

Tigers split games to start week

Tribune Staff Report

LEWISBURG — A night after hammering the Webb School to the tune of 17 runs on 13 hits, offense was tough to come by against top-notch pitching from Central Magnet.

In a low-scoring affair, it was Central Magnet that edged the Marshall County Tigers on Tuesday night in a 2-1 final score.

Central Magnet wasted no time and plated the game's first run in the top of the first frame, but starting pitcher Bailin Luttrell settled in and kept the visitors from plating another run until the fourth inning.

He pitched four innings and gave up just two runs on six hits while striking out three before the Tigers turned to Eli Cross in relief.

Cross pitched the final three innings and gave up just one hit while striking out six.

James Hery and Trey Warner connected for the only base hits of the night for the Tigers.

Marshall County is back on its home field on Thursday night, hosting Cascade for a 6:30 p.m. first pitch.

BELL BUCKLE — A monster seventh in-

Bulldogs' offense in prime form during week's openers

Tribune Staff Report

CORNERSVILLE — An eight-run fourth-inning was more than enough to land the Cornersville Bulldogs their second win of the week on Tuesday night against visiting Santa Fe.

Cornersville scored in every inning and plated a 14th run in the bottom of the fifth to reach the 100-run rule limit as the Dawgs beat Santa Fe, 14-4.

Early on, it looked like the game might become a good old fashioned shootout as both teams plated three runs in the first inning and added a fourth in the second frame.

But starting pitcher Peyton Cherry settled in and locked down the Wildcats' bats through the final three innings.

He gave up just four runs on four hits, but only one of which was earned, while striking out 11 batters in the process.

With Cherry dealing on the mound, the Bulldogs' bats took care of Santa Fe pitching through the remainder of the game.

Gage Lovell went 2-for-2 with two RBIs to his credit.

Tanner Pease also went 2-for-2 with a double and two runs driven in as well.

Beau Schillig accounted for the other extra base hit for Cornersville as he went 1-for-3 with an RBI as well.

The Bulldogs are back

ning landed the Marshall County Tigers a massive, 13-run win in Monday night's season opener at the Webb School.

The Tigers plated nine runs in the seventh inning to hand the Feet a 17-4 loss.

There was plenty of offense to go around as the Tigers connected on 13 hits against six Webb pitchers.

Webb took the early lead, but a three-run third inning put the Tigers in front and gave Marshall County a lead they never gave up.

Two triples and a sac-fly plated three runs for the Tigers in the third.

Trey Warner and John Morgan Thomas both connected on RBI triples and Reid Mitchell hit a sac-fly to put the Tigers up 3-1.

Webb got one back in the bottom of the third, but Marshall County added three more in the fourth and two more in the fifth to take an 8-2 lead.

The Tigers hammered the Feet to the tune of five extra base hits, with Bailin Luttrell going 2-for-5 with a double and a triple.

Warner and Grayson Miller split time on the bump and combined for 14 strikeouts, while allowing just one earned run to plate.

CORNERSVILLE 12, SANTA FE 1

SANTA FE — Cornersville got off to a red-hot start to the 2023 season on Monday afternoon, blasting Santa Fe 12-1.

The Bulldogs got a steady mix of timely hitting and an excellent outing by starting pitcher Beau Schillig.

Schillig pitched all six innings for the Bulldogs and gave up just one unearned run on two hits while striking out 10.

The Bulldogs scored early and scored the first run of the game in the top of the first, but played add on with a three-spot in the top of the fourth and put the game out of reach with an eight-run sixth inning to slam the door shut on the Wildcats.

Of the Bulldogs' seven hits, only Colyn Schillig recorded an extra base hit.

Gage Lovell went 2-for-2 with an RBI, while Blaine Woodward, Logan Terry, Peyton Cherry and Ayden Campbell all singled as well.

Tigerettes off to hot start of regular season

Tribune Staff Report

LEWISBURG — There were plenty of theatrics in Tuesday night's home opener for the Marshall County Tigerettes.

Marshall County supplied plenty of offense, but had to survive a seventh-inning surge by Spring Hill as the Tigerettes held on for a 13-11 win over the visiting Lady Raiders to open the home slate on Tuesday night.

In the top of the seventh, trouble brewed for the home team as Spring Hill went on to plate four runs.

Spring Hill collected back-to-back singles to start off the seventh and followed with an error and a two RBI double.

Even with an error and a walk, the Tigerettes were able to minimize the damage and thanks to an earlier barrage of offense, hang on for the win.

In total, the Tigerettes belted out a whopping 14 hits and were led by Demiyah Blackman and Haylee Hobby on the night.

Blackman went 4-for-4, including a triple, and drove home three runs.

Kaniyah Taylor and Haylee Hobby also drove in three runs apiece, with Hobby mashing a solo home run in the five-run fifth inning.

Mallory Woodward also clubbed an RBI triple in the inning as well.

From the pitcher's circle, it was a collective effort that saw Courtney Lynch, Brookelyn Nunley and Hobby split efforts on the night.

Lynch went 3 1/3 innings and struck out two, while giving up six runs.

Hobby pitched three innings and struck out two against four hits and gave up five runs, only one of which was earned.

Nunely pitched 2/3 of an inning and didn't allow a run to cross the plate.

The Tigerettes will be back on the road on Thursday night and travel to Coffee County for a 6 p.m. first pitch.

Marshall Co. 10, Lawrence Co. 6

LAWRENCEBURG — The Marshall County Tigerettes opened the season with a big win at Lawrence County, thanks in no small part to the efforts of senior second baseman Mallory Woodward.

Woodward went 4-for-4 in the opener and drove home three runs as the Tigerettes handed Lawrence County a 10-6 loss in the opener.

Marshall County wasted no time jumping on the Lawrence County pitching staff, with Courtney Lynch singling in her first at-bat of the regular season.

She later scored on a sac-fly by Demiyah Blackman and the Tigerettes padded their lead with a RBI double by Kaniyah Taylor.

Marshall County later doubled its lead with another two-run inning in the third, with Lynch and Woodward connecting on back-to-back singles to lead off the frame.

Lynch scored on Woodward's single and Blackman recorded her second RBI of the night, driving home Woodward on a double to right.

Lawrence County eventually was able to put runs on the board and got one back in the bottom of the third, two in the fourth and one in each of the final three innings.

The Tigerettes made sure the late-game surge couldn't threaten the lead with a three-spot in the top of the sixth.

In total, three of the Tigerettes hits went for extra bases, with Taylor recording a triple and a double to go with Blackman's third-inning double.

Haylee Hobby went the distance in the pitcher's circle and minimized the damage by the Lawrence County bats.

She gave up 12 hits, but only allowed five earned runs to cross the plate, while striking out three.

Braves option Anderson, Elder to Triple-A

NORTH PORT, Fla. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves have optioned Ian Anderson to their Triple-A affiliate, the latest setback for a right-hander whose promising start included pitching five hitless innings in Game 3 of the 2021 World Series.

