Bagcraft closing doors

104 JOBS GONE: Official says COVID-related drop in demand required efficiencies in the company

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON – Officials at the Bagcraft Packaging facility in Fort Madison have announced the facility will cease operations and decommission the plant on Oct. 22.

Novolex, which acquired Bagcraft in 2015, released a statement Thursday afternoon saying all 104 positions the plant will be impacted and those employees were notified Thursday.

Novolex Director of Communications Katie Hendrix said demand for products over the last several months during the COVID pandemic is the root of the closure.

“Our product demand has really changed over the last several months,” Hendrix said. “Efficiencies we will gain after the drop in demand was necessary.”

Hendrix said the company has more than 60 other operations in North America and has positions available for employees at the Fort Madison facility.

She said some employees will be retained after production ceases to shut down the plant, but couldn't elaborate on how the shutdown will proceed, or how long employees will stay on payroll.

The statement released said other support efforts are underway for current employees.

“We have immediate needs at all levels within many of our other Novolex facilities and we will offer relocation to our Ft.

PCC EDITOR

DONNELLSON – The victims of an accident near Donnellson on Tuesday evening have been released by the Iowa State Patrol.

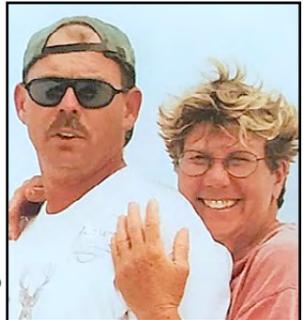

Michael D. Horn, 67, of Donnellson and Linda S. Horn, 66, of Donnellson, were both killed when the motorcycle they were riding on was struck in a construction zone near mile marker 250 at about 5:30 p.m.

According to the state patrol report, the Horns were on a motorcycle facing east bound stopped in a string of vehicles waiting in the construction zone. They were behind a 2021 Mack construction dump truck, when a 2005 Nissan Frontier pickup driven by Chad R. Davis, 54, also of Donnellson, struck the motorcycle from behind pinning the couple between the two trucks.

Davis was transported to Fort Madison Community Hospital by Lee County Ambulance with injuries. The victims were transported to the medical examiners office, according to the report.

No arrests have been made in the incident. The accident remains under investigation by the Iowa State Patrol, with assistance from the Lee County Attorney's office.

The Horns' obituary appears on page 3 of today's edition.

Cardinal of Eldon educators speak at Reynolds' presser

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

JOHNSTON – As part of Iowa Gov. Kim Reynolds bi-weekly update, two Cardinal of Eldon educators and a parent spoke to the media about the importance of returning to classrooms.

Joel Pederson, who's in his 11th year as superintendent with Cardinal said his plan was to bring all students back to school, but provide virtual learning options for parents in the district.

"We want to come back 100% and what keeps me up at night is the kids who don't have Internet. We're working on that, but it's a challenge," Pederson said. "And I worry about not having eyes on our kids. Schools play an important role in keeping kids safe."

Pederson said the focus can't just be on COVID, but other health issues that impact the students when not in school.

"My message is its not just one or the other, but so there are so many things happening, and that is coming from the heart."

Bethany Short is a teacher in the district dealing with students with behavioral disorders. She said she has spoken with families and she is getting all of her students back in the classroom when school reopens.

"I'm getting 100% of my kids back, so I'm really excited because that says something about the way they feel about me in my district," she said.

Cardinal Schools' Superintendent Joel Pederson spoke to the media today at Gov. Kim Reynolds press conference. Pederson advocated for getting all students back in classrooms.

"As humans I believe we're built for community. We're meant to do this together, and I think that's what's best for (students) is to continue to see others face-to-face, in person."

Reynolds said Cardinal's story isn't unique in terms of local districts working diligently on Return to Learn plans and said the vast majority of districts are also making it work within the parameters of state law.

Senate File 2310 was signed by Reynolds into law at the end of June and makes in-person learning the primary model of instruction in the state. Gov. Reynolds proclamation last week requires that districts with less than 15% positivity for COVID testing maintain at least 50% in-person learning.

Schools with higher than 15% positivity and 10% absenteeism can request a two-week waiver for remote learning.

She said only five counties exceed the 15% threshold currently.

Dr. Ann Lebo, the Director of the Iowa Department of Education, said the law doesn't specifically state 50% in-class learning is the requirement, as was pointed out by a pool reporter, but said the interpretation of the law is that primary would mean the majority of learning and 50% is that threshold.

Pederson said there are no perfect answers in the Return to Learn initiatives, and flexibility will be the key to getting students back to school.

"No solutions that we know of will work 100% of the time, but we need you to give us grace, and call us if you have concerns – and stop by and see us," he said.

"Positivity is needed more than ever and we can rise to this challenge with flexibility going forward."

Reduced testing isn't an issue of capacity or supplies

Reynolds said more than 500,000 Iowans have been tested, which amounts to 1 in 6 residents, but she said testing numbers are down.

"We had a higher demand after July 4 and this represents some leveling out. But my main message here is that this is not a capacity or supply issue."

