Lewisburg names new attorney

Lewisburg said farewell to some familiar faces at Tuesday's monthly council meeting and welcomed a new, but still familiar, face to city service.

City Attorney Steve Broadway was honored for his service to the city after announcing his intent to retire, effective February 28.

Broadway has served as the attorney for the Lewisburg and the Industrial Development Board since 2010.

Lewisburg Mayor Jim Bingham expressed "deep gratitude and appreciation"

"It's been a pleasure and honor, I've enjoyed most of it."

-Steve Broadway

for Broadway's "courage, fortitude, and sound legal advice" over the years.

"It's been a pleasure and honor," said Broadway, adding humorously, "I've enjoyed most of it."

Replacing Broadway as the city's legal advisor is no stranger to the council chamber, Lewisburg attorney Quinn Brandon Stewart, who was selected from several applicants by the council.

Stewart was the first woman elected to the city council, serving from 2007 to 2011.

Bingham said that he looked forward to working with Stewart and that the city was fortunate that she accepted the appointment.

Also given an official send off was former city manager and public works director Buck Beard, who retired at the end of January.

"He brought Lewisburg out of the ashes," said Bingham, of Beard's term as city manager, during which the city was able to rebuild its cash reserves.

"We're losing some good people and we wish y'all the very best," said Bingham.

In other business, the council approved acceptance of a $23,000 grant from Firehouse Subs to purchase equipment for the fire department.

Fire Chief Larry Williams

noted at the work session last week that these grants were very competitive

Councilmen approved on final reading resolutions adding a requirement for fire sprinklers to townhouse developments in the city and standardizing zoning regulations along the city's main road corridors.

Sprinklers had been omitted from the last adoption of the building code, but with hundreds of town home units, defined as three or more units sharing common walls, proposed for development in the city, the language was added back to city code requirements.

Delk recognized

David D. Delk is being recognized for his significant and extraordinary work for the Middle Tennessee Citadel Club, The Citadel, The Citadel Alumni Association and his community. His work extends to "A Soldier's Child" organization whose mission is to serve the children of military personnel who lost their lives on active duty defending our country. Delk elevated the Middle Tennessee alumni club and the events it holds. His contributions span many years and reflect positively on The Citadel and its core values. In addition to his community work and role as club president, Delk is an exemplary brand ambassador for The Citadel, a mentor to current cadets and actively engaged Citadel Alumni Recruiter. In addition, Delk provided financial support for cadets' life memberships and rings. He is a humble, quiet leader who in deed and action reflects the core values of The Citadel in his private and professional life.

Cornersville closing on new admin

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

Cornersville is closer to hiring a new town administrator after Thursday night's monthly meeting.

Aldermen were very complimentary of the pool of applicants screened for them by the Municipal Technical Advisory Service, an advisory arm of the University of Tennessee.

One candidate apparently stood out from the rest, as the board of aldermen voted to interview a single applicant for the position, later this month.

The candidate would replace Scotty Brock, who retired for the position in November.

Taylor Brandon, who preceded Brock in the position, has been serving as an interim administrator during the hiring process.

Cornersville fills the positions of recorder, treasurer, and administrator with a single individual since Brock assumed the role.

Aldermen will have a tougher time coming to decisions on the other main issue discussed at the meeting, a proposal to add street connections due to development on East Hill.

The proposal from the town's engineers is to consider a connection to April Lane from either Polk Street or East Hill Avenue for better access and road widening as needed.

Some aldermen expressed reticence to make such a change for current residents.

"I don't see the point in messing up something," said Alderman Sherry McClintock.

Public Works Director Scott Stiles pointed out limited access into these neighborhoods for emergency vehicles, especially when flooding forced road closures.

A new through road option would increase access in the face of so many dead end roads in town.

The cost of a connection from either street would be roughly the same, roughly $100,000.

"We are getting to the point of having to do one of these projects every year," said Brandon.

Brandon said that he would gather more information from the engineers on the proposal to present to the board in the future.

Events Committee chair Trina Rios briefed the board on the Christmas festivities in town.

An estimated 3,000 people attended.

The next event currently being planned is an Easter egg hunt and Rios said that the Lions Club had asked the committee to take on the annual Halloween in the Park event as well.

"We really appreciate your hard work," said Alderman Mary Johnson, to Rios and her committee. "You did the town well."

Black farmers and their struggle to continue a family legacy

By DeShawn Mason Ewing and Annie Esther Mason
Special to the Tribune

Farming benefits everyone, but everyone is not cut out for farm life. Farm days begin early, involve hard physical labor and there are no days off. Successful farming requires planning, passion and flexibility. Many farmers find themselves “land rich but cash poor”. However, most farmers say they would rather farm than do anything else.

This article will focus specifically on the historical hardships of African American farm families. Today, less than 1.4 percent of all American farms have Black ownership. The 2017 Census of Agriculture reported the average age of a Black farmer in Tennessee is 62.2 years. Most Black farmers grew up participating in farm life and hope to continue their family’s legacy.

In 1900, African Americans owned or partly owned over 12 million acres of usable farmland. In 1910, Black farming was thriving in the state of Tennessee. In 1920, the number of Black farmers peaked at nearly 1 million, 14 percent of all American farms.

Between 1929 and 1965, Black farmers had to jump the hurdles of Jim Crow laws. These statutes imposed racial discrimination and segregation against Black people, restricted their freedom and compelled them to work for lower wages. In 1929, the stock market crashed and caused a worldwide economic downturn, called the Great Depression. These things hindered the Black farmer’s ability to earn enough money or pay bills. Without income, many families lost their farms to foreclosure. Other jobs were scarce or not available. Numerous Black farm families opted to sell their land for less than it’s value and head north seeking a better life. Others endured the hardships and “found a way” to hold on to their property.

Between 1960 and 1980, Black farmers continued to face obstacles of discrimination and joined in the Civil Rights movement. Black sharecroppers were evicted by white landowners for registering to vote. In 1962, The Federal Justice Department ruled these evictions unlawful. White businesses frequently denied Black landowners goods and services for exercising their right to vote. In 1965, passage of the Voting Rights Act outlawed these discriminatory voting practices. From 1981 to 1996, thousands of the Black farmer’s fell victim to federal assistance programs. Unfortunately, the United States Department of Agriculture(USDA) implemented discriminatory policies that caused thousands of Black farmers to suffer severe financial losses and denial of available land purchases. In 1999, Black farmers filed and won a class action lawsuit filed against the USDA. This historical case, Pigford v. Glickman (commonly referred to as the Pigford case) was the largest civil rights settlement in American history. In December 2010, Congress appropriated money for settlement for the second part of this case (called Pigford II).

Sadly, another historical roadblock for Black farm families are land disputes. Decades of discrimination and deception have caused many Black Americans to distrust the legal system. Thus, 50 to 75 percent of Black Americans die without leaving a will. Unresolved land ownership can be stressful, costly and create the potential for family conflict. This factor can also make obtaining a clear title needed for federal assistance or bank loan eligibility very difficult.

Despite years of struggles, many Black farm families have managed to keep their farms afloat, maintain ownership of their land and continue their family’s legacy. Marshall County has two large black-owned independent farms, Green Graze Farms in Belfast (owned by the Gentry Family) and Lazy W Farm in Petersburg (owned by the Whitaker Family).

The Whitaker family farm, Lazy W Farm, is owned by John L. Whitaker. Mr. Whitaker purchased his property in 1960. This farm produces wheat, soybeans, cattle and sells hay. Mr. Whitaker takes pride in his ability to maintain land ownership and be able to pass it down to the next generation.

