

Masons Hold Cornerstone Ceremony At Peshastin-Dryden Elementary

Grand Master Charles E. Wood acted as the master of ceremony at the Laying of the Cornerstones for Peshastin-Dryden Elementary School

The weather was perfect on Saturday, August 24, for the Laying of Cornerstones ceremony at Peshastin-Dryden Elementary School. A crowd of about 50 guests and more than 30 Masons were in attendance. The ceremony began with the Masons lining up in formation and marching up the aisle. For anyone that's never been to a Mason ceremony the formality with which they conduct themselves is a sight to see.

Grand Master Charles Wood acted as master of ceremonies for the day and once behind the podium he asked the audience to stand and say the Pledge of Allegiance. After everyone was seated the Grand Master asked Deputy Grand Master Chris Coffman what was to which he replied that it was the square. Next, the Grand Master asked the Deputy to apply the square to the foundation stone. Finding that the stone was satisfactory the Deputy declared "I find the stone square and well-fitted for the builder's use."

Senior Grand Warden Cameron Bailey was asked what the proper tool of his office was and it's masonic use to which the Warden replied "The level. Morally and Masonically it teaches equality and is used to lay horizontally." Next, the Grand Master asked the Warden to apply the tool to the foundation stone, after doing so the Warden reported that the stone was level and the craftsman's work was done well. Finally, the Grand Master called on Junior Grand Warden, Edward Woods the tool of his office and it's Masonic use to which he replied "The plumb. Morally and Masonically it teaches rectitude of conduct, it is also used to try perpendicularly." The Grand Master then asked the Junior Warden to apply the tool to the foundation stone to which he found that it was "true and plumb."

With all three Masons finding that the foundation stone was satisfactory, the Grand Master declared that it was "Well-formed, true and trusted and correctly laid according to the ancient customs of this craft." The next part of the ceremony involved the three Masons pouring out corn as a symbol of plenty, wine as a symbol of strength and gladness and oil as a symbol of peace. After the rituals were performed the Grand Master then made a short speech proclaiming "May the inhabitants of this place find an abundance of necessities, conveniences and comforts of life in the erection and completion of this building. May the workman be protected from every accident, may the structure be free from decay and may we all rejoice in an ample supply of the corn of nourishment, the wine of refreshment and the joy of love."

After the rituals involving the Masonic tools were performed the Grand Master invited Superintendent of Schools Tracey Beckendorf-Edou, Principal Emily Ross and School-Board Member Brenda Biebesheimer to come to the front and knock on the stone three times each. It was then proclaimed that the cornerstone of the school was found square, level and plumb.

Short term rentals scrutinized at meeting

STORY BY GARY BÉGIN,
Managing Editor, NCW Media

WENATCHEE -- A packed house attended the Chelan County Planning Commission (CCPC) meeting at the Confluence Technology Center Wednesday, August 26.

The two-hour evening affair featured residential speakers from throughout the county and non-residential rental property owners, many who live on the west side of the state.

Manson resident and Community Councilwoman Kathy Blum stressed to the Commission that she felt the "quality of life" has experienced a "steady decline" due to under-regulated short term rental properties in the Lake Chelan town.

She called for a "well regulated" rental industry that will ease the concerns of Manson residents and help all parties coexist.

Dan Beardslee, BNCW's Government Affairs Analyst (See photo), spoke to the Board on behalf of that housing industry nonprofit trade association, saying it would take $750,000 to hire enough county personnel to enforce new regulations as it is currently understaffed.

BNCW CEO Lee Pfluger, stated in an email reply to this reporter, "BNCW has not taken a position against nor in favor of STRs at this point. We do however oppose the proposed code changes currently in front of the Chelan County Planning Commission."

Pfluger continued, "The current proposal as written has not been vetted out properly and leaves many unanswered questions, many of which we addressed in our letter. Since drafting the letter there are a number of other questions and issues that have come up."

