Special Dedication - Ringing of the Bell - Name Reading in Honor of the 400+ Fallen First Responders, 9/11 Spirit of America Board

Cashmere, WA - The Annual 9/11 Remembrance Ceremony will take place on September 11 at the 9/11 Spirit of America Memorial located in Cashmere Riverside Park at 11 AM-12:30 PM and to include a traditional ringing of the bell in honor of the brave men and women who risked their lives. As we commence on the 21st anniversary, the ceremony will focus on the nearly 3,000 American lives lost, paying a special tribute to the First Responders (343 firefighters, 60 police officers and 8 EMTs). The program will include each name and a moment of silence with the traditional ringing of the bell.

The Memorial site, built in 2015, includes a piece of structural steel from the 60th floor of one of the Twin Towers, an ornamental piece of limestone from the face of the Pentagon and four bronze statues, together representing all those who perished on September 11th, 2001. Today the Memorial also includes "The Survivor Tree" - a Callery Pear like the one pulled from the smoldering rubble of the World Trade site, and four granite monuments. The monuments are engraved with the names of those who perished on airplanes at each tragic site - Pentagon, World Trade Center site and Shanksville, Pennsylvania.

Join First Responders, active and retired Military personnel, Flight Crews, Veterans, and people from around the region for this important event as we dedicate, honor, and remember. The Remembrance

Ceremony is open to the public, donations are accepted, and keepsake remembrance coins are available for $10. Attendees are encouraged to bring a lawn chair and welcomed on the memorial to view statues before and after the ceremony. The Memorial is open year-round and free for viewing, with tours available by request. The 9/11 Spirit of America Memorial is a 501(c)(3) Non-Profit organization with support from dedicated volunteers. To learn more or to donate, visit 911memorialwa.org. Red Cross issues steps to keep students safe as they head back to school good time to devise family preparedness plan

School bells are calling students back to the classroom and the American Red Cross, Northwest Region, has steps everyone can take to help kids remain safe as they head back to school. As parents get ready for the start of a new school year, it's a good time to think about emergencies, such as weather-related disasters, and draw up an emergency plan for their household. Know what the emergency plan is at your child's school and develop a family emergency plan so everyone will know who to contact and where to go if something happens during the school day. Details are available at redcross.org/prepare. "There are a lot of things to think about for the start of a busy new school year, but don't forget to include safety," said Alex Dieffenbach, Northwest Region CEO. "We ask parents and guardians to consider familiarizing their children with these measures to help keep them safe as they head back to school."

CELL PHONES A DISTRACTION The National Safety Council (NSC) reports distracted walking can be dangerous, even deadly. Teach your students the following:

- Don't text or talk on your phone while walking. If you must text, move out of the way of others and stop on the sidewalk.

- Never cross the street while using an electronic device.

- Do not walk with headphones in your ears.

- Drivers can be distracted too. Never use a phone while driving. Help keep children safe by eliminating all distractions.

TAKING THE BUS

- Students should get to their bus stop early and stand away from the curb while waiting for the bus to arrive. Young children should be supervised.

- Board the bus only after it has come to a complete stop and the driver or attendant instructs them to get on. They should only board their bus, never an alternate one.

- All students should stay in clear view of the bus driver and never walk behind the bus.

WALKING TO SCHOOL

- Cross the street at the corner, obeying traffic signals and staying in the crosswalk.

- Never run out into the street or cross between parked cars.

- Use a route along which the school has placed crossing guards. Parents, walking with young children and those taking new routes or attending new schools, for the first week to ensure they know how to get there safely. Arrange for the kids to walk to school with a friend or classmate.

GOING BY CAR

- Everyone should always wear a seat belt.

- Younger children should use car seats or booster seats until the lap-shoulder belt fits properly (typically for children ages 8-12 and over 4'9"), and ride in the back seat until they are at least 13 years old.

- If a teenager is going to drive to school, parents should mandate that they use seat belts.

RIDING A BIKE

There may be more young people on bikes as the school bells ring. They should:

- Wear a properly fitted helmet and bright clothing.

- Ride on the right side of the road, with traffic, in a single file.

- Come to a complete stop before crossing the street; walk bikes across the street.

- Stay alert and avoid distracted riding.

SLOW DOWN

Drivers should slow down, especially

Become Wenatchee River Institute's next Executive Director

SUBMITTED BY RANDEE ZERGER
WRI Outreach Manager

The Wenatchee River Institute (WRI) is looking for their next Executive Director following current WRI Executive Director, Carolyn Griffin-Bugert's retirement announcement.

In Carolyn's three and a half years at WRI, environmental education programs have expanded, serving more communities in a larger area. Carolyn's vision and direction has enabled WRI to reach more students in North Central Washington, doubling the number of hours worked with students each year and changing the demographics of students served. With Carolyn's help, and yours, WRI started an endowment fund which can continue to grow and provide resources into the future. She has left WRI in a strong position to seek a new leader.

