County sees redistricting changes

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

2022 is an election year in Marshall County and Tennessee and voters will have several changes to adjust to in the election booth.

Based on data from the 2020 census, each of the nine county districts from which commissioners and school board representatives are chosen were redrawn in order to maintain roughly equal populations.

With county population growth concentrated in some areas, some districts, such as the First and Second in the north of the county, shrank in size, while others like the Third, expanded in size to maintain the targeted number of residents. The optimum population for each district was approximately 3,800 residents and, at worst, each new district falls within four percent of that goal.

Consideration was given to incumbents during the redistricting to keep them in their current districts.

None of the county's polling places have changed, although some voters will now vote at different locations. The county election office is in the process of mailing new voter registration cards to any county residents whose districts and polling places have been changed.

The five wards electing members to the Lewisburg City Council have also been adjusted to account for new residents.

As always, prior to elections, Marshall

County Election Administrator Andrew Robertson suggests that voters verify their polling location and registration prior to election days to avoid any complications.

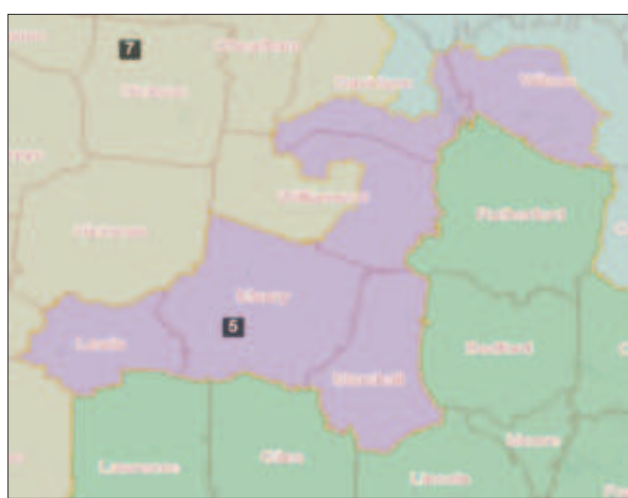

At the state and federal levels, the redistricting has been more dramatic with Marshall County moving out of the districts of two incumbents.

The county is no longer in the 14th State Senate District, represented by Shane Reeves of Rutherford County. Marshall County has been moved to the 28th District, along with the entirety of Maury, Lewis, and Giles Counties and the Spring Hill portion of Williamson County. The 28th District is currently served by Joey Hensley of Hohenwald.

Marshall County remains entirely in the 92nd District currently served by State Representative Todd Warner. The boundaries of the district change substantially however, losing the portions of Lincoln, Marion, and Franklin Counties and gaining a strip of southern Williamson County.

Federally, Marshall County will have a new representative in Congress after being moved from Scott Desjarlais' 4th Congressional District into a new, and controversial, 5th Congressional District. Formerly, the 5th District covered Davidson County and the seat was held by long-time Democratic incumbent Jim Cooper.

The new 5th District is one of three that now split Davidson County in redistricting approved by the State Legislature, potentially costing the Democrats a seat in Congress by diluting the primarily Democratic urban voters with more rural and Republican counties.

Marshall County now shares a district with the southern parts of Nashville and spans from Lewis County to Lebanon.

Cooper decided against a reelection bid in the new district, with new contenders already lining up for the party primaries.

The Tennessee Democratic Party has stated that it will sue over the new district on the grounds that it disenfranchises Nashville voters.

2022 will see a county general election in August and a state and federal election in November. Lewisburg's Ward 1 will have a special called election in March to replace Councilman Bam Haislip, who has moved into the role of city manager.

Clara Harber Hill

Mrs. Clara Harber Hill, 93, died Saturday, Feb. 12, 2022, at her home in Chapel Hill after an extended illness.

Mrs. Hill was a native of Marshall County but lived much of her life in Williamson County. She was a daughter of the late William Jefferson and Lillie Pearl Glasscock Harber. In addition to her parents, she was also preceded in death by her husband of 49 years, Ernest W. Hill, Sr., who died in 1996; a son E.W. Hill, who died in 2021; and sisters, Elizabeth Harber Powell and Katie Harber Cathey.

After a brief time working in the public sector, Mrs. Clara spent forty plus years doing the work she loved most, working in the fields of the family farm in Southeast Williamson County. She was held in high regards by her neighbors for her skills and speed working in the tobacco crops and raising beef cattle.

Ever since 1963, when the family moved to Williamson County, Mrs. Hill was a faithful member and servant at Riggs Cross Roads Church of Christ. After the death of her husband, Ernest, she spent many happy hours with friends at the College Grove Senior Citizens Center. Most of all, she loved her family and taking care of them brought her the most joy. Sitting down was not easy for "Granny Clara" as age took her abilities to care for herself and had to allow others to care for her.

Mrs. Hill is survived by her daughter, Wanda Jean Collins, Chapel Hill, TN; granddaughter, Emily Blackwell Ferguson, College Grove, TN; grandson, Ernie (Danielle) Hill, Chapel

Hill, TN; great grandchildren, Alec Ferguson, Lilli Ferguson and Caroline Fowler; one niece; four nephews; and many others that called her "Granny Clara."

