CHS hosts annual blood drive

Annual Bavarian Maifest weekend

Cascade High School hosted its annual blood drive connected by the Red Cross. CHS ASB students and advisors collaborated with the Red Cross volunteers to put on the annual blood drive. The blood drive was held in the CHS wrestling room on Monday, May 1 during school hours.

ASB advisor Ms. Robison worked alongside JayAnn Chacon, charge of managing the sign-up table in front of the CHS cafeteria during lunch and flex periods. "I coordinated with our two advisors, Ms. Robison, and Mr. Betz, so we can meet with the Red Cross representative, and get everything to set it up to help it run this year," said Redman. Both students wanted as many of their classmates as possible to participate in the blood drive and even donated themselves. "I donated last year and I wanted to do something to help the community," said Loomis, who continued, "Grace mostly planned it, but I was helping her whenever she would need me to help with the name tags for the passes," that the students received when it was time for them to donate blood.

Not only did Cascade students and staff donate blood, but community members from all over Leavenworth took the time out of their day to come to the high school and donate. Later in the day, some running start students also showed up to donate. ASB and Red Cross volunteers oversaw the blood drive while it was happening to assure that donors are safe and taken care of afterwards. Donors were rewarded with bottled water and their choice of treats to prevent feeling dizzy or fainting. Amongst the table of snacks was a tray of butterscotch cookies made by Carl Haberberger's culinary class and were a big hit with the donors. The Red Cross's top priority is for donors to be informed and keeping them safe through the process. Before donors get ready to donate blood, they go through a check up with a Red Cross volunteer and make sure that their blood is clean, and they are healthy to donate. This checkup included a temperature check and a questionnaire about recent travel or health concerns that could negatively affect a blood donation.

Students who are under eighteen years of age were required to have a parent permission slip signed to make sure that there are no health problems that could endanger them while donating blood. Seniors who are eighteen don't need a permission slip to donate blood. "My mom has always [donated] so I've always wanted to do it," said Zienna Erickson (12), who had donated last year. Staff were also willing to participate in the blood drive this year, including one of the organizers, Jon Betz, who is the sports medicine and health teacher at CHS. "I know kind of what the [safety] requirements for giving blood are and I know some of the background on what it does, impactwise," said Betz, who continued, "and just giving blood in the past helps too." The blood drive ran very smoothly, however, some CHS students were upset because they signed up, but were never put on the schedule. Community members and CHS staff were prioritized since they have jobs to get back to. This made the wait time for donating surprisingly long. CHS Interact Club held a meeting the following Tuesday and presented their feedback of the blood drive, debating whether or not the school should make the blood drive a two-day event for next year so that everyone who signs up will actually have a chance to donate.

The blood drive held at Cascade High School this year was successful and was widely talked about throughout the school. It is important for students to understand what donating blood means for the community and how they can help make an impact. CHS students were well prepared to take part in their community and contribute to making the world a better place by participating in the event. Weekend Backpack Program feeds many students

Marlene Farrell Correspondent

Every Wednesday, a team of dedicated volunteers gather in the basement of the Leavenworth Community United Methodist Church. It doesn't take long—less than half an hour—to assemble 72 bags with thirteen food items, but it is critical work. These food bags are destined for the backpacks of Cascade School District students each Friday afternoon.

They will provide food items to stretch a family's pantry, a food buffer for the weekend, so to speak, when the children are not receiving free and reduced lunch and breakfast at school. The foods are nonperishable and require little or no prep.

Recent items in the food bags included mac and cheese, instant rice, instant oatmeal, chili, canned fruit, pudding, milk boxes and microwave popcorn.

Individuals from the Methodist Church congregation and other friends have been coordinating this Weekend Backpack program for over a decade, and they deliver food bags to three schools, Peshastin Dryden Elementary, Icicle River Middle School and Cascade High School. The Leavenworth Church of the Nazarene has assumed responsibility for Alpine Lakes Elementary, and the Plain Community Church recently started providing similar aid to Beaver Valley School.

Of course, there's more to it than just assembling the bags. Dean Groby has been leading up the logistics for years. "It has been seven years since I first started helping with the program," Groby said. "I just volunteered to start with, then took over running the program.

