Chelan County opens Moderate Risk Waste Facility Opened to the public December 6

SUBMITTED BY CHELAN COUNTY PUBLIC WORKS

People will be able to drop off their household hazardous waste – materials such as used motor oil, antifreeze, oil-based paints, pool chemicals, and pesticides and fertilizers – at the year-round facility for safe disposal.

“We are very excited to be opening this much-needed facility,” said Brenda Blanchfield, manager of the Solid Waste program of Chelan County Public Works.

“In the past, the county has held one-day collection events once a year. A permanent facility gives people more opportunities to dispose of their household hazardous wastes in a safe and responsible way and helps keep these materials out of our groundwater and rivers and lakes.”

The 5,000-square-foot facility was built on county-owned property at 3612 Highway 97A in Wenatchee.

It is open to all Chelan County residents three days a week, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

The facility is free to residents; however, a $10 contribution per trip is appreciated.

The $2.6 million facility is a project of Chelan County and its partners: the Washington State Department of Ecology, the Washington State Department of Commerce and the cities of Wenatchee, Cashmere, Leavenworth, Chelan and Entiat.

“We could not have completed this project without the help of our community partners,” said Eric Pierson, director/county engineer of Chelan County Public Works. “The project had reached a standstill in 2017, but our partners stepped up to help finance its completion. This facility is a great example of what a community can accomplish when strong partnerships are formed.”

Household hazardous waste, or HHW, is material that should not be thrown in the garbage but instead be disposed of safely at a Moderate Risk Waste Facility or collection event. HHW is labeled with key words such as caution, flammable, corrosive, warning, poisonous, explosive, danger, toxic or reactive.

HHW includes but is not limited to: automotive products, including used motor oil, antifreeze, gas, brake fluid, waxes, batteries and cleaners; home gardening supplies, including pesticides, fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides and herbicides; painting supplies, including oil-based paints and stains, thinners and solvents; kerosene; heating oil; pool and spa chemicals; household cleaners; and fluorescent tubes and bulbs.

Waste collected at the facility will be packed for safe transport and contractor Clean Harbors Environmental of Kent will haul the material away for safe disposal.

Among the facility’s features are a drive-up unloading area for visitors; a reuse area for those materials that are deemed reusable; an office and breakroom area for employees; an emergency wash area; a barrel packing area and lab for material identification; two 200-square-foot storage containers for flammables; and a blast wall for any highly explosive materials that may come in and need temporary storage.

The onsite storm water system also was designed to withstand a 100-year storm event. The system incorporates Low Impact Development design principles that include pervious pavers in the parking areas, an underground storm water chamber and two bio-filtration swells to promote infiltration of onsite-generated storm water.

Secure your HHW safely when transporting

If you are dropping off material at the MRWF, remember these tips for the safe transport of your household hazardous wastes:

- Don’t mix products.
- Keep products in original containers. Label products not in same.

- Secure products so they don’t tip over or leak.

- Containers should be non-leaking and of 5 gallons or less in size.

- Transport similar products upright in cardboard boxes for safety.

- Stay in your vehicle during unloading.

In addition, please remember that the MRWF does not accept latex or water-based paints.

Latex paint can be safely disposed of in your residential garbage can if the paint is first hardened with a material such as kitty litter, mulch, sawdust or shredded paper.

When the paint is hardened to the consistency of oatmeal, place the can, with its lid off, in your garbage can.

UV Cares receives $50,000 grant award

SUBMITTED BY BECKI SUBIDO

Vail Resorts CEO Rob Katz through the Katz-Amsterdam Charitable Trust Awards UV-Cares a $50,000.00 Grant to Open a Free Mental Health Clinic

Vail Resorts Chief Executive Officer Rob Katz and his wife, Elana Amsterdam, New York Times bestselling author and founder of Elana’s Pantry, announced significant contributions to further strengthen emotional wellness programs in more than ten mountain communities where Vail Resorts operates.