The Braves announced Tuesday they had optioned both Anderson and right-hander Bryce Elder to Triple-A Gwinnett. Both players had been competing for the fifth spot in the Braves' starting rotation.

Anderson, 24, went 3-2 with a 1.95 ERA in the pandemic-shortened 2020 season and followed that up by going 9-5 with a 3.58 ERA while making 24 starts in 2021. He had a 4-0 record with a 1.26 ERA in eight postseason starts from 2020-21.

He was the winning pitcher in the Braves' 2-0 victory over the Houston Astros in Game 3 of the 2021 World Series and had a no-hitter going when he was removed after five innings.

But, he hasn't been the same since.

Anderson went 10-6 with a 5.00 ERA in 22 starts last season and was sent to the minors in early August. He has gone 0-1 with a 6.14 ERA in three preseason appearances this spring.

Bears agree to deal with Titans' Walker

By ANDREW SELIGMAN
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bears have added help on the defensive line, agreeing to a deal with former Tennessee Titans defensive end DeMarcus Walker.

Walker tweeted that he has an agreement in place with Chicago.

Former Seattle Seahawks running back Travis Homer agreed to a two-year deal with the Chicago worth as much as $4.5 million, agent Spencer Cannold said Tuesday night.

The Bears announced a two-year contract extension with fullback Khari Blasingame through the 2025 season and a one-year extension with long snapper Patrick Scales on Tuesday. Offensive lineman Dieter Eiselen — an exclusive rights free agent — signed a one-year deal.

Walker is coming off his best year, with a career-high seven sacks in his lone season with the Titans. He played for Denver from 2017 to 2020 and Houston in 2021.

The Bears sorely needed help on the defensive line after finishing with a league-worst 20 sacks, their lowest total since the 2003 team had 18. A safety — Jaquan Brisker — led them with four sacks, and no lineman had more than three.

Homer has run for 453 yards and one touchdown in four seasons with Seattle. The Seahawks drafted him in the sixth round in 2019.

Blasingame played in 16 games and helped block for a ground attack that led the league with a franchise-record 3,014 yards rushing. Scales is entering his eighth season with the Bears, and Eiselen originally signed with Chicago as an undrafted free agent out of Yale in 2020.

The Bears also have agreements in place with Buffalo Bills two-time Pro Bowl linebacker Tremaine Edmunds, former Philadelphia Eagles linebacker T.J. Edwards and former Tennessee guard Nate Davis, according to people familiar with their situations.

The Bears set a franchise record for losses while finishing with a league-worst 3-14 record. But they've made some big moves since the end of the season.

The Bears agreed

Friday to trade the No. 1 overall pick in the draft to Carolina, two people familiar with the deal told The Associated Press. Chicago addressed a big need for a playmaker to help quarterback Justin Fields by acquiring star receiver D.J. Moore from the Panthers along with the No. 9 and No. 61 overall picks in 2023, a first-rounder in 2024 and a second-rounder in 2025.

The Bears also hired Big Ten Commissioner Kevin Warren as team president in January and last month purchased a 326-acre plot of land in suburban Arlington Heights that the organization has been sizing up for a new enclosed stadium.

Chapel Hill likely to lose fee bid

The response to a request from Nashville dominated discussion at Monday's Board of Mayor and Aldermen meeting in Chapel Hill, which otherwise faced a brief agenda. Town Administrator Danny Bingham told the board that he had been informed that revisions to the town's charter submitted to the legislature for approval had hit a snag. Bingham, in Nashville attending Tennessee Municipal League meetings Monday, said that two sections would need to be deleted in order for the rest to be approved. At issue are the inclusion of the ability to assess impact fees on new construction, aimed at offsetting some of the infrastructure costs created by growth. Lobbyists, especially from the home construction industry, oppose addition of impact fees for new construction. Lewisburg attempted to add an impact fee on new construction last year during charter revisions, which also had to be removed prior to passage. The county assesses an impact fee on new construction, the adequate facilities tax, including within the various municipalities, proceeds of which are divided between the Board of Public Utilities and the Highway Department. Lewisburg approves special permits and annexations

After a three hour work session last week, the Lewisburg City Council cleared some lingering business Tuesday night, with a 19 item agenda. Council finally approved the one contentious resolution remaining from amendments that would allow special event alcohol sales on city property. The special events permit piece of that effort has seen differing versions of the ordinance drawn up by City Attorney Quinn Brandon Stewart and Councilman Joe Bradford. After a seeming impasse at the work session on which version should proceed to a vote, Brandon's version, with a revision suggested by council, was accepted by the council with a 3 to 2 vote. Bradford and Councilman Tommy Burns, who favored more compromise between the two, voting in opposition. Annexation and rezoning requests figured heavily on this month's agenda. The council approved on final reading the annexation, with an R-1 low density residential zoning, of roughly 24 acres on West Ellington Parkway in the vicinity of Marshall County High School, for the intended development of West Ellington Ridge subdivision. Also approved on final reading was the annexation of a 20 acre parcel on Green Valley Drive. Returning to the agenda was a request to annex approximately 146 acres running between Holly Grove

Road and Finley Beech Road and to zone the property for a low density planned urban development.

The council voted against the project, 3 to 2, on the second reading in February after previously passing it on first reading.

There was some unease expressed on the council about the lot sizes at the project, even though they met the requirements of the city's PUD guidelines.

The developer presented the project to the council at last week's work session and answered any questions about the project.

The presentation seemed to have worked as the council again passed the proposal on first reading, unanimously. Questions were raised about proper notice of the request being given for its return to the council.

The council is scheduled to interview two candidates for city treasurer on Wednesday. At the work session last week, Chuck Downham, a consultant from the Municipal Technical Advisory Service, told the council that the response to the posting had been poor, in part due to the salary range advertised, between $75,000 and 90,000. That range is substantially lower than similar cities are currently offering, he said, and the council should consider pay scales overall if the city wished to attract and retain talent.

That concern is echoed in other departments as well, as Police Chief Scott Braden informed the council at the work session that his department could potentially see substantial departures in the near future. The police department especially has seen serious turnover for years as area law enforcement agencies compete to attract officers. In the past, former councils have increased starting salaries for officers, but the current council will have to consider similar actions in order to keep LPD competitive with hiring and retaining officers.

"I'm going to have trainees training trainees," Braden told the council last week.

Council approved the sale of two acres of city owned property on East Hill Street to the Marshall County Emergency Communications Board. The city will net $100,000 from the sale.

Council passed a resolution based on Nashville's landlord registration guidelines, requiring owners of rental property to register their properties for a $10 fee. The resolution was introduced mainly to ensure contact information for landlords when issues with their properties arise.

Council voted to return $25,000 awarded to the city by the Boyd Foundation in 2018 for the development of a dog park. With the city experiencing fiscal issues afterward, and the grant representing a fraction of the funds needed for the project, the funds were never expended.

municipalities, which also face infrastructure costs due to growth, are unhappy that fees are collected within their borders for new construction but none of the revenue is shared for water, road, or emergency services expansion.