Carolyn has given several months' notice to allow adequate time to find a great candidate and provide some overlap. She says her "passion for the job has not diminished. I will continue to work with the board and staff to move the organization forward while the board prepares for a change in leadership."

WRI's mission is to connect people, communities and the natural world. WRI is looking for a leader that will maintain and expand WRI's relationships and assets so they may deepen their mission impact.

Chelan County allocates nearly $1 million in CPIF funds

SUBMITTED PHOTO.

The Mountainview Housing development project, a project of the Housing Authority of Chelan County and the City of Wenatchee. The agency was awarded $324,160 of CPIF funds to extend sewer services to the development, which is underway in Entiat.

SUBMITTED BY JILL FITZSIMMONS

Chelan County public information officer

Chelan County commissioners awarded nearly $1 million in grant funding to three affordable housing projects and a new firefighter training center in Manson.

Earlier this year, the state Legislature passed legislation expanding the use of these funds to include projects that supported permanently affordable housing. The legislation, sponsored in part by Sen. Brad Hawkins, passed and was signed into law in March, allowing Chelan County and other municipalities to consider CPIF applications from housing authorities or housing trusts. The expansion of the definition of public facilities to include affordable workforce housing infrastructure or facilities was highly supported by Chelan County commissioners to help address the area's critical housing shortage.

Commissioner Kevin

Overbay said the recently passed legislation opened a new door for communities like Chelan County that are experiencing a dwindling supply of affordable workforce housing.

"When awarding public grant dollars, the county looks at where we could make the biggest impact," Overbay said.

"The housing projects that will receive CPIF funding serve communities from Chelan to Leavenworth to Wenatchee. We appreciate that the Legislature recognized the importance in giving communities more flexibility when deciding how best to use these resources to build up our local economies."

Community Members,

This is the week that we truly begin the transition from summer to fall activities. While the weather may not be changing much, the start of classes in our Cascade School District marks the switch. I no longer have children in school, but I know of no other single marker that indicates the change of seasons like the start of school. (OK, perhaps the changing of the leaves to the fall colors comes close...but nothing has the impact on community life to the degree that the start of the school year has). Full family vacations have come to an end; familiar routines, somehow forgotten over the summer, are restarted; and the excitement of new beginnings is in full swing!

Hopefully, this year's routines will seem much closer to what we knew in 2019 than what we experienced in 2020 or 2021. My kids may be older, and starting the school routine with their own children, but I am very aware that it takes a village to raise children, and I'm still invested in what occurs in our schools. The stresses of COVID on families (both students and parents), and on our schools (teachers, aides, bus drivers, and staff), have been so devastating to so many. Even under the best of circumstances, and with the fabulous job done by our local school district, and its staff and administration, there is rebuilding and healing that must happen. This will take work on all our parts - it will not magically happen.

Teaching has always had more than its fair share of stresses. It is a profession that draws people who want to impact lives positively and to give back some of what they have been given by others who inspired them. Teaching is truly a vocation more than a job. And it's not getting easier. Somewhat unfairly, we have always expected superhuman, magical results. In addition to the stresses of the last two years, there's been an exodus of professionals in the education field. I'm in awe of those who have chosen this path, who have done it so well, and who continue to teach our children how to think critically despite an uphill battle. I hope you will join me in thanking our school staff at all levels for the superhuman efforts they give every day.

A new school year has begun. Another year of building towards our future. Another opportunity to encourage our children to open their minds to learning. So, let us support those whose job it is to nurture our young people who should be given the opportunity to shine brightly - each with a light that is its own unique and gifted color! Let's be that village it takes to raise our kids! Mayor Carl Florea, City of Leavenworth, 700 Highway 2, Leavenworth, WA 98826 in residential areas and school zones, and know what the yellow and red bus signals mean. Yellow flashing lights indicate the bus is getting ready to stop, that motorists should slow down and be prepared to stop. Red flashing lights and an extended stop sign indicate the bus is stopped and children are getting on or off.

Motorists must stop when they are behind a bus, meeting the bus or approaching an intersection where a bus is stopped. Motorists following or traveling alongside a school bus must also stop until the red lights have stopped flashing, the stop arm is withdrawn, and all children have reached safety. This includes two and four-lane highways. If physical barriers such as grassy medians, guide rails or concrete median barriers separate oncoming traffic from the bus, motorists in the opposing lanes may proceed without stopping.

KEEP LITTLE ONES SAFE Keeping all students safe is the primary concern for everyone, but there are special steps for parents of younger kids and those going to school for the first time:

- Make sure the child knows their phone number, address, how to get in touch with their parents at work, how to get in touch with another trusted adult and how to call 911.
 - Teach children not to talk to strangers or accept rides from someone they don't know.
- Finally, download the free Red Cross First Aid app for instant access to information on handling the most common first aid emergencies. You can find it by searching for 'American Red Cross' in your app store or at redcross.org/apps. Learn and practice First Aid and CPR/AED skills by taking a course (redcross.org/takeaclass) so you can help save a life.