"The biggest challenge is planning the menus and then buying all the groceries. We do this every two weeks during the school year. We usually give the kids extra food before winter, midwinter and spring breaks." This means every two weeks, Groby makes a run to Wenatchee and fills his car to the ceiling, Tetris-style, with boxes purchased at Costco and Winco. This load would be transported via an elevator to a spacious closet in the church basement. And then on Tuesdays, a few people get everything organized. They set up tables with the exact number of bags on them, and lay out an exact count of all the items on the front tables.

an organizer for the Red Cross, to provide the well-planned event at Cascade High School. Chacon and the Red Cross have "partnered with the school for many years. It helps students to engage with their community, knowing the importance of what it means to donate blood and volunteering," she said.

Cultivate joy and wellness at our Women's Retreat

Empower yourself with practical skills for creating and sustaining joy and wellness at our Ease into Spring Women's Retreat for cancer survivors May 12-14 at Sleeping Lady Mountain Resort. Most of us live braced mentally, emotionally, and physically against constant signals of stress in our day-to-day lives. It is essential to periodically retreat from the rigors of daily life to allow ourselves to rest, reset, and learn new skills that will support resilience and create a more peaceful, healthy, and joyful life. Neuroscience research suggests that feeling happy and joyful will create and strengthen neural pathways that support a positive outlook on life. This three-day retreat at Leavenworth's Sleeping Lady Mountain Resort empowers women who have received a cancer diagnosis to embrace survivorship as a life practice by teaching practical skills for cultivating joy, health, and whole-person wellness in day-to-day life. Through journaling, creative expression, gentle movement, and educational talks, EASE Cancer Foundation's faculty will guide each participant in creating their own personalized, sustainable wellness plan.

Registration is open online now and includes dinner on Friday and Saturday, breakfast on Saturday and Sunday, and all supplies. Email info@ easecancer.org for more information.

We Can Help Make a Difference

On Sunday May 21, 2 p.m., Wenatchee First United Methodist Church is sponsoring and hosting a special concert called Music For the Refugees. It will feature The Wenatchee Big Band, The Apollo Club, The Appleaires, a combined church choir, and other solo artists. The concert will directly benefit Ukrainian refugee families in Chelan, Douglas, and Grant counties, through the Friends of Ukrainian Refugees (FOuR). Admission is free, and a freewill offering will be taken. Did you know today there are around fifty Ukrainian refugee families in North Central Washington? They're quietly living among us, practicing, and learning English, going to school, finding their way around new neighborhoods; studying to get a driver's license, finding jobs, paying their rent, and trying to make new friends and new lives. We watch the news and read the paper, shocked by devastating pictures of the war in Ukraine. Many of us are feeling called to do more, and our words can only go so far. When words fail music speaks. Let's show our compassion and caring, and truly make a difference for the Ukrainian families in our area. Please join us and bring your extended family, friends, and neighbors. "Dean would do it all. He did more than we were aware of," said Judy Weaver, a longtime volunteer. With his absence, Weaver added, "The last couple of months have been quite the adventure! Donna Whalen and I trying to piece things together."

Coordinating with the schools takes effort too. "Every August I contact the counselors at IRMS, PD and Cascade," said Groby. "The students in the program are on the free/reduced lunch program and we don't know who they are. The school counselors take care of identifying the students and handling the paperwork involved."

In the beginning of the school year, this volunteer team prepared 35 bags for the three schools. It's steadily grown to

Not knowing the recipients, the volunteers are perfectly content to know that the food bags are well received. The counselors say that some children ask eagerly for them midweek.

Other volunteers, Strode Weaver and Eileen Groby, apply for local grants, but the program is not financially secure from year to year. "We can always use monetary donations," said Dean Groby. "It costs around $20,000 to run the program for one year."

Donations can be sent to the Leavenworth Community United Methodist Church, and marked for the Backpack Program. The address is 418 Evans St, Leavenworth.

Another way to support this worthwhile cause is to attend the Gladsong concert on July 23rd at 7 p.m. in the Snowy Owl Theater at Icicle Creek Center for the Arts. Gladsong is a local choir that sings a variety of classic, pop and inspirational songs and dedicates all the proceeds of their concerts to local nonprofits. In the case of this concert, the Weekend Backpack program is also grateful to Morgan Stanley, and local affiliate Dan Becraft, who is sponsoring the concert to cover the rental expenses.

