

CITY OF LEAVENWORTH

City prioritizes planning commission docket

By BILL FORHAN
PUBLISHER

City Council set the priorities for this year's planning committee at its Jan 28 meeting.

Part of that effort was to assess the priority and public interest in the projects the committee will be reviewing during 2020.

High interest items included on the docket were Transportation, Powerlines, the Osborn School property and parking.

A lower public interest was assigned to Housing issues but it is a major priority for Mayor Carl Florea.

The transportation element includes a review of Peak Traffic as requested by the Friends of Leavenworth who challenged the original study as flawed.

A review of the Parking Study findings, a review of the Corridor study findings and updating the 20 year Transportation Improvement Plan.

Triggered by issues with traffic congestion during Christmas Lighting the Friends of Leavenworth have expressed concerns about too many tourists during festivals.

They have also criticized city and Chamber of Commerce studies on peak traffic as too focused on mid-week as opposed to weekend traffic.

Following pressure from Friends of Leavenworth the city agreed to include this as a city sponsored issue in 2019.

The Corridor Study is closely related to the issue of traffic congestion. It arises from arguments that much of the traffic that comes through Leavenworth on Highway 2 is not necessarily coming specifically to Leavenworth.

Highway 2 is one of two major routes to the Puget Sound Metropolitan area.

Also, a good number of people coming through on Highway 2 are on their way to or from other areas to the east like Chelan.

There is a public meeting on the conclusions and possible solutions to Highway 2 traffic congestion scheduled for 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Cascade High School on February 13.

Initial statements from the State Department of Transportation is there are no silver bullets that will fix the problem, but they are suggesting a traffic circle at the Icicle Junction intersection.

The Parking study concluded that there are times when there is inadequate parking available.

Recommended solutions include limiting the amount of time people remain parked in an available space.

To address that problem the parking committee has recommended installation of parking meters downtown.

The city has purchased the old Department of Transportation Lot on the West end of town and parking has been added to the Link Park and Ride behind Safeway.

There are currently no plans to build a parking garage.

The Power Line issue involves discussions with Chelan County Public Utilities about their policies regarding underground versus above ground power lines. There was some debate in the last year regarding expanded sub-station needs. Where and when to add capacity.

Some questions have been raised about improving the scenic appearance of town by putting the lines underground.

The Osborn Property refers to a question about what happens to the old Osborn School building now that the School District has replaced it with the Alpine Lakes Elementary School.

Questions have been raised by community members who have suggested it be acquired by the city and converted to a community center.

At this point the School District has not decided what it will do with the property.

While it might be of high community interest there are no substantial plans in place of how or what would be required to make it useful to the community as a community center.

In other business:

The Council approved a measure to allow the City Attorney to attend City Council meetings by telephone.

Prior to this the City Attorney was required to physically attend all City Council meetings.

With this measure the City Attorney will review the Council Agenda on Friday and decide if he needs to be physically present for any of the items on the agenda that could require a legal opinion.

While issues could come up through public comments that are not on the agenda, they can be tabled for discussion at a later time if necessary.

Council approved the Mayor signing a contract to hire a search firm to replace City Administrator Joel Walinski.

The contract is with Prothman the same firm the city used to hire Walinski.

Costs for the recruitment effort are $16,000 plus expenses for travel, advertising and candidate presentation materials and background checks.

In the city's financial reports for 2019 the city took in $17,106.9 million and expended $15,783.7 million.

Complete reports are available on the city's web site under Council Packet.

Kodiak wrestlers complete regular season

The Kodiak wrestlers wrapped up their league competition last week in East Wenatchee. There were 16 teams at the tournament.

