Area emergency crews called to six accidents late Monday afternoon and evening

LEE COUNTY - More than a half dozen vehicle accidents occurred Monday afternoon after a dusting of snow turned wet and the froze on area bridges and overpasses.

The only injuries were sustained when Malisa Kaye Kothe of Burlington lost control of her red Dodge pickup headed northbound on the Hwy. 61 bypass about a mile north of the Hwy. 2 interchange.

The pickup lost control on an overpass on and slid into the east ditch before rolling down the embankment on the east side of the bypass and coming to rest on it's wheels in the bottom of the ditch.

Kothe complained of sternum pain and was treated by EMS staff. Lee County Sheriff's deputies, West Point police and Lee County EMS responded to the accident.

Lee County Sheriff's deputies responded to three more single-vehicle accidents after Kothe's and the Fort Madison Police Department responded to two vehicle accidents on the city's west side. City streets were mostly unaffected, but icy conditions existed where freezing winds blew under bridges and overpasses causing the icing to occur.

WP Dollar General annex hits small snag

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG

WEST POINT - A move by the holding company leasing property in West Point to the new Dollar

General hit a small snag last week in being annexed into the West Point city limits.

At Tuesday's regular monthly meeting of the West Point City Council, a move to annex property on the city's west side on Hwy. 103 had to be reset due to a boundary issue. City officials didn't realize, until the Lee County Auditor's office pointed it out, that the city didn't own the 20 feet between the Dollar

General property and the city limits. The city can't annex property unless it's adjacent to the property so the city had to move to annex the 20-foot patch

Taylor elected to state Dems leadership

State Senator sees IPERS as first thing on the GOP agenda

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

MT. PLEASANT - State Senator Rich Taylor has been elected as part of the senate's Democratic leadership team for the next legislative session that will begin in January.

Taylor (D-Mt. Pleasant) represents Iowa's 42nd senate district, including Lee County, and was elected by the 18 democratic senators currently in office following Tuesday's general election.

The senate makeup is 18 democrats and 32 republicans after GOP candidates picked up a spot on the senate when Rita Hart retired from the state's 49th district. Democrats picked up three spots in the House but are still in the minority at 47-53, with several issues being under recount.

TAYLOR

Taylor, who will be beginning his 7th year in office, said the election as an assistant leader will give southeast Iowa a bigger voice in the senate.

"It give me a little bit more voice, I guess, in the Senate," Taylor said Monday. "I can be on some of the better committees, and one of them I'm hoping to get on is the Rules Committee. It just makes my voice a little more than I had before and I can speak out more for the people in southeast Iowa."

He said nationally Democrats did pretty well, but the state didn't move as much as Democrats had hoped.

"I was a little disappointed with how we did in Iowa. We actually lost one spot where Rita Hart was just the right democratic fit in a republican district. The girl that tried to replace her didn't quite make it."

Taylor joins senators Joe Bolkcom of Iowa City, Bill Dotzler of Waterloo, Pam Jochum of Dubuque, Liz Mathis of Hiawatha, and Herman Quirmbach of Ames under the leadership of Janet Peterson (D-Des Moines) as the minority leader and Amanda Regan and reapply to annex the store property.

City Clerk Diane Smith said the city received information last week that the owner of the property that was sold to the Dollar General holding company kept the 20-foot swath of property in the deal with the company.

She said he held ownership to help with storm water run off and wanted to maintain the property. However, the city is now sending paperwork to the auditor's office to annex the 20-foot strip and, for a second time, voluntary annexation paperwork for the Dollar General property.

West Point Mayor Paul Walker said all the paperwork and diligence has now been done on both sets of property and the city should be able to move forward with the annexation.

New Councilmember Dan Waters, who replaced Shawn Bales after he resigned in September, asked what the advantage was to the property being annexed. Walker said Dollar General asked to be voluntarily annexed and they will be hooked into the city's electrical grid. He said, however, that they would have been on the city's electrical service because the property is within the city's franchise area. Dollar General, which will use minimal water, will be on the Rathbun Regional Water Service and not city water, but will be on city sewer, pending the approval of the annexation.

In an unrelated matter, the city also approved applying for state revolving loan funds to pay for a $1.5 million lagoon upgrade. The city has been working in plans for the sewer system upgrade with Garden Associates Engineering, the firm contracted to do engineering services for the lagoon. West Point bumped its sewer rates a little more than a year ago to offset the costs of the engineering fees.

The project will result in water in the lagoon going through an additional four filters before being discharged.

The council also approved a request to install Christmas decorations in the city park and approved a request to hold a Winter Wonderland Wine & Beer Walk on Dec. 7 from 5 to 8 p.m. around the city's square. Thirteen businesses on the square and Brad's Pad and Pizza Garden on the east side of the city's business district have agreed to participate in the 2nd annual event.

The council also approved the annual fiscal reports of the Planning and Zoning Commission and West Point Municipal Utilities.

Taylor hopes Republicans take note of tight elections

(D-Mason City) as the Whip.

He said committee assignments will probably be set in the next couple weeks after several of the races in the recount are resolved.

Taylor said four races were decided by less than 400 votes combined.

“Once you get a recount, you never know what can happen. If it’s within 100 votes or so you might consider it, but if it’s more than that people don’t figure you can change the results,” Taylor said.

Despite still being in the minority in both chambers, Taylor said he hopes the election results will show that people want lawmakers to reach across the aisle and get things done.

“In the House last year they had a few members that didn’t go along with the Republican agenda, so I’m hoping they work in a more bipartisan basis on legislation. If you’re within a few votes, you just have to have everybody on board and it’s pretty hard to do that,” he said.

One of those House members was Rep. Dave Heaton (R-Mt. Pleasant) who, among other bills, voted against the Chapter 20 overhaul because it wasn’t in the best interests of his constituency, which has two state correctional centers in Mt. Pleasant and Fort Madison.

Rep. Joe Mitchell, who defeated Jason Moats for Heaton’s seat, said he too, would not have voted for the Chapter 20 changes because it went too far, but did agree with many of the changes proposed.

Taylor said he’s hoping that dynamic will encourage republicans to work with democrats during the session.

“They’ll have to work a little more across the aisle and that’s what we’re hoping for,” he said. “I don’t think Iowa can stand two more years of one party domination, specifically in regards to health care. Smaller hospitals can’t afford to lose $1 million because insurance companies are not paying, and that’s what Henry County lost last year. Who knows that better than Keokuk, when that hospital just about closed. That would be devastating to that community and we have small hospitals like that all over the state.”

Taylor said he fears the first thing on the agenda will be IPERS, Medicaid, and then employee wages.

“The very first thing they’ll be working on is the IPERS. Everybody says we’re not going to touch IPERS and then Gov. Reynolds said maybe it needs tweaked a little. I think they’re going to tweak it right out of existence,” he said.

“Then I think they’ll double down on the Medicaid disaster. And I think they’re going to go back after Iowa employees. They may try to lower pay about 10%. That contract is up on July 1, and they’ll say under a new contract and you’re going to make this. That would be absolutely devastating to our prison system. It’s tough enough to get anyone to work there. It’s so darn dangerous and the prison system is one of our biggest employers in this area. Nothing is going to surprise me. Hopefully in the next two years people pay attention to what’s really going on in Iowa government.”

The next session starts on the second Monday of January.
