

Bears and more bears, yes or no?

Part 2: What should residents expect and do?

By Wesley Zhao
Correspondent

There is some evidence that local natural food scarcity may have been more of an issue this year than others. Two local biologists up the Chumstick, Don Youkey and Lisa Foster, noticed snow melted later, continued to fall later, and unforgiving frost continued to form later into the spring. Brit Thurlow, an herbalist who has lived near Eagle Creek Road for six seasons, collected corroborating data: "I track every year. I have a journal for planting and foraging for both my garden and wild foraging. And everything was about two weeks later this year." She witnessed fruiting branches knocked over by snowstorms and blossoming reduced by late frost. "We had this kind of sunnier 70-75-degree days, but then it would drop down really low at night." As bears struggled to find natural food sources, it may have increased the incidence of looking elsewhere and wandering closer to town.

Still, it is not clear to what extent bear activity has increased overall this year rather than increased in more visible areas; nor is it clear to what extent this year's change may be driven by natural environmental causes rather than changes in the availability of access to junk foods in town. Officer Eric Boyd, who responds to local calls to the WDFW, has not noticed a specific increase this year, but says depending on the year, "different areas of town tend to be more active or less active."

"There are neighborhoods I went to probably a dozen or more times last year that I haven't gotten any calls [from this year]... This year, there are neighborhoods where maybe I didn't have many calls last year [now] I've had a bunch." Boyd identified Alpensee Strasse as a neighborhood with more calls in 2021. This is where Diane Wells saw two bears climb onto her deck last year but has seen no bears this year. Along the same street, one neighbor reported noticing more bears this year, and another reported no difference. Thurlow and Ludwick both live near Eagle Creek Road, and the former noticed a bit more bear presence, while Ludwick noted no difference. Experience alters perception. To gain a broader perspective, Becky Elder, WDFW media representative, has requested data that may reveal whether bear-related calls in Leavenworth have objectively changed. Personally, she has noticed a general trend of increased reports since around 2014, which she suspects may be related to the adoption of video doorbells (Ring released its first video doorbell in 2014, now almost 1 in 5 households have video doorbells). "We didn't really have the same level of pictures and cameras and all the technologies that have given us that," says Elder. Perhaps a small increase in real bear activity may be perceived as larger as a result of the ability to capture and share photos and videos in ways we have not been able to before. Perception alters experience.

Elder and WDFW do not want citizens to stop reporting, however. Elder, Boyd, and Beausoleil, all emphasized their collective goal of protecting public safety. "I would not suggest a reader not give us a call," says Elder. WDFW officers work through a series of response options, and lethal removal is always only the last resort. First, calls are logged. Calls provide data to help officials assess the level of threat an animal may pose. If the risk is low but seems to be growing — for example, the same bear is seen once or twice rummaging through garbage — the next response option is a prevention-oriented site visit. Officers will assess what is attracting the bear (almost always a food attractant, according to Beausoleil), then do their best to educate residents and businesses nearby on how to reduce attraction. If the bear acts in a way that signals increased risk and reduced fear of humans — for example, not running from or even moving toward human shouting — the greater the likelihood WDFW will escalate their response and set a trap to relocate or lethally remove the bear. Relocation is more likely to occur with younger cubs, as adults have more likely developed stronger human habituation (Elder and Boyd recounted a bear relocated from the Lake Wenatchee area to 50 miles north of Lake Chelan, then within about a week, had crossed the lake and two major mountain ranges to come back to the original human food source). My impression is the WDFW makes a genuine, exhaustive effort, to avoid resorting to lethal removal whenever possible. For example, even though they caught a bear on Blackbird Island, it was not the bear they had previously received numerous reports of. They had no previous record of their trapped bear, concluded no evidence of growing threat, and they released it.

Bears are intelligent. They can learn quickly, especially if it increases their calories per bite tenfold. But if humans can easily get addicted to quick, dense, junk food, we can expect similar tendencies from bears, who appreciate fattening up. And just as it is easier said than done for ourselves, so too must effort be exerted if we hope to prevent this type of learning and habituation from bears.

"At the end of the day it comes back to food sources," says Elder. Beausoleil emphasizes how effective securing possible food sources, such as our garbage bins, can be, at reducing unnecessary bear interactions. King County implemented a pilot "Bear Smart" program in 2016 where certain municipalities subsidized bear-resistant garbage containers and increased education efforts.

