RiverFest planning focuses on charities

Committee to hold Battle of the Bands to benefit local charities

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG

FORT MADISON - As part of setting up a list of national acts for RiverFest 2018, the committee organizing the event is collaborating with Vinnie's Longbranch to give a regional band a shot to take the stage before the national acts perform.

As part of a Battle of the Bands, the RiverFest committee and Vinnie's Longbranch are incorporating a Battle of the Charities to coincide with the event. The group is also looking for a sponsor for the event and the sponsorship fee will go to the charity that raises the most money.

The event is set for May 27th, the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend. Right now plans for the event would include five judges determining which band will perform on the main stage. A second-place finisher may be invited to play on the entertainment stage. The event is free to the public, but there is an opportunity for attendees to donate to one of three charities upon entrance to the event. The charities would get the money and the charity that makes the most money that day would get the sponsorship fees as well.

As part of Sunday's list of events, the Veterans' Honor Flight program will once again be the recipients of an American Legion breakfast on Sunday morning.

For the first time ever, Dragon Boat racing will be part of Riverfest and proceeds from that event will benefit a veterans' service dog program, called Puppy Jakes out of Urbandale.

Authentic boats from the American Dragon Boat Association will be on hand for teams of 20 to race down the Mississippi River. Nick Bauswell is chairing that event. Bauswell has been dragon boat racing for more than a decade and has already had interest from groups as far away as Cedar Rapids.

Crusaders' upset bid at IMS falls short

KALONA - Holy Trinity's boys basketball team ended their season after giving 18-3 Iowa Mennonite all they could handle Thursday in Kalona, but faltered in the final :30 and fell 56-49 to end their season.

After wiping out a 13-point third quarter deficit and trailing by eight in the Class A regional semifinal, HTC senior Collin Thornton laced a 3-pointer forcing a :30 time out by IMS coach Dwight Gingerich. Immediately after the IMS time out, HTC Head Coach John Hellige then called a full-time to set the stage for the final 3:31.

I don't know what it is about the "first-time-you-have-something, you-use-it," but I've seen it play out way too often, not only with me, but with others.

I had just passed my EMT test in Ft. Collins, Colorado and was on my way home, feeling proud and pleased with myself for having accomplished something I had wanted to do for a long time. It was about 10:00 at night. Rounding an S curve I came upon an accident scene that looked pretty bad. There didn't seem to be any emergency vehicles or police on scene yet. I could see what looked like a rollover with people bunched up around it. I pulled over, approached the group, identified myself as an EMT, and offered to help. As it turned out, I wound up performing CPR for the first time on a young woman who didn't make it. Bummer. That was day one of being an EMT.

Day Two: I had been accepted as a probationary member of a volunteer fire department. Once again, I was proud and pleased at having accomplished something I had set as a goal for myself. I was on my way to work. Right in front of the fire department, I kid you not, was a rollover accident with the car lying on its roof right in the middle of the street. I pulled over to help. There was a man walking around confused, saying, "I can't believe it. I'm driving along and all of a sudden, I'm upside down." It was winter and, evidently what had happened was, he had hit a mound of snow and ice that was piled up in the middle of the street. When the city had plowed its streets, they had left piles of snow and ice in the middle of the streets and hadn't removed them yet. (You all know what this is like.) The snow and ice became dirty, the same color as the pavement, making the piles hard to see in the early-morning light. The driver of the vehicle had hit one of these piles and flipped his car. "Can't you guys plow your streets?" he was asking the police, shaking his head in bewilderment.

Day Three: I went to the hospital to donate blood. Right in the middle of the reception area there was a man lying on the floor having what appeared to be convulsions. I couldn't figure out why no one was paying attention to him. I bent over the guy to see what I could do. A nurse tapped me on the shoulder and said, "Leave him be, he's all right." She winked at me. I got it. This was a mentally ill person wanting attention and faking a medical emergency. I was totally disgusted with the situation and at myself for having been so easily conned.

Tim Olson, a local mortician in Mt. Pleasant, had just recertified for CPR. He was on his way to the optician's to have his eyes checked. It was the middle of winter and the streets were icy. There was an elderly lady flat on her back on the sidewalk with a knee injury. Tim, conscious of his training and wanting to help, took off his coat and covered her up. He looked into her eyes, she smiled up at him and said, "Thank you." A lady nearby came up and said, "Don't worry, Mom, the ambulance is on its way."

The lady replied, "It's okay, dear. The undertaker is here."

Montezuma ends HTC's girls run at regionals

Senior Brett Schneider scores 25 in last game as Crusader

BY CHUCK VANDENBERG

MONTEZUMA - Again it was just a single quarter that sent the Holy Trinity girls basketball team home with a loss. But this one, a 70-48 regional semi final loss to Montezuma Friday night, ended the girls season

HOENIG

The Crusaders end the season 11-13 Senior Brett Schneider put up 25 points utilizing her speed and quickness, six of the buckets coming off steals. Junior Emily Box had nine boards to lead HTC and chipped in with eight points.

After trailing by just five at the end of the first quarter against the Braves put some distance in the game starting the second period with a 7-0 run

. HTC responded with five quick points with six minutes left to go in the half to cut the lead to 11, 31-20.

Montezuma would then put up another 8-1 run to carry an 18-point lead going into the locker room.

The Braves, who came into the game shooting 32% from long-range were able to score from the perimeter, especially in the second quarter when freshman Elise Boulton connected on three. She went 5-of-7 from the 3-point arc. As a team the Braves launched 22 3-pointers on the night, hitting on eight.

But the also countered with sophomore Shateah Wetering who went 7-of-9 inside and put up 17 to lead Montezuma in scoring.

