Emmet County Public Health Administrator Kathy Preston is officially retiring May 16 after nearly three decades of public health service in Emmet County.

Preston's replacement, Kari Batman, began her duties as administrator April 11.

An Armstrong native, Preston's parents are Peggy and the late Walt Burgeson. She still has other family in the area, Preston has seen a lot of changes in public health over the years. When she started, home health was a key role. However, as other healthcare providers began to fill that role, Emmet County Public Health moved to providing community health, including prenatal/postnatal care, health maintenance and a homemaker program for the elderly, lead program, immunization clinics, developmental and dental testing, blood testing, free STD testing and as a key leader in the Emmet County Wellness Coalition.

Public Health also offers school-based clinics, vaccinations, flu clinics, school-based and community education and a first-aid component in babysitting clinics. They also have a Stop the

CO2 pipelines – the human impact

Are the carbon pipeline companies taking public funds, or investing in the future of rural communities like Emmet County?

BY AMY H. PETERSON STAFF WRITER

Landowners are leading the opposition to the 685 miles of carbon sequestration pipelines planned to run through Iowa from two companies that will impact Emmet County. The Estherville News attended a meeting of environmentalists, scientists and citizen group representatives who oppose the pipeline, and reached out to the CO2 pipeline companies. As the Estherville News has reported in its coverage of the landowner information meetings held throughout late 2021 and earlier this year, local landowners oppose the pipeline because the companies are seeking to use eminent domain to secure any land for which they are unable to gain the landowners' voluntary easement. objections from local landowners received by the Iowa Utilities Board, Jim Richard of IUB sees this pipeline for what it is: a big money grab that will make a few rich people richer

Everyone once in a great while, a self-help book comes along that can reshape our thinking of ourselves and each other.

Recent news has been hip-deep in irony

Irony has been so deep in recent days that we shouldn't be surprised if people start walking around with their chore boots on or with the cuffs on their pants rolled up to avoid the mess.

Consider: U.S. Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas made an observation Friday that caused some people's eyes to bug in disbelief.

Speaking in Atlanta to a group of judges and lawyers, he said of American society these days, "We are becoming addicted to wanting particular outcomes, not living with the outcomes we don't like."

There certainly are plenty of examples of that, both among Democrats and among Republicans. But Thomas failed to acknowledge any connection between his statement and the actions of his wife, Ginni, in the weeks leading up to the inauguration of President Joe Biden on Jan. 20, 2021. Ginni Thomas exchanged 29 "stop the steal" text messages with Mark Meadows, President

Donald Trump's White House chief of staff, before the Jan. 6, 2021 riot at the U.S. Capitol. She urged Meadows to find a way to keep Trump in office and not allow the electoral votes to be certified by the U.S. House on Jan. 6. She said there was "obvious fraud" in the 2020 presidential election and Meadows needed to "save us from the left taking America down.'

Contrary to what Ginni Thomas, the former president himself and many of his supporters insist, investigations by federal and state government officials and judges' decisions in dozens of lawsuits have produced no evidence bearing out

those claims

It's almost as if those Trump supporters have been wanting a particular outcome and have not been living with the outcome they do not like.

During his speech in Atlanta, the justice said "it bodes ill for a free society" that people are trying to bully the Supreme Court into "giving you just the outcomes you want."

He did not make clear what bullying he was referring to. Thomas did not say whether the bullying was demonstrations in support of women's right to abortion or whether the bullying was someone at the court leaking a preliminary version of an unfinished decision that would overturn legal precedents allowing abortions under most circumstances.

Thomas referred only to the "unfortunate events" during the week - and did not make any reference to the controversy that has surrounded his wife's "stop the steal" activism.

That wasn't the only dose of irony in last week's news.

Gov. Kim Reynolds met privately in Marion with several dozen parents and grandparents who are angry and worried about a new policy in the Linn-Mar School District that school officials said is intended to protect transgender students. The new policies — applying to students in grades 7 through transgender kids, who are con-

12 — were adopted by the cerned about their children's school board on a 5-2 vote last month.