Early Notice and Public Review of a Proposed Activity in a 100-Year Floodplain

To: All interested Agencies - Federal, State, and Local - Groups and Individuals

This is to give notice that City of Lewisburg, Tennessee under CFR 24 Part 58 has conducted an evaluation as required by Executive Order 11988 and/or 11990, in accordance with HUD regulations at 24 CFR 55.20 Subpart C Procedures for Making Determinations on Floodplain Management, to determine the potential affect that its activity in the floodplain and wetland will have on the human environment for a Community Development Block Grant under B-21-DC-47-0001

The City of Lewisburg proposed to use CDBG funds and local funds to rehabilitate approximately 4,250 linear feet of connection sewer line by pipe bursting or open-cut. There will be approximately 29 sewer service connections/service laterals replaced and 14 manholes renovated. The sewer system overflows are in the vicinity of Big Rock Creek which is listed on the 303 (d) list of impaired streams in the Upper Duck River Watershed Basin. All of the rehabilitation will take place in Census Blocks TN1179553001, TN1179553002, TN1179553003, and TN1179554002 of the Lewisburg Sewer System.

The proposed project(s) is located Census Blocks TN1179553001, TN1179553002, TN1179553003, and TN1179554002 in Lewisburg, Marshall County, Tennessee.

There are three primary purposes for this notice. First, people who may be affected by activities in floodplains and those who have an interest in the protection of the natural environment should be given an opportunity to express their concerns and provide information about these areas. Second, an adequate public notice program can be an important public educational tool. The dissemination of information about floodplains can facilitate and enhance Federal efforts to reduce the risks associated with the occupancy and modification of these special areas. Third, as a matter of fairness, when the Federal government determines it will participate in actions taking place in floodplains, it must inform those who may be put at greater or continued risk. Written comments must be received by City of Lewisburg at the following address on or before March 4, 2022.

MARSHALL COUNTY DEVOTIONAL PAGE

A giant in the faith!

"Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful shout unto Him with psalms. For the LORD is a great God, and a great King above all gods." - Psalm 95:2,3

The Bible is the written record of the glories of our God and King. For without it we would be blind to the fact of His greatness and His many great acts of mercy He has shown to His people. This greatness of our God, as our scripture says, is something that should lead us into His presence with thanksgiving whereby we unashamedly shout with joy.

This kind of devotion was seen in a godly man by the name of Athanasius. Even though Athanasius was born into a Christian family near Alexandria, Egypt around AD 296, God still had to reveal the greatness of His Son Jesus Christ to his heart as Lord and Savior. Once coming into the faith by a spiritual birth, Athanasius had a hunger for God's word and years later he became bishop of Alexandria. With his desire to know God's word Athanasius found much religious opposition. At that time, there was a new heretical movement spreading in the churches called Arianism. The Arian heresy was introduced by a man named Arius. Arius denied the Godhood of Jesus Christ and taught that Jesus was "like God," but not God. Athanasius addressed this false teaching claiming that it was not true orthodox teaching from God's word. Many of the clergy at that time dismissed this controversy as splitting-hairs. However, to Athanasius this was no splitting of theological hairs. He maintained that our salvation was at the core of this "Jesus-God" issue. Athanasius argued from the scriptures that Jesus Christ had to be fully human, because only a sinless human could atone for human sin, and that Jesus Christ had to be fully divine, because only God has the power to save sinners. As a result of his great Biblical stance, Athanasius was called the father of Orthodoxy. Nevertheless, he had many enemies. In fact, many liturgical church leaders had him exiled five times by four different Roman emperors for his devotion to the orthodox views of God's word. Because his enemies could not defend their view from the Bible, they reverted to name calling and accusations. As a result, his enemies gave Athanasius the tag "The Black Dwarf." While in exile, Athanasius spent most of his time writing, mostly to defend the person of Jesus Christ and the greatness of God. Yet, in the end God turned the tables on his opposition. His theological enemies were "exiled" from the Church's teaching, and Athanasius was released to return to his home in Alexandria, Egypt.

Even today, Athanasius' teachings of the orthodox faith are still being used to help shape and explain Christianity. Sadly, the Church as a whole has forgotten such a faithful man, and regardless of how his enemies tagged him, God raised this short, dark-skinned Egyptian up to be a giant in the faith.

George William Turner

George William Turner was the only child of Ed and Ludina Turner. He was a native of Marshall County who grew up on the family farm in Farmington. At the time, education for African-Americans was limited to grades 1-8. Fortunately, his parents were able to allow him to continue and finish the high school department at Tennessee A. and I. State College in Nashville. After receiving his diploma he returned home to work on the farm.

With degrees in hand Mr. Turner would begin a long life of educating and helping his fellow man. Two factors would reinforce reaching those goals.

First, he would marry Vera Acklin of Decherd, Tennessee, also a teacher. Not only were the two excellent teachers, but hard working persons. As each school year came to a close, the two of them would work for the Great Northern Railroad.

Secondly, after teaching in Perry County for a few years, he returned to Marshall County and later became principal of Jones High School. At Jones, he was a caring person who emphasized discipline. In 1967, integration saw the end of Jones as a high school. Mr. Turner continued as principal as Jones became a grade school.

A few years later, with the slogan "Turn on with Turner" George W. Turner was elected president of the Tennessee Education Association. The TEA is the largest education organization in the state. While he and his wife Vera had no children of their own, they influenced and helped hundreds of students, and adults as well. The Silver Street Center, Turner Drive, and Turner Park are named in his honor.

