Wednesday a.m. homicide

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

The Lewisburg Police Department is investigating a homicide that happened early Wednesday morning in the 300 block of West End Avenue.

At approximately 1:10 a.m., responding officers found John Jacob "JJ" Contreras, 27, of Lewisburg, wounded by gunfire inside the residence.

After first aid and CPR on scene, Contreras was transported to Marshall Medical Center, where he died from his injuries.

Police characterized the event as a "home invasion" and are working, as of press time, to determine a motive.

LPD is currently pursuing several leads in the case and encourage anyone with knowledge of the incident to contact the Criminal Investigations Department at 931-359-3800.

Covid spread exponential

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

The rate of positive COVID-19 cases in Marshall County has spiked to unprecedented levels in August.

In data released Tuesday, August 31, by the state department of health, the number of active cases in the county stood at 723.

The number of active cases on Monday, August 2, the first day of school, was 106.

From August 3 to August 16, the county averaged 18.4 new positive cases per day. Between August 17 and August 30, that number more than tripled to 57 new cases per day.

Case counts prior to the spread of the more contagious delta variant of the virus, during December and January, remained in the low 400s.

As recently as June, daily active cases were in the single digits.

The Marshall County Health Department has expanded testing hours for the virus at their 206 Legion Ave. location.

Free, drive through testing is available Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 8 to 10 a.m.

Vaccinations are available at the health department as well.

Just under half of residents have received at least one dose of a vaccine.

Last Friday, Education Commissioner Penny Schwinn issued guidance that would allow school districts to ask for waivers, limited to individual classrooms or schools, to temporarily return to remote learning, as several school systems began closures to deal with the increasing case counts.

Director of Schools Jacob Sorrells told the Tribune in a previous interview that for the entire district to return to a virtual learning option would require a state of emergency declaration from Gov. Bill Lee.

As of Wednesday, the school system reports 412 students absent. Of those, 149 have tested positive. A further 79 are awaiting test results, and 184 are out because of a positive test within their household.

The Tennessee Hospital Association released a statement on Monday warning that patient numbers--just under 3,100 hospitalized with a positive diagnosis as of last Friday--was approaching early 2021 numbers. However, the statement continued, the number of patients in intensive care units, currently on ventilators, and pediatric hospitalizations, were all higher than at any other point in the pandemic.

Just a reminder that Marshall County Community Theatre will present the final three productions of the musical "Grease" this weekend at the Dixie Theatre on the square in Lewisburg. Postponed from earlier in the month due to positive coronavirus tests, the shows will be held at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Saturday and 2 p.m. on Sunday. Originally sold out for the weekend, some tickets are now available. Check the dixietheatre.org website for details and availability.

Ida rains temporarily hamper cleanup after Tennessee floods

By Jonathan Mattise
Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Rain from Tropical Depression Ida temporarily hampered cleanup efforts Tuesday for a rural Tennessee community ravaged by recent deadly flooding, but the extra dousing brought no new flooding, authorities said.

About 2.5 inches (6 centimeters) of rain fell overnight and showers were expected throughout the day, according to the Humphreys County Emergency Management Agency. The Tennessee National Guard was keeping an eye on water levels in creek beds and under bridges while police in Waverly, where the Aug. 21 floods caused the most damage, said they were on the lookout for any road flooding.

Cleanup and recovery efforts are expected to resume Wednesday, officials said. By Tuesday afternoon, a flash flood watch was dropped for the part of central Tennessee that includes Humphreys County, according to the National Weather Service.

"It's rained all day, but no additional flooding," Grey Collier, a spokesperson for the local emergency agency, said late Tuesday afternoon.

Authorities are encouraging people to pick up tarps being distributed to area residents so they can cover their damaged homes and other property.

Elsewhere in Tennessee, the tropical system dumped enough rain that event organizers on Tuesday decided to cancel the prominent Bonnaroo Music & Arts Festival. The annual festival was scheduled to start Thursday on the site of a former farm in Manchester, about an hour southeast of Nashville, but organizers said the waterlogged festival grounds are unsafe for driving or camping.

The heavy rainfall also led to a few school cancellations, including in Lawrence and Giles counties on Tuesday, while McMinn County canceled classes for Wednesday.

The flooding just over a week ago killed 20 people as it took out houses, roads, cellphone towers and telephone lines. The rain totals more than tripled forecasts and shattered the state record for one-day rainfall. More than 270 homes were destroyed and 160 took major damage in the county of about 18,000, located some 60 miles (95 kilometers) west of Nashville, according to the Humphreys County Emergency Management Agency.

Four state-owned bridges in three locations in Humphreys and Hickman counties are beyond repair and will stay closed until they are rebuilt, and seven additional locally owned bridges in Humphreys will remain closed pending repair or replacement contracts, the state Department of Transportation said Tuesday.

Local concrete acquisition

Smyrna Ready Mix Concrete, LLC, a concrete manufacturer based in Nashville, Tennessee announced the acquisition of T&H Concrete Products, a pre-cast concrete product manufacturer based out of Lewisburg, Tennessee.

T&H has been family owned and operated since 1998. T&H specializes in precast concrete products. From storm shelters and septic tanks to cattlefeeders and watering troughs, all of their products are manufactured at the plant in Lewisburg, TN.

Jeff Hollingshead, CEO of SRM Concrete, stated, "We are very excited about the T&H acquisition. We've been looking to add to our pre-cast product capabilities for a while now, and we believe T&H is a perfect fit. Our new team has invaluable industry experience, and with their help we look forward to producing high quality pre-cast products and delivering unmatched service."

After meeting with the company's new employees, SRM Concrete President Mike Hollingshead, stated, "We look forward to building relationships with the T&H and welcoming them into our Smyrna Ready Mix family. They have a great group of people over there."

SRM Concrete is the largest privately-owned ready-mix concrete manufacturer in the country. Founded in 1999 by Mike and Melissa Hollingshead in Smyrna, Tennessee, the family-owned company owns and operates a network of ready-mix concrete plants and trucks focused on producing and delivering ready-mix concrete as well as providing ancillary services across the commercial and residential construction segments.

SRM Concrete has pursued an active acquisition strategy, having successfully acquired and integrated over 60 companies since 2005 and currently has over 4,000 employees with locations that span across thirteen states including: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Mississippi, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia.

TNStars giving away three $529 scholarships for College Savings Month

NASHVILLE — Governor Bill Lee has issued a proclamation declaring September as College Savings Month in Tennessee. To celebrate, State Treasurer David H. Lillard, Jr. and the TNStars College Savings 529 Program are giving away three $529 scholarships this month.

Tennessee residents age 21 and older can enter the scholarship giveaway online at TNStars.com/scholarship on behalf of a child age 15 or under, now through September 30, 2021. Winners will be announced October 1, and scholarship money will be deposited into a TNStars account.

National student loan debt has surpassed $1.7 trillion. One way families can help avoid student loan debt is by saving in a tax-advantaged 529 account. The TNStars College Savings 529 Program was created to encourage Tennessee families to save and invest for the future cost of post-secondary education. Families can open an account with as little as $25 to start. Money in the account can be used to complement other financial resources that may be available to the student in the future.

Research shows that students with dedicated savings for college are about seven times more likely to attend college than children with no dedicated account. TNStars offers quality investment options at a low cost, so families can save more money for college. Even small, consistent contributions to a 529 account can make a big impact over time.

Money invested in a TNStars account grows tax-free when used for qualified higher education expenses including tuition, room and board, books, computers and more. The College Savings Month Proclamation states that, on average, more than 37 cents of every dollar saved in a TNStars account is the result of investment earnings.

"It's important to start saving early, so that compounding interest works for you rather than against you with student loans," said Lillard.

What do you remember about 9/11 — and before?

By Danny Tyree

Early on the morning of September 11, 2001, I was a newly minted warehouse supervisor for a farmers cooperative.

I can remember almost exactly where a customer's truck was parked when I overheard him telling one of my co-workers something or another about a plane crash up north.