The Weekend Backpack program will continue, week after week, year after year, because there will always be a need. One volunteer said, "Unless you have a kid in the school district, you don't know about this program." It runs quietly because these volunteers are tireless in their dedication.

Busy Betty

I was standing in line at a hospital cafeteria last week during Spring Break when I overheard a couple of nurses ahead of me in line talking. They were a few customers ahead of me. I wasn't trying to overhear but the distress in the small nurse's tone over leaving her eleven-year-old daughter at home alone while she was at work caused her voice to carry and because she was ahead of her friend in line her head was turned my direction.

I heard her say, "She's only eleven, I've never left her home alone while I'm working before. I've left her when I take her brother to soccer but that's not all day." I heard her friend murmur something. I couldn't make it out because she was facing away from me. Then the small nurse answered, "Yeah, I told her no cooking, don't open the door, just stay in and play on her phone all day." My mind did a loop-de-do... by nine I was babysitting across our small town and earning pocket change. That was back when phones were attached to the wall and moms left a list of contact numbers on an index card (we called them recipe cards) pasted to the wall beside the phone. I'm way old school. Then I thought about when I was eleven.

When I was eleven Grandpa (then Dad) needed to fetch a piece of equipment and Grandma (then Mom) wanted to go too but there was a cow to milk, steers to water, chickens to feed, things that just couldn't be left unattended. I remember the conversation at the dinner table before they left and how the two of them discussed leaving us kids alone on the farm for a few days so they could fetch whatever it was a piece of equipment. In the end they took a few days break from us kids. We stayed home; got the Datsun truck stuck after running up to the country store; did I mention I'm the oldest child in the family? Of course, the truck didn't get stuck where it had been parked when Mom and Dad left so we started the tractor; pulled the truck out of the sand; parked both the tractor and the Datsun back where they had been. We thought we were so slick getting away with it. Years later I found out Mom and Dad knew all along because they saw the marks in the sand where the Datsun was stuck. I thought about Muana's hubby who at ten taught himself to drive a tractor; how she would catch a bus across town to fetch groceries alone; how my late husband rebuilt his first transmission and Aunt Cece climbed trees at ten years old: how Grandpa wrote 'Mavis' in red, black, white, blue and all kinds of colors on a piece of paper making a 'prettypretty' to give to the girl named Mavis when he was nine years old; how Grandma at six years picked asparagus on the ditch banks with a paring knife and a paper bag. In real time this took less than a second. As I was considering these things in less than a second the silverhaired customer just in front of the two nurses with a tray in her hand turned towards them (and me) as she reached for silverware. Facing me, I heard her say, "When did we become helicopter moms?"

Her silver-topped head had tipped downwards looking at the silverware until words came out of her mouth. Then she looked up at the two nurses and all of us behind them. I saw the look on her face, and it held the, 'I can't believe I said that. Did I actually say what I was thinking out loud?' look. The nurses behind her in line got quiet. A contrite look passed across silver hair's features because let's face it; it's OK to overhear conversations held in public and have opinions in mind, but it's flat out rude to interject into a private conversation held in a public space unless invited in. For a moment the distraught nurse froze and didn't say a thing. Then she must have seen what I saw and had kindness in her heart because I heard her murmur something to which silver hair replied, "my mom just kicked us outside and said go play."

I saw small nurse's body relax, her back to me I heard her murmur again then saw silver hair's face relaxed and she said, "I think it's because we've forgotten to make friends with our neighbors," she smiled contritely; finished picking up her silverware; dipped her head slightly; turned away to pay her tab at the cashier's counter then made her way to a cafeteria table. The two nurses paid for their trays of food and headed down the hall to parts unknown. I quietly followed through the food line and took my turn paying the cashier all the while thinking of my own children. I tried hard not to become a helicopter mom, still, I know there were times when I was one. I thought of the things I did to be a good mom. Not sure I was the best at the job, but I am sure I did my best. My kids didn't get any sugar the first year of their lives (on their first birthday Grandpa remedied that!) and I made my own baby food...

Homemade Peas for Baby Food

- Electric blender
- 1/2 cup frozen peas
- Water

Put frozen peas in the blender with a splash of water. Turn on the blender, let blend for a bit, add water until peas are all chopped. Put in small dish and serve baby with a baby spoon.