She said Test Iowa will be providing more testing options and an announcement on those changes could come next week.

County, state offer employee support programs

Madison employees where there is a fit.

"We are also working to connect our employees with companies in the area and are providing additional support through our outplacement program which will begin immediately."

Hendrix said she didn't have information on what efforts, if any, were made in conjunction with local economic development officials to keep the plant operational.

Lee County Economic Development Group President Dennis Fraise said these situations are always difficult, but the group's efforts now turn to helping the employees. He said the Iowa Workforce Development's Rapid Response team has been activated.

"We have been in touch with Bagcraft and we're working with them. Our goal now is the employees and to take that long-term approach," Fraise said.

"If there is a silver lining in this its that all of our manufacturers are needing good quality people, which Bagcraft employees are. Our thoughts are with those people in this very difficult situation."

Fraise said support systems are in place to provide transition services, including finding new employment, resume workshops, career counseling, training and assistance in filing unemployment benefits.

Fort Madison Mayor Matt Mohrfeld said he hadn't heard the news of the closing when contacted Thursday morning.

"It is tough. You claw so hard to add and it's hard when you lose them," Mohrfeld said.

He said Bagcraft took over for Wolf Packaging, which was a locally started company and that entity will be missed in town. But he, like Fraise, said now there's a 100 good employees out there.

"That's 100 quality people in that workforce. We're gonna do everything we can to work with that transition. Make sure path to reemployment and re-education is smooth."

FMAAA hosts Nepalese instructor's artwork in Aug.

BY BRIAN RIGGS

Fort Madison Area Arts Association

FORT MADISON – The feature exhibition for August at FMAAA gallery opens up a portal to an international artist from Nepal via a Lee County Connection. Watercolors by Sujan Tamang and artwork from his Nepalese students will transform a view to another land. Holtkamp's Floors, Decor & Furniture are the sponsors for the August event.

A reception occurs on August 14th from 5-7 p.m. Swed coffee will platoon outside during the reception offering beverage refreshments. New hours for FMAAA gallery are Tues-Thur-Fri-Sat from 12-7pm. Sujan has previously exhibited his work in France, England, Australia, Ireland, Korea, and Turkey. His debut gallery exhibition in the United States occurs at FMAAA gallery at 825 Ave G.

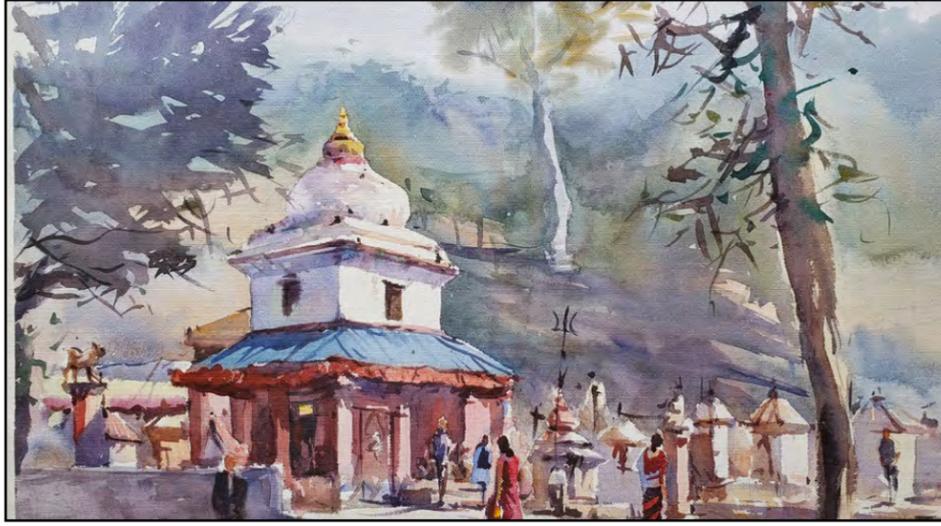

Ernie Schiller has developed strong ties to the region and people of Nepal and acts as conduit to share their story in Lee County.