About the American Red Cross: *The American Red Cross shelters, feeds and provides comfort to victims of disasters; supplies about 40% of the nation's blood; teaches skills that save lives; distributes international humanitarian aid; and supports veterans, military members, and their families. New class of 4th graders eligible for Every Kid Outdoor

SUBMITTED BY RODNEY FOUSHEE

August 31, 2023.

Back-to-school season means a new class of fourth graders will soon be eligible to enroll in Every Kid Outdoors, a federal program which provides up to a year of free access to National Forests, National Parks, and other public lands for fourth-grade students and their families. Beginning September 1, fourth graders, parents, and educators can visit the Every Kid Outdoors website at www.everykidoutdoors.gov and learn more about how to obtain free entry to all federal lands, for fourth graders and their accompanying family members. Students can obtain passes individually by completing a brief online activity. Educators who work with fourth graders can visit the site to download an educational activity guide, after which they'll be able to obtain vouchers for their students. Once printed, students and their families can also redeem the paper voucher for a durable, plastic pass at any Forest Service office where passes are sold. Passes and vouchers are valid for the entire school year, through lifelong learning about the natural and cultural history of forests, grasslands and other treasured places," said Thea Garrett, interim conservation education program manager for the U.S. Forest Service's Pacific Northwest Region. "Our hope is this program will help inspire the next generation to care for public lands, and to continue to steward these special places for the benefit of future generations." For more information about Every Kid Outdoors, visit www.everykidoutdoors.gov. About Every Kid Outdoors: Marvel at the Gateway Arch in St. Louis, the Florida Keys, and the Frederick Douglass house. Listen to wolves' howl. Walk in dinosaur tracks. Look up into the inky night sky and reach for the stars. These sites belong to all of us - including you. Every Kid Outdoors was created so fourth graders and their families could discover our wildlife, resources, and history for free.

OBITUARY

Catherine Ann Stroup

February 3, 1949 – August 17, 2022

Cathy passed away unexpectedly on August 17. Cathy (lovingly, "Cats") grew up in Seattle and was one of seven children in the "Hoyer clan." She attended Bishop Blanchet High School and went on to the University of Washington where she received her Bachelor of Arts in elementary education with a minor in German. Following college, Cathy moved to Eastern Washington and swore she would only stay for two years to make some money before returning to the Seattle area. Little did she know, she would make lifelong friends teaching, fall in love with a man she initially had some choice words for, and call Leavenworth home for the remainder of her life.

Cathy married her husband, Bob, in 1978 in the church located at Sleeping Lady and spent her life with him just up the road. She loved the beauty and privacy of her home in Leavenworth—the river at her doorstep (sometimes, a little too close during flood season) and the mountains that surrounded them. Even though Cathy did not like how the house was constructed before she arrived, she loved the peace and quiet it provided for her to raise her boys—Nik and Rob from Bob's first marriage and Jeff and Scott from their marriage. Family meant everything to Cathy. She provided a strong foundation for her sons and would do anything for them.

Cathy's selflessness and compassion are some of the reasons she was such a great teacher, spending 33 years teaching first, second, and third grade at Osborn Elementary School. She always put in extra time to help students after school to ensure they excelled, then prepared for the next day so that, when she was home, she could spend time with family. Her intelligence, wit, and hard work ethic was something she shared with all those she knew and taught.

In her earlier years, Cathy spent months traveling Europe and completed a stint in the Peace Corps in Micronesia. Most of her world travels took place when she was young. While she and Bob went to Egypt and Scandinavia a few years back, she was just as content sitting at home reading books and having a glass of wine. Cathy always knew where Bob was, especially during the spring fishing season, and he knew she was in her favorite place in the living room reading the latest novel that had arrived from the library. It was paradise for her and her family.

Cathy was a deeply religious individual. A lifelong Catholic, she went to mass weekly throughout her life and turned to online services during the pandemic.

Everyone who met Cathy also knew that purple and gold ran through her veins. She continued to trek back and forth to Seattle for Husky football games, and the family has many great memories of the annual Apple Cup gatherings where she would relentlessly and unapologetically cheer for her Huskies.

Cathy's focus though was always on her family. She loved and was so proud of her sons who all graduated from college and found happiness in life. Her grandkids also brought her much joy. Ryan's (19) attendance at Washington State University gave her some Husky-Cougar fodder, and she loved the banter they had back and forth. She was excited for Ella (18) to start her next chapter in life as a Freshman at Chapman University studying education. And she loved watching Lila (14) grow up and use the basketball court at the house for hours on end when she visited. Then, nearly two years ago, the addition of her fourth grandchild, Elin, was the "frosting on the cake." Cathy was so eager to watch her grow up, and Elin shared a love of books with "Grandma."