Each year the Marshall County Branch NAACP presents The George W. Turner Award to the person/persons that are outstanding in the community at their Annual Freedom Fund Banquet. Mr. Turner passed away on June 26, 1986, only a few hours after it was announced that he was selected Marshall County Citizen of the year. He and his wife are buried in Cook Memorial Garden.

Do you want your receipt?

By Danny Tyree

Yes, receipts do seem to breed like rabbits in my poor overstuffed-with-credit-cards-and-gift-cards-and-loyalty-cards-and-hastily-scribbled-notes wallet.

But that's my personal problem to sort through at home in my quieter moments.

That's why I'm deeply disturbed by the recent phenomenon of retail clerks putting me on the spot with some variation of "Do you want your receipt?" or "Would you like your receipt?" Snap judgment time!

I can understand "Would you prefer the receipt in the bag?" or "Would you rather have the receipt emailed?"; but the stark all-or-nothing question is extremely triggering.

Call me old school, but I like taking transactions for granted. Stop with the existential interrogations! What's next in the realm of impertinent retail inquiries? "Do you want the milk left in the jug?" "Would you prefer a fitting room with or without a latch?"

In my more mischievous moments, I'm tempted to eye the "Do you want your receipt?" clerk warily, whip out my phone and fake a conversation along the lines of "Snipers in place? We've got a hostage situation here."

What's driving this sudden change? Does it have something to do with our carbon footprints? If my accepting four square inches of waxy paper and storing it in a desk drawer is going to strangle a sea turtle somewhere, I apologize (and wonder how the wimpy little reptiles would handle an asteroid crash).

Besides, isn't it "too little, too late" (ecologically speaking) to talk a customer out of a receipt right before he gulps down his Slim Jim, hops in the cab of his monster truck and roars off to work clearcutting virgin forests?

Or maybe the reluctance to print a receipt is a cost-cutting measure. Hey, if you're teetering on the brink of insolvency like that, you'd better be extra-good to me, or I'll push you over the precipice. ("Yes, I want my receipt. Duplicates of my receipt! And a wad of napkins for my glove compartment. And some ketchup packets. I don't care if this is a furniture store - I want my ketchup packets!")

Or maybe the Stepford Clerks are dutifully following corporate directives to be extra helpful. Hey, if sparing me from the horrors of an overstuffed shirt pocket gives them the jollies, I can think of even more ways for them to find bliss. My shed needs decluttering this weekend, and how's about watering my plants while I'm on vacation?

Are customers expected to reciprocate when clerks make these grand gestures? ("Okay, I'll dance at your wedding, and I'll co-sign your loan, but I'll have to think about this kidney donation thing, Cindi with An I.")

Most receipts never see the light of day again, but it's shortsighted to relinquish your receipt when you could very well be haggling with Customer Service over returns of an ill-fitting garment or a non-functioning electronic gadget. ("I swear I bought this here. Please give me credit. Pretty please, with a cherry on top. No, I can't prove I paid for the cherry, either...")

Retailers aren't doing shoppers any favors when they cajole them into facing an income tax audit without a shoebox of receipts. ("I know I could've deducted my new printer if I had the receipts, but Zachary with a W made such a persuasive case.")

Back off, clerks! I grew up when "proof-of-purchase seals" meant something. You'll pry my receipts from my cold, Sugar Smacks-infused fingers.

Alli Wells signs her letter of intent to continue her swim career at UT-Southern.

Cornersville standout swimmer inks with UT-Southern

By Chris Siers
csports@t-g.com

Cornersville swimmer Alli Wells has had quite the journey in the pool over the past several months.

After a knee injury, which led to surgery, derailed her in-pool competition, she eventually advanced to the state swim meet and represented Cornersville.

After capping her senior season, she officially signed her letter of intent to continue her college career and signed with UT-Southern.

"It's been a really long journey trying to find a college that fit me. I'm so happy that it's so close and I can stay engaged in Cornersville swim and Marshall County in general. I'm close enough where I can stay engaged in all of that," she said.

The ability to stay close to home made a major impact on Wells' decision to swim for the Firebirds in college.

While there were handful of other colleges in the mix, being a short drive from home made all the difference in the world to her.

"I looked at several other colleges, but it just had that home feel. About the third time I visited, I just felt like the coach wanted me there, I wanted to be there and this is where I belong," she said. Her love for the sport has been more than decade in the making, but happened by chance.

"I played a bunch of other sports and really just wanted to try it out because my other friends did it and I ended up loving it," she said.

Since then, she's competed with Excel Aquatics since her middle school years, but eventually climbed the ranks and competed in the state swim meet, representing Cornersville.

But after a knee surgery set her back initially, Wells was back in the pool and soon after, posted qualifying times for the state swim meet.

"Back in October, I had knee surgery. As soon as I came back, within the first two meets, I made that time and I went to state," she said.

Wells primarily competes in the backstroke events, with the 200-Backstroke and 100-Backstroke being her main events.

While she's still several months away from reporting to UT-Southern for her freshman season, Wells and her college coaches hope she's going to be able to help lay the foundation for a relatively new program on the rise.

"I hope to really help out this team since it's new and growing. I'm really excited," she said.

For now, Wells will continue conditioning and will be swimming in a bigger pool than she's accustomed to in order to help prepare for her freshman season.

