Biden tells West Point crowd to "Get Up!"

Former VP's lead in Iowa shrinks to single digits over Warren, Buttigieg

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

WEST POINT – Former Vice President Joe Biden told about 130 people at Small Grand Things in rural West Point Thursday it was time to get up.

It was a phrase his father used when Biden was a young boy.

"It's not that you get knocked down, it's how well you get back up. So get up Joey," Biden said recalling his father's words of wisdom.

Biden had a stuttering problem as a child and needed special classes to overcome it, while putting up with ridicule from his classmates.

The 76-year-old former senator from Delaware, who grew up in Scranton, Pennsylvania, said America is being ridiculed around the world at the hands of President Donald Trump.

"My dad made what some of you have to make, the longest walk up a short flight of stairs to say, 'Honey, you can't go to that school anymore. You can't play on that Little League. Daddy and Mommy lost their jobs and we have to leave.'"

Biden said his father moved to Delaware and then sent for Biden's mother and brothers.

"It's a hard thing to do, to ask for help. The good news was my grandpop had the same values as my dad. It wasn't hard for grandpop to say yes because it's family," he said.

"Today, too many hardworking middle class working class folks can't look their children in the eye and say it's going to get better...and mean it"

He said Wall Street didn't build America, people like those in Iowa, Scranton, part of the "great middle class" built America.

"There used to be a basic bargain in the country. If you contributed to the well being of the operation you worked for, you got to share in the benefits. Everything went up...everybody won. Management got a raise, labor got a raise. That's not happening anymore."

He said families in lower and middle class have no breathing room and statistically speaking more than half of the people in this country are afraid that their children will not have the same quality of life as they do.

"Folks, we have to rebuild the middle class. I'm not talking about it just because of economic fairness, but because the middle class has what's allowed us the political stability, the social stability, and the economic stability of this country. Other countries' democracies

Verdict expected today in McCain murder trial

Judge sets hearing for 1 p.m. on Thursday for possible verdict

KEOKUK – Prosecutors learned Wednesday that a verdict could be handed down as soon as Thursday afternoon in the case of a 25-year-old Fort Madison man charged with 1st-degree murder.

Chief Judge Mary Ann Brown of District 8B took the case last Thursday in the South Lee County

Courthouse in Keokuk, after one and half days of testimony in the case of Adam Golden McCain, who was staying with family on the west side of Fort Madison.

McCain is charged in the death of CaLove Sackman, then 27, in Keokuk. The two had been in a relationship and have one daughter together.

Sackman was found by Nadene Sestito, a passerby, at about 10 p.m. on Feb. 5 of this year. Sackman had pulled herself onto the sidewalk on the north side of River City Mall's parking lot in the 200 block of Main Street in Keokuk.

Sackman had been stabbed multiple times in the front and back of her torso and on her hands. Prosecutors showed that Sackman and McCain were having an argument in a vehicle that night after McCain drove down from Fort Madison during a night of freezing rain and picked Sackman up at her home on Concert Street.

According to testimony, the two began arguing and Sackman tried to get out of McCain's white Monte Carlo, when

Helenthal, Hoenig make state cheer squad

AMES – Fort Madison High School Senior, Chloe Hoenig was selected for the Iowa All-State Cheerleading squad Sunday in Ames, Iowa. Sophomore Mandy Helenthal was selected as a honorable mention, which will place her on the alternate list.

The Iowa All-State Cheerleading Squad is an ICCA/IHSAA sponsored, select team. Any varsity cheerleader of an ICCA member team can tryout for the team. Tryouts are held in October every year. Candidates are judged on their motions, jumps, dance ability, and gymnastics. A team of 20-45 of Iowa's best cheerleaders are chosen. Over 200 cheerleaders try out each year.

A choreographer is hired and the team practices on four different Sundays from January to March. During the IHSAA Boys State Basketball Tournament, March 13, 2020, the team comes together and performs during half time of two of the Friday games. The last performance is during the 1A final.

This half time performance is televised and team members are presented with medals.

he pulled her back in and stabbed her with a butterfly knife. The girl was able to get out of the vehicle, but McCain then drove around to where she was on the ground, got out and stabbed her again repeatedly.

Prosecutors then tried to paint a picture, including using video, of McCain trying to run into her on the sidewalk with the car, but Dr. Dennis Firchau, a forensic pathologist with University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, said no injuries supported that claim.

McCain's trial originally began as a jury trial, but three hours into jury selection, McCain and his legal team of Kendra Abfalter and Joseph Beres, both of Burlington, decided a bench trial would be in McCain's best interests.

Testimony began last Tuesday, Oct. 15 and wrapped up on Wednesday when the prosecution rested its case and the defense only called McCain to the stand for about 5 minutes before closing arguments. Beres' focus during his argument was that McCain was acting in a child-like manner and didn't have premeditation in the killing, which could trigger a conviction of 2nd-degree murder.

In Iowa 1st-degree murder carries a penalty of life imprisonment with no chance for parole. Second-degree murder is a 35-year minimum prison sentence.

Bloodhounds shake off rocky start to advance

Fort Madison to take on Burlington Tuesday night

BY JOHN BOHNENKAMP
PCC SPORTS

FORT MADISON – A first-set loss was enough to wake Fort Madison High School’s volleyball team out of an early slumber.

Jillian Wiseman’s kills kept the Bloodhounds awake. Fort Madison advanced in the Class 4A regional tournament with a 23-25, 25-7, 25-22, 25-23 win in Wednesday’s first-round match.