The second annual distribution of behavioral health grants issued by the Katz Amsterdam Charitable Trust (KACT) benefits over 40 non-profit organizations to reduce the stigma of mental illness, improve access to mental and behavioral health services and support collaboration within and among mountain communities.

“It has been inspiring to see the shared desire that exists across each of our mountain communities to make a difference, to help others and to ignite a passion for creating truly healthy communities,” said Katz.

“We are thrilled to be able to help unite so many incredible organizations and support their collective efforts to improve access to much-needed health services and reduce the stigma and misunderstanding around these issues.”

The grant announced today further enables collaboration and innovation across mountain communities in British Columbia, Washington, California, Utah, Colorado, Vermont and New Hampshire.

“We are very grateful for the generous grant from Rob Katz and Elana Amsterdam,” said Becki Subido, Board President of UV Cares.

“With this support, UV-Cares will work to address the very important need for mental health services in the Upper Valley communities by opening a free mental health clinic, available to the full community.”

Council approves new Chamber Contract

BY BILL FORHAN

The Leavenworth Chamber of Commerce operates the Visitor Center under contract with the city. The contract is set to expire on March 31, 2020.

Council approved a new 3 year contract at the Dec. 10 council meeting. The new contract runs from April 1, 2020 to March 31, 2023.

Funding for operation of the visitor center is provided from lodging tax collections from the previous year. Under the contract the chamber receives 18.5 percent of lodging tax receipts to be used for operation of the visitor center. The 18.5 percent is the same as provided through the current contract.

The city estimates that in the contract year beginning April 1, 2020 the Chamber will receive approximately $421,000 in Lodging Tax Funds for operation of the visitor center.

Financial reports submitted to the city by the Chamber indicate that approximately two thirds of the $421,000 or $278,000 is spent on direct operating costs for the visitor center. The rest is spent on Economic Development including Outdoor Recreational Infrastructure, a professional speaker series, vehicle wraps, historical tours and Christmas Lighting parking assistance.

Leavenworth Area Promotions Budget

Council also approved a measure to allocate $721,280 for advertising in 2020 to promote the Leavenworth Brand. This is a 12 percent increase from 2019 expenditures of $644,000.

The Leavenworth Area Promotions Committee is made up of 8 individuals. Three Chamber members, three Lodging Association members and two City Council members. This group manages the details of the advertising budget.

For 2020 the LAP committee plans to spend 8 percent more, or approximately $51,500, on advertising programs as a result of increasing media costs. Twenty thousand for upgrades to the Chamber website and $72,000 on Social Media advertising.

December 24, Council meeting cancelled

In recognition of the season council usually cancels the final meeting of the year unless critical business is left unfinished.

The next meeting will actually be held on Dec. 31, 2019 at 10 a.m. for the sole purpose of swearing in the new Mayor, Carl Florea.

Opinions

A Final Minute with the Mayor

Because I am a third generation native of Leavenworth, I am among the few who can remember what it was like to live here in the early 1960's, when we had a faltering economy and a dismal employment market with so few jobs that families had to move away to find work. Downtown businesses were closing, leaving many boarded up storefronts along Front Street.

You've all heard the legend, but my family washere to take part in the inspiring volunteer effort of countless local folks who began the movement to reinvent our little town.

I was fortunate enough to experience the enthusiasm of our citizenry as it grew around the idea of the "Bavarian Village".

Little by little, we all began to feel the excitement of creating a thriving economy where there was once despair.

Fast-forward 50-plus years to our now flourishing and prosperous city where the sales tax revenue, created by our visitors, provides well over half the funding necessary to operate our City services.

And, with our success as the Bavarian Village comes the challenge of holding on to the small-town, community-oriented atmosphere that makes us all want to live here.

Lately I've found myself reflecting on my life here and my 10 years of service to the City of Leavenworth, (2 on City Council and 8 as Mayor), and this reflection has been bittersweet.

Of course, we have had many noteworthy accomplishments here at the City.

Here are a few of which I am most proud:

- Voter approved Transportation Benefit District (TBD), creating a mechanism for our visitors to pay for rebuilding and resurfacing of our residential streets through a small sales tax increase.