"I'll be doing long course out of Brentwood during the summer and that's a 50-meter pool compared to 25. It's a little bit of a difference, but I really love it," she said.

Wells plans to pursue a degree in Psychology and a minor in Criminology.

Vikings down Rockets in 7-AA finals on last minute free throws

By Chris Siers
csports@t-g.com

UNIONVILLE — Forrest head coach Shane Chapman knew the Community Vikings would try to play through Stratton Lovvorn in Tuesday night's District 7-AA semifinal matchup.

While the Viking senior got his, the Rockets couldn't shut down the supporting cast around Lovvorn and fell, 50-47.

"Our guys played really, really hard. We knew what they were going to do. They were going to try to get the ball to Stratton, but they had other guys that stepped up and shot the ball well for them," Chapman said.

Senior Hunter Bennett has come on strong for the Rockets (10-15) as of late but was limited in the early goings against the Vikings (14-14) on Tuesday night.

Despite being held scoreless in the opening frame, Bennett rallied to lead the Rockets in scoring and posted a game-high 16 points.

"They did a good job of closing off the high post and the mid-range stuff for us is where we try to make our bread and butter," Chapman said.

"Brennan didn't shoot the ball particularly great. This place has kind of got his number on defense and he didn't get the ball going tonight."

After trailing 12-5 following a Stratton Lovvorn 3-pointer with 2:18 left in the first quarter, Forrest rallied to close the game on a 9-2 run, including a Davin Porter 3-pointer at the buzzer to knot the game at 14 apiece after the first quarter.

Community opened the second quarter on a tear, rattling off eight-straight points to take a 22-14 lead with 4:22 left in the half.

But after the Viking outburst to start the second quarter, Bennett finally got the offensive wheels going and scored back-to-back baskets to spark a 12-4 run to close the half, highlighted by a Deason Jones 3-pointer with 27 seconds left.

Community closed the first half making just one field goal in the final 4:22.

While the Vikings opened the second half with a corner 3-pointer by Trace Broiles, Forrest answered with a pair of baskets by Andrew Timmons and Bennett to knot the game at 29 apiece.

Working the 1-3-1 zone defense, the Rockets went on to swap control of the scoreboard with Community five more times in the quarter until Broiles drilled a 3-pointer with 33 seconds left in the frame to give the Purple and Gold a 37-35 lead.

That back and forth affair continued into the fourth quarter and saw the Rockets eventually take a 41-37 lead on a basket by Jones with 6:35 left.

Community simply wouldn't go away, however.

Back-to-back baskets by Porter put the Rockets on top with a slim, 45-44 lead with just under five minutes left, but Broiles answered with another timely 3-pointer to put Community on top, 47-45.

Bennett once again tied the game on a shot with 3:14 left, but a shot by Porter with 1:11 left caught every part of the iron and bounced in and out, landing in the Vikings' possession.

It was then that Maki Fleming was fouled with five seconds left and sent to the line where he knocked down both attempts of a one-

Following the free throws by Fleming, Forrest attempted to inbound the ball after a timeout but turned the ball over to Lovvorn, who knocked down the front end of a one-and-one attempt to put Community up 50-47.

The Rockets had one final heave at the rim on a long shot by Jones, but caught the back end of the iron and saw the shot miss long.

While Chapman's game plan was to limit Lovvorn, it was the Vikings' supporting cast around him that proved the most costly against the Rockets.

"We were just throwing some stuff out there. We don't match up well against Stratton. He scored 1,000 points for a reason. We tried to scheme some things against him. I feel like we did a better job against him tonight from scoring as well. Their support staff stepped up and played well," Chapman said.

While the loss eliminated the Rockets from the District 7-AA championship, Forrest's season stays alive as the Rockets advance to the district tournament consolation round with the all-important matchup against the No. 2 seed from District 8-AA on the line.

Forrest will face Grundy County on Friday night before taking part in the Region 4-AA tournament next week.

In two prior meetings during the regular season, the Rockets claimed back-to-back wins over the Yellow Jackets and hope to make it three-straight on Friday.

Tip-off is set for 6:30 p.m. on Friday.

Rockets' early early lead can't hold at Cascade

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

WARTRACE — The Forrest Rockets built a 10-point lead early at district-leading Cascade on Friday night, but couldn't close out the game in a 64-55 loss to the Champions.

Night in, night out, Rocket head coach Shane Chapman has gotten used to Hunter Bennett playing at a high level.

Friday night was no exception as Bennett, along with Brennan Mealer, leading the Rockets in the first quarter.

"Our guys play hard night in and night out. You can't take anything away from Cascade. They're a No. 1 seed in our district for a reason. They play really hard. They have one of the best players in the district with Justis (Carter). Hopefully we can get another shot at them down the road," Chapman said.

Bennett was able to penetrate and drive the lane, particularly in the first half, while Mealer heated up from the perimeter.

Mealer knocked down a pair of 3-pointers in the first half and if not for a pair of timely 3-pointers by Cascade's Lucas Clanton, Forrest could well have sat with a double-digit lead after the first quarter.

Leading 19-11 after the first quarter, it was Cascade's turn to get hot shooting the ball and the Champs started the second quarter on a 6-0 run to cut the Rocket lead to one possession with just under seven minutes to play in the half.

3-pointer swished the net to end the cascade run and preserve the one-possession Rocket lead with 6:38 left in the half.

