County right to listen to sheriff's staff request

On Friday afternoon a vehicle was shot at by a passing motorist on Highway 61 northbound just near North Fork Road. No one was hurt in the incident.

Whether it was a random act of violence will be sorted out by the investigation that's being conducted by the sheriff's department. County deputies have proven to be pretty persistent and have been making arrests, filling up our jail and putting a special effort on making our roads safer.

At a workshop following Tuesday's regular meeting of the Lee County Board of Supervisors, Sheriff Stacy Weber asked supervisors to beef up the jail staff. The current staff is one to two officers shorter than most county's in southeast Iowa, yet our jail holds sometimes as much as three times as many inmates.

The county is carrying a balance of about $10 million according to the last budget and as important as it is to be frugal with taxpayer money, the safety and security...and reputation of the county as far as crime deterrence is just as important, if not more, to the people who live, work and play here.

Something could be said as well to adding street deputies to the staff,

Our "Buddy" absconded with our Sloppy Joe buns listened dutifully, as she directed which sacks went into the house, which stayed in the car for Goodwill, and which were for the girls at work.

"What do you want for supper?" she asked, the island counter top and much of the kitchen floor covered with pregnant sacks. "Cheeseburgers or Sloppy Joes?"

"Joppy Sloes," I replied, my mouth watering.

"Joppy Sloes it is," she sang, sorting items for the refrigerator, cupboard, laundry room and pantry.

When the Joppy Sloe mix was ready, she reached for the buns from the breadbox. No buns. "Where are the buns?" she said out loud, while searching through discarded sacks. Still no buns. So Ginnie went out to the car to see if she had left the buns there. Nothing. She came back into the house and went through everything again, including the dishwasher and refrigerator. You never know. She even looked in the bathroom and bedroom.

About this time I joined in the hunt. If I wanted to eat, I should probably help out. The car is usually the culprit in situations like this, so I went out and gave Ginnie's car a thorough going over. Nada.

At first Ginnie thought the buns were in a gray Walmart sack, so we searched all of those, including the plastic-sack-full-of-plastic-sacks. Then she remembered that she had gotten the buns at Target, so we searched all the white sacks.

Tough decisions coming as criminal activity escalates

too. There are times when two deputies are patrolling the whole county.

This guy on Friday pulls out a handgun and fires at a car and the chase is on. Fort Madison Police helped try to locate the vehicle, but to no avail. More officers patrolling would certainly have increased the odds of finding the suspect and the vehicle he was riding in. There are no guarantees as people can be pretty resourceful when they are eluding the police.

But it points to a picture. Burlington is dealing with shootings almost on a weekly basis and that criminal element is going to find it's way south, if it hasn't already. Our ability to respond quickly and effectively surely correlates to our ability to solve and crimes and punish criminals.

A good look needs to be taken at the number of deputies on the streets. We just added one in the form of a K9, Gunner. Another K9 unit will be incorporated in Lee County before the end of the year. These, it must be reminded, have cost the taxpayers $0. Two needed additions to the sheriff's department because the public saw the need and stepped up to the plate to pay for it.

It must be said, that the supervisors have been very open to the needs of the sheriff's department and jail operations and have indicated they want to make sure those people have the tools and resources they need to keep residents safe.

About four weeks ago there was a shooting in Fort Madison. Again, no one was hurt but whether that was luck or intent is of little consequence to those of us going for a drive or walk on our city sidewalks and county roads. A strong look needs to be taken by not only the county, but city leaders as well to look at violent criminal data and make a determination as to whether or not we are staffed appropriately.

Police Chief Tim Sittig would probably be open to a few more officers, and Fire Chief Joey Herren would be open to a few more firefighters, and we could use more employees in the water and street and parks departments. The story is the same within all departments. But when it comes to idiots running around without regard for public safety, that's of paramount importance.

Elected officials need to look with wide eyes at what's happening in our communities and the communities around us. The best show of force is a show of force. Become a nuisance to them before they become a nuisance to us.