The Gentry family has had ownership of their farmland, Green Graze Farm, for five generations. Michael Gentry said that his grandfather, Howard Gentry, and early ancestors cut cedar trees on the land and sold the lumber to the pencil factory in Shelbyville for income. In 1955, his father, Joe Louis Gentry, took over the farm’s operation and named it Green Graze Dairy Farm. Mr. Gentry raised cattle and hogs, a variety of crops, sold hay and worked at the Belfast Feed Mill. The Green Graze Dairy Farm was very successful during its many years of operation. The Gentry family had the first black-owned milk barn in Marshall County that produced Grade A milk. In order for a dairy farmer to be classified as a Grade A producer, the producer’s facilities and milk must meet stringent health and sanitation requirements. Mr. Gentry kept an average of 140 milk cows and milkings occurred twice a day. Michael said: “Daddy never missed a milking for 19 years.” The one day that Mr. Gentry was unable to get the late milking done, Michael and his brother Bobby took on the job and got it done. Michael and Bobby continued to help their father from that day on.

Michael Gentry chose to make farming his full-time profession as a young man. He says that he is grateful to have had the opportunity to work with his father for so many years. In 2003, Michael Gentry took over the farm’s operation and renamed it Green Graze Farms. The Gentry family’s beautiful 250 acres of farmland are now leased out to grow a variety of crops and sell hay. Michael now oversees the land to make sure it is taken care of. Michael Gentry and Bobby Gentry both continue to reside on the property purchased by their ancestors.

Throughout his 50 plus years of farming, Michael has established special friendships and bonds with other farmers in the community that he holds very dear. Michael said: “Farm life is what I know and what I love.: Michael is very proud to carry on his family’s legacy.

Inflationary warnings

By Adam Johnson
Publisher, Marshall County Tribune

Inflation has hit its fastest pace in 40 years, and its future path, as always, is unpredictable. The Consumer Price Index (CPI) clocked in at 7% in December. The CPI is flawed, though an in-depth discussion of those flaws is a topic for another time or place. But to take the most available and relatable component as an example, home price increases are not included in the CPI; instead, a survey of what homeowners think they could rent their homes for (were they not living in them) is the driver of the Housing component of the CPI. This phantom figure is known as owners’ equivalent rent, and it accounts for a full 24% of the total CPI. Or, to take another example, in the 20 years after my first year at the University of Tennessee (1998 – 1999), tuition increased at an annual rate of 8.1% -- this inflation shows up nowhere in the CPI.

...But back to the December headline inflation number of 7%. The causes of the recent inflation are subject to debate, and partisans always will find a way to blame the other side: Republicans will blame Joe Biden for high gas prices on account of his nixing the Keystone XL pipeline; Democrats will blame Donald Trump’s trade war with China for higher consumer goods prices -- a recent essay in Foreign Affairs on the overuse and ineffectiveness of sanctions cited a Moody’s study showing that 93% of the added costs of tariffs that resulted from the trade war with China were paid for by US importers and passed on to US consumers in the form of higher prices. This tit-for-tat blame game misses the bigger picture: there are two primary factors at work here, one more temporary than the other.

First, the more temporary of the two factors is the intersection of Covid-related supply chain constraints and free-money-related increased demand. The second, less temporary of the two factors is the ongoing zero-interest-rate policy (ZIRP) engineered jointly by the by the Federal Reserve and the US Treasury Department. In short, the Federal Reserve buys Treasurys (and other assets) in whatever quantities are required to suppress interest rates and keep asset prices inflated. Inflated asset prices, in turn, keep voters happy and support the value of Treasurys to finance deficit spending. (Note: freespending, financially speculating voters who finance asset purchases with debt no doubt have been happier for many years than “responsible” voters who earn next to nothing on their savings and do not spend beyond their means.)

Because they have been the architects of the longer-term inflation-inducing ZIRP and Quantitative Easing (QE) and other policies that have been in effect in some form or fashion since 2008, through Democratic and Republican administrations and congresses alike, the technocrats who begat ZIRP and QE prefer to focus on the exogenous, Covid-related supply and demand imbalances. In two gems that may come back to haunt her, Treasury Secretary (and former Federal Reserve Chairman) Janet Yellen spoke once in May and again in June on what she perceived to be fleeting inflation, noting in May, “My judgment right now is that the recent inflation that we have seen will be temporary. It’s not something that’s endemic.” Then, in June, “We have in recent months seen some inflation... But I personally believe that this represents transitory factors.” Such statements should ring alarm bells for the seasoned observer of political poppycock, and while I concede the jury is still out on Yellen’s proclamations, I believe she will come to regret having spoken these words.

While the most glaring December CPI reading is for used cars and trucks, the prices for which increased 37% in a year, this particular inflationary burst probably can be attributed to the temporary factor politicians and technocrats would prefer to focus on, but the more insidious and dominant factor at work in any pent-up inflation is the artificially low interest rate regime that pleases politicians. Like the guy who overindulges at the dinner table every night, things seem to be going well and he’s happy almost all the way ‘til the end, when, after a few warning signals, he dies “suddenly” of a heart attack. Inflation strikes in a similar way: the US economy has been eating at a monetary and fiscal all-you-can-eat buffet ever since the Great Recession. The 7% CPI reading in December may be a warning signal, a high cholesterol, blood pressure, or triglycerides reading for the US economy.

I have far more faith in our own technocrats and even our own politicians than in the relatives and sycophants surrounding Turkey’s president Erdogan who are executing his crackpot economic fantasies, but let’s look at a current example of what can go awry when interest rates are kept artificially suppressed for political purposes. The Turkish lira has been on a long slide against the US dollar, but just to take the point in time on July 9, 2018 when President Erdogan installed his son-in-law (who has since resigned) as Minister of Finance and Treasury, the lira has collapsed by 2/3 against the dollar. Erdogan incorrectly believes that high interest rates cause inflation, so he has ordered them to be kept artificially low. Erdogan’s reward for his trailblazing economic thought has been inflation in 2021 of 36%. Our own economists in the US do not believe in Erdogan’s nonsense interest rate theory, but the technocrats in the Federal Reserve and the political appointees in the US Treasury are effectively implementing the same inflation-inducing low-interest-rate policies, just for different reasons.

Either the recent CPI readings presage a prolonged period of inflation brought about by artificially low interest rates, or they do not, but it is worth considering that the QE and ZIRP chickens are coming home to roost, and when you get a lot of chickens together, they leave a lot of poop that will need to be cleaned up.

The promise of America

By Lee H. Hamilton

Decades ago, it was easy to talk about “the promise of America,” as historians and boosters did regularly, and have most people understand what you meant. These days, I worry they’d look at you as if you’d taken leave of your senses.

Even before the pandemic threw us back on our heels, many people here and abroad increasingly viewed our country and its system of representative government as outdated, flawed, and in decline. They question whether it deserves to be perpetuated or to serve as a beacon for others.

And yet, while there’s room to be chastened and reflective about this shift, what it really means, I think, is that as Americans we have our work cut out for us. Because our system—which really did produce a nation that served as a beacon and a model for others—was put in our care by the people who created it. If this country is to flourish and fulfill its promise, it’s we the people who will have to do it.

So what does “the promise of America” actually mean? In its details the answer differs from person to person, but looked at broadly it’s really two promises, both of which were revolutionary at the beginning and are still compelling almost two and a half centuries later: to give each American the opportunity to reach his or her potential, and to give us the ability to strive together to solve our problems.