School officials said the policies were written to comply with the requirements of state and federal civil rights laws and with the Iowa Department of Education's guidance on ensuring equity for transgender students.

The policies lay out how school officials will treat students who have identified themselves as transitioning from one gender identity to another. The practices include allowing "trans" students to use restrooms and locker rooms that correspond with their gender identity, instead of their gender at birth.

After the meeting in Marion, the governor put in a plug for her private-school voucher proposal that would provide up to 10,000 public school students with annual taxpayer scholarships of about $5,500 so they can pay for tuition to attend a private K-12 school.

Reynolds' scholarship proposal has run into an embarrassing roadblock in the Iowa House. Opposition from more than a dozen Republicans, primarily from rural districts, has prevented passage of the proposal and has delayed indefinitely adjournment of the Legislature for the year.

Reynolds said parents she met with are troubled by Linn-Mar's new policy.

"It was a great opportunity for me to hear from parents how frustrated they are with not being able to educate their children in an environment that they felt their child could thrive," she told reporters. Of course, there are other parents, including those with education, safety and ability to thrive and who are frustrated by the governor's refusal to meet with them about transgender issues. That wasn't the only serving of irony from the governor. Her staff passed out a flyer that included this statement: "Fact: For nearly 20 years, math and reading scores for Iowa students have been decreasing."

Unmentioned in the leaflet was another fact: For 12 of those 20 years, Reynolds has been either lieutenant governor or governor. And since 2017. Republicans have controlled both the Iowa House and Iowa Senate.

If you are unable to remember any of Reynolds' policy initiatives to improve students' math and reading skills, you are not alone. That is especially noteworthy, given that Republican control of the Legislature put the governor in a good position to enact plans she favored to address the declining academic performance by Iowa students.

The flyer makes the puzzling claim that diverting about $55 million from public school districts and using the money for private-school scholarships will have a positive effect on public school districts.

Reynolds' flyer also includes details of what she calls a parents' bill of rights. It would require public school districts to allow parents to be heard on issues affecting their students although the governor feels no such duty to hear from parents who support their local school districts.

Such irony.

Cologuard Test Is Worth Risk of a False Positive

DEAR DR ROACH:

I am a 77-year-old man in good health. At my recent annual physical exam, my physician ordered a Cologuard kit to be sent to me to screen for colorectal disease. I have never had symptoms of disease or problems with any part of my gastrointestinal tract. I had two colonoscopies at different times several years ago, with negative results. When I got the kit, I read that the Cologuard test could result in false positives, with an increased risk of false positives for persons over age 75. A positive test result requires a follow-up colonoscopy, which is also riskier for elderly patients. Since I am in good health with no symptoms of any disease, I decided I did not want to risk a false positive result from the test, which would require a follow-up colonoscopy. Did I make the right decision? -- E.G.

ANSWER: Cologuard is a brand of test that looks at DNA in stool for evidence of cancer. Certain DNA mutations are highly suggestive of cancer. In addition, Cologuard does an immunochemical test looking for blood. Because it combines these two techniques, Cologuard is more sensitive than only a test looking for blood. Compared with colonoscopy, Cologuard is about 92% sensitive in finding cancers, meaning it will miss about 8%. With improved sensitivity comes a lack of specificity, which means you could have a false positive result. The Cologuard can say that you have an abnormality when a colonoscopy would indicate normal. For 45% of people with a positive Cologuard test, no abnormalities will be found upon colonoscopy. You are right that false positives are more prevalent in older individuals.

There are two reasons that I think the Cologuard is still a reasonable choice, although it isn't as good as colonoscopy. The first is that I continue to recommend a screening test for healthy 77-year-old men, and although colonoscopy is my first choice, a normal Cologuard test prevents a need for colonoscopy, and a false positive would lead to the same colonoscopy you would have gotten anyway (although there probably is more anxiety after a false positive test). The second is that a person with an abnormal Cologuard and a normal colonoscopy may be at risk for an abnormality that wasn't found on colonoscopy. A study looking at people in this category found a 25% risk of abnormality on follow-up colonoscopy, if the Cologuard was abnormal again one to two years later.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am 35 years old. I have experienced fluttering in my chest for most of my adult life. It's been a once in a while kind of thing, but for the past month, I keep getting it every day. I have had a lot of EKGs, but my doctor seems to think everything is normal. Please help me, because it's messing up my work and other aspects of my life. -- S.Q.

