

Greater Leavenworth Museum celebrates its 20th Anniversary

By MATT AND CAROL CADE

Twenty years ago, residents of Leavenworth had the vision to create a museum to preserve and collect the unique history of the Upper Wenatchee Valley. Over the years, these ‘museum pioneers’ built the foundation that allowed for the Museum’s rebirth as the Greater Leavenworth Museum in the heart of downtown Leavenworth in 2020.

On Wednesday, October 5th, the Greater Leavenworth Museum, formerly the Upper Valley Museum at Leavenworth, celebrated its 20th Anniversary at a small but welcoming gathering at the Chumstick Grange. A donation from a member generously sponsored the special event.

The Greater Leavenworth Museum, thriving today, is a tribute to the thousands of hours donated by board members and other volunteers. The miracle of relocating the Museum in the middle of a pandemic is to praise the tenacious spirit of those board members and volunteers who did not give up on a highly challenging project.

In 2002, several visionaries, including philanthropist Harriet Bullitt, formed a steering committee that started the Upper Valley Museum. The Greater Leavenworth Museum gratefully acknowledges these steering committee members: Kjell Bakke, Arleen Blackburn, Harriet Bullitt, Denny McMillin, Paul Myhre, Joe Ptak, Chris Rader, Patricia Stoudt, Georgia Bakke-Tull, Mary Ware, Vicki White, Don Morse, Ed Rutledge, David Severance, and Bill Rietveld.

Three members who served as board members for eight years or more were honored at the reception. They are David Severance, Bobbi Ferg, and Karen Brennick.

Also honored were those who have passed: Ann Ostella, Kjell Bakke, Arleen Blackburn, Harriet Bullitt, Denny McMillin, Sandy Siegert, Patricia Stoudt, Mary Ware, and Carolyn Wilson.

Invitations to attend the special celebratory reception were sent to thirty-seven former board and steering committee members. The Greater Leavenworth Museum thanks the following community members for supporting the mission: “To preserve and promote the heritage of the Upper Wenatchee Valley.” Thank you to Pat Allen, Georgia Bakke-Tull, Karen Brennick, Corky Broadus, Matt Cade, Penny Carpenter, Mike Cecka, Denise Darling, Bobbi Ferg, Carol Forhan, Paul Gray, Wendy Habek, Bill Haines, Anne Koenig, Don Morse, Paul Myhre, Margaret Nelson, Mary Nelson, Byron Newell, Chris Orcutt, Jeff Parsons, Ann Peavey, Brian Praye, Chris Rader, Max Reister, Bill Rietveld, Ed Rutledge, Cary Sanger,

Kentucky Fried Chicken” not in Kentucky, “Leavenworth Oktoberfest” not in Leavenworth

By WESLEY ZHAO
Correspondent

On the morning of Tuesday September 27, Judge Thomas Rice held court two minutes early, at 9:58 AM, in Room 802 of the US District Court in Spokane. Christie Voos, Leavenworth Communications Analyst, sat, wearing nearly all black, as attorney Robert Carlson presented opening remarks in a low and slow pitch and cadence. He claimed the defense made “egregious statements” about the City online, citing an “egregious post” from July 25, which claimed “there is no Oktoberfest in Leavenworth.”

Projekt Bayern president Cary Sanger watched at ease, dressed in a traditional, short-sleeved dirndl with blue accents. Then defense attorney James Breitenbucher offered his reply while wearing a suit matched by a sky-blue dress shirt, speaking a little more quickly, in a slightly higher tone — a noticeable contrast to Carlson. Among the defense’s more memorable arguments was the claim that their trademark “Leavenworth Oktoberfest” is “no more a geographic misnomer than a Kentucky Fried Chicken outside of Kentucky.” Breitenbucher also noted that the business “Leavenworth Tattoo Haus” also first opened in Leavenworth, then, like “Leavenworth Oktoberfest”, moved to Wenatchee.