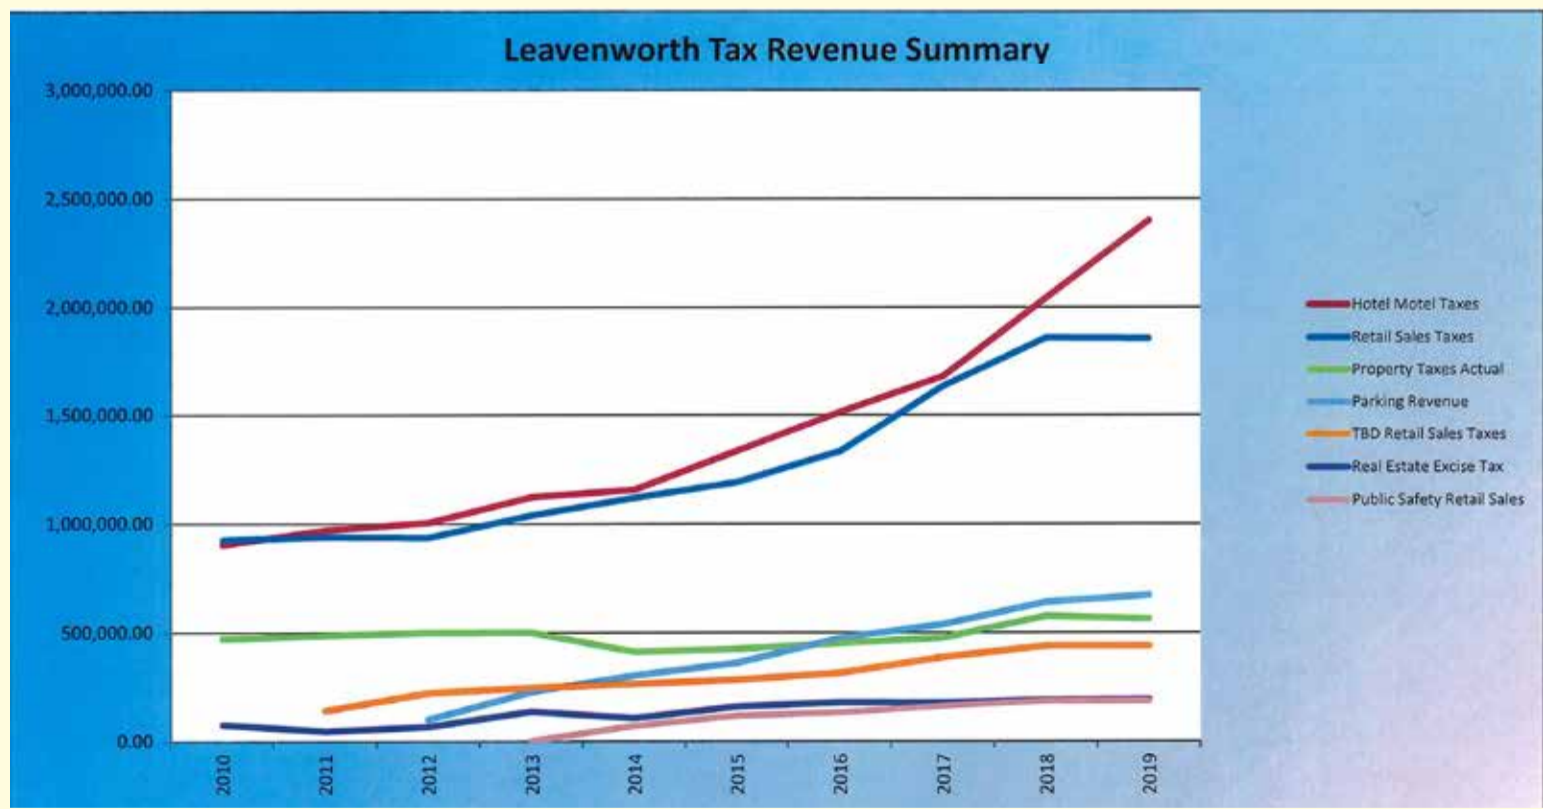

Coach Sandoval reports they ended up 8th as a team and had 2 guys in the final. "We had the following guys placing: Juan Martinez placed 2nd at 113 lbs, Will Burgess placed 6th at 113 lbs, Cole Warman placed 5th at 182 lbs, Spencer Droic placed 3rd at 195 lbs, Hunter Reinhart placed 1st at 285 lbs."