BNCW is a well known advocacy group defending the rights of the building community. Pfluger said, "One being since the STR permit is a land use permit involving zoning issues it is very likely that a court would find that all of the current STRs would be exempt from the permit requirements as they have been legally operating at their current locations for years in many cases, and would be considered a "legal non-conforming use" under the new standards. Just like if someone legally built a duplex and subsequent zoning changes barred duplexes, existing duplexes would be considered "a legal non-conforming use."

Pfluger states, "There is really nothing in the proposed regulations that would lead to better enforcement of existing parking, noise, or nuisance ordinances already in place."

He continued, "There is language in the proposal stating that after 3 complaints an STR's permit can be revoked, however no appeals process is defined and there is no protection for unfounded complaints. If the county were to adopt the current proposal there would certainly be costly lawsuits around a number of issues. The current proposal would impose significant burdens on current and future STRs while at the same time not really doing anything to alleviate the issues that STRs neighbors face, all while opening up the county to costly lawsuits..."

"We do not believe that Chelan Community Development engaged the community adequately before drafting this proposal. I find it

New item to be sold at Costco stores

SUBMITTED BY CRUNCH PAK®

CASHMERE — Just in time for back-to-school lunches and snacks, Crunch Pak®, the sliced fruit specialist, is partnering with Nickelodeon to create packages featuring SpongeBob SquarePants characters.

The four-ounce snack packs, bundled eight to a package, will feature SpongeBob, Gary, Patrick, Sandy and Squidward and will be initially sold at Costco stores in the Northeast United States before rolling out nationwide.

Launched on July 17, 1999, SpongeBob SquarePants has reigned as the number-one kids' animated series on TV for the last 17 years, while generating a universe of beloved characters, pop culture catchphrases and memes, theatrical releases, consumer products, a Tony award-winning Broadway musical and a global fan base. SpongeBob SquarePants is the most widely distributed property in Viacom International Media Networks history, seen in

First Gay president could be on the horizon

...And I don't mean that he's a jolly good fellow

America is on the brink of having its first Gay president ...and I don't mean that he's a jolly good fellow. I am not against the LGBTQ community at all, just explaining how this modern miracle of the 2020 electorate will happen.

A precedent for president. First: The Democrats choose Kamala Harris, Elizabeth Warren or Joe Biden as their presidential nominee.

I'll start with Harris. She is a Black woman and will possibly choose South Bend Indiana Mayor Pete Buttigieg who is Gay. She will do this to garner a few million votes from the LGBTQ community. Even though most of that community vote Democrat anyway, this is Harris' way of pandering to the White male vote and the ultra left at the same time.

That's right. For the first time in the history of American presidential politics, the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Queer community will have a major impact on the 2020 race for several reasons, but one stands out above all the others: South Bend, Indiana Mayor Pete Buttigieg is the first openly Gay contender from any major party ever.

That makes him a sure fit for any progressive Democrat to pick him as a vice presidential running mate.

My scenario is simple, but ultimately tragic. Buttigieg is the darling of the left and of diversity-files on the left because not only is he Gay, but he is only one of two combat veterans running for office on the "blue" side of the ledger.

A White male, mayor of a moderately-sized city famous for Notre Dame football, he comes into the battle for the nomination "punching above his weight" in that he represents a major breakthrough in the civil rights of the LGBTQ community.

As vice president, should the top of his ticket be victorious, Buttigieg would be next in line to the presidency should his boss, the president, die while in office.

I would not think Jumping Joe Biden would choose another White male because he would end up alienating far too many liberals of color and/or gender conscious, preferring a female be chosen.

I'm thinking that Kamala Harris or Elizabeth Warren might want Buttigieg on their ticket to balance the sexes - so to speak.

South Bend, Indiana has had its racial problems, but at least Buttigieg has some experience dealing with city (realpolitik) politics.

Tough, street level, practical political decisions and alliances are paramount at the city level and may well be Buttigieg's greatest strength.

The other candidates are senators, governors or business-types who don't have much of that grassroots experience, except for one or two former mayors.

Republicans beware. Some guy named Obama was a social activist in Chicago before his ascension to becoming the most powerful man on earth.

Harris or Warren may very well choose Buttigieg and through fate, luck circumstance or serendipity, he may be in line to become the first Gay president of the most powerful and richest nation.