The board voted to authorize Bingham and Town Attorney Todd Moore make the necessary revisions required for passage of the revised charter.

The board also voted to amend the residential code to include language requiring sprinkler systems in new two story townhomes or duplexes. In the past, the county and municipalities have generally excluded such requirements, but now that so many of these units are being constructed in the area, the language is being added back into the codes.

Aldermen approved on third and final reading an ordinance amending the current fiscal year budget to clean up several accounting issues related to estimated versus actual spending.

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)

The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, formerly referred to as the Food Stamp Program, now has higher deductions for individuals 60 years of age OR a disabled individuals on SSI or SSDI.

The SNAP program announced an increase of the asset limit to $4,250 to qualify for the program. In 13 counties in southern Middle Tennessee, millions of dollars are lost annually by individuals who do not apply for these benefits.

To apply for these benefits, call Bonnie Walker at South Central Tennessee Development District at

Have you ever been on the radio?

By Danny Tyree

Everyone should do it at least once in their life. Speak on the radio, I mean. While promoting my new book (search for my name on Amazon if you're curious), I had the honor of being interviewed live (via telephone) on Nashville's Super Talk 99.7. (Not that I haven't broadcast live from a studio before. Forty-something years ago, my career as a DJ came to a screeching halt after a single comedy-of-errors weekend. In the weeks following that catastrophe, when the word "frequency" came up locally, it had less to do with signal modulation than "Just how often will the sheriff let us tar and feather someone?" I'm glad I built up the nerve to do the interview.

Like many people, I am self-conscious about my voice. Sure, when my utterances go straight from my mouth to my ears, I imagine myself subbing for Patrick Stewart onstage in "Macbeth" or exchanging urbane witticisms with the fabled Algonquin Round Table. But when I hear my voice on a tape recorder or other such device, I remind myself of Huckleberry Hound with his bow tie on too tight. Some people have a face made for radio. I have a voice made for hieroglyphs. I'll admit that I overprepared for the interview. Sure, the cough drops IV unit was marginally defensible, and I may yet find a venue for the six-act hand puppet biography of Guglielmo Marconi; but I could still face litigation for disabling every toilet within the range of hearing and simultaneously gagging the Ty-D-Bol Man. The genial host invited me to relax and treat it like a normal one-on-one conversation, but my brain has a built-in translator. A benign query such as "What inspired you to write this book?" becomes as stressful as "When you sign this 40-year mortgage, you do realize we'll know where you live, right?" or "Just what are your intentions with my virgin daughter, you young punk?" On the other hand, it's hard to take yourself too seriously when you know that while half the listeners are hanging on your every word, the thoughts of the other half drift toward, "Oooo, I hope they rerun the jingle with the yodeling vinyl siding today!" All in all, it was a great experience. I hope you seize your own radio opportunities. Voice your opinion on a political show. Phone in and prognosticate on a sports show. Compete in a trivia contest. Announce a birthday or anniversary. Publicize your civic organization. Don't be a wallflower when an on-air personality does a remote broadcast from one of your favorite businesses. You'll get a priceless ego boost when friends and acquaintances laud you as a celebrity. But remain vigilant as you enjoy your 15 minutes of fame. I keep expecting the IRS to connect the dots. ("Hmm. 15 minutes of fame. Time is money. Audit time! KA-CHING!") And it might be even more than 15 minutes of fame. We tend to think of radio broadcasts as having less permanence than a book, but those radio waves just keep traveling through the universe. Perhaps someday they'll reach intelligent life thousands of light-years away. "Dude! It's just like those earth signals I picked up forty-something years ago. Huckleberry Hound is still their leader! Have they never heard of term limits??? Somebody just go ahead and give me an alien autopsy right now!"

POLICE BLOTTER

SCAMS

A Marshall County woman was told by a scam caller last week that she'd be arrested if she didn't send gift cards. The caller claimed to be a Homeland Security agent. The woman sent approximately $36,000 in gift cards before contacting the Marshall County Sheriff's Office. She also discovered several credit card accounts had been opened in her name without her knowledge. The total amount scammed was more than $96,000 with more accounts still being discovered, Deputy Christopher Burgess's report said. •The owner of a Lewisburg business was notified Feb. 23 that she would be expected to begin paying back a Small Business Administration loan beginning this month. That came as a surprise since she hadn't applied for a loan. An SBA representative told the woman someone had used her personal information to obtain an SBA Covid loan for $28,000. The money was deposited in September 2020 in a bank with which the victim has never done business. She contacted Lewisburg police on the advice of the SBA.

SHOPLIFTING

•Security video shows a woman leaving Walmart in Lewisburg with $243.68 worth of merchandise on Feb. 16, Lewisburg police were told Friday, March 10. The suspect, who has been identified but not yet arrested, put the items in her handbag.

•A man ran from Walmart on Saturday, March 11 with a pack of razors valued at approximately $35, police said. The man fled when confronted by store security and was last seen near a wooded area behind the shopping center. •Approximately $250 worth of items were shoplifted Saturday from the Dollar General Store in Farmington. An employee told the MCSO a white female in a purple sweatshirt and a white male in a camouflage shirt with a beanie and sunglasses scanned only a few items in their cart. One possible receipt showed a container of chili seasoning scanned 16 times.

DRUG ARREST

Two jars containing methamphetamine were confiscated from a suspect being arrested on Lincoln County warrants Wednesday, March 8, at the gas pumps outside Kroger in Lewisburg, an MCSO report said. Burgess was searching Johnny Lee McCoy, 38, of Old Farmington Road and discovered a syringe in his clothing, his report said. A vehicle search followed in which the meth, measured at a total of 1.25 grams, was allegedly found. McCoy was charged in Marshall County with simple possession of a schedule 2 drug and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $5,000. The report did not specify the nature of the Lincoln County warrants.