A few minutes later, I received an urgent (landline) phone call from my wife. She had been watching NBC's "Today" and saw breaking coverage of the suicide attacks on the Twin Towers (and other targets).

In my first few weeks as a supervisor, I made a practice of submitting a daily report about warehouse activities. I remember my September 11 entry unashamedly stated that I chose not to crack the whip on my staff that horrible day, instead allowing everyone a chance to come to terms with their shock, grief, anger and anxiety.

We humans have a knack for preserving such milestone tragedies in amber. We remember exactly where we were and who we were with when we learned about JFK's assassination, the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger or Kurt Cobain's death.

The incremental steps that can LEAD to disasters? Not so much.

One day blends into another as the decisions, shortcuts and rationalizations of our unexamined lives affect us and those around us.

True, some people are introspective enough that they can retroactively acknowledge regrettable patterns (think "Cat's in the Cradle"), but most of us feel blindsided and start finger-pointing when things go wrong.

It's ridiculous to think that the bullying we unloaded on Billy last Friday (or was it last Thursday?) could ever snowball into his committing suicide. But such things happen.

Election time again? Okay, pull the lever for the candidate with the biggest smile, flashiest celebrity endorsements and wildest promises. Collect your "I Voted" sticker. Then act surprised when the city, state or country falls apart. Lather, rinse, repeat.

We get a little more desensitized every time we "dodge a bullet." If we've made it SO FAR without fixing the brakes or having the house wiring inspected, why not kick the can down the road a little farther? Oh, yeah — all that hassle with the fire engines and the Jaws of Life.

We know the shock of stepping on the doctor's scales, even though the individual indulgences that contributed to our weight gain are long forgotten.

If we're one of MANY people enabling a substance abuser, we can act innocent when they wind up in prison or the grave.

We pass up a local mom-and-pop store "just this once" so many times that mom and pop eventually hang up a "Going out of business" sign.

Unless we keep a detailed diary, we couldn't really enumerate all the ways in which we've frittered away the last five or 10 years; but in times of crisis, the fruits of our non-labors become painfully obvious. We haven't learned a new skill/language, gained any new friends or made a lasting contribution to the community.

Etcetera, etcetera.

As 9/11 anniversary follows 9/11 anniversary, I hope our citizens and institutions will always remember the victims of the sneak attack. I hope we will always be vigilant about terrorism, whether foreign or domestic.

But I also hope we can live deliberately every day — discerning good from evil, calculating unintended consequences.

That's how we can really obtain a happier, fairer, safer world.

Tragedy in Afghanistan is a call to action

By Christine Flowers

I come from a family of fighting men.

My cousin Adolph was a paratrooper who landed at Normandy on D-Day, and the parachute he used — stained with blood and dirt — was turned into my cousin Helen's wedding dress. My father spent two years in Thule Greenland, at a godforsaken outpost at the North Pole during (no pun intended) the Cold War.

My uncle Louie was a Marine, stationed in Beirut during one of the early crises in the 1950s, and my cousins Alex and Anthony served honorably in Vietnam. Last but not least, my brother Michael was stationed in Iraq during the prosecution of Saddam Hussein as a civilian employee of the Department of Defense.

France. Greenland. Beirut. Vietnam. Iraq. Postcards from the front lines, and a part of my DNA. There is nothing more honorable than service to this country that has given so much, and asked for so little from the majority. But America has demanded that last full measure from the men and women, but especially the men, who have served in combat positions, and we only stop to consider the debt when tragedy occurs.

Last week, 13 U.S. service members were killed by terrorist bombs in Kabul. They were not in active combat. They were doing something that adds poignancy to their mission: Helping civilians escape the hellhole in Afghanistan created by the men in suits.

President Joe Biden is responsible for this, as was Donald Trump before him, and Barack Obama, and George W. Bush, all the way back to the presidents and senators who thought it was a great idea to arm terrorists so we could get back at the Soviets.

But to dwell on this is to ignore the nature of the sacrifice those 10 Marines, two soldiers and a Navy corpsman made last week. They were in the process of evacuating desperate civilians, U.S. allies and their families, women and babies just born, from a country that had fallen into immediate chaos, and imminent tyranny. They were trying to save those people with the power of their US imprimatur, their courage, their intelligence, their ingenuity and to some extent, their weapons.

Their mission was not to capture a hill or fortify a city. It was to be the separate links in a human chain, person by person, life by life, breath by labored breath, leading toward the open door of infinite possibility: Freedom.

The fact that they were killed, murdered, while trying to save lives makes their loss exponentially worse. The Bible says, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Take it even further: No greater love hath a man that he lay down his life for strangers.

The picture of the Marine sitting down and cradling a newborn Afghani child went viral, and the reason it did is because it spoke to something deep within all of us that lies dormant until tragedy occurs: The understanding that in the dark and dire moments, the touch of a human being is the greatest weapon against despair and the strongest defense against disaster.

That picture is emblematic of what the Marines and other warriors have been doing around the world, in all of the collective war zones on this tortured planet. It is not the shot of the soldier with dark glasses and in camo with a gun slung across his shoulders.

It is not the tragic image of a battered and bloodied combatant, alone on a hill.

It is the picture of that Marine, cradling the child. Of the Marines on Iwo Jima, raising the flag.

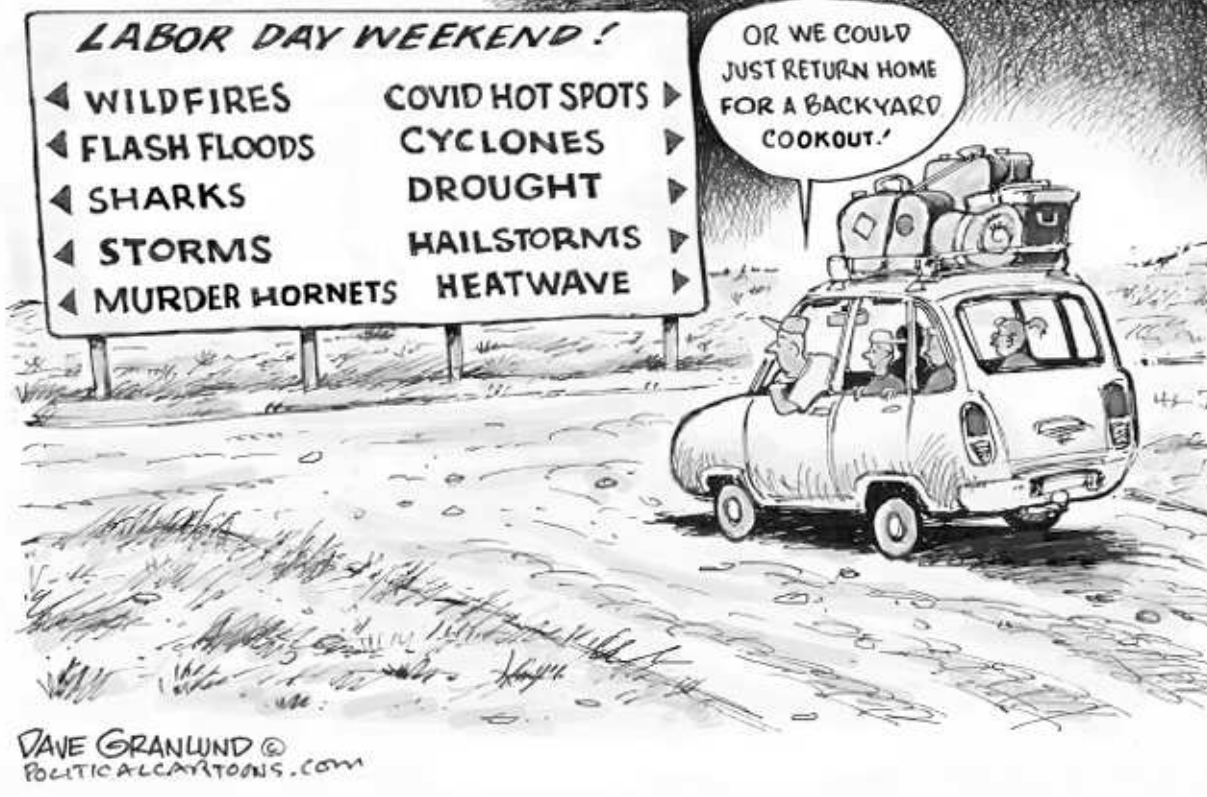

Of every moment that that someone in uniform shows up to represent what this country has always meant, despite the woke naysayers who slander the past with their twisted and evolved retelling of facts and events that never occurred.

