley is asking for the square root of 324; 10 to the 12th power; 6x7x8x9 divided by 72. These are typical elementary math problems at Community Prep. Mr. Corley has taught his students tools to help solve these problems, and they apply the logic they've learned at warp speed. Their results speak for themselves.

Measuring results at an independent school that ends in the eighth grade is fairly simple: the schools to which graduates are accepted are a fair measure of success. On the other hand where a student actually enrolls is a process that can be affected by any number of factors. Community Prep graduates gain admission to elite boarding schools like Deerfield, Andover and Exeter—schools that can be hard-won by students with every social and educational advantage.

Community Prep sends 92 percent of its graduates to college preparatory programs, public and private, throughout the state. A good example of the results earned by Mr. Corley and his faculty? For the past 15 years, The Lincoln School, an independent girls' school on the East Side of Providence, has given a full scholarship to the incoming freshman who scores the highest on their "Lincoln Scholar" merit exam. For 11 of the 15 years, the Lincoln Scholar has been a graduate of Community Prep.

As is the case with other independent schools, tuition and fees only cover a small fraction of the school's operating cost. In the case of Community Prep, roughly 20 percent. Donations cover the rest, and it's notable that the overwhelming number of donors are individual, rather than corporate. Fundraising is ongoing, with wine tastings, golf tournaments, and other events.

Calculator Club is wrapping up for the week, and Adrian remains the only sixth grader who has made the grade—but it is only the second week of school. By June, the Calculator Club honor roll, which hangs by the front door, will be filled with names. The last competitor of the day hesitates a moment, a few too many times, and only scores 6 out of 10. Her classmates enthusiastically applaud her efforts.

The student body is overwhelmingly from Providence and adjacent towns; with the exception of a handful of students from East Providence, few students hail from the East Bay (though there have been recent graduates from Tiverton and Little Compton.) Perhaps it is the school's relative youth, or its West Side location— a century younger and on the other side of 95 from the better-known East Side independent schools—but Community Prep seems to fly below many prospective parents' radars, and considering the work they are doing, that is unfortunate.

Parents and who are looking for a results-oriented learning community that is naturally diverse—ethnically as well as economically—with a culture firmly grounded in community and respect for the individual, should mark the Community Prep Open House on their calendars. This year, it's November 3, at 2 p.m.

Where's the bite

Summer flounder (fluke) fishing is surprisingly good—as it is often over this time of year—as they leave local waters and move offshore for the fall and winter. Matt Conti of Sung Harbor Marina, South Kingstown, said "Charter boats are still hitting fluke just south of the southeast corner off Block Island. And fishing east of Point Judith is pretty good too." Last Wednesday I fished with Parker Kelly (formerly of NBC 10) and Tom Richardson (former editor of Saltwater Sportsmen magazine) at Austin Hollow, Jamestown. The duo, co-hosts of "New England Boating" which airs on New England Sports Network (NESN), caught fluke to 24".

Striped bass fishing slowed this week. David Sanford of East Greenwich fished in the Lumbermen Striped Bass Tournament out of Champlin Marina, Block Island, this week and said, "We managed to land two bass, in two days with the winner landing just five fish, the largest 38 pounds." Dave Henault of Ocean Sate Tackle said, Manny Sousa of Lucky Bait & Tackle, Warren said, "Customers have caught striped bass off Bullock's Point, East Providence. There have been keepers but nothing big yet."

Anglers continue to catch large scup along coastal shores and in Narragansett Bay, having no trouble catching keeper-sized (10") fish. Offshore fishing slowed last week. Matt Conti of Snug Harbor Marina said, "Shark fishing is still good. We weighed in a 149 pound Mako on Sunday but things have been off with few tuna being caught at the Dump and the Canyon this week.'

A valuable Gordon Grant etching

Q. I have an etching by Gordon Grant of men turning a wheel on a ship. It is signed by the artist and has the numbers 11/ 100 written in pencil. I inherited from my parents and believe they bought it in New York in the 1930's or 1940's. Anything you Anything you can tell me about the artist and what it may be worth?