To her husband Bob, Cathy was his world, best friend, and companion for life. They shared a special bond that no one else could completely understand. Words cannot express how much they loved each other. Bob always said that he was extremely lucky to have Cathy as his wife and live with his angel. Cathy's friends will also miss her for who she was and for always being herself.

Cathy is preceded in death by her parents, Carl and Cora Hoyer, and brothers Robert (Arlene) and James (Dorothy). She is survived by her husband, Bob, children Nik (Kristin), Rob, Jeff, and Scott (Kjersti), grandchildren, Ryan, Ella, Lila, and Elin, and siblings Bill (Linda), Marie (Don), Ed (Rosemary), and Betty (Grant).

To keep with Cathy's wishes, the family is holding a private service. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Upper Valley MEND's Community Cupboard (219 14th Street, Leavenworth, WA 98826) or a charity of your choice.

and expanded outdoor learning, trained staff in suicide prevention, celebrated awards for student achievements, excelling teachers, coaches, and other staff, strengthened initiatives around art and recycling, had activities return to something close to normal, made a lot of community connections, continued to grow career exploration, support systems, and staff training opportunities.

Beckendorf-Edou ended the presentation emphasizing the strength of "Team Cascade," where everyone's talents can be utilized to help students learn and achieve individualized success.

After important HR topics, the newly hired nurse, Crystal Clabaugh, gave a clear and concise presentation about medical conditions such as diabetes and asthma, and also discussed the new school

AEDs, thanks to Cascade Medical and Cascade Medical Foundation, and the continued need for quarantine and other procedures if one gets COVID.

Building leadership announced all of the new staff members to applause.

One of the last agenda items was a short presentation by Amanda Close, Education and Outreach Coordinator for Waste Loop, explaining about the mixed recycling procedures, and sharing the very exciting news that Peshastin Dryden Elementary will pilot the composting program for cafeteria food waste. PD principal Emily Ross added, a hint of humor with the truth, that PD was chosen because the school has the most waste (young children are given a tray of food without choice) and because Peshastin has the fewest bears.

The staff received lunch and then dispersed to prepare for the first day of school the following day.

Forgiven of Debt

A WALK WITH PASTOR

John Smith

With the recent news of student loans being forgiven up to $10,000, some are not rejoicing. Their reasons include that this will further destroy our economy, unfair to those who paid off their student loans, and those who opted to go to trade school rather than university. Out of all the rebuffs to those of us who do not think this bailout is such a grand idea, equating student loan forgiveness to that of the work of Christ on the cross has to be the worst. For example, many are quoting the Lord's prayer where it says, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive others," accusing us that we really do not take our Bibles seriously and are certainly not demonstrating Christ-like compassion for those poor hapless souls who have got themselves into debt by aiming for a gender studies degree. The theologian, Dr. James White, tweeted in response to those who make such a wild correlation between student loans and the sinner's debt, "Know neither theology nor economics." "Forgiveness is indeed a huge emphasis within Christianity. It dominates as one of the central themes of the gospel message itself, and the call to forgive others is replete within the Bible. However, the forgiveness of student loans and the forgiveness of the sinner's debt are not the same. As people, we have sinned grievously against God. We have lied, stolen, disobeyed our parents, and murdered people within our hearts through hatred (Matt. 5:21-22). We have taken God's commands and thrown them out, living as if we are the ones in charge. All the while this is happening, the sins we commit are stacked against us in accusation, putting us further, to use an economic term, into the red. Unlike student loans that can be paid off (and many people have done that), the debt of sin that we owe is far too great, compounding more and more until we have left with reconciliation, an impossibility. To make matters even direr, the consequence of having this debt is death (Rom. 6:23). Therefore, we are left with a debt we can never possibly pay, an eternal condemnation that looms over us, and a consequence that shadows our every day, reminding us of our peril. Hope for those in that situation will not come in a $10,000 hand-out. As stated before, the sin debt we owe is impossible for us to pay off. Such a great debt requires a greater payment than what we can afford, leaving us hopeless. That is until we look at what Christ has done for the sake of individuals. Through his crucifixion and resurrection, he not only takes our sin debt upon himself but pays it in full, leaving nothing to be owed. So, again, borrowing from economic phraseology, because of Christ's finished work, the one who has faith in Jesus is forever "in the black." To compare the recent student loan bailout to the reality of the gospel is to cheapen the sacrifice of Christ and reveal the ignorance of how much forgiveness costs. The purchase of the forgiveness of sins costs Jesus Christ's life, which cannot be compared to the paltry sum of $10,000, which hardly puts a dent in anyone's student loans. As communicated in the gospel, the forgiveness of sins is far greater and more profound than we can even comprehend. So much so, in fact, that according to Peter, angels long to look into this reality (1 Peter 1:12). You may benefit from the government giving you $10,000. You may even be able to pay off your student loans with those funds. However, the sin debt you and I owe cannot be paid off by a check or any monetary sum. In other words, if you can have your student loan paid off but still owe terribly. That debt will remain until the payment of Christ is received and applied to your life by faith.

