

Are you thankful for the right things?

By Danny Tyree

Please pardon me, but I am always overcome by mawkish sentimentality at this time of year.

I cannot contain my gratitude. I am thankful for a paycheck and sunsets and modern plumbing and mobility and rainbows and warm clothing and good friends and conjunctions and...

I am thankful that I can do anything you can do better, I can do anything better than you - except get $%&# show tunes out of my head.

I am thankful for eight-month tick-and-flea collars, because the traumatic monthly sprayings do not promote ideal master/pet relations. ("Believe me, if I had opposable thumbs, I would light the sack on fire myself, buddy!")

I am thankful that I don't often get into embarrassing public conversations where I mispronounce misleadingly spelled names ("Erdogan," "Ghosn," "Ghislaine," etc.) that I have encountered only in print. I am thankful that my parents gave me a good, old-fashioned, easy-to-pronounce, meat-and-potatoes name. Although, admittedly, I got a lot of ribbing in school when the teacher called "Ribeye Russet Tyree."

Speaking of school, I am thankful that I went through the educational system in an unenlightened time when being the "teacher's pet" didn't include NEUTERING.

I am thankful that when someone sneezes, I can still wish them a heartfelt "gesundheit," without being required by law to add "press 2 if you wish to hear 'gesundheit' in Spanish."

I am thankful that I am savvy enough not to leap at extended warranties. Okay, obviously, I got the one on "temporary insanity," but that's it.

I am thankful that I have survived this long without being remotely proficient at tying knots. ("There! That boat's not going anywhere - unless it gets repossessed to pay for all the duct tape.")

I am thankful that only God can make a tree, because one made by committee/focus group would be a disaster. ("Bark? Bark? Are we trying to get confused with a kennel? I'm going to go out on a limb here and say...oh, wait, that reminds me, limbs are so last year...")

I am thankful that I can USUALLY purchase my size 14 shoes without clerks wagering on how many clowns will cram back into the car.

I am thankful that I get a percentage of the gate when my good gut bacteria and bad gut bacteria have a mixed martial arts showdown.

I am thankful for Google Earth, because when I was watching "Bewitched" as a tyke, my recurring thought was always, "Forget jetpacks! I hope someday everyone in the world will get to be Gladys Kravitz!"

I am thankful that I have somehow resisted the siren call of cryptocurrency. Granted, the Sirens in Greek mythology had a call more melodic than "Hey, doofus, over there - wanna get rich quick?"

I am thankful that humans don't hibernate, because "The best part of waking up is Folgers in your barrel" just doesn't have the same ring to it.

I am thankful for the thoughts and prayers of friends and acquaintances, even in an era when thoughts and prayers are not in high regard. ("Just heard that you're laid up with a bad back. Well, we're going to pass some emergency legislation banning bad backs. Perhaps you'd like to contribute...")

Mostly, I'm thankful I can keep in touch with my valued readers via Twitter (@TyreeDanny) and Truth Social (@tyreetyrades).

Don't be a stranger. Especially not some enchanted evening...Aaarrggghhh!

POLICE BLOTTER

Two people face drug charges following their arrest Thursday, Nov. 10 at their North Church Street home.

An officer spotted a fire burning and Dillon E. Anthony, 31, entering the residence. Lewisburg Fire Department was called to extinguish the blaze. No charges were filed in connection with the fire.

After the fire was doused, three officers forced a door to the home and looked for Anthony and Desirae L. Lewis, 26, who had active warrants against them.

"Dillon was found beside a mattress and Desirae under the bed" in a bedroom, Officer W. Evans' report said.

Officers said they found .33 grams of methamphetamine, prescription drugs prescribed to persons other than the suspects, steel knuckles, and numerous cell phones believed to be used in drug activity.

Both are charged with evading arrest, simple possession of a schedule 2 drug, three counts of possession of a legend drug without a prescription, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of a prohibited weapon, and violation of probation. Lewis is also charged with failure to appear.

Bonds were set at $9,500 for Lewis and $7,500 for Anthony.

THEFTS

•A computer, projector, and eight bean bag chairs were stolen from First United Methodist Church, West Church Street, overnight Friday, Oct. 29, according to a Lewisburg Police Department report released Nov. 15.

Entry was gained through a door accidentally left unlocked, police were told.

Whoever entered helped themselves to the church's supply of ice cream and cookie dough, the report said.

•A Louisiana man is accused of stealing medication from Walmart last Friday, Nov. 11.

Corey Silvio Boudoin, 27, of Carencro, Louisiana (near Lafayette), allegedly carried a box of medication to the cereal aisle and placed the contents in his pocket. Security personnel notified police and Boudoin was allegedly getting another bottle of the medication when he saw Officer Robert Gurley arriving. Boudoin was released on recognizance.

•A shoplifter took two video game controllers and a set of speakers Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 9 from Walmart. The suspect is described as a black male with a ball cap, red hoody/sweatshirt, blue jeans and tennis shoes.

•A man grabbed a bottle of tequila and walked out of East Side Liquors, East Commerce Street, without paying on Thursday, Nov. 3, police were told.

The suspect was described as a black male wearing a blue hoody and black pants. He allegedly took the tequila while a woman with him made a purchase.

•A utility trailer was forcibly entered overnight Monday, Nov. 7 in the 6200 block of Old Nashville Highway in Chapel Hill, a Marshall County Sheriff's Office report said.

Approximately $7,150 worth of items were taken, the owner said. He arrived Tuesday morning to find the trailer open and its lock lying nearby.

Missing items include drills, batteries and a fiber splicing kit.

•The license plate was stolen from a vehicle at a Forest Run

Drive home overnight Sunday, an MCSO report said.

ARRESTS

•Two more suspects have been arrested in connection with the Nov. 6 theft of several items from a home on Highway 40.

Kandice Elisa Hood, 40, of West Church Street, and April Dawn Maywald, 42, of Polly Adams Road, Belfast, are charged with theft, according to the Marshall County Sheriff's Office.

The women were allegedly seen on security video taking items from the property, an incident report said.

Jason Luna and James J. Brown were previously charged.

•A woman wanted on several Marshall County charges was arrested during a Tennessee Highway Patrol traffic stop in Maury County shortly after midnight Saturday morning.

Joleen Leilani Anderson, 45, of Columbia, is charged with failure to appear, manufacturing/delivering/selling/possessing a schedule 2 drug, possession of a firearm with intent to go armed, and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia. Bond was set at $15,000.