A. Gordon Grant (1875-1962) was primarily a marine artist working in watercolor and etchings. Born in California, he became an illustrator and moved to New York City. He won many awards and many of his works are in important collections including the Library of Congress. Your etching is called "The Windlass", dates to 1930 and is the 11th out of 100 made. It is very likely they bought it in New York. Others found were selling for $600.

Q. My husband and I bought this 8" x 10" leather tooled picture by Troy Anderson in Sedona, Arizona in 1982. I have been told he is famous now, is he? Any information you could give me would be wonderful.

A. There are two Troy Andersons who are artists from the Southwest. There is a Troy Anderson from Siloam Springs,

"The Windlass" by Gordon Grant.

Arkansas and a Troy Anderson from Freemont, Utah. The Troy Anderson from Arkansas is of Cherokee descent and is a well known painter and sculptor whose works are sold in the premier Native American galleries in the Southwest. He is known for his work in several mediums but they do not include leather.

The Troy Anderson from Utah originally trained as a furniture designer (in Arizona). He does a lot of work integrating leather and furniture using reclaimed wood. He has also produced a lot of hand-tooled leather wall art. I believe this is the Troy Anderson who produced your picture. I found several examples in similar sizes to the one shown. They sold at auctions in the Southwest and unfortunately sold for only $20.

A conversation with

Author and Historian Nathaniel Philbrick

Nathaniel Philbrick, National Book Award winner and finalist for the 2007 Pulitzer Prize in History, takes readers beyond the myth with his unflinching portraits of early America in Mayflower (this year's Common Reading selection) and his recently published book, Bunker Hill.

As Rhode Island celebrates the 350th anniversary of its 1663 Colonial Charter, RWU welcomes Philbrick for a discussion of the events that shaped four centuries of American history, from the Pilgrims' landing to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Give your mobile device support and comfort with iProp

BY JASON CALVERT

"The iProp works wonderfully on hard flat surfaces, but where this stand really shines is on the bed, the sofa, or any other uneven or soft surface."

So, this is how DOCKEM describes the iProp. The ultimate stand for your mobile device. But when I first pulled it from the shipping box, I thought, "This is it?" It's a little pillow with a stand on the front. But as I started to use this marvel of modern technology, I fell in love with it.

Its a very simple design, but designed extremely well. The iProp is a silicone stand attached to a mesh bag with four metal snaps. A firm yet moveable beanbag is zipped securely in the bag offering a stable platform on any surface. The silicone stand also gives a slip-free foundation for your device.

I've been using this thing everywhere and with many types of mobile devices. The couch armrest, my leg, laying in bed, the recliner armrest, table, in the

iProp

SCORE: 9 out of 10

OUR TAKE: Great design, high-quality product that fits all mobile devices. Works on a variety of surfaces, in different positions. Can double as a storage bin, and is machine washable. Price may be a concern for some.

car, next to grill, on my son's head (as a joke while he was watching cartoons.) No matter where, iProp does what DOCK-EM says it does. The beanbag conforms to the surface it is sitting on, regardless of position. The silicone part of the stand helps to give a slip-free surface for your device in most normal positions.

Again, I have to go back to the design of the iProp. I love that the beanbag is removable. If it gets dirty, the beanbag can be removed and the silicone stand unsnapped. The mesh bag can be machine-washed, which is a great feature. Some of my son's OJ mysteriously made its way onto the iProp, and a little wash was all it needed. The silicone part of the stand can also be quickly cleaned with a disinfectant wipe or damp cloth.

The mesh bag also allows for some storage space. Earbuds, sync cord and a car charger can all be tucked away, which really helps keep all those important cords together when traveling. DOCKEM touts the "pillow" feature of the iProp for travelers, to which my son can testify. He flipped the iProp around and used it as a pillow while on a road trip—and claimed it was very comfortable.

What can't this thing do?

iProp really is a great stand that shines when you are away from a desk. It worked extremely well with my iPad, iPhone; even my Macbook. I'm sure that any tablet or mobile device will fit. The removable beanbag and washable outer mesh bag makes it easy to clean and store your tech stuff in. I find myself using iProp all the time. At $30, iProp is relatively affordable, but may feel like an indulgence for some buyers.

