City turns over pool management to Y

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - It's official. The City of Fort Madison is now only partially in the swimming pool business.

At Tuesday's regular meeting of the Fort Madison City Council, the council voted unanimously to turn over operations of the municipal pool to the YMCA from May 1 to Sept. 3.

Mayor Brad Randolph asked City Manager David Varley to address the issue when the agenda item came up.

"It's a good deal. You should pass it," Varley panned, and then went on a five-minute update on the agreement with the YMCA.

The basis of the agreement is that the YMCA would be responsible for all operational expenses and the city would act as a landlord being responsible for all capital expenses and upkeep. The city will pay a $2,000 yearly management fee and would pay for any deficits up to $35,000. The city incentivized efficiency on the part of the YMCA by offering a 25% bonus on any savings. If the YMCA runs at a $30,000 deficit, the city would pay the YMCA an additional $1,250 for running a more efficient operation.

"This allows us to focus on our parks, while the YMCA gets to do what they're good at, which is rec-

City Councilman Kevin Rink asked YMCA Executive Director Ryan Wilson, who was in attendance, if people would be able to use their YMCA passes for the city pool.

Wilson said the two are separate entities, but said pass prices would not go up as part of the agreement. He said the YMCA is also looking at the possibility of letting people use city pool passes at the YMCA if the pool is closed due to weather. However nothing has been finalized and that decision would rest with the YMCA.

Pheasants Forever wins excellence award

Submitted article

AMES - At the annual Pheasants Forever state meeting held in February in Ames, Iowa, the Lee County chapter received the Habitat Excellence Award from the national Pheasants Forever office for exceeding $1.75 million in habitat and educational expenditures.

"Nationwide, only a handful of chapters have surpassed this historical mark," said Eric Sytsma, southern Iowa Regional Biologist at Pheasants Forever. "This is a true testament of the Lee County chapter's commitment to habitat development, our natural resources, and youth outdoor education."

"When it comes to getting things done on the ground, there is no chapter more willing to making a difference than the Lee County Pheasants Forever chapter," Sytsma said. "The Lee County chapter is seen as one of the leaders among Iowa Pheasants Forever chapters, with their efforts providing assistance to landowners, developing or maintain habitat, acquiring critical parcels of land that are turned over to the Iowa Department of Natural Resources or the Lee County Conservation Board to provide permanent wildlife habitat, and, more importantly, providing public hunting and fishing opportunities."

Much of this work is done because of strong partnerships with the Natural Resource Conservation Service, USDA Farm Service Agency, Iowa Department of Natural Resources, Lee County Conservation Board, and Iowa State Extension. These agencies work together to provide information on conservation practices, staff people who work in the field, and seed and equipment resources to accomplish shared goals.

The Lee County chapter has contributed to the purchase of more than 2000 acres of land that have become public hunting areas within Lee County. They have also assisted with the acquisition and/or development of habitat on another 20,000 acres of public land within the state of Iowa. In addition, the Lee County chapter assists local landowners who provide wild-

HTC's Blue & Silver fundraiser planning underway

BY PCC STAFF

FORT MADISON - Plans for the fourth annual Blue & Silver Celebration is under way and sponsors are needed to help pull off another successful fundraiser for the Holy Trinity Catholic teachers' fund.

Last year's event raised more than $61,000, which set a record that enabled the committee to offer Christmas bonuses to the teachers of the school system.

All proceeds from the March 17 event at McAleer Hall, which will include a raffle, will go directly to the teachers in the form of bonuses at the end of 2018.

Those wishing to sponsor or donate to the event can do so in several ways. Tables are available for sponsorship, auction items are available, or donations can be made directly to the fund.

A social hour begins at 6 p.m. with dinner being served at 7 p.m. Tickets are available for $50 each or tables can be purchased for $500. Tables seat eight and entitle buyers to personalized service along with wine for all guests at the table.

There will also be a live auction, entertainment, and the HTC system's Teacher of the Year Award will be presented.

Sponsorships are available at the following levels:

Diamond - $5,000 and above; Platinum - $2,500 to $4,999; Gold - $1,000 to $2,499; Silver - $500 to $999; Bronze - Less than $500

For more information on the event, contact Shelley Sheerin at shelley.sheerin@holyltrinityschools.org or Donna Borst at donna.borst@holyltrinityschools.org or call the administration office at 391-372-2486.

life habitat with seed and limited payments on an annual basis.