Ultimately the court denied the City’s motion, but the overall case has not been decided. Last week’s motion hearing ruled only on a preliminary injunction to, among other requests, temporarily legally order Projekt Bayern to stop using “Leavenworth” in their Oktoberfest materials. The date for the case’s jury trial has been set for August 28, 2023. Meanwhile, another motion hearing is scheduled for November 4, 2022; in this instance, for a motion by the City to dismiss Bayern’s counterclaims.

The City’s initial complaint, filed July, outlined ten requests it hopes to win from the court over Bayern which include compensation for damages and attorney fees, to forbid the use of “Leavenworth” in any Bayern events not in Leavenworth, to declare the Bayern’s 2017 trademark on “Leavenworth Oktoberfest” as invalid, and to declare the trademark is in fact owned by the City. The court has yet to make a final decision on any of these requests. Though, according to the court’s recent decision, the City has not yet provided sufficient evidence that it is “likely to succeed” in its claims to invalidate Bayern’s trademark.

Issues of intellectual property — copyrights, patents, trademarks — have always been mired in moral controversy: while words, ideas, and information may benefit society when shared freely and openly, to what extent should the original innovators be granted protection in order to reward and motivate future

Impressive recycling and composting at Cascade Schools

Marlene Farrell
Correspondent

Cascade School District has much to celebrate this school year in terms of waste reduction efforts. While something like single stream recycling seems basic, to make it manifest institution-wide requires tweaking a lot of parts, such as supplies and equipment, staffing, contracting services, and educational training.

A recycling program had been initiated more than once, only to falter due to logistical challenges and COVID. Then, thanks to motivated students in the middle school Sustainability Club, teacher Jodie Tremberth for earning a grant to go toward recycling efforts, and coordination by Teresa Disher, district Facilities Director, a workable process was initiated at IRMS last year.

After more teamwork, audits and recommendations by the nonprofit, Waste Loop, and a grant Waste Loop won to pay for school recycling bins, the program runs district-wide this year. There are mixed recycling bins in all key locations.

As for personnel, Disher explained, “The bulk of the recycling is maintained by Mack McMillan, one of our day custodians. He has helped with labeling and disbursing bins, collection and maintaining a clean recycling area.” Waste Management (WM) hauls the recycling away.

In most classrooms, mixed paper is sorted separately and hauled to Michelsen’s in Wenatchee by WM. It ends up as net neutral, cost-wise, because the cost of hiring WM to haul is close to what Michelsen’s pays the district for that volume of paper.

“It started with the students,” said Disher. “They chose to recycle throughout the buildings. We just got it to where it is going.”

Disher praised Waste Loop and particularly Amanda Close, the Education and Outreach Coordinator. “Amanda has been amazing! She is so supportive and encouraging. She

Judge Mott to step down from District Court in December

BOCC sets timeline, process for filling the vacancy
SUBMITTED BY JILL FITZSIMMONS
Public Information Officer

Chelan County District Court Judge Kyle Mott has announced he is stepping down from his position in early December.

With his resignation, the Board of County Commissioners is now calling for the resumes of those potential appointees interested in replacing Mott, who is running unopposed in the upcoming election.

Mott sent his letter of resignation to the commissioners on Friday, Sept. 30, saying he has accepted a position at a local law firm and will step down on Dec. 5. Mott cited life changes in the past four years, including welcoming two children into his family and the purchasing of a small business, as to why he is stepping down.

“A return to private practice will provide me with greater flexibility to participate in the day-to-day activities of my young and busy family, which is extremely important to me,” he wrote. “...While I look forward to building a successful law practice, I would not rule out revisiting a judicial position much later in the future as I have found it to be both challenging and rewarding.”

Seated in January 2019, Mott, formerly a defense attorney, replaced former Judge Nancy Harmon when she retired. An appointee to Mott’s position would serve a year and then run for election in November 2023. State law provides that the county legislative authority, in this case the Board of County Commissioners, make appointments to vacancies on the District Court.