Those who died this week are an unbearable loss to their families, a horrific sacrifice to what many consider a failed campaign, a tragic reminder of the fragility of life and the toxicity of radical ideology.

But to me, especially, as I deal with the refugees who long to escape the maelstrom in Afghanistan, the fallen represent the light that burns brightly in the hearts of generous Americans, the power of the human spirit against the nihilism of terrorists and opportunists (often interchangeable) and hope.

May their memory be a blessing, an inspiration, and a call to action. And may their deaths be avenged by our refusal to pay tribute to tyrants.

Everything we know about work is wrong. The pandemic proved it.

By John L. Micek

So what can the plight of a little cafe tell you about the state of the American economy and the changing face of work? A lot, as it turns out.

The other week, the bistro where my family and I have been grabbing brunch every Sunday since the start of the pandemic announced that it would be shuttering on weekends, and shifting to a more limited, weekday schedule. The reason was a familiar one: The owner couldn't find the staff they needed to both function effectively and to keep themselves and their current staff from being ground into dust from the punishing pace.

The news was heartbreaking, if entirely unsurprising. Employers across the nation are struggling with a labor shortage so profound that one Alabama pizzeria vowed to hire "literally anyone" just to keep the doors open, according to Business Insider.

Business leaders have falsely blamed the crisis on generous pandemic unemployment benefits, arguing that they're a disincentive to return to the labor force. Study after study has proven this is not the case. Instead, more seismic forces are at work.

In April of this year, a staggering 4 million people quit their jobs, in a phenomenon that's come to be called "The Great Resignation," Vox reported.

It's not that people don't want to work, but rather it's that, after an earth-shattering 16 months that have seen hundreds of thousands of our family members, friends, and neighbors die at the hands of an implacable and indiscriminate foe, there's just a genuine question of whether grinding it out for 40 hours a week at a job with substandard pay, low benefits, and little work-home balance is really worth it. Increasingly, the answer is a resounding "No."

Hospitality and leisure workers, who staff restaurants, bars, and hotels, and who had to bear the brunt of pandemic-induced rage for low wages and little dignity, are leading that exodus. In April, the sector lost more than 740,000 people.

In the midst of the pandemic, workers across industries discovered something: When they weren't tethered to desks or jobs, there was time for something miraculous: Family and community, the hobby they'd been putting off learning, the time to retrain and search for new, and more fulfilling, work.

Admittedly, not everyone had this luxury, working parents had to scramble to find child care, or balance the demands of remote work against acting as their children's homeroom teacher.

The shift was particularly hard for low-income workers. Frontline workers didn't have the luxury of stepping back at all.

Even so, "We have changed. Work has changed. The way we think about time and space has changed," Harvard Business School professor Tsedal Neeley told NPR. Having been given time and space and flexibility by the pandemic, workers now crave and demand it, she told NPR.

And then, something else happened, because of unprecedented, direct payments from the federal government — as much as $3,200 each — the number of Americans in poverty began to fall, according to Vox, from 12.8 percent in 2018 to 8.5 percent. That's based on projections that researchers at Columbia University made in March.

Separate research by the Urban Institute, also cited by Vox, projected that 2021 poverty will be about 7 percent, nearly cutting the 2018 rate in half.

The Biden White House's child tax credit program, monthly payments of up to $300 per child to American families, is similarly expected to lift millions of children out of poverty. Republicans argue against such largess, saying it perpetuates the welfare state.

It is hard to deny the bottom line reality: When you give people money, they are less poor, happier, and more likely to inject that money back into the economy. In fact, economists expect economic growth of about 7 percent this year, and 4.9 percent, in 2022, fueled by the stimulus and vaccines, Reuters reported.

Good policy choices drive down poverty. And American workers, by now accustomed to the flexibility of the post-pandemic economy, and the regular flow of stimulus checks, are unlikely to want to backtrack on that.

But it can't end there. To help both employers and workers, Washington needs to step up and do a couple of things.

One of them is finally making the wealthiest Americans, who grew even richer during the pandemic, pay their fair share.

Earlier this week, new research by a coalition of Pennsylvania advocates showed that if a wealth tax proposed by Sen. Elizabeth Warren had been in effect in 2020, "the nation's billionaires alone would have paid $114 billion for that year—and would pay an estimated combined total of $1.4 trillion over 10 years."

That would pay for roughly half the $3.5 trillion budget resolution backed by the Biden administration that would dramatically remake the post-pandemic economy. Approving it would pay for child care and a host of other programs that would enable Americans to go back to work in a sustainable and healthy way.

We also need to stop tying health coverage and other benefits to employment. The United States stands nearly alone in tying health coverage and other key benefits to work.

The pandemic proved that everything we know about work is wrong. And there's no stepping back from it now.

MARSHALL COUNTY DEVOTIONAL PAGE

"But not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many. Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound. But where sin abounded, grace did much more abound" - Romans 5:15,20

In these verses the word "offence" sticks out like a sore thumb. It is definitely a sore spot because "offence" in this context is understood to be Adam's first sin, and the effects of it are passed down to every generation following. The world presents the false idea that if there is a God, then God and the devil are fighting each other and that mankind is neutral giving authority to one or the other. According to the Bible, that's not true. You see, God is the Almighty Ruler (Daniel 4:34,35; Revelation 11:17) and yes the devil is His adversary, but the devil is also God's servant whereby God directs the devil when it fulfills His purposes (Job 1:6-12; 2:1-7; Zech-ariah 3:1,2). As regards to mankind, humanity is not a neutral by-stander. The first sin committed by humanity was an "offence" against God, and as a result of this first crime all of humanity is born into the negative. Simply put, we are all born sinners (Romans 5:12).

However there is another word in these verses that shines like a radiant gem, and that is the word "grace." Grace is God's free gift to self-confessed undeserving sinners.

Super-abounding Grace!

This grace is backed by the cleansing power of the blood of God's own Son, Jesus Christ. The good news is that the blood of Christ shed on the cross cancels out all of the sinner's offences against God. Another thing that is so amazing about grace is that grace is not limited. In other words, the amount of grace given by God is not in proportion to the amount of sin we've committed. No, it is much better than that. Our scripture says, "where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." The meaning of "much more abound" has to do with super-abounding! Picture a dirty glass that needs to be cleaned. To clean it we would hold the glass under a water faucet. However, imagine holding that dirty glass under Niagara Falls to clean it. Wow! The powerful and continual force of that majestic waterfall would clean that dirty glass in an instant and keep on cleansing it. Dear soul, that is the picture here of where our dirty sin abounded, the waterfall of Christ's blood by grace did much more abound (super-abound). Yes, the sinner, by confession of sin and faith in the blood of Christ, becomes eternally clean because grace super-abounds. Friend, the good news is that God's grace is much more than the mess that we find ourselves in. Some may say, "God is going overboard," but super-abounding grace is an expression of His eternal love.

United Communications announces recipients of scholarships

United Communications, Middle Tennessee's leading provider of fiber and fixed wireless internet services, announced the 2021 recipients of the annual United Community Foundation scholarship.

Each scholar was selected after displaying remarkable academic achievement and community service.

Funded by the United Community Foundation, the scholarship program enables local youth to continue their education on the collegiate level. Each eligible recipient will receive $1,000 per year for up to four years to advance in their respective field of study.

For many years, United has awarded merit-based scholarships to children of employees. Now, United offers this scholarship to seniors graduating from high schools within the service area.