'Death to America' by bugs, not blunt force trauma

Iran, China, Russia, North Korea and who knows what other entities or countries want us to all die.

They are jealous of what we have and are too lazy and greedy at the upper echelons to work hard to get it for themselves.

So they will employ two types of "bugs" against us – and we ain't talkin' boll weevils.

First will be the cyberbug spread at the speed of the Internet via all the Macs & PCs out there. Then add in all the emails, chatrooms, Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, LinkedIn, blogs, websites, etc.

As far as the cyberbug is concerned, anybody can learn the art and sleight of hand required for hacking and for inserting viruses of varying magnitude. Then the biological kind that masquerades as the flu will be spread purposely or not, but it will be spread by a combination of worldwide travel of millions of people every year as well as international commerce.

Back in the day, rats and other critters brought by ship all types of nasty surprises for the colonists and the Indigenous Peoples.

GARY BÉGIN
Managing Editor

Besides disease, some critters got loose and have been an issue ever since. Take the feral pig population that has, over the last two centuries or so, produced huge herds of huge pigs, mostly all over the south.

Then there are the various snails, birds, reptiles like boas in the Everglades and weeds and trees and flowers of all kinds that have decimated the native ecology.

While most Americans are happy to invest (pay taxes) to maintain the strongest military force in the history of the world, the potential harm to our way of life will not come from warfare, or as I call it, "blunt force trauma," but from clever and opportunistic terrorists and failed nation states that still want to play with the big boys.

Libya comes to mind as well as Palestine, ISIS, Syria, the Taliban and hosts of other power grabbing entities.

To be certain, traditional war machines will still be the norm, but incredible amounts of financial and health damage can be done to cripple our culture via these two types of aforementioned bugs.

I envision cyber-attacks and biological/ecological attacks will be employed to "soften" our defenses and then the surprise physical attacks, such as infrastructure bombings, will take place.

Our computers controlling most of our lives will be hacked and then millions will become infected from viruses and bacteria, thus killing hundreds of thousands if not millions of people.

A "simple" thing like messing with the busses, subways, street traffic lights and 911 systems in a few of our major cities would cause massive chaos.

Add in the hacking of all control towers in the hub airline cities and perhaps the water flow from every major dam.

Rural areas will not be immune as the hackers will make sure ATM's of every bank get compromised.

I am far from the first to mention this scenario because we have all heard of the survivalist, apocalypse bunker-inclined individuals and groups waiting for the End Times.

I am not a soothsayer, but it might be a good idea to stock up on Skippy peanut butter, powdered milk and Bumble Bee Tuna.

Learning to purify water and raising a few yardbirds (chickens) and growing some potatoes would also help.

Get a shovel, some guns & ammo and a few dogs with big teeth and an attitude.

Rep. Goehner's legislative update: Constitutional rights, clean energy, water rights and low carbon fuel standards

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

Monday, (Jan. 27) put us at a quarter of the way through the legislative session. In 15 days we have seen almost 1600 bills introduced – 863 in the House. Keep in mind, those are just bills introduced this year. Bills introduced last year are also considered alive or eligible to be brought up for public hearings, debate, floor action, etc. While most the bills will not see the light of day, it gives you an idea of the volume of legislation being introduced.

Constitutional rights

Week two of the legislative session featured a number of gun bills up for a public hearing in the House Civil Rights and Judiciary Committee.

Many of you are strong supporters of the Second Amendment and interested in the gun legislation that has been introduced this session. I also have concerns that many of these bills may violate our constitutional rights.

While the public hearings were last week, it is not too late to share any concerns, comments or questions about the bills. It should be noted that these are just the House bills. The Senate has the same (companion) or similar bills as well.