Anecdotally, Beausoleil noticed a dramatic reduction in bear-related reportings around the same time. He also recalled the local Barn Beach Reserve becoming proactive about bear-resistant containers several years ago and saw a similar dramatic decrease in incidents. To support his point more scientifically, he emailed me a 2018 research study from Durango, CO., where bear-related conflicts were reduced by 60% in the half of the community where they increased efforts to supply bear-resistant containers and educate residents.

Along with using bear-resistant garbage containers, Beausoleil urges residents to consider keeping containers indoors whenever possible (for example in a garage), and to try to put garbage out at the latest possible moment (same day rather than the night before pick-up). Motivated and creative residents have implemented other deterrents that have so far proven successful: the Valley Cafe installed a custom lock on their city-issued garbage bin; The Alpine Rivers Inn rubbed a small coat of ammonia on their garbage lids; and David Ising, at Blewett Brewing, soaked some bread in habanero hot sauce, threw it in with the trash, and has not seen a bear rummaging through since.

Voos says the City is "absolutely looking at ways to manage garbage in a way that prevents bears from getting into garbage cans." The City has already increased garbage pickup from six days-per-week to seven, they are sending the

Cascade Medical Earns Pediatric Immunization Award

By Clint Strand

CM Director of Public Relations

The Health Plan Partnership, a cooperative alliance of the WA Department of Health, Health Care Authority, and all the major health care plans in Washington, announced the 2022 Immunize Washington Provider Recognition Awards, and Cascade Medical was included.

The Health Plan Partnership awarded Cascade Medical with a Bronze Award in their Immunize Washington Awards for ensuring that 95% of 24-35-month-old babies that were empaneled patients with CM were successfully immunized for the following: Measles/Mumps/Rubella (MMR), hepatitis B, chicken pox, pneumococcal, and Hib disease.

"This was a yearlong effort that included so many here at Cascade Medical. It was absolutely a team effort," said MAC & Immunization Management Coordinator Selma Diaz Del Angel. "Since the pandemic began, there has been an overall decrease in immunizations not just in our community, but statewide. I wanted to make sure we were able to turn that around."

How did Selma and her coworkers achieve that? Partnership, hard work, and baby steps. "I want to thank our Clinic Director Whitney Lak, who made sure I could set aside some time to talk to the state Department of Health and do some research on how to increase our immunization rate. That led me to some subject matter experts in the state who could really go deep on specific things we could do to make sure all who could get immunized, did."

After initial work started last winter, clinic staff met for a "progress report" to see what changes in workflow were working, and what needed more fine-tuning. Clinic Director Whitney Lak said she was impressed with Selma and her teammates' consistent effort: "It's one thing to get excited about making a change initially, but it's another when you see a group committed to consistent improvement over a period of months. These efforts are going to have a direct impact on the health of the youngest folks we serve, and I know they're not done yet. I'm so proud of their hard work."

Diaz Del Angel agrees: "A 95 percent immunization rate is something for us to be proud of for sure, but there is more to be done. All our staff is going to meet this month to go over additional strategies and improvements so we can get even closer to 100% immunization."

Jive Time in the Cascades features big sounds and classic favorites

Submitted by Sheri Campbell
Cascade Medical Foundation

You can enjoy toe-tapping tunes and joyful jazz when Cascade Medical Foundation hosts Jive Time in the Cascades on Saturday, October 1, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Snowy Owl Theater.

Presented in partnership with the Icele Center for the Arts, this new event will feature the Wenatchee Big Band (WBB), a 20-piece ensemble formed more than 30 years ago. The group will play two sets, including swing and jazz standards – and popular crowd favorites.

"The Wenatchee Big Band is excited to help raise funds for the Cascade Medical Foundation and the quality medical care and equipment for the community. We're also excited to be playing in the Snowy Owl Theater," adds Tim Zanol, manager of the WBB.

"People can come as they are and just sit and listen, or don their dancing shoes, get dressed up and be part of the show," explains Shannon Keller, one of the event organizers and a Foundation board member.

Keller, who organized a similar event in another community before making Leavenworth home, says she's been surprised by the universal appeal of big band music.

"It amazes me how those sounds of yesteryear – and the sounds reminiscent of the Glenn Miller era – draw people of all ages. We've heard a lot of buzz and excitement from our friends and neighbors about this event."

In addition to the Wenatchee Big Band, Village Voices will perform a short, acapella set during the intermission.

While the beautiful backdrop of the Cascade Mountains and the sounds of music are sure to make this event a big hit, there will also be a great selection of picnic delights for purchase, including pulled pork sandwiches, brisket, barbeque chicken and sides. Beverages, including beer and wine, will also be available for purchase. A "Buy-It-Now" board, featuring gifts cards donated by local businesses, will offer another opportunity for concert goers to shop and support the work of the Foundation.

