Barker official says Lee County Bank window design approved

Most of the windows at the old Lee County Bank building have been boarded up for sometime. However, that may come to an end soon as resubmitted designs have been approved and windows will be ordered soon.

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - The owners of the old Lee County Bank and Cattermole Library got good news two weeks ago that windows have been approved for the building and will be ordered this week.

The windows, which are now boarded up on the building, were a sticking point as several submitted designs were rejected, according to Barker Financial Inc.'s CFO Kyle Galloway.

Galloway said he was informed a couple weeks ago the most recent submission of window design was approved by the National Parks Service, which is charged with overseeing the historical reconstruction of the building due to tax credits issued to the builder by the federal government.

The delay in getting the windows approved caused some concern in the ability to use the tax credits due to timelines on the project, but Galloway said the project has been given a 12-month extension on the credits.

"There was a point in time on this project when time became an issue, but we were able to get a 12-month extension for the tax credits so we're good for any sort of funding timeline," Galloway said Thursday afternoon.

He said the windows will probably take five to 10 weeks to manufacture and then they will be delivered for installation.

"I'm anticipating the 10 weeks so we should have them sometime in March or April and then get them installed. From a lease standpoint we'd like to have them ready in March, but I think April is more realistic. It's just the windows...they're the most noticeable part of this type of construction and that's why they take so long.

He said the original windows were not salvageable and, when buildings using federal historic tax credits, have windows needing to be replaced they have to look exactly like the original windows.

Alexander named FMCH CEO

Six-month interim run gives board confidence to make move permanent

BY PCC STAFF

FORT MADISON - The Fort Madison Community Hospital Board of Directors has named Jeremy Alexander as the permanent President/CEO of FMCH effective February 1st, 2018. Alexander took on the role of Interim President/CEO after the resignation of Pat Bira in August of 2017.

ALEXANDER

Alexander has been an FMCH employee for almost ten years. Prior to becoming the Interim President/CEO he held the position of Vice-President of Finance. Alexander received both his Bachelor of Business degree in Finance and his Masters of Business Administration in Finance and Marketing from Western Illinois University, where he currently chairs the Finance Advisory Board.

"We feel very confident Jeremy will continue to lead the organization in a positive direction. He is committed to the future of Fort Madison Community Hospital and making sure quality health care remains available in our community," said Ann Menke, Pres-

Box scores 24 in HTC rout

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG

HTC junior Emily Box faces some stiff New London defense going to the hoop in the first half of Thursday's win over New London. Box finished with 24 points to lead all scorers.

which was culminated in a 3-pointer from freshman Bailey Hellweg from the left side to set the margin at 68-17.

Johnson said the three seniors all played well considering the injuries HTC is facing.

"Actually, all three played very well tonight. Madison really did a nice job inside tonight and she did Tuesday in Wapello as well when Eryn went out," he said. "Hopefully, we'll get everyone back for Notre Dame."

The Crusaders open regional action on Thursday at home against Burlington Notre Dame. They travel to Wapello on Friday as part of the girls Southeast Iowa Superconference Shootout.

Johnson said the girls have some things to work on before regionals.

"The way I look at it, everyone's 0-0. You win or go home and that's the way we're going to enter the post-season," he said after Thursday's win. "We need to work on our offense. I thought we forced some things tonight, and we've got some other things to clean up."

Taylor Boeding had six for the Crusaders, while Avery Hopper had four, and Sam Hoenig and Hellwig each had 3-pointers for HTC.

The Crusaders stand at 9-11 on the season going into Friday's shootout.

HTC boys lose rebound battle in loss to Tigers

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG
PCC EDITOR

FORT MADISON - The Holy Trinity boys basketball team had upset on its mind Tuesday night when the 14-4 New London Tigers came calling Thursday night.

But the Crusaders gave up too many offensive boards to the Tigers and missed some crucial free throws down the stretch en route to a 59-40 loss in Southeast Iowa Superconference action.

"If we'd made some free throws and would have cut their offense boards in half I think we could have had a one possession game," said Head Coach John Hellige.

Holy Trinity was coming off an upset of 9-9 Danville last week, but were swatted by Wapello on Tuesday 90-57 and now stand at 4-14 with Burlington Notre Dame on the horizon Tuesday night.

The Crusaders were clearly in the mood to slow the game down, trailing just 5-6 with 2:37 left in the first quarter. Keontae Luckett converted with a floater in the lane to put New London up by three and then scored again with :39 left in the period to double up the Crusaders 10-5.

Both teams shared about four turnovers starting the second period before the Tigers' Isaac McSorley got the scoring started with 10-foot jumper countered by HTC's Matt Hellige to keep the lead at 5. It looked like New London had shifted a gear when they went on a 6-0 run before sophomore Quentin Schneider threw water on it with a three-pointer from the right baseline to make it a 10-18 game with 3:50 left in the half.

The Crusaders wouldn't get another bucket in the half, but did get to the free throw line and converted 6 of 6, four by Hellige to cut the Tigers' lead to seven. After Blake Crabtree converted two free throws, the Tigers rolled the inbound pass halfway up the court before Luckett picked it up with five seconds left and pitched it over to Mason Porter, who calmly sank a 3-ball just before the buzzer to give the Tigers a 10-point lead at halftime.