In many ways, the history of our country consists of trying to make good on those promises—expanding our conception of the people to whom they apply, working out what self-governance actually means, broadening our definitions of who can participate in American democracy. We can never think of that work as done, or that the promises have been kept. Ben Franklin’s famous reply to Elizabeth Willing Powel when she asked what the Constitutional Convention had created—“A republic, if you can keep it”—sums up the eternal challenge.

This is because the country’s founders entrusted Americans with a form of government that imposes the burden of safeguarding it not just for ourselves, but as a symbol of hope elsewhere—the notion that economic opportunity and political engagement are part and parcel of citizenship. But beyond that, they believed fully that this burden could only be carried by a “virtuous” electorate.

By this, they did not just mean moral probity or honesty or self-discipline or a sense of responsibility, though all of those are important. They were also looking for a sense of civic self-sacrifice—a capacity to set aside self-interest and act for the benefit of the broader community. They thought it crucial in political leaders—though they also recognized that no one could be perfect, and so developed a constitutional system of checks and balances aimed at restraining the power of any one person and, indeed, of the majority over the minority. And they thought that it was crucial in the ultimate source of political power, the electorate. As James Madison put it in 1788, “To suppose that any form of government will secure liberty or happiness without any virtue in the people, is a chimerical idea.” Or as historian Bernard Bailyn once wrote, “an informed, alert, intelligent, and uncorrupted electorate” is vital to safeguarding the American republic.

The same, in fact, might be said of any American institution, public and private. The responsibility for fulfilling “the promise of America”—and of doing so by taking a view larger than pure self-interest—lies with politicians and voters, but also with businesses and unions and nonprofits and community organizations and all the efforts that bring us together.

We live in a time of great political turmoil, when the trends of the previous century—the expansion of voting rights, the extension of civil liberties, the broadening of the belief that all Americans are entitled to opportunity—are threatened with reversal. Whatever the course of these political battles, the founders’ challenge couldn’t be clearer: Whether this remains a nation of promise to all is up to us.

DEVOTIONAL PAGE

“And He (Jesus) said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.” - Mark 16:15,16

Many times we read these words from our Lord Jesus Christ and miss the great purpose of God. The great significance of Christ's commission to the Church is that the gospel is no longer limited to one nation called Israel, and one place called Jerusalem. Wherever there is a human being, the gospel is to be proclaimed regardless of skin color, social status, or culture. The Book of Acts is where we have the historic record of the early Church taking Christ's commission into all the world, and becoming successful. In Acts chapter 8, the deacon

Philip was moved by the Holy Spirit to go into a desert place to speak to one man. This man was greatly educated and he was given much authority because he had the high position of being the treasurer of Candace queen of the Ethiopians. Philip, a Greek, shared the gospel of Messiah Jesus, to this man who was an Ethiopian. From this one on one encounter, the treasurer of Candace queen of the Ethiopians brought the gospel to North Africa. This Greek and Ethiopian gospel encounter resulted into Christianity being well established in North Africa in the first few centuries after Christ.

According to the African Study Bible, the challenge of Islam and African tribal religions actually deepened the faith of the Christian believers in Africa. These other religious groups became militant against Christ's teaching. However, during the times of persecution there was a solid Christian foundation in North Africa that spread deeper into the heart of the continent. Amazingly, the courage of our African Christian brothers and sisters deepened their commitment to share the love and grace of God to an increasingly sympathetic African audience. The great opposition against the Christians turned to the salvation of many. In fact, much of our Christian theology is attributed to our African brethren. During the second and third century God raised up men of faith who were called “The Church Fathers.” Most were from Africa, such as Irenaeus, Tertullian of Carthage, Origen, and Augustine Bishop of Hippo. These men of God helped shape and form much of Christianity, as we know it today. We thank God for the Christian community's African roots that have shown unwavering courage in the face of tribulation, and how they sought spiritual wisdom by praying over God's word for good theological answers.

The Bible is very clear that God is glorified by the diversity of many peoples coming together under the unity of one Lord and one Christ! “And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation” (Revelation 5:9).

West 1215.00 feet to a corner; thence with Bobby Sands South boundary line South 82 deg. 26 min. 16 sec. East passing an iron rod at 350.76 feet and in all 362.86 feet to the beginning, containing 11.0 acres, more or less, by survey of W. A. Richardson, Jr., (RLS #689) 403 Oakwood Drive, Columbia, Tennessee 38401, August 28, 1992.

Being the same property conveyed to James R. Gillette and wife, Allison L. Gillette by deed of record in Deed Book 803, page 748, Register's Office of Marshall County, Tennessee.

WHEREAS, said Deed of Trust was made to secure the payment of a note therein set out and contained the power to sell in the case of default in the payment of said note and interest at maturity; and WHEREAS, the makers of said note have defaulted in the payment thereof, and the owner and holder of said note has declared the entire amount due and payable and has requested the undersigned to foreclose said Deed of Trust according to its terms in order to collect said note.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, the undersigned, W. ANDREW BOBO, SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE will, in accordance with the terms set out in the Deed of Trust above referred to, on February 25, 2022, at 11:00 A.M., at the door of the Marshall County Courthouse, offer for sale and sell the above-described real estate at public auction to the highest and best bidder for cash in bar of equity of redemption and free from homestead and dower, all in accordance with the provisions of said Deed of Trust and the laws of Tennessee controlling such sales, subject, however, to all outstanding real estate taxes; any applicable easements and restrictions; and prior liens or mortgages, if any Other interested parties: N/A Said property may be sold as a whole or by individual lots or tracts or groups of lots or tracts at the discretion of the Substitute Trustee.

The right is reserved to adjourn the day of the sale to another day and time certain without further publication and in accordance with law upon announcement of said adjournment on the day and time and place of sale set forth above. The failure of any high bidder to pay the purchase price and close the sale shall, at the option of the Substitute Trustee, be cause for rejection of the bid, and if the bid is rejected, the Substitute Trustee shall have the option of making the sale to the next highest bidder who is ready, willing, and able to comply with the terms thereof. The proceeds derived from the sale of the property will be applied as provided for in said Deed of Trust. Said Deed of Trust is made a part hereof as if copied verbatim herein.

This sale of the Property shall be subject to any and all taxes, easements, restrictions, building lines, and assessments (plus penalty and interest, if any), and any redemptive rights of any governmental agency, State or Federal (including redemptive rights of any taxing authority by reason of any tax liens), plus any and all other matters and encumbrances superior in right to the lien of the Deed of Trust, as well as any priority created by fixture filing, and any applicable City and/or County zoning ordinances as now affect or as may later affect the parcel. If the U. S. Department of the Treasury/Internal Revenue Service, the State of Tennessee Department of Revenue, or the State of Tennessee Department of Labor and Work Force Development are listed as interested parties in the advertisement, then the notice of this foreclosure is being given to them, and the sale will be subject to the applicable governmental right to redeem the property, all as required by 26 U.S.C. 7425 and T.C.A. 67-1-1433. If applicable, the notice requirements of T.C.A. 35-5-117 have been met.

The address of the property is known as 2095 Coyle Road, Lynnville, TN 38472, but such address is not part of the legal description of the property sold herein, and in the event of any discrepancy, the legal description herein shall control. This property is further identified as being Map 83, Parcel 12.00 on the records of the Tax Assessor of Marshall County, Tennessee.

THIS LAW FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

This 1st day of February, 2022.

4-H'ers throughout Marshall County Schools have been working hard to prepare, practice, and present their speeches during 4-H club meetings. The top speeches were invited to the Marshall County Public Speaking Contest held on January 20.