- Voter approved Public Safety Tax, mirroring the TBD and creating a way for tourists to support additional police and fire services as well as a School Resource Officer.

- Building the new skatepark and bicycle pump track for our own local kids in Enchantment Park, as well as a beautiful new playground in Waterfront Park.

- The rebuilding of our beautiful and safe new Pine Street.

- Purchasing the Leavenworth Fruit Company Warehouse and the D.O.T. lot to create parking.

- Significant improvements to both our water and sewer plants, (currently underway).

- Obtaining additional water rights securing our drinking water for generations to come.

- Creating laws to protect our residents against the proliferation of unsupervised overnight rentals inside the residential zones of the city limits.

Together with the City Council, we have completed several important studies to begin addressing our challenges with housing affordability, traffic concerns and parking.

Our City Council has always been made up of dedicated individuals who give selflessly of their time and effort to work on initiatives that will address the challenge of bridging the gap between a thriving, and necessary tourism economy and a vibrant residential community.

Mayor Cheri Kelley Farivar

So, thank them for their efforts! And I encourage you to volunteer as well.

Volunteerism is critically important to our town! Get involved and stay involved!

As I leave office, I want to congratulate our new Mayor and City Council members on their election, and to thank all of those departing and continuing Councilmembers who have served with me.

It's this kind of citizen participation that will continue to make Leavenworth a vibrant place to live and work.

My eight years as Mayor had been both gratifying and demanding, but most of all it has been fun!

Thank you, Leavenworth, with entrusting me with the safekeeping of your city. It has been a pleasure!

On being a 'compassionate Conservative' in the face of sloth, greed and PC run amok

Years ago I heard some guy named Bush, might've been Bush the First.

He was talking about caring about people at the same time that these same people cared about themselves.

Compassionate Conservative values equal giving a hand up, but not always a handout.

It's the old maxim: Give a man a fish and he is grateful and eats it and for one day he is satiated, but teach a man to fish and he can feed himself forever.

As a society, America is the most generous one that ever existed.

Americans, on a regular, standard operating procedure basis, give food, clothing, medicine, shelter to any disaster-struck nation regardless of race, creed or even politics.

Now comes the idea of just giving everything away to everyone regardless of whether or not they ever raised a sweat doing work themselves.

Not all high school grads belong in college, but that doesn't stop demeaning higher education by literally giving it away.

Many college degrees are

GARY BÉGIN

worthless anyway because the market is saturated with liberal arts degrees showing only a general interest in general subjects.

I tell kids to get a STEM degree and it will serve them forever and be a way of achieving societal, financial and career status.

Giving away college has some merit, but only if prospective students are vetted to make sure they aren't better suited to a vocational skill.

The cost of a four-year degree is often prohibitive for the "less than brilliant" non-scholarship garnering student, which is probably the vast majority.

I applaud Wenatchee Valley College for offering vocational courses in welding, cooking, healthcare and even forklift training and I hope Chelan and Douglas County students, young and old, take advantage of these great courses.

They are more than reasonably priced and often lead to certificates that can get jobs for those motivated enough to make their own futures, not just be satisfied with Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or mooching off mom & dad.

To be fair, some of our fellow citizens need SSI just to barely squeak by in life. These are mostly senior citizens or the disabled.

While others use excuses as to why they can't get a job or hold a job or why they go through the ever turning turnstiles of incarceration, re-offending, incarceration, re-offending.

In the mean time, when not in jail, money is spent on drugs (both legal and illegal), alcohol (to the extreme) and junk food binges by the parasites who ought to be striving to become better men and women serving the greater good.

I don't mean to deny the impact of addiction and mental health issues on one's life, but part of the journey includes brave attempts at self-reform by education, sobriety, religion and other therapeutic methods.

In my view, I would rather have 20 welders, forklift drivers and cooks than one "social worker" who is merely working to maintain an excuse for keeping the line item for salaries in the annual budget.