ANSWER: Most of the time, fluttering in the chest is not something you need to worry about. Most people will have occasional episodes of this, and a few people have a greater number but are found to be normal after extensive evaluation

A cardiologist might recommend a 24- to 48-hour heart monitor. If you have symptoms every day, this would be likely to catch your heart rhythm during an event. Devices that record for longer amounts of time are also available, and there are consumer devices that allow you to record an EKG yourself.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu. c) 2022 North America Synd., Inc.

In the Conservation Board meeting that followed, Anderson also reported on camping receipts which total $41,193.39 for the year. He also reported on the new building project.

"Here's a rare opportunity in our county to have tourism," said Graves. "It's a phenomenal tourist opportunity for our county."

Quastad qualified that the county did not need the money from a sale of the property. "The place is falling apart," said Quastad, noting hazards in the barn. "It has good bones," said

Terrance Jensen, local representative of the Iowa Barn Foundation. "It was constructed very well originally." Jensen noted a hole in the roof. "The other stuff is mostly cosmetic." Jensen said though he wasn't sure how the foundation would respond to a funding request from the county since it usually gives matching grants to individuals. Grant recipients are asked to allow public tours one weekend every September for 10 years.

Supervisor Tim Schumacher said he didn't feel the county had managed the property as well as it could.

"We don't have a department that is specifically historical," Schumacher said. He pointed to the Nelsons as the logical party to promote the property. "I would like to see them take the property over with a group of people, with a commission," said Schumacher. Schumacher also said Emmet County Conservation should not be tasked with maintaining the property.

Stacie Berg-Nelson said she and her husband would like to build an event center that would help support the property. Berg-Nelson said she believed there would be enough donations and volunteer work to maintain the property and asked the board to allow her and her husband to start a historical landmarks commission. Schumacher favored maintaining county ownership of the property for now.

Anderson supported the Nelsons' efforts to form a nonprofit to maintain the property, with the county maintaining ownership.

Quastad agreed that keeping the property in county ownership would resolve part of the problem. He told the Nelsons to proceed with foundation plans.

100 Years Ago

■ Miss Frances Mills, a young girl about eighteen, employed by the Gardston hotel, came very close to drowning Friday afternoon at about 3 o'clock. She and a young girl friend, Esther Stone, were wading in the river below the dam taking pictures. Miss Mills, in backing, stepped into a deep hole and went down. Her friend who had some ability as a swimmer, waded in and succeeded in pulling her from the mud. In a second attempt, this time swimming, the drowning girl pulled her would be rescuer under with her. Miss Stone, freed herself only by hitting her over the head. Miss Stone's screams by this time had attracted Willard McCoy who was fishing on the bank and he effected a rescue just as Miss Mills went under for the third time. Neither of the young ladies are worse for their experience but will probably not care to repeat it.

The Birney Hospital in this city will soon be known as the Estherville Hospital and Clinic. Dr. Birney, has leased the building and equipment to Dr. Bachman, Dr. Bradley, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Morton, and Birney will be the other member of the firm who takes over the hospital. Dr. Birney will move his office to his old location over the Estherville Drug Co. The new company will lease the Hospital to a competent nurse and all will occupy the place on an equal basis and with equal interests and all will take their patients to this institution.

Emmet county exceeded its Red Cross quota by $2,090.03 in the recent fund campaign, results of which were announced today. A total of $4,463.03 was collected as compared to a quota of $2,373. Results of the drive were completed Saturday after the last township had reported. W.C. Currell acted as county fund campaign chairman.

The 75th anniversary of the Lost Island Lutheran church southwest of Graettinger was observed yesterday in ceremonies which lasted throughout the day. Rev. S. B. Knutson of Ruthven is serving temporarily at Lost Island until the new pastor, Rev. Ernest Quam of Spicer, Minn., takes over July 1. Rev. Quam spoke briefly in the evening. Mrs. Quam will be remembered as the former Margaret Sunde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thor Sunde, of this community.