And then you can say, "Jesus paid it all and all to him I owe."

Q I'm taking a medicine that really upsets my stomach. Is there any way to keep it from doing that?

You are not alone if you suspect your medicine is upsetting your stomach. As a pharmacist, I hear this complaint the most: "These pills are making me sick!" In fact, the most common side effect of ANY medication is stomach upset, also called "gastrointestinal distress" or "GI distress." Symptoms of GI distress have been reported with every single prescription medication. No exceptions.

Do you experience nausea, vomiting, stomach cramps, burning, or intestinal cramping after taking your medicine? If you suspect one of your medicines could be making you feel sick, you are probably right.

If there were a Hall of Fame of drugs that cause significant nausea and vomiting, the top three categories would be antibiotics, pain medicines, and cancer chemotherapy drugs.

Chemotherapy drugs top the list of drugs that can cause severe nausea and vomiting. You're more likely to have stomach upset when taking a chemotherapy agent if you are younger than 50, female, prone to motion sickness, have had "morning sickness" during pregnancy, or suffered from nausea while taking other chemotherapy drugs.

Depending on the treatment regimen, multiple anti-nausea medicines are often used to combat the side effects of chemotherapy. They include tablets or capsules, melt-in-your-mouth tablets, skin patches, rectal suppositories, and injections.

Although most medications can be taken with or without food in your stomach, there are some exceptions.

Some drugs MUST be taken on an empty stomach to ensure your body absorbs the entire dose. These include the thyroid supplement levothyroxine and the bone-building medicines alendronate (Fosamax®), risedronate (Actonel®), and ibandronate (Boniva®).

Some antibiotics should NOT come in contact with certain minerals like calcium, magnesium, or iron. Common antibiotics like doxycycline, ciprofloxacin, and levofloxacin should not be taken with multivitamins with minerals. It's OK to take these antibiotics with a meal. However, because of the concentrated calcium, you should avoid drinking a full glass of milk with them. Not sure if this is an issue? Look at the label on the side of your medicine bottle or ask your pharmacist.

If you vomit after taking your medicine, what should you do? If it's an antibiotic or pain medicine, try it again, but make sure you take it with food, a full glass of milk, water, juice, or both.

Contact your doctor if you take the drug a second time and still vomit within the first 30 minutes. When you can't keep your antibiotic or your pain medicine down, it won't be able to help you. Delaying treatment with an antibiotic can lead to severe consequences.

If the medicine is for your heart, blood pressure, or anxiety, contact your doctor or pharmacist before repeating the dose. Has it been more than 30 minutes after taking your medication before you vomited? If so, you may have absorbed enough medicine to cause an overdose if you take another dose right away.

Here Are 5 Tips to Help Avoid Stomach Upset When Taking Medicine:

1. Take medicines immediately after eating.

If your medicine can be taken with food, take it just after finishing a meal, instead of before you eat. This way, there's more food in your stomach, helping to dilute any irritating effects on your innards. If it's time to take your medicine, but you're not ready to eat, try taking your pills with a full glass of water or juice.

2. Take your medicine at night.

Taking your medication at bedtime allows you to sleep through the queasiness they can cause. This is particularly helpful with oral contraceptives, pain medicines, and prenatal vitamins.

3. Split up the dose.

Ask your pharmacist if you can safely split your medicine into more than one dose and then take them several hours apart, with breakfast and dinner. Some pills can be split safely, while others need to be changed to a lower strength to be given as separate doses.

4. Request a long-acting or coated drug formulation.

Ask your pharmacist if a delayed-release or specific coated formulation is available for your medicine. Some drugs have special coatings that protect them from the acid in your stomach. These unique coating helps keep the medicine from dissolving in your stomach.

5. Take anti-nausea medicine ahead of time.

Don't wait until you are already queasy before taking pills for nausea. You should take motion sickness and other anti-nausea medicine at least 30 minutes before you need it, not when you're already miserable and about to hurl.

White River and Irving Peak Fire Update as of September 4, 2022

Plain, WA - Lightning started the White River and Irving Peak Fires on August 11. The fires are burning on the Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest, northwest of Plain, WA.

Suppression Strategy - Fire managers are continuing to implement our long-term strategy including the use of primary and contingency perimeter lines for containment. Tactics include completion and reinforcement of fire lines (roads and hand line).

Operations - A more seasonal, cooler weather pattern moves over the fire area tomorrow moderating fire behavior. Smoke may continue to be visible over the next several weeks as remaining interior fuels continue to smolder and burn out. Firefighters will continue to actively manage both fires over the coming weeks with a long-term strategy in place. Due to moderating fire behavior, fire updates will transition to every other day meaning there will be no update tomorrow. Daily updates may resume if a change in fire activity occurs.