Commissioners have outlined an appointment timeline as follows:

- Letters of interest and applications were due Oct. 28 to County Administrator Cathy Mulhall in the Commissioners’ Office.
- The BOCC reviewed potential appointees Nov. 1, narrowing the applications down to three finalists.
- The three finalists will be interviewed Nov. 8.

• An appointment will be made during the board’s session on Nov. 14.

This election season, Allen F. Blackmon and Jon Volyn are vying for position No. 1 of the District Court. Two judges serve Chelan County District Court. Commissioner Kevin Overbay stressed that the election and the appointment to Mott’s seat are unrelated.

“There is nothing preventing both candidates from applying for the vacated position; however, the board must move forward with filling Judge Mott’s position to help ensure a smooth transition in December,” Overbay said.

Overbay, on behalf of the commissioners, also thanked Mott for his dedication and service to the citizens of Chelan County.

“Judge Mott has been a wonderful addition to not only District Court but also to the Chelan County family,” Overbay said. “As a judge, he quickly built a reputation for being someone with high ethics who was here to serve our community. He will be greatly missed, but we wish him the best in his future endeavors.”

Composting

listens to what our obstacles are, and she helps us come up with solutions."

Disher was also grateful for the support of Superintendent Tracey Beckendorf-Edou, District Business Manager Dwight Remick and the school board members. "They see the value in recycling and how it aligns with our Strategic Framework: 'Growing students grows strong communities and a more connected world, and we engage actively in the beauty and diversity of our natural environment to learn how we impact the world around us.' Their support and commitment to making sure we have the resources to maintain this program is very much appreciated."

The other exciting development is composting, which is being piloted at Peshastin Dryden Elementary. PD was chosen because there's the most potential reduction in waste and the lowest likelihood of bear issues.

The students, ranging from transitional kindergarteners, who are under six years old, to second graders, are finding their composting groove after over a month of school lunch periods. Each child, when it's his/her turn, sorts the different components on their tray into a series of bins.

First, they drop unopened food in a crate. While those items aren't kept yet, it's building habits for a future "sharing station."

Next, it's the glug, glug sound of milk that little hands pour into a red liquids bin. Then there's the balancing act of holding the tray in one hand while extracting trash, such as a plastic spoon, with the other, for the garbage. Compostable food items, even cheese and meat, go into the big green trash can. The last step is puzzle piecing the tray on top of other ones and a hi five for the good work.

This astounding, waste-reducing effort is thanks again to collaboration between the school district and Waste Loop and utilizing the newly up-and-running industrial composting at Winton Manufacturing Compost Works.

The Cascade High School Sustainability Club is involved too. They've helped with the garbage can audits last year that confirmed a huge percentage of waste could be diverted to composting. And they hope to make it to PD and assist with the lunchtime composting, as their schedules allow.

Close has enjoyed working with staff and students of all ages to see these waste reduction efforts implemented smoothly. She's given many classroom presentations, teaching younger students with a composting game, and showing them the finished product, beautiful dark compost from Winton.

At PD, with all the food being diverted from the trashcan, it's apparent that the next largest percentage of waste comes from milk cartons and items like Styrofoam soup bowls. Future steps that might be considered, and which are very exciting to Close, include durable, reusable bowls and real silverware. And perhaps milk can be dispensed into reusable cups.

These ideas might seem hard to realize, but the same could be said for composting, and now it's a daily habit. When composting gets introduced at the other schools, the kindergarteners, first and second graders can be the ones teaching the older students.

A few attendees shared their favorite memories. Mike Cecka mentioned that he enjoyed working at the Leavenworth Centennial in 2006. Both Ann Peavey and Margaret Neighbors said they loved the Grand Opening in April because so many community members were there to celebrate the new museum location. Bobbi Ferg's favorite memory was when Chris Erlich, an award-winning exhibit curator, was hired to design and create the new museum location. She said, "I knew then it was going to happen; a museum in downtown Leavenworth."