Japanese Cornel Dogwood provides bright mid-winter blooms

UT Gardens' March 2023 Plant of the Month

Submitted by Sue Hamilton, Director Emerita of the UT Gardens, Knoxville

The landscape can be dreary in January and February, so trees or shrubs that offer a bit of cheer with winter blooms can be a welcome addition to almost any yard or garden. Underused in the landscape, the Japanese cornel dogwood is just such a plant. In midwinter it defies the gloom with showy clusters of yellow flowers. The Japanese cornel dogwood's exfoliating bark also adds interest to the winter garden with its rich grays, browns and oranges. Native to Japan and Korea, Cornus officinalis usually grows as a large, spreading, multi-stemmed, deciduous shrub or a small tree up to 15- to 25-feet tall. A deciduous plant with pale yellow to reddish-purple fall foliage, the Japanese cornel dogwood is effective in the landscape when used in foundation plantings, shrub borders, woodland gardens, bird gardens or naturalized areas. The plant prefers full sun to partial shade and tolerates a range of soil types. In the autumn, like other dogwoods, showy red fruits (drupes) decorate this plant. Technically these drupes are edible, but most would find them astringent. Japanese cornel dogwood is just one of about 30 to 50 species of dogwood, including our more familiar native flowering dogwood tree Cornus florida. Although it resembles the cornelian cherry dogwood (Cornus mas), the Japanese cornel dogwood grows with a slightly more open habit, flowers a bit earlier and has more attractive bark than cornelian cherry dogwood. Several great cultivars of Japanese cornel dogwood are available on the market including 'Sunspire' which flowers slightly earlier than others in the species; 'Kintoki' known for its heavier bloom; 'Lemon Zest' which has larger flowers than most selections; 'Issai Minan' which flowers well as a young plant; and 'Morris Arboretum' which has heavy bloom and a slightly longer flowering period. Tennessee nursery owner and University of Tennessee horticulture alumnus Mike Stansberry introduced the Sunspire selection. He named it for the Knoxville Sunspire, a landmark architectural tower that was constructed as part of the 1982 World's Fair. East Tennessee is home to Stansberry's Beaver Creek Nursery. 'Sunspire' Japanese cornel dogwood can be seen growing at the UT Gardens, Knoxville. The UT Gardens includes plant collections located in Knoxville, Crossville and Jackson, Tennessee. Designated as the official botanical garden for the State of Tennessee, the UT Gardens are part of the UT Institute of Agriculture. The Gardens' mission is to foster appreciation, education and stewardship of plants through garden displays, educational programs and research trials. The Gardens are open during all seasons and free to the public. For more information, see the Gardens website: utia.tennessee.edu/state-botanical-garden.

Maury Regional Medical Center distinguished as 'Best for Babies'

COLUMBIA, Tenn. — The Tennessee Department of Health and the Tennessee Hospital Association recognized Maury Regional Medical Center (MRMC) as one of 10 birthing hospitals in the state to receive the "BEST for Babies" award designation for efforts to reduce infant deaths in 2022. This is the fourth consecutive year the medical center has earned this designation.

Since 2014, the Tennessee Department of Health has partnered with state birthing hospitals to promote safe sleep for infants and to help give Tennessee babies a great start to life. The "BEST" award is an acronym for: breastfeeding, early elective delivery reduction and safe sleep for Tennessee babies. To receive the award designation, recognized hospitals must meet criteria established by the Tennessee Department of Health, including implementing breastfeeding safety and education initiatives, reducing early elective deliveries and promoting safe sleeping practices to reduce infant deaths.

"This recognition comes because of the fantastic work being done in our Mother/Baby Unit at Maury Regional Medical Center," said Maury Regional Health CEO Martin Chaney, MD. "They do a great job of ensuring that babies delivered at our hospital start off with the best possible care. To receive this designation four consecutive years is an accomplishment we're quite proud of." In addition to its recognition as a "BEST for Babies" hospital, MRMC is designated as a Baby-

Friendly birthing facility by the World Health Organization (WHO) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) for efforts to provide breastfeeding mothers the information, confidence and skills needed to initiate and continue breastfeeding their babies successfully. MRMC offers an entire floor dedicated to childbirth and gynecological care as well as nine specialists in obstetrics and gynecology on the medical staff. Additional childbirth services at Maury Regional Medical Center include a neonatal intensive care unit (NICU), breastfeeding support, newborn care and expectant parent education. “For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifies to the purifying of the flesh: How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God? And for this cause He is the mediator of the New Testament,” – Hebrews 9:13-15a

God’s word teaches us of the fact that humanity has fallen into sin, which separates us from having a love relationship with God our Creator (Romans 3:23). Therefore, God has revealed

Himself as merciful by allowing a blood sacrifice to atone for humanities sins. However, only a perfect, sinless, and innocent human blood sacrifice can fully atone for a human sinner. “For the life of the flesh is in the blood...for it is the blood that makes an atonement for the soul” (Leviticus 17:11). Even so, humanity had a problem. There was no one worthy who could be that perfect and innocent blood sacrifice. “For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not” (Ecclesiastes 7:20). Yet God demonstrating His love toward us, ordained to send His Son in human flesh as a man, to become obedient unto death by shedding His blood, even the death upon the cross (Philippians 2:7,8). However, until that time, God permitted a temporary animal blood sacrifice, which pointed to the coming of His Son.

There was a little boy whose sister needed a blood transfusion. The doctor explained that she had the same disease the boy had recovered from two years earlier. Her only chance to live was through a blood transfusion from someone who had previously overcame the disease. Since the two children had the same rare blood type, the boy was the only perfect donor. So the doctor asked little Johnny, “Would you give your blood to your sister Mary?” Johnny hesitated. His lip trembled. Then he smiled and said, “Sure, for my sister.” Soon the two children were wheeled into the hospital room. Neither spoke, but when their eyes met, Johnny grinned. As the nurse inserted the needle into his arm, Johnny’s smile faded. He watched the blood flow through the tube. With the transaction almost over, his voice broke the silence when he asked, “Doctor, when do I die?” Only then did the doctor realize why little Johnny hesitated when he agreed to donate his blood. He thought giving his blood to his sister meant giving up his life. Little Johnny fortunately didn’t have to die to save his little sister. However, each of us has a spiritual condition much more serious than Mary’s, and it is called sin, which does require the life’s blood of our elder brother Jesus Christ.

Jesus Christ, the Son of God willingly gave His life for all those who would believe and receive His spiritual blood transfusion to cleanse them from the disease of sin. This is done by your faith in Him alone.

Easter Dip Goodness

(Culinary.net) Easter is about coming together with loved ones, enjoying beautiful spring weather and eating your family's favorite foods. The kids will be playing, adults will be chatting and all will be patiently waiting for the table to be set.

If you're visiting and making memories with family and friends you haven't seen in a while, there are few things better than diving into a marvelous Easter spread.

Add in Parmesan and mozzarella cheeses then stir until combined.

Next, roll out crescent rolls. Stretch the dough then cut into 24 rolls.

Form the bunny shape and scoop your spinach dip mixture into the center of the bunny and its ears. Sprinkle the spinach dip with mozzarella cheese before baking at 375 F for 18 minutes.

This dish is made for a crowd, served warm and full of cheesy goodness. You can watch as your family dips into the spinach and one-by-one, before you know it, the rolls will have disappeared and the dip will be devoured.

Easter Bunny Rolls with Spinach Dip

Serves: 24

16 ounces frozen spinach, thawed
8 ounces cream cheese
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1/4 teaspoon chili powder
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
1 cup shredded Parmesan cheese
1 1/2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese, divided
2 crescent roll tubes (8 ounces each)

Heat oven to 375 F.

In skillet, over medium heat, cook spinach, cream cheese and garlic 3-4 minutes until cream cheese is melted. Stir in mayonnaise, salt, onion powder, chili powder, pepper and Italian seasoning. Stir in Parmesan cheese and 1/2 cup mozzarella cheese. Cook until cheese is melted. Keep skillet on burner over low heat.

Remove dough from tubes. Leaving dough intact, roll and stretch into 18-inch ropes. Cut each rope into 12 pieces for 24 total.

On baking sheet with parchment paper, form bunny head by placing one piece of dough in middle then surrounding it with six more pieces. Use 13 pieces to form round body. Use remaining pieces to form ears on top of head.