Saying farewell to summer means more time for reading

BY LYNDA REGO lrego@eastbaynewspapers.com

Fall has officially arrived and it's time to bid farewell to summer, the garden and reading outdoors, which I love to do. But, hopefully, fewer outdoor chores will mean more time for reading curled up indoors with a hot drink. Here are my farewell-to-summer books.

"Garment of Shadows" (2012) by Laurie R. King. The New York Times best-selling author is back in fine form with a new novel of suspense featuring Mary Russell and her husband, Sherlock Holmes. I was disappointed in her last book, "The Pirate King," because the duo were hardly together at all. Not that this power couple are joined at the hip, but the books really shine when they are sparking off each other in the course of finding justice (or at least a good result for the British empire). "Garment of Shadows" is set in Morocco during a tumultuous period in 1925, and Ms. King is an expert at putting you in a time and place so completely that you can smell the spices (and not so attractive smells, too) in the labyrinthine city of Fez, where most of the action takes place. If you're a Holmes fan, I highly recommend these books. If you haven't had the pleasure, start with the first, "The Beekeeper's Apprentice," and enjoy them all to fully appreciate the relationship between this intelligent, brave woman and the famous consulting detective.

"Ape House" (2010) by Sara Gruen. I didn't read "Water for Elephants," but when I heard "Ape House" was about a researcher working with bonobos, who communicate in sign language, their own language and through lexigrams on a computer, I had to read it. (How many of us know three languages?) It's a story about how poorly we sometimes treat animals who are practically human, what makes a family, this country's increasing obsession with reality TV and other nonsensical forms of so-called "news" and how greed can trump humanity if we let it. I found it touching, funny, sad, satirical and suspenseful and raced through it to reach the satisfying conclusion.

"The Pale Blue Eye" (2006) by Louis Bayard is historical fiction and the second of his mysteries I've really enjoyed. This one is set in 1830 at West Point Academy. When a young cadet's body is found hanging in an apparent suicide, former police detective Augustus Landor is asked to quietly investigate. He takes on an assistant, Cadet Edgar Allan Poe. The book's chapters alternate between Gus' narrative and reports to him from Poe, who uses his powers of observation to inform Gus about the personalities and quirks of life at West Point. But, when the crimes begin to multiply and things take a decidedly macabre turn, it threatens the friendship between the two men and leads to a shattering conclusion.

"The Weird Sisters" (2011) by Eleanor Brown. The first thing you should know is that the title references the three witches in Macbeth, not the modern meaning of "weird." When Rosalind (Rose), Bianca (Bean) and Cordelia (Cordy) Andreas return to their childhood home in a Midwestern college town where their father is a professor of Shakespeare, it's ostensibly because their mother has been diagnosed with breast cancer. But each has reached a crossroad and is questioning her life and the choices she has made. I love that the book is told in the first person plural (not an easy task) and that the family often speak in quotes from Shakespeare's plays. This was a fun read, and the family relationships are so true, I could see my siblings and I in the trio of oldest, middle child and youngest.

"The Postmistress" (2010) by Sarah Blake. A story about war and the human spirit ranges from a small town on Cape Cod to the London blitz and the mass evacuations of Jews across Europe from the fall of 1940 to fall 1942. Three stories mingle to create this thought-provoking tale — a Cape Cod postmistress, a local doctor and his wife, and Frankie Bard, a female war correspondent broadcasting nightly from London with Edward R. Murrow as the Nazis rain bombs over the city. Although there is not a single battle or soldier fighting in the book, it's one of the most heartfelt stories of war I've ever read. And, it resonates as much today as it did in the

"The Irresistible Henry House" (2010) by Lisa Grunwald is an enthralling tale based on real facts — a home economics program at a college in the Midwest during the late 1940s to '50s that offered 12 women a semester in a practice house, where they took turns caring for an infant. The babies, loaned by an orphanage for two years at a time, were then put up for adoption and touted as model children. On one hand it makes sense — real life experience for future mothers at a time when marriage and motherhood were expected of women. On the other hand, it's a callous disregard for the feelings of a child who is passed from hand to hand like a doll. Of course, Henry is different because he grows up at the practice house. But, the book raises so many questions and is an example of how our sociological and psychological views can change so drastically in a short span of time.