Clean energy

I recently introduced legislation that builds on the clean energy theme of Central Washington. House Bill 2825 would provide a tax incentive for those who use oil-free hydroelectric turbines. Oil-free turbines are used in Europe. With the proper incentive, this emerging technology has the potential to enhance our clean energy hydropower system. The bill has strong bipartisan support. I am hopeful for a public hearing in the House Finance Committee in the near future.

Water rights

I have also introduced legislation, House Bill 2866, that would prohibit transfers of water rights out of their original water resource inventory area (WRIA). We want to ensure we are leaving enough water in our (WRIs) so we are not adversely impacting irrigation and agriculture along with rural economies by transferring or selling water rights.

The legislation would also provide more local control of water banking. The loss or purchase of water rights in Washington state has gained national attention. Last fall, The Seattle Times published the article: Wall Street spends millions to buy up Washington state water.

Low carbon fuel standard passes House

Today, (Wednesday) the state House of Representatives passed the Low Carbon Fuel Standard (LCFS), House Bill 1110, aimed at reducing the carbon intensity of transportation fuels by authorizing the state Department of Ecology (DOE) to create a clean fuels program "by rule." The bill passed by a vote of 52-44, with all Republicans and five Democrats voting "no."

This bill would drive up the cost of gas and goods while doing very little to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. I opposed this bill for a number of reasons:

- It could increase the cost of gas by 57 cents per gallon and diesel 63 cents per gallon, and not generate any new revenue for transportation infrastructure.

- It puts a financial burden on those who can least afford it and impact rural families who have to drive long distances to work, school and medical appointments.

- It would hurt our economy. The unintended consequences for businesses such as increased shipping costs would put us at a competitive disadvantage. The Puget Sound Regional Transportation Fuels Analysis Final Report states this would result in job loss in Washington.

- Finally, voters in Washington state have defeated similar proposals at the ballot box.

Instead of Olympia ignoring the will of the voters again and passing a law that will negatively impact our rural families, greatly impact transportation costs and not improve our transportation system, let's find a solution that will work for all sides.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Visit Leavenworth Car-free

Installing parking meters downtown is spending funds for an outcome that does not solve the basic problem of too many cars for a small town like ours. Visitors came here to shop, dine and walk leisurely and to escape the urban/suburban environments they left behind. They don't want the hassle of dealing with meters on their vacation days and will likely push deeper into our residential areas.

If the goal is to reduce number of cars on high-volume weekend days, how can we think out-of-the box to attain that? After spending $376,000 in up-front costs, parking meters will mainly just cycle cars around our town, from one place to another, but faster.

Let's not repeat the same mistakes of many other places, always trying to make room for ever more cars in an endless stream. Why not solve the problem by promoting, on high volume weekends – "Visit Leavenworth car-free"! Our visitors want something unique, fun, hip, something they can be proud of doing for the environment and that helps our town, moving forward – "Car-free is carefree".

The initial costs would be low and this could be implemented as needed, starting with high-volume weekends and extended incrementally over time. We would need to entice visitors to participate by offering discounts - for lodging, meals, shopping; we could further brainstorm and plan for more rewards and goodies.

Benefits could be immense: besides lower costs, a much less stacking traffic on Highway 2, less traffic managing services, increased safety from fewer accidents, much less driving-and-drinking, drastically reducing air pollution. And for tourists, no worrying about snow tires or chains in winter, no navigating mountain passes and two-lane country roads. Instead, they arrive fresh and relaxed.

What would be needed to make this happen? It would mean engaging the whole town, working together in coordination. Our immediate blueprint takes us back to how Leavenworth independently transformed itself into a Bavarian themed town not so long ago. We can do the same, we can choose to keep that lovely, fragile quality by asking visitors to come car-free.