"Community is at the core of our mission" said William Bradford, president and CEO of United Communications. "We strive to enhance the quality of life of our employees, who we consider to be part of our extended family. Helping fund a college education for deserving high-school graduates is a great way to do that."

Marshall County students who were selected for the 2021 United Community Foundation scholarships are Anna Welch, Emma Evans, and Zoe Long.

Anna is a 2021 graduate of Forrest High School in Chapel Hill and will be entering the Radiology program at Columbia State Community College. She is the daughter of Tammy Welch, HR Assistant with United.

Emma is a 2021

graduate of Forrest High School in Chapel Hill and will be majoring in public health at the University of South Florida. Emma is the daughter of Missy and Paul Evans.

Zoe is studying Elementary Education at Columbia State Community College. She also participated in the United Communications Student Ambassador Program. Zoe is the daughter of William Long and Estelle Long and is a 2020 graduate from Forrest High School in Chapel Hill.

United Communications is a leading provider of internet, digital TV, and phone services to enterprise-class businesses and residential customers in Middle Tennessee. United is recognized as a top "Fastest Internet Service Provider" by BroadbandNow and operates approximately 1,200 route miles of fiber covering portions of Williamson, Rutherford, Marshall, Bedford, Franklin, and Davidson counties. United Communications is a subsidiary of Middle Tennessee Electric Membership Corporation.

Citizen of the week

Hinds named to Lee University Spring 2021 Dean's List

Lee University congratulates Hannah Hinds of Cornersville, TN, on earning Dean's List honors during the Spring 2021 semester.

Dean's List recognition is earned by full-time, on-campus students with a semester grade point average between 3.7 and 4.00.

Lee University is a private, comprehensive university located in Cleveland, Tennessee, in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains. Lee has emerged as a leader in higher education in the southeastern region. The university's reputation as a quality institution can be seen in the high caliber of faculty, students, and friends who are drawn to the campus.

Take salad season to the next level

(Family Features)

Warmer months typically call for lighter bites, and one of the first things that comes to mind for many is a fresh and flavorful salad. While a salad is a quick and easy way to up your veggie intake and get food on the table in next to no time, the same formula over and over again can make mealtimes feel mundane.

To take your salads to the next level, think of those greens as a blank slate for creativity and look beyond the bowl for elements that can help create new, satisfying meals. For example, Fresh Express Chopped Salad Kits are tasty and versatile salad mixtures with premium ingredients that can also be eaten as sides with your favorite protein or used as toppers for favorites like pizza and tostadas to help kick mealtime up a notch. The salads are thoroughly washed, rinsed and gently dried then sealed in keep-crisp bags for long-lasting freshness.

These easy Kickin' Chicken Tostadas are made using the Kickin' Bacon Ranch Chopped Kit, which includes garden fresh cabbage, green leaf lettuces, carrots, green onions, tortilla strips, uncured bacon bits and some heat from jalapeno ranch dressing. Just add the mixture to tostada shells topped with salsa verde chicken and avocado for a flavorful combination.

Or for a tasty twist on traditional favorites like pizza and burgers, try this Thousand Island Burger Pizza using the Bacon Thousand Island Chopped Kit - a combination of iceberg and green leaf lettuces, uncured bacon bits, Parmesan cheese crisps, honey butter cornbread crisps and creamy Thousand Island dressing - to bring sweet and savory flavors together with beef and cheese on top of a homemade pizza crust.

Thousand Island Burger Pizza

Prep time: 15 minutes
Total time: 25 minutes

Servings: 6
1 can (11 ounces) refrigerated thin pizza crust

12 ounces lean ground beef
1 cup pizza sauce
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese

1 package (9.4 ounces) Fresh Express Bacon Thousand Island Chopped Kit

1/3 cup dill pickle slices

Heat oven to 400 F.

Unroll dough and spread on 13-by-9-inch nonstick baking sheet. Bake 8 minutes; remove from oven.

In small skillet over medium-high heat, cook ground beef, stirring frequently, 8-10 minutes, or until no longer pink; drain. Spread sauce evenly on baked dough to within 1/2 inch of edge. Top with beef and cheese.

Bake 8-10 minutes, or until crust is golden brown. Top with lettuce, bacon and salad toppings from kit and pickle slices. Drizzle with Thousand Island dressing from kit. Cut into 12 (3-by-3-inch) pieces.

Kickin' Chicken Tostadas

Prep time: 30 minutes
Total time: 35 minutes

Servings: 6
1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts

1 jar (16 ounces) salsa verde, any heat level
2 packages (10.2 ounces each) Fresh Express Kickin' Bacon Ranch Chopped Kit

12 tostada shells
1 avocado, peeled, pitted and cut into 1/2-inch pieces

In large, covered skillet over medium heat, cook chicken in salsa verde 20 minutes, turning once, until internal temperature reaches 165 F. Remove chicken, reserving 1/2 cup salsa verde; shred with two forks. Toss with reserved salsa verde.

Place salad from kit in large bowl; toss with half the salad dressing from kit. Add toppings from kit; toss to combine.

Divide salad evenly among tostada shells. Top each salad with chicken and avocado;

DROUGHT ENDS

Cornersville knocks off Forrest for 1st time in 25 years

By Anthony S. Puca
Sports Writer

It was a packed house with an electric atmosphere at the Murrey E. Holton Memorial Field in Chapel Hill Friday night for the 61st meeting between Forrest and Cornersville in the Battle of the North and South.

Forrest owned a 48-10-2 record coming into the contest with the last Cornersville win coming in 1996, but the Bulldogs busted the 25-year losing streak with a bruising 16-6 win over the Rockets.

"It was a great win for us," Cornersville coach Gerard Randolph said. "It was a big rivalry game and you never know what you get out of these games, so we are very happy we came out with a 'W' tonight."

Cornersville out-rushed Forrest 157 yards to 104, also winning the time of possession by over a nine-minute margin and the two-time Class A state runner-up picked up 21 first downs, while the Frog Bottom defense held the Rockets to just five first downs in the contest and pitched a second half shutout.

"That's what we do, we try to run the ball and stay ahead of the chains and wear people down throughout the game," Randolph said. "Forrest didn't make it easy for us, they played great, but we found a way at the end to get some hard yards and put that second score up."

Forrest's only score came on a trick play as Brenton Burchell heaved a 65-yard option pass to Christian Hammond in the second quarter.

The trick play came one snap after the Bulldogs had taken an 8-0 lead on a Cason Warner 1-yard touchdown, followed by a two-point conversion run by Cornersville signal caller Cade White.

"That was unfortunate on the touchdown. Guys didn't read their keys and we had just come off a touchdown and we were on a high," Randolph said. "I told them we have to focus up and the great thing about it was we had short term memory and stopped that two-point conversion."

The Bulldogs' scoring drive was extended on a Warner fourth-down conversion run and a big gain by Ben Franklin that set up the Warner touchdown.

"That was the best feeling I've had in a long time, I think it boosted our emotion level a whole lot more because we knew this was going to be a dogfight coming in," Warner said. "They had their scheme and we had ours. It was a battle in the trenches up front and I can't thank my linemen enough for opening up those holes and giving me a push up front."

"They wasn't any long runs except the one at the beginning, but those small yards is what counts, getting those small yards and pounding the rock."

Cornersville took the 8-6 lead to the locker room at halftime, coming out in the second half and stopping a Rockets' drive at midfield when Rhett Woodard recovered a Forrest fumble.

"I'm super proud of them (defense), they stepped up," Randolph said. "We talked about it in the locker room, telling them to go take this game, and defensively we play well in the second half."

The Bulldogs grounded off almost five minutes of the third quarter clock before punting, but the Cornersville defense held again when they stopped the Rockets on a three-and-out.

The Bulldogs went to work on offense, driving to the Forrest 16-yard line where the Rockets' defense held on a thirddown play.

Cornersville's next drive was halted at the Chapel Hill 16-yard line where Eli Welch attempted a 33-yard field goal that came up short.