I'm not saying that it would be a bad thing, just incredibly weird to comprehend. Another thought to ponder: There are so-called Log Cabin Republicans who may desert the GOP and vote for Buttigieg's ticket rather than vote for a seemingly homophobic Trump.

Log Cabin Republicans exist in the shadows of the main party, but no one will ever know how loyal they are if given the choice between Trump or an obviously pro-LGBTQ ticket the Dems may through into the fray come 2020.

In either case, I believe having diversity to choose from is a healthy form of Democracy, but I don't think the Dems will win.

Americans have 3,000 choices of things to drink, why not a few rainbows in a sea of White as candidates?

Think about this: First we had the first Black president (actually mixed race), then the first mobster president (German-American strong man) and then the chance of the first women president, Harris or Warren. She then dies in a tragic car accident, plane crash, shooting or explosion of her limo. Then we will have the first Gay president.

Buttigieg's ascendancy to the throne may harken the greatest sexually liberating revolution in the history of man, or it may never happen as American voters recoil in horror at the thought of two men sharing the same bed in the White House and yes, Pete Buttigieg is married to another man, Chasten Buttigieg.

It's kinda fun to dream of the future and what may be. Of course I watch too much television, but ain't life grand with possibilities!

Imagine when Buttigieg's wife runs off to a spouse-only fashion show and comes back with a snazzy suit from Lord & Taylor while the others are wearing Chanel?

I hope I live to see another precedent-setter enter the White House. A Lesbian Jew Rhodes Scholar talk show host --- where are you Rachel?

Appeals Court asked to reconsider its bizarre income tax ruling

By Jason Mercier

Some rulings are so bizarre you give the court a chance to fix them before appealing to a higher court. Such is the case with the recent Court of Appeals ruling on Seattle's income tax. That Court has officially been asked to reconsider the part of its ruling declaring the explicit 1984 local income tax ban unconstitutional and saying that local governments have already been given permission to impose an income tax.

Led by former State Supreme Court Chief Justice Gerry Alexander, former Associate Justice Phil Talmadge and former Attorney General Rob McKenna, plaintiffs filed an extensive brief painstakingly pointing out the errors of the Courts original ruling. Included in the brief are the transcripts from the 1984 public hearings and floor debates on the law explicitly banning a local income tax. The brief also points out that the state Supreme Court has already repeatedly ruled that income is "intangible personal property." This is important because the Appeals Court "refused" to read income into the exemption against taxing intangible personal property.

As explained by the motion for reconsideration:

"The City cannot tax income pursuant to RCW 35.22.280(2) as intangible property because, after 1977 amendments, RCW 84.36.070 bars ad valorem taxation on all such property, and in any event the city cannot impose property taxes without providing the specific dollar amount to the auditor to include within the restrictions on total tax calculations.

In addition, SSB 4313, enacting RCW 36.65.030, satisfies the single-subject analysis of Article 2, Section 19 because each of the six sections address the city-county form of government, particularly in light of Washington Constitution Article 11, Section 16 which requires all prohibitions on that form of local government also to apply equally to every other city and county."

The Court has given Seattle until Sept. 23 to file its response.

While this case continues its legal journey, don't fall asleep on the election this November in Spokane. Voters there will be considering a charter amendment to prohibit a local income tax no matter what happens with this case.

As a reminder, Washingtonians have already rejected six proposed constitutional amendments to allow a graduated income tax. In fact, 10 straight income tax ballot measures have been rejected.

odd that County Commissioners have stated publicly that "we are in the early stages of drafting this proposal." Pfluger commented, "Typically a hearing in front of the Planning Commission takes place near the end of the process, with their recommendation being forwarded to the County Commissioners for adoption or rejection."

He concluded, "It is our position that the county needs to go back to the drawing board on this issue. Unfortunately at this point parties on both sides of the issue are dug in and there doesn't seem to be much interest in coming together in an effort to reach a workable solution."

A large group of meeting attendees wearing bright yellow T-shirts, members of the Short Term Rental Alliance of Chelan County, or STRACC, were in attendance to show solidarity in favor of less draconian regulations.

