

Belfast • Chapel Hill • Cornersville • Farmington • Lewisburg • Mooresville• Petersburg

www.marshalltribune.com

Thursday, November 3, 2022

75¢

Volume 125 - No. 40

Pictured (L to R): Colonel (ret) Larry McKnight, USARNG, SP5 Wayne Cozart, US Army, and MSG (ret) Brandon Cannon, US Army

Marshall County and Lewisburg to host 2nd Annual Veterans' Day Parade

Marshall County and the City of Lewisburg are honored to host the 2nd Annual Veterans' Day Parade on Friday, November 11, 2022. The parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot at Marshall County High School and will end at the Lewisburg Square via Tiger Blvd and West Commerce St.

"Marshall County is proud to be teaming up with the City of Lewisburg again this year to events that occur throughout honor the Veterans of our county with a parade. Our initial parade last year was a big success and we're hoping to build off of it for this year's parade. I hope the people of Marshall County will turn out in great numbers along the parade route as we salute our Veterans for their dedicated and decorated service to our country. The parade is just one of so many wonderful our county honoring our Veterans. It's a special day well deserved for those who served," stated Marshall County Mayor Mike Keny.

Any veteran in Marshall County is welcome to participate in the parade. To sign up, please call Mayor Keny's office at 359-1279 or the Veterans' Services office at 359-5482.

2022 Fairest of the Fair

The 2022 Fairest of the Fair pageant took place at Rock Creek Park's center stage, during the Goats, Music & More Fair, Oct. 22nd. Girls 1 year to 20 years competed in the six different categories: Tiny Tot, Baby Miss, Tiny Miss, Little Miss, Jr. Miss, and Miss Fairest of the Fair.

2022 Miss Fairest of the Fair - Brooklyn Thompson

Tennessee sheriffs Society subject

The Marshall County Histori- ence degree from Tennessee Tech tury Farm called Rebel Springs at cal Society will meet Sunday af-and a Master of Science and a Pleasant Valley Farm. As life-long ternoon, November 6, at 2 p.m. Doctor of Philosophy from Texas A Christians, they always saw their in the Marshall County Histori- & M. While at TAMU, Erwin was marriage as God-centered. a member of the famous Fightin' Texas Aggie Cadet Corps. He was later commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Army. After serving as a Medical Corps officer, he began a career in the food industry. His experiences in the industry led him to become a business diagnostics specialist and leadership coach. Many lo-cal readers will remember Erwin from his days as Executive Vice-President of Moon Pencil Company. Lynn Erwin was a graduate of Middle Tennessee State University and taught elementary school for many years. The Erwins enjoyed traveling and spending time on their Maury County Cen-

Ronnie Erwin and his wife, the late Lynn McKee Erwin. authors of the publication, "Stars Over Tennessee' cal Museum, Hardison Annex, 230 College Street. An interesting program is planned with Ronnie Erwin of Maury County presenting excerpts from his publication entitled "Stars Over Tennessee". Produced by Erwin and his late wife, Lynn McKee Erwin, the book is massive and covers the sheriffs who served all 95 Tennessee counties from the late 1800's forward. Reflecting on the gold star worn by law enforcement officers, the Erwins collected wonderful documentation about the lives of these public servants. Erwin will have a Power Point presentation with pictures to enhance his talk.

Erwin holds a Bachelor of Sci-

Remembered by her husband with a deep love, Lynn is memorialized with "The Lynn M. Erwin Education and Training Memorial Fund for the Tennessee Sheriffs' Association. Each year this perpetual program will distribute monies to one of the 95 sheriffs to support additional education and training for their department. All proceeds of the book go into this fund. The book can be purchased at a discounted price of $125 the day of the meeting.

The public is encouraged to attend. Admission is free. Doors will be open by 1 p.m. for those who want to browse the museum.

CDC celebrates 50 years of service

The Community Development Center (CDC) celebrated its 50th year anniversary with a tree planting at the Child Development Center of Marshall County in Lewisburg on September 30, 2022. Founded by local educators and parents of children with developmental disabilities in 1972 at the Shelbyville Episcopal Church, the agency has grown to serve 17 counties in southern middle Tennessee. The CDC focuses on providing services to individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities and delays of all ages, from young children and their families to seniors in need of support. Services offered by the CDC include early intervention, a behavioral therapy program, family support, senior equipment loan, independent support coordination, and employment services. The early intervention and behavioral therapy programs at the Child Development Center in Marshall County provide a strong start toward a successful future for children and their families. The Annual Helping Hands Golf Tournament and silent auction sponsored by local businesses, corporations, and individuals, helps to support these programs for children. Executive Director Anita Teague was joined by families, friends, and supporters in this joyful celebration. Founder Sarah Hunt recounted the agency's humble beginning and growth over the past 50 years. Carol Jean and her daughter Mandy recounted the tremendous support, training, and hope they received through early intervention, and continue to receive through the CDC. Teague reflected on the many successes of the organization which in the past year served over 1,300 children and adults throughout 17 counties. The tree planting symbolically represents the strong roots of the organization in the community and the commitment to continue to thrive and grow in the service of children and adults with disabilities.

Early vote end today; election Tuesday

By Scott Pearson Associate Editor

Today, Thursday, Nov. 3, is the last day for early voting in next week's federal and state election.

Voters have until 6 p.m. today to get their vote in at the Election Office in the Hardison Annex.

Otherwise, polls will be open on Tuesday, Nov. 8, from 7 a.m. until p.m.

On Tuesday, votes must be cast at one of the nine assigned polling sites throughout the county.

A list of polling locations is printed on Page 2 in today's Marshall County Tribune.

On the ballot is the race for Tennessee Governor between incumbent Bill Lee and challenger Dr. Jason Martin.

Representatives for the new 5th District for the US House of Representatives will be chosen between Heidi Campbell and Andy Ogles and the state house 92nd District between incumbent Todd Warner and challenger Angela Hughes.

Residents of District 8 will be voting for either Tara Ewing and James Hopkins to fill a seat on the County Commission.

In Cornersville, incumbents Mary Johnson, Doris Arthur, and Sheryl McCormick are unopposed to retain their seats on the Board of Aldermen.

Beth Vick appears on the ballot but has withdrawn from the race after her part-time employment with the town due to conflict of interest.

That seat will instead be filled by appointment of the sitting board members.

Four proposed amendments to the state constitution are included as well.

One would add the state's antiunion "right to work" language to the constitution.

The others establish a succession plan in case the governor becomes incapacitated, remove a remaining allowance for slavery, and an unenforced prohibition against clergy serving in the legislature.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS ENDS SUNDAY—FALL BACK