Firefighters battle Thursday blazes

FM Fire Chief Joey Herren listens to the property owner on the northeast corner of 9th Street and Avenue E Thursday about where a fire may have started, as firefighters push foam and water into the ceiling of the porch. The fire started when a heat gun caught some bird nests on fire. The fire was contained to the porch area.

Two fires: Porch fire, GRRWA landfill fire keeps FMFD hopping Thursday

FORT MADISON - Fort Madison firefighters battled two blazes on Thursday afternoon.

Just after 3 p.m. a porch on the north side of Eighth Street on the east end caught fire after a heating gun was used on some renovations to the porch of the home in the historical district.

Fire Chief Joey Herren said the homeowners used the gun while repairing some of the woodwork, caught some bird nests in the ceiling of the porch on fire.

"We stopped it there at the porch and got that taken care of for her," Herren said.

Firefighters then spent about four and half hours battling a blaze at the Great River Regional Waste Authority landfill.

Herren said in the three fires at the landfill in his time with the fire department, that was the most burning he'd seen.

He said there was either a hot load that was emptied into the cell, which is the newest cell opened at the landfill, or some chemicals didn't get along in the cell.

"They get hot loads. People put things in the trash and the trash truck dumps it in there with something burning in it. Or maybe two chemicals that didn't like one another," Herren said.

He thanked area volunteer departments from West Point, Denmark, and Wever.

"They saved our bacon hauling a lot of water in."

Board at odds on how much funding to allocate to FM's marina renovation

By Chuck Vandenberg

LEE COUNTY - A lengthy discussion on how, or even if, to contribute funds to the City of Fort Madison's Marina project dominated Tuesday's Lee County Board of Supervisors' meeting.

The county is currently grappling with how to fund a potential $5.5 million Lee County Health Department/Lee County EMS building to be constructed on land being donated to the county by the Meller family where the former Iowan Motel was located.

There is about $3.7 million of the county's $6.5 million America Rescue Plan funds left and Supervisor Garry Seyb is encouraging the board to give the Marina project $250,000 out of those funds.

However, several board members including board chairman Matt Pflug, said the health department has been the county's top priority and Fort Madison Mayor Matt Mohrfeld would get the marina built even without money from the county.

Mohrfeld has been asking for $250,000 since the county opened applications for use of the ARPA funds. Now Mohrfeld said a private investor has pledged to match the county's $250,000 which would represent 60% match funding for a Destination Iowa Grant, which could leverage an additional $350,000 in grant funding for the Marina project. Mohrfeld said the donor has said he wanted to see an investment from the county first.

A panel convened to oversee the use of the ARPA funds voted last week to not use any of the remaining funds for the marina project with a 4-1 vote. Seyb voted against the mea-

HIGHWAY 61

City issues $8.5M in bonds to shore up Hwy. 61 funding

By Chuck Vandenberg
Pen City Current Editor

FORT MADISON - The Fort Madison City Council approved the issuance of bonds Tuesday night to cover shortfalls in the Highway 61 rehabilitation project.

Council members voted 6-0 in favor of issuing bonds totalling $8.47 million to offset costs associated with the city's highway project to include the 10th to 18th streets and an overlay from 20th to 30th Streets.

The city accepted about $13 million from the state to accept ownership of the highway back in 2012.

The cost to the taxpayers for the 20-year bond initially will be $12.7 million when interest is calculated over the life of the bond.

FORREST G. COPPAGE

Forrest Gregory Coppage, 78, of Claremore, OK, passed away February 12, 2022. He was born in Ft. Madison, IA on Nov. 28, 1943 to Percy and Ruth Heryford Coppage. Greg married Dianna Adam on Dec. 11, 1965 at Sacred Heart Church in Ft. Madison. He is survived by his wife of 56 years and his children, Deb, Laura (Wes Rettig), Craig and 9 grandchildren. Greg worked at First Mississippi in Ft. Madison until he relocated to Claremore, OK to work at Terra Nitrogen.

COPPAGE

Greg's loves in life were sports, vintage cars, American history, playing cards, hunting, camping and fishing. He looked forward to "deer camp" and hunting with his son, family and friends. He felt he belonged in the outdoors and would often look out the car window at a far off timber and say "I could just take off walking and live out there."

Being part of a large family was central to Greg's life. He loved his siblings, in-laws, nieces and nephews and enjoyed the many get-togethers and celebrations over the years. Gathering with his family for Superbowl Weekend was an anticipated yearly tradition.

He always supported his kids and grandkids in their activities and their lives. His cowboy hat and boots were recognized immediately, with shouts of "Grandpa is here!" His twinkling blue eyes, mischievous grin and warm hug could make anyone feel better and instantly loved.

His care of his wife in the last few years is a tribute to their love and his strength. He taught his children many lessons in life, most without words, but with actions of hard work, love and always being there. He will be greatly missed.

A graveside service will be held 11:00 a.m. Saturday July 9, 2022 at Calvary Cemetery in West Point, Iowa A Celebration of Life Gathering with Greg's favorite meal will follow at St. Mary's Church in Riverside, IA. Online condolences may be made to the family at www.schmitzfuneralhomes.com. Schmitz Funeral Home of West Point is assisting the family with arrangements.

County's operating funds nearing critical level

sure. The panel, which includes Lee County Auditor Denise Fraise and County Budget Director Cindy Renstrom, said the county could probably afford to spend $20,000 annually for five years to give the Marina a $100,000 contribution but that would be over five years.

Seyb said he was concerned that move would tie up the general fund, that Pflug said was in critical shape.