One member, Tom Latta of Auburn, claimed that the Chelan County Sheriff's Office has only had "two complaints in two years in regards to tenants of rental properties."

Latta said the SCSO responded to area hotels and motels at a far greater rate. The irony of Chelan County having two major destination resort towns, Leavenworth and the Lake Chelan area, is that both areas spend a small fortune to attract tourists every year and those advertisements have been successful.

Some short term rentals easily cost $400 a day with higher rates during festivals, especially Leavenworth's Oktoberfest, Christmas Lightning and Chelan's Ice Festival and summer lake season.

Though the massive influx of money is great for business owners, some residents aren't too happy with what they perceive as lax enforcement of ordinances by the town councils. The CCSO is the only law enforcement entity these towns have, but civil zoning enforcement is a matter for each town to figure out for themselves. Now there is the possibility that the CCPC will move to take care of short term rentals that exist out of town boundaries, but in the county.

It is that board's job to make recommendations to the Chelan County Commissioners for any suggested policies to be enacted into law.

Keep reading the Leavenworth Echo, Cashmere Valley Record and the Lake Chelan Mirror for the next installment about this contentious issue.

“The Elephant Man” by Bernard Pomerance has been recognized with a Tony, an Obie, Drama Desk Award, and a New York Drama Critics Circle Based on the real life of John Merrick, the story is a powerful and poignant look at both humanity and inhumanity, of the suffering and stigma endured by a man whose only way of survival was by appearing as a freak in a touring show of physical curiosities. He was the butt of terrified screams, stares of revulsion, finger-pointing, name-calling, and actual physical abuse. A story of heart and heartache, The Elephant Man will bring a tear to your eye, leaving the audience reflecting on our own view of ‘normality’, and imagining how we would feel in Merrick’s shoes.

In Memoriam Joan Ann DeVries

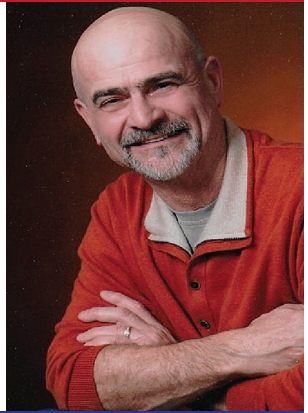

Wenatchee (Formerly of Leavenworth)
Joan A. DeVries passed away on August 16, 2019 in Wenatchee after a long and brave battle with Multiple Sclerosis. Joan was born in San Francisco in 1941 to Haral and Ella Hansen. She graduated from Talmajias High School in Mill Valley, CA. Several scholarships enabled her to attend Whittier College in southern California where she met her husband. She and Peter were married in December of 1959. One of their first dates was to see Nat King Cole, making Unforgettable their favorite song. Joan and Peter had three wonderful children--a daughter and two sons. They were blessed with 57 years together before Peter's passing in 2017. Joan was a devoted wife and mother. Her life journey with Peter took her from Whittier to Chico, CA., where she graduated with honors from California State University, Chico with a degree in English Literature. In 1972 they moved to Ukiah, CA. where her husband was the founding president of Mendocino Community College. Peter's career then took them to Big Bend Community College in Moses Lake, Washington. At that time, the college had extensive overseas programs, enabling them to travel to Europe numerous times and also to Japan. In 1987 they made Leavenworth their retirement home and appreciated every day that they lived in such a beautiful part of the world. They continued their European trips until MS took its toll and Joan was no longer able to travel. Joan's special interests included hiking and backpacking, where she treasured the privilege of seeing the beauty of God's creation. Gardening was another favorite activity, especially growing dahlias so that she could surprise people with bouquets. For 13 years she worked at the Wood Shop in Leavenworth with ladies who became lifelong friends. She belonged to a women's running group in Leavenworth (known as the Lightfooters) and loved the morning runs from the Gazebo in town, and gathering for coffee after their run. She entered fun runs and half marathons and participated in Relay for Life for a number of years. Joan also organized and developed the library at the Nazarene Church in Leavenworth. Joan is survived by her daughter, Kerry (John) Harrington; her son, David (Marya) DeVries, and her son, Glen DeVries; as well as two half-sisters, Bonnie and Margaret. She had eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild. A Memorial Service will be held at 11:00 a.m., Sept. 9, at Light in the Valley Community Church in Peshastin, 8455 Main Street. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to The Dwelling Place, 12686 Shore St., Leavenworth, WA., 98826 (see www.dwellingplaceleavenworth.org). Arrangements by Chapel of the Valley, Wenatchee.

