FORT MADISON - A former Fort Madison student, coach, and athletic director has received an "Official of the Year" award from a state track association.

Former FMHS track coach Timm Lamb, who's been a state certified track official for a dozen years, was honored on Saturday by the Iowa Association of Track Officials as one of four officials of the year.

The ceremony was part of the Iowa Association of Track Coaches and Iowa Association of Track Officials annual clinic at the Gateway Conference Center &

Hotel in Ames on Friday and Saturday.

The winners are determined from nomination forms that are turned over to the state track coaches who vote on the winners. Lamb was selected to win from the southeast Iowa region.

"This is such a big part of my life even as a kid growing up and all that. It's hard to give it up and this is just my way of staying involved."

Three other officials were honored from the other three state quadrants.

Lamb said he was humbled by the award and said track has been a very big part of his life dating back to when he was in junior high.

"Track's been a big part of my life for a long time. I ran in sixth grade, junior high, high school, and college. Then I coached and became Athletic Director and served as an official at times," Lamb said.

Lamb said he's only been actively officiating for 12

Food pantry shifts to holiday bags for 2018

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - The Fort Madison Food Pantry has changed plans this year and will not be having its annual Christmas basket giveaway at the Riverview Park Pavilion.

The event, which was typically held in December and would provide boxes of food for those who qualify for assistance during the holidays, was replaced this year with gift bags that are being handed out as part of regular visits to the food pantry.

Food Pantry Director Lin Cramer said the pantry board decided to try something different this year and hopefully put a little money back to help with the leaner months of January and February when donations aren't as healthy as they are during the holidays.

"We've done it a little different this year. The event at the pavilion was quite expensive. It cost us several thousands of dollars, so we're going to use that money and go for another month in a half with regular groceries," Cramer said. "And the pavilion event was only one day and if a client couldn't make it that day they were screwed."

Local businesses got together and donated 300 cloth bags that are being filled with food for a holiday meal including a pork loin, items for a green bean casserole, fresh fruit, applesauce, cake mix or brownie mix and some sundries.

Sheaffer's holding Chuck Long event in February

Tickets going fast for evening with Iowa Hawkeye All-American and Heisman Trophy runner-up

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - Heisman trophy candidate and All-American Iowa Hawkeye quarterback Chuck Long will be coming to Fort Madison for an evening with fans at the Sheaffer Memorial Golf Course.

LONG

Ryan McMillan, general manager and head professional at Sheaffers said the golf course will be the site of "An Evening with Chucl Long" on Tuesday February 12th and seats for the event are still available and would make great Christmas gifts.

The event is limited to 140 tickets and McMillan said there are only about 50 remaining.

He said Long usually has an event and book signing for his book "Destined for Greatness" at the Catfish Bend Casino in Burlington, but prior commitments to the Big10 hampered those plans this year.

"I'm on the Southeastern Community College booster club board and we've been able to get a few people to the area in the past. Chuck was going to be able to do that this year, but due to his commitments he has to be in Chicago on Fridays, when we normally do that event in Burlington. So I reached out to him and said let's just do it here and he said he could do that.

Doors will be open for the event at 4:30 p.m with dinner and social hour from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. Long will speak for about 40 minutes starting at t p.m. and then a question-and-answer session will take place until 7 p.m.

Tickets are $50 per person and will include dinner, draft beer and soda. Seating is assigned in the order that reservations are made.

To purchase tickets or for more information, contact McMillan at the golf course at 319-528-6214 or by email at rmcmillan@sheaffergolf.com.

Long was a consensus All-American quarterback for the University of Iowa Hawkeyes (1981-1985), Big Ten player of the year, recipient of the Maxwell Award (college player of the year) and the Davey O'Brien Award (nation's best quarterback), Heisman Trophy runner-up and first round NFL draft pick in 1986. Long played eight seasons with the Detroit Lions and Los Angeles Rams before joining the 1995 University of Iowa coaching staff under the direction of Hayden Fry.

Long was named the Iowa Sports Foundation (ISF) Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director on September 11, 2014.

Since joining the ISF, Long has continuously promoted and increased sponsorships for the pillars of the ISF which include the Iowa Games, Live Healthy Iowa, Adaptive Sports Iowa and the Iowa Senior Games.

years, but has been officiating off and on for the past 45 years. He said officiating is a way to stay involved in one of the only sports a skinny 5'10", 120lb kid could excel at.

"When you get started in sports, we all want to be in football or basketball or baseball because that's what you see on tv," he said. "But I was too small and skinny for all that and took up running and that was something I was pretty good at. When you find something you can do better than someone else you go with it."

LAMB

He said officiating is his way of staying involved since his retirement from the district.

"This is such a big part of my life even as a kid growing up and all that. It's hard to give it up and this is just my way of staying involved."

Lamb humbly moved the credit to the supporting staff of the district and his family. He said while serving as head coach at FMHS he had assistants, such as current cross-country and girls track head coach Brian Mendez, Paul Walker, and Keith Allen. He said having those three on staff was like having three head coaches.

"I've been fortunate being here in Fort Madison and had a district that supported all the weird things I did as coach. I also had parents and kids that bought into the program," he said. "My family, Kate and the kids, have also been very supportive. It's just easier when you have all that."

Lamb said he couldn't pinpoint where his passion for the sport came from, but said being involved with schools at all levels requires a fondness for working with kids.

"I couldn't tell you where it comes from. I was fortunate to have some really good kids that bought into the program that did what you asked them to do. When you become a teacher or coach you have to have something inside you that you want to work with kids," he said.

Working track and cross country meets is different today as he doesn't know all the kids running and they don't him. But he said the joy comes from watching how hard the kids work to have success in.

"Nowadays the kids don't know who I am but I enjoy watching them succeed. I had a lot of kids that weren't going to be state or conference champs but watching them do their best it just as exciting for me," he said.

But he said he also missed the practices and said people who know him, know he'd rather to go to practice than go to meets.

"Kids work harder in practice than they ever do in a meet. To watch those kids go through some of what they do in those practices...it's a feeling you get that can't be described."

Cramer says Pantry well stocked

Support local journalism. Make your Pen City Current subscription donation here.

Board vice president Shirley Gable went to an auction at the Kingsley Inn and bid on a lot of the personal items the hotel had in stock. When Gable told the owners it was for the Food Pantry, she decided to donate all the items.

Cramer said because of the impact of the Farm Bail out, the Iowa Food Bank has been able to stock about 10 more items this year than they have in the past including pork loins and roast chickens.

“When I talked to people there they said they would be getting seven to ten more items per month than they would normally be getting. That’s where the pork loins came from that we’re able to put in these holiday bags this year,” she said.

“But Shirley did some very judicious shopping and worked with Hy-Vee and Fareway and area churches as well as the Food Bank so we have enough to make this a special meal for those that need it, in addition to their regular shopping here.”

Those who qualify can pick up the holiday bags when they make their regular trip to the pantry.

“So that’s what we’ve been doing and it seems to have worked out well and the cost was much reduced. All total for the 300 bags when you take out the donations we spent about $86 and now we can use the rest of that money for regular food supplies after the holidays and still provide a good holiday meal.”

She said traffic has been fairly steady at the pantry so far during the holiday season, but she said next week things will probably get a little crazy.

North Lee County residents must qualify as a client are eligible for the holiday bags, but Cramer said the pantry is taking new clients. She said the pantry is also very well stocked for the holidays thanks to the generosity of area communities and businesses.

“A lot of people have done various donations throughout the month and we’ve had some good fundraising going as well. We’re in pretty good shape, but come January and February it will probably even out,” Cramer said.