The two teams traded baskets until Cascade eventually tied the game at 29 apiece with 1:15 when Zach Crosslin hit a layup and drew the foul, but was unable to connect on the ensuing free throw.

Andrew Timmons followed with a basket with 15 seconds left in the half to once again give Forrest a two-point lead heading to the half.

While Chapman was able to rely on Bennett driving to the rim and Mealer's shooting in the first half, Cascade adjusted in the second half on the defensive end of the court, limiting Mealer's effectiveness from the perimeter.

"Our support staff came in tonight and did a good job. Brennan Mealer shot the ball well. They closed down on him in the second half and he wasn't able to get loose like he did in the first half. Some of those guys have stepped in and made some big shots throughout the season. We just need those guys to come in and give us that effort night in and night out in the tournament," Chapman said.

Cascade tied the game early in the third on another basket by Clanton before Bennett answered with another go-ahead shot.

The two teams swapped control of the scoreboard four more times before Justis Carter hit a layup in transition at the 2:45 mark of the third. Cascade never trailed again.

After managing just 1-of-3 attempts at the free throw line in the first half, Cascade was able to effectively get to the line in the second half and finished 15-of-21 attempts for the game, with eight made free-throws coming in the fourth quarter.

During that fourth quarter, Cascade piled up 22 points, edging out the 16 scored by the Rockets.

Although Cascade had rallied to take control of the scoreboard, Forrest was never truly out of striking range and after another 3-pointer by Mealer with 3:41 left in the game, Cascade led by just five points.

But after Mealer's shot, Forrest managed just four more points, while Cascade closed the game by scoring eight to preserve the nine-point win.

Clanton's 19 points led all scorers, while Carter added 13 for Cascade.

Bennett's 14 points, along with Mealer's, led the Rockets as the pair combined for 28 points against Cascade.

Bennett has been a spark plug for the Rockets of late and Chapman says his leadership will be key moving into the postseason.

"Dude is playing his rear end off. I'm super proud of the way he played. Our three seniors, even last night with senior night, really played hard and laid it on the line. I think the rest of our team will follow their leadership and Hunter Bennett is a big part of that," he said.

Forrest opened the District 7-AA tournament on Tuesday night against Community.

With only four teams in the district, all four will play again in either the championship or consolation round, which will be held at Community on Friday evening.

Lady Rockets down Cascade, advance to 7-AA finals

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

WARTRACE — The Forrest Lady Rockets are playing some of their best basketball of the season. Having won three-straight games last week, Forrest closed the regular season in convincing fashion, beating Cascade 54-21.

"This was the third win this week we've had. I was very pleased with the effort. I thought tonight our intensity stayed true for four quarters," Lady Rocket coach Hal Murrell said.

As the game started, Forrest took part in a special moment of sportsmanship during the Lady Champion Senior Night.

Cascade senior Kylie Calvert had her senior basketball season cut short due to a knee injury suffered in soccer season.

In her final game played at Cascade, Calvert was on the floor for the game's opening tip-off, which Forrest allowed Cascade to win and Calvert officially penciled her name in the scoring column with an easy basket under the rim.

In turn, Cascade allowed Forrest to answer Calvert's score, essentially starting the game over with an even score.

"I've never been involved in anything like that. Coach (Hampton) called and asked to do it and I said absolutely we could. It was good to see the emotion on that girl's face. Kids don't realize how fleeting these times are and they go by really quick. For her to have that moment is something she'll have forever," Murrell said.

After the opening baskets, the Lady Rockets took immediate control of the game and never looked back in the 33-point victory.

Forrest got key contribution from guard Macyn Kirby and exploited the mismatch of Cadence Chapman.

The pair combined for 30 points, with Chapman's 16 points leading all scorers.

"Cadence is a matchup problem. She has awesome hands. To only be a sophomore, the game is still coming to her. Macyn Kirby is doing a tremendous job for us as far as a player who is not really a true point guard," Murrell said.

Offensively, the Lady Rockets raced out to an 18-5 lead in the first quarter, not allowing a field goal until Jordan Green hit a shot at 2:51.

Forrest answered with a corner 3-pointer by Addison Bunty.

Kirby took over in the second quarter and scored six-straight points, allowing Forrest to lead 23-5 by 5:52 mark of the second quarter.

Cascade managed just three points against a the stingy Forrest defense that held the Lady Champs in single digits in all four quarters.

Forrest kept its tenacity into the second half and out-scored Cascade 17-13 to preserve the 33-point victory.

Forrest 54, Grundy Co. 43

On Monday night, the No. 2 seed Forrest Lady Rockets faced off against Grundy County in the semifinals of the District 7-AA tournament.

With plenty of first-half fireworks, it was Forrest that withstood a 19-point fourth quarter surge to claim the 54-43 win and advance to the 7-AA championship to face the No. 1 Community Viqueens.

Grundy opened the first quarter firing on all cylinders, with Carlee Smartt lighting it up from the perimeter.

As a team, Grundy County made good on nine treys, with Smartt knocking down five, including four in the first quarter.

Forrest was able to tread water and keep it a two-possession game with key baskets by Cadence Chapman in the paint and 3-pointers by Macyn Kirby and Kinslee Inlow.

After trailing by seven points at the end of the first quarter, it was Forrest's turn to rain 3-pointers as the Lady Rockets answered with four treys in the second quarter, along with six more points by Chapman.

