The American Heritage Girls Float took the top prize for this parade. Additional photos from the parade are on Page 8A of today's Tribune.

Mr. Edmond Nacchio, Marshall County's oldest veteran at age 102, was the Grand Marshal for the July 4th parade on Monday.

Parading for the 4th

The Marshall County Chamber of Commerce partnered with Vince Cuevas and his Friends to produce an outstanding 4th of July Parade on Monday.

Almost 100 entries gathered in the parking lot of Marshall County Plaza before 9 a.m. to put the finishing touches on their floats, cars, jeeps, con-cle. Members of the Civil Air Patrol led the colorful exhibition and were followed by the Grand Marshal, Mr. Edmond Nacchio, Marshall County's oldest living veteran, who is 102 years of age.

Volunteers from the Chamber of Commerce were positioned at sixteen streets along the parade route to ensure the safety of the parade participants as they traveled down West Commerce and onto East Commerce to The Acres Shopping Center. Lewisburg Police Chief Scott Braden and Fire Chief Larry Williams and their officers/ firemen made sure that all major intersections were manned. All along the way well-wishers clapped for their favorite entrants and could be heard saying to veterans: "Thank you for your service."

Once again Marshall County and Lewisburg citizens proved that this is a very patriotic place to live.

Tax breaks, trans athletes, more: Tennessee laws kicking in What a delightful time

What a delightful time was there to behold in the Lewisburg Parks & Recreation Center on Saturday, June 18, 2022 – a celebration of Juneteenth! It was not just an African American holiday but a time for all of the citizens to celebrate. Juneteenth, an important event, reminded us of what individuals came through in the pages of American history, and at the same time, recalled what still needs to be achieved. The 2nd Annual Juneteenth Pageant and Program commenced at noon with music by James Owens. As the music played, attendees mingled, renewed old friendships, and acquired new ones. The event was a community affair, and all who attended were truly blessed to experience history. Sohlja Tha Poet (Ricardo) and Shawnieka Hill, two uniquely talented individuals, read inspiring original poems. Linda Huston, with her angelic voice, rendered a remarkable selection. Talisha Hutton Ingram, who choreographed a dramatic dance, had her young ladies give an outstanding performance. The Miss Juneteenth Pageant in Lewisburg this year proved to be better than the last! The beautiful contestants were all so very energetic and quite knowledgeable about Juneteenth; they were simply beautiful! While the judges and tabulators collaborated to determine the winners, the attendees had an opportunity to enjoy refreshments and participate in a silent

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — As Tennesseans enjoyed fireworks and cookouts over the long weekend, a long slate of new state laws affecting transgender athletes, which books can be in school libraries, homeless camps, and harsh criminal sentences went into effect Friday.

In Tennessee, July 1 is the start of a new fiscal year and the mark of when many newly passed bills begin to be implemented.

Turner building renovations celebrated

The Lewisburg Housing Authority held a ribbon cutting ceremony on June 29 to celebrate the newly renovated George W. Turner Building, which has long been the community center of the public housing complex. Local officials and community supporters were on hand to see the newly remodeled event center featuring a kitchen and the board and conference room. Following the ribbon cutting, Lewisburg Housing Authority Director Ronald Robinson and former Lewisburg Police Chief Doug Alexander were presented with the naming of the Board and Conference Room in their honor.

Concerts: yea or nay?

By Danny Tyree

Believe it or not, my wife and I haven't attended a concert in nearly 25 years.

(Elton John's January 1998 appearance at Nashville Arena was our last outing.)

I realize such an admission strikes a discordant note with most "normal" people. "Don't you want to be able to say that you saw (fill in the blank) in person?" Get serious. Most of the applause at concerts is upon songs celebrating substance abuse, promiscuity, adultery or anti-establishment violence. If you can approve the other naughtiness, why not tell a few white lies about concerts you didn't, technically, attend? ("Yeah, Garth called us onstage. But the CIA made the TV crews delete the video; so, alas, there's no record of it. Yeah, that's the ticket.")