Nothing 'Fine' about health department chief he abject indifference of Michael Fine, M.D., Director of the Rhode Island Department of Health, toward those in chronic pain who require an internal pain pump managed in-home, was evident in the commentary authored recently by Tracy Breton in the Providence Journal. Her piece recounted the fiasco for Bea Burns, age 55, who has advanced multiple sclerosis. She has been bedridden for 17 years and, as of 11 months ago, has to be carried out on a stretcher by ambulance to a hospital for her pain killer medication refill. Beginning in 2009, Ms. Burns could no longer ride in a car due to uncontrollable muscle spasms. Every day a home health care aide comes to her bedside to feed her lunch and dinner. A visiting nurse bathes and changes her.

Arlene VIOLET

Further documenting the insensitivity of the so-called health professionals running the Health Department is the story of Vianna Hurley, 44, afflicted with acute pancreatitis and who now has to be driven to Boston to get her pain pump refilled, a trip which recently took more than five hours.

And just why were these treks necessary? Both women previously had been serviced by Pentec Health Inc, which provides inhome nursing services in 28 states. Pentec provided the services for free, using a RI-licensed nurse and pharmacy until the bureaucrats at the Department stopped it. The Health Department insisted that Pentec get a certificate of need and open an office here, even though nobody would go to that office since the service was for home care. Pentec had to file an application, attend three hearings, and spend $100,000 in legal fees and $1000 a month for an office it didn't need. Meanwhile, the Department has sat on the application for more than seven months and still has not rendered a decision. Pentec has concluded that it was not welcome here. Common sense has been trumped by bureaucracy.

So, patients with chronic pain have to be shuffled out of their homes with no end in sight. Meanwhile, there are about 425 Rhode Islanders waiting in the wings for similar mistreatment when they become bedridden, since nobody else—including visiting nurses—is trained to provide these services.

Fortunately, Representative Joseph McNamara(D-Warwick), Chair of the House Committee on Health, Education and Welfare has called a hearing in October to find out why these obstacles to servicing severely ill patients happened. The Department of Health, when asked to comment on the situation, offered an insipid nonanswer, shifting the blame to Pentec for withdrawing its application after this stonewall. The spokeswoman's comment reeked of a lack of accountability and reflection of the agency's callousness toward those suffering, and its inaction in training replacements.

You can be sure that if some political luminary had a relative in chronic pain, that action would have been forthcoming. Regular Rhode Islanders are not chopped liver and should get pain management at home forthwith. Please contact the Governor at governor@governor.ri.gov and Representative McNamara at mcnamara@rilin.state.ri.us and demand action and compassion for those needing in-home pain management. Director Fine's inaction is not fine.

THEATER REVIEW

Timeless 'Grapes' shines as Trinity season opener

¬ rinity Repertory Company opened up their 50th anniversary season in a big way with a magnificent production of John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath." This is a perfect production for this venerable institution to embark upon their next half century of theatre; the show hearkens back to Trinity Rep's own past with a nod to the environmental staging style of the theatre's founder, Adrian Hall, and showcases the strengths of the current acting company and their ability to tell a great story, simply and eloquently. And this is a classic American story, very truthfully told, I defy you to see it and not feel your soul stirred.

"The Grapes of Wrath" is, perhaps, the archetypical American tale. You know the story. In the midst of the great depression the Joad family, due to severe drought and subsequent bank foreclosures on their land, are forced to migrate west and try their luck in the promised land of California. But to understand their story and struggles is to understand the American psyche; their odyssey is an epic one through the heart and soul of this nation. Though our history is relatively short, the meaning and spirit of America is as vast as its terrain, sometimes arid, sometimes lush but always wide-open. As with any great foundation myth, to know the Joads is to understand who we are and how we got to be here.

MARK TUREK

The cast of John Steinbeck's 'The Grapes of Wrath,' now playing in Trinity Rep's downstairs Dowling Theater through October 6.