Weber said Friday after the shooting incident, that Lee County isn't going to stand for that type of criminal activity.

"We're gonna push back...hard."

And we need to have his back.

And speaking of having people's back, Head Coach Tony Shiffman and the Hounds had the back of Caleb Gehle, a senior who's been part of the Bloodhound football team all year on the sidelines. Gehle has to wear leg braces and is regularly confined to a walker or wheelchair, but on Friday, he suited up and ran in a two-point conversion, under his own power, for the Hounds with an assist from the Washington coaching staff and players. I think I'll root for the Demons in the playoffs next week.

But that's Beside the Point.

Dinner went to the dogs after trip to the store

When Ginnie saw the white Target sacks beside the washing machine (new towels that needed washed), she said, "Ah, ha!" The missing buns would obviously be there. They weren't.

"I distinctly remember tossing the buns in the car," she said. So we gave the car another going over, including the sacks for Goodwill and for the girls at work. Nary a bun. The chickens were really curious now. "What are those humans doing?"

Ginnie surrendered, her shoulders slumped. "I must've left the buns in the cart. Someone's going to enjoy our buns."

"No big deal," I told her. "We will live through this. We can have Joppy Sloes on bread. I had plenty of bread burgers growing up." (I was actually disappointed, but wasn't going to show it. Buns make much better burgers, but I was getting hungry.)

While we were fixing our bread burgers, Ginnie kept apologizing. "Sorry about the buns, I don't know where they got to."

"Hey," I said, putting a positive spin on it. "This is still much better than anything I would've fixed." (Which is true.) "Cheggars can't be boozy. I have a feeling those buns are going to show up somewhere."

Halfway through the Joppy Sloes on bread, Ginnie strangely jumped up and headed for the bedroom. She came back holding a torn open bun package, with a couple of missing buns and several more shredded. Buddy slunk around the kitchen with his tail tucked, looking real guilty. He had evidently found the buns on the floor, in a sack, and scurried under the bed with them. Ginnie, the good-hearted person she is, couldn't even scold him. He's too cute. Buddy had gotten away with one.

The chickens sure enjoyed shredded buns the next morning.

Nafziger takes Oelwien Healthcare post

BY PCC STAFF

FORT MADISON - As construction on the new Oelwein Community Healthcare Foundation (OCHF) facility begins, the OCHF Board of Directors announced Monday the hiring of Lisa Nafziger as clinic administrator.

NAFZIGER

"Lisa is the perfect choice to lead this innovation and exciting venture" said Board Chairperson Wayne Saur. "We could not be more pleased we were able to land Lisa from what was really an exceptional pool of candidates," said Saur.

Nafziger, a native Iowan, comes to Oelwein and OCHF from West Burlington, IA, where she has been Clinic Manager and Referral Coordinator for Great River Health Systems. A seasoned community volunteer and healthcare professional, Nafziger will provide operational leadership for the new facility including oversight of business operations, human resources and facility management. Additionally, Nafziger will provide ongoing staff leadership to the Foundation Board of Directors.

"I am excited to work alongside Lisa," said Project Manager Matt Stewart. "With dirt flying this week we knew we needed to begin the process of hiring providers, setting up electronic medical records, negotiating with insurers and a host of other items still this fall so we are grateful she will be able to hit the ground running."

Nafziger is a graduate of Western Illinois University and holds an MBA in Healthcare Administration from American Intercontinental University. Nafziger and her husband, Kris, will be moving to Fayette County over the next couple months. Stewart said Monday he anticipated Nafziger starting this new job before the end of October.

"To be able to have a small part in providing high-quality, local healthcare in a community as appreciative and welcoming as Oelwein is truly a dream come true," said Nafziger. "We are so excited for this next chapter in our lives and look forward to working alongside our volunteers, donors and stakeholders to build the healthcare system this community deserves."