"Leavenworth Car-free" would create many opportunities for small businesses to serve visitors who came without cars. We would need – immediate, free or low-cost transportation from the train station and bus drop-off locations to motels; free or low-cost trolleys to get around town; private pickup/delivery services to hiking and climbing areas, swimming holes, birding areas; these services are already available at tubing drop off points for those who float the river.

We would need to coordinate and work together with a bus charter company for convenient weekend schedules for visitors and with Amtrak which runs both trains and buses.

If we can imagine all this and even more support services, the benefits are huge. Are we willing to work towards a low-tech, inexpensive solution? Instead of a higher-cost one that favors ever more traffic, more expenses and hassles for residents and tourists and comes with few guarantees?

Let's choose to implement "Visit Leavenworth Car-free"!

CCPW Weekly Road Maintenance Update: Feb. 3

Spring Pruning Season: With pruning season underway, Chelan County reminds all orchardists to watch for fruit trees that make road signs less visible or obstruct a driver's ability to see an approaching vehicle at an intersection.
 Trees should be pruned back from road signs 3 to 5 feet.
 When pruning, take into consideration future growth of the trees as the growing season progresses.
 At intersections, trees should be pruned back to allow approaching motorists to see at least 80 feet ahead of them in both directions.
 This allows drivers to see approaching vehicles, bicyclists and pedestrians and to react in a timely, safe manner.
 We thank you for working with us to keep the public safe on our roadways.

Ravits recognized

SUBMITTED PHOTO
Principal Ala'lima-Daley congratulates Molly Ravits on her National Certification.

SUBMITTED BY CASCADE SCHOOL DISTRICT
Cascade School District would like to recognize Molly Ravits as the most recent recipient of her National Board Teaching Certification.

Cascade School District (CSD) was honored this school year as a National Board Accomplished District, with the highest percentage of National Board Certified Teachers in Eastern Washington.

The process of obtaining National Board Certification allows teachers to "hone their practice, showcase their talent in the classroom and demonstrate their dedication to their students and their profession".

Molly Ravits stated that pursuing board certification allowed her to analyze and reflect on her teaching in a deliberate and specific way, which strengthened her practice.

The National Board organization has a huge focus on equity, which is core to her teaching philosophy, especially for those underrepresented in the science field; therefore, the work also validated the type of work she was already prioritizing.

In addition, she wanted to join the ranks of all the other amazing teachers in the Cascade School District who are also National Board certified.

Molly was honored for her achievement at the Cascade School Board meeting on January 13, 2020.

House Page Rosario

SUBMITTED BY REP. GOEHRNER

Last week I had the honor of sponsoring Giovanni Rosario, a student at Cascade High School, as a page in the state House of Representatives. It was great to have him working on the Capitol campus.

Giovanni is the son of Alfredo Rosario and Ivonne Trujillo Martinez. He likes to ride bikes and talk politics with his teachers. Pages work on a culminating project and write a piece of legislation, then present the bill in a mock committee hearing to fellow pages.

If your son or daughter is interested in paging, please do not hesitate to contact my office or check out the website for more information: House page program.

Cascade Actors' Guild presents Brigadoon

SUBMITTED BY MANDI WICKLINE

"Brigadoon" will be performed Feb. 6 through 8 at the Cascade High School Auditorium at 7p.m.

Join us for this classic musical, filled with dancing, and a timeless love story, performed by some of the Valley's most talented students!

Brigadoon tells the tale of a Scottish town that vanishes at the end of the day and reappears 100 years later.

Originally produced on Broadway in 1947, this well-loved musical has received several revivals over the years.

With songs like "Almost Like Being in Love" and "From this Day On", Brigadoon is known for its love songs as well as its upbeat, elaborate chorus numbers.

Director Mandi Wickline cites the suspenseful "Chase" as her favorite number in the production because the action onstage reflects the music so powerfully.

Those familiar with the 1954 film may expect a show full of tapdancing and ballet, as Gene Kelly tapped his way through "Go Home with Bonnie Jean" and Cyd Cherise graced "Heather on the Hill".