Decoy set, a dove hunter waits for the birds to arrive – John Kruse

By JOHN KRUSE

Sept. 1 is opening day for dove hunting, a season much more popular in years past than it is now. Mourning Dove are migratory birds, here for the summer and gone with the first frost though there are a few tough ones that remain into the winter months.

For many hunters, dove provide a fun warm-up for the season ahead. It's an opportunity to fire a few (or a lot) of shells at birds that can be surprisingly hard to hit not only because of their smaller size but also because of their acrobatic maneuvers.

The dove opener is also a social event. The competitiveness seen amongst duck hunters racing to their favorite spot to beat out other hunters isn't really a factor here. In fact, fast friends can be made in a dove field and the more eyes the better when it comes to spotting these birds as they approach. Add to the fact that several hunters may shoot at any given bird before anyone manages to hit their target and some good-natured laughing at the misses and congratulations at the clean hits are often the norm.

Then there are the dogs. Like their owners, it is usually the first hunt of the season and the excitement is palpable. During the dove opener you'll likely see a variety of hunting breeds racing to sniff out and retrieve these birds after a successful shot; not an easy task given dove give off very little scent. It being the first of September, it is important to keep your dog hydrated with plenty of water and don't over work that pup as the heat of the day comes on.

Hunter orange is not required for dove hunting and camouflage clothing does help. Another tactic involves the use of dove decoys. Put a few on barbed wire fences or bare tree limbs and you'll be in a good position to attract some dove your way hoping to roost near them. Shotguns favored by hunters range from 12 gauge to 28 gauge. Light loads (#8 in lead shot or #7 1/2 to #6 in steel shot), work well on these birds.

What makes a good dove location? Quite often, a freshly cut wheat or alfalfa field will bring in flocks of mourning dove intent on feeding. If you can find good roosting locations bordering these fields such as trees or a nearby water source, you'll likely be in for a very good hunt. In years past the Washington Dept. of Fish and Wildlife allowed farmers to plant crops dove and other wildlife were attracted to in select State Wildlife Management Areas but that is rare now due to budget constraints. This means knocking on doors and getting permission from farmers to hunt on their land is often the best way to secure a good hunting spot. Absent that, look for public land that abuts a farmer's field the birds are drawn to or find an area near ag fields with roosting trees or water sources on them like ponds and lakes.

Where should you go to find dove? You'll want to head East of the Cascades into Central and Eastern Washington. If you look at the harvest statistics from the last five years there are three counties, all of which have lots of agricultural land, that stand out. Grant County is year in and out the best place to go if you are after a limit of mourning dove but both Yakima and Franklin Counties offer excellent opportunities as well with some 8,000 to 9,000 birds taken by hunters every year. Walla Walla, Benton, Adams, Douglas and Spokane Counties are options too. Harvest numbers in these counties range from 1300 to 4000 birds each season.

Last, but not least, enjoy the harvest. There are several great recipes for dove ranging from apricot dove to dove kabobs to dove poppers. Google search any of these dishes for some great ideas on how to prepare these tasty birds which offer great table fare.

If you plan on going out for a mourning dove hunt, you'll need not only a small game license but also a state migratory bird permit. The season runs from September 1st through October 30th and the daily limit has expanded to 15 birds.

Chelan Ridge Hawkwatch Field Trip with the Wenatchee River Institute, Thurs. Oct. 3

SUBMITTED BY WENATCHEE RIVER INSTITUTE

Leavenworth and Chelan, WA. Each fall thousands of hawks, eagles, and falcons fly along a high ridge above Lake Chelan on their way to winter territories. Join Wenatchee River Institute for a field trip to the Chelan Ridge Hawkwatch International (HWI) observation point to witness this amazing spectacle. Chelan Ridge HWI is located in the USFS Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest.