The major obstacle to our attending more concerts is that my wife is particularly bothered by loud noises and flashing lights. Granted, this meshes with the "more decibels, please" concert mantra "I... wanna rock and roll all night, and suffer migraines every day." Music is supposed to change the world, not rewrite your genetic code.

I realize we could bring earplugs and dark glasses, but that's like dining at a 5-star restaurant after laminating your taste buds.

Things are looking up for us financially, but concert tickets have traditionally been a low-priority budget item. More power to the people who think nothing of enriching ticket scalpers, but I would lose sleep over it. Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast, but it doesn't cut much ice with debt collectors.

I doubt I am the only person who dreads the hassle of concerts: tickets, hidden fees, traffic, parking, security, etc. If you do enjoy hassles, an economical compromise might involve staying home and putting together a backyard swing set ("some assembly required") while your spouse bites the head off a bat.

It's especially hard to get enthusiastic about bands that have undergone one lineup change too many. You know, where the backup cowbell player has somehow obtained ownership of the name and is the only remaining original element. Here's an idea: I could just ship my baby teeth to the venue and say I attended.

Spare me the legendary artists who attempt staying relevant. ("I know you came to hear a selection of my 56 charttopping hits, but first here's a new 45-minute stripped-down dirge about my angst over the banking system in Lithuania.")

Two down-to-earth guys (my father and my wife's grandfather) influenced us not to get too starstruck. I enjoy the radio and my  $M \dot{P} \ddot{3}$  files without pursuing closer celebrity relationships. I mean, I appreciate the work of the time-andtemperature lady on the phone, but I don't feel obligated to see her in an arena or buy the Tshirt. ("Forecast: tomorrow you'll feel like a total fool. But with the heat index, you'll feel like a 110 percent fool.")

I do get wistful about a handful of missed opportunities (I wouldn't mind seeing Barry Manilow perform someday), but then I get on with my life.

Regrets? I've had a few, but then again, too few to mention. I did what I had to do and saw it through...

Hey, that reminds me. Did I ever tell you about the time Elvis and Sinatra regaled me with stories of getting John Philip Sousa so wasted he threw up in 76 trombones? Pull up a souvenir seat cushion...

Laws

controlled General Assembly and Republican Gov. Bill Lee signed off on hundreds of bills earlier this year during the annual legislative session. Lee also let several take effect without signing them. Here's a look at some of the notable laws they approved.

BUDGET

The $52.8 billion spending plan for 2022-23 includes a one-month sales tax holiday on groceries planned for August, a $750 million boost to K-12 schools and $100 million in violent crime reduction grants. It also has a $121 million break to waive the state portion of vehicle registration tag fees over the next year, which comes down to $23.75 per vehicle. Other breaks will eliminate $9.7 million worth of a professional privilege tax for doctors and will provide $68 million for one-year broadband tax relief.

HOMELESS CAMPING

Tennessee will become the first U.S. state to make it a felony to camp on local public property such as parks — a move critics say is designed to target homeless encampments. The law requires that violators receive at least 24 hours' notice before an arrest, but the felony charge is punishable by up to six years in prison and the loss of voting rights. It will also be a misdemeanor for camping around highways any time - not just overnight — also, requiring a warning first. Lee ### let the bill become law without signing it, saying he thinks there's a better way of addressing the issue.

The new law comes after Tennessee made it a felony in 2020 to camp on most state-owned property, as long as the place is not designated for people to camp there.

TRUTH IN SENTENCING

Despite concerns from the governor's office and criminal justice advocates, lawmakers passed a bill that will lengthen criminal sentences and potentially increase incarceration costs. Known as the so-called "truth in sentencing" bill, the measure will require serving entire sentences for various felonies, which legislative leaders argue ensures justice for victims. Those include attempted first-degree murder. vehicular homicide resulting from the driver's intoxication, carjacking and especially aggravated robbery.