Though we focus more on traditional Scottish dancing in this production, audiences will enjoy choreography by Briar Hoper, local performer and owner of Edelweiss Dance Academie.

Taking a great deal of care with the music, Band Director James Mitsuyasu features both student and adult musicians in our small, solid orchestra.

Village Voices' Jennifer Sidebottom coaches our vocalists to maximize their potential in some of musical theater's most beautiful melodies.

Ted Fredericks has created a lovely set, and Lindsay Breidenthal's scenic art is fantastic.

Rounded out by beautiful costumes by Barbara Roberts, "Brigadoon" is a feast for the eyes that you won't want to miss!

Tommy Albright is played by Landon Davies and Fiona is played by Annie Bowles. Comic leads Jeff Douglas and Meg Brockie are played by seniors Tagen Mathews and Sarah Butruille.

The role of the schoolmaster, Mother Lundie, is played by senior Emma Skylstad, and several other 8th through 12th graders complete this dynamic cast.

"One thing about our students at Cascade is that these kids are really good people," Director Mandi Wickline said.

"So many of them help with the production throughout the process. They are very well-rounded, kind, and hard-working."

Tickets are $12 for adults and $5 for seniors, students, and kids under 12.

Cascade Auditorium is located at 10190 Chumstick Highway in Leavenworth.

The Washington Outdoors Report

Fishing, Politics And A Big Show

Razor clamming at Ocean Shore.

STORY BY JOHN KRUSE

This week we'll share the latest fishing reports from around the state, check in with the legislature about a bill of interest to outdoors enthusiasts who use our state parks and with Ed Sullivan in mind, tell you about "a really big show!"

Fishing Reports:

STEELHEAD:

Bob Kratzer with Anglers Guide Service in Forks reports steelhead fishing has picked up in several Olympic Peninsula streams.

The problem at this time of year is rain, especially heavy rain that blows out the rivers and makes them difficult to fish.

Your best bet (in terms of finding fishable water) is the Sol Duc, which clears up faster than other streams.

If you are without a boat and looking for good bank access the Bogachiel is your best bet.

There are still a few hatchery steelhead around but from now to April you'll primarily be catching and releasing wild fish.

SALMON:

Blackmouth salmon fishing in Puget Sound Marine Areas 10, 11, 12 and 13 remains lackluster at best.

That's the kindest thing that can be said based on recent creel checks that have found most anglers going home with nothing in their coolers.

Marine Area 7 (the San Juan Islands) opens on February 1st and anglers are hoping for better luck there.

STURGEON:

Catch and keep sturgeon fishing has been open since January 1st in the Bonneville, The Dalles and John Day Dam pools.

Recent creel checks by the Oregon Dept. of Fish and Wildlife show little pressure on these fish.

Bank anglers have struggled but the few boat anglers interviewed have done very well, catching and releasing a good number of non-legal fish before keeping the one legal fish each angler can take home.

There is a quota for sturgeon in each of these pools.

As of January 26th, 53% of the quota had been kept in the Bonneville pool, 72% in The Dalles pool and 30.5% in the John Day pool.

TROUT:

Pete Corbett at the Creekside Angler Fly Shop in Issaquah recommends heading east across the Cascades to catch trout right now.

Corbett says the Yakima River can fish very well in February and anglers have been catching larger trout too in the last couple of years. Better still, the river is not crowded at all this month. Another good bet is Rocky Ford Creek near Ephrata.

This clear, spring fed creek has large trout known to be wise to the offerings of fly anglers.

Try fishing nymphs or streamers on these special regulation rivers for success.

CLAMS:

Razor clam digging is open on several Southwest Washington beaches in the days ahead and some of these digs will actually feature low tides occurring in daylight so you can leave the headlamps at home!