Scoop hot spinach dip into center. Spoon small portions on each ear. Sprinkle ears and belly with remaining mozzarella cheese.

Bake 18 minutes, or until crescent dough is golden brown and thoroughly cooked.

Rockets open season with sweep of Lewis Co

Tribune Staff Report

CHAPEL HILL — Luke Allen tossed a three-hit shutout in Forrest's home-opening victory on Tuesday night against visiting Lewis County.

Allen was in prime form and kept the basepaths clear as he allowed just three hits in the Rockets' win. While Allen's efforts on the mound keeping Lewis County guessing at the plate, the Rockets' batting order took care of business with a hot start in the bottom of the first inning. Forrest wasted no time in grabbing the lead, plating five runs in the first inning, three in the second and one in the third and fifth. In total, Forrest belted out 11 hits, three of which went for extra bases off the bat of Austin Dillon, Ryan Meglis and Riley Durbin. Kason Fuller, Preston Gentry and Durbin all drove in a pair of runs in the win as well.

FORREST 4, LEWIS CO. 1

CHAPEL HILL — In the 2023 season opener, Forrest picked up right where the Rockets left off in their run to the Class 2A state tournament a season ago and claimed a 4-1 win over Lewis County.

A three-run first inning gave Forrest all the cushion it would need in the opener, while the Rockets were able to tack on an insurance run in the top of the fourth inning.

Senior Riley Durbin got the nod and started for Forrest, pitching five innings of shutout baseball. He gave up four hits, but struck out five before Carter Walk took over and pitched the final two innings in relief. Walk gave up one run on two hits, but minimized the Lewis County bats' effectiveness during his two innings on the bump.

Offensively, it was Kason Fuller who drove in a pair of runs on one hit, while Luke Allen went 2-for-4 with a solo homer.

Riley Durbin also singled in the win.

Lady 'Dawgs split early week games

Tribune Staff Report

CORNERSVILLE — After falling in their season opener on Monday, the Cornersville Lady 'Dawgs responded with a monster win over Moore County on Tuesday, blasting the Raiderettes, 12-1 in five innings.

The Cornersville battery hammered out 11 hits, with Alicia Polk and Emma Ward both going 3-for-3 on the night.

Ward also drove in six runs and homered, and doubled.

Senior Alicia Polk also connected on a round-tripper and drove in four runs on the night.

The Lady 'Dawgs scored in every run, except the fourth, and was highlighted by a five-run third inning.

While virtually everyone in the batting order got involved in the blowout win, it was Jayli Childress who kept the Raiderettes bats whiffing through all five innings.

She went the distance and gave up just one earned run on two hits, while striking out one.

The Lady 'Dawgs will be back on their home field on Friday night, hosting Santa Fe at 5:30 p.m.

for two runs in the bottom of the seventh to send the game to extra innings.

In the end, the Viqueens were able to plate the game-winning run and escape Cornersville with the 7-6 win over the Lady 'Dawgs.

Community got on the board first with a run in the top of the first inning, but saw the Lady 'Dawgs score the tying run in the bottom of the third.

Community responded by knocking in three more runs in the top of the frame.

After the Viqueens pulled ahead, 6-4 in the top of the seventh, an error allowed two Lady 'Dawgs runs to score to force the extra frame.

Jayli Childress and Emma Ward each connected on two base hits in the opener, with senior Alicia Polk and Zoe Blackwell each mashing a triple.

In the pitcher's circle, both Childress and Carmen Ward pitched four innings, with Childress giving up four runs, two of which were earned, on six hits, while Ward allowed three earned runs on eight hits, while striking out three.

South Carolina women chasing 3rd title

By The Associated Press

March Madness is here! Here is what to know about the women's NCAA Tournament, including the favorites and underdogs as well as key games and how to watch:

TOP SEEDS

The top four seeds in the tournament are South Carolina, Indiana, Virginia Tech and Stanford. Each is in a region, some tougher than others (on paper). We break them down for you:

SOUTH CAROLINA (32-0): The defending national champions are the No. 1 overall seed and the Greenville I Region breaks down favorably. It includes two teams in No. 2 seed Maryland (25-6) and No. 4 seed UCLA (23-9) who the Gamecocks beat earlier this season. South Carolina is loaded, with two-time Southeastern Conference player of the year Aliyah Boston and leading scorer Zia Cooke.

INDIANA (27-3): After a loss to Ohio State in the Big Ten Tournament semis, some wondered if the Hoosiers might miss out on a top seed. They landed it in the Greenville II Region and start against either Tennessee Tech or Monmouth. Mackenzie Holmes leads Indiana with 22.3 points and 7.3 rebounds per game. Top challengers include No. 2 seed Utah, No. 3 seed LSU and No. 4 seed Villanova, which is led by scoring sensation Maddy Siegrist.

VIRGINIA TECH (27-5): The Hokies won their first ACC Tournament championship and will lead the Seattle 3 Region. Elizabeth Kitley has stepped things up down the stretch as Virginia Tech won its final eight games. Virginia Tech could have to navigate No. 4 seed Tennessee in the Sweet 16 and No. 2 seed UConn or No. 3 seed Ohio State after that.

STANFORD (28-5): The committee looked to Stanford's steadiness for much of the season in giving it the top seed in the Seattle 4 Region. The Cardinal are led by Cameron Brink and Haley Jones, who have combined to score more than 28 points per game this season. Look for a potential high-wattage battle for the Final Four against No. 2 seed Iowa, led by national player of the year candidate Caitlin Clark.

GAMES TO WATCH

No. 3 seed Notre Dame (25-5) vs. No. 14 seed Southern Utah (23-6), Friday. The Fighting Irish's chances for a deep run will certainly be affected by how seriously do-everything leader Olivia Miles is hurt. She left the ACC Tournament quarterfinals two weeks ago with a knee injury.

Monmouth (18-13) vs. Tennessee Tech (22-9), Thursday, ESPNU. Monmouth, surprise winners of the Colonial Athletic Association Tournament, have not played in the NCAA tourney since 1983 and get the chance to extend its stay in a First Four contest Wednesday. Either the Hawks or the Ohio Valley Conference Tournament champions in Tennessee Tech, both 16 seeds, will have to take on top-seed Indiana on Friday.

No. 5 seed Louisville (23-11) vs. No. 12 seed Drake (22-9), Saturday. The Cardinals were a Final Four team a season ago and start their journey back as a No. 5 seed. They'll open things against Drake (22-9), which was seeded fourth in the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament yet defeated Belmont to take the league's automatic bid. Louisville is led by Hailey Van Lith, who's averaged 19.2 points a game this season.

No. 4 seed Villanova (28-6) vs. No. 13 seed Cleveland State (30-4), Saturday. Villanova features one of the country's best players in Maddy Siegrist, a two-time Big East player of year. The Wildcats are in a stacked region with top seed Indiana, No. 2 seed Utah and No. 3 seed LSU in front of them. Cleveland State won the Horizon League and made the NAAs for the first time since 2010.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

The women's tournament field is filled with stars, including South Carolina's Aliyah Boston, last season's AP player of the year who is back in hopes of winning a second straight national title. She will have plenty of competition for the honor this year, including sharp-shooting Iowa star Caitlin Clark.