Separately, 12 other offenses would require inmates to serve at least 85% of their sentences. Those range from reckless homicide, aggravated arson, voluntary manslaughter to possessing or aggravated kidnapping.

As a sign of his unease with the bill, Lee allowed it to go into law without his signature sparking harsh rebukes from GOP legislative leaders who argue the new law will hold those who break the law more "accountable."

given to the following: Blavlin Padgett, Baby Miss; Alaya Smith, Mini Miss; and crowned as Miss Juneteenth was Keslie Ingram. Paris Bishop took the Miss Congeniality Award.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES

Marshall County Tribune - A3

School libraries were a common target among Republican lawmakers this year in Tennessee and nationwide, with many accusing librarians of providing inappropriate materials to students and demanding more transparency in how books were selected and removed from schools.

After introducing a flurry of bills, the Tennessee Legislature ultimately moved to let the state's politically appointed textbook commission remove books from public school libraries statewide. The panel will have veto power when people appeal decisions by local school boards in book removal challenges. Meanwhile, under a separate law, school libraries will be required to post their contents online and regularly review their policies to ensure materials are "age-appropriate" and "suitable."

TRANSGENDER ATHLETES

Last year, Lee signed off on banning transgender athletes from participating in girls sports. Even though none of the supporters could point to an incident where this has become an issue in Tennessee, lawmakers returned this year to add harsh penalties against schools that violate that ban. Furthermore, Tennessee will now ban transgender athletes from participating in female college sports.

PIPELINES

A new law strictly limits the ability of local governments to stop oil and gas pipelines and other fossil fuel infrastructure projects in their jurisdictions.

The Saints in Heaven

"Father, I will that they also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me where I am; that they may behold My glory, which You have given me: for Thou loved Me before the foundation of the world." - John 17:24

There are many questions about heaven. One such question that comes up is, "What will the believers be doing in heaven?"

The first thing we know about the glorified saints in heaven is that they will behold the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lover of their souls, according to our opening verse. Believers will behold His majestic presence and will be awe struck, which leads to worship. Yes, the saints will worship the Lord Jesus Christ in heaven (Psalm 29:2; Rev. 7:15). The saints will worship Him in different ways such as in singing (Rev.5:9,10), and in praise (Rev.19:5). In fact, worship will take on other forms, such as service. So that we will not get the idea that heaven will just be one eternal church ceremony, God designed it that the saints "shall serve Him" (Rev. 22:3). The idea of serving in heaven is foreign to many people. Yet the Scriptures teach that God created Adam and, "put him in the Garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it" (Genesis 2:15). God's people were created to serve Him in a perfect environment. Even though in heaven we will rest from the hardship of our labors in this sin cursed world (Rev. 14:13). The saints in heaven will pick up the delight of serving our Savior and Redeemer where there are no more thorns, thistles, troubles, or trials. Whatever task we may be given by the Lord, we will do it without the presence of sin and drudgery. In heaven, we won't grow tired or weary in our service toward God.

Also in heaven, the saints will be fed and led by Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God (Rev. 7:16,17; Rev. 2:7). The Bible teaches that the Messianic King will feed and lead His saints, and not angels. Many times people will try to be comforting and say that a departed loved-one left this world because, "God needed another angel." Such an idea is not Biblically true, and is on the verge of blaspheme. Believers in Christ are "children of God" by faith (Galatians 3:26), and "the saints" (Col.1:2; Rev. 11:19) and they are never demoted to angelic status.

Angels are only servants or ministers of God (Heb.1:7,14; Mat.13:41). So to make a blood-bought-believer of Jesus Christ into an angel is first to diminish and devalue the blood of Christ that changed the sinner into a saint. Therefore believers never become angels in heaven, and neither do they float on clouds playing harps. Those who have believed and personally received the sacrifice of the Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ, are "the saved," also called "the saints," and they alone inherit heaven. In heaven the saints will behold Christ's glory and worship Him in a diversity of ways – forever!