That includes school districts, state, county, city and federal governments and entities, especially the Washington State Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) and the Social Security Administration (SSA).

The latter is especially guilty of not having a field investigations department that ensures the receivers of tax dollars are actually using the money for the intended survival of themselves and their kids.

It just takes 10% of slime to infect the entire batch of ice in the machine.

I can sympathize with advocates of tax reform because it is obvious some of the social programs we support are not necessarily good for the greater good and heavily favor those who claim a false incapacitation for whatever reason.

Perhaps high school dropouts ought to be made to take vocational training instead of welfare?

Goehner encourages students to sign up for the House Page Program

PRESS RELEASE

The Washington State Legislature convenes on Monday, Jan. 13 and Rep. Keith Goehner is encouraging students interested in the House Page Program to submit applications.

"We have an excellent page program, and it is a great way for students to get a firsthand look at how our state government operates," said Goehner, R-Dryden.

"It has a strong history as pages have been serving in the Legislature since 1891."

To become a page, applicants must have a legislative sponsor, be between the ages of 14 and 16, and obtain written permission from their parents and school.

Pages earn $35 per day while serving in the program. Pages deliver documents and messages to legislators and staff.

During debate in the House of Representatives chamber, they distribute amendments, bills and other paperwork for legislators.

They also perform ceremonial tasks, such as presenting the flags.

Parents and students interested in the page program can find more information at: leg.wa.gov/House/Pages/HousePageProgram.aspx. A page application can be found at: app.leg.wa.gov/PageApplication/.

Anyone with questions can contact Goehner's office at (509) 664-1274 or email him at Keith.Goehner@leg.wa.gov.

Leavenworth Waterfront Park Trail Snowshoe Tours

Every Thursday in January and February from 10 a.m. – noon, local naturalist guides will lead free snowshoe strolls on the Waterfront Park Trail along the beautiful Wenatchee River. All ages and experience levels are welcome, from first time to seasoned snowshoers. Snowshoes provided. Please dress for cold weather and bring a snack and warm beverage. Meet to snowshoe from the Wenatchee River Institute campus, 347 Division Street in Leavenworth. Drop-ins are welcome and reservations required for groups of eight or more. To make reservations or with questions, call Rachel, 548-0181 x5 (e 51).

Begin the year 2020 with new discoveries!

Starting from the Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery, join Wenatchee River Institute (WRI) area naturalist guides on a one-mile snowshoe trail along beautiful Icicle Creek, learning about native wildlife and ecology along the way. All skill levels are welcome, with snowshoes, gaiters and poles provided. Even if this is your first time on snowshoes, come along and enjoy this fun outdoor program. Bring your enthusiasm for the wonders of winter and nature, and make sure to dress in warm layers. Small group tours every Friday and Saturday during the month of January and on February 1, at the Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery, 12790 Fish Hatchery Road. Cost is $12 per person. Call Katie 509-548-0181x3 (e 51).

Bipartisan support grows for more geographic diversity on state Supreme Court

SUBMITTED BY JASON MERCIER

Governor Inslee made his appointment this week to the fill the vacancy created on the state Supreme Court by the retirement of Chief Justice Fairhurst.

Although his selection of Whatcom County Superior Court Judge Raquel Montoya-Lewis was a historic first, many on the east side of the state had hoped the Governor would appoint one of the highly qualified applicants from Eastern Washington. Among those calling for more geographic diversity on the state Supreme Court is the Chair of the Franklin County Democratic Party.

Jeffrey Robinson told me this week: "The Washington Supreme Court makes many consequential decisions that affect the entire state. Because of its importance it is essential that Eastern Washingtonians receive equal representation on that body. Until that happens, we are likely to continue to see a trust deficit on the eastern side of the state towards all three branches of our state government. It's time to start having this conversation now."

This point was also recently made by the Tri-City Herald in its editorial "Gov. Inslee needs to add some regional balance to the state Supreme Court." The Herald wrote: "Gov. Jay Inslee has a mighty decision to make in appointing a new justice to the Washington state Supreme Court. We imagine all 12 applicants are brilliant and have outstanding resumes. However, considering that all but one of the nine state Supreme Court justices are from the west side of the state, we encourage Inslee to choose someone from Eastern Washington.