Note: Baby food isn't hard to make. A blender, water and food are all that's needed. I followed a 'food introduction chart'. A doctor can supply a chart of what and when to introduce the foods. Quite frankly when it came to food for my babies, I figured I could blend in two thirds water just as easily as any corporation could. However, I had one solid rule: food older than 48 hours wasn't fed to my babies and all food had to be refrigerated. I was very careful about what my babies ate. That's just me.

Rivers extremely dangerous, 1 local rafter dies in Dryden area

SUBMITTED BY SGT. JASON REINFELD

CC Sheriff's Office

Sheriff Mike Morrison reported on Thursday, May 4 at approximately 4:15 p.m. an overturned raft was reported on the Wenatchee River near Dryden. It was reported four subjects were floating downstream separated from the raft.

At the same time a separate report was made that CPR was in progress for a male who had flipped out of a raft. Chelan County Sheriff's Office Deputies, Fire Personnel from Chelan County Fire Districts 6 and 3, and ambulance crews from Cascade Medical Center responded to the scene.

It was determined both incidents were related. A raft with seven occupants had overturned near Shark's Tooth, a location on the Wenatchee River near Dryden. Some of the occupants noticed one, a 46-yearold Cashmere man, Robert M. "Mike" Spurrell, was not doing well, they swam him to shore and he was not responsive. They began performing CPR on him on the shore.

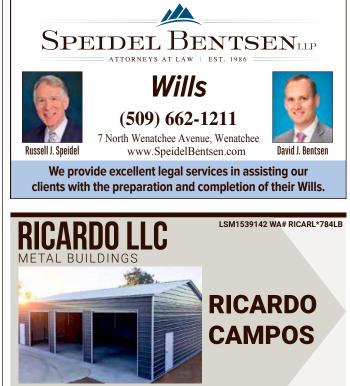

When fire and medic crews arrived at approximately 4:25 p.m., they continued CPR until 5:18 p.m. when he was pronounced dead.

The other rescuers were stationed along the river in several locations until it was confirmed the remainder of the raft occupants made it out of the water, all in the Dryden area. The water flow in the Wenatchee River is at or near record levels. The Sheriff's Office is at or near record levels. The Sheriff's Office is reminding the public to use caution when near any rivers and always use a personal flotation device. The rivers are device. The rivers are expected to be extremely dangerous throughout the next several days.

How long do you need to take a bone-building medicine?

Q: My doctor wants me to start taking a particular medication once a week to strengthen my bones. How long do I have to take it?

Our bones can lose strength as we age, making them thinner and more likely to break.

How long do you need to take a bone-building medicine? That depends on how thin your bones are and if you have a history of a fracture due to thin bones creases bone density, and smoking cigarettes can accelerate bone loss. Menopause also triggers a doubling of the rate of bone loss.

May is National Osteoporosis

About half of repeat fractures from osteoporosis can be prevented with appropriate treatment.

Bone-building drugs like alendronate (Fosamax®), risedronate (Actonel®), and Boniva®, called bisphosphonates, are the first choice for boosting thin bones. These powerful medicines have complicated directions and are easier to take in the once-a-week or once of monthly formulations. They must be taken with a full glass of water on a completely empty stomach, and you must sit upright for at least 30 minutes afterward.

Awareness and Prevention Month. Osteoporosis is a disease that causes your bones to become thinner. When you have osteoporosis, a simple fall can shatter a bone, causing months of painful rehabilitation and, for some, permanent disability and loss of independence.

Sometimes, bones are so weak that they break spontaneously. A hip fracture can cause a fall instead of being the result of one. The vertebrae of your spine can become so frail that they collapse. This can pinch nerves and twist muscles out of position, causing deformity and pain.

When heavy equipment resurfaces a highway lane, it removes the top layer of the road surface, mixes it with hot tar, then pours it back onto the road surface.

Our bones follow a similar pattern, continuously recycling the calcium, phosphorus, and other minerals they contain. Like the machines that chew up the top layer of roadway, then lay it down as a new surface, we continuously take up bone cells, then lay them back down.