"It's going to make us watch the overtime closer and ask more efficiency from our employees," Dan Poppen, manager of Hy-Vee in Estherville, stated of the $2 minimum wage bill that passed the House Thursday and is headed for the Senate. The House vote called for increasing the minimum wage to $2 next year instead of making an immediate boost as called for by the Democratic leadership. Poppen also noted that "We'll have to meet the regulations if passed but will still have to hold the line on prices due to the freeze."

Lincoln Central's sophomore home economics class presented a style show and tea at the high school gymnasium Thursday night with participants modeling formals, dress and sports wear under the counseling of Mrs. Louise Lamb. Among the participants were sophomore Sheila Mahin, seventh grader Rose Mary Eide, senior Judy Mein, sophomore Janice Valen and senior Connie Kay Moore. Refreshments were served following the show and guests toured the industrial arts room to view projects by both boys and girls during the past year

The North Dakota flooding devastation touched close to home for one Estherville family. Jack and Marilyn's Hoglund's daughter and family have been staying with them since they were evacuated from their Grand Forks home almost three weeks ago. Vern and Lori Shafer and their three children Jared, 9; Samantha 6; and Christina, 2; were forced to evacuate their home, three blocks away from the Red River on April 18. The following Monday the family came to live in Estherville.

The celebration surrounding Mother's Day began Monday for Pam Caboth, who was caught off guard at Lincoln Elementary with the announcement that she was named 1997 Mother of the Year by the Estherville Mothers of Merit organization. Third grade teacher Susan Morphew had invited Caboth to help her class with writing letters to spring the surprise. Caboth's third-grade daughter, Christy, nominated her mother. Caboth, who works for Iowa Lakes Electric Cooperative, and her husband, Mark, who is a technician at Firestone, have two other children, Caleb, age 6 and Curtis, age 3.

ESTHERVILLE NEWS/ESTHERVILLE, IA

■ It's time to Build the Dream. Despite a gloomy day, the sun shone during the groundbreaking ceremony of the Regional Wellness Center and Iowa National Guard Armory Friday morning in Estherville. Estherville Mayor Lyle Hevern cheerfully opened the ceremony with thanks to all the people who helped make the four-year dream a reality. The Regional Wellness Center and the Iowa National Guard Armory combined will be a 77,000 square foot facility. The total cost of the RWC project alone is estimated at $4.8 million.

Estherville Lincoln Central's Jeff Soper took runner-up medalist honors at the sectional meet in Spencer and earned the right to advance to district play next Friday. Soper, along with Storm Lake's Andy Berg and MOC-Floyd Valley's Matt Blader, shot a 75. After a three-hole playoff, Berg was out, leaving just Soper and Blader. In sudden death Soper won the next hole to receive runner-up medalist.

The final bell sounded signaling the end of the school day. But the cafeteria at Estherville Lincoln Central High School told a different story. Friends and family filled the space, all there for a single purpose-to honor four people who have served the school district for a combined total of 77 years before telling them goodbye. The tenures of Janet Anderson, Joan Swanson, Sue Bish and Suzanne West will end at the close of the school year.

The Estherville Lincoln Central girls tennis team completed its undefeated run through the Lakes Conference schedule with a 9-0 victory over Storm Lake on Tuesday. ELC coach Sally Bohmer said the team suffered only five losses in 81 conference matches. Winning against Storm Lake were Laura Menendez, Elizabeth Olson, Laura Inman, Jill Jensen, Megan Olsen and Sarah Clague.

10 Years Ago

As the clock ticks toward a deadline for selling the Ringsted School building—or have it demolished—an eleventh-hour group asked the Ringsted School Building Committee Thursday night to give it a chance to take over the building.

The Estherville Lincoln Central Girls Track Team has one more qualifier to take to Des Moines next week following the posting of all qualifiers. Allie Sievert's jump of 5 feet is good enough to return the junior to the state meet.