Appointing an applicant who has been immersed in legal issues from east of the Cascades would provide a regional balance that is currently missing from the state's most prestigious bench. In addition, it also would help Eastern Washington residents to feel better represented in Olympia."

Current Justice Stephens (the new Chief Justice) is the lone current member of the state Supreme Court that hails from Eastern Washington. In recent years, any Supreme Court Justices from Eastern Washington have gotten their start on the Court via an appointment. Justice Stephens was appointed by Governor Gregoire and the last justice prior to her, Justice Richard P. Guy, was appointed by Governor Gardner. Why does geographic diversity of the state Supreme Court matter? Although Justices are not representatives but instead are charged with making impartial decisions based on matters of law, the life experiences of those that serve us on the Court are important in helping them make their decisions. This is why, along with the Court having diversity of gender and ethnicity among its ranks, it should also have diversity of geography and cultural experiences from across Washington State.

This is something Gov. Gregoire understood when she appointed Justice Stephens to the Court. Gregoire said: "An appointment from Eastern Washington really fundamentally lets our citizens know that we are one Washington and that people in Eastern Washington are represented on this court as well."

Gregoire also told the Seattle Times: "People in Eastern Washington feel that there ought to be some representation on the high court." We agree with former Supreme Court Justice Guy when he said: "It is very important that the Washington State Supreme Court have the diversity of viewpoint that a justice from Eastern Washington brings to the bench."

Rather than rely on the chance of geographic diversity being address with an appointment, another approach would be to elect the State Supreme Court based on broad regional districts, like several other states do. Whether by direct election or via retention votes, Supreme Court Justices are elected by districts in the following states: Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Tennessee. Washington could follow the examples of these states and base our districts on the state's three appellate divisions.

A proposal in 2015 would have brought state Supreme Court district elections to Washington.

Although SJR 8205 (Amending the state Constitution so that justices of the supreme court are elected by qualified electors of a supreme court judicial district) was passed to the Senate Rules Committee, it never received a floor vote. Prime sponsor of SJR 8205, Sen. Padden, plans to bring a version of the proposal back in 2020. Sen. Padden told me this week: "Electing judges by district has several benefits, not least of which is strengthening the bond between judges and the communities that they serve. It would also likely result in greater geographical diversity on the court, and perhaps, a greater diversity in judicial philosophy of the Justices. I am working on an updated version of the bill for the 2020 legislative session."

By changing the way we elect Supreme Court Justices to district-based elections, we work toward a Court that is truly reflective of "One Washington" and not just the Puget Sound, while also facilitating more choices for voters, fewer cost barriers to running, and increasing the opportunity for voter engagement.

As noted by former State Supreme Court Justice Jim Johnson, it is important that the votes needed for electing our Supreme Court Justices extend beyond the shadow of the Space Needle. What is a Blue Christmas?

This is also called the longest sleep in the Western Christian tradition. It is a day in Advent season making it the longest night of the year. Some churches hold the "Blue" or filled with difficult feelings around painful life events such as death, disease, poverty or abuse. Some services may only honor people who have lost a loved one in the year, similar to All Saints' Day. Holy Eucharist, also called Communion or Breaking of the Bread is traditionally a part of the worship service. The longest night usually falls on or about December 21, the Winter Solstice. We focus on the promises of Hope. Merry Christmas to all.

Cashmere's Kelzenberg takes his oboe to a higher plane; local teenager wins second national award in six months

The Kelzenberg Trio: Matt (Cello), Sebastian (Oboe) and Beatrice Kelzenberg, (Cello).

BY GARY BÉGIN

Matt Ryan-Kelzenberg, is the proud father of Sebastian Kelzenberg, 15-year-old oboist from Cashmere.

"Sebastian is on his way to becoming one of the foremost musicians of his generation," stated Matt.