Did you know, many people are more afraid to speak in public than they are of death? Public speaking is a scary thing, but it is important for youth to learn how research, write, and present information. Public speaking provides many benefits, it builds confidence, improves critical thinking and communication skills, and prepares individuals for leadership roles.

Laura Burkhart served as a judge for the 5th grade competition. She told the contestants that "being able to speak in public is something that will benefit you for the rest of your life"

Each grade produced great speeches, and the judges had a difficult time deciding the placings. For the 4th grade competition, first place was awarded to Alivia Lohr (Westhills), second place to Bo Brewer (Westhills), and third place to Jax Thomason (Westhills). In the 5th Grade competition, first place was awarded to Maisy Stewart (Westhills), second place to Lena Deuermeyer, (Cornersville), and third place to Lillian Amonette (Westhills). In the 6th grade competition, first place was awarded to Tripp Robinson (Homeschool), second place to Matthew Brindle (Westhills), third place to Savannah Davidson (Westhills).

1st and 2nd place winners are invited to attend the sub-regional contest where they will compete against 4-H'ers from different counties in Middle Tennessee.

The public speaking contest is just one of many things that 4-H has to offer. 4-H in Marshall County is open to all 4th-12th graders. If you are interested in joining or have any questions about 4-H, contact the UT Extension office at 931-359-1929 or email klayton2@utk.edu.

DREAM REALIZED

Tigerette soccer standout signs with UT-Southern

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

Paige Styles has played soccer for the majority of her life.

From the early age of five years old to her time in high school, she's built a dream of wanting to play soccer at the collegiate level.

The Marshall County Tigerette senior recently signed her letter of intent to continue her soccer career at the college level at UT-Southern.

"I'm a little overwhelmed because I've been looking forward to it. I had been looking at playing soccer in college since my freshman year in high school up in Ohio," she said.

After her freshman season playing in Ohio, Styles transferred to Marshall County as a sophomore and made an immediate impact on the team through both her play on the field and her leadership ability.

"During her time here, she's been an extremely hard worker. She earned a starting position almost immediately. She has great leadership ability and was one of our captains this year," Tigerette coach Mike Livingston said.

In addition to being one of the standout players for Marshall County, Paige Styles signs her letter of intent to continue her college career at UT-Southern.

Styles participated in several exposure camps designed to showcase athletes to various college coaches to facilitate the recruiting process.

While she initially had considered out-of-state schools, Styles eventually felt the pull back to Southern Middle Tennessee and wanted to stay close to home.

"I was on NCSA, which is a student-athlete app. I had been looking at a school in Pennsylvania and I had talked to their coach. But then I realized I wanted to stay kind of close to home. I went to Belhaven and did an ID camp there and I did an ID camp in Jacksonville, Florida. But this has always been kind of a No. 1 for me because I get to play soccer and it's close to home," she said.

Styles willingness to put in the work on the field came in handy during her senior season as an injury in goal forced Livingston to turn to the UT-Southern signee to fill in at a new position.

"Things that really make her different than some players I've coached is she's willing to go play different positions. I put her in at goal, which is not her natural position, and she worked really hard there," Livingston said.

Her impact in goal caught the notice of the other district coaches and for her efforts, Styles was named to the all-district team.

"She was also able to get really focused when we got to the tournament. While we didn't win, she caught the notice of the other coaches and they nominated and put her on the all-district team. What I liked about that is I had no say in it. That came from my peer coaches in the district," Livingston added.

Her willingness to put in the work and fill in to help the team whenever needed, Livingston said, is one of the key attributes that will help Styles fit in at the next level.

"They (players) have to really understand their role that everyone at the next level is going to be just as good as them. I think with her hard work and personality, she rolls constructive criticism off her back and takes it to heart, I think that will be a good fit for where she's going.

From her earliest days of playing soccer with her brother while her dad coached the team, to a summer playing in a developmental league before high school, Styles has built quite the collection of memories playing.

"My favorite memory was when I played in a developmental club before high school. It was that summer. It had been raining for two days straight and I'm in Ohio at this point and we play in any weather. There's a picture of me after the game with mud all over me. I had gotten the name "Slip-n-Slide" because I slid on the ground," she said.

Styles plans to pursue a degree in psychology or special education.

Tigers survive Wildcat rally on Senior Night

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

LEWISBURG — The Marshall County Tigers led by as many as 10 points in the fourth quarter, but saw a furious Lawrence County (13-12, 4-5) rally in the fourth quarter tie the game at 41 apiece with 1:21 left.

The Tigers responded by closing out the game with a perfect effort at the free throw line with a minute to go for the 49-41 win over the Wildcats.

After battling to an 11-11 tie after the first quarter, Marshall County seemingly took firm control of Tuesday night's District 8-AAA clash.

With 6:15 left in the first half, it was senior Devonte Davis that came up with a steal and layup to kickstart a 14-1 run that allowed the Tigers to carry a seven-point lead into the half.

Lawrence County (17-9, 4-5) managed a single field goal, which came on a Tiger turnover, with 1:15 left in the half.

Marshall County got a big boost from Kintarius Morris in the third frame when he hit a pair of 3-pointers to open the Tigers' scoring in the second half.

Defensively, Marshall County did not allow the Wildcats to connect on a shot from the floor.

All six of Lawrence County's points came via free throws in the quarter.

The Tigers kept ahold of a 10-point lead for the majority of the third quarter.

After the Wildcats cut the Tigers' advantage to single digits early in the third frame, a basket by Jones once again bumped the Marshall County lead to 11 points with 4:44 left in the game.

But after his score, Lawrence County was able to rattle off eight-straight points to cut the Marshall County lead to three points. See Tigers, Page B6

Offense a struggle for Tigerettes on Senior Night

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

LEWISBURG — Offense proved a struggle for Marshall County on Tuesday night against visiting Lawrence County.

The Lady Wildcats put nine players in the scoring column and took a 53-22 win over the Tigerettes.

Lawrence County jumped on the Tigerettes out of the gate took a 13-5 lead after just one quarter of play.

In that opening frame, five different Lady Wildcats were able to find their way into the scoring column, while Marshall County was limited to just two made field goals—a 3-pointer by Maggie Steely and a basket by Mashawna Ridley.

Things didn't improve much more in the second frame as Lawrence County got big minutes from Payton Morgan and Jacie Scott, both of whom scored six points in the frame to power a 20-point second quarter.

By halftime, Lawrence County had built a 33-9 lead.

While offense proved a struggle for much of the first half, it was Demiyah Blackman who gave the Tigerettes a spark in the third frame as she rattled off all eight of Marshall County's points in the third quarter.

But as much of a spark as she gave the home team, the Lady Wildcats closed out the game on a 14-5 run to preserve the 31-point win.

Scott and Morgan led all scorers with 14 and 12 points, respectively, as Lawrence County shot an impressive 60% from the floor.

Forrest gets road split

Staff report

WATERTOWN — Forrest travelled to Watertown Monday and came away with a split as the Lady Rockets (9-13, 3-2) won easily 52-25 while the Rockets (9-13, 2-3) fell 66-52.

The Lady Rockets had a fight on their hands through the first quarter, having posted just a 12-10 lead, but began to pull away in the second frame.

Forrest increased its lead to 25-18 by half-time, but it was a stellar defensive effort in the second half that allowed the Lady Rockets to build a 27-point advantage by the time the buzzer sounded.

While only able to out-score the Lady Purple Tigers 8-4 in the third period, it was a 19-3 run in the final eight minutes that allowed Forrest to pull away for good.

Addison Bunty led all scorers with 15 points, while Megan Mealer and Cadence Chapman both hit double figures and scored 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Watertown's Madison King led the home team with eight points.