Until age 35, this process increases our bone density. As our body recycles bone cells, it puts back a few more bone cells than it takes out, which makes our bones stronger. But around age 35, that balance starts to shift. Eventually, our bone cell recycling process no longer returns all the cells it takes out. Over time, our bones become thinner.

Luckily, there is a way to discover the density and "strength" of your bones, the DXA scan, also called a DEXA scan. DXA scans measure bone thickness in several critical areas to determine bone mineral density.

During this painless procedure, two low-dose X-rays are sent into the pelvis, hip, and lower spine bones. The results are used to calculate the bone mineral density of each area. The lower the density of those bones, the greater your fracture risk.

If your bone density is low, further bone loss can be slowed with treatment. You may be at an increased risk of thin bones if you are post-menopausal or have taken certain drugs frequently, especially prednisone.

Certain conditions accelerate the process of losing bone cells. Taking prednisone for months to years deKeeping yourself upright and drinking a full glass of water helps avoid irritating your esophagus. An empty stomach is essential because only 2-3% of the medicine in each tablet will be absorbed into your body.

What does get into your bones stays there. These drugs become part of your bone cells and help build bone for you even years after you stop these medications.

Another form of bisphosphonate is a yearly infusion. This is particularly helpful if you cannot take the pills because of problems with your stomach or esophagus.

So how long do you have to take Fosamax® or Actonel®? That depends; you and your doctor should decide together.

Five years of treatment should be enough if you have not yet had a fracture, and take them only as prevention. Both alendronate (Fosamax®) and risedronate (Actonel®) help to prevent hip and vertebral fractures for up to ten years, even after you stop taking them.

Beyond five years, there is more risk of having a dental emergency called osteonecrosis of the jaw.

Bone-building medications include bisphosphonates you take once weekly, once monthly, or once yearly. Another type of bone building medication available requires twice yearly injections.

Getting adequate calcium and vitamin D, plus weight-bearing exercises also helps strengthen your bones. Check with your doctor about your risk of osteoporosis and your options for treatment.

Teen Short Fiction Writing Contest

NCW Libraries is once again partnering with Write on the River to sponsor a short fiction contest for NCW teens.

This annual competition gives teens the opportunity to share their original creative work with our great community, and the chance to earn cash prizes provided by Write on the River.

All students in the libraries' service areas, Chelan, Douglas, Okanogan, Grant and Ferry counties, and in grades 9 to 12, including private and home school students, are encouraged to submit their original short fiction writing.

Submissions can be a complete short story or the first chapter of a novel but must be between 500-2000 words. The writing must be the student's own original, unpublished work written by them without the assistance of artificial intelligence chatbots. Students may submit one piece of writing per year. The submission deadline is May 15, 2023.

All entries will be judged by representatives from Write on the River (WOTR) and NCW Libraries, on the fiction's development, expression, central theme or plot, and adherence to grammatical conventions. $200 in cash prizes will be distributed among the top three winning students, sponsored by Write on the River & New York Times best-selling author Chelsea Cain. For questions email info@ncwlibraries.org.

Community leaders encouraged to get involved in digital equity

Feedback needed by May 10

SUBMITTED BY SUMMER HESS

Digital Equity Project Manager, NCW Tech Alliance

WENATCHEE - The NCW Digital Access and Equity Coalition, along with the Digital

Equity Plan Work Group for Chelan, Douglas, and Grant counties, invites communitybased organizations to get involved in upcoming efforts to achieve digital equity in North Central Washington. "The pandemic created broader awareness, urgency, along with State and Federal resources for bridging the digital divide. We have a key opportunity to work collectively to identify local needs and open up access for regional funding in the future", Jenny Rojanasthien, Executive Director of NCW Tech Alliance. Adding, "We are asking community leaders to provide their input or time, especially with the survey by May 12."

These teams are working together and have identified several ways for stakeholders to contribute to digital equity work in the region over the next weeks and months:

1. Complete the Digital Equity Asset Survey in English or Spanish by May 12, to help inform regional Digital Equity Plans and offer a framework for planning and implementing projects to expand broadband infrastructure and promote digital equity for everyone in our communities. Counties will become more competitive for several largescale funding opportunities after submitting these inventories to the Broadband Action Office. Any and all organizations completing digital equity work in Chelan, Douglas, and Grant counties are invited and encouraged to complete this survey.