Lee County PF has also supported two high school trap teams for the past 8 years, where youth ages 10 and up learn gun-handling safety and compete at a national level with other high schools across the Midwest. They are able to competitively shoot at clay targets on a statewide and national level which would be cost restrictive without the financial support the chapter provides.

In the fall of 2016, as part of Lee County Economic Development Group's Grow Lee 2.0 venture, Lee County Pheasants Forever was the main sponsor for the Guinness Book of World Record event in Lee County for "Most people planting flower bulbs simultaneously" with 1,463 people planting about 8,000 flower bulbs in 28 minutes, most of which were school kids representing all private and public schools in Lee County. Most of the flowers planted were tulips, however, about 1,000 of the flowers are prairie blazing stars donated by Lee County Pheasants Forever as part of a pollination effort. These particular bulbs are part of a pollinator program that enhances pollination for bees, butterflies, and beetles. Pollinating insects are an essential component in global food production. About one-third of all food and beverage products need pollination.

Pheasants Forever's main objectives are to develop, maintain, and enhance wildlife habitat and support youth conservation activities," Sytsma said. "The first Iowa Pheasants Forever chapter was formed some 33 years ago. Since that time, all state chapters collectively have spent more than $ 65 million on habitat development. The most important fact about that statistic is that these dollars are raised and spent by local chapters.

"That's what makes Pheasants Forever's structure unique among all national conservation organizations — all dollars raised locally remain local and are spent on habitat projects that are most needed for that immediate area. In 2017, Iowa Pheasants Forever chapters spent more than $ 4.5 million, with the Lee County chapter a leading contributor with more than $280,000." This level of expenditure placed the Lee County chapter at third across the nation of over 750 chapters.

Lee County Pheasants Forever is holding its spring banquet February 24th in Fort Madison, Iowa, at The Comfort Inn. Doors open at 4:30 p.m., and dinner starts at 6:30 p.m. with the auction to follow. Tickets are available on line at www.leecountytypf.org or from a committee member.

The committee members of the Lee County chapter are very appreciative of the support they have received during the past 30 years. This support has allowed the chapter to pursue the goals they established when it was first organized in 1987 — to help develop and maintain local wildlife habitat, provide public hunting opportunities, and work with getting kids outdoors.

It is the hope of Lee County PF that these public areas will provide opportunities for today's and, more importantly, tomorrow's generation to interact with wildlife and the outdoor heritage of this region.

City approves 2018-19 union staff contracts

"We need to make sure we have things for the kids to do in the summer, so that's something we could look at down the road."

Wilson said these arrangements aren't uncommon, noting that the West Burlington City Pool is now under the management of the Burlington YMCA and Washington's city pool is under the management of the YMCA in that city.

Randolph said it was vital that the services be kept at a minimum as good as they were, or preferably better, now that the YMCA is managing the pool.

In an unrelated issue, the council approved three separate settlement agreements with the library staff, fire departments, and local 2003 police department union with a 2.5 across the board pay increases and incremental increases in the employee's contribution to family insurance plans starting next year individual plans are still at no cost to the employee.

Varley dialed up the attorney who represented the city in the negotiations who recommended the city go into an exempt session under Iowa Code. City Councilor Robert Morawitz asked to table the issue until the end of the meeting to enter into the exempt session. Several members of the media contested the exempt session saying there was no foundation in the discussion of a resolution to satisfy exempt status as it would be considered a strategy session since the agreements had tentatively been reached. The agenda items were to approve the agreements.

Iowa Code does allow for exempt meetings. An exempt session is not subject to the open meetings requirements and can be held without public notice, be separate from an open meeting, be held without taping or minutes, and can be held without a vote or motion.

With Randolph discussing options for the session with the attorney, Councilman Chris Greenwald made a motion to call the question, which was seconded by Councilman Travis Seidel.

A vote was then taken to vote directly on the resolution and that vote passed 4-2 with Morawitz and City Councilman Rusty Andrews voting against the motion. Kevin Rink motioned to approve the resolution for the library staff settlement agreement. Seidel seconded and that motion passed 5-1 with Morawitz casting the only nay vote.

The other two resolutions for the fire and police agreements passed unanimously.

In other action,

- the council voted 6-0 to approve the fiscal year 2018-19 budget and set a public hearing March 6, at 5:30 p.m. in the council chambers.
- the council voted 6-0 to approve and award construction contracts for the replacement of the bridge over the creek at Avenue I.

Two heads are better than one.