The Rockets escaped the trouble, but the good vibes did not last long as Woodard picked off Hunter Bennett on Forrest's first play after the missed field goal and like most turnovers, it was costly.

Junior Mason Calahan (8) led the Bulldogs' rushing attack with 71 yards on nine carries for a 7.9 average per carry versus the Rockets.

Forrest running back Brenton Burchell (9) gets ready to heave an option pass touchdown to Christian Hammond in the second quarter for the Rockets' only score of the game.

Christian Hammond (15) runs away from the Cornersville secondary for a second quarter touchdown.

Tigers open home slate with win over Shelbyville

By GARY JOHNSON
gjohnson@t-g.com

LEWISBURG —In the season opener against Columbia Central, the Marshall County Tigers saw starting quarterback Bryson Hammons go down with an apparent season-ending knee injury.

That injury prompted head coach Thomas Osteen to shuffle the roster and in the end, the Tigers were able to scratch together a 21-14 win in their home opener on Friday night against Shelbyville Central.

“Losing Bryson is a huge loss to this team. He’s had such a great high school career and he was going to have a big year this year,” Osteen said. “I think he would have been the best quarterback in our region no doubt and one of the best in the mid-state.”

Tiger backup quarterback Devonte Davis provided the spark on offense the Tigers needed, rushing for three touchdowns.

“Devonte Davis is just a football player, He contributes in all three phases of the game,” Osteen said. “He’s got some good tools to work with. He’s one of the best football players in the mid-state that not many people know about. I’m really glad he’s on our team.”

Marshall County scored first off a Davis three-yard run midway through the opening quarter. Wyatt Joyce connected on his first of three extra points for the 7-0 lead.

After a failed fourth and long by the Eagles, the Tigers took over on downs and Davis added a 26-yard TD. The kick after increased the lead to 14-0 with 4:48 left in the half.

Shelbyville Central followed with an impressive drive capped off by a three-yard touchdown run by senior Laquan Young in the closing seconds of the half. The run on the conversion attempt was no good leaving the halftime score 14-6.

The Eagles evened the score at 14-14 with 8:15 left to play when Kendall Trice hauled in a six-yard pass from Kade Cunningham. The duo teamed up for the two-point conversion as well.

“Our defense kept getting stops and finally we put together a really good drive and scored then got the two-point conversion to give us a chance,” Shelbyville coach Josh Puckett said.

That chance was short-lived as the Tigers followed with a winning drive highlighted by an 18-yard TD run by Davis.

“Give credit to Marshall County, they put together a great drive and banged one in on us,” Puckett said.

“We overcame some adversity and when we had to punch one in we did so just like we did last week,” Osteen said.

Davis rushed for 71

FMS ROCKETS AWARDED FORFEIT WIN AT WESTWOOD

Westwood coach Chad Dyer (left) and Forrest coach Tony Johnson address both squads last Thursday night in Manchester where the FMS Rockets were awarded a forfeit win over their namesakes due to a mix-up in obtaining officials.

Both Rockets’ squads break it down at Manchester last Thursday night. The FMS Rockets moved to 2-0 overall and in Duck River Valley Conference play while the defending champion Westwood Rockets dropped to 1-2 in conference play. Forrest travels to Fayetteville City on Thursday to take on the undefeated Tigers in a Covid make-up game with kickoff scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Tony Johnson’s Rocket squad has not played since they beat Eagleville 40-8 in the season opener on August 12.

pandemic-truncated Big Ten season.

“Decision-making at the quarterback position is a must,” Heupel said. “Guys who make a consistently bad decision are going to get you beat. You have to put the ball in the right players’ hands at the right time.”

Runner-up for the Heisman Trophy in 2000 as a player at Oklahoma, Heupel has designed a prolific offense that averaged 544 yards and 43 points over the last three years at Central Florida. The design is for an up-tempo game that hinges on quick decisions by the quarterback.

Milton was not available Monday. Earlier in preseason camp, he talked about how the new Tennessee offense complemented his skills.

“You don’t have to be a robot on the field,” Milton said. “This offense lets me be who I am. Get out on the field, react and have fun.”

Cedric Tillman, likely one of Milton’s top receivers, is looking forward to what they can become.

“I saw me and Joe’s chemistry develop after the first week of camp,” Tillman said Monday. “Joe has a strong arm. As we go through the season, we’ll both get better.”

26-yard line with just over 10 minutes left in the game and it did not take them long to cash in.

Woodard ran for 14 yards before Calahan ran twice more to the Rockets’ 7-yard line where Franklin got the edge and scored on an end-around to make it 14-6.

Warner busted into the end zone for two more points and the Bulldogs had a 16-6 lead with 7:36 remaining in the contest.

The Rockets tried to bounce back, driving all the way to Cornersville 7-yard line where a fourth-down run was stuffed by the Bulldogs defense and that was the end for the Rockets, who got the ball back one more time with just over two minutes to go in the game.

They went backwards and faced a fourth-and-43 that forced a punt and the Bulldogs went in to the victory formation to claim the 10-point win and move to 2-0 on the season.

yards on 13 carries while Demari Braden added 64 yards on 14 touches.

Young rushed for 107 yard on 20 carries while Cunningham collected 93 on 14 attempts.

“I don’t know how much I’d have paid somebody coming in to hold Shelbyville to 14 points,” Osteen said. It feels like Kade Cunningham has been there for 10 years and he’s such a great player. They have a lot of good players. I feel like they will win their region.”

Davis led the Tigers on the ground with 71 with the Hornets riding a short two-game winning streak over the Bulldogs.

“It will be two big rivalry games in a row for us,” Randolph said. “There are a lot of emotions, but those games make you better also, so that is how we are going to look at and go to Huntland and try to get a big region win.”

The Rockets (1-1) host Loretto (1-1) in the Region 5-AA opener for both squads with Forrest owning a 4-0 record over the Mustangs since 2017.

Titans hope trade boosts title chances

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Pro Football Writer

NASHVILLE — Wide receiver A.J. Brown campaigned on social media for the Titans to make Julio Jones his teammate. NFL rushing champ Derrick Henry and left tackle Taylor Lewan also made clear they wanted the seven-time Pro Bowl wide receiver in Tennessee.

Then the Titans did just that, becoming the latest NFL team to trade for a wide receiver hoping he provides the needed offensive boost to turn a good team into a champion. Brown is excited to have a Hall of Fame-caliber receiver on the other side.

“He’s going to demand a lot of attention,” Brown said.

Tennessee has made the play-offs three of the past four seasons and lost in the AFC championship game to Kansas City in January 2020. The Titans had one of the NFL’s best offenses last season, but couldn’t help Henry enough in the playoffs as they lost in the wild-card round.

That’s why the Titans traded a pair of draft picks to Atlanta trying to upgrade the receiver spot. Jones joins the AP NFL Offensive Player of the Year in Henry, a strong-armed quarterback in Ryan Tannehill and Brown who was voted to the Pro Bowl in 2020 in just his second season.

Jones also is very motivated after a nagging hamstring injury snapped a streak of six straight seasons with more than 1,300 yards receiving in 2020.

“It’s a great opportunity for me to just showcase my skills, my ability, what I do, what I bring to the game,” Jones said.

Now Tennessee can only hope adding the seven-time Pro Bowl wide receiver helps at least as much as adding Stefon Diggs a year ago helped the Buffalo Bills or the success of other NFL teams after such big moves over the years.

Diggin’ it

Buffalo wanted to give a big boost to quarterback Josh Allen even though GM Brandon Beane said before the trade he didn’t think the Bills were just one player away. That didn’t stop him from sending four draft picks to Minnesota for Diggs, a big-play receiver coming off his best season yet.

Statistically, it paid off. Diggs led the NFL with 127 catches for 1,535 yards, and the Bills reached the AFC championship game for the first time since 1994.

That’s where the run stopped with a loss in Kansas City — a game shy of the Super Bowl.