"Right now we're at an all-time low of $2.5 million. That's a dangerous level and we should have that conversation more than we have been," Pflug said.

But Pflug said he's opposed to borrowing money in the recessing economy when there are funds available to build the health department, not including the EMS bay.

Pflug asked for a report from Carl A. Nelson that broke down the costs of the building just for the health department and not yet to include the EMS bay portion, which was just over $1 million. The report generated by Nelson indicated the county could preliminarily build the Heath Department at just over 10,000 square feet at between $3.8 million to $4 million.

The County is also looking at a possible Community Development Block Grant that would be up to $570,000 toward the project.

Sara Helenthal, deputy county auditor and the county's administrator for the EMS department, said the Fort Madison EMS facility is in disrepair and will need attention soon and cautioned the board about leaving the EMS portion to be funded later.

Dennis Cosby, the county EMS director said the current Fort Madison facility would not be able to be sustained without repairs.

Seyb also pointed out that two of the county's bonds in current debt service will be paid off in the next four years and another will be cut in half, reducing the county's debt load, in the event bonding would be necessary to finish off the project.

"If we had to bond, the bonding (ability) would be there. That would not be our primary focus obviously, but we've got three to four years to look for that funding and come up with money," Seyb said.

He said committing funds from the general fund locks out additional spending for five years because of funds they may not have had to commit if it was funded through ARPA.

Seyb said the county to date has been effective with its use of ARPA funds using $1.95 million to leverage an additional $3.55 million toward broadband work in Lee County.

Supervisor Ron Fedler, who also sits on the ARPA panel, said when the issue was brought up in the panel's meeting Tuesday, he said the $250,000 taken out of ARPA funds would be taking away from the Health Department and giving it to the marina.

"To me the Health Department was more important on how much we spend on rent, $90,000 per year, over 10 years in $900,000 we're saving. I figure the health department serves so many needy people who rely on their services rather than nursing homes and doctors," Fedler said.

"To me that's $250,000 more we'll have to borrow to finish the health department."

Pflug said the county has been fighting the battle for getting a new health department for decades and they should now focus solely on getting that building erected and then take on the EMS facility after that.

Seyb said the Meller donation is close to $200,000 and the build isn't going to get cheaper.

Fedler disagreed, citing economists saying the economy is facing a financial hurricane and prices are going to start coming down.

"To say that things won't get cheaper might not be real accurate," he said.

Fedler also pointed out the $6 million the county bonded to improve radio communications for first responders county-wide. Seyb said that money was borrowed at some of the cheapest rates the county has ever seen.

Fedler countered that the county has more debt now than it ever has at close to $10 million.

The agenda item was only for discussion purposes at Pflug's direction. The board agreed to have the item back on the agenda next week for possible action.

Mohrfeld encouraged the county to remember there is a return on investment with tourism dollars.

"They like to use the rollover of 7x. I think that's a little much, but even if you look at rollover of double on $1.5 million, you're rolling $3 million a year back into the community," he said.

City to move from C.U.R.E. to Access Systems

The city does have options to pay off the bonds early, but not until at least June 1, 2032.

Interest rates on the bond will be 5% through 2030 and then 4% through the remainder of the debt life through 2042.

In City Manager David Varley's February budget session, he said work on the 10th to 18th Street section could run $6.5 million in construction and $1 million in engineering and design.

But the current climate of construction has driven costs up and the city also has upfront costs associated with the bonds.

A State Surface Transportation grant for $1.25 million has been applied to the $8 million total project with the rest of the work coming from bond proceeds.

The project consists of reconstructing the highway along with replacing watermains, storm sewers, and sanitary sewers within the project area.

Some areas of the improvement project are already getting concrete poured. Crews with Jones Contracting out of West Point are working on both sides of the street at the same time, while leaving 13th to 15th Streets open to retail traffic in those areas.

Crews are also working on the 15th to 18th street sections at the same time and have that section of the highway closed off.

After those two sections are completed, crews will go back and complete the 12th to 15th Street sections.

City moves to new IT provider

In an unrelated issue, the council voted 6-0 to turn over the city's IT support contract to Access Systems out of Waukee. The firm has a Burlington office and recently acquired the former J&S Electronic Business Solutions last fall.

The city had been paying C.U.R.E. Solutions $4,800 per month for upgrades and monthly monitoring, service, and maintenance of the city's system.

The new contract will pay Access $5,113 for the same work.

"We think there's a few things that have been faltering a little bit, so we thought it was time to look around a little bit and see what options we had," Varley said.

He said the firm did an analysis of the system and a recommendation report on what they found on the system.

"There are some things that need to be done in the first 30 days, some in 60 days, and then some that need done in the next 90 days," he said.

There will be some expenses of about $21,000 to do some needed immediate upgrades. The city will move to the new company on Aug. 16.

Councilman Rebecca Bowker said she was told in March of 2021 that the service from C.U.R.E was good, and asked how the service had deteriorated over that time.

In other action:

- the council approved change orders to the Marina Improvement project on the jetty wall and dredging projects, on the PORT trail from Fort Madison High School to Rodeo Park, and on the 10th to 18th Street Highway 61 project, all by 6-0 votes

- set a public hearing to auction property at 1301 Avenue I, 6-0

- sold two lots of property at 2614-2618 Avenue O to Angela Salazar for $500, 6-0

- approved yearly asphalt and sealcoat bids to W.L. Miller Co. of Hamilton at $3.45 per square foot of asphalt and $1.20 per square foot of sealcoating.