Having rallied for 20 in the second, Forrest posted a 33-30 lead after the first half of play.

While the first half was filled with plenty of fireworks, Forrest's defense effectively shut down the Lady Yellow Jackets in the third quarter.

Grundy County managed a single basket by Abigail Childers in the quarter, while extending its lead to 43-32 by the end of the third.

With the lead well in hand, the Lady Rockets were able to effectively get to the free throw line and despite being out-scored 11-9 in the fourth, made 5-of-8 free throw attempts to secure their spot in the upcoming District 7-AA title game.

Smartt's 19 points led all scorers, but it was the Lady Rockets who placed three in double figures, with Chapman's 13 points leading the way for the winners.

Kirby and Inlow each added 11 points.

Forrest will face Community in the championship on Thursday night at 7:45 at Community.

Super Bowl ads go heavy on nostalgia and star power

By Mae Anderson
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — On the field, the Los Angeles Rams and Cincinnati Bengals played a nail biter during Super Bowl 56, with the Rams emerging victorious.

Off the field, Super Bowl advertisers were in a tough competition of their own. Advertisers shelled out up to $7 million for 30 seconds of airtime during the Super Bowl, so they pulled out all the stops to win over the estimated 100 million people that tune into the game. Big stars, humor and a heavy dose of nostalgia were prevalent throughout the night.

"The Super Bowl featured positive, up-beat advertising," said Northwestern University marketing professor Tim Calkins. "For the most part there was no mention of the pandemic, COVID or masks."

Chevrolet recreated the opening sequence to "The Sopranos" to tout its all-electric Chevy Silverado — one of several auto ads promoting electric vehicles. This time, however, Jamie-Lynn Sigler, who played Meadow Soprano on the show that ran from 1999 to 2007, is in the driver's seat instead of the Sopranos patriarch played by the late James Gandolfini.

"As soon as they started playing the music from 'The Sopranos' they had me riveted," said Kelly O'Keefe, managing partner of Brand Federation. "Great link to a well-loved favorite with music that can silence a crowd. When it played you could hear a pin drop."

FTX, a cryptocurrency exchange, enlisted Larry David of "Curb Your Enthusiasm" to convey that cryptocurrency is ready for the mainstream. Toyota enlisted three famous "Joneses" -- Leslie Jones, Tommy Lee Jones and Rashida Jones -- in its ad for the 2022 Tundra. And Verizon's ad had Jim Carrey revisit his 1996 role as "The Cable Guy" to tout its ultrafast 5G wireless network.

"This is one of the most engaging set of ads I've seen in several years," said Kimberly Whitler, professor of marketing at the University of Virginia. "Almost all focus on light-hearted entertainment."

Cryptocurrency exchanges made a splash during the game, with FTX, Crypto.com, eToro and Coinbase all airing ads, leading some to dub the game the "Crypto Bowl." They're all aiming to make cryptocurrency more mainstream.

Coinbase's ad just showed a QR code that changed colors while electronic music played. The QR code led to Coinbase's web site. University of Virginia's Whitler said the ad might drive signups but could fall flat for some.

"A floating QR code without a brand name may not be sufficient to drive interest," Whitler said. "They are likely hoping that curiosity will inspire people to put down the beer and pick up their phone ... but that is a tall order without any other 'reason why'."

"(Cryptocurrency exchanges) have a lot of money and they need to create a lot of change," said Mark DiMassimo, founder and creative chief of marketing agency DiGo. "They want to get crypto assets into as many hands as possible so people can start feeling comfortable playing that game."

In a moment of bad timing, Avocados from Mexico aired an ad that showed Julius Caesar and a rough bunch of gladiator fans outside what appears to be the Colosseum, enjoying guacamole and avocados. But the ad came after news that the U.S. government has suspended all imports of Mexican avocados after a U.S. plant safety inspector in Mexico received a threat.

The association did not immediately respond to a request for comment on the ban, which hits an industry with almost $3 billion in annual exports. Avocados for this year's Super Bowl had already been exported in the weeks prior to the event.

General Motors, BMW, Kia, and Polestar all advertised electric vehicles. BMW showed Arnold Schwarzenegger as Zeus, the god of the sky (or in this commercial, the god of lightning) whose wife, Salma Hayek Pinault, gives him the EV BMW iX to spice up retirement. And Kia showcased its Kia EV6 electric vehicle in its ad along with a cute "robo dog." Nissan's ad also gave a nod to its all-electric 2023 Nissan Ariya.

Nostalgia for the past was everywhere as well.

In an ad for Rocket Mortgage, Anna Kendrick tells kids about the competitive housing market by using examples of classic kid toys like Barbie's Dream House and Skeletor's Castle Gray-skull. GM enlisted Mike Myers for an "Austin Powers"-themed ad that features a reprise of his role as Austin Powers' nemesis, Dr. Evil.

T-Mobile reunited Zach Braff and Donald Faison, stars of the sitcom "Scrubs" that aired from 2001 to 2010. And canned cocktail brand Cutwater Spirits harkened back to an iconic 1997 Apple campaign, "Here's to the Crazy Ones," with a twist. The black-and-white ad that honors its drinkers with the salute, "Here's to the Lazy Ones."