4th of July parade photos

The Civil Air Patrol led the parade on July 4th. The parade started at 9 a.m. from Marshall County Plaza and ended at The Acres Center on the east side of town.

Many convertibles were used to transport the many beauty queens of recent pageants. This convertible, however, was carrying Superman!

Twenty-four veterans rode on a float created by the veterans of Marshall County Veterans Outreach who meet regularly in the Annex of Church Street Church of Christ on Wednesday evenings. This beautiful float was one of the winners of the competition.

MINIATURES: Several miniature cars were in the parade line up.

Rowe's School of Dance was one of the winning entries in the parade.

WOODARD: Troy Woodard and family members were a winning entry with their Farmall Cub tractor and attached trailer.

Colleges making moves

bout 10 years ago, when the last major round of conference realignments came around, I suspected there would be a major shift in the landscape of college sports.

Boy, did I hit the nail on the head with that one.

Last week, it was announced that USC and UCLA and informed the Pac-12 they were leaving to become members of the BigTen conference.

Geographically, this makes little sense. In fact, a lot of the realignments make no sense from a geographic perspective, but as we all know, money rules everything in sports these days.

With the Pac-12 facing an imminent collapse, the question now shifts to what happens to the remaining teams and do the other conferences stand pat?

I've not been a fan of the College Football Playoff. I've felt like the system has been subjugated by too much money and influence from ESPN.

It's really less of a playoff and more of a four-team invitational. And those big brands will always be getting favored over smaller brands in the landscape of college sports.

So facing these issues, I've got an easy solution that fixes the geographic landscape issue, as well as creates a true playoff atmosphere in college

Local power walkers take gold in Senior Games

By Chris Siers sports@t-g.com

Kathy Smith and Annette Fenech have had a fairly busy year. The two compete in the Tennessee Senior Olympic Games in the power walk.

The duo competed in the National Senior Games back in May. While the two had previously competed in the same group, the divisions are now age-based, which separated the two in terms of competition.

Smith cracked the top-10 in her division and finished in ninth place overall and Annette finished second overall.

In June, the two were back in action in the Tennessee Senior Olympics and both took home gold medals in their respective age groups.

In Fenech's gold medal walk, she set a new Tennessee state record in 10:07.120.

Smith also competed in several swimming events and took home gold in the 50-meter breaststroke and 50-meter freestyle.

Now let me be up front, I know this will never happen.

There's too much money tied up in branding with the conferences and media deals.

The conferences all need to be rebranded into four different divisions: NCAA North, South, East and West. Within each of those divisions, you'll have two smaller regions made up of all the Power 5 conference teams.

Each team would play a full, eight-game schedule, with the ability to schedule four nonconference opponents.

When it comes time to the playoffs, your winner from each smaller division will play for the conference title.

In this model, each team that plays for a conference title would be automatically entered into an eightteam playoff.

This not only gives each conference game true meaning, but it eliminates the "eye test" and there will never be an issue like what happened a few years ago when Alabama was able to make the playoffs without playing for a conference title.

Now like I said, I'm aware this will never happen.

There's too much money tied up in college football and the big brands of the sport have to have their risk minimized, which

Report: Thomas' family says he had CTE

BOSTON (AP) — Former NFL Pro Bowl wide receiver Demaryius Thomas is the latest in a growing list of football players diagnosed with CTE.

His family said Tuesday that researchers found that Thomas, who died in December at age 33, suffered from chronic traumatic encephalopathy. The four-time Pro Bowl wide receiver was dealing with depression, anxiety and other CTE symptoms at the time of his death.

CTE, a degenerative brain disease which can only be diagnosed posthumously, has been found in hundreds of former NFL players as well as semi-pro and high school soccer players. Hall of Fame linebacker Junior Seau had CTE when he died in 2012 of a gunshot wound to the chest.

Hall of Famers Ken Stabler, Frank Gifford and Mike Webster also were diagnosed with CTE.

Boston University CTE Center researchers discovered that Thomas was at stage 2 following a brain study through the Concussion Legacy Foundation. Thomas' family released the findings of the study.

