

Leavenworth's Own Miss America Celebrates 50th Anniversary!

SUBMITTED BY LAUREL SCHAEFER-BOZOUKOFF

Leavenworth resident Laurel Schaefer-Bozoukoff and Miss America 1972 will be returning with her husband, Michael Bozoukoff, attending Miss America's 100th Anniversary and being honored for her 50th Anniversary, 1971-2021. The events will occur at the Mohegan Sun Resort in Uncasville, Connecticut, and will Live Stream on NBC Peacock at 8 PM (EST) on Thursday, December 16th. Laurel was a Miss America ahead of her time. She had already graduated from Ohio University (Athens, OH) with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree before winning Miss Ohio 1971 and Miss America 1972. She was the first Miss America to introduce the concept of a social issue platform to bring more substance and relativity to her year. Being an outspoken advocate for the military and the daughter of a WW11 Navy Veteran, Laurel showed support and solidarity for our U.S. military service members by wearing a pewter wristband inscribed with the name of a POW/MIA. Laurel focused on specific talking points for press conferences, T.V. talk shows, news interviews, publications, and presentations to counter negative press, anti-war demonstrations, and radical social doctrines. Today, Laurel's idea has morphed into what is known as the Social Impact Initiative that is an integral element for Miss America 2.0 judging and selection system. Laurel remains active serving as a judge for Miss America state competitions, most recently, Miss Washington 2019 and Miss Ohio 2021.

Beautiful Baskets Share Stories

Marlene Farrell Correspondent

Julie Edwards and Joe Feddersen's story baskets are woven with brightly colored symbols and imagery. Excerpts from the stories are below each basket, and each full story is on a laminated printout for visitors to read.

A colorful new exhibit draws visitors to the Greater Leavenworth Museum as soon as they step through the entrance. The exhibit features nine story baskets, eight of which were created by artist Julie Edwards, who is a member of the Colville Tribe and a descendant of the p'squosa (Wenatchi), Nez Perce and Yakama tribes. One other story basket was made by her mentor, Joe Feddersen, a renowned artist and fellow Colville Tribal member, who is also known for his painting, printmaking, photography, collage and glasswork.

Edwards and Feddersen created the baskets using techniques that have been passed down for millennia. Traditionally, the baskets were made of native plants such as bear grass and dogbane and used for collecting and storing roots. "They've been around since the people have been around, between, I think, 14,000 and 24,000 years," Edwards said.

Edwards and Feddersen made the modern versions out of yarn and polished hemp. It begins with a knot at the bottom center and then the weaving spirals and grows from there. The yarn is wrapped around a set of hemp warps, then twisted, then wrapped and twisted around the next set of warps, again and again, all while the weaver rotates the beginning basket in his/her hands. Later the warps are divided into smaller and smaller bundles, allowing the weaver to add in patterns depicting a story. Edwards has made close to 1000 baskets ranging from a few inches to over a foot tall.

Each basket in the exhibit is accompanied by a short story with a powerful message. "The Soap Lake Story" tells of an unattractive man who tries to woo his brother's widow but is scorned. When his grandmother helps him grow strong and gain beautiful skin, rather than winning the widow, he gives her a taste of her own medicine.

"The Rock Story" tells of a child learning to manage anger by putting it temporarily into a rock, as shown by her grandma. When the girl later returns to the rock looking for her anger, it's gone.

The story ends with the grandma saying, "If you go back to the rock and the anger comes back to you, then it should be felt, and it should be given to Creator so he can heal your heart. If you go back to the rock and you can't find the anger, then the anger was never important and you should

Member George Erb explained. "This is completely contrary to our model of citizen-driven government."

The nonprofit WCOG serves to ensure that government bodies stay in contact with the public in regards to crucial legislative rulings. WCOG found that the Redistricting Commission did not meet with the public regarding district boundary map deadlines, and that many decisions leading up to their Nov 15th deadline were made in secret.

The lawsuit was filed in Thurston County and could fine each commissioner (April Sims, Paul Graves, Brady Pínero Walkinshaw and Joe Fain, along with non-voting commission chair Sarah Augustine) $500 if found guilty.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year
From Jeffrey & Loretta Wilson and Staff!

Leavenworth Moms Upset by Krampus Seattle Cosplayers

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

After many years of attending Christmas Lighting as guests on their own, Krampus Seattle were formally invited by the Chamber of Commerce for Leavenworth's 2021 Village of Lights, Christmastown. Many guests were delighted to see the demons, posing for pictures and fist-bumping the cosplayers. However, some were less enthused about their arrival and criticized both Krampus Kove and the Chamber of Commerce for inviting them.

For cultural context, Krampus is the "evil" alter ego of St. Nicholas derived from Central European folklore, with horns, long tongue. If children were good, St. Nicholas (who is commonly dubbed Santa Claus) would gift children with sweets. If they were bad, Krampus would either gift the children with coal or leave them a birch rod.

The Krampus mythology dates back pre-Christian Bavarian folklore and is still celebrated in Central Europe to this day. Krampus Nacht occurs on Dec. 5th, with the Krampus creature roaming the streets at night, with the official Krampus day on Dec. 6th.

Krampus Kove co-owner Joseph Seguin said that he first thought of inviting the Krampus Seattle group after noticing their frequent trips to Leavenworth, but neither the group nor Seguin could afford to bring the entire group.

"We were like, 'oh, well, let's see if the chamber wants to do anything this year, since they're doing the Christmas town thing,'" Seguin said. "We got them in contact with each other and then we were just sort of out of it for a long time."

Some parents complained about the Krampus characters, either via Facebook or straight to the Chamber of Commerce, stating that the cosplayers were too "scary-looking" for children, that the Krampus performers should be presented during the late-night "adult" hours, and that they should keep the Krampus for Halloween rather than Christmas.

"He's just a foil to Santa, but they're both part of the same team," Seguin explained, while also clarifying that this event was geared more towards St. Nicholas Day. "I don't see why they can't hang out."

Leavenworth Chamber of Commerce Media Liaison Jessica Stoller gave this statement regarding parental backlash to Krampus Nacht:

"We have received both negative and positive feedback from the public and are sorry if the Krampus have offended anyone. We have been asked to "not let them in town," and of course as people in this country, we all enjoy the freedom to travel where we wish and like anywhere, Leavenworth is open to anyone at any time."

Seguin shares a similar sentiment, who received some complaints on the Kove's business page.

"People have opinions on what they want their kids exposed to and I kind of understand that," Seguin said. "But so many people's kids had a great time as well, so I don't know. It was posted so long ago that this was happening, you could have looked up what a Krampus Nacht was and bring your kids the next day."

Angela Vitus was one of the Krampus cosplayers of that night. She said that during her Leavenworth trip, she and her lederhosen-garbed grinch fiancé had a lovely time taking pictures and hanging out with Leavenworth guests.

"Everyone was so welcoming.

Children were running up to us asking for a picture with them. Families were laughing. The best part was dancing with the kids! My heart grew three sizes that day."

She reports that the kids were not scared but were instead excited to see her intricately made horned costume.

"One little girl, maybe 3 years young even went up to each one of us, gave us a hug, and then posed for a picture. Her mom was so surprised," Vitus said. "Children have huge hearts. They truly remind us of the peace we need to share with each other. They don't judge a book by the cover. They just want to have fun and that's exactly what we did! Sang, handed out candy, danced, did knuckle bumps, and we received lots of hugs."

Vitus would love to come back to Leavenworth for Krampus Nacht, but it would be up to the Chamber to decide if they will invite Krampus Seattle next year. This is the chamber's statement on the matter.

"The Chamber of Commerce always takes feedback both positive and negative and will discuss all those elements in our post event planning meeting prior to making plans for the next year."

Vitus has this to say regarding some of the backlash she had seen from parents: "That's ok. In life, we all have opinions, that's what makes us human, and pretty special. We respect their feelings."

Integrated Resource Plan & Clean Energy Implementation Plan

Chelan County PUD is reviewing its 2021 draft Integrated Resource Plan (IRP) and Clean Energy Implementation Plan (CEIP) as required by state laws. The 10-year IRP outlines the sources of power needed to supply PUD customers. A new IRP must be developed every four years and updated every two years. The CEIP is a new requirement under Washington's Clean Energy Transformation Act (CETA). A CEIP is intended to identify a utility's plans over the following four years to meet CETA's 2030 greenhouse gas neutral standard and 2045 100% clean electricity standard.

Schedule for the 2021 IRP and CEIP: Dec. 20 IRP and CEIP hearings

The first two presentations for each will be made during regular PUD commission study sessions that begin at 10 a.m. in the boardroom at 327 N. Wenatchee Ave. The hearings will be at 1 p.m. during a commission business meeting at the same location.

Sleigh driver dies in sleigh accident near Leavenworth Fish Hatchery

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

76-year-old Icicle Outfitters sleigh driver Frederick Duzan died on Dec. 2, 3:45 p.m. after one of the horses pitched him from the wagon. The incident occurred near the Leavenworth Fish Hatchery during a sleigh tour ride.

Chelan County Coroner Wayne Harris states that the cause of the accident started when the bolts on the wagon wheel came loose. He was bucked off the wagon, which resulted in him hitting his head on a boulder, killing him instantly.

Duzan had successfully evacuated the four passengers in the sleigh before the horses got spooked. The two horses had reportedly bolted and were rescued at a pond near the river.

Duzan was a Peshastin local resident and was described as a "cowboy poet" according to Harris. Andrea Brixey commented that he was fearless and exhibited charm, joy, charisma, and that he was a good role model for people.

"He was really amazing."

Nobel Prize winning author Gabriel García Márquez was quoted as saying, "All human beings have three lives, public, private and secret."

In our modern world of the Internet search engines and DNA testing, keeping our private and secret lives separate is increasingly difficult. Sometimes they can come crashing in on our public lives when we least expect it.

Father Robert McCarthy is a middle-aged priest who is suddenly and unexpectedly confronted with his secret past. How he deals with the revelation of that past with his family, his congregation and the impacts of that secret life is inspirational. How McCarthy discloses the news of his college indiscretion requires him to take everyone involved on a journey of confession. That journey forces him to deal with issues of homosexuality, judgmentalism, divorce and pride.

His pastoring skills and the depth of support from his wife help him bring forgiveness and restoration to many broken relationships.

The bonds of three families are ultimately restored through celebrations of life experiences including fishing, holiday gatherings, the discovery of unknown family connections and a wedding.

Cascade High School's New Holiday Tradition

ELISE ALMEIDA
CSD STAFF WRITER

Cascade High School's first Gingerbread House Party, a family event which included gingerbread house building, was held on December 3 at the high school. The event was put together by the CHS leadership class, a class which plans and hosts school events and assemblies, and the gingerbread houses were provided by the local bakery Sugar Mama's Sweets. Additional supplies such as frosting and candy were provided by Cascade High School. Each house sold for $25, and all proceeds went to the CHS ASB and will fund supplies for athletic and club equipment, fireworks for Homecoming, and travel for school sports. At the event, attendees had access to a candy and hot cocoa bar, with a variety of toppings and treats available. Festive music and decorations helped to further establish the holiday theme. "The awesome selection of candy, handmade family signs on the tables, and locally made gingerbread houses all made this new tradition a family event that we hope will grow every year at Cascade High School," commented event volunteer and CHS counselor Amanda Schafer.

Even though this was the first year this event was put on, it was a success for both the Leavenworth community and CHS. "We ended up selling 40 houses total, but a lot of people came with their families, and bought one house. There were probably 90 to 100 people who attended total," said leadership teacher Ms. Robison. This is a better turnout than originally expected. Ms. Robison and her Leadership class came up with the idea for a Gingerbread House Party last year while brainstorming ways they could make money for the school's ASB. They intend to make it a yearly tradition, each year becoming more successful than the last. The main goal of this year's Gingerbread House Party was to introduce the community to a new family-focused activity to do at CHS around the holidays, but in an added benefit, several hundred dollars was made from the event. There was a lot of work that went into making this event go from a mere idea to reality. "The first thing we had to do was plan everything out and figure out logistics of everything from where we were going to get a bunch of gingerbread houses to [figuring out] the playlist. We also spent a long time on promotion and decorations," said CHS senior Olivia Cappellini, a member of Leadership. However, all of the work was certainly worth it to see the reactions of the families who attended. "My favorite part was seeing how excited the kids were to be there," Olivia added. The success of this year's Gingerbread House Party guarantees that a new Leavenworth tradition has been formed. "[Next year's] is going to be bigger and better than this one; a new and improved version," Ms. Robison stated about the future of the event. When asked if they would be open to working with CHS again next year, Leslie Nelson of Sugar Mama's Sweets answered, "We would love to do this event again next year." This means families can rest assured knowing that next year's Gingerbread House Party will have the same great quality and locally made gingerbread houses. "I am so proud of the leadership students for all of their work in creating something magical for our community. The kids who attended had a blast and the festive, family-focused atmosphere the students created was truly beautiful to see," said Ms. Robison.

The Washington Outdoors Report

A Cowboy Poet Passes

By JOHN KRUSE

A cowboy I treasure traded his spurs for wings recently. Fred Duzan was a longtime wrangler for Icicle Outfitters, offering summertime day trips from Lake Wenatchee State Park, overnight trips into the Central Cascades and winter sleigh or wagon rides near the Leavenworth Fish Hatchery.

Chelan County Coroner Wayne Harris reports, “Duzan was taking a group on a winter ride in a wagon on December 2nd when a wheel became loose. The horses were spooked as the wagon slowed and Duzan attempted to get control of them. Unfortunately, he was thrown by the horses from the wagon and hit his head on a boulder, dying instantly of blunt force impact.”

I met Fred 15 years ago when my then seven-year-old son David and I went on a summertime, two-night family horseback trip into the Entiat Mountains. Everyone on the trip was either a father or mother with a young son or daughter. We rode ten plus miles from the trailhead, and through a shallow stream to a meadow next to a creek full of small trout. That’s where Fred and his assistant tied up the horses and mules and got to work setting up camp.

It was my first time in a backcountry horse camp and I loved it. The location was spectacular and deer wandered through camp on a regular basis. Fred was an excellent cook with a Dutch oven and the dinners and desserts he prepared were mouthwatering. Used to drinking water from a bottle on backcountry hiking forays, I was pleasantly surprised when I took a seat by the campfire and Fred offered me my choice of a soda pop or a beer. It was certainly nice to have mules carrying food, drink and camping gear for us!

Fred was very good at his craft, adeptly handling all aspects of the trip. He was also a quick wit. He loved to tell corny jokes, gently poked fun at my son who seemed to fall into the creek or nearby alpine lakes every chance he could, and even recited cowboy poetry around the campfire for everyone during dinner.

Both the kids and adults alike loved Fred and the whole experience Icicle Outfitters offered. On the second day we rode to a couple of alpine lakes where Fred provided fishing rods for the kids to use to catch trout which ended up as dinner at camp. The experience was so delightful we did it again a year later and Fred dazzled us yet again.

Those weren’t the only times I saw Fred. I chatted with him during the winter from time to time between sleigh rides at the fish hatchery. On the rare occasions I saw his truck parked next to the appropriately named Hitching Post Tavern in Cashmere, I’d always make it a point to drop in to see him and listen to his still corny jokes.

Fred was a true cowboy, and also a very good man who will be missed but being a Christian, I console myself that he’s riding in some very fine pastures now. My prayers go out to his longtime partner, Patti and to his friends at Icicle Outfitters during this time of loss.

just let it go.” A grant through the Native Arts and Culture Foundation covered Edwards’ mentorship and enabled her to gather stories from elders, make matching baskets and produce a book, Weaving, Baskets and Stories.