- Participate in NCW Tech Help and learn about the Digital Navigator Program. Through the end of June, Community Health Plan of Washington is offering training for communitybased organizations to become digital navigators. Qualified organizations can receive a $500 grant per employee who enrolls in a four-hour Digital Navigator training.
- Join the Digital Equity Plan Work Group to help review the region's submission to the State Digital Equity Plan and provide valuable insights on local assets and areas of concern regarding digital equity. To learn more, email techhelp@ ncwtech.org. Participants are expected to give 1 hour per week to the review process, and all feedback is due on May 30 by 5 p.m.

The NCW Digital Access and Equity Coalition is led by NCW Tech Alliance, in partnership with Community Health Network Washington, Thriving of Together NCW (formerly North Central Accountable Community of Health), and Bigfoot Telecommunications of the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation. Broadly, the group's initiatives are labeled NCW Tech Help to ensure the general public can easily understand the initiative's goals. The coalition is still in its early stage of development with a plan to fully launch Fall 2023. The initiative serves Chelan, Douglas, Grant, and Okanogan counties and is funded by the Washington State Department of Commerce, Office of Broadband.

NCW Tech Alliance is taking the lead in building the Digital Equity Plan Work Groups for Chelan, Douglas, and Grant counties. NCW Tech Alliance has subcontracted with Our Valley Our Future to provide additional leadership and expertise. Chelan County PUD is taking the lead in developing a Broadband Infrastructure Plan for Chelan County.

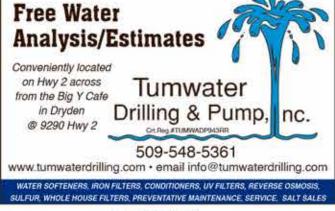

NCW Digital Access and Equity Coalition along with the Digital Equity Plan Work Group emphasized that achieving digital equity requires a coordinated, regional approach, and it will take all of us to address the digital divide in North Central Washington. They urge organizations to participate in the above initiatives to make a meaningful impact on the region's digital equity.

We are grateful for the community's support and interest in digital equity. We encourage all stakeholders to get involved in the initiatives outlined above to help us achieve digital equity in our region," said Gerardo Perez, Steering Committee Member and Regional Manager of the Community Health Plan of Washington. For more information about ongoing digital equity initiatives in North Central Washington, please contact Summer Hess at techhelp@ncwtech.org or visit www.ncwtech.org/techhelp.

Rep. Mike Steele Legislative Update

The 2023 legislative session adjourned April 23. Along with some high and low points, it's been a busy few months. I'd like to start this end-ofsession update by thanking everyone that contacted my office by phone, email, or came to Olympia to visit throughout key state priorities. For example, not only does the 2023-25 capital budget fund community projects in every district in the state, but we've also made enormous investments in a variety of top public policy areas, like mental and behavioral health facilities, affordable housing including homeownership opportunities for first-time, low-income buyers and assistance for the growing number of unsheltered individuals and families. Other sizeable allocations were made in youth and family services, higher education, natural resources, and big impact investments in K-12 school construction, including modernization projects for small, rural schools in need of updating and repair. In the end, the final, unanimously approved capital budget (Senate Bill 5200) appropriates a total of $8.98 billion in funding, $4.18 billion of which comes from the sale of newly authorized bonds under House Bill 1148.

- Columbia Valley Community Health East Wenatchee Dental Clinic: $1,850,000
- Leavenworth affordable workforce rental housing: $1,000,000
- Wenatchee Valley Museum expansion and redesign: $1,000,000
 Wenatchee Valley YMCA: $1,030,000