Learn about raptor biology and hone your identification skills by assisting researchers as they count passing hawks!

During the excursion, you will hear from local biologists about the why of these migrations, as well as the how it all relates to habitat and land management. While visiting the field station, biologists will be working the trapping blind providing for a rare, close-up opportunity to witness a live bird capture, banding, and release. Participants will also gather data in an effort to glean information about the health of North America's raptor populations.

After exploratory surveys in 1997 at Chelan Ridge HawkWatch, in partnership with the USFS Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest in 1998 HWI began annual counts at the Chelan Ridge site. These counts helped to monitor the raptors and learn more about their migration through the East Cascades of Washington State within the Pacific Coast Flyway. HWI has been banding raptors at Chelan Ridge since 2001, while also using the site to conduct satellite-tracking research.

Each season, counts typically range between 2,000-3,000 migrating birds of up to 17 species. The most commonly seen species are the Sharp-shinned Hawk, Red-tailed Hawk, Cooper's Hawk, Northern Harrier, Golden Eagle, and American Kestrel.

Field Trip Cost: WRI-Members $45, Non-Member $60, with WRI Otter Van transportation included. Participants will leave from the Wenatchee River Institute campus in Leavenworth at 8 a.m., or from the Penny Road Park & Ride in Wenatchee at 8:45am. Please pack a lunch, snacks and water, and be prepared to hike for 30 minutes at approximately 6000 feet elevation.

Leavenworth Rotary Names Rotarian of the Year

Submitted by Ken Kohnhorst

(L-R) Penny Carpenter presents Mahala Murphy-Martin the award as Leavenworth Rotarian of the Year for 2018-2019. Mahala Murphy-Martin joined Rotary in April of 2016. In 2017 she joined Annual Fundraiser Committee and in 2018 she became Chair of this annual fundraiser event known as Rotaryfest and still is serving in that capacity. She has served two years on the Board of Directors.

LEAVENWORTH ROTARY NEWS 2019-2020 EXCHANGE STUDENT

Each year Leavenworth Rotary Club hosts a student to live and study in our community. This year is a banner year for Leavenworth Rotary; as we are pleased to host a wonderful young lady from Finland- Mikaela Räsänen Mikaela is currently a senior at Cascade High School and is looking forward to participating in all the school offers and to enjoy her host family and of course all that Leavenworth offers.

Back in Finland she attends a Swedish speaking school even though her native language is Finnish. She also speaks English and French. In junior high she was Chairman of student council and the same now in her high school. Upon graduation she hopes to apply to medical school and become a surge.

Outdoors sports are of great interest to her, and she and her family do wind surfing and both downhill and cross country skiing. She looks forward to doing the same here in Leavenworth.

As for her home life in Finland her father is a Goldsmith and owns his own Jewelry store. Her mother works as a business controller. She has one sibling and that is her 14 year old brother Rene. Leavenworth Rotary wishes her well and looks forward to her having a great time as she is immersed in our culture.

The Grand Orator was asked to say a few words giving a brief history of cornerstone ceremonies mentioning that George Washington dedicated the cornerstone for the White House then stating "Cornerstones signify a beginning, a starting point and are a base for a solid foundation for which to build on." Superintendent Tracey Beckendorf-Edou was then asked to come up and say a few words. She thanked everyone for being there and stated that the school was world-class facility that really showed how much people in the area valued the children. Principal Emily Ross was next to come to the podium saying "We have a spirit of 'we can do it' with everything that we do. We start every single day off with 'we can do it!' and every single student shouts back 'yes we can!'" She then stated that the school was a testament from the community and everyone who helped construct it. Next to speak was school-board member Brenda Biebsheimer who thanked the community for being supportive of the school.