White River Fire - Acres: 1,348; 1% contained

Location: Sears Creek area of the White River drainage, approximately 14 miles NW of Plain, WA.

A cold front moved into the area yesterday and brought gusty winds out of the northwest. The increased winds caused some interior burning and smoke throughout the fire. The fire was most active in the southeast corner; however, the fire experienced minimal growth. Today, firefighters will continue to monitor the southern portion of the fire while remaining ready for initial attack on any new fire starts.

Irving Peak Fire - Acres: 2,937; 7% contained

Location: Approximately 16 miles NW of Plain, WA

The Irving Peak Fire saw limited growth primarily on the northwest corner influenced by breezy conditions. The fire experienced low-to-moderate fire behavior with backing, flanking and short-range spotting. Containment lines on the southern flank continue to hold. On the eastern edge, the fire crossed Ninemile Creek, but is currently holding in place. Today, firefighters will improve containment lines while monitoring the fire as it backs down towards containment lines. Firefighters will also remain ready to assist with any new initial attacks.

Weather and Fire Behavior - Winds will be breezy again today as another dry cold front approaches the region. Westerly wind with gusts of 20 to 30 mph is expected, with the highest gusts across the ridgetops. Afternoon relative humidity will be slightly lower than Sept.3, but will remain above critical levels.

Air quality and smoke outlook - Smoke from multiple wildfires in northern California and Oregon continues to move north into the area in addition to smoke generated from local fires. Smoke levels in the Lake Wenatchee area have a high probability to increase throughout the day. The current smoke outlook, along with information about air quality health recommendations during smoky conditions, is available at: <https://outlooks.airfire.org/outlook/84d849be> and at Washington Smoke Blog <https://wasmoke.blogspot.com/>

Closures - Several road and area closures are in place for the safety of firefighters and the public. Fire managers are asking people to please respect these closures while recreating in the area. An emergency closure, issued by the Forest Service, remains in place for the Little Wenatchee Road (Forest Service Road [FSR] 65) to include the section between the National Forest boundary and the junction of FSR 65 and FSR 6700.

For additional information about current closures, please visit the Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest - Home (usda.gov).

Restrictions - Campfires are not allowed anywhere within the Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest. Stage 2 Restrictions are now in effect for the entire forest, including campgrounds and wilderness areas: https://www.fs.usda.gov/detail/okawen/alerts-notices/?cid=fsbdev3_053600

Evacuations - Current Chelan County evacuation levels include a Level 2 evacuation (Be Prepared) for Sears Creek Road and Level 1 (Stay Alert) for White River Road and Little Wenatchee Road. <https://www.co.chelan.wa.us/emergency-management/pages/active-emergencies>

Recreation impacts - In addition to the Forest closure and fire restrictions, fire officials recommend avoiding recreating in the Little Wenatchee and White River Road (FS Roads 6500 and 6400) areas. Smoke is visible from the Pacific Crest Trail (PCT). The PCT remains open and is not directly impacted by the fires. However, the Little Wenatchee Ford and White River Trailheads are closed and cannot be used to access the PCT. The Buck Creek-Spider Meadow Loop is open and accessible, but smoke and nearby fire activity may impact the area.

Safety message - The public is asked to please watch out for firefighters and firefighting vehicle traffic in the area.

Are you pulling a trailer or boat this holiday weekend? With the low humidity and high temperatures, a small spark from a dragging safety chain can quickly create a large fire. Please be responsible and take a moment to check your tow chains.

Resources - Total personnel assigned: 331 including 1-Type 1 (Hotshot) hand crew; 3-Type 2 IA (Initial Attack) hand crews; 1-type 2 hand crew; 1-camp crew; 2-heavy lift helicopters; 1-medium lift helicopter; 1-light lift helicopter; 14 engines; 1 dozer; 2 masticators; 6 water tenders; and 130 overhead personnel.

The Contract
Unveiling the healing power of forgiveness
A novel by local writer William E. Forhan.

Nobel Prize winning author Gabriel García Márquez was quoted as saying, "All human beings have three lives, public, private and secret."
In our modern world of the Internet search engines and DNA testing, keeping our private and secret lives separate is increasingly difficult. Sometimes they can come crashing in on our public lives when we least expect it.

Father Robert McCarthy is a middle-aged priest who is suddenly and unexpectedly confronted with his secret past. How he deals with the revelation of that past with his family, his congregation and the impacts of that secret life is inspirational. How McCarthy discloses the news of his college indiscretion requires him to take everyone involved on a journey of confession. That journey forces him to deal with issues of homosexuality, judgementalism, divorce and pride.

His pastoring skills and the depth of support from his wife help him bring forgiveness and restoration to many broken relationships.

