Management from the Fort Madison Shottenkirk Car Smart dealership later contacted the Fort Madison Police Department and reported Haage had test driven the vehicle but had not returned it 24 hours later.

Fort Madison police started an investigation and notified other local law enforcement agencies of the stolen vehicle and vehicle description.

Wednesday evening, an officer with the Keokuk Police Department attempted to make a traffic stop on Haage, but he refused to stop, which led to a pursuit into Clark County, Mo.

Councilman Seidel arrested on felony drug charge

Council action may wait for case to run its course

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - A sitting Fort Madison city councilman has been charged with a class C felony drug charge and was taken into custody today.

SEIDEL

Travis Seidel, who represents Fort Madison's 3rd ward, was arrested by the Lee County Narcotics Task Force Friday and charged with two counts of distributing hydro-morphone, also known as Dilaudid, Hydrostat, Palladone, Dillies, hospital heroin, within 1000 feet of a school.

The charge is a Class C felony with an enhancement. If convicted Seidel could face up to 15 years in a state correctional facility.

According to a release from the task force, the arrest stems from an investigation by the task force into allegations that he was involved in the distribution of controlled substances in the Lee County area.

Mayor Brad Randolph said he was as disappointed as he was shocked.

"I just found out about an hour ago and my initial reaction is that I'm equally disappointed and shocked. It's unfortunate, and he's innocent until proven guilty, but I need to get all the relevant information and have a sit down with city staff and the council, and reach out to Travis and see what his thoughts are and after that go down a path that is best for the city," Randolph said Friday afternoon.

"It's not reflective of what we want from a city council member. We're held to a higher standard. I find it unfortunate. If what they say happened, happened it's unfortunate."

City Manager David Varley said a city code doesn't make the arrest an auto-

The Buffalo will roam to FM

Gibb purchases west end's Chandler's to bring iconic Burlington eatery to Fort Madison

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - This spring, the Fort Madison area will be home to one of Burlington's most iconic eateries.

Chase Gibb, the owner of The Buffalo Tavern on Burlington's south side, announced today that he has purchased Chandler's Bar and Grill on the west end of Fort Madison and has plans to open under the new name The Buffalo Bar and Grille by St. Patrick's Day.

GIBB

He said he had heard the location might be for sale about four months ago and about 10 days ago a group of people with the ownership group showed up at The Buffalo in Burlington for lunch and a conversation took place that resulted in Gibb agreeing to the location.

"The timing is right with the ownership group and a couple of them expressed interest in talking to me about it, and actually, they just showed up for lunch and we had a good conversation," Gibb said Thursday afternoon.

Gibb said he's purchasing the property outright and won't be leasing or renting.

"We plan to take over on March 1, but I want to point out that Chandler's will still be open and serving customers until that transition date," Gibb said.

He said he has a proven record of success in Burlington with the menu and environment he provides and will bring that same menu to the Fort Madison location.

"We have a menu that's proven successful here in Burlington and we're going to bring that to Fort Madison.

Gibb's operations were also singled out with a Distinction Award from the Greater Burlington Partnership in 2015.

Gibb said he thinks the two entities can be similar in offerings and programming because of their proximity to each other, but he does have some upgrades in mind.

"I've been pricing some big screens because we'll need some TVs in there and we'll probably redo a lot of the upholstery and some updates like that," Gibb said. "We may have to close down for a week to get some of that stuff done and get the signs changed, but I'm going to work with a pretty hefty budget there."

FM man jailed for attempted murder

Charge stems from early morning Nov. 28 stabbing

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - A 26-year-old Fort Madison man is in custody on attempted murder charges following a November 28 early morning stabbing.

Michael Alan Pauly was apprehended by Fort Madison Police at the Lee County Courthouse Thursday and was transported to Lee County Jail where he remains in custody.

According to reports, on Tuesday at about 2:40 a.m., Fort Madison police were dispatched to the Fort Madison Community Hospital on a report of a possible stabbing victim that had been brought into the Emergency Department. Upon arrival officers were unable to determine what had happened.

As officers continued their investigation in the following days, the victim, who has not been identified, was able to provide an account of what had happened. The victim was able to articulate that they had been stabbed once in the back and had other superficial wounds that led officers to request an arrest warrant for Pauly for attempted murder.

On Thursday, Fort Madison police were dispatched to the North Lee County Court House on a report of a person there who had an outstanding arrest warrant. Upon arrival the court clerks advised that Pauly was there attending a hearing on another matter. As Pauly exited the courtroom he was taken into custody, processed, and taken to the Lee County Jail on a charge of attempted murder, with a $50,000 cash only bond.

Attempted murder is a class B felony punishable by up to 25 years in prison. Attempted murder is defined as; any act, which the person expects will set in motion a force or chain of events with the expectation that the action will cause or result in the death of another, with the intent to cause such death.

The arrest of a person is not a plea or finding of guilt. All person are considered innocent until proven in a court of law.

He said he would need to change the awning out front and is going to check with city code once the operation is up and running, to see about possibly getting outdoor seating somewhere on the property, possibly the south side.

Lunch delivery and catering are also on the agenda for Gibb. He said the location is a prime spot as Fort Madison continues to develop, and with the bypass access close by as are many of the city's industrial partners and the hospital.

The tavern in Burlington is a very popular hang out for happy hour and Gibb said he plans on holding the same happy hour offerings in Fort Madison.

He also said he's met with the current staff at Chandler's and will be keeping the staff in place and will probably, at some point, be adding staff after the re-opening.

The restaurant will have the same sports bar environment but he said families are welcome.

Gibb said he plans on the restaurant being open til midnight during the week and 1 a.m. on the weekend with food available during all hours.

More information on the operations of the Buffalo can be found on the company's Facebook page or on its website.

"Obviously I haven't talked with him. Any action would have to come after a fair hearing where he would be able to make his case and bring in witnesses if he wanted and things like that, but if he were convicted, upon conviction I think it takes a 2/3 vote of the full council to remove him, if that's the action the council would want to take," Varley said. "It's a due process thing."

According to the Lee County Sheriff's office Seidel was arrested by law enforcement Friday morning at his home and was taken to the Lee County Jail, where he was given a pre-trial release.

The Lee County Attorney's Office, Iowa Division of Narcotics Enforcement, and the Lee County Sheriff's Office assisted the Lee County Narcotics Task Force in the investigation.