Getting Moss’d

Bill Belichick and the Patriots spent only a fourth-round draft pick to add Randy Moss from the Oakland Raiders in April 2007. Moss’ third NFL team, or maybe it was Tom Brady, proved a perfect fit as the receiver set a career high with 23 TD catches.

The move certainly helped as the Patriots reached the Super Bowl seeking perfection only to be denied by Eli Manning and the New York Giants. Moss played two more seasons without the Patriots getting back to a Super Bowl, and they traded him to Minnesota in 2010.

Two rings

Wide receiver Freddie Solomon was just part of what San Francisco got from Miami in a deal sending running back Delvin Williams to the Dolphins. The 49ers got the better end as Solomon wound up a key part of Bill Walsh’s West Coast offense, helping win not one, but two Super Bowls in 1982 and 1985.

So close

Minnesota already had lost three Super Bowls, the last in January 1975, when the Vikings made a deal with Buffalo for Ahmad Rashad. The cost? A fourth-round draft pick. The result? A fourth trip to the Super Bowl in Rashad’s first season with the Vikings.

But Rashad made only three catches for 53 yards in that game as Minnesota was routed by Oakland for another championship loss. The Vikings got back to the NFC championship game the next season only to lose to Dallas.

Miami-bound

Paul Warfield already had an NFL championship with the Cleveland Browns when they traded him to Miami for the No. 3 overall pick in the 1970 draft. That deal helped turn the Dolphins from losers to champions, though it took two years for Miami to reach its first Super Bowl.

The Dolphins lost that Super Bowl, the first of three straight championship berths. Warfield, a Hall of Fame wide receiver and member of the All-1970s team, helped Miami win the other two titles.

Payoff is coming

Arizona hasn’t made the play-offs — yet — after its stunning trade for a three-time All Pro wide receiver. The Cardinals certainly set young Kyler Murray up for much more success after the blockbuster trade in March 2020.

DeAndre Hopkins was the highlight of a deal costing Arizona only two draft picks, nothing higher than a second-rounder. Hopkins and Murray gave a tantalizing look at what they can do connecting on a “Hail Murray” touchdown pass to beat Buffalo last November when the receiver outjumped three defenders for the ball.

UGA has its man in JT Daniels

By PAUL NEWBERRY
AP Sports Writer

JT Daniels starred for a powerhouse team in high school.

He launched his college career at one of the most storied programs in the nation.

Yet none of that quite prepared this laid-back Californian for the passion that goes along with playing for the Georgia Bulldogs, for playing in the Southeastern Conference.

“Football is just another thing on the West Coast vs. football being THE thing here,” Daniels said. “I still remember the first time me and my family drove from the Atlanta airport to Athens and seeing all the Georgia Bulldog flags flying everywhere, to experience what it’s like for football to be such a main focal point. I’ve loved it ever since I got here.”

Now, in what very well could be his only full season as Georgia’s starting quarterback, the Bulldogs and their red-and-black faithful are optimistic that Daniels can lead them to an elusive national championship.

He gave them a tantalizing glimpse of what he can accomplish after moving to the top of the depth chart late in the pandemic-plagued 2020 season.

Daniels guided the Bulldogs to four straight victories, throwing for 401 yards and four touchdowns in his Georgia debut against Mississippi State and capping the season by rallying the team to a last-second triumph over Cincinnati in the Peach Bowl.

But none of those opponents was on the level of Georgia’s season opener Saturday, when the No. 5 Bulldogs take on the third-ranked Clemson Tigers in Charlotte.

If Daniels is hyped for the moment, it doesn’t show.

“I approach it the same way I do anybody else — it’s just another game of football,” he insisted. “It’s cool to have a game like this in Week 1. But if we beat Clemson by 100 and lose the rest of the season, we’re not going to make it to the SEC (championship). And if Clemson wins by 100, we can still win the SEC if everything else goes out way.”

It’s clear this is the sort of game that Daniels has long expected to play a leading role in, going back to his days at Mater Dei High School near Los Angeles.

The private school has produced a plethora of top athletes across a wide range of sports, so there was plenty of attention on Daniels after he threw for more than 12,000 yards — with an astonishing 152 touchdowns and just 14 interceptions — over his high school career.

Daniels was one of the nation’s top recruits — No. 1 on some lists — when he signed with Southern California ahead of the 2018 season. He quickly locked down the No. 1 job in preseason camp to become just the second true freshman quarterback to start for the Trojans in his first game.

To that point, everything was going according to plan. But Daniels looked a bit overwhelmed that first season and USC struggled to a 5-7 mark. He held on to the starting job the next season, only to sustain a season-ending knee injury in the opener.

When it became clear the Trojans were going in a different direction, Daniels decided to transfer to Georgia. The Bulldogs needed a replacement for three-year starter Jake Fromm, but the newcomer wasn’t fully recovered from his knee injury and started out working with the scout team in non-contact drills.

While Georgia struggled to settle on a starter — starting with redshirt freshman D’Wan Mathis, quickly switching to former non-scholarship backup Stetson Bennett, and then giving Mathis one last shot — Daniels stoically put in the work to persuade the Bulldogs that he was completely healthy.

“I was impressed with how he handled it,” said Georgia linebacker Nakobe Dean, who got in a lot of work against Daniels in practice. “Coming from where he came from and who he was, how he handled being on the scout team, how he attacked it every day, gave us all the confidence in the world in him.”

When Daniels finally earned the starting nod, Georgia’s hopes of win-

Vols hoping for six wins in '21

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

At long last, it's football time in Tennessee.

The Volunteer football program has surely undergone its share of changes over the past year, from the departure of former coach Jeremy Pruitt to NCAA sanctions that are on the way, and plenty of players who have either gone to the NFL or entered the transfer portal.

It's safe to say the 2021 squad will look quite different for new head coach Josh Heupel.

Heupel comes to Rocky Top after three seasons at UCF where he composed an impressive 28-8 overall record.

He's known for a high-octane spread offense that wants to turn each and every game into a track meet.

The quarterback Heupel marches out for this season is Michigan transfer Joe Milton.

Milton didn't get a ton of looks for the Wolverines a season ago, but did complete over 56 % of his passes, but had just four touchdowns against four interceptions.

One of Milton's biggest downfield threats will be Jalin Hyatt, who appeared in eight games a season ago and tallied 276 receiving yards and two touchdowns.

How will that look in 2021 for Tennessee fans?

Well, it may be a while before the fruits of what Heupel can offer. Here's a game-by-game breakdown of what 2021 holds in store for Volunteer fans:

Sept. 2 vs. Bowling Green

Tennessee gets a prime time opening game on Thursday night against Bowling Green. Quite simply, this should be a story of superior athletes against an out-matched opponent. Bowling Green enters 2021 after an 0-5 2020 campaign in which the Falcons scored all of 57 points.

This should be a good welcome to Rocky Top for the Heupel coaching staff and the new players on the field.

Prediction: 42-10 W

Sept. 11 vs. Pitt

The second game on the slate should be the first true test for the Tennessee offense. The Pitt Panthers are predicted to be in the mix of the ACC. Pitt returns a talented core of offensive players and could be a competitive game for the Vols early on. Tennessee will have to play keep away and rely on the run game, rather than trying to turn the game into a track meet. Vols will take a close victory in this one.

Sept. 18 vs. Tn Tech

In Week 3, Tennessee takes a step back again from power conference opposition and will face an out-matched Tennessee Tech squad in Knoxville. Much like the opener against Bowling Green, this should be a good opportunity to get the bulk of the roster on the field. The Vols should cruise to an easy win here.

Sept. 25 at. Florida

In late September, Tennessee begins the difficult task of navigating a brutal SEC slate. While Dan Mullen's bunch in Gainesville loses a huge amount of production from a year ago, Florida has plenty of talent waiting to step to the plate. Mullen is in Year 4 and has had plenty of time to get his recruiting classes to bear fruits. It's less of a rebuild for the Gators and more of a reload. With the player turnover at Tennessee, coupled with playing in the Swamp, Florida should knock off the Vols for the first loss of the season.

Prediction 38-17 L

Oct. 2 at. Mizzou

After falling to Florida in the SEC opener, Tennessee will once again be on the road and face Mizzou in Columbia. While playing at Mizzou doesn't necessarily carry the weight of playing in the toughest SEC venues, it's still a road game in the SEC and won't be an easy task. Quarterback Connor Bazalak returns to the Tigers in 2021 as a 67% passer from a year ago. While Tennessee has the ability to keep this one close, the home team will squeak out a win following a late score.

Prediction: 28-27 L

Oct. 9 vs. SC

October 9 should be circled by Heupel as a "must-win" for Tennessee. Wins aren't easy in the SEC and the ones you're supposed to win are ones you have to take care of business in.

South Carolina will hang its hat on Zeb Nolan, a quarterback who has made the rounds, including stops at Iowa State and South Dakota State. But it will be another quarterback, Joe Milton, who has a breakthrough game and makes the plays in the clutch.

Prediction: 35-17 W

Oct. 16 vs. Ole Miss

Lane Kiffin gave Alabama all it wanted and then some a year ago. It's no secret the former Volunteer head coach will receive a less-than-welcoming return to Rocky Top in October, but he will most likely get the last laugh.

Several preseason polls have Ole' Miss predicted as an SEC West dark horse to unseat Alabama as the king of the SEC.

The Rebels have an absolute gunslinger at quarterback in Matt Corral, who threw for 3,337 yards and 29 touchdowns a season ago. Ole' Miss simply has too much firepower for Tennessee to match this season. While the Vols should be able to make some plays, the Rebs will have fewer empty possessions and come away with the win.

Oct. 23 at. Alabama

Tennessee has not beaten Alabama since 2006. During that stretch, Alabama has established itself as the best college football program in America. While the Tide loses a ton of production on both sides of the ball, Alabama isn't a program that rebuilds, but rather reloads. The 2021 season won't be any different as Alabama reloads for another national title run. While there may be a few bumps along the way, the Tide should get a comfortable win against the Vols in Tuscaloosa.

Nov. 6 at Kentucky

Another game that carries a huge amount of intrigue is the November 6 meeting against Kentucky. Historically, Tennessee has dominated the series, but the Wildcats have claimed a pair of wins in the last four seasons, with the Vols dropping a 34-7 decision last season. While the margin will be decidedly closer, Tennessee will drop another heartbreaker on the road and fall to 4-5 on the season.

Prediction: 24-21 L

Nov. 13 vs. Georgia

November 13 brings about another border war against another national title contender in Georgia. Several preseason polls have Kirby Smart's squad to not only make a run at the SEC championship, but a national title as well.

J.T. Daniels played in just four games last season for Georgia, but threw for over 1,200 yards and had 10 TDs against just two interceptions. This will be another tough week for the Vols.

Prediction: 48-24 L

Nov. 20 vs. S. Alabama

After pressing through the meat of the schedule, Tennessee will sit positioned to possibly chase after six wins with two winnable games to end the regular season.

The November 20 meeting against South Alabama is another chance for the Vols to get out to an early lead and utilize the entirety of the roster. Look for the Vols to cruise past another team that just doesn't have the athleticism Tennessee does.

Nov. 27 vs. Vandy

Finally, the in-state rivalry renewed between two programs looking to begin a new chapter in their program's history. Tennessee comfortably defeated Vanderbilt a season ago and in a team that is looking at a complete overhaul, the Commodores are nowhere nearly as capable in terms of on-field production. Clark Lea will look for a statement to finish his first year as the Vandy head coach, but it won't come against the Volunteers. Tennessee beats Vanderbilt to get its sixth win of the season.

Prediction: 38-17 W

ANALYSIS: While the era of COVID can ultimately derail any team at any point, if everything plays out and the Volunteers can stay away from the injury bug, there's the possibility of chasing six wins in Josh Heupel's debut season for the Vols, which can springboard the program moving forward past the NCAA violations incurred by the former coaching staff. That said, the Vols will take their lumps in 2021, but if the ball bounces their way in the close games, Tennessee could find itself overachieving and finish in the middle of the SEC East.

Newton to Nashville? Former MVP has intrigue for Titans

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

On Tuesday, the NFL had its annual judgement day in which teams had to cut to the 53-man mandate roster and among the roster purges was former NFL MVP Cam Newton as he was cut from the New England Patriots.

Newton, who was drafted by the Carolina Panthers in 2010, led the Panthers to the Super Bowl during the 2015 season and earned MVP honors in the process.

But since then, Newton has been plagued with injuries that led to a pair of shoulder surgeries and a foot injury that ultimately led to his departure from Carolina.

Last season, Newton was signed by the Patriots to a league minimum deal, but a less-than-stellar outing prompted the New England front office to draft a quarterback in 2021.

On Tuesday, it was announced former Alabama quarterback Mac Jones would get the nod and start as QB1 in New England — and that Newton was out of a job.

So where does the 2015 MVP end up?

There's plenty of reasons why a landing spot in Nashville makes sense.

Why it makes sense

There's zero question that Ryan Tannehill is the leader of the Titans. His resurrected career is nothing short of a phoenix tale that has the Titans poised for a super bowl run, but depth can be a scary thing in the era of COVID.

As the Titans found out last week with several key players, including Tannehill and head coach Mike Vrabel, being quarantined and forced to sit for the preseason finale.

Since Marcus Mariota's departure, QB2 has been a bit of a revolving door for the Titans and truly, the 2021 roster battle was no different.

Logan Woodside and Matt Barkley were the only two quarterbacks on the roster to make an appearance in the preseason finale against Chicago.

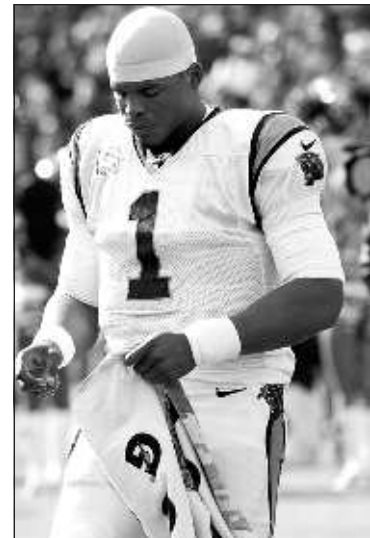

Barkley threw for 126 yards, but completed just 7-of-15 passes with an interception. Woodside looked more polished, perhaps to his familiarity with the playbook, completing 12-of-17 passes for 100 yards, with a touchdown and an interception.

The question becomes, can Newton deliver something either Barkley or Woodside can't? And the answer is yes.

Newton's game is incredibly diverse, when healthy. He can deliver the ball downfield, but can also tuck and run the ball.

Newton's sheer athleticism is what he hung his hat on for all the seasons in Carolina.

Newton completed 66% of his passes a season ago for more than 2,600 yards, but had just eight touchdowns against 10 interceptions. Where he stands out from most backups is his ability to rush the ball. For New England last season, he ran the ball 137 times for 592 yards and had 12 touchdowns.

Cam Newton, who won the 2015 NFL MVP with the Carolina Panthers, was released by the New England Patriots on Tuesday.

This stat alone makes defense play honest and quite frankly, opens the playbook.

He's been known to run the ball perhaps a little more than he should, but imagine a backfield in which Derrick Henry lines up and you have Cam Newton snapping the ball. If Cam is healthy, that's a dangerous combination, should Tannehill be sidelined for whatever reason.

Another big addition is the intangibles. Cam is a proven leader and has a magnetic personality. He could be a great locker room presence and give this team more personality than it perhaps already has. Newton is a vocal guy who isn't afraid to speak up. If healthy, Cam Newton is a more-than-adequate backup and certainly would be ahead of a Logan Woodside or Matt Barkley should Tannehill be sidelined.

Why it doesn't make sense

Cam Newton won the NFL MVP during the 2015 season. He truly hasn't been the same since.

He's had two shoulder surgeries and suffered a Lisfranc injury in 2019 that ultimately ended his time in Carolina, following the departure of then-coach Ron Rivera.

Newton posted his most accurate passing season in 2018, completing nearly 68% of his passes for just short of 4,000 yards. But injury struck and he finished his season on the sideline.

In 2019, when he suffered his Lisfranc injury, his ability to run the ball became somewhat diminished. He appeared in just two games. Since then, it's been a mixed bag of results.

Surely the potential of a career resurrection is there, but we're talking about a backup role for the former MVP, not a primetime starting role.

The issue of injury seems to be the biggest negative for why Newton shouldn't be considered. Currently, Woodside and Barkley are both healthy.

Newton didn't look to have all the pieces together in his final preseason game with New England, completing just 2 of 5 passes for 10 yards.

Two of his incomplete passes skipped the turf several yards in front of his intended target, bringing speculation about the quality of his throwing arm.

What's the point in bringing a quarterback if he can't throw?

What's next for Newton?

What's next for Newton is anyone's guess, but the wildcard in the whole conversation is COVID. Should a star quarterback test positive, it could leave several teams in a quandary without a viable backup. Perhaps Newton's best bet is to stand pat and wait until teams come calling. With the current spread of the coronavirus, it's just a matter of time before someone needs him, even in a diminished capacity from his 2015 peak.

But for the Titans, they could be ahead of the curve if they jump on his availability now.

UGA

ning the SEC had faded with losses to Alabama and Florida.

But his performance over those final four games — Daniels completed 67.2% of his throws for 1,231 yards, with 10 touchdowns and two interceptions — has given the Bulldogs a huge boost of confidence heading into a season that has again raised hopes of claiming their first national title since 1980.

"Everyone on this team is on his back," Dean said. "We're counting on him to lead this team."

The California kid has quickly become one of the most popular players in the Bulldog Nation.

Daniels even landed an NIL sponsorship from Zaxby's, which operates a popular chain of fast-food chicken restaurants across the South.

But Daniels isn't thinking about chicken.

He's focused on the Titans.

"I've been consistent with this," Daniels said. "If a deal makes sense and it's not a time factor, it's not going to take attention away from anything that matters, then we do it."

After last year's dizzying routine of quarterback musical chairs, Georgia coach Kirby Smart is thrilled to have the most critical position on the field locked down.

Especially when the opener is against a team that has won a pair of national titles in the last five years. "I am extremely confident in his preparation and his focus; that is not a concern for me," Smart said. "The distractions of the outside world really aren't distractions for JT. He has a single-minded focus all the time on being his best and being the best leader he can."

Reduce your risk of falling by taking these simple steps

(StatePoint) A fall can result in unwanted outcomes, including injury, loss of independence, and a decreased ability to do the things that are most important to you or a loved one.

Each year, 3 million older adults are treated in emergency departments for fall injuries. Even falls that don't lead to injury can provoke a fear of falling that causes you to avoid the activities that keep you healthy, strong, and ultimately less likely to fall. While falls are dangerous, the good news is that experts say they're largely preventable.

"While many factors can contribute to our chances of falling as we get older, falling is not a normal part of aging," says physical therapist and American Physical Therapy Association spokesperson Greg Hartley, PT, DPT. "Working with a physical therapist can empower you or a loved one to regain balance and strength."

The American Physical Therapy Association offers the following tips to help you reduce your risk of falling:

1. Get moving. For older adults, physical activity reduces the risk of falling and fall-related injuries. Stay active to maintain the strength, flexibility, coordination, and balance needed to prevent falls. From swimming to yoga to walking, take part in a variety of physical activities that you enjoy. Talk to your physical therapist to determine which activities are safe for you.

2. Know your risks. A physical therapist can help you assess your risk factors and develop a plan to address them so you can remain independent. Tell your doctor or physical therapist if you have any dizziness, loss of balance, or trouble seeing. Be sure to tell them whether you fell in the last year.

3. Check your medications. Many drugs can cause dizziness, loss of balance, blurry vision, and more. If you have any of these symptoms, review your medications with your pharmacist or doctor.

4. Assess your home's safety. Assess your home to fix or remove anything that could cause trips or slips, such as throw rugs, clutter, poor lighting, and wobbly furniture or handrails.

It's also a good idea to install a secure grab bar in the shower and next to the toilet for sturdy support on slippery floors. If you can't make these safety improvements yourself, ask a friend or family member to help. Check with your doctor, physical therapist, or area agency on aging for local programs that offer home safety assessments.

5. Work with a physical therapist. Physical therapy (with exercise) focused on balance, stability, and the ability to perform common tasks is recommended and can prevent falls, according to the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force. Physical therapists are able to help you avoid a fall in the first place, as they are movement experts who can work with you to assess your fall risk factors and develop a plan to address them. They will advise you on making your home safer, educate you about medical risk factors linked to falls, and design a safe balance training program specific to you.

To learn more about the hands-on care, patient education, and prescribed movement that a physical therapist can provide, visit ChoosePT.com, where you can contact a physical therapist directly for an evaluation. To find a physical therapist in your area, visit ChoosePT.com/FindaPT.

With the right resources and support, you can reduce your risk of a fall and maintain your quality of life.

Creative ways to connect kids to science and encourage STEM learning

(StatePoint) 3M Sponsored Content. The pandemic has deeply impacted learning experiences for students across America. As educators and students return to school this year, they will continue to navigate these challenges as they look for ways to redefine learning. The pandemic also put a stark spotlight on inequities in the sciences and science education, especially the lack of equal access. The good thing is that this has sparked an increased awareness and a desire for change to begin addressing these issues.

With new norms of educational learning still being defined, we have a real opportunity to find creative and engaging ways to expose young and diverse thinkers to the vast world of science around them. One of the ways to do this is by connecting science to the things kids are already passionate about – sports, music, dance, art, gaming, or anything else they may be interested in.

America's favorite rapping teacher, Dwayne Reed, shares creative ways educators and parents can help kids find a "way-in" to science that will ignite their passion for STEM learning and make science more approachable:

1. Extend STEM Beyond the Classroom. Show kids how to apply the scientific method in their day-to-day lives and activities. As individuals, we make observations daily and ask questions – or hypothesize – based on what we observe. Parents and educators can foster an inquisitive mindset by challenging kids to explore the world around them. This creates fun and relatable learning experiences inside and outside the classroom.

2. Connect Personal Passions to STEM Learning. When students lack confidence in a particular subject, it can feel intimidating. As a result, they can often have a hard time seeing themselves as successful in that subject or can lose interest altogether. As teachers and educators, we want to encourage our kids and show them they can be anything they want. One of the ways to do this is by connecting what they already love to something they are not as confident in. STEM is a perfect example of this. Show students how science can be applied to their other interests, including sports, music, dance, gaming, art, or anything else they may be passionate about. By helping connect the dots for students, they can turn their passions into something that can benefit the world around them.

3. Keep A Pulse on New Educational Resources. Stay updated on new resources and information that could positively impact your students. The great thing about this is that teachers and parents can both get involved. A few ways you can stay up to date are reading blogs, educational articles, and looking for resources on social media. One learning resource to check out is 3M's Science at Home video series. This online library of DIY science experiments uses common household items to help make STEM learning fun and accessible while showing kids they can connect science to just about anything. Teachers will also note that the step-by-step resources include national science teaching standards for easy lesson planning.

4. Challenge Kids to Try Something New. Challenge kids to put themselves into roles they may not naturally see themselves in. Provide encouragement, resources, and confidence to get them to the next level. With a bit of creativity, you can open their eyes to a whole world of opportunities they may not be thinking about. Make STEM learning feel relatable and fun – even if it's new for them. It's all about reframing the way students look at the world and giving them assurance and an opportunity to explore what's around them.

The importance of maintaining a stable and engaging learning experience for students remains a priority. And with just a few creative learning techniques and models, educators and parents can ensure their students are connected, actively learning, and feeling encouraged both in and out of the classroom.

HOW TO PLAY: Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the number 1 through 9 without repetition.