The Bloodhounds (15-23) will play at Burlington (24-5) in Tuesday’s 7 p.m. semifinal.

It was a sloppy first set for the Bloodhounds. “We missed five serves, we had about five hitting errors, and it got away from us,” Fort Madison coach Kent Bailey said. “I give Keokuk credit. They kept putting the ball in play, and we kept trying to hit it harder instead of hit it smarter.

“It woke us up a little bit. We had to fight a little bit harder.”

The second set was all about the Bloodhounds. They built a 14-6 lead, then after a block by Keokuk’s Michena Davis, scored the final 11 points of the set.

Fort Madison seemed in control of the third set. The Bloodhounds led 23-16, but the Chiefs (9-19) scored six consecutive points to gain momentum. But a kill from Fort Madison’s Reyna Lampe ended the run, then the Bloodhounds served out the set.

Keokuk made similar runs in the fourth set. Fort point. The Chiefs scored the next two points, then Lampe finished the match with her ninth kill of the night.

“Give Keokuk credit,” Bailey said. “They made us work.”

Wiseman led the Bloodhounds with 24 kills. “She’s one of the best hitters in southeast Iowa,” Bailey said. “She’s pretty good. She’s got the ability to hit the ball on the outside as well as anyone we’ve had here in a while. She’s 5-foot-11 and she’s got jumping ability, and she puts that on display.”

The Bloodhounds are 0-3 against Burlington this season.

“When we’re playing well, we don’t have a lot of hitting errors and we pass the ball well,” Bailey said. “We did a pretty good job of that tonight, and if we can get the ball to Jillian in her spots, we can do good things.”

got in trouble without a strong middle class. That's never been the case here no matter how bad it's gotten."

He said part of that rebuilding process will be expanding on the Affordable Care Act. Biden said his health care program would allow a public option to choose Medicare if you want it, or a public competition that will bring premiums down.

"The money is there to pay for it, it is less than $30 trillion, $3.4 trillion a month. It's 1/30th of the amount and it can be paid for without raising taxes on anybody in the middle class, period."

He said the cost of his plan would be $740 billion over 10 years.

"That's a lot of money, but we can eliminate so many of these existing tax cuts that don't generate any progress for America," Biden said.

"Not in five years or ten years, my competitors are very well meaning, but they don't tell you how Medicare for All is going to be paid for. $3.4 trillion a year is more than the federal budget."

He said the country also has to rebuild its education system and states have undercut funding for education.

"My wife Jill says it best...any country that out-educates us is going to out-compete us in the 21st century."

Biden outlined plans to reduce the cost of college debt including revamping repayment options and allowing forgiveness of remaining debt after a decade of repayments and service for different public service occupations including teachers.

He proposes not requiring repayments for any students that don't make more than $25,000 per year.

Biden also said he wants to give every single person access to the country's community colleges and cutting the cost of a four-year degree in half.

He said Trump inherited a strong economy from the Obama Administration and is now squandering that.

"Look what his trade policy has done. No benefit to anybody," he said.

Biden said manufacturing is in a recession across the board and across the country.

He said the country needs to reverse Trump's tax cuts for the super wealthy and the corporations.

"They didn't need them in the first place. They were doing very, very well," he said to applause.

He said corporations have taken their profits and repurchased trillions of dollars in their own stock so the remaining stock has increased value.

"That's how CEOs get paid. When Ronald Reagan was president, the average corporate CEO of a Fortune 500 company made something like 300 times as much as the average employee. Know what it is today, it's over 456 times as much. What happened? The bargain has been broken."

He proposed moving corporate tax back at 28%, which is still competitive and creates additional revenue for the country. He also want to double capital gains from 20% to 40%.

"Folks it doesn't effect capital gains when you sell your farm or property, only income based on investments," he said.

He also said the country has to stop violence. Biden said he has shotguns, but said more than 50% of NRA members don't think you should be able to walk around with an assault rifle, or clips that have more than 100 rounds in it.

"If you need to hunt with something that has more than a 100 rounds in it, you shouldn't be hunting," Biden said.

He proposed biometric marks on triggers.

"How is that violating anyone's second amendment rights? Folks I'm gonna tell ya, I've taken on that lobby before and I've beat 'em and I'm gonna beat 'em again," Biden said.

In wrapping up, Biden said this is America and he's tired of people walking around with their heads down like 'whoa is me'."

"This is the United States of America. There's not a damn thing we can't do. Well it's time for us to get up. There's not a thing we can't do if we do it together. We should not postpone any longer what we need to do, so let's do it."

Leslie Carpenter of the Iowa Mental Health Advocacy said she was a little swayed by Biden after taking with him after the event.

She said she has been talking to all the candidates about mental health plans because Iowa is 51st in the country when it comes to beds with only 64 out of 200.

"We, as a country, have abandoned people with mental health. So we have gotten Pete Buttigieg to come out with a very good mental health plan that has substance to it," Carpenter said.

She said other candidates such as Amy Kolbuchar have good plans. She said Cory Booker is working with her group to get amendments and bills in front of Congress even before the election.

Don Panther, of West Point, said Biden made some good remarks including taxation and gun control. He also was taken in by Biden's comments on education.

"I think we do need to do something about schools. I'm still undecided but he's right in there with the rest."

Lee County Supervisor Ron Fedler said he was making an endorsement for Biden prior to the event.

"If the legislature is not going to do what needs to be done, we have to do with our votes," Fedler said.