The bonds of three families are ultimately restored through celebrations of life experiences including fishing, holiday gatherings, the discovery of unknown family connections and a wedding.

A popular myth is that Tetra Pak® cartons must be flattened before placing them in the bin. That is not the case in the U.S. and Canada.

Can I recycle this? Prevent wishcycling by knowing what is and isn't recyclable BPT - You make recycling possible. Without consumer participation, recycling programs can't function. If you already recycle, you're playing a critical role in reducing waste in your area. But to truly make sure valuable materials - like cartons, plastic and other materials that can be reused in other products - are kept out of landfills, it is important to prevent wishcycling.

Wishful recycling (or wishcycling) is tossing something in your recycling bin hoping it's recyclable, which can cause more harm than good. While many programs have recycling equipment to sort items, some non-recyclable materials can cause the machines to jam or break, causing delays and contaminating the recyclable items.

To prevent wishcycling and help your local recycling program operate efficiently, you'll need to know what materials can be recycled and how to prepare them before tossing them in the bin.

Know what is and is not recyclable

The first thing you should do to determine if an item is recyclable is to check the packaging. If you find a recycling icon on the package, it often means you're holding a widely recyclable item. However, that doesn't mean that you can simply throw the item into your recycling bin.

What is and is not recyclable can change over time and based on location. Whether you've lived in the same neighborhood your whole life or have just moved to a new city, it is recommended that you check with your local recycling program from time to time to see what items are accepted in your area. Some programs may even provide a handy guide you can reference if you have any doubts about how to recycle certain items.

One recyclable material that still confuses many people is food and beverage cartons, like those made by Tetra Pak. From milk and juice to broth, soups and more, you likely have more than a few items in your kitchen that come in cartons. Because of how common they are, it's essential to learn how to recycle cartons so they don't end up in a landfill.

You likely have carton recycling in your area. Today, most U.S. households have access to carton recycling. In fact, access to residential recycling programs has increased by 240% since 2009, when the Carton Council was formed. This industry organization was created to increase carton recycling access and rates and divert valuable cartons from the landfill. They work to build a sustainable infrastructure for carton recycling nationwide and educate and raise awareness around carton recycling.

Want to know if cartons can be recycled where you live? Visit RecycleCartons.com/find/state to find out if your local recycling program handles cartons and, if not, learn how you can recycle them.

Know how to recycle an item properly

Once you've determined what materials can be recycled in your area, you'll need to learn how they should be recycled. There are many recycling myths, so to ensure you're doing so correctly, you'll want to familiarize yourself with how to recycle certain products, especially ones you consume often.

One popular myth is that Tetra Pak® cartons must be flattened before placing them in the bin. However, that's not the case in the U.S. and Canada. To properly recycle a carton, simply empty it, replace the cap, or push the straw back in the pack, then place it in the recycling bin in its original form.

Recycling doesn't have to be complicated or mysterious. Familiarize yourself with your local recycling program guidelines so you can do your part to keep valuable items out of the garbage. To learn more about carton recycling, visit RecycleCartons.com/Learn or TetraPakUSA.com.

The Washington Outdoors Report

Cape Disappointment State Park - a crown jewel

By JOHN KRUSE

One of the best parks in Washington, a crown jewel amongst the parks found in this state, is Cape Disappointment State Park. Located where the Columbia River meets the Pacific Ocean near Ilwaco, this expansive 1,882-acre park offers a healthy dose of history, a nautical setting and abundant opportunities for outdoor recreation.

My wife and daughter and I reserved a small cabin in the park months ago that sits right next to a small, lily pad lined body of water called O'Neill Lake. In addition to three cabins, several yurts and even lighthouse keeper's quarters are available for rent, there are also 220 campsites, about a third of them with full or partial hookups for RVs.

There is a lot to see and do here. If you enjoy time at the beach you can stroll to Waikiki Beach near the park entrance or walk two-mile-long Benson Beach between the North Jetty and North Head where a red and white lighthouse stands watch. Another option is to drive on the beach from Seaview north of the park south to Beard's Hollow, which offers the chance to explore rocky tidepools full of sea anemones at low tide.

At the beach you'll see people flying kites, casting for surf perch, beachcombing and just enjoying the chance to dip their toes into the surf of the Pacific Ocean. Speaking of fishing, early to mid-September offers a very good chance to catch coho salmon in Baker Bay near Ilwaco, around Buoy 10 at the mouth of the Columbia, and even off the North Jetty where surefooted anglers cast big spinners or drift plug cut herring or anchovies under a slip bobber. Rockfish and lingcod can also be caught off the jetty.

Something else to do? That would be crabbing. The best crabbing for keeper size Dungeness crab is from a boat in the Pacific near the mouth of the river. Land based crabbers or kayakers catch crab close to the North Jetty in the park. We tossed a crab ring and snares off the boat launch dock at the park and over the course of three afternoons literally pulled up close to 500 Dungeness crab. Unfortunately, not one of them was keeper sized. The bio mass of crab was amazing but they were all small. Hopefully by next year a lot of these crab in this area will be big enough to keep.