Titans extend contracts for Robinson, Vrabel

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Pro Football Writer

NASHVILLE — The Tennessee Titans wasted little time making sure general manager Jon Robinson and coach Mike Vrabel stick around for years to come.

Barely two weeks after their season ended, the Titans announced Tuesday contract extensions for both Robinson and Vrabel. Terms were not released. Controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk said in a statement she has seen the team improve yearly with Robinson and Vrabel.

"I know their singular goal is to deliver a championship for our fans," Strunk said. "Together they have developed a culture within our organization that has been essential to our success. Their values align with mine and what I want the Titans to be."

Strunk, who took over as controlling owner in March 2015, hired Robinson in January 2016 for a team that had just gone 5-27 combined over the previous two seasons. Robinson now has overseen six straight winning seasons, second only to Kansas City in the NFL.

The Titans hired Vrabel in January 2018 as a first-time head coach, and his 43 victories in his first four seasons match Jack Pardee's success. Vrabel led the Titans to the AFC championship game in January 2020 and back-to-back AFC South titles — the franchise's first since the then-Houston Oilers won three straight between 1960-62 in the AFL.

Tennessee just posted a 12-5 record and earned the AFC's No. 1 seed for the first time since 2008 despite using an NFL

Robertson.
Free Throws (2-for-2): King 2-for-2.
Halftime Score: Forrest 25, Watertown 18.

Watertown 66, Forrest 52

The Forrest Rockets put forth a competitive effort in Monday's non-district tilt against Watertown, but just couldn't get over the hump in a 66-52 defeat.

The Rockets played the Purple Tigers within a single possession through the first quarter and evened the score at 27 apiece by half-time.

It wasn't until Watertown went on a 17-11 run in the third quarter and closed the game with a 22-point fourth-quarter effort that shut the door on any comeback attempt by the Rockets.

Hunter Bennett was the lone Rocket to reach double figures, but what an effort he pitched in.

He dropped 24 points to lead the charge for Forrest, while Watertown's Trent Spradlin posted a game-high 27 points.

Lady Rockets come up short at Community

By Rickey Clardy
Sports Writer

UNIONVILLE — The Community Viqueens outscored the Forrest Lady Rockets in each quarter and pulled away for a 62-44 victory Friday night to clinch the top spot in the District 7-AA regular season basketball standings.

Community (18-7, 5-0) won for the eighth straight game and stayed unbeaten in district play.

Forrest (8-13, 3-2) used six points from Addison Bunty and five points from Macyn Kirby to account for 11 of its 13 points in the opening quarter.

Meanwhile, Haley Mitchell drilled three treys to give the Viqueens their first nine points while M.J. Simmons added four points.

The Viqueens took a 15-13 lead to the second quarter.

Kirby stayed hot for the Lady Rockets with five points, but Simmons scored 10 points and Izzy Martinez came off the bench to tally five as the Viqueens scored the final six points of the quarter and took a 30-20 lead to the intermission.

The Viqueens scored the first six points of the third quarter to complete a 12-0 run and increase their advantage.

The Viqueens led 45-31 with one quarter to play.

Mitchell stayed hot with seven points while Simmons and Breanna Whitaker each scored five as the Viqueens maintained their double-digit lead in the final quarter.

Led by four points each from Kirby and Ryann Lewis, the Lady Rockets were able to cut the Viqueen lead to 53-42 with 3:34 remaining, but Community regained the momentum after a timeout to score the next nine points and took its biggest lead at 62-42 in the final seconds.

Simmons led the Viqueens with 22 points while Mitchell added 21.

Kirby led the Lady Rockets with 20 points.

Both teams were successful at the free throw line.

The Viqueens were 11-of-13 at the stripe while the Lady Rockets were 9-of-10.

Vikings outlast Forrest Rockets

By Rickey Clardy
Sports Writer

UNIONVILLE — Stratton Lovvorn scored 30 points and became the 19th player in Community Viking basketball history to reach 1,000 points as the Vikings defeated the Forrest Rockets 68-55 in a District 7-AA basketball game Friday night.

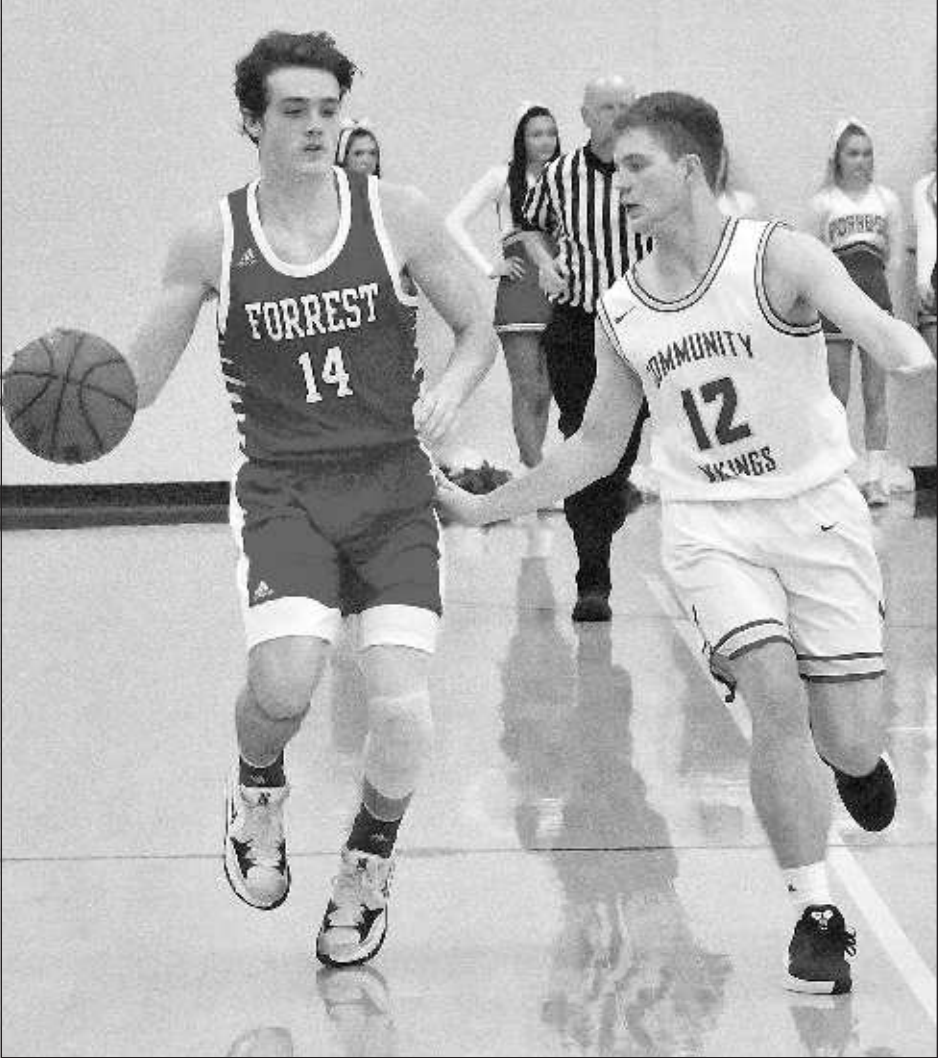

It was a big night for the Lovvorn family as brothers Stratton and Landon combined for 44 points to lead the Vikings as the Rockets stayed close thanks to a big night from Hunter Bennett.