To thank and recognize all who supported the Greater Leavenworth Museum as a board or steering committee member, each received a LIFETIME pass to the Museum.

OBITUARY

Roy Lee Parton

November 6, 1936-September 25, 2022

Roy Lee Parton, 85, died Sunday, September 25, 2022. Roy was born in Pateros, WA. on November 6, 1936, to Bernard and Zelma Parton.

In 1941, his family moved to Leavenworth, WA. where he attended school and graduated from Leavenworth High School in 1955. Roy entered the U.S. Army, where he served in Germany. He was honorably discharged in 1962 after two years active duty in addition to serving in the Army Reserves. On September 20, 1958, he married his high school sweetheart, Fay Jones in Leavenworth. He then attended the University of Washington for two years before he and Fay moved back to the valley briefly before moving to Medford, OR., where he hauled logs and they enjoyed participating in a sports car club with road racing.

In 1967, he moved his family back to Leavenworth where he continued to own and operate a trucking business for 50 years. Roy was active in sports and enjoyed watching his sons play. He was a hard worker and taught his sons to have a strong work ethic. He enjoyed hunting with family and friends. Roy will be remembered for his quiet nature and kind smile. He loved his family and enjoyed being a grandfather and great grandfather. That is his legacy. He is survived by his wife of 64 years, his sister, Imojean Martensen, his sons, Doug and wife Lona, and Darrell and wife Lisa; 6 grandchildren, Kellen and Evan Parton, Noelle Swenson, Hilary Osborn, Hunter and Britton Parton, along with 8 great grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, Bernard and Zelma Parton; sister, Irene Housden and brother, Hugh Parton. We would like to thank Mountain Meadows for the tremendous care and compassion they gave Roy over the past 10 months. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made in Roy's memory to Mountain Meadows, 320 Park Avenue, Leavenworth, WA 98826.

A graveside service will be held on Saturday, October 29 at 11 a.m. at Mountain View Cemetery in Leavenworth, followed by a Celebration of Life gathering at the Leavenworth Fire Department at 12 noon.

Link unveils "The Icicle" bus design

SUBMITTED BY LINK

The striking mountain profile of a sleeping woman that sets the stage for outdoor adventurers to the Icicle River area south of the community of Leavenworth is featured in the latest Link Transit bus design to appear on the side of one of the agency's 40-foot vehicles.

The custom vinyl artwork was crafted by the Wenatchee team of Mary Big-Bull Lewis and Rob Lewis of Wenatchi Wear and R Digital Design.

A public unveiling took place on Saturday, Oct. 8 in Centennial Park during the Wenatchee Valley Museum & Cultural Center's Salmon Bake. The unveiling included an oral tradition story from the Wenatchi people by master storyteller Randy Lewis.

"Long before the Icicle was discovered by hikers, bikers, mountain climbers and campers, this area was a gathering place for indigenous peoples," said Link Transit General Manager Richard DeRock of The Icicle. "It was, and still is, a special place where those who have ties to this land that go back thousands of years and countless generations can celebrate their heritage.

We are honored to have this art on one of our vehicles and especially honored to work with Mary and Rob on this project."

Link is working with Pullman artist David C. Hoyt to create tributes to Clyde Pangborn's historic transpacific flight, North Central Washington recreational opportunities, agriculture, and local history.

Link Transit, the public transportation provider for Chelan and Douglas counties, delivers safe, reliable, and zero-fare service seven days a week to a 3,500-square-mile service area.

Meet Shon Smith

Shon Smith (51) was raised in Cashmere with conservative values, and has become an integral part of the Wenatchee River Valley with businesses in Wenatchee and Leavenworth. Shon, his wife Janeen, and their four children worship at Mid-Valley Baptist Church, and are actively involved with the Cashmere schools.