Sebastian began his studies on the oboe at age seven while living abroad in Brazil with his family.

After four years he became quite proficient on the instrument, according to Matt, he also learned to speak Portuguese, the native language of Brazil.

After returning to America in early 2014, Sebastian continued his studies with John Dimond of Leavenworth and also plays chamber music with his family.

NCW Media Managing Editor Gary Bégin interviewed Sebastian for this exclusive article:

NCWM: What music school if any are you planning to attend?

SEBASTIAN: I plan to attend a top tier Conservatory program, hopefully either Juilliard or the Curtis Institute.

NCWM: Do you aspire to be a recording artist, with a big city orchestra?

SEBASTIAN: I would enjoy making recordings with a top tier orchestra (e.g. New York Phil or Cleveland Orchestra).

NCWM: Do you want to eventually lead an orchestra - as a conductor?

SEBASTIAN: I may consider being a conductor in the future, but at this point I prefer being a musician in an orchestra.

NCWM: Is teaching music in your future or will you stay in the professional ranks? (or both)

SEBASTIAN: I plan to stay in the professional ranks, and also would enjoy teaching advanced students.

NCWM: Do you have any local collaborations with other area musicians?

SEBASTIAN: I play with my family, "Kelzenberg Trio" (oboe, two cellos), and I also play french horn in the Cashmere High School Musical orchestra, and will occasionally fill in oboe in High School concerts.

NCWM: What about your future?

SEBASTIAN: Going to a professional music school, getting a doctorate in music performance or teaching, and playing for one of the major orchestras in the world are some goals I plan on working toward.

NCWM: What musician was your musical mentor?

SEBASTIAN: My musical inspiration comes from Cordelia Wikarski-Miedel, my father's teacher and friend. She is a former cellist who lived in Germany during and after WWII, and now lives in the Seattle area.

The younger Kelzenberg has enjoyed playing in many ensembles, including Icicle Creek Youth Symphony, Cashmere Middle and High School Bands, and the 2019 All-Northwest Orchestra.

He has also made appearances at Summer festivals, including the Chelan Bach Festival, Hidden Valley's Oboe Masterclass (2019), and Marrowstone 2019 Festival where he was principle Oboe.

Sebastian was also the MTNA Junior Woodwind National First Place Winner (2019).

He is currently an oboe student of Dimond and Dan Williams of Seattle.

Sebastian received the National YoungArts Award for accomplishments in oboe December 6 in a Miami celebration, joining "686 talented emerging artists from 40 states provided with unparalleled creative and professional development opportunities," according to a news release.

Sebastian has been named a 2020 National YoungArts Foundation (YoungArts) Merit winner in Oboe and is now considered one of the nation's most accomplished artists in the visual, literary and performing arts and was selected based on caliber of artistic achievement by an esteemed discipline-specific panel of artists through a rigorous blind adjudication process, according to YoungArts.

This year's award winners represent the top 9.5 percent of applications across ten artistic disciplines.

YoungArts award winners gain access to one of the most prestigious programs for emerging artists in the United States in which they will have opportunities for creative and professional development throughout their entire careers.

"Every year I am reminded that extraordinary artistry is ageless and the 2020 YoungArts award winners - all teenage artists - have done it again. This group of emerging talent represents the inspiring potential of the next generation of artists. We look forward to welcoming them to the YoungArts community of leading artists and are thrilled to support their work from this early stage and throughout their careers," stated Board Chair Sarah Arison.

As a 2020 YoungArts award winner, Kelzenberg has just been invited to participate in one of the organization's regional programs in Los Angeles, which provides emerging artists with master classes, workshops and mentorship from leading artists in their fields.

Starting in July, Kelzenberg will join the 20,000-strong YoungArts alumni community and will receive ongoing support from the organization as they continue to pursue a life in the arts.

Breaking news!

According to Matt, "Sebastian was confirmed yesterday (December 11) as a participant in the YoungArts Los

How Counterirritants Can Help Control Arthritis Pain

My friend Steve plays acoustical guitar, both 6-string and 12-string. We met over 40 years ago at a church-sponsored retreat and we are still singing together, every Saturday night at our local church. However, now that we're both in our 60s, our bodies are showing some wear and tear.