Purdue's supporting cast helps set table for March Madness

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

Purdue stuck to a simple game plan this season: Feed the ball to All-American Zach Edey and let the 7-foot-4 center feast in the post.

The old-school philosophy defied today's trendy, small-ball style heavy on the 3-pointer attack but it allowed the Boilermakers to ascend to No. 1 in the AP Top 25 twice this season.

Coach Matt Painter's squad needed more than just Edey to claim its first Big Ten Tournament title since 2009. If the East Region's top seed wants to avoid another earlier-than-expected NCAA tourney exit, Purdue's supporting cast must supplement Edey's medley in the middle.

"We have a lot of guys who could go to a different team and average a lot of points, be on all-Big Ten teams or whatever, but they're happy we're here," Edey said Sunday. "We have a lot of guys who love winning. That's what Purdue is."

The regular-season Big Ten champions are no one-man band. At No. 3 Purdue (29-5), the talent pool runs deep — and everybody has a role.

Freshman guards Braden Smith and Fletcher Loyer have started all season after finishing first and second in last year's IndyStar Mr. Basketball Award voting, just like teammates Caleb Furst and Trey Kaufman-Renn did in 2021.

Loyer is the smooth, polished shooter, the son of an NBA coach who averages 10.9 points per game. Smith is the confident, gritty guy who basks in driving opponents and their fans bonkers. He's also scores 9.8 per game.

"We all can shoot, we knew that coming into the season," Smith said last weekend. "Early on, we haven't shot it well but we're starting to figure it out."

The Boilermakers' rotation has a flavor for everyone.

Ethan Morton earned a starting job this year because he's a defensive stopper though he previously seemed comfortable being the high-scoring Pennsylvania prep star who earned the state's Mr. Basketball and Gatorade Player of the Year awards in 2019-20.

Guard David Jenkins Jr., a 24-year-old veteran, compiled more than 1,800 points at three schools, earning all-conference honors in two leagues before coming to Purdue. He is 11 points shy of 2,000.

Beefy forward Mason Gillis was an Indiana Junior All-Star and one of the state's top baseball players before a knee injury cost him his senior high school season. He helps Purdue play physical, but he's also a skilled shooter as Rutgers discovered when he went 7 of 8 in last week's quarterfinal win and Penn State learned when he made a career-high nine 3-pointers in February.

"You've got to do something right?" perplexed Nittany Lions coach Micah Shrewsbury said after that 20-point loss. "But Zach beat us up in the paint so badly the last time ... it's also about how you construct the team. You have the most dominant player in college basketball, and you put guys around him that fit perfectly."

Few have devised a solution this season and now Purdue has its first No. 1 seed since 1996.

Perhaps nobody appreciates the contributions or sacrifices Edey's teammates have made better than Painter, who grew up in Indiana a fan of the rival Hoosiers but was never recruited by Bob Knight even after making the 1989 Indiana All-Star team.

Instead, Painter was overshadowed by others at Purdue — Steve Scheffler, Woody Austin and Glenn "Big Dog" Robinson, the focal point of the 1992-93 team many also dubbed a one-man show.

Clearly, Painter didn't construct this roster by happenstance.

"In recruiting I just tell them, if you become one of our top two or three scorers, here's how we'll use you. If you don't, you're going to play a role," Painter said. "But you've got to have people that will play roles, and that's really it's a tip of the hat to those guys."

Now as Painter and the Boilermakers wait to see who they play Friday in Columbus, Ohio — either Texas Southern (14-20) or Fairleigh Dickinson (19-15) — the hope is that this NCAA trip won't end like some other recent ones.

Purdue has been to the Sweet 16 four times in its last five tourney appearances but has only advanced to the Elite Eight once. There have also been three first-round exits since 2015.

To achieve their first taste of the Final Four since Joe Barry Carroll took them in 1980, Purdue's complementary players need to produce alongside Edey. Painter knows people will watch to see if the Boilermakers "overdo" their talented big man.

"I just think we have good balance," Painter said. "I always talk about everybody's going to have to sacrifice to be able to win big, and then if you win big collectively, you get individual honors. When you win a championship by three games, I would hope people can kind of open their eyes to it."

Colts to cut Ryan in cap move

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts acquired Matt Ryan last March thinking he would help them make a postseason run, maybe even win a Super Bowl.

Now the two sides are now splitting up — and Ryan's long career could be over.

Indy plans to release the quarterback officially Wednesday, a person with knowledge of the decision told The Associated Press. The person requested anonymity because the decision has not been announced publicly.

By releasing the 37-year-old Ryan, the Colts will save about $17.2 million in salary cap space next season. Indy also saved an additional nearly $8 million by trading veteran cornerback Stephon Gilmore to Dallas for a fifth-round pick, though they'll use some of that by signing former Los Angeles Rams kicker Matt Gay.

Gay confirmed the deal in two Twitter posts — one thanking the Rams and their fans, the other announcing his excitement for joining Indy.

But the Ryan move came as no surprise.

Indy holds the No. 4 overall pick in next month's NFL draft and most analysts expect it to select one of four quarterbacks — 2021 Heisman Trophy winner Bryce Young, two-time Big Ten offensive player of the year C.J. Stroud, strong-armed Will Levis or Anthony Richardson.

"We get caught up in arm strength, but guys that are accurate and who makes plays when the game is on the line," general manager Chris Ballard said two weeks ago, explaining what he values in quarterbacks. "You look around the league and I think you can track this back to 7-on-7 back in high schools, 20, 25 years ago — you're getting a lot more athletes playing the position."

Some even believe Indy may trade up for one of the top three though the reported deal between Chicago and quarterback-needy Carolina for the top overall pick could complicate Indy's plans. Houston, also a quarterback-needy team, picks second while Arizona is at No. 3 but already has Kyler Murray signed to a long-term deal.

The likelihood of adding a young, franchise quarterback to provide stability for a team that has used a different opening day starter for six straight seasons made Ryan and his $35.2 cap hit expendable.

What's next for the league's 2016 MVP also remains unclear.

In January, Ryan said he wasn't ready to would retire and that he could still play at a high level.

His film and stats revealed a different story.

Ryan struggled in his only season with the Colts, playing for two head coaches, two offensive coordinators and two play-callers while working behind an offensive line that allowed the NFL's second-highest sacks total (60). Injuries also slowed 2021 NFL rushing champion Jonathan Taylor and having just one consistent receiving option — Michael Pittman Jr. — didn't help.

The result: Ryan finished with the league's second-most giveaways (18) despite playing five fewer games than Josh Allen (19), was sacked 40 times and benched twice in his only season in Indy.

Byron emerges as another star in Hendrick's deep lineup

By DAVID BRANDT
AP Sports Writer

AVONDALE, Ariz. — Kyle Larson is widely considered to be the most naturally-gifted driver at Hendrick Motorsports and there's little doubt that Chase Elliott is the most popular.