Here are the details for this week as far as dates, open beaches, and low tides:

- February 6, Thursday, 4:40 pm -0.3 feet; Long Beach, Twin Harbors, Mocrocks

- February 7, Friday, 5:26 pm -0.9 feet; Long Beach, Twin Harbors, Copalis

- February 8, Saturday, 6:09 pm -1.3 feet; Long Beach, Twin Harbors, Mocrocks

- February 9, Sunday, 6:51 pm -1.4 feet; Long Beach, Twin Harbors, Copalis

KILL THE DISCOVERY PASS?

A bill has been introduced by Senator Mark Schoesler from Ritzville to axe the Discovery Pass, a user fee for those who visit Washington State Parks.

His proposal? To instead fund our state parks entirely through the general fund. Senator Schoesler apparently has a short memory.

It was just 11 years ago when our state, going through the Great Recession, nearly closed up to 33 of its 116 state parks because of planned cuts from the general fund.

The Washington Dept. of Fish and Wildlife also saw significant cuts during this time and that funding has never been fully restored.

The Discovery Pass does give a financial cushion to help our State Parks Commission weather financial storms, a cushion borne by those who support the parks.

SPORTSMEN'S SHOWS:

The Pacific Northwest Sportsmen's Show is the second largest sportsmen's show in the entire nation and will take place again at the Expo Center in Portland.

The dates this year are Wednesday, February 5th through Sunday the 9th.

In addition to 900 exhibitors there will be a special VIP Movie Night presented by Leupold & Stevens on Saturday the 8th featuring an appearance by well known television hunting host and conservationist Randy Newberg.

The MeatEater crew to include television and podcast host Steven Rinella will also be at the show on Sunday the 9th. Go to <http://thesportshows.com> for admission prices, hours and more information.

ICICLE CREEK THIS WEEK

2020 Fly Fishing Film Tour Coming to ICCA

MASON ELLIOTT

Coming to the Snowy Owl Theater at Icicle Creek Center for the Arts Feb. 22 at 7 p.m. is the 14th annual Fly Fishing Film Tour. A collection of 11 unique fish flicks. These films capture the spirit of fly fishing through cinematic tales of conservation, education and adventure from local rivers to far flung destinations.

This festival allows for the fly fishing community from North Central Washington to come together and share their passion. The F3T travels all across the nation, showcasing the adventures of cartwheeling steelhead, pristine Australian coastlines, fish brought back from the brink of ruin to jungle streams laden with aggressive fish, and so much more.

As always, make sure to check out icicle.org for information about events and everything happening on campus. And, make sure to follow us on both Facebook and Instagram for up to date information and what goes on here on campus! We hope to see you soon!

Anxious about the economy?
New survey reveals your next steps

STATEPOINT - Economic analysts increasingly predict that the U.S. will soon experience a recession, and a recent survey by CFP Board/ Morning Consult shows many Americans agree: 55 percent of respondents believe a recession will occur in the next year. Roughly three quarters of respondents said an economic downturn would affect their household, with more than a third projecting it would have a major impact.

Experts agree that developing and sticking with a prudent, long-term financial plan is key to protecting yourself against market swings, and the survey findings underscored the value of partnering with a financial advisor before and during a recession. Sixty-seven percent of respondents who are working with a financial advisor said they would feel prepared if a recession began in the next 12 months, compared to 38 percent of those not working with an advisor. In addition, 77 percent of people working with an advisor said they are confident their advisor would successfully manage their finances through a down market.

A Certified Financial Planner (CFP) professional can help you bring all of the pieces of your financial life together and provide confidence that your finances can withstand the pressures of an economic downturn. Of the survey respondents who work with a CFP professional, 73 percent reported feeling more prepared for a potential recession now than they did in 2008, during the Great Recession.