Shon has a great concern for the ongoing health of the Valley, its resources, its people, and our private property rights. He also has a passion for the success of small businesses because of their great impact on Chelan County.

He graduated from Cashmere High School in 1989, and in 1993 from Northwest Nazarene University with a degree in Business Administration with an emphasis on finance. After college, Shon worked at Idaho Timber in Boise for two years. In 1995, missing the Valley, Shon returned with Janeen and worked for two years at Dovex Fruit Company in Wenatchee. Both work experiences gave Shon a feel for the timber and fruit industries and the impacts they have on our region. Shon then put his personal business plan into action by opening the Wok-About-Grill in Wenatchee (1997) and another in Leavenworth (2014).

Generations of Shon's family have farmed Eastern Washington, hunted and fished the lands and waters of Chelan County, and have treated the land and the environment with respect. So great is their appreciation for our rivers and lakes that Shon hopes these natural resources will be preserved as gifts to be esteemed by all. Some changes are inevitable, but solutions to issues need to ensure that we make an effort to maintain our identity for the future, especially for our families!

THE AFFORDABLE WHISTLE

By RHONA BARON

This week's Whistle is the first in a series about how Leavenworth, a town dependent on service workers, is constructing the future of affordable housing.

Affordable housing is a challenging and personal topic, infused with ideals like alleviating racial segregation and the value of working hard to secure the American dream. As the housing crisis smolders across America, a fifty-year trend widens the gap between lower and higher income households. According to The Pew Research Center:

The number of adults who live in the middle-class households has fallen from 61% in 1971 to 50% in 2021.

Unfortunately, our community has unique challenges beyond the "missing middle." Even before COVID, the supply of homes, seldom robust, plummeted while sticker prices and the cost of construction soared. Well paid folks who work from home or retirees centered in Seattle continue to gravitate to the relative affordability and outstanding beauty of the upper valley. Leavenworth's topography which limits "urban growth," combined with the public's fondness for the Bavarian village, will crank down supply and ratchet up demand for years to come.

So, what's the solution when working downtown might bring in $30-40,000 per year, if you can work full time, and an older, one thousand square foot house sells for $500,000?

The mayor, city council, appointed commissioners and staff make decisions that run against public sentiment, downplaying our comprehensive and housing plans and even contradicting their own instincts to address the consequential issue of affordability. In one correspondence, a council person wrote: "All the votes I have cast in relation to changing the codes to allow duplexes on smaller lots, and limiting the maximum height to 35 ft, were not ideal choices for me by any means. But to leave it as it was would - in my opinion- totally remove families with middle class income from ever building or living here. To do nothing would assure people and investors with the really big incomes would be the only ones building on those lots."

The council person's logic is flawed. It's part of a narrative about density creating "diversity and opportunity for housing." This narrative is being propelled at the state level by the WA State Commerce Department and is admirable in many urban settings and some small towns, but the concept doesn't work in a tiny, constrained mountain village like Leavenworth driven by market pricing.

In our Leavenworth neighborhoods, non-affordable outcomes are thriving under the new codes, providing excellent opportunities for developers, "investors and people with really big incomes." On Stafford Street, an ex-Planning Commissioner is developing what, by any other name, would be called a four-unit multiplex in an RL-6 zone with the assistance of new codes generated by the city. This property is listed at THREE MILLION DOLLARS including encouragement for the buyer(s) to use the property for a bed and breakfast.

The Whistle team has asked the city to provide data that proves the density model will or has worked in Leavenworth neighborhoods for the past three years. We've asked: where are examples of additional affordable homes being created? Have or will the large developments just completed (Leavenworth Haus), in planning (Leavenworth Meadows below Club West), or underway (Alpenglow Village off Ski Hill) be guaranteed to produce a single affordable unit for the workforce? What is the plan to update decaying infrastructure like streets and water distribution? Are you limiting the number of B and B's as you encourage ADU's? Have you assured that code maintains even one square foot of vegetation on a city lot in the midst of growing density?