Steve's hands are beginning to bother him, especially in the winter. Last week he asked me what he could do to relieve the stiffness. "Should I try the CBD oil that everyone's talking about?"

"Well, CBD might help, but it's pretty expensive compared to other options you could try first. Does a heating pad help?"

"Heat helps, but I need something I can rub on my hands."

There are several non-prescription products Steve could try. Methyl salicylate, camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, and capsaicin are derived from natural sources and have been used for decades to treat aching muscles and stiff joints.

Counterirritants and capsaicin work locally instead of affecting your entire system, making them useful to add to other pain medications like Tylenol®, Ask...

Dr. Louise

ibuprofen or naproxen without risking toxicity or overdose.

Methyl salicylate, camphor, menthol, and eucalyptus work as counterirritants. Instead of calming or blocking nerves to relieve pain, counterirritants give you relief by triggering the sensory nerves located in your skin, giving you a sensation of intense warmth or soothing coolness while also keeping your nerves too busy to recognize any painful sensations.

Counterirritants also create redness and warmth from increased blood flow to the area caused by inflammation, similar to applying a heating pad.

Mustard plasters of the past worked by doing this. Applying a mustard slurry to your chest for 15-20 minutes creates redness, warmth and increased blood flow for up to 48 hours after removal. You must remove a mustard plaster promptly, however, because it will cause blistering and serious burns if left on for more than 20 minutes.

Most non-prescription topical an-algic products contain one or more counterirritants which work in similar ways, including methyl salicylate, also called wintergreen oil, its odorless cousin, trolamine salicylate, menthol, which is extracted from peppermint oil, and camphor.

Popular topical pain relievers that contain counterirritants include Mineral Ice® with just menthol, Tiger Balm® Arthritis Rub with menthol and camphor, and Ben-Gay® Ultra Strength Pain Relieving Cream, containing methyl salicylate, menthol and camphor. If Steve wanted to avoid smelling like a breath mint he could try the odorless Aspercreme® formula instead, which contains trolamine salicylate.

Steve has other choices besides products containing one or more counterirritants. Capsaicin is derived from hot chili peppers and works by triggering the release of a nerve messenger called Substance P in the skin where you apply it. Substance P's job is to transmit messages to your brain that there's pain.

Applying capsaicin to your knee flushes out all the Substance P in the tissue it touches, keeping your nerves from sending messages to your brain about your painful knee until your body can build it back up.

When applied for the first time, capsaicin causes a moderately intense burning and tingling sensation from the release of Substance P, followed by diminished pain sensation for several hours, giving you up to 8-10 hours of pain relief. As your body builds back its Substance P, you'll eventually start feeling tingling and burning.

If you reapply capsaicin at that point, you'll enjoy another stretch of pain relief.

Capsaicin is extracted from pepper, so make sure to wash your hands after applying it. Believe me, if you rub your eye with capsaicin on, you'll know it! I recommend using the roll-on applicator of capsaicin, so you can avoid touching it completely.

5 Tips for Using Topical Non-Prescription Pain Relievers:

1. They are best suited for small areas that are easy to reach. Small areas that you can reach easily are good choices to add a counterirritant for relief of occasional discomfort or breakthrough pain.

2. Avoid broken skin and cover loosely, if at all. Counterirritants work by causing irritation, and can burn or blister to sensitive or broken skin.

3. Camphor can create either a warming or cooling sensation. Camphor causes both a cooling sensation when gently applied and warmth when rubbed into your skin.

4. Apply capsaicin with a roll-on stick. Applying capsaicin with a roll-on stick keeps the pepper-based extract from chili peppers from ending up on your fingers or inadvertently in your eyes. Ow!

5. Reapply capsaicin when you first notice tingling or burning. Reapplying capsaicin promptly keeps Substance P from building up, and you much more comfortable.