Community (11-14, 3-2) never trailed as the teams battled to gain the upper hand in the opening quarter. Stratton Lovvorn scored nine consecutive Viking points and reached 1,000 points with a trey at the 5:24 mark. Meanwhile, Bennett netted eight points for Forrest (9-12, 2-3) as the Vikings took a 16-13 lead to the second quarter.

It was Landon's turn to fill the bucket as his seven points paced the Vikings in the quarter. Led by six points from Davin Porter and four from Andrew Timmons, the Rockets cut the Viking lead to 21-19 with 4:14 left before a 7-0 run put Community up 28-19.

The Vikings took a 32-25 advantage to the intermission.

Bennett regained his form with 10 points and Porter added four as Forrest stayed hot for the first four minutes of the third quarter and trailed the Vikings 44-41 with 3:49 left before failing to score the rest of the quarter.

Stratton Lovvorn was equally hot with 11 points as Community added two late free throws and led 46-41 heading to the final quarter.

It was a shooting display by the Lovvorns in the quarter that helped the Vikings pull away. Stratton scored 10 points and Landon added seven as the brothers accounted for the first 16 Community points to help the Vikings extend their lead to 62-49 with 2:57 left. Bennett had six points and Porter had four to lead Forrest, but it wasn't enough as the Vikings took the district win.

Bennett finished with 26 points for the Rockets while Porter added 16.

The Vikings were 15-of-19 at the foul line while the Rockets were 3-of-3.

Forrest followed Friday night's game with a busy final week of the regular season, including a non-district game on Monday night at Watertown, followed by a home game against Fayetteville on Thursday and a regular season finale on Friday at Cascade.

The most romantic money moves you can make

By Kimberly Palmer
NerdWallet

For some people, talking about money is as pleasurable a way to spend time together as going for a long walk on the beach.

“I am a money nerd, so to me, talking about money is super fun, and I’ve paired up with someone who is the same,” says Kate Fries, a certified financial planner and financial advisor at The Family Firm in Bethesda, Maryland. “For us, talking about money is the same thing as talking about dreams. Where do we want to go, what do we want to build? It’s a fun conversation.”

But not everyone looks forward to money discussions. Finances can be a significant source of stress in a relationship. As Valentine’s Day approaches, here are some ways to make talking about money with your partner more enjoyable or at least less painful — and possibly even romantic.

FIRST, CONSIDER YOUR OWN MONEY VALUES

Before initiating a conversation about money with your partner, Eugenie George, a financial wellness expert based in Philadelphia , suggests taking time to reflect on your own money values. In other words, what do you want to prioritize when it comes to spending and saving? Answers could include community, adventure and fun, she says.

“You need to figure out yourself first,” George says.

SCHEDULE RECURRING ‘MONEY DATES’

George suggests starting the money conversation with your partner by asking about their values, which allows you to find common ground even if those values aren’t identical. “If your values aren’t lining up, it doesn’t mean it’s a bad thing. You could be complementing each other,” she says.

In George’s case, her partner prefers spending on family experiences, like a good meal, while she likes spending more on larger group activities, such as parties. Once they understood and accepted their differences, she says it was easier to move forward and find shared goals, too.

Fries suggests having a money date with your partner at least quarterly to check in and review recent spending patterns and goals. “Make sure everyone’s tanks are full. You’ve slept and eaten, so you are coming with your best resources available. Maybe a cup of tea or a glass of wine and a candle, so you are associating positive things” with the ritual, Fries says.

PRACTICE EMPATHY

As those conversations progress, it’s common to uncover conflicts or sources of tension, says Ed Coombs, a CFP and couples therapist in Charlotte, North Carolina. “One way to avoid that is to acknowledge it. Say, ‘Honey, money conversations have been difficult for us.’” Then, try to listen and open up the conversation with statements and questions that help you better understand where your partner is coming from.

For example, if you are concerned about your partner’s spending patterns, you could start by saying, “I am feeling anxious and want to talk about our spending,” Coombs says, instead of, “You’re spending too much and you’re making me anxious.” A similar approach can work when tackling difficult subjects such as paying off debt or making cuts in your budget.

“You see how hard you work for every dollar, but you don’t see how your partner does. Try to extend them the same empathy that you give yourself, even if how they handle feeling sad or happy doesn’t make sense to you,” says Gaby Dunn, author and host of the podcast “Bad with Money.”

FOCUS ON GOALS, THEN THE LOGISTICS

Fries suggests using your money dates to share your goals, making the conversation fun. “Oh, you want to go to Paris? How can we make that happen in the next two years? Now that’s an exciting conversation,” she says.

It’s also important to get a clear idea of your current financial situation, including an overview of your net worth, with how much you have in each account and how much you owe on any outstanding loans, Fries says. Then you can give yourself smaller tasks to complete before the next money date, such as making a budget or reviewing your retirement savings. Whether or not you commingle your finances, your actions still can affect the other person’s money if you’re sharing a home and other assets or debts.

GIVE EACH OTHER FLEXIBILITY

According to Fries, maintaining flexibility within the goals and budget you share can increase your chances of success. For example, you might not want to spend $200 a month on golf, but your partner does.

“Each person can have a bucket to spend however they want,” she says, and that can help reduce conflicts over day-to-day spending.

BEWARE OF THESE WARNING SIGNS

Some money conflicts might require the help of a relationship counselor or financial planner, or even signal that the relationship is not meant to be. Dunn says that certain red flags, such as controlling what you purchase, making comments about what you bought or value and even “love bombing,” or showering someone with gifts as a way of buying affection, could suggest deeper problems.

This Valentine’s Day, true romance might mean scheduling a conversation about money.

5 ways to slay Valentine’s Day this year

(StatePoint)Valentine’s Day is no longer just for the happy couples. Whether you’re married, dating or content being single, there are ways for everyone to celebrate love of all kinds, including romance in 2022, regardless of relationship status.

1. Custom Cards. SmashUps from American Greetings can help prioritize love and romance any day of the year. There are SmashUps specifically for Valentine’s Day, with romantic messages from celebrities like Michael Bolton and Smokey Robinson. However, these ecards aren’t just for couples on Valentine’s Day. There are plenty of options for love and friendship, like hilarious videos of talking dogs, cats and koalas. The customizable ecards let you send personalized messages to your boo, your bestie and your brother for a variety of holidays and occasions.

2. FaceTime. Couples who are separated by distance might have to settle for a candlelit FaceTime instead of the in-person dinner they had in mind. Luckily, romance in 2022 means technology can keep us connected, even when we’re apart. If you’re celebrating from a distance this Valentine’s Day, consider shipping gifts to your significant other or gal pals and opening them together while you’re on a video call, or make the same recipe and eat it together on FaceTime.

3. Swipe Left. Many modern-day love stories start with a simple swipe to the left on a dating app. If you’re hoping to meet new people but aren’t sure where to begin, consider having some fun with online dating apps like Bumble, Hinge and Tinder. They’re not just for those looking for love. Many have friendship features, like Bumble BFF, which works the same way, but connects you with others looking for friendships too. This can be particularly useful for those who are moving to new cities, seeking roommates, or looking to network with others who are around the same age or share similar interests.

4. Did Someone Say Galentine’s Day? Originally created by fictional character Leslie Knope in the television series “Parks and Recreation,” Galentine’s Day is all about female friendships and the laughter, joy and support they bring to our lives.

Galentine’s Day can be spent as simply or elaborately as you please. Some gals might get together to exchange gifts of candles and fuzzy socks for the occasion, while others might have a glass of wine and gossip over a charcuterie board. For some, the holiday may just be a reason to call your friends and check in on them. Single or taken, Galentine’s Day is a reminder to glorify your girl gang.

5. Self-Care. Being alone on Valentine’s Day can feel a little lonely, but the day doesn’t have to be painful. If you’re spending it on your own, plan a day at the spa, take a group workout class or cook yourself your favorite meal. Self-care is the perfect way to honor the strong and independent person you are.

Romance in 2022 can be dinners for two with flowers and chocolate, but it can also be celebrating the mystery and magic of an ordinary day with a custom ecard, dinner with gal pals, or spending time doing things you enjoy on your own.

HOW TO PLAY: Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the number 1 through 9 without repetition.

MLB, players stop drug testing during lockout

By RONALD BLUM
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — Drug testing in Major League Baseball has stopped, a casualty of the sport's lockout that started Dec. 2.

Testing for steroids was halted for the first time in nearly 20 years due to the expiration of the sport's drug agreement between management and the players' association, two people familiar with the sport's Joint Drug Program told The Associated Press. The people spoke on condition of anonymity Monday because no public announcement was made.

When they negotiated the 2017-21 drug agreement, the sides included a provision that states "the termination date and time of the program shall be 11:59 p.m. ET on Dec. 1, 2021." That matched the expiration of the five-year labor contract.

"It should be a major concern to all those who value fair play," Travis Tygart, chief executive officer of the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, said Monday.

MLB and the union declined comment on the halt.

Just last month, Barry Bonds and Roger Clemens were denied election to the Hall of Fame by baseball writers over suspicions of PEDs use. Manny Ramirez and Alex Rodriguez, who both served drug suspensions, fell well short in voting.

"If it's just a simple matter of agreeing to it," Tygart said, "you would have hoped they would have been able to get that figured out, so that when the game does restart, you don't have questions hanging over individual players based on size, speed, batting percentage, home run numbers, whatever it may be, that people are going to call into question again."

MLB and the union conducted 47,973 tests from 2017-21, including 7,327 during offseasons, according to a report in November from Thomas M. Martin, the independent program administrator.

Absent fear of detection, it is hard to predict whether some players will attempt to use PEDs in the period before a new collective bargaining agreement is in place along with a restoration of the drug-testing program.

"You could easily do what the cyclists were doing even in a good testing program, which was microdosing of testosterone," Tygart said. "You can do testosterone gels or oral pills that could be out of your system and you can do more in maybe weeks."

Baseball reached its first joint drug agreement in late 2002, a deal calling for survey testing in 2003.

Urine testing for PEDs with penalties for violations began in 2004 under a series of a repeatedly tightened drug agreements. Testing for banned amphetamines started in 2006, and in 2012 blood testing for Human Growth Hormone began, though it was suspended last year due to the coronavirus pandemic.

In December 2007, former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell issued a report commissioned by MLB that implicated 85 players in PEDs use, including seven MVPs and 31 All-Stars. Many denied the allegations.

Upset minded Bengals take aim at Rams in Super Bowl LVI

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

The 2021-2022 NFL season was arguably one for the ages.

At no point during the season was there ever a truly dominant team in either the AFC or NFC.

As a result, fans were delighted to some of the best playoff football games in decades.

Two years ago, Joe Burrow orchestrated one of the best, if not the best, single season a college quarterback has ever put forth.

In that magical season, he won the Heisman Trophy and a national championship while at LSU.

That led the Cincinnati Bengals to draft Burrow at the No. 1 pick in the 2020 draft.

Burrow's impact was felt immediately as he transformed the Bengals into a competitive club, despite not managing to create a winning record.

In Week 11, Burrow tore his ACL, effectively ending his rookie season.

A year later, Burrow has established himself as one of the top quarterbacks, not just in the AFC, but in all of the NFL.

Burrow led the Bengals to a AFC North division title with a 10-7 record.

That record was good enough to land the Bengals a No. 4 seed.

During the regular season, Burrow was as efficient as a quarterback could be, completing 70% of his passes.

He averaged nearly nine yards per attempt and threw for over 4,600 yards. He had 34 touchdowns against just 14 interceptions.

His top target was LSU teammate Ja'Marr Chase, who had 1,455 yards as a rookie, and had 13 grabs.

The Bengals' offense was balanced as Joe Mixon led Cincinnati on the ground. He averaged 4.1 yards per carry and totaled 1,205 yards on the ground with 13 touchdowns.

During the Wild Card round, the Bengals had to outlast the Las Vegas Raiders after only mustering up six points in the second half.

That win put Cincinnati on a collision course with No. 1 AFC seed Tennessee in Nashville.

While the headlines surrounding Tennessee was the return of Derrick Henry, it was the Cincinnati defense that put the Bengals in the AFC championship.

Burrow posted a modest, 348 passing yards and completed 28-of-37 attempts, but didn't have a passing touchdown.

The Cincinnati defense picked off Titan quarterback Ryan Tannehill three times and Evan McPherson kicked a 52-yard field goal as time expired to send the Bengals to Kansas City.

Like the divisional game against the Buffalo Bills, the Bengals forced overtime.

Trailing 21-3 in the second quarter, the Bengals scored 11 unanswered points and led late in the fourth quarter before Harrison Butker kicked a 44-yard field goal as time expired to force overtime.

But it was once again the Cincinnati defense that picked off Chiefs gunslinger Patrick Mahomes and McPherson once again delivered on a 31-yard field goal to stun the Chiefs and send the Bengals to the Super Bowl for the first time since 1989.

While the Bengals found their franchise quarterback with the No. 1 draft pick from 2020, the Rams went after another quarterback who has been stuck in football purgatory for the bulk of his career.

Matthew Stafford was drafted by the Detroit Lions as the No. 1 pick in 2009.

While Stafford has become a reliable quarterback who was able to post big numbers week in and week out, the Lions have never been able to sustain the success and translate it into postseason runs.

In fact, during Stafford's 11 years with Detroit, the Lions made the playoffs just twice.

So in the 2021 preseason, the Rams made a deal to trade quarterback Jared Goff to Detroit and give Stafford his fresh start.

He rewarded the Rams by leading them to a 12-5 overall record and winning a competitive NFC West division title.

The high-flying Rams offense got its man under center as Stafford completed over 67% of his passes in 2021 and averaged 8.1 yards per attempt.

He threw for 4,886 yards and had 41 touchdowns against 17 interceptions.

On paper, the NFC West looked as competitive of a league in the NFL as any division.

San Francisco returned a large portion of its defense from a year ago, remained loaded at every skill position and featured arguably the best game manager in the NFL with Jimmy Garoppolo at quarterback.

The Cardinals brought back Kyler Murray and loaded up on offensive weapons that were poised to contend against any defense in the league.

And Russell Wilson and Pete Carroll can never be counted out.

In the end, it was the star studded roster of the Rams that locked up the division title over Arizona, who finished 11-6.

Cooper Kupp led the loaded receiving corps with 1,947 yards and 16 touchdowns.

Robert Woods, who was another key target for Stafford, tore his ACL during practice in November and set Kupp up in prime position to be the top playmaker on offense.

Out of the backfield, it was a combination of Sony Michel and Darrell Henderson Jr. that led the way with a combined nine rushing touchdowns.

In the postseason, however, it's been Cam Akers that's done the bulk of heavy lifting out of the backfield.

During the Wild Card round, the Rams opened the postseason with a convincing 34-11 win over the Cardinals.

By offensive standards, it was a low-performing day for the LA offense.

Defensively, the Rams picked off Kyler Murray twice and secured the 23-point win to advance to the divisional round, where Tom Brady and the defending world champion Buccaneers waited.