But as of March 2023, William Byron might just be the team's best driver.

It's been a slow, steady rise for Byron, who has won two straight NASCAR Cup Series races after pushing past Larson in overtime on Sunday at Phoenix Raceway during a pair of frantic restarts. The 25-year-old won in remarkably similar fashion last week at Las Vegas.

"We have four capable teams and four capable drivers of carrying the banner every weekend," Byron's crew chief Rudy Fugle said. "Pretty amazing."

Byron got a relatively late start in racing as a teenager, but has been a quick study. The North Carolina native won twice last season and now looks like a weekly threat while teaming with Fugle.

This is Byron's sixth season with Hendrick Motorsports and he received a contact extension last season after winning two races early in the year at Atlanta and Martinsville. He had a mid-season lull before closing with seven top 10s in his final 11 races and finished sixth in the Cup standings.

It's part of a progression that's slowly pushed him among NASCAR's elite drivers. He was 21st overall in his first full Cup season in 2018, before improving to 11th, 14th, 10th and then sixth in the ensuing years.

Now with two wins in the season's first four races, it's clear Byron is aiming for the No. 1 spot.

"This level is so different.

Took a lot of homework, a lot of details," Byron said. "I think the fact that I started later than most driving was a little bit — it took some time to bridge that gap at this level.

"Now that gap is bridged obviously."

Jeff Gordon — one of NASCAR's most successful drivers who is now vice chairman of Hendrick Motorsports — knows a little about winning for Hendrick. His 93 victories are the most in team history.

Gordon sees Byron as a growing driver just now realizing his potential.

"I see a progression with William ever since he came to Hendrick," Jeff Gordon said. "Got to remember how young he was coming into the Cup Series, so much to learn. Young in racing in so many ways."

"When Rudy came to Hendrick, the instant connection and chemistry between these two was so obvious. It just took the whole team up to another notch. I think now they're just building on that. It's a lot of fun to watch and see."

Byron's back-to-back wins are part of a stellar start to the season for Hendrick's Chevrolets. Larson is a threat to win nearly every week and seven-time Cup winner Alex Bowman has four top 10s in four races.

Even Josh Berry — filling in for the injured Elliott — was competitive at Phoenix, finishing in 10th place. Berry will likely get a few more races in the No. 9 Chevrolet as Elliott recovers from a broken leg suffered in a snowboarding accident.

"To get out of an Xfinity car and hop into a Cup car that's so different I think is a big, tall task," Gordon said. "We put him in a bad situation last week. This week I saw him putting in the effort and the time, the sim, getting fitted in the seat, doing his homework. It really showed up."

The only bad news for Hendrick came on Friday, when NASCAR officials took the hood louvers from the team's four cars, bringing them to the NASCAR Research & Development Center in North Carolina for inspection. Any potential penalties would be announced this week.

Gordon said that issue was obviously a concern, but it's hard to damper the mood at Hendrick, which is looking awfully tough with its group of young and increasingly successful teams.

Gordon called the hood louvers issue a "miscommunication."

"I don't want to go any further than that," Gordon said. "We'll continue to just share all the facts and be transparent with NASCAR as we have been so far."

Alabama's Miller tops list of NBA prospects at March Madness

By STEVE MEGARGEE
AP Sports Writer

This isn't the type of NCAA Tournament that will give NBA fans an idea of what they can expect in the upcoming draft.

The likely first two picks in the draft — Victor Wembanyama and Scoot Henderson — aren't playing college basketball. That's a major change from last year, when the first six picks in the draft all had played in the NCAA Tournament a few months earlier.

It's also worth noting that Villanova freshman Cam Whitmore, generally regarded as one of the top NBA prospects in the college ranks, won't be playing in this NCAA Tournament because his Wildcats failed to qualify.

But there are plenty of guys in this tournament who should have long NBA careers. A look at some of the top NBA prospects in this year's field (listed alphabetically):

ANTHONY BLACK and NICK SMITH JR., ARKANSAS

These freshman teammates are regarded as potential lottery picks, though neither was an Associated Press All-Southeastern Conference selection. Black, who is 6-7, averages 12.8 points and 4.2 assists per game, though he also has 3.2 turnovers per game. He's regarded as a very good defensive player. Smith, a 6-5 guard, hasn't gotten much of a chance to showcase the skills that made him the nation's No. 1 prospect in his high school class according to composite rankings of recruiting sites compiled by 247Sports. Smith has played in just 14 games due to a knee injury but scored at least 24 points in three of Arkansas' last four regular-season contests. First-round game: Thursday vs. Illinois.

GRADEY DICK, KANSAS

Dick is a 6-8 freshman with guard skills who earned second-team Associated Press All-Big 12 honors. He's averaging 14.1 points and 4.9 rebounds, and shooting 39.9% (79 of 198) from 3-point range. He has shown he can play well against top opponents. Some of his games with at least 20 points came against North Carolina State, Indiana, Iowa State, Baylor and Texas. First-round game: Thursday vs. Howard.

KEYONTE GEORGE, BAYLOR

This 6-4 guard arrived at Baylor as the nation's No. 9 prospect in his class according to the 247Sports Composite. He's had an impressive freshman season as a key part of Baylor's outstanding backcourt. George has averaged 15.8 points, 4.2 rebounds and 2.8 assists while earning second-team Associated Press All-Big 12 honors. First-round game: Friday vs. UC Santa Barbara.

With a stellar 2022-2023 season, Alabama's Brandon Miller aims to be one of the top prospects entering the March Madness tournament.

BRANDON MILLER, ALABAMA

Miller's off-court situation has been well-documented: Police say he was asked to bring a teammate a gun that was used in a fatal shooting which has resulted in the capital murder case against former teammate Darius Miles and Michael Davis. Miller hasn't been charged with anything, hasn't missed any games and has become a star. The 6-foot-9 freshman is the SEC player of the year and has led Alabama to its first No. 1 seed. He averages 19.7 points and 8.3 rebounds and is shooting 39.9% (99 of 248) from 3-point range. First-round game: Thursday vs. Texas A&M-Corpus Christi.

JARACE WALKER, HOUSTON

Although senior guard Marcus Sasser is Houston's best player, Walker is the Cougars' top pro prospect. The 6-8 freshman isn't particularly polished yet, but he has shown flashes of his enormous potential. He scored at least 21 points four times in an eight-game midseason stretch. NBA teams love his versatility. He should develop into a guy who can defend multiple positions, block shots and shoot the 3-pointer. First-round game: Thursday vs. Northern Kentucky.

CASON WALLACE, KENTUCKY

Rated as the nation's No. 5 prospect in his high school class according to the 247Sports Composite, Wallace averages 11.6 points, 4.2 assists and 3.5 rebounds per game. The 6-4 guard has done that while dealing with some nagging injuries. Wallace has dealt with an ankle injury lately and has shot only 3 of 26 from 3-point range over his last seven games. First-round game: Friday vs. Providence.