Tickets for the event run $35 per person and advance purchase is recommended. Visit cascademicalfoundation.org today to get tickets. This will save you time, shorten the day of event line and help event organizers make sure there's plenty of food and beverages.

All proceeds from Jive Time in the Cascades will benefit the Cascade Medical Foundation and their work to support vital community health needs. Recent fundraising projects have paid for cardiac heart monitors and electric mountain bikes for our EMS providers, who are called upon to assist hikers and climbers in our region. They also may be used during festivals or events, when electric bikes offer a quicker, more accessible option.

"We're excited to host our community, to bring people together to celebrate great music and a great community, all while supporting a wonderful community treasure, Cascade Medical," Keller says.

Adds, Diane Blake, CEO of Cascade Medical, "Events like these help the Foundation fund critical needs for us and, in turn, we're able to continue to provide high quality care to our community. We're so fortunate and grateful for our community's support – it really takes us all, working together, for a healthier community."

OBITUARY

Terry Michael West

January 21, 1963 - August 26, 2022

Terry Michael West passed on Friday August 26, 2022, at the age 59 found at home doing what he did. Born on January 21, 1963 and raised in Peshastin and lifelong resident of the Valley.

He is survived by 2 daughters Tonya and Natasha West. 3 brothers William, Robert, and Raymond West, 1 sister Susan Dodrill. Proceeded by his brother David West and sister Glendora Haskett.

Graveside service was held on Friday Sept. 2,

2022, at the Cashmere Cemetery where countless loved ones and co-workers showed and gave respect. "The compound" provided space for gathering following where Terry was together shared by stories told, photos taken, and traditions had.

He was a hard worker and spent a well-earned 30 years at Selland Construction where he will be remembered indefinitely. Terry was more than a good enough father, brother, uncle, cousin, and friend.

He found himself in the woods and up the Ice River often and that's where he loved to be when he wasn't out fishing, hunting mushrooms, running into wildlife, or with his family.

We know he'd want us all to rest in each other, love always, and give thanks often.

He will be remembered always and loved by us all.

He will always be with us in memories made, by his laugh, his smile, his eyes, crazy hair, mostly his hugs. His spirit lives on in song, and we can find reminders of him almost everywhere and in each other.

We find great comfort knowing he is at peace now and will rest amongst his Father Archibald "Bud" his Mother Esther E. West and brother David West and other family members.

He remains forever in our hearts and will be greatly missed and loved Always.

The Whistle Stop

While a full version of The Whistle comes out every two weeks, this Wednesday I am making a short "whistle stop" to respond to comments and questions generated by our debut column.

First, I believe it's important to clear up a misconception. I am, indeed, in favor of affordable housing. You can find my statements in the public record a number of times on this topic. Here is an excerpt sent to the mayor and council on July 26, 2022:

"We have always agreed about needing affordable housing. However, how we get there makes all the difference in the world. I have yet to hear a single concise thread about how that will be accomplished. At the same time, I've heard members of the council lament that they don't know what to say to constituents who don't get the density model being laid out by you all at the city - and how it connects to affordable housing... The affordable housing issue is complex, difficult and your solution is not clearly articulated or prepared. I remain unconvinced the actions you are taking are doing anything other than creating significantly tighter density and dwellings for the privileged - many of whom live out of town or live here sporadically."

Obituary & Memorial Policies

NCW Media, Inc.: Leavenworth Echo, Cashmere Valley Record, Lake Chelan Mirror, Quad City Herald

An Obituary is a way for family member(s) to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the community of the passing of the loved one. Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data.

Memorials are another way to let the community know about the life and memories of the person who has passed. A Memorial is different from an Obituary. An Obituary is usually current, while a Memorial can be written later.

Obituaries and Memorials need to be typed and emailed as a Word Document. They can be placed in one or more papers - all publish weekly on Wednesday.

Obituaries are priced by the number of words and include one color photo and go online at no extra charge. Memorials are priced per column inch. Please call for cost. *Payment is due at the time of placement. *Exception: Chapels, funeral homes who have an account, can be billed. There is no charge for a Death Notice - information is limited.

Deadline is 4 p.m. on Friday - some exceptions may apply.