SCHNEIDER

The second half saw the Braves only outscore HTC by four, but the second period deficit was too much to overcome. The Crusaders didn't get on the board until four minutes left in the third period and by that time were down 26.

We will miss the leadership of exiting seniors
Brett, Madison,
and Samantha.
But I believe we have built a foundation for many years of great Lady Crusader basketball to come."

-Tony Johnson HTC girls Head Coach However HTC did outscore the Braves the rest of they way.

"Montezuma moved the ball well," said head coach Tony Johnson. "We tried four different defenses and they adjusted well. They shot the three very well and we could never dig out of the 2nd quarter hole we dug ourselves into."

"We learned some somethings about ourselves for next season and we will be back better because of those hard-learned lessons."

Rounding out the scoring for the Crusaders was Madison Mohrfeld with four, Mya Lawlor, Ashlynn Haas and Taylor Boeding each with three points and Eryn Anderson with a bucket.

With the win Montezuma will go up against 22-0 North Mahaska in Grinnell Monday night in the regional finals.

Johnson said the team will miss outgoing seniors Brett Schneider, Madison Mohrfeld and Samantha Hoenig.

"We will miss the leadership of exiting seniors Brett, Madison and Samantha. But I believe we have built a foundation for many years of great Lady Crusader basketball to come," Johnson said.

"We have six players returning next season. Emily Box Taylor Boeding, Mya Lawlor, Eryn Anderson Avery Hopper and Ashlyn Haas. Hopefully we can start next season at 100% health. We made it to the regional semifinal for the first time in a while and we believe the girls with some hard work and focus this summer can exceed this year accomplishments."

HTC had chance late for upset

Hellige said he called the full time out to give his players some rest, despite a hybrid man zone press and also to handle a stretch and stall employed by the IMS to try and run the clock out on HTC.

"They run a ton of variations on their press. We were running time outs to give the kids some rest and to readjust what we were doing with their press. We had five or six variations based on what they were doing as well," Hellige said.

Down just five at 49-44 and coming out of the time out, the two teams both failed to score on their next possession, but sophomore Quentin Schneider, who led HTC with 18 points on the night, hit inside to cut the lead to 49-46. IMS missed again on the next trip down and on a fast break coming back after slipping the press, Schneider was whistled for a charge nullifying a bucket.

IMS coughed it up in the lane in their next possession and Thornton forced the issue at the other end. The Crusaders were on a break and fed Thornton up front who was fouled under the basket. He made the back end of the two freebies cutting the lead to two at 49-47 with just over a minute remaining.

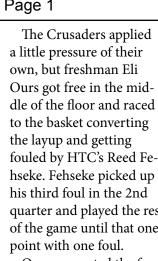

The Crusaders applied a little pressure of their own, but freshman Eli Ours got free in the middle of the floor and raced to the basket converting the layup and getting fouled by HTC's Reed Fehseke. Fehseke picked up his third foul in the 2nd quarter and played the rest of the game until that one point with one foul.

Ours converted the free throw and IMS was up by five. The Crusaders turned it over under the basket on the next trip and had to foul to stop. Senior Cole Ours calmly drilled both free throws and, aside from a two more free throws from Thornton, IMS had sewn it up.

The game was nip and tuck out of the gate, but IMS held a slim lead all the way through the first quarter with leads as big as five. Then HTC went on a 7-2 run highlighted by Fehseke's second 3-ball of the quarter to help the Crusaders tie it at 14.

Caleb Gingerich hit a 3-ball of his own just before the end of the quarter to give IMS a 17-14 lead going into the second quarter.

Holy Trinity would only convert 2-of-8 in the second period and, with Fehseke picking up his third foul in the first period, things looked a bit bleak for the visitors. But tough defensive stands and Schneider driving the baseline and drawing contact, the Crusaders made it to the free throw line ten times, converting seven, including two by Schneider at the end of the half, to give HTC a one-point lead going into the locker room.

IMS converted just four buckets and no free throws in the second period and went just 4-of 10 from the field.

Reggie Borntrager hit to start the 3rd period but Fehseke answered with a long three pointer to knot the game at 28.

The Crusaders got two more free throws from Schneider at 3:56 left, but then IMS went on a 9-1 run that ended with a Schneider bucket, but HTC was already down nine by then and Holy Trinity wouldn't get any closer until the run at 3:31 in the 4th.

Hellige said the performance was what the team envisioned at the beginning of the season.

This is kind of the team (assistant) Jay (Baldwin) and I envisioned this summer," he said. "We scouted them and knew what we had and we knew if we played strong and we played smart we would be there at the end of the game," he said.

Seniors Thornton and Ryan Rees drew special praise from Hellige.

"Collin has been a mainstay in this program since fifth grade and Ryan was by far our best practice player and he only played for one year for us. But he helped everyone be a better player," Helligesaid,

"The future is bright,

HTC junior Brant Holtkamp kicks out a pass after dribbling through an IMS press in the second half of Thursday's game against Iowa Mennonite Schools. The Crusaders' season ended with a 56-49 defeat at IMS in Kalona.

> the things that people need to keep in perspective is that usually sophomores are going up against seniors and juniors during practice and they improve during practice. But these kids stepped on the court as sophomores and have learned in front of the watchful eyes of family and friends and it's been great watching them getting better and better."

Fehseke finished with 13 points on the night followed by Thornton with nine, Matt Hellige had six, Blake Crabtree had two, and Brant Holtkamp chipped in with one to round out the scoring for HTC.

Eli and Cole Ours led IMS with 14 and 13 points, respectively. They host Highland at Mt. Pleasant Tuesday night in the regional finals.
