PLAYHOUSE: Final production of the year takes the stage in May

BY DOROTHY SCHULTE
Old Fort Players

FORT MADISON – In the final production of their 2021/2022 season, Old Fort Players has scheduled a unique comedy to take the stage in early May. Tickets are available online now at www.purplepass.com/ofpmay2022.

"Crazytown" is an evening of comedy that takes a tour of the most messed up town in America, from the police interrogation room where the nicest guy in town is issued a strange ultimatum, to the elementary school for a heated political debate on critical issues ... like tater tots. Welcome to Crazytown, where our motto is: Welcome to Crazytown.

Co-directors Ty Clute and Angela Sanford have cast an experienced group of actors to fill out their roster.

James Salisbury and Tedra Olson Edwards bring their comedic talents to the stage again after appearing together in the smash 2020 hit "Drinking Habits." Kim Albers returns after her crowd-pleasing debut performance in 2021's popular show "Leaving Iowa."

Michael Reed Randolph is back onstage after only a brief respite since appearing in 2021's hilarious murder mystery "As Long As We Both Shall Live." Oscar Bauswell has been vital this season helping behind the scenes and still had time to

Chamber sets citywide clean-up for April 23

FORT MADISON – The Fort Madison Beautification Foundation is coordinating a volunteer community effort designed to remove litter and debris from parks, recreational areas, shorelines and waterways, while inspiring generations of environmental stewards. In past years, Community Clean Up volunteers bagged litter, swept sidewalks, and cleared weeds in an effort to make Fort Madison more presentable to visitors and the general population.

The 2022 clean up date is scheduled for Saturday, April 23, rain or shine, with registration in Central Park starting at 9:00 am. Gloves, trash bags, and maps highlighted with targeted clean up areas will be distributed to partici-

Time for laws to protect sports officials

The assault was streamed live.

It was a play at home plate in a youth baseball tournament in Texas last weekend.

The umpire called the runner safe. A coach came out to argue the call, and was ejected. The coach then shoved the umpire to the ground and walked away.

Another umpire took to social media to show what happened to her last weekend. She was working a youth softball tournament when someone punched her in the eye.

Then there was the video a friend of mine, who officiates high school and youth sports, posted on Facebook from a tournament a few weeks ago in Nebraska. You see a conference on the mound between a coach and his players. After the conference, as the pitcher delivers a fastball down the middle, the catcher deliberately moves out of the way so the pitch hits the umpire. The umpire ejects both players.

Neither player shows remorse.

There was no video of what happened at Fort Madison Middle School on Saturday, when an official was assaulted by a fan during a 3-on-3 basketball tournament. But the news of what happened reached social media by Tuesday night.

There is anger among those who work as officials around the area and around the state. And it's time that action is taken to protect those officials.

A vast majority of events go on without incident, and it's a credit to those who play, coach, and officiate.

I covered a soccer game recently where the officials constantly worked with the players, communicating and instructing to lessen the amount of stoppages of play

Fort Madison's Allison Lamb gets encouragement from her grandfather Timm Lamb at the 45th Annual Timm Lamb Pen City Relays Tuesday night in Fort Madison as she turns a corner in the 3000 meter run.

Fort Madison's Katie Dennis takes a hand-off in the 4x800 meter relay Tuesday night from freshman Alexa Walz. The Lady Hounds would take 6th place overall in the event.

Belger won the event with a throw of 119-01. Sophomore Lexi Whaley took 4th in the shot with a heave of 33-6, while tied for 4th in the high jump, clearing the bar at 14-8. West Burlington's Katy Stephens cleared 5-2 to win it.

Schneider grabbed another top-five finish for Fort Madison in the 400-meter hurdles with a 1:14.57. Fairfield's Kelsey Pacha won the event at 1:06.50, which set the meet record besting a 1:06.59 by Taylor Jacobson in 2013.

Allison Lamb took sixth place in the 3000 meter run with a 13:16.59. Mt. Pleasant's Abby Blint edged Washington's Quincy Griffis to take first place at 11:45.82 just 2.6 seconds ahead of Griffis.

Fort Madison junior Emily Steffensmeier won her heat in the 100. Her 14.60 in the second heat was good enough for 11th overall. West Burlington's McKenna Marlow won the race at 13 flat. Fort Madison freshman Lillian Gelsthorpe ran in the final heat with Marlow marking a 13.98 to take eighth place in the event.

The Bloodhounds' 4x800 team of Alexa Walz, Katie Dennis, Paetyn Wiegand, and Jordyn Burch also finished sixth with a time of 12:12.00.

Local News/From the Front

Officials could take a stand on recent violence

for fouls or other incidents. And after the match, players and coaches thanked the officials.

I've also seen in baseball games where catchers shake hands with the plate umpire at the start of the game, basketball games where coaches and officials have light-hearted conversations.

Everyone can get along if they make an effort.

But the incidents seen on social media, and what happened here over the weekend, are becoming more and more common. And they are starting to jeopardize sports at the youth and high school levels.

The pressure has intensified on youth sports in this nation. Tournaments are money makers for organizers, money takers for the parents who invest heavily in sports. And officials are caught in the middle. There are a lot of reasons why the number of officials is continuing to decline in Iowa and around the nation. But verbal abuse, and the threat of physical abuse, is making it harder and harder for schools and tournaments to find officials, and it's making it harder to recruit and train new officials.

That's why it is time for state legislatures to pass laws protecting officials. The threat of an assault charge hasn't deterred some people from attacking an official, so maybe there needs to be a law that has some teeth to it.

It's also up to the organizations that govern our youth and high school sports to come up with tougher penalties. The teams whose coaches were involved in the two incidents that were caught on video have been suspended from any further competition, and those should be the penalties given out at the high school level as well.

And if the associations don't want to act, then maybe it's time officials draw a line. If there is an incident, tell the associations that no official around the state will be working a game the next night.

We must remember that it is only a game. And if you can't think that way, maybe it's time to stay home.

The games, most likely, will be streamed live.