This is why "Grapes" matters and why the staging of Brian McEleney, who seems incapable of directing a bad production, makes such great and poetic sense. Eschewing the strictures of absolute realism, Mr. McEleney has staged the show in an actual, working onstage honky-tonk bar with the audience seated around and in and always immersed in the action. It makes for great, vivid storytelling precisely because the great and terrible events of our lives, like our foundation myths, always live on in our oral history. The barroom setting creates a 'present' where the 'past' of this essential story is retold and relived; a secular meetinghouse found anywhere along the highways and byways of America where testimony is delivered and drinks are sold.

This setting also allows for the staging to be lean and muscular without losing an iota of the simple eloquence of Steinbeck's words. Though the playing space may seem as barren as the dust bowl there is nothing nebulous about the events recreated in this setting; all is simply assembled out of thin air by using the tools right at hand. A collection of tables, chairs, barrels and blankets can become a truck for the journey, a river can be realistically recreated on the barroom floor. And the utilitarian nature of such a staging is utterly appropriate for the hardscrabble lives of folks who can do and must do anything simply to survive.

No honky-tonk saloon is quite complete without a kick-butt band and to that end we have in one corner of the stage, 3pile, a tight little bluesy country music ensemble comprised of students from the Brown/Trinity Rep Consortium. The original music and songs they have written were inspired by their reading of the story, serve as a supplemental counterpoint to the onstage action and are terrific though I thought that the first act could be trimmed by perhaps one song, too much music early on serving to bust up the rhythm of the storytelling. The band members also play a wide variety of characters in the telling of this tale adding considerably to the collaborative collective of this ensemble.

And as for the Trinity Rep acting ensemble onstage, all are absolutely pitch perfect in their roles and once again the extraordinary achievement is that this versatile company of actors we have become so accustomed to play their roles as if they were born to them. This is manifested in a multitude of different ways, a good example being the wise eyes and knowing smile that lights up Anne Scurria's face; her patient pioneer countenance wordlessly conveys volumes of exposition, mood and tone. The components of this cast complement each other so well onstage it is as if each is a part of that "the one great soul" Jim Casy describes.

Stephen Thorne is a marvel as Tom Joad. The actor is earnest, wary and quietly impassioned in the role; there is a sense of decency and just anger in his onstage demeanor that is as clear and deep as well water. He makes the "I'll be there" speech, one of the most moving passages in American literature, as forthright, clear and nuanced as a Shakespearean soliloquy. His is a brilliant and moving portrayal of the very best of our nature.

Just as moving is Joe Wilson Jr. as Jim Casy. There is a sort of humble hunger that marks his ends onstage and when this former preacher describes how he has lost his faith that lack of the spirit seems palpable as if what he has lost has left a gaping hole gouged out of him.

A sense of forlorn loss informs the performance of Fred Sullivan Jr. as Uncle John; a stain of deep sadness seems, subtly but indelibly, marked upon his soul.

Anne Scurria conveys all of a mother's wisdom onstage as Ma Joad, and that wisdom is patient, long-suffering and hard won. She is well matched by Richard Donnelly as her implacable husband and here this fierce actor seems stubborn and stuck simultaneously; a strong man in a no-win

Stephen Berenson is a delight as Grampa, reveling in his cantankerousness and as stubborn and justly aggrieved as a child. Janice Duclos is wholly fervent as Granma. Jessica Crandall makes for a Rose of Sharon marked by fragile desperation.

This ain't the law", Tom exclaims, as the Joads are rousted from one squatters camp after another on their migration west, "They're working on our spirit" adding that "I ain't got it in me to stand by and do nothing." Steinbeck's Pulitzer Prizewinning classic depicts the dark side of the American dream as well as the indomitable will of the American people. These are the facts of a dark time of our history but the author couches these hard truths in poetic, spiritual terms. It is no accident that, as Jim Casy, and note those initials of his, is attacked by strike-breakers he cries out: "you don't know what you're doing." Steinbeck chronicles a cycle of our oft-repeated history, this is why this story matters and why it needs to be retold now. And this tale is being told superbly in Trinity Rep's vivid and riveting production. See it now for the good of your soul.

DINING REVIEW

Redlefsen's Rotisserie & Grill is making merry with annual Oktoberfest ocal diners have discovered they don't have to travel to Germany for Oktoberfest. They simply head to Redlefsen's Rotisserie & Grill for an Oktoberfest celebration that includes everything from German beer, wine and food to dancing, music and singing.