After the ceremony, principal Emily Ross gave the attendees a tour of the revamped school. Looking more like a college campus than an elementary school, the facilities were truly impressive. Featuring a new computer facility, new and re-modeled classrooms, many of the attendees who were alumni marveled at the changes with one of the Masons declaring, "No wonder kids nowadays are smarter than us." All in all it was an interesting and informative ceremony and the tour of the school proved that the money that went to re-vamping the school was certainly well spent.

Public 'moving art exhibit' wants you!

SUBMITTED BY SELINA DANKO

Link Transit is seeking participants in a moving art exhibit for the Sept. 6 First Friday ArtsWalk. The moving art exhibit consists of t-shirts with special fish prints created with guidance from Wenatchee artist Lisa Robinson on the grounds of the Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery.

The free workshop will take place from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5 and the time commitment involves commuting by Link Transit bus. Participants are invited to wear their fish print t-shirt art creation as part of a moving art exhibit during the Sept. 6 First Friday ArtsWalk.

Anyone who posts a picture on social media with a person in a fish-print shirt and tags Link Transit will be entered in a drawing to win fun prizes.

The moving art exhibit participant with the most social media postings also will receive a special prize.

The trip to Leavenworth and the fish printing activity are free and open to the public. Space is limited. There will be some walking over uneven trails as part of the art experience, which includes a tour of the hatchery.

To register for hatchery trip and artist experience, call Selina Danko, 509-664-7624 or email sdanko@linktransit.com. Free Link Transit service begins at 4 p.m. on all First Fridays on routes 1, 5, 7, 8E, 8W, 11 & 12.

Q I saw a bottle of boric acid powder at my local drugstore. What is boric acid used for?

Boric acid is a mineral salt of boron, first used as a medicine in 1702 and still used today as an anti-infective and preservative. Causing lethal boron poisoning when taken internally, boric acid is widely used as a pesticide and to preserve wood as well as in trace amounts as a food additive to protect against yeasts and molds. Because it rarely causes irritation to the skin or eyes boric acid is also used to preserve cosmetics.

Boric acid and its close cousin borax are found all over the world, with the largest deposits in Peru, the Middle East, and California. Borax is found in plants, seawater, mineral springs and hot springs. The main source of borax in the United States lies in deposits in the sandy deserts of California near Death Valley.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved the use of boric acid as a soothing eyewash for irritated eyes and also as eardrops to treat external ear infections. It's an active ingredient in Collyrium® for Fresh Eyes and Advanced Eye Relief®. Although not approved by the FDA, boric acid is also considered an alternative to more traditional treatments for persistent yeast and bacterial vaginal infections.

I use boric acid powder as a non-toxic flea killer. If one of my 3 Scottish Terriers start scratching after a trip to the vet or staying at a boarding kennel, I sprinkle boric acid powder liberally onto their bedding and where they like to lay down, working it in so it can't be licked off or inhaled. It's not an instant fix, but with just one application they quit scratching within 3 days. I wait for at least a week before washing the boric acid treated bedding and vacuuming it out of the carpet.

Boric acid has also been used with success as an alternative treatment for vaginal yeast infections and bacterial vaginosis.

Bacterial vaginosis (BV) is a condition that causes a nasty fishy-smelling vaginal discharge. BV is caused by a lack of a certain kind of friendly bacteria called Lactobacillus. If your vaginal population of Lactobacillus is killed off by antibiotics, it can allow fewer friendly organisms to multiply and take over. It's like if you remove an unwanted plant from your garden, other plants will often start moving into that space. When the organisms replacing Lactobacillus in your vagina multiply, they create byproducts which irritate your vaginal lining, creating a foul-smelling discharge and intense itching.

Although specific antibiotics will kill off the excess bacteria causing BV, the lack of friendly Lactobacillus bacteria often triggers recurrent BV infections. Some clinicians believe that boric acid can be a possible alternative to using antibiotics in BV because it not only kills off the unfriendly bacteria triggering BV's fishy discharge but helps reestablish friendly Lactobacillus in your vaginal tract, preventing BV recurrence.

Boric acid can treat vaginal yeast infections because it enhances the acidity of your vaginal tissue, encouraging the re-establishment of Lactