

Increased Fire Danger in Portions of Eastern Washington

OLYMPIA – The Washington State Department of Natural Resources (DNR), in cooperation with partner agencies, is implementing the following changes in burn restrictions on DNR-protected lands. Check with local jurisdictions for additional restrictions and use of residential fire pits.

Effective Friday, June 26, 2020:

- Small debris disposal fires (rule burning) are not allowed in Chelan, Foothills, Lower Basin, Lower Yakima, Methow, Upper Basin, Upper Yakima, Valley Fire Danger Rating Areas.

- No burning allowed (written burn permits issued by DNR are suspended) in Chelan, Foothills, Lower Basin, Lower Yakima, Methow, Upper Basin, Upper Yakima, Valley Fire Danger Rating Areas.

Effective Friday, June 26, 2020:

- Fire Danger will increase from low to moderate in the following Fire Danger Rating Areas: Foothills and Highlands.

- Fire Danger will increase from moderate to high in the following Fire Danger Rating Areas: Methow and Valley.

- Fire danger will remain low in the following Fire Danger Rating Areas: Kaniksu.

- Fire danger will remain moderate in the following Fire Danger Rating Areas: Chelan, Lower Yakima, Upper Basin and Upper Yakima.

- Fire danger will remain high in the following Fire Danger Rating Area: Lower Basin.

DNR is reminding residents that fireworks or incendiary devices are illegal on DNR-protected lands.

Campfires may be allowed in designated campgrounds. Always check with local campground hosts before lighting a campfire. And, always make sure campfires are completely out before leaving them unattended – if it's too hot to touch, it's too hot to leave. Counties and local jurisdiction may have additional restrictions. Daily updates on burn restrictions and Industrial Fire Precaution Levels are available at 1-800-323-BURN (2876) or on the DNR Burn Portal for fire danger at <https://burnportal.dnr.wa.gov/> and Industrial Fire Precaution Levels map <https://fortress.wa.gov/dnr/protection/ifpl/>.

DNR's wildfire mission

Led by Commissioner of Public Lands Hillary Franz, DNR is responsible for preventing and fighting wildfires on 13 million acres of private, state and tribal-owned forestlands. DNR is the state's wildfire fighting force.

City examines issues of acquiring Osborn School property

Council approved two measures with a total cost to the city not to exceed $17,116 to conduct an environmental assessment of the Osborn School and an appraisal of the property's value.

The environmental assessment will establish that there are no hazardous materials such as asbestos or lead based paint.

The Department of Ecology has already examined the soils at the site and has determined there is no evidence of contaminants such as arsenic or lead.

The school district has placed a value of $716,000 on the property but the city wants to conduct its own evaluation. Council members questioned why the city should have to pay for work they believed should be their responsibility of the seller.

City manager Ana Cortez responded that it was prudent for the city to have its own appraisal and evaluation during negotiations.

In February of 2015 voters approved a $69.5 million bond issue to replace Osborn Elementary School, Cascade High School and to remodel the Peshastin Elementary School. It was an ambitious plan.

Building a new elementary school to replace Osborn was the first item on the construction agenda. At the time it was uncertain if the new Osborn School building would be built on the current site or on a new site on Pine Street.

Ultimately, it was decided to build the new school on Pine Street and utilize the old Osborn School for Peshastin students while the elementary school in Peshastin was undergoing renovation.

During a meeting in February of this year City Councilwoman Sharon Waters reminded the school district that School District promotional materials promised to sell the Osborn site and that the city was interested in maintaining it as a green space.

A Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) was created back then that gave the city first right of refusal to purchase the property when the school district decided to sell it.

The MOU further states that if the school district bypasses the city, then the school district would owe the city $100,000 for construction of the new skate park that Cascade School District took out to make room for the new high school.

The skate park was originally built on school district property with state funds that required the city to pay back the state if it was ever closed.

While no official vote has ever been taken there is broad community support that the property be maintained for a community center and green space.

As a result of the COVID-19 restrictions on school reopening for the fall the school district is looking at the possibility that it may need to utilize some of the classroom space at Osborn in order to be able to meet social distancing rules.

Nothing has been decided on this at this point, but the issue did come up during the council discussion.

Councilwoman Waters expressed surprise that given the admitted environmental issues that the school district has cited in its estimated value that they had not discounted their estimated value to reflect that.

Councilman Jason Lundgren replied that he was surprised they were placing their estimate at only $700,000 for a property that includes over 2 1/2 acres. In response Mayor Florea expressed that its true the highest and best use value may well exceed the current school district estimate.

In other Business

The pool will remain closed for 2020 as a result of the Covid pandemic. As a result the city was looking at two employees that would be laid off. Council passed a motion to repurpose their jobs to COVID-19 education and additional city related functions. Half of the $20,000 funding would be taken from Lodging tax.

Transportation Element Update

Council approved a motion to sign a Professional Services agreement with Fehr & Peers to update the Transportation Element for a fee not to exceed $60,000.

The work includes incorporating the 2018 Parking Study, US 2 Upper Valley Corridor Study and peak hour travel in the 20 year Transportation Improvement Plan.

Parking Meters

Council approved the signing of an agreement with IntegriTech for an amount not to exceed $10,000 for engineering and consulting related to parking meter installation.

Whitman Street improvements

Council approved a motion to call for bids to improve pavements on Whitman Street from Woodward Street to Evans.

School Board Meeting: Retirements, Budget Home Link and Policies

By MARLENE FARRELL

The school board meeting on June 22nd over Zoom began with a retirement celebration of several district employees, including Laura Gonzales, ALPS paraprofessional, Lori Offutt, CHS secretary, Helen Hoper, PD librarian, James Klarich, CHS math teacher, and Bob Fredrick, bus driver. Superintendent Tracey Beckendorf-Edou spoke of how the normal celebration would include handshakes, hugs, cake and photos.

While this celebration needed to be virtual, she expressed the extreme gratitude which she and board felt toward these staff for their years of service.

Laura Gonzales attended the virtual meeting and mentioned her 21 years of employment with the district, working in many capacities over the years at the high school, middle school, both elementary schools and the Discovery School.

With a tenure in Tonasket before that, Gonzales had an impressive career of 32 years in education.

Next the school board heard an update about the Home Link program from Terry Muscutt, who oversees the program.

The current enrollment of 37 students is expected to be about the same in the 2020-21 school year.

Home Link received accolades from the state this year for excellence in language arts curriculum and also attendance.

Looking to the future, the Home Link program hopes to grow its outdoor education options, enhance its math curriculum and utilize online materials more.

The biggest change is that teacher MaryLou Bailey resigned and is moving away. Bailey built the Home Link program, which has impacted many local families. "I'm so grateful for the trust given to me to make this happen," Bailey said.

Board member Judy Derpack, whose granddaughter attended Home Link, praised Bailey, saying "Your innovation and creativity were exceptional."

Dwight Remick, District Executive Director of Finance and Operations, gave a budget presentation. There will be a public hearing about the budget on July 20, before the regularly scheduled board meeting, and the board will adopt the budget during their regular session.

Remick is tackling the challenge of budgeting for a "normal" fall, but also must build in contingency plans, so the district can react quickly to evolving state mandates.

One consideration is that enrollment projection is for 36 less students than last year.

Remick showed a list of programs and their likely changes in expenditure.

The most notable changes include a $200,000 reduction in State Handicapped.

"We are re-aligning staffing to be more efficient but still meet the needs of students," Remick said.

Vocational expenditure will be down $65,000 due to changes in staff and reduced equipment purchases.

Food services will go up $20,000 to cover changes needed for health safety, including more time to prepare individually packaged food items instead of self-serve.

Transportation will go down $40,000 because the district does not need to buy a new bus this year and that is the allocation for extra features required for buses that travel in mountainous terrain versus city driving, which is what the state funds.

Spending of CARES Act funds of $320,000 is still being determined.

"Preliminary information is it will support personal protective equipment, expenses related to distance learning and other expenses caused by COVID-19," said Remick.

The fund balance must be over 8.5% by board policy. Remick will work to put all the budgetary information into a F195 that is reviewed by the North Central Educational Services District, broken down into budgets for the general fund, capital projects, debt service, ASB and transportation, with a summary of projections for the next four years – a monumental task of number crunching and forecasting.

As for transportation, Beckendorf-Edou shared that the health guidelines will be manageable with the district's bus fleet.

Students will likely fill the buses from the back forward, wearing masks and leaving spaces, but allowing for siblings to sit near each other.

The bigger transportation challenge is related to a potential shortage of drivers who are not high risk in terms of COVID-19.

In other news: The board approved the hire of Elisa Vasquez for IRMS assistant secretary position.

Policy review and approval was extensive. Among them, the policy on international exchange students was updated for the first time in fourteen years.

Beckendorf-Edou said they

Perfect timing for education, tax reform

The Coronavirus pandemic may be the perfect time for the United States to embark on a long overdue reform of the education system, both public and private.

It is simply because this is the first time in modern history, even predating the Spanish Influenza pandemic of 100 years ago, that the country can make an honest appraisal of the inherent value of forcing kids to endure Kindergarten through 12th grade learning while schools are inactive nationwide.

Why should taxpayers without kids in school be forced to pay tax based on a school district's levies?

Why should those taxpayers with children younger than 5-years-old be forced to do the same?

I would propose a "pay to play" program wherein each family is taxed by the school district they live in based on the children actually in public school and only if they are in a public school.

APPLES TO APPLES
Gary Bégin

Those with parochial or private school enrollments would be exempted from paying taxes for the public system.

Millions of our children and grandchildren are currently being home schooled or they are hooked into the internet to access school work.

Children in households that cannot afford computers can utilize the public library or school district computers.

This idea is a "twofer" as it makes the public library system meaningful again and justifies its use of tax dollars as well as eliminates any special stipends for "poor" families without computers.

It's a win-win because the constant need for newer, bigger, modernized public schools will be put on hold and some valuable buildings and land may actually be placed back into real estate inventories to be used by business and community enterprises.

School Districts, as do many special districts with taxing authority, have the bad habit of using folks who own homes as the never-ending deep pocket for imposing new and always bigger levies for public schools.

It is obvious people attempting to realize their own American dream are being punished for being successful by those who think everything ought to be free, even for those who contribute nothing to the common good.

Our Capitalist Democracy should not be imposing taxation without representation on homeowners each time it thinks it needs more money for public schools when many people who own homes have no kids in school or anything to do with the system where the money is being spent.

Nor do I believe taxpayers who actually work have the time, energy or desire to be forced to attend school board meetings just to make sure the district they are in isn't merely stealing money for nefarious reasons – like the building of a seven million dollar "plastic" football field.

Sports may only be a minuscule part of the overall budget, but not every child or parent gives a rat's pittance about carrying a pigskin as if it were the Ark of the Covenant.

To summarize, no tax for those without kids in public school. Home schooled children need only pass the appropriate tests to graduate and attend whatever college will accept them. Ditto for private school kids. Focus education on the three R's like they used to be - reading, writing and arithmetic. Add in the sciences and you almost have STEM.

Free the homeowners from taxation without representation. Free us from the bondage of forever paying for public schools. Free the millions of dollars being wasted on so-called "free" education.

Freedom isn't free, but neither is the lie of free public education. We need to reform education and free millions of dollars across this great nation for other uses.

I can't end this column without also mentioning vocational training. Upon reaching 8th Grade, students, via their parents, must decide on vocational training or traditional "book" learning (or perhaps a hybrid of both) with an 11th Grade graduation in either case. Eliminating 12th grade would save millions in every school district. In our hyper-competitive society, giving the young a faster start in achieving career and personal goals is vital.

Once graduated the choice is simple: Industry sponsored apprenticeship programs, work, college or military. College is reserved for those with proven aptitudes, not as a God-given right. The military trains people and pays them at the same time - a win-win.

Apprenticeship programs typically issue a certificate, which in many cases can be used on job applications nationwide.

Of course the military option is my choice. It shows a selflessness, a patriotism and a chance to travel the world that no other option can offer.

The only problem is: How much do you love your country? In the words of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, our 35th President of these United States, Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country.

In all honesty, this decision could cost your life.

Guest Opinion

I was speaking with my neighbor the other day, whose age makes him both wise and at high risk should he contract COVID-19.

I was wearing a mask – he was not. "Yeah, I don't do that," he said. I thought, "He must not understand how the COVID-19 virus is transmitted, because if he did, I think he would wear a mask." He went on to say, "The science around this changes all of the time, so who are you supposed to trust?"

As a scientist, I am ok with some uncertainty as we learn more about diseases.

For instance, it was believed that ulcers were caused by stress – now we know that they are largely an infectious disease. It's the nature of scientific discovery that our "mental model" of how the world works evolves over time.

The nature of how we understand COVID-19 is continuously evolving, which is normal and correct - and clearly frustrating.

When the pandemic began, scientists believed it was similar to influenza.

We know a great deal about influenza. The last great pandemic involved influenza. It was a natural place to start.

Influenza is spread by droplets, and COVID-19 is spread by droplets, so we deployed influenza-type strategies of hand washing and hygiene, wiping down surfaces, social distancing, etc.

When that wasn't enough, we used more draconian measures that included stay home orders and closing all but essential businesses.

Now we understand how COVID-19 is NOT like influenza; let me explain.

COVID-19 seems to fit the "eighty-twenty rule" of biology. 80% of the disease is caused by 20% of the transmission. Here's how that 20% works with this virus.

Imagine a keyhole, and only a specific shape can fit through that hole.

The COVID-19 virus has a specific shape and must land on a specific keyhole to pass through the lining of your nose, mouth, or lungs and into your bloodstream.

These keyholes are spread out randomly. So, it takes multiple hits for a virus to infect you.

If you are peppered with enough virus, eventually one will land on the keyhole, pass through and cause an infection.

The total volume of virus that peppers your system is the key. How much time you are in contact with an infected person and the time sharing their air determines if you will contract COVID-19.

Both COVID-19 and influenza are transmitted via droplets. But unlike influenza, the droplets that remain suspended in the air are what matter most.

Influenza is all about big droplets that land on surfaces, which we touch, and then carry up to our mouths, or eyes. COVID-19 is about small droplets that remain floating in the air that we share.

Imagine your tonsils as the breeding ground of the COVID-19 virus. Anything that pushes air past the tonsils will collect and expel virus.

Singing, yelling, breathing hard, coughing, all will generate large droplets filled with virus.

Talking or just breathing release small virus-containing droplets. The big droplets contain lots of virus but fall to surfaces within 6 feet – and yes, you could contract the virus from those surfaces, but it is difficult.

Very small droplets float around for a long time, but don't contain many viruses, and aren't that infectious.

So, what about medium sized droplets? Medium sized droplets carry medium volumes of virus.

And here is the key: medium sized droplets float around long enough to start to evaporate off their water. As the water evaporates, they turn into small droplets that can float around all day.

But instead of carrying just a small volume of virus, these dried-out medium-sized droplets contain a medium volume of virus. They become concentrated "super-infectors."

Outside, humans don't share much air. Floating droplets dissipate, and we are all pretty safe. Inside, with minimal air movement, we share a lot of air, and receive multiple hits from virus-laden droplets.

Thus, carpooling with extended family for celebrations like birthday parties, or even gathering in someone's living room for a memorial service, with singing and sobbing, are more dangerous. This is why wearing a mask is so important.

I must confess that at first the whole universal masking thing made no sense to me.

As a physician I have been trained to use a mask in a very specific way to avoid transmitting something like Tuberculosis from one patient room to another when working in a hospital. Universal masking violates my medical training. So how could it work?

In China and Italy and New York City – all of the hotspots – the curves finally started to bend only after universal masking was imposed. Why?

Masks, even cloth masks, retain the biggest droplets and those nasty medium sized droplets.

Only the small droplets that aren't very infectious can get through.

When an infected person wears a mask, and remember that you are most infectious before you even start to feel sick, the total volume of virus floating around in the air that we share is dramatically reduced.

Because 80% of infections come from droplets floating around in the air, the simple act of wearing a mask is enough to stop the pandemic spread. How I wish we had known that in March.

It turns out that in COVID-19, masking is the next best thing to a vaccine. And probably nobody reading this will receive a vaccine before June of 2021.

Many say, "You cannot make me wear a mask." That is true, but why wouldn't you want to?

You wear a mask to protect those around you, to beat the pandemic, to keep the economy open. Just like not smoking in restaurants or speed limits – they exist as public health interventions that make sense.

I hope with a better understanding of how COVID-19 is transmitted, wearing a mask will make sense too.

Reminders:

- Don't stop washing your hands and don't start touching your face. You can still contract COVID-19 from droplets on surfaces.

- 80% of COVID-19 appears to be transmitted through the air - the air you share.

- Masking during COVID-19 is the next best thing to a vaccine.

Obituary

Mark Gunderson

October 31, 1964 – June 11, 2020

then moved to Leavenworth, WA., where he grew up and attended Cascade High school.

After school he worked in logging with his step father Nyal Avery. Mark also worked with Mt. Skyliners, and H&D Logging.

He started his own roofing and logging company G&V Contractors with his (ex) wife Angie Gunderson and business partner Kenny Vandegraff which they operated for 10 years.

After logging diminished, Mark worked at Bethlehem Construction and then later at Gebbers Farms in Brewster, WA., where he had been working the last 14 years.

Mark's hobbies included hunting, snowmobiling, motorcycling, shooting, trips to Alaska and hanging out with all his close buddies. He was also a Sunday school teacher and adored his church kids.

His generous spirit led him to open his home to many relatives and friends to live with him as needed. He will be deeply missed.

Mark is preceded in death by his parents Ruby and Jack Gunderson, and siblings Jack, Timothy, Susie, Danny, and Carla. He is survived by his wife Amy Erickson and stepson Charles Snyder. Mark is also survived by his siblings Helen and Tina and David Gunderson and his stepfather Nyal Avery. There will be no funeral service at this time.

Leaving a Legacy Gift without updating your Will

By BEN MCNAIR,
FINANCIAL PLANNER,
DRAGGOO FINANCIAL GROUP

Looking for a method of leaving a legacy gift without spending the time and energy of updating your will or estate plan?

Look no further than your qualified retirement plan (IRAs, 401(k)s, 403(b)s, etc.) or permanent life insurance policies.

These assets both allow the owner to designate a beneficiary (or multiple beneficiaries) that bypasses the probate process and takes precedent over wills or other estate planning documents, and updating a beneficiary is as easy as requesting a beneficiary change form from your financial or insurance advisor.

RETIREMENT PLAN

For many of my clients their IRA is one of their largest liquid assets.

They've spent years contributing to them and enjoying the tax benefits they provide.

Many of my clients also find that, once they've reached retirement, they are not as dependent on the income the IRA can provide than they thought they would be, and simply withdraw the minimums required each year after reaching age 70 ½.

In many cases this means there will be money left over in the IRA once the owner passes away.

These assets can be passed on to the next generation, but at a cost, as IRA assets are taxable to a beneficiary and may face additional estate taxes depending on the size of the owner's overall estate.

By making a qualified charity the beneficiary of an IRA, the owner can deduct the amount from their overall estate, and the balance will pass to the charity free of taxation.

This allows the IRA owner to not only make an impact on their community, but also gives them the flexibility to pass on other, more tax efficient assets to their heirs.

This same strategy can also be applied to qualified and non-qualified deferred annuity contracts.

LIFE INSURANCE

Permanent life insurance policies are another asset that can easily be updated to create a legacy gift. Life insurance is put into place as a form of protection.

Policies are purchased to protect our families from a premature death where the death benefit is intended to provide income replacement and the liquidity to pay off debts.

If you have had the good fortune to live a long life and find you no longer need the insurance policies for their original intent, updating the beneficiary to your charity of choice will provide a legacy gift at your passing.

Life insurance death benefits are generally paid tax-free, and this would certainly be true if a charitable organization were the beneficiary of the policy.

It is important to note that the owner of a qualified retirement plan, deferred annuity contract, or life insurance policy may name more than one beneficiary.

If the owner would still like some money to be passed on to their heirs, they can name both the heirs and a charity.

While these beneficiary updates are as simple as completing a form or two, an owner should still consider any estate planning that may already be in place and ensure the changes would still coordinate with that existing planning.

Remember that your named beneficiary can be as broad or as specific as you choose.

The Community Foundation of NCW manages hundreds of charitable funds that benefit specific nonprofits or scholarships, general "fields of interest," and of course endowed funds that will give back forever.

Skin care during Covid-19

Ahh... It feels SO GOOD to take off my mask. With COVID, I wear mine at least 8 hours every day. Putting it on as I cross the parking lot to the clinic to start work, I only take it off for lunch or short breaks. To protect my family, patients, and co-workers, I always wear a mask whenever I step out of my car until I arrive home again.

I tend to have dry hands since I wash them frequently and thoroughly at work. Since wearing a mask during this COVID pandemic, my hands started feeling more sensitive and dry. When I asked my nursing co-workers if they had noticed anything different about their hands, most of them nodded their heads. They agreed that their hands had seemed drier and more irritated recently.

Our hands started getting drier because we were sanitizing our hands more often.

In addition to washing our hands with soap and water or using alcohol-based gels at work, we sanitized our hands OUTSIDE of work and errands at the grocery store and other public places.

Sanitizing your hands can dry out your skin, whether by washing with soap and water, using hand sanitizer gels, or disinfecting hand wipes. Washing your hands causes more skin dryness than using soap and water strip away the natural oils on the surface of your skin. Using alcohol-based hand sanitizer gel or wipes will also dry out your skin due to the contact with alcohol, which is drying.

How can we combat dry skin?

We can ease our dry skin by adding moisture to it, both inside and outside.

Drinking more water helps ease dry skin. Since I began wearing a mask all day at work, I had stopped drinking water during the day because I couldn't do it without first taking off my mask.

The first thing I needed to do is to start drinking water again. Now I make it a habit to have less coffee and more plain water. I sip water on my way to and from work and drink on every break. As long as I drink most of my water by 5 pm, I don't have to get up in the middle of the night.

I have always used hand lotion frequently, but my dry hands needed MORE.

Moisturizers can help relieve dry skin from the outside. Lotions, creams, and ointments work by softening your skin cells and by trapping moisture in the top layer of your skin.

Your body loses water all day long through sweat and evaporation. Your body continuously gives off water vapor through your skin's pores, not just when you sweat. The thicker and "greasier" your moisturizer, the better it blocks this ongoing evaporation of water from your skin and traps water in your skin, moisturizing it.

Moisturizers are available as lotions, creams, ointments, or "body butter". Lotions are more liquid and less moisturizing than creams. The thicker and more "greasy" the moisturizer, the more it traps moisture. Ointments or body butters relieve dry skin the best.

Moisturizers often contain compounds that encourage water to stay on your skin like lactic acid, salicylic acid, glycerin, urea, and ammonium lactate.

Moisturizers containing ceramides can be especially helpful. Ceramides are found in high concentrations in healthy skin and lower concentrations in inflamed or dry skin. One moisturizer featuring these ceramides is CeraVe®.

One Important Tip: When applying a moisturizer after sanitizing with an alcohol-based gel or wipe, let your skin dry completely first. Otherwise, instead of trapping water next to your skin, you'll trap alcohol, creating skin irritation and dryness instead!

For me, drinking more water and changing from lotion to CeraVe® cream soothed my dry hands. What about you?

Here are 4 Tips for Relieving Dry Skin:

1. Keep your body well hydrated.

If you drink most of your fluids in the early part of the day, you'll be less likely to get up at night.

2. Shower and bathe with warm, not hot water.

Using hot water encourages water loss from the skin. Bathing or showering with lukewarm water is better to avoid drying out your skin.

3. Pat skin almost dry before applying moisturizer.

Apply moisturizer to damp skin within 10 minutes of your bath or shower or immediately after washing your hands.

4. When sanitizing with alcohol gel, let hands dry FIRST before applying moisturizer.

After using alcohol-based sanitizing gels, let your hands dry completely before applying any moisturizer to avoid trapping alcohol against your skin.