Having to go on the road and face the defending Super Bowl champions, the Rams couldn't have asked for a better start.

By halftime, LA built a 20-3 lead and sat in firm control of the game's momentum and extended the advantage to 27-3 midway through the third quarter.

But one can never count out Tom Brady.

Brady rallied the Bucs from a 24-point deficit and Tampa Bay scored 24 unanswered to tie the game at 27 apiece on a Leonard Fournette run with 42 seconds left in regulation.

With the game and a trip to the NFC Championship on the line, Stafford delivered two darts downfield in the final minute to set Mat Gay up for a game-winning 30-yard field goal, which effectively ended Tom Brady's career.

Like the Bucs did a week prior, the Rams rallied in the second half against San Francisco and scored 13 unanswered points in the fourth quarter, including a game-winning field goal with 1:46 left to send the Rams to the Super Bowl.

While the Buccaneers were the first team to play in a Super Bowl in their home stadium a year ago, the Rams join that club in 2022, although LA isn't officially the "home" designation.

Every year, the home team alternates between the NFC and AFC champion.

The storylines couldn't have been scripted any better during a year.

Burrow enters the Super Bowl a year after tearing his ACL and the Bengals limping to a 4-11-1 record.

Stafford finally finds himself fighting for a championship after so many disappointing years in Detroit.

In a postseason ripe with close games, overtimes, game winning field goals and heartbreak, it seems to reason that Super Bowl LVI will continue the trend of close games, much to the delight of fans.

Lady Bulldogs fall short in 9-A finale

By Dennis Holley
Sports Writer

The Cornersville Lady Bulldogs (7-11, 1-6) wrap up their District 9-A schedule along with honoring this year's Seniors in-between games on Tuesday night by welcoming the Moore County Raiderettes (17-8, 5-2).

The Lady Bulldogs were looking to avoid a series sweep having lost handily at Moore County back on January 21, but Moore County kept the Lady Bulldogs at arm's length and came away with a 52-34 victory.

Freshman Ady Gentry coming in off the bench led the Lady Bulldogs in scoring with 14 points.

Cloe Brazier with 16 points and Olivia Richards with 12 points led Moore County.

Moore County jumped out to an 8-0 lead with their first basket being a 3-pointer from Richards.

Cornersville's Annabelle Mulliniks sank two free-throws to put Cornersville on the board trailing, 8-2.

Brazier worked inside, scoring two baskets and Ellie Graham swished a jumper to stretch the Raiderette lead to 12 points, 14-2 with 3:18 to go in the first quarter.

Brazier continued to work inside for a basket before Alicia Polk scored on a jumper and Gentry made two free-throws to make the score 16-6 by the end of the first quarter.

Richards made a basket to start the second quarter before Cornersville made a seven-point run on a 3-pointer by Grayson Riner, and two buckets by Gentry to cut the Raiderette lead to five points, 18-13.

Moore County answered with the Fletcher sisters, Macy and Katy sinking baskets to put the Raiderettes back up 22-13, a score that would hold up until the halftime horn sounded.

Cornersville opened the third quarter with baskets by Polk and Anna Wood to cut into the Moore County lead 24-17.

Brazier continued to work down low, scoring six-straight points as the Lady Bulldogs drew close, but Moore County would respond to keep the lead just out of reach, now leading 30-17.

Gentry struck with an old fashioned 3-pointer, a basket and a free-throw for Cornersville, but Richard hit a basket at the buzzer to end the third quarter with the Raiderettes leading 32-20.

Riner for Cornersville drilled a 3-pointer to start the fourth quarter to cut into the Raiderette lead, 32-23.

nice drive made the score 34-25 with 5:59 left in the game.

Richards scored again and Gentry matched it, but a 3-pointer by Moore County's Erica Clifton put the icing on the cake and the Raiderettes held on the rest of the way for the 52-34 victory.

The Lady Bulldogs will travel to Culleoka Friday night to finish off the regular season and begin preparations for the District 9-A tournament to be played in Lynchburg.

The nightcap of Tuesday night's District 9-A matchup featured the Cornersville Bulldogs (10-10 3-4) taking on the visiting Raiders of Moore County (7-8, 3-4).

The Bulldogs looked to avoid a season sweep by the Raiders, as well as improve their district seeding, fought toe-to-toe until late in the game but were forced to foul with time ticking away and fell to the Moore County Raiders, 50-38.

Mason Calahan led three players in double figures with 13 points, while Bryce Woodard scored 11 and Eli Welch chipped in 10.

Alex Copeland for Moore County led all scorers with 22 points.

Welch tipped the ball to point guard Gage Lovell to begin the game then laid in a basket to put the Bulldogs in front, 2-0.

Calahan then drilled a 3-pointer to make the score 5-0.

Moore County responded with Keller Morey sinking a basket and Colton Bateman drilling a 3-pointer to tie the score at 5-5.

Copeland drained a three pointer to put the Raiders in front 8-5.

Woodard from the corner swished a 3-pointer to tie the score at 8-8 with 2:32 left in the first quarter.

Blaine Woodard then drove the right side of the lane for a basket that put the Bulldogs in front 10-8 as the first quarter ended.

Will Harder canned a bucket to start the second quarter and Bateman and Will Baker added baskets as the Raiders led 14-10 with 5:07 left in the half.

Bryce Woodard, one of four seniors on the Bulldog squad then sank back-to-back 3-pointers to put the Bulldogs ahead, 16-14.

Copeland sank a free-throw before Calahan, on a pull-up bank shot made the Bulldog lead three points 18-15.

Harder went to the free-throw line but a lane infraction by the Raiders wiped away the first of two free-throws as the clock wound down to halftime with the Bulldogs leading 18-16.

Moore County missed a last shot to tie the game as the halftime horn sounded.

The third quarter began with Welch scoring two baskets down low for the Bulldogs.

The Raiders responded with baskets by Copeland and Harder to make the score 22-20.

At the 4:05 mark of the quarter Copeland was fouled and went to the line and sank two free-throws to tie the game at 22-22.

Both teams swapped baskets for baskets with Khi Canty and Bryce Woodard scoring for Cornersville and two baskets by Harder to make the score 26-26.

Then a 3-pointer by Copeland turned the game to Moore County as they now led 29-26.

Baskets by Bryce Woodard and Calahan put the Dogs back in front 30-29.

Copeland answered with another 3-pointer and at the end of the third quarter Moore County led, 32-30.

Welch banked home a basket and Calahan made one of two free-throws to make the score Cornersville leading 33-32 with 7:09 left in the game.

A free-throw by Keller Morey and then Copeland would strike again with another 3-pointer to push the Raider lead to four points, 37-33.

From there on until the end of the game it seemed as if a lid was placed over the Bulldogs basket as shot after shot rolled over, bounced off and rimmed out.

With baskets not falling Moore County began to control the ball and the Bulldogs were forced to foul.

with just over two to play.

With 1:54 left, Jamahl Gentry was fouled and sent to the line for a one-and-one attempt, where he ended the Wildcat run by knocking down both attempts to stretch the lead back to five points.

A 3-pointer by Lawrence County's Logan Boswell and a basket off the block by Luke Boswell knotted the game at 41-apiece, with 1:21 to go.

Needing to stop the clock, Lawrence County was forced to foul and with 1:11, Gentry was sent to the line after picking up the single bonus foul, Gentry promptly knocked down both free throw attempts to once again give the Tigers the two-point lead.

He followed with a layup at the 38-second mark before Davis and Morris added two more free throws apiece in the final 23 seconds.

As a team, the Tigers were a perfect 6-of-6 at the line within the final minute.