"Once I became aware of CTE and began to familiarize myself with the symptoms, I noticed that Demaryius was isolating himself and I saw other changes in him," Katina Smith, Demaryius' mother, said in a statement. "He was just so young, and it was horrible to see him struggle. His father and I hope all families learn the risks of playing football. We don't want other parents to have to lose their children like we did."

Stage 2 CTE is associated with "progressive behavior, cognitive and mood abnormalities." Family members say Thomas developed depression, anxiety, panic attacks, and trouble with his memory in the years before his death. Stage 4 is the most severe stage of CTE and is usually associated with dementia.

"Like so many that have gone before, we found stage 2 CTE in the brain of Demaryius Thomas. The question I keep asking myself is 'When will enough be enough?' When will athletes, parents and the public at large stop ignoring the risks of American football and insist that the game be changed to reduce subconcussive hits?" said Dr. Ann McKee, chief of neuropathology for the VA Boston Healthcare System and director of the BU CTE Center and VA-BU-CLF/UNITE Brain Bank.

CLF co-founder and CEO Dr. Chris Nowinski arranged the study through Thomas' family.

"The football community would have no idea why so many former players struggle with neurological disorders after their career without the families who say yes to brain donation, so I want to thank Bobby Thomas and Katina Smith — and all families — for their trust in Dr. McKee and this team," said Nowinski, a former football player at Harvard. "I hope this is a wake-up call to high profile current and former NFL players that CTE is rampant among them, and they need to get involved in creating real solutions. CTE should be their number one off-the-field issue."

Thomas is one of more than 300 former NFL players who have been diagnosed with CTE by McKee and the BU CTE Center research team.

Thomas' cause of death has not yet been identified. In 2021, Thomas began experiencing seizures. McKee told ABC News she believes the seizures were due to severe traumatic injuries off the football field, including a car wreck and a fall on stone stairs.

War adds uncertainty for NHL teams selecting Russian prospects

By JOHN WAWROW

AP Hockey Writer

The war in Ukraine has added an increasing level of uncertainty for NHL teams interested in drafting Russia-born prospects because of questions regarding their availability to play in North America.

While no team has openly stated it would avoid selecting Russians altogether in the two-day draft in Montreal that opens Thursday, there is the potential of Russia being shut out in the first round for the first time since 2005.

"I don't know if anybody has the answer," said Seattle general manager Ron Francis, whose team currently has 12 picks over seven rounds, including No. 4 overall. "It's certainly unknown right now so it makes it, I think, a little more riskier than years past."

While there has always been a risk of Russian prospects deciding to stay home to play, the concerns are greater now with travel restrictions in place during the war for anyone wishing to travel to or from Russia and Belarus. NHL executives are left to wonder if a pick will actually be allowed out. It doesn't help that NHL and its Russianbased counterpart, the Kontinental Hockey League, do not have a transfer agreement in place. That prevents NHL teams from buying out KHL contracts, a consistent hurdle for any GM hoping to raid the second-best league in the world.

Without disclosing the Canadiens' strategy, Montreal GM Kent Hughes said it will be up to each team to weigh the risks of selecting a Russian player.

"It's simple enough to say that the war in Russia creates a level of complexity or probably more uncertainty," Hughes told The Associated Press. "Any team picking has to balance the uncertainty of it with the potential of the player."

Last week, Philadelphia Flyers goalie prospect Ivan Fedotov was suddenly assigned to a remote military base in northern Russia, according to the player's agent, J.P. Barry. Selected in the seventh round of the 2015 draft, Fedotov signed with the Flyers in May after completing his contract with CSKA Moscow in the KHL.

"I think in years past, there's probably a little bit of concern — just is the guy going to come over?" Francis said before specifically referencing Fedotov. "This is probably on a different magnitude."

While the NHL has not issued any directives regarding drafting Russian players, Deputy Commissioner Bill Daly said the uncertainty could lead to teams being more hesitant.