Holy Trinity looked to make a game of it at the front of quarter three. Schneider opened the quarter with a baseline drive and layup to cut it 18-26. The Tigers got two buckets from McSorley, but sophomore Reed Fehseke, who finished with 10 points on the night, connected on his second 3-pointer of the night from about 22 feet at the top of the key. Luckett scored inside but then Fehseke hit again to make it an eight-point game.

The Crusaders would get two more 3-pointers, which was four in a row without a miss, from Brant Holtkamp and senior Collin Thornton. The Tigers then took over on the boards converting their next three buckets on second and third attempts with the Crusaders not being able to secure rebounds on the Tigers' end. When all was said and done, the Tigers had pulled out to a 42-32 lead with Luckett scoring eight in the run. Schneider and Fehseke each had two free throws in the mix, but only Fehseke converted one of the freebies.

In the final period, Thornton outscored New London 9-5 in the early going, but then McSorley hit a 3-ball to make it an 11-point game. Schneider missed the front end of a one-and-one and then Luckett, who finished with 21 to lead all scorers, connected on a 3-pointer from the left side to make it a 12-point game before Hellige called a time out. Thornton scored out of the timeout. McSorley hit another 3-pointer on the next possession. Thornton then missed on the front end of a one-and-one and the Tigers' Alex Dentlinger hit inside to make it a 15-point game and the Crusaders wouldn't score again.

"We tried to play a controlled game. We wanted New London to come at us and get upset without putting 60 to 70 points up," Hellige said. "We wanted to slow them down and get them anxious and then attack at the right moments, that was the game plan."

Hellige said it was a night and day difference from the last time the Crusaders played in New London.

"They're growing and it's really been fun to watch these guys develop," he said. "It hasn't always equaled 'W's but seeing the transformation from New London there and New London here, it's been pretty remarkable. They're arguably the best team in the district."

Hellige said Thornton played well on senior night and threw out praise for Ryan Rees, who transferred over from FMHS in the middle of the year and got in the game in the final minutes but missed a couple shots at the buzzer.

"He's the hardest working kid in practice," Hellige said. "He mops the floor with his jersey because he's all over the place. He communicates well and helps everywhere. If we'd had him as sophomore we would have had something."

Thornton had 11 points to lead HTC, followed by Fehseke's 10, and Matt Hellige's eight points. Schneider put in six, Holtkamp had three, and Crabtree added two points to round out the scoring for HTC.

The Crusaders take on Burlington Notre Dame on Tuesday night before the boys SEISC shootout next Friday. The location and opponent have yet to be determined.

HTC's Matt Hellige gets roughed up going to the hoop in first half action Tuesday night. Kentonae Luckett (23) gets a piece of Hellige from behind.

Cattermole, bank building projects work in tandem

"Those windows have proven to be a bit tricky to get. You have to be exactly to the specs of the National Park Service and the historians sign off on design so that's taken a while," he said. "It's really the only part of this project that hasn't gone exactly as we had hoped. But every single one I've been involved in has been tough with the windows."

The company is also rehabbing the Cattermole library but said since both buildings are under the same funding mechanisms the projects have to come along together.

"The Cattermole can't proceed any faster. If it was a separate project it would be done by now. That project has had no surprises at all. We've really narrowed our focus to those buildings and the residential aspect of it. Once that's done, I'll breathe a lot easier," Galloway said.

The projects at Cattermole and Lee County Bank will result in upper story residential housing and first floor commercial space. The projects have been in the works for many years, starting with Franz Community Investors who bailed on the project several years ago. Barker picked up ownership of the projects in 2016 and have been working with local contractors since that time to rehab both buildings. The company also purchased the Sears building on Avenue G, but plans for that building are on hold at least until the other two projects are completed.

Pike to stay on as interim VP

ident, FMCH Board of Directors. "He brings a fresh perspective to this leadership role."

During the past six months under his leadership, Fort Madison Community Hospital has successfully recruited multiple health care providers. Dr. David, Dr. Gorski, Dr. and Alisa Kindig, WHNP all have started at FMCH. Five additional primary care physicians have been recruited and will be joining the medical staff after completing their residencies this summer. FMCH has also moved forward with exploring a strategic partnership with Great River Health Systems to create a foundation upon which patients in Southeast Iowa can receive comprehensive, coordinated care long into the future. As one of only six independent hospitals in Iowa, FMCH remains a financially viable and successful organization employing a team of over 480 employees. Alexander is also overseeing the conversion of the physician clinics' electronic health record system to Meditech, currently used for hospital services, with completion slated for June of this year. This will allow for more seamless communication throughout the organization and increase patient safety.

"I'm honored to have this opportunity. We'll continue the success that FMCH has realized by staying true to our mission of providing quality health care, community service, and being a top employer in the region. We will stay focused on our strategic plan and we will not relent in moving this hospital in the right direction," Alexander said.

David Pike will remain in the position of Interim Vice-President of Finance.