Beat burnout with these playful tips

(StatePoint) For many, the additional isolation and never-ending uncertainty of the past couple years has led to mental fatigue and burnout. Experts say that no matter your age, turning to play instead of social media can help you feel more like yourself again.

"While it's tempting to constantly reach for our devices to check social media during times of stress and loneliness, or even just when there's down time, it's a habit that a number of studies unfortunately link to anxiety and depression," says Anna Yudina, senior director of marketing initiatives at The Toy Association, which spearheads The Genius of Play. "Research shows that play, on the other hand, reduces stress, boosts life satisfaction and empowers adults and kids alike to be creative thinkers."

To combat burnout and mental fatigue, The Genius of Play is offering the following tips for reducing screen time and embracing playful hobbies instead:

• Make time for play: The habit-forming properties of social media are well-documented. However, you can commit to less screen time and more play time. In the case of families, parents can lead the way by example. Consider instituting policies that help strike a healthy balance. For example, make the dinner table a device-free zone, schedule device-free game nights and set time limits. Still struggling to set healthy limits for yourself or your children? Apps, such as Moment and Social Fever, are designed to help.

• Bundle up: Don't let cold weather discourage you from going outdoors. Fresh air is good for the mind, body and soul, and once you get moving, you'll warm up in no time. From nature hikes, skiing and other outdoor adventures to backyard activities and obstacle courses, there are many ways for people of all ages to be playful outside. For kids, you can also try classic games like Kick the Can, and Capture the Flag. Social distancing? Try Shadow Tag. Played the same way as a traditional game of tag, players tag each other with their shadows instead of their hands.

• Play indoors: Feeling cooped up? Promote screen-free playtime at home with classic board games and card games, STEAM projects, and with toys that build real-world skills and challenge participants to solve problems imaginatively. For example, construction toys offer something for everyone, whether they prefer following directions or building freely. There's no right or wrong way to do it.

• Make art: From painting a still life to completing a project that's a bit sillier, making art builds fine motor skills and problem-solving skills, enhances communication and self-expression, and promotes self-esteem and the motivation to succeed. Need some inspiration? Marshmallow Sculptures is a perfect project for kids ages 5 and up. Let your little Michelangelo connect toothpicks and marshmallows, revealing a one-of-a-kind work of art. Best of all, you can keep each sculpture, disassemble and start again, or even eat it!

• Take time to relax: Quiet time is vital for recharging one's batteries. Build in time for your family to read, color, assemble puzzles, practice yoga or participate in other stress-relieving activities.

For more tips, advice and the latest research from leaders in child development, education and play, visit thegeniusofplay.org.

Through play, you can not only beat the blahs and develop important skills, you can also help your family form healthy digital habits -- a win-win for everyone.

HOW TO PLAY: Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the number 1 through 9 without repetition.

Rockets come up clutch on senior night

By Anthony S. Puca
Sports Writer

The Forrest Rockets had lost three games-in-a row coming in to last Thursday's Senior Night matchup versus Fayetteville at Chapel Hill, but they turned in a solid performance that was capped off by some clutch free throws by seniors Andrew Timmons and Deason Jones in the final seconds that secured a 53-50 win.

The three Forrest seniors led the way as Timmons and Hunter Bennett tied for game-high scoring honors with 15 points apiece and Jones was also in double figures with 14 points.

Timmons also had a pair of 3-pointers while Bennett and Jones canned one long bomb apiece, but the difference in the game was the free throw shooting as the Rockets went 9-for-11 while the Tigers made just 5-of-11.

Timmons went 2-for-4, Jones went 3-for-3, and Bennett made both charity shots he attempted.

Fayetteville scored to open the contest before Forrest scored seven straight points, including a Brennan Mealer 3-pointer.

Bryson Johnson scored for Fayetteville before Timmons nailed a 3-pointer to make it 10-4, but the Tigers roared back with an 8-0 run to take a 12-10 lead with 1:20 remaining in the opening period.

Bennett tied the game and after a Fayetteville turnover, Bennett scored on a drive to the hoop and was fouled.

The senior canned the free throw and the Rockets took a 15-12 lead to the second period.

It was nip and tuck the entire stanza as neither squad pulled away with the biggest lead at three points midway through, but the Tigers surged late and took a 29-28 lead on a Brayden Hockett 3-pointer to the locker room.

Fayetteville began to pull away as they went on an 8-0 run to open the second half and led 36-28.

The two squads exchange buckets before Forrest got a huge lift from Davin Porter, who scored four straight and Jones made it six points in a row to cut the Fayetteville lead to 38-36 with three minutes remaining in the stanza.

The Tigers took 40-38 lead to what would be a wild fourth quarter.

The Rockets scored the first six points to take a 44-40 lead before Fayetteville came back to lead 48-46 with 2:05 remaining in the contest.

Timmons nailed a 3-pointer to put Forrest in front, but Johnson answered with a bucket for the Tigers and with 37.2 second left, Timmons was fouled and went to the free throw for a one-and-one.

Timmons missed the first shot and there was a scramble for the rebound that Timmons somehow came up with and on the grab, Fayetteville committed an intentional foul, putting Timmons on the line and giving Forrest possession after the free throws.

Timmons calmly nailed both charity shots and on the ensuing inbounds play, Jones was fouled with six seconds remaining in the game.

The senior drilled both shots and the Tigers could not get a good shot off at the end of the game as the Rockets survived with the three-point win.