March Madness: Not just about brackets

By MARK ANDERSON
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS — March Madness isn't just about filling out — and later trashing — brackets. There are more ways to bet the field in the NCAA Tournament, an event that will consume basketball fans over the next three weeks. Here's a look at the favorites, underdogs and longshots.

Who's favored to reach the Final Four?

Top-ranked Houston is the plus-120 favorite to emerge as the Midwest Region representative and play in Houston, according to FanDuel Sportsbook. That means a $100 bet pays $120. The next top team in the region is Texas at plus-450.

No. 4 Alabama, which is the No. 1 overall seed, is plus-190 to come out of the South. Next is No. 8 Arizona at plus-440.

The most competitive region appears to be the West. No. 3 Kansas is a slight favorite at plus-320, just ahead of No. 2 UCLA at plus-350. No. 9 Gonzaga isn't far behind at plus-400.

No. 5 Purdue is at plus-300 to come out of the East, with No. 6 Marquette next at plus-420.

Who's favored to win the title?

Odds makers agree with the NCAA selection committee that the No. 1 seeds are the favorites — Houston at plus-500, Alabama at plus-800, Kansas at plus-1,000 and Purdue at plus-1,200.

After that, odds makers favor UCLA at plus-1,400, Gonzaga at plus 1,500, Arizona at plus-1,600, No. 7 Texas at plus-1,900, and No. 10 Baylor and Marquette each at plus-2,100.

Who is the biggest underdog?

If you're looking for the next Saint Peter's or Loyola-Chicago, check out these options.

Sixteen teams are listed at plus-50,000: Colgate, Furman, Grand Canyon, Howard, Kenesaw State, Kent State, Louisiana, Montana State, Nevada, Northern Kentucky, Southeast Missouri State, Texas A&M-Corpus Christi, Texas Southern, UC Santa Barbara, UNC Asheville and Vermont.

What's the biggest spread difference?

Kansas is a 21 1/2-point favorite over Howard in their first-round matchup. Beyond that, Houston is favored by 19 1/2 points over Northern Kentucky, UCLA by 17 1/2 over UNC Asheville and Gonzaga by 15 1/2 over Grand Canyon.

What's the biggest over/under?

The old saying is that life is too short to bet the under, but it's often the wise play. Some of these totals may give bettors second thoughts before taking the over, but that doesn't mean it's the wrong move. The highest totals are Gonzaga-Grand Canyon at 156 1/2, Missouri-Utah State at 154 1/2, Texas A&M Corpus Christi-Southeast Missouri State at 153 1/2, Auburn-Iowa and Xavier-Kennesaw State each at 151 1/2 and Florida Atlantic-Memphis at 150 1/2.

Not real underdogs

Just because the committee seeds one team over another doesn't necessarily mean it's the better team in the minds of the odds makers. Here are the games where the lower seed is the favorite on the early line: Tenth-seeded Utah State by 2 1/2 points over seventh-seeded Missouri, 10th-seeded Boise State a half-point over seventh-seeded Northwestern and ninth-seeded West Virginia by 2 1/2 over eighth-seeded Maryland.

NCAA Tournament success depends on strong guard play

By STEVE MEGARGEE
AP Sports Writer

Anyone trying to fill out their NCAA Tournament brackets ought to start by figuring out which teams have the best backcourts.

This has been a guard's event for years.

When Kansas' Ochai Agbaji helped the Jayhawks win the national title last season, he became the ninth straight guard to be selected as a Final Four's most outstanding player. The list started with Duke's Tyus Jones in 2015 and continued with Villanova's Ryan Arcidiacono, North Carolina's Joel Berry II, Villanova's Donte DiVincenzo, Virginia's Kyle Guy and Baylor's Jared Butler.

Occasionally a big man can dominate the college basketball landscape the way Anthony Davis did while leading Kentucky to the 2012 title, but they're the exceptions. The NCAA Tournament generally is all about guard play.

Here's a look at six backcourts that merit watching.

BAYLOR: L.J. Cryer, Adam Flagler and Keyonte George.

Baylor won the NCAA Tournament two years ago behind its outstanding backcourt and will try to do it again with a different set of guards. All three of them score at least 14.5 points per game. Flagler was one of five finalists for the Jerry West Award given to the nation's top shooting guard. He also earned AP first-team all-Big 12 honors. George, the best pro prospect in the trio, was a second-team all-Big 12 pick. Baylor ranks second in Division I in adjusted offensive efficiency, a metric measured by college basketball stats guru Ken Pomeroy that essentially translates to points scored per 100 possessions when adjusted for the level of competition.

HOUSTON: Marcus Sasser and Jamal Shead.

Sasser is one of 10 semifinalists for the Naismith Award given to the national player of the year. He's eager for this NCAA Tournament showcase after a foot injury ended his 2021-22 season after just 12 games. He injured his groin in the American Athletic Association Tournament and didn't play in Sunday's championship game, so it remains to be seen how close he is to full strength. Sasser has scored over 17 points per game each of the last two seasons. Shead has nearly three times as many assists as turnovers.

KANSAS: Gradey Dick, Dajuan Harris and Kevin McCullar Jr.

The defending national champions had to replace virtually their entire nucleus from last year but still put together an outstanding backcourt to complement forward Jalen Wilson, the AP Big 12 player of the year. Dick, a freshman, is a Jerry West Award finalist, scoring nearly 15 points per game; he arguably is more a small forward at 6-foot-8, but Kansas lists him as a guard. Dick and McCullar both were AP second-team all-Big 12 selections. McCullar, a Texas Tech transfer, has scored in double figures three straight seasons and is pulling down over 7 rebounds per game. Harris is dishing out over 6 assists per game and ranks third among all Division I players in assist-turnover ratio.

MARQUETTE: Kam Jones, Tyler Kolek and Stevie Mitchell.

Kolek, a Naismith Award semifinalist and the Big East player of the year, has 7.7 assists per game and has well over three times as many assists as turnovers. He was named the Big East Tournament MVP. Jones, a second-team AP all-Big East selection, leads Marquette in scoring and makes nearly three 3-pointers per game. Mitchell has over 7 points per game but is best known for his defense. This group helped Marquette win its first Big East outright regular-season title and first Big East Tournament championship.

MIAMI: Jordan Miller, Nijel Pack and Isaiah Wong.

This trio helped Miami win a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season title and earn the No. 1 seed in the ACC Tournament for the first time since 2013. Wong is a Jerry West Award finalist and AP first-team all-ACC pick. He was named ACC player of the year by a 75-member panel including coaches and media representatives. Wong, Miller and Pack are each scoring over 13 points per game.

XAVIER: Souley Boum, Colby Jones and Adam Kunkel.

This trio helped Xavier lead all Division I teams in assists per game. Boum and Jones are each averaging over 4 assists per game, while Kunkel has 3 per game. They're also scoring about a combined 42 points per game. Boum, an AP first-team all-Big East selection, ranks second in the conference in scoring. Jones was an AP second-team all-Big East pick.