The exhibit is the result of the efforts of a museum committee collaborating with and being guided by representatives of the Colville Tribe in order to improve how the museum displays the history and culture of the p’squosa and other regional first peoples. Mara Bohman, who is on the museum committee, said, “Rachel Bishop [from Wenatchee River Institute] and I have been working with members of the p’squosa tribe for about a year, meeting monthly to discuss many different topics/projects related to education and awareness about the p’squosa people.”

As for the book, Bohman said, “Julie’s book right now is a rare commodity. We’re in the process of reprinting her book in softback to sell at the museum.”

The museum received $2,000 from the Wood’s Family

Music and Arts Grant through the Community Foundation of NCW to cover the publishing cost for the second reprint of 400 copies. “Julie has generously offered for the proceeds from the sale of her book to go towards supporting the Leavenworth Museum’s p’squosa (Wenatchi) exhibit,” said Bohman.

The Greater Leavenworth Museum board has more plans for enhancing the space. The volunteer counter will be relocated from left to right of the entrance and will be made smaller to maximize space for the p’squosa exhibit area. Board president Matt Cade said that they hope to have made the changes, including working with the p’squosa on the details of the exhibit and installation, by January 2023.

In the meantime, locals should take the time to come see Edwards’ story baskets, which will be on display for one year. They serve as an opportunity to see history come alive and to learn more about the p’squosa of the past and present.

Edwards said, “When I teach basketry, I like to point out to the new students, that at some point, where they’re sitting, someone was probably making a basket, sitting where they were; we’ve been here so long!”

Miss America 50th

As Miss America, Laurel traveled over 100,000 miles, was the last Miss America to headline a USO Tour to Vietnam & Thailand, cut the ribbon for Walt Disney World (Orlando), threw out the first ball at the World Series, met with President Nixon in the Oval Office and performed our National Anthem at President Nixon’s Inauguration (1973). She’s the recipient of numerous awards including, The American Academy of Achievement’s Gold Plate Award, Ohio Governor’s Award, The Tom Dooley Humanitarian Award, Zonta International President’s Leadership Award, Ohio University’s Distinguished Alumni Award, and listings in Who’s Who, IMDb and Wikipedia. Laurel is the owner and casting director for Creative Casting Services, specializing in children’s commercials and 3D animated feature films. She is currently working on two feature film projects. Laurel has enjoyed over 40 years as a stage and television actress, concert singer, and featured keynote speaker. In 2010, she took a “right angle” from her entertainment career to become a Regional Educational Coordinator for the Defense and Veterans Brain Injury Center (Department of Defense). At Camp Lejeune, NC, she worked with Marines and Sailors diagnosed with traumatic brain injuries (TBI), providing them with life coping strategies. In 2016, Laurel became a certified brain injury specialist. Today, she presents TBI programs on “Aging & Cognitive Fitness.”

In 2014, Laurel received a letter from fellow Ohio University classmate Michael Bozoukoff. As an Air Force ROTC cadet, he remembered her attendance as a Lt. Colonel with Angel Flight (a women’s Air Force support group), and while he was receiving an outstanding cadet award, they shared a moment’s gaze. Now a retired Air Force Major and widower living in Washington State, Michael reached out to reconnect, and it worked! A long-distance relationship ensued. Months of emails and phone calls turned into cross-country visits resulting in a marriage proposal at the college chapel where their eyes had met 43 years earlier. In May 2015, they were married in Columbus, Ohio, and soon after that, Michael brought his new wife to Leavenworth. Known as “The Major and Miss America,” Laurel often shares their Hallmark story as part of her testimony to patience, prayer, and perseverance. Laurel is currently working on her first book, “The Last Miss America in Vietnam.” Having traveled the United States extensively, she often is asked, “If you could live anywhere, where would it be?” Unequivocally, her answer is always Leavenworth, Washington!