Reservations are a must, because these fun evenings sell out very quickly. And, bring some friends. The larger tables seem to have the most fun.

Festivities get under way this week on Thursday, Sept. 26, when they "roll out the barrel" and tap the first keg amid much merriment and a parade led by Redlefsen's Lord Mayor Halsey Herreshoff. On Thursday, you also can try Schnitzel Mania — four types of schnitzel on one plate (veal, pork, chicken and calamari).

Proprietor Jeff Guertler will be on hand nightly in his lederhosen to welcome everyone. Accordionists stroll through the dining rooms, the Alpenblumen Bavarian Folk Dancers stomp and slap away, and diners are invited to get up and dance, too.

Song sheets are provided so everyone can join in and sing along on a "Song of Music" medley, "Lili Marlene," "In Heaven There is no Beer," polkas and drinking songs — lots of drinking songs.

Redlefsen's has a wide variety of beers for Oktoberfest — those on tap come in sizes ranging from .4 liter to full liters. Pick from Warsteiner, a Pilsner that's the best-selling beer in Germany; Warsteiner Dunkel, a dark lager; Weihenstephan Hefeweissbier, a German wheat beer; Köestrizer Schwarzbier, a world class black lager; Ayinger Celebrator, an award-winning Bavarian double bock; Pilsner Urquell, a Czech beer; Stella Artois, a Belgian lager; Palm Belgian Amber Ale, and Amstel Light. Bottled beers include Weihenstephan Dunkel Weissbier, Duvel Pilsner, La Trap Quadruple, Fin du Monde, St. Pauli Girl and domestic beers.

Don't like beer? Try one of the lambic ales, a Belgian malt beer that doesn't taste hoppy. We love the peach, but there's raspberry and cherry, too. Or, try a German wine, there are two Rieslings (one

From the appetizer menu, the zwiebelkuchen is one of our favorites. An incredibly light, flaky pastry is topped with a savory blend of thinly sliced, sautéed onions, applewood bacon and caraway seeds. Some fresh, salad greens on the side are a crisp contrast to the rich tart.

The mushroom pfannkuchen (pancake) is delicious, too. A rich, earthy filling of mushrooms, minced bacon, béchamel sauce and parmesan is wrapped in a golden crêpe and served with

Other appetizers are the butternut squash and apple soup, a green salat with mustard seed vinaigrette, and a smoked trout paté.

Entrées are kassler rippchen (a grilled smoked pork chop with sauerkraut and Empire applesauce), cod strudel (local cod wrapped in filo and served with sauerkraut), sauerbraten, wiener schnitzel (with holstein or jäger sauce), Kasespatzle (a German version of mac and cheese using spaetzle, bacon and carmelized onion), Rindergulash (German goulash), a rotisserie half chicken, and a grilled wurst platter.

Wiener schnitzel is one of the most popular dishes at Redlefsen's year-round because it's the best fat has been DELCONTE linked to elevated cholesterol and heart disease, but most people do not realize that not all saturated fats are created equal.

Many products contain fats that have been processed into a "saturated" form in order to give them a longer shelf life and to cut manufacturing costs. Coconut oil, on the other hand, is a naturallyoccurring saturated fat that can actually help improve heart health, increase your metabolism, and support immune function.

Coconut oil is a great option for cooking since it is heat stable, and therefore less susceptible to harmful oxidation when cooking at high temperatures. It can also be used in baking as a substitute for butter, margarine or Crisco.

So despite the saturated fat in coconut oil, use it in moderation, and make sure it is 100% natural

1 whole small, baked sweet potato

1 tsp. coconut oil

1/8 tsp. cinnamon

1 tsp. honey

1 tbsp. almonds

1/8 tsp. salt ■ Slice a baked sweet potato lengthwise, but not all the way

■ Place coconut oil on the potato flesh, top with cinnamon, honey, and

■ Use a fork to mash the potato and other ingredients together.

■ Serve immediately.

NOTE: Coconut oil is a great substitute for butter. If it is in solid form, it will quickly melt with the heat of the potato.

