than they should vote at their assigned precinct, not at the election office.

The county's nine precincts will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Next Thursday's ballot, which is printed inside the A section of today's Marshall County Tribune, is a long one.

All of the county's elected positions, except for property assessor, are on the ballot along with municipal seats in Lewisburg and Chapel Hill.

Most of the county commission seats are contested, with multiple candidates vying for the two seats representing each of the county's nine districts.

Cornersville alderman elections are on the November ballot.

Primary elections for statewide and federal positions also feature, especially the crowded Republican field for the new 5th Congressional District in the House of Representatives and a three man race for the Republican nomination in the redrawn 92nd District of the General Assembly, currently held by Marshall County's Todd Warner.

Primary elections will be decided on Tuesday, November 8.

Library

has space dedicated to the storage and display of the town's archival and historical collections.

The project has been in the works for years now, facing delays, like so many other plans, due to the impact of the Covid pandemic and is the result of collaboration among several entities.

In addition to providing the building, the town of Chapel Hill has funded the renovations on the building, opening and transforming the space to better suit its new mission.

That new capacity was tested on Friday with a robust turnout for the ceremonies and open house celebrating the library's new page.

The town is also covering the building's ongoing operating costs going forward.

The MCML Foundation funded the new furniture and fixtures for the furniture, although new shelving for the library materials will not be delivered until October, Pearson lamented.

Another driver of the project has been resident Marion Joyce, who also serves on the board of aldermen.

Joyce, who Pearson praised for her "vision and tenacity" regarding the project, also spoke, thanking the mayor, the board, and the town employees who had made the new branch possible.

Joyce praised the contributions of the other members of the town archives and library committee: Brenda Brown, Beth Chunn, and Becky Delk.

"I want to challenge the young people, who have this lovely building, to use it," said Joyce in her remarks, challenging them to "make this building a center of the community?"

Judging from the number of residents who stopped in Friday, of all ages, to check out library materials or take advantage of other services, the new branch will rise to the challenge.

A native of Marshall County and Cornersville, he was born to loving parents and raised in our community. He, along with four siblings, worked on the family farm. He attended Cornersville schools and later completed three years of college where he earned a degree in education. He bought a farm of his own and he along with his late wife of 34 years, Donna Rigsby King, raised two wonderful children, Sam and Sarah.

Mickey King has served this community for years, whether serving on multiple boards, coaching our children, or umpiring their games, he has always put family and community first.

He has owned a small business for over twenty years and has served as your Marshall County Commissioner for twenty years. He has always had the best interest of our community at heart and would appreciate your support again this election season. Thank you.

Elect Vickie Michael City Council Ward 2

I will represent you by:

- Maintaining a planned and sustained growth.
- Analyzing the city's financial strengths and weaknesses.
- Ensuring taxpayers' money is spent sensibly.

I have community involvement with 22 years as a Classroom Educator, Marshall County Schools.

I have financial experience with 15 years as an Accountant, Franklin, TN

I pledge to work to move Lewisburg forward.

I encourage anyone with questions or comments to call 931-993-9737 or email me at vickiem@hughes.net. I look forward to hearing from you and remember to vote on August 4th.

My name is Roger Russell and I am asking to be your Register of Deeds for Marshall County. I grew up in Columbia, graduated from Columbia Central High School, earned a degree from Columbia State Community College, attended extra classes and became a licensed real estate agent. I then went on to earn a Bachelor's Degree from Southeastern University in Lakeland, Florida. While attending college full time and working full time, I was involved with different children's ministries at the church. In my last year of college, I became a full time licensed youth minister and held credentials for about 10 years.

Most people know the position I hold as "the FedEx guy" as I deliver for FedEx Express in Lewisburg. I have been a dangerous goods specialist for most of my 30+ years of service. I have delivered in every community in Marshall county and have enjoyed serving in the community in which I live.

I want to continue to serve the people of Marshall County by being elected the Register of Deeds. We are in a time that our country, state, and county need new faces, new ideas, and change for the betterment of Marshall County. Your voice is heard by voting in change! Your vote does make a difference! Thank you for your support and vote.