The Council, Planning Commission and mayor remain strangely silent or dismissive.

Mayor Florea emailed us on the topic: "...If this is not the direction the majority want to see, I will be a one-term mayor. So be it."

Whistle blown! In this time out, can we all agree we want affordable housing? The problem we face is not a lack of "correct" information, ideas or even ideals. It is faulty implementation by Development Services, the Planning Commission, the council and the mayor.

Public comment during the planning process was heavily against the kind of density we've outlined for a number of compelling reasons. Our current poll in the Echo reflects identical community sentiment. The question remains, can we get our elected officials to course correct in the midst of their laudable dedication to a cause like affordable housing?

We encourage you to reach out and ask them. You'll find us at LWhistle.com. Or just whistle. We'll hear you.

State Fire Marshal's Office Recognizes Fire Prevention Week 2022 "Fire Won't Wait. Plan Your Escape"

SUBMITTED BY GREGORY BARUSO
Deputy State Fire Marshal

The Washington State Fire Marshal's Office is teaming up with the National Fire Protection Association to promote this year's Fire Prevention Week (FPW) campaign, "Fire Won't Wait. Plan Your Escape." This year also marks the 100th anniversary of FPW.

This year's campaign, running October 9-15, 2022, works to educate everyone about simple but important actions they can take to keep themselves and those around them safe. It is important to know what to do if fire breaks out in your home. In most circumstances, you may only have a few minutes to get out safely once a smoke alarm sounds. Everyone needs to know what to do and where to go if there is a fire.

The SFMO wants to share safety tips to help you plan your escape.

- Make a home escape plan.
- Draw a map of your home showing all doors and windows and discuss the plan with everyone in your home.
- Know at least two ways out of every room.

- Make sure all doors and windows leading outside open easily.

- Have an outside meeting place a safe distance from your home where everyone should meet.

- Practice your home fire drill at night and during the day with everyone in your home, at least twice a year.
- Teach children how to escape on their own in case you can't help them.
 - Close doors behind you as you leave.
 - GET OUT AND STAY OUT! Never go back inside if there's a fire.
 - If you have to escape through smoke, GET LOW AND GO under the smoke on your way out.
 - Call the fire department from the outside of your home.
 - Take some time to make sure your smoke and carbon monoxide alarms meet the needs of all your family members, including those with sensory or physical disabilities.

To find out more about Fire Prevention Week programs and activities in your area, please contact your local fire department. For more general information about Fire Prevention Week, visit www.fpw.org. For more information about fire prevention, contact the State Fire Marshal's Office at 360-596-3929.

The State Fire Marshal's Office is a Bureau of the Washington State Patrol, providing fire and life safety services to the citizens of Washington State including inspections of state licensed facilities, plan review of school construction projects, licensing of fire sprinkler contractors and pyrotechnic operators, training Washington States firefighters, and collecting emergency response data.

Looking ahead to late fall fishing

By JOHN KRUSE

It's all fun and games in September and October as the foliage turns scarlet and gold. The fish put on the feed bag, biting readily. Then November and December arrive, the leaves turn brown, tree branches become empty and catching fish gets more challenging. Having said that, there are still some great places to catch fish in Eastern Washington in the late fall and early winter.

Here's a few recommendations:

COLUMBIA RIVER GORGE: You know what they say, "The river never sleeps", and neither do the fishing opportunities in the Gorge. At this time of year, the coho salmon bite is waning but the walleye bite near John Day Dam as well as catch and release sturgeon fishing remains strong. If you are looking for current information, drop by Gorge Outfitters Supply in Rufus, Oregon.

GRANDE RONDE RIVER: It's a long drive but this picturesque river is worth it. Starting in November, good numbers of summer steelhead show up here and fortunately, there is a good amount of public access for you to get at them from Highway 129 at Boggan's Oasis to Troy, Oregon. There is also some access near the mouth of the Grande Ronde where it flows into the Snake River. The steelhead run is much better than last year and anglers should be in for decent fishing from the bank or from a raft or drift boat. Spinners, spoons and small jigs fished under floats all work well here. Barbless hooks are required. Check the regulations for additional information.

POTHOLES RESERVOIR: The walleye bite continues well into December and trout fishing is an option too! Try trolling near Medicare Beach or off the mouth of Frenchman's Wasteway for quality size rainbow trout. Try off the face of the sand dunes, the mouth of Crab Creek or in the Lind Coulee for walleye at this time of year. Trolling a spinner/worm harness behind a bottom bouncer weight works well in November but as the water continues to cool switch to blade baits for the walleye.

ROSES LAKE: Located near Manson, this 132-acre lake offers very good trout fishing during the fall and winter. There is a public access area on the south end of the lake with some room to spread out for anglers fishing from shore. Once the lake freezes over it becomes an ice fishing destination not only for trout but also for perch, which are found in good numbers here. Pro tip? After you are done fishing, have breakfast or lunch at the nearby Blueberry Hills Restaurant. It will make the whole trip worthwhile even if you don't catch a thing.

LONG LAKE: I was introduced to this lake when I was invited by Mack's Lure President Bob Schmidt to fish with him and a couple of other friends on board of Steve Morris's boat, the man who owns SJM Guide Service. This lake is located just northeast of Spokane. Morris explained this fishery has a limited window because the boat launches become unusable by mid-December. Our late November fishing trip was fantastic with a very quick limit of chunky, 12-to-14-inch rainbow trout. If you have never fished here before I would recommend using a guide like Steve. His website is www.sjmguideservice.com.

RUFUS WOODS RESERVOIR: This impoundment between Chief Joseph Dam and Bridgeport and Grand Coulee Dam is a long time draw for anglers going after the big triploid trout found in this reservoir. In the past, most of the triploids caught here were escapees reeled in near the net pens they were raised in on the reservoir. Now, the Colville Tribe raises triploid trout in a hatchery and releases them directly into the reservoir. If you are fishing on tribal land, you will need a permit to do so in addition to your fishing license. While many anglers take their boats to the areas just outside the net pens, bank anglers can also have success on tribal land by the net pens as well as from shore at Bridgeport State Park, Brandt's Landing and the Willow Flats Recreation Area near Chief Joseph Dam. Oh, and if the triploid trout aren't biting? Try trolling or jigging for walleye, there are a bunch of them here.

LAKE ROOSEVELT: Last but definitely not least, this 151-mile-long impoundment of the Columbia River stretching from Coulee Dam to Canada offers very good fishing during the winter months for quality rainbow trout and kokanee, both of which average 16 to 20 inches in size on a good year with some fish even bigger than that. Walleye fishing is also very good here during the cool weather months and they can get big (A walleye weighing nearly 12 pounds was caught this past March). Anglers tend to fish around Keller, the mouth of the Spokane River, or by Kettle Falls. The kokanee are usually found in the lower end of the lake in the winter. If you want the latest fishing information about Lake Roosevelt, stop by Clark's All-Sports in Colville.

Chelan County extends fire restrictions through October 15

By JILL FITZSIMMONS,
Chelan County PIO

WENATCHEE - On the recommendation of partner agencies and fire chiefs, the Chelan County fire marshal is temporarily extending current fire ratings and restrictions through at least Oct. 15, or until wildfire conditions ease.

Current conditions, which are unchanged, have the fire hazard level at "high" in both the county's Valley and Mountain zones. Stage 2 restrictions remain in place through Oct. 15. Chelan County Code calls for any imposed travel and activity restrictions related to wildfire season to expire in the unincorporated areas on Oct. 1. The code also allows for the fire marshal to continue the restrictions and fire hazard rating until the Board of County Commissioners can formally adopt a resolution. The Board was expected to sign the resolution on Monday, Oct. 3 when it is in session.

This is the first time since 2012 that a resolution for an extension will be presented to commissioners, according to county records.

Under Stage 2 restrictions:

- Open burning, such as the burning of yard waste, is not allowed.
- Outdoor fires in recreational fire pits are not allowed.
- Citizens can use an outdoor, commercially made grill, such as a propane grill.
- Traveling off of the county roadway is not allowed.

"We still have several active fires in our area causing these smoky conditions we are experiencing," Fire Marshal Stephen Rinaldi said. "The smoke is a clear indicator of the ongoing hot, dry conditions in Chelan County. Now is not the time to ease up on our travel and activity restrictions. We are asking the public to bear with us and to be mindful of the fire-prone conditions lingering this year."

If Chelan County receives additional moisture and cooler temperatures in the coming weeks, the county may consider lowering those restrictions before Oct. 15, Rinaldi said.

To keep up on the current fire hazard level, visit the county's website at www.co.chelan.wa.us.

innovation? Society might not have as many and as effective life-saving cancer treatments without the prospect of billions of dollars of incentives to be reaped by first-to-market. Traditional book and music industries are already struggling, but revenue made from their copyrights still goes toward discovering and funding authors and artists with new ideas to share. Apple invests hundreds of millions of dollars every year in marketing its iconic brand name. With their profits, they invest in the kind of research and development that created the iPhone and Apple Watch, devices that have shaped the nature of daily life. But the system is imperfect. Large corporations with extra cash, including Apple, are accused of "trademark bullying," harassing small organizations into lawsuits they cannot afford to sustain, sometimes over issues seemingly as trivial as using a logo with a completely different fruit (see Apple v. Prepear 2020). At times these laws can hurt as much as they help.

Trademark law, which originated in England as a way to help customers distinguish different brands of bread, beer, and cattle, is distinct from other IP law in its purpose to protect consumers from confusion. Trademarks should, in theory, help consumers accurately identify the product or brand they hope to find. Therefore, in trademark cases, complainants have to show there is a "likelihood of confusion" between two brands or labels, and courts often require direct evidence from consumers (like a customer survey). As evidence for confusion, the City provided several emails showing consumers believing Oktoberfest was canceled, and a voicemail transcript from September 9, 2022 which read, "I got some [Oktoberfest] tickets last night um I thought it was from the Leavenworth website...but come to find out within five minutes of ordering them... it's showing it's in Wenatchee and [I basically thought] that it was gonna be for Leavenworth."

The evidence proved somewhat convincing to the court: "[The] plaintiff had shown some likelihood of success on the confusion element but that the evidence was not decisive, particularly because some of the confusion may have stemmed from the plaintiff's past affiliation with the defendant." However, the court was less convinced that Bayern's trademark was invalid: "Plaintiff has not provided evidence that the mark is invalid, was fraudulently registered, or that Defendant lacks the right to use the mark."

During the hearing, the City claimed Bayern's trademark should not be valid because "[the] Lanham Act prohibits use of a trademark to deceive consumers... including false statements of geographic origin." They cite a class action lawsuit by Kona coffee harvesters from Kona against Costco, Kroger, and other corporations who claimed their coffee was "Kona coffee" even though chemical tests show very small percentages of coffee from Kona. However, the case was never decided by a judge. The defense settled for a total of fifty million dollars in payouts.

As it turns out Kentucky Fried Chicken actually did run into legal trouble using "Kentucky" in its name, but only because the State of Kentucky legally trademarked "Kentucky" in 1990 as part of a strategy to generate licensing revenues. Kentucky Fried Chicken officially became "KFC" shortly after, but, as of 2006, settled with Kentucky over using "Kentucky," and can once again go by "Kentucky Fried Chicken."

After further argument, evidence, and deliberation, a jury will consider the alleged claims of deceptive geographical designation and trademark validity. But for now, even if it may seem unreasonable to some residents that the terms "Leavenworth" or "Oktoberfest" can be