Ernie relays, "Rebuild Nepal Education Foundation came about by sheer accident. In 2014, the US Government wanted me to escort five 16-year-old girls to India to study there for a year, but because of their age, I was asked to chaperone them to their families in Delhi. Well, India is next door to Nepal and my second-grade teacher showed our class the newest tallest mountain on the planet one day, Mt. Everest and some Nepalese people with their colorful clothing. So, after I dropped off the girls with their family in Delhi, I set up a tour with a Nepalese Tour Company and toured India and took a short hop over to Nepal for a quick tour of Nepal. Well trekking down a mountain we walked by a mountain school, and being a former science teacher here in Iowa, I walked in and was amazed at the intuitive nature of education in Nepal. No supplies, but the kids were so engaged. I went in five different schools on my visit. I told the Nepalese Tour Company that I would return in 2015 and volunteer in the school but 3 weeks before I was to fly to Nepal the major earthquake occurred. 8.7 on the Richter Scale. Major earthquake, major damage. 9,000 people died instantly. Several thousands were never found. The tour company contacted me 6 months later and said that everything that I saw in 2014 was wiped off the map. They were desperate, as the world's donations never even made it out of the hard-hit capital city of 7 million people of KTM. So, I raised what money I could and headed to not sure where in Nepal I was going and spent 6 weeks in October and November of 2016 in the remote mountainous regions helping rebuild the educational system. Exhausted I returned for Thanksgiving and our Holidays. After the Holidays, in January of 2017, the Pothitakis Family contacted me to organize a 2nd Educational Mission Trip to Nepal so their children could volunteer in the schools. Well that trip many other people joined us in these remote mountains and with Kara Pothitakis' help a foundation was formed: Rebuild Nepal Education Foundation, whose sole purpose was to support the extreme poor children in Nepal and try to keep them in school, where sometimes the few dollars to attend school makes it financially impossible for them to come up with the finances. So a new Foundation. Ernie Schiller of Donnellson, Chair, Kara Pothitakis of Ft. Madison Vice-Chair, Reverend Bob Molsberry of North Liberty, Iowa is the Secretary, Arie Schiller of Donnellson is Treasurer. Nadine Allen of Donnellson is Member-at-Large. Tylor Johnson of the DC Area is also Member-at-Large. Fundraising and donors from our area and across the USA and The World has helped keep this foundation's mission focus on the children in Nepal. www.rebuildnepaleducation.org Our foundation is fully vested by the US Government and is a true educational foundation.

Well on the 2018 Volunteer Trip, this biologist/scientist came across some of the Nepal student's art that they were working on. I have always enjoyed art, but not being an artist myself, I ask the teacher is the student's art was for sale. That started the beginning of a year's planning setting up a Nepal Art Exhibition which would occur in May of 2019.

Enter, an art teacher named. Sujan Tamang was born of an extremely poor family in remote Nepal. His family was so poor that he did not have any clothing until the age of 18. We went to school without any clothing, unheard of here in America, but their extreme poverty only gave him the means to work hard in the village fields and try to get to further education. His hard work and dedication got him to attend a Plus 2 Education which is like 11th and 12th grade. He worked every chance he could get. He eventually received his Bachelor degree in Art and became a teacher, now teaching Art in 4 schools in Kathmandu, Nepal. Teaching art in 4 schools for the salary of $200/month, with no health insurance and no retirement. Meager wages in a country where even living in KTM is extremely expensive. He and his wife have one son. Sujan paints art for the tourists whenever he can find a vendor to display his art. I met Sujan in May of 2019 on our 4th Educational Mission Trip to Nepal through our foundation, Rebuild Nepal Education Foundation. I worked with Sujan and my volunteers in Nepal to orchestrate the 1st Nepal Art Exhibition, where students all across Nepal were invited to submit their artwork in the first ever art exhibit. Sujan helped tirelessly to get the word all over Nepal and even helped me find a school willing to display the artwork. Thanks to Manasalu School in KTM for allowing this exhibition to take place. And the University of Iowa Art Department under the direction of Clara Baldus who joined our team in Nepal displayed the art from the students of Nepal. We invited Sujan to display his art for us and his students. To our amazement, Sujan's artwork impressed the U of IA Art Department that was with us. We convinced the students of Nepal and Sujan to allow us to pack up the art and bring it back to the USA. Here we sell the Nepal student's art and the student gets 100% of the sale of the artwork to help them to continue to attend school in Nepal. Sujan's art also is sold here in America and 100% of his sales goes to him... however, he buys all the art supplies for his students and he is also a donor to our educational foundation and supports many students in their quest for education. So, we brought the artwork back to America, and Linda Heitz, Kristi Reid,

Art instructor bringing students' work to FM

Mary Jo Scheetz, and Angie Sodey have donated their time and talent to help get the artwork ready for display. There have been many art shows exhibition the Nepal art. These 4 ladies have organized a Nepal Art Exhibition at FMAAA for August, and I have asked Sujan to create more art in his no work time over the past 2 months. These art pieces arrived in the USA yesterday, July 23rd and will be displayed at the art exhibition.

Well now with COVID-19, Nepal has been on total lockdown since March no school is in session. No school, no need for teachers, no work, NO PAY. Over five months all of Nepal has been lockdown. Five months Sujan and other teachers and school employees are like everyone else, NO PAY. So, our Foundation with the help of volunteers in Nepal have started to deliver Food Boxes to families who are extremely hard hit by the COVID-19 lockdown. We constantly collect donations to help with the student's education and now for $19.88 we can provide a family of 4 with enough rice, lentils, sunflower oil, seasonings, etc. for one month (however these Nepalese are so creative, they stretch this 4 week of rationing to 8 weeks of foodstuffs for themselves). Even during this difficult time, Sujan and other volunteers have helped us feed thousands of Nepalese who would otherwise starve.

After COVID-19, Sujan plans to help us orchestrate the 2nd Nepalese Art Exhibition. Even though our trip was canceled this year we hope 2021 will allow us to return to continue our Educational Mission work."