repairs and improvements on their primary residence for health, safety, or durability. The program prioritizes homeowners who are senior citizens, persons with disabilities, families with children aged five years or younger, and veterans. Since the 2021 Supreme Court's State v Blake ruling effectively decriminalized the possession of hard drugs like heroin, methamphetamines, and others-House Republicans have advocated for bipartisan, meaningful policy that helps individuals break the cycle of addiction and keeps our communities safe. Unfortunately, after months of work on a solution, the majority party could not pass their own bill-with several of their members voting "no." Senate Bill 5536, also known as the "Blake fix," was brought to the floor for a vote just prior to the conclusion of session. The bill failed to pass the House with a vote of 43-55. Two things need to be present to make this policy effective: adequate criminal penalties and robust, sensible rehabilitation services. This bill had neither. SB 5536 sought to legalize drug paraphernalia and equipment, allowing for a "gross misdemeanor" with no real teeth if the case was deferred. That lack of a credible diversion program and robust mental health support would lead to a revolving door, with plenty of room for people to game the system and not get the real help they need. Even worse, the bill gave local governments less control over this public safety problem than they have now. Because the majority party let this issue go until the final few hours of the session, they ran out of time for fixes. Now that we've adjourned, the only way a bill can be approved is if the governor calls a special session. With the all-tooobvious impacts drugs continue to have on individuals, families, and communities, let's hope that happens. We all want a solution in place that strikes a balance between compassion and accountability. Although the session is over, I work for you year-round. Contact me if you have questions about stategovernment-related policies or issues the 105-day session. Hearing from you enables me to do my job effectively. It's an honor to represent your interests, values, and priorities in Olympia.

Newly elected deputy leader

During a recent House reorganizational meeting, my caucus colleagues elected me as their new deputy leader, succeeding Rep. Joel Kretz, R-Wauconda, a long-time member of the leadership team. Rep. Drew Stokesbary was elected as Leader, taking over for Rep. J.T. Wilcox, R-Yelm, who recently stepped down. I'm extremely humbled and honored to be chosen to take on this leadership role and look forward to supporting Rep. Stokesbary and the caucus team as we continue to prioritize the top concerns of the communities and people we represent.

The final 2023-25 Capital Budget

During the last few days of the session, the state's budgets are typically the final hurdles before we adjourn. This year was no different. Negotiations on all three biennial budgets, operating, transportation, and capital, were approved in the final two days of the session. This update focuses on the capital budget, for which I'm the primary House Republican negotiator. If you did not know already, the capital budget funds a broad range of construction, infrastructure, and repair projects in communities across the state. It's by far the most bipartisan budget produced in Olympia, which says a lot about the kind of teamwork that goes into producing the plan.

At its best, the capital budget supports community development, encourages economic growth, and funds

More than $170 million in 12th District projects

For the 12th District, a historic $170 million in districtfunded projects is included in this budget. I'm really pleased to see this level of funding for our district—including several of our newly redistricted communities like Monroe and Index — and look forward to the monumental opportunities these projects will produce.

- 12th District-funded project highlights include:
- Center for Alcohol and Drug Treatment (Wenatchee): $19,600,000
- Community Center at Lake Chelan: $1,723,000
- Fall City Business District septic project: $1,550,000.
- Lake Chelan Food Bank: $2,000,000
- Monroe Therapeutic Facility: $1,100,000
- Index Water Line Repair & Replacement: $628,000
- Sultan Basin Park: $500,000
- North Fork Skykomish River 911 extension project (Index): $420,000
- King County Area Readiness Center: $6,000,000
- Chelan Valley EMS: $11,000,000

- Forest to Farm Biochar Pilot Plant (Leavenworth): $1,425,000
- Wenatchee Valley College: Paul Thomas Sr. Field: $700,000
- Wenatchee Center for Technical Education and Innovation: $46,471,000
- Wallace River Hatchery, replace intakes and ponds: $17,228,000.
- Manson School District: $262,000
- Manson Fire Station: $206,000

Approved bills in 2023

More than 2,100 bills were introduced between the House and Senate and about 480 passed both chambers. I was extremely pleased three of my bills made it to the governor's desk. Here's a quick look at each one:

House Bill 1501: A local resident who tragically lost her husband in a hit-and-run, asked me to sponsor this proposal that helps the family members of murder victims. The bill provides up to 12 counseling sessions for the immediate family members of a homicide victim.

House Bill 1804: A local resident came to me with a request for this bill. Without it, dozens of retirees would lose access to their health benefits. As the primary sponsor of this measure, it's gratifying to know the positive impact it will have on retired employees of counties, municipalities, and other governmental entities. My bill allows retirees back into the Public Employee Benefits Board system if they choose to do so. House Bill 1250: This measure converts the Low-Income Home Rehabilitation Revolving Loan Program into a grant program. Established in 2017, the program provides deferred loans to rural, lowincome households needing