Trained to give you a "big picture" view of financial solutions and develop a plan that is tailored to your specific goals and interests, a CFP professional will help you set long- and short-term goals and will periodically review and adjust your financial plan as needed to ensure you stay on track to reach those goals. A CFP professional will also help you understand the implications of your financial choices, providing competent and ethical advice that supports sound financial decision-making and avoids impulsive actions. To find a CFP professional near you, visit www.letsmakeaplan.org.

Partnering with a financial advisor may be one of the most important steps you can take to protect yourself and your family from feeling the effects of a dramatic market decline.

Generic medicines are considered equivalent to their brand name counterparts, but they are not identical

Q: My insurance forced me to switch to a generic version of my medicine, but my symptoms started coming back. My doctor insists it's the exact same medicine, so why doesn't it work as well?

Generic medicines are considered equivalent to their brand name counterparts, but they are not identical. Although the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires all generic drugs meet the same standards as brand name products, they don't have to match them in every way.

Before they can sell a generic version of any medicine, its manufacturer must show the FDA that at each strength that the brand name comes in, their product contains the same amount of active ingredients. Generic medicines must also match the form and route of administration of the original or "innovator" medicine, whether it's a tablet, capsule, liquid or injection.

In addition, the manufacturing processes, quality control and testing for generics must meet the same standards as branded medicines. Surprisingly, many generics are made in the exact same facility as their branded versions.

Generic drug manufacturers must prove to the FDA that their generic is equivalent to the branded medicine by testing the blood of human volunteers who take each one at a time. If the levels in the blood from the generic and brand are similar, the FDA assumes the generic will work the same in your body.

The active ingredients of generics must be equivalent but the inactive ingredients don't have to be. Sometimes those differences change the way you absorb your medicine. Just like meatballs contain more than just meat, tablets and capsules can contain more than just their active ingredient. Diluents or fillers are added to provide bulk, as the active ingredient may only be a small amount of powder, with lactose, sucrose, kaolin, powdered starches and cellulose commonly used as fillers for tablets and capsules.

Food coloring may also be mixed into the powder, causing reactions in people who are sensitive to dyes. An adhesive compound called a "binder" is also added to help the powder press together into a tablet, like adding an egg to a meatball recipe helps the meat and rice "stick" together when formed into a ball.

Generic manufacturers use less expensive versions of fillers, dyes and binders, allowable by the FDA as long as the active ingredient is the same concentration as the original medicine. Making generic versions of extended-release or long-acting forms is more complex than duplicating a simple tablet, making it trickier to get the generic versions to act the same as the original.

The FDA received complaints about one generic version of Wellbutrin® XL that caused headaches, nausea and a return of depressive symptoms in some people. After investigation, important differences showed up in how the generic was absorbed into the body and in October 2012 the FDA reversed its approval of generic Wellbutrin® XL, instructing its manufacturer, Teva, to take it off the market.

Here are 4 Tips on How To Take Generic Medicines:

1. Check your pills BEFORE you leave the pharmacy.

Don't assume a different shape or color is "just another generic". Because generic medicines don't have to match the appearance of the branded version, the color or shape can change whenever your pharmacy uses a different manufacturer. Check for and challenge any changes in the shape or color of your medicine, to make sure you have the correct medicine in your pill bottle.

2. Ask Google.

If you get your pills by mail, you can check what's in your pill bottle yourself. In Google, type in the shape (round or oblong), color, and any markings you see on the pill. If there is a line across the tablet, type in the word "scored". Most of the time there's only one result plus a photo, but if you see more than one, check with your pharmacy FIRST before taking it.

3. Ask your doctor for brand name only.

If you have a bad experience with a generic product, ask your doctor to document the problem and prescribe the brand you did well on, adding DO NOT SUBSTITUTE to the prescription. With documentation, an insurance company will usually cover the brand name product for you instead of the generic, though sometimes you will have a higher copayment.

4. Report it to the FDA.

If you notice a significant difference when switching to a generic medicine, ask your doctor to report it to the MedWatch program that is run by the FDA, which tracks adverse events caused by medicines.