Good Health IN THE

by Don Levine

Now that schools are in full swing, it is a good time to increase public education and awareness of the epidemic of Childhood Obesity. September marks Childhood Obesity Month.

First, the facts:

The financial, physical and emotional costs of childhood obesity are overwhelming. Centers for Disease Control report that obesity affects 17% of our nation's youth.* In case anyone wonders if this is a significant problem, consider the following:

- Childhood obesity has more than doubled in children and tripled in adolescents in the past 30 years.
- An obese teenager has an up to 80% chance of becoming an
- Overweight and obesity are responsible for a 60% increased risk for a new diagnosis of asthma in adolescents.
- In a 2003 study, obese children rated their quality of life with scores as low as those of young cancer patients on chemotherapy.
- Obese children are more at risk for fractures and sprains in the lower extremities.
- Children aged 8 18 spend, on average, more than 6 hours per day watching television, playing video games or using other media.
- In 1969, 48% of children, ages 5 to 14, usually walked or bicycled to school. Today, that number is
- Only 2.1% of high schools, 7.9% of middle schools and 3.8% of elementary schools provide daily physical education.

We are in danger of raising the first generation of American children who will live sicker and die younger than the generation before them.

An Effective Campaign!

There are many national and statewide campaigns currently underway that are battling the Obesity Epidemic. Eat Smart, Move More and Project Lean are two such programs that provide information and resources on the Check out state level. DesignedtoMove.org for a startling discussion of the current problems as well as ideas for change. Get involved! Join or host programs and events in your own communities. Check out the information and opportunities with these campaigns:

Let's Move!

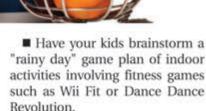

At the launch of her Let's Move! Campaign, Michelle Obama noted, "The physical and emotional health of an entire generation and the economic health and security of our nation is at stake." Regardless which side of the aisle we find ourselves, let's agree that this campaign is important. LetsMove.gov offers information on the facts about obesity, healthy eating, physical activity and ways to take action. There are great ideas here that you can implement and share with your communities.

Smart Moves for Families

At MoveForward.com, the APTA provides information about the physical therapist's role in assisting families battling obesity, noting, "Physical therapists' extensive knowledge of pre-existing conditions (such as type 2 diabetes and obesity) allows them to help people of all ages and abilities establish life-long patterns of physical activity." The site offers tips for parents such as:

- Plan weekend family activities involving physical activity, such as hiking, swimming, bicycling, mini-golf, tennis, or bowl-
- Help your child plan physical activities with friends and neighbors, such as skating or softball.

Remember that your family does not need to join a health club or buy fancy equipment to be active. Walking isn't costly and it's easy. So is designing a backyard obstacle course. Weights can be made from soda or detergent bottles filled with sand or water!

Safe Routes

Saferoutesinfo.org states their purpose as "connecting the trip to school with Safety, Health, Community and Choice." Their website provides a national map with links for each state on safe walk to school routes. They highlight events such as National Bike to School Day and International Walk to School Day, which will occur in October. The site gives information on how to organize a program and funding opportunities.

Tackling Obesity

Childhood obesity affects the health and economy of our entire nation. Many opportunities exist for individuals and businesses to help provide solutions to this epidemic, partner with their community and spread a positive message of health and wellness.

Loan rates based on $100,000 with 20% down payment & no PMI. Variable mortgages listed are for 30 years, adjusted annually. Points are a one-time charge equal to one percent of the mortgage. APR stands for annual percentage rate and reflects closing costs spread over the life of the loan. CAP is the most a variable mortgage can increase in one year. Savings and loans and Rhode Island loan and investment banks are included in the bank section of this chart. These rates, provided by the institutions on Monday of this week, are subject to change or special conditions. For more information, consumers are advised to call the institution. First-time homebuyers may qualify for lower-rate mortgages from the Rhode Island Housing and Mortgage Finance Corporation. Many credit unions only grant loans to members and limit membership to a defined group. When shopping for mortgage rates ask for explanation of closing costs. Financial institutions that write residential mortgages that wish to be included on this list can get in touch with Classified Real Estate Advertising Specialist at 401-253-1000