"Would it surprise me if some slip in where they're projected to go based on the inability to access them? Potentially," Daly said.

This year's draft class includes several Russian prospects with first-round potential under normal circumstances.

Defenseman Pavel Mintyukov is ranked sixth among North American skaters by NHL Central Scouting because he played in the Ontario Hockey League last season. Wingers Danila Yurov Ivan Miroshand nichenko, who played in Russia, are among the top 10-ranked European skaters.

Miroshnichenko's situation is more complicated because he was unable to complete his season after being diagnosed with Hodgkin's lymphoma in March. He has since completed his treatments and plans to attend the draft. Detroit general manager Steve Yzerman said the Red Wings are evaluating top Russian prospects as usual.

"We're preparing our lists or organizing our lists as we normally would," Yzerman said. "Ultimately, we're going to want to draft really good prospects, and make sure they're good kids."

Central Scouting chief Dan Marr is confident Russian players will be selected but won't guess how long they might have to wait.

"I wouldn't even want to try and guess as to what the NHL clubs are thinking," Marr said. "If you're sitting there and you've got a solid prospect for the NHL, are you going to go by him or do you want to step up and take him, and cross your fingers and hope that the world is in a different place a couple of years from now."

Marr said he and his staff conducted a mock draft in which the first Russian player wasn't selected until the second round.

Last year, 29 Russian players were drafted — the most since 2003 — with Fedor Svechkov, selected No. 19 by Nashville, the only one going in the first round.

Cowboys draw criticism over deal with gun-themed coffee company

FRISCO, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys sparked criticism on social media Tuesday after announcing a marketing agreement with a gun-themed coffee company with blends that include "AK-47 Espresso," "Silencer Smooth" and "Murdered Out."

The partnership with the Black Rifle Coffee Co. was revealed on Twitter the day after more than a half-dozen people died in a shooting at a Fourth of July parade in suburban Chicago.

It also comes a little more than a month since the Cowboys announced their role in a $400,000 donation to support vicand survivors of the school shooting in Uvalde in South Texas, where 19 students and two teachers died. The tweet announcing the agreement between "America's Team" and "America's Coffee" drew about 200 comments in the first few hours, most of them critical and suggesting the timing of the announcement was poor. "Maybe read the room a bit, guys," one person posted, while another wrote, "The Dallas Cowboys just lost one of their biggest fans. Integrity matters."

responders, and America's men and women in uniform," a Black Rifle spokesman said. "The long-planned announcement was timed to coincide with the Independence Day holiday — America's Team. America's Coffee. America's Birthday."

Reaction to the marketing agreement suggests a "split identification among fans" of the Cowboys, according to T Betting Cornwell academic director of the University of Oregon's Warsaw Sports Marketing Center. "For those opposed to gun violence, there is no good timing," Cornwell said in an email. "The business question is, 'Have the Cowboys made a misstep in terms of their relationship with their more moderate fans? Cowboys owner Jerry Jones' steadfast support of the military was best illustrated when he was one of the most outspoken NFL owners against players kneeling during The Star-Spangled Banner before games to protest racial injustice and police brutality. The Black Rifle brand has been popular among conservatives and gunrights advocates, and the Salt Lake Citybased company has ties to Texas. The first brick-and-mortar store opened in San Antonio, where the company has a second corporate office.

is why you never see teams making a Cinderella run like you see in the NCAA men's basketball tournament every March.

We'll likely see plenty of teams swapping and Cowboys draw criticism over deal with gunthemed coffee company FRISCO, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys sparked criticism on so-conferences expanding before it's all said and done.

There's rumor of the Big 12 reaching out to current Pac-12 teams to expand even farther, after UCF, Cincinnati, Houston and BYU enter the conference.

I'd wager Notre Dame has to join a conference at this point too. In any case, with the Dog Days of Summer in full swing, sports pundits across the country will opine on the current state of the NCAA until we get to the opening kickoffs in just two month's time.

SUDOKU

Level: Advanced

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