Ear wax - 5 tips to combat it

Q: Which ear drops remove ear wax best? Some people (like yours truly) are enthusiastic earwax producers and ask themselves this question frequently. The medical name for earwax is cerumen, which comes from the Latin word "cera," which means wax. But cerumen isn't really a "wax" at all. It's a sticky liquid secreted by the cells of the skin lining your ear canal. Cerumen has an important job: protecting your eardrum by trapping dirt and dust. Ear wax is supposed to move along your ear canal and out of your ear. Along the way, earwax has an antimicrobial effect, which helps prevent infection of your ear canal. Some people's earwax just flakes away and never causes any trouble. But for the rest of us, it can be an ongoing source of discomfort. In fact, problems with earwax are one of the most common reasons people make appointments to see their doctor. Wearing hearing aids or earbuds increases the production of ear wax and can block the normal movement of it out of your ear. Cerumen trapped inside your ear canal can cause pressure, discomfort, and hearing loss. Attempting to remove ear wax by sticking cotton-tipped swabs or bobby pins into your ear canal doesn't work very well. The friction stimulates cerumen production and creates a wax plug inside your ear, leading to pressure, pain, and impaction. The best way to remove ear wax is to soften the wax to help it come out on its own or be flushed out. There are two main types of cerumen removal drops: oil-based and water-based. Oil-based "drops" include olive oil, coconut oil, and almond oil. At the same time, saline, hydrogen peroxide, glycerin, and docusate are water-based earwax softeners. There isn't any one best ear drop for ear wax removal. A recent systematic review of products used to remove ear wax showed no apparent differences between oil-based and water-based products. The 3 top earwax removal drops in the United States are 6.5% solutions of carbamide peroxide, available as Debrox®,

Murine®, and ClearCanal® from NeilMed. According to a 2018 US News and World Report and Pharmacy Times survey, 96% of American pharmacists recommend carbamide peroxide drops to soften ear wax, while the other 4% recommend glycerin drops. Carbamide peroxide reacts with earwax to release oxygen, creating foam that liquefies the cerumen and helps it rinse away. I stopped using Debrox® because of the annoying crackling and popping sounds and unbearable tickling sensation inside my ear canal. Docusate sodium (Waxsol®) ear drops are used to soften earwax in the UK. Docusate is a stool softener or lubricant laxative. It pulls liquid into hard stool or feces, making it softer and easier to eliminate. It's believed to do the same thing to impacted cerumen. In our clinic, we add docusate liquid in the ear for 1-3 days, then flush the ear canal with warm water. I use docusate 250mg capsules. After snipping a hole in the end, I squeeze the contents into my ear canal, repeating this twice a day for a couple of days. I flush my ears gently with warm water in a bulb syringe or during a warm shower. To help ear wax escape, place the nose of the bulb syringe along the top of your ear canal rather than in the middle. Avoid "power washing," which can damage your eardrum with too much pressure. Remove leftover water from your ears by tipping your head and blotting with a towel or using a hair dryer on a low setting. You can also use an ear drop designed to dry up the water in your ear, like Swim-Ear®, which contains isopropyl alcohol and anhydrous glycerin. Here Are 5 Tips to Combat Earwax: 1. Don't push cotton-tipped swabs, bobby pins, or rolled napkins into your ear. These can create plugs of ear wax inside your ear canal, leading to impaction and pressure, pain, and muffled hearing. 2. Both oil-based and water-based drops work to soften cerumen. Finding something that works for you is often a process of trial-and-error. 3. Avoid using eardrops if you have ear pain, bleeding, or any discharge from your ear. Call your doctor instead. You could have an external ear infection, which needs a different approach. 4. Don't use a Water Pik® or high-powered device to flush out your ears. Too much pressure can damage your eardrum or force fluid past it, triggering an inner ear infection. 5. Use warm water when flushing. Cold water is uncomfortable and can cause problems with your balance. *Dr. Louise Achey, Doctor of Pharmacy, is a 43-year veteran of pharmacology and the author of Why Dogs Can't Eat Chocolate: How Medicines Work and How YOU Can Take Them Safely. Guide Dave Eng caught this big Chinook this past week in the Columbia River Gorge near the Deschutes River

A Special Salmon Season

By JOHN KRUSE

First it was the sockeye salmon that came up the Columbia River in huge numbers, over three times what was forecast. Now, it's time for anglers to enjoy a strong fall Chinook run and what looks to be a massive coho run up the Columbia as well.

As of September 14, some 400,000 fall Chinook salmon have passed over Bonneville Dam, about 25% better than the 10-year average. Last year's coho salmon return over Bonneville Dam was a good one with over 118,000 salmon crossing. The bulk of the coho run is still in the ocean or at the mouth of the Columbia and despite that over 70,000 silvers have crossed Bonneville, meaning anglers could see a truly epic return of these fish into the Lower Columbia River and Columbia River Gorge this fall.

In the past week anglers have been catching quick limits of Chinook salmon in the Columbia River Gorge, especially near the mouths of the Klickitat and Deschutes Rivers. As far as technique goes, trolling lures behind flashers has been more productive than hover fishing with eggs.

The Lower Columbia River from the mouth to Bonneville Dam closed early this month to protect tulle fall Chinook salmon, a stock that is still not doing well. However, the bulk of that run has passed and on the 15th portions of the Columbia reopened with a three hatchery coho daily limit near Buoy 10. Anglers can also fish between Reed Island near Washougal to Bonneville Dam and keep both hatchery coho and Chinook salmon.

Another part of the river anglers and guides are flocking to now is the Hanford Reach near the Vernita Bridge. This area is known for its run of very big fall Chinook and the bite is getting going here now.

Why are the numbers so strong this year? In the opinion of most biologists, favorable ocean conditions. Warm water blobs in the Northern Pacific and the Gulf of Alaska between 2014 and 2016 led to a lack of forage fish and very low returns of salmon for several subsequent years. Now, the waters are once again cool and holding large quantities of food for the growing salmon to include herring, candlefish, squid and shrimp.

The fall Chinook fishing should remain strong through the month of September and coho fishing, especially in the Columbia River Gorge, is expected to be strong this year thru the month of October.

Early Fall Hunting

Several opportunities for hunters are available this month. This includes the continuation of the fall bear and dove season which have been open for several weeks now. Archery hunters have been targeting both elk and deer in select game management units around the state. Forest grouse hunting also opened on September 15, as did the high buck hunt for deer in the Cascades and select portions of the Olympic Mountains range. This last hunt is a modern firearm hunt which runs through September 25 and is a buck-only hunt with a three-point minimum on the antlers. The archery seasons for deer and elk run through the 22 or the 25 of September, depending on the species and area hunted. Check the regulations for further details.

In addition to this there are some special pheasant hunts coming up to include one for hunters 65 years and older as well as for hunters with disabilities that runs from September 19-23. This year's youth waterfowl hunt in Eastern Washington, normally held in September, takes place October 1. The youth pheasant hunt took place September 17 and 18 this year. Birds were scheduled to be released at select state wildlife areas prior to that pheasant hunt, meaning seniors should be able to kick up a few roosters this week.

Bears

Public Works Director, Tom Wachholder, to a conference for communities which are seeing similar bear activity, and they are coordinating closely with the WDFW. Waste Management, which picks up single-residence garbage, offers bear-resistant bins for an extra $13 per month, which is understandably not affordable for everyone.

Many of us chose to live here, in bear country. And even though there are 500 sightings reported to the WDFW every year, only about 20 encounters have resulted in human injury since 1970. There has been only one recorded bear-related human death, which occurred in 1974.

So, in Washington, we averaged 0.3 black bear-related human injuries and a negligible 0.02 black bear-related human fatalities per year. On the other hand, around 50 black bears are put down every year in Washington. For the same encounter, a bear takes on a disproportionate amount of risk. Perhaps we should assume a large proportion of the responsibility. Climate change is expected to increase the frequency of droughts, late spring frosts, and natural resource challenges. And natural resource challenges are expected to increase bear movement toward human-related resources. As we near the hibernation months, bears will get hungrier. In the coming months and years, therefore, it may be prudent to increase our vigilance if we are interested in reducing risky encounters with the bears as pressures mount for their search for food.

Is bear activity different this year in Leavenworth? Perhaps. Probably at least slightly. Perceived changes may be explained by the difficult weather, by location visibility, or something else. But most residents, old or new, can agree with Beausoleil on at least one thing: "[Bears] are always going to move through [Leavenworth]... You're gonna have sightings." And the choices we make for the remainder of this season and years forward will impact whether those sightings increase the risk of unfortunate interactions. By acting to reduce bear access to unnatural, human-generated food sources, especially during the feeding months from spring to fall, we can greatly reduce the occurrence of high-risk encounters and ultimately reduce the number of WDFW lethal bear removals. By securing trash bins, keeping them indoors for as long as possible, and removing bird feeders and pet food from the outdoors during these months, we can more peacefully coexist with the bears.

If you have questions for the city, email hello@cityofleavenworth.com. If you'd like to order a bear-resistant garbage container from Waste Management, call 877-466-4668. To report a habituated bear, call WDFW at 360-902-2936.

Corrections: Part one initially stated, "brown bears" but it was supposed to read "black bears." There has been no official record of Grizzly bears (commonly referred to as "brown bears") in the area since the 1990s. Part one also specified a number of lethal removals, this number has been removed until further verification.