Lady Rockets outlast Fayetteville for senior night win

By Anthony S. Puca
Sports Writer

It was senior night at Chapel Hill on Thursday as the Forrest Lady Rockets hosted the Fayetteville Lady Tigers in a non-conference matchup.

Fayetteville took an early 5-3 lead before Macyn Kirby came up with a three-point play the old-fashioned way and Cadence Chapman followed with basket in the low post and two free throws to give Forrest a lead they did not surrender for the remainder of the game.

Kirby finished with a game-high 16 points, a pair of 3-pointers, and a solid 6-for-9 effort from the free throw line.

Chapman and Kinslee Inlow were also in double figures with 12 and 10 points respectively with Inlow canning two 3-pointers and both players making all of their free throws.

Forrest seniors Ryann Lewis, Addison Bunty, and Megan Mealer all had two apiece in the contest.

Chapel Hill's 14-for-19 effort from the charity stripe bested Fayetteville, which made just 8-of-18 free throws in the contest.

Inlow drilled a 3-pointer to start the second period and Kirby followed with a field goal to open up a 15-7 lead for Forrest.

Fayetteville's Hannah Griffin scored the next three points before Chapman scored in the low post and Inlow followed with a corner 3-pointer for a 10-point Forrest lead.

The Lady Rockets took a 23-11 lead to the locker room at halftime and Bunty scored to open up the second half.

One free throw by Kirby midway through the stanza gave Forrest its biggest lead of the game at 31-16, but the Lady Tigers dug in as they went on an 8-0 run to end the third quarter with Griffin and Shaneka Nance scoring four points apiece.

Fayetteville kept nipping at their heels, cutting the Forrest lead to six points with 3:39 remaining in the game.

The Lady Rockets came up with another offensive surge via a 6-0 run on baskets by Chapman and Lewis, plus a pair of Kirby free throws to make it a 12-point game at 41-29.

Nance drilled a 3-pointer to halt the Lady Rocket run and after another Kirby charity shot, Nance went downtown again to slice the Forrest lead back to six points.

A Forrest missed shot gave the ball back to Fayetteville and they had the chance to cut the lead even more, but missed the front end of a one-and-one situation at the free throw line.

Mealer made a couple of free throws down the stretch to seal the win for the Lady Rockets, who traveled to Cascade on Friday night and blew out the Lady Champions 54-21 in the regular season finale.

Super Bowl viewership up from 2021

By DAVID BAUDER
AP Media Writer

NEW YORK — The Super Bowl rebounded to draw an estimated 101.1 million television viewers who saw the Los Angeles Rams beat the Cincinnati Bengals on a late-game drive, proving the dominance of football as an audience magnet.

The audience on NBC and Telemundo was a 6% increase over the 95.2 million TV viewers who saw the Tampa Bay Bucs crowned as champions in 2021, the Nielsen company said on Tuesday.

The ratings improvement for what is traditionally the most-watched event of the year was no surprise, given the run of terrific playoff games leading up to it. Viewership for the NFL's divisional round was up 20% over last year, and the conference championships were up 10%, Nielsen said.

Besides the good games, a sense — or hope — that the coronavirus pandemic may be winding down might have contributed to the increased audience, said Cole Strain, head of measurement for the research firm Samba TV.

"We felt there was a little more freedom," Strain said.

The halftime show starring Dr. Dre, Snoop Dogg, Eminem and Mary K. Blige was also a hit, and NBC expressed hope that the game's halo will kick-start ratings for the otherwise disappointing Winter Olympics in Beijing.

NBC said another 11.2 million people streamed this year's game, putting the total audience at 112.3 million people. The audience for television and streaming combined is up 12.6% over last year.

For its hometown Bengals, Cincinnati had the highest audience share in the country, meaning the percentage of television viewers watching the game, Nielsen said. Los Angeles didn't even make the top 10 markets.

The most-watched Super Bowl ever remains the 2015 game between New England and Seattle, which had 114.4 million viewers. Last year's slip gave rise to some thinking that the NFL wasn't immune to the overall drop in audience that afflicts virtually all television programs, but this year the NFL defied that gravity.

Live television viewing in the last three months of 2021 was up over the previous year, and that can be attributed solely to football, Strain said.

Nielsen estimated that 103.4 million television viewers watched the Super Bowl halftime show, and Samba's data illustrated how it is become an event in itself. Samba estimated that 379,000 households, or roughly more than a million people, tuned in for the halftime show and left after it was done. Another 1.2 million households, or more than 3 million people, tuned in first for the show and stayed for the game's second half.

"This year was a very big standout in terms of the halftime show performers versus the last year," Strain said. It was the first time rap artists took center stage at halftime.

As a result, Samba said the 15 most-watched commercials came either just before, during or just after the halftime show.

That represents a change from the time advertisers jockeyed to get their ads placed early in the game or, if they were feeling lucky, late in the fourth quarter to take advantage of a suspenseful finish.

Nielsen said 21.3 million people stuck around after the game to watch Olympics programming. NBC specifically requested to broadcast a Super Bowl during a Winter Olympics year in the hope that each event would benefit the other, and its executives said they hoped to take the same approach in the future.

Late last year, Nielsen adjusted its estimate of viewership for the 2021 Super Bowl from 92 million to 95.2 million, saying it had undercounted the number of people who watched the game outside of their homes.