If you like to hike, you'll be able to enjoy a trail system covering eight miles that will take you to Cape Disappointment, the North Head Lighthouse, and through forests to wetlands and to the beach. Wildlife watchers will be rewarded with the sight of black-tailed deer and raccoons in the park along with birds like kingfishers and osprey around the freshwater lakes as well.

Meanwhile, there are bald eagles, cormorants, pelicans and a wide variety of shore birds on the coast off the rocky points and the beach along with the chance to see seals and the occasional whale.

There is also much to see and learn here from a historical point of view. The Lewis and Clark Expedition reached Cape Disappointment as they completed their initial mission of reaching the Pacific Ocean in November of 1805. Today, a world-class interpretive center with over 200 exhibits and artifacts can be seen here. The Center is open seven days a week in the summer and has reduced hours the rest of the year.

The mouth of the Columbia is difficult to navigate, and the waters around it became known as the Graveyard of the Pacific. To help ships safely enter the river, Cape Disappointment Lighthouse was built and became active in 1856. Aaron Webster, the head Interpretive Ranger at the State Park, was asked why a second lighthouse was built just two miles north. Webster explained that initially, most shipping came from the south and San Francisco, and the light at Cape Disappointment worked fine. When rail lines reached Tacoma to the north, shipping began to come to the mouth of the Columbia that way and they could not see the light of Cape Disappointment. That's why the North Head Lighthouse was built which became operational in 1898. Today, tours are available at the North Head Lighthouse during the summer months.

This was also a military installation. Aaron Webster explained this fort along with Fort Stevens on the south side of the Columbia River mouth were built during the Civil War because of a Confederate shipping presence in the Pacific Ocean. The forts received state of the art coastal artillery pieces towards the end of the 19th Century and received more troops and artillery, along with radar stations, search lights and mines, in World War II. That's when the threat was the Imperial Japanese Navy, which did have a submarine shell nearby Fort Stevens in 1942.

After the War the fort was deactivated and Fort Canby was turned over to the Washington State Parks Commission. Today, you can walk among some of the WW II era fortifications which are located next to the Lewis & Clark Interpretive Center. You can find out more about this amazing destination and the North Head Lighthouse at <https://parks.wa.gov/486/Cape-Disappointment> and <http://northheadlighthouse.com>.

Omicron COVID-19 vaccine boosters now authorized for certain individuals

Bivalent boosters aim to provide better protection from currently circulating variants of COVID-19

OLYMPIA - The Washington State Department of Health (DOH) and other healthcare providers will soon begin offering Omicron variant-targeted bivalent booster doses of the Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna COVID-19 vaccines following authorization by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), and recommendations from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's Advisory Committee on Immunizations Practices, and the Western States Scientific Safety Review Workgroup. The bivalent vaccines combine the companies' original COVID-19 vaccine compositions with

BA.4 and BA.5 spike protein components, providing additional protection by targeting variants that are more transmissible and immune-evading. The primary COVID-19 vaccine series will stay the same, given their proven efficacy in preventing serious illness, hospitalization, and death from COVID-19. DOH's updated booster dose recommendations are as follows:

- People ages 12 - 17 who have completed a primary vaccine series can receive the Pfizer-BioNTech bivalent booster at least two months after their most recent dose.
- People 18 and older who have completed a primary vaccine series can receive either company's bivalent booster at least two months after their most recent dose.
- Those ages 5 - 11 who have completed Pfizer-

BioNTech's primary vaccine series should continue to receive the company's original monovalent booster at least 5 months after their most recent dose.

- Children ages 6 months - 4 years are currently not authorized for any COVID-19 booster doses.
 - People ages 12 and over who currently have appointments to receive COVID-19 booster doses will need to contact their providers to ensure the bivalent booster is available; if not, those appointments will need to be rescheduled, as the former monovalent booster doses are no longer authorized for this age group.
- "We're excited this updated bivalent booster will help increase protection against the Omicron variants as we head into the fall season," said Tao Sheng Kwan-Gett, MD, MPH, Chief Science Officer.

"As SARS-CoV-2 changes, so must the tools we use against it - this update helps ensure that vaccines and boosters will continue to be the most effective ways to reduce the risk of hospitalization and death and keep those most at-risk healthy and safe." An initial allocation of 191,100 bivalent booster doses is currently en route to providers throughout the state and will be available beginning the week of September 5 after the Labor Day holiday. Subsequent weekly allocations will follow, building the state's inventory levels over time. DOH urges the public to remain patient, as we expect initial demand to exceed available inventory before resolving in the coming weeks, and to visit Vaccine Locator or call the COVID-19 Information Hotline at 1-800-525-0127 to find available resources near them.
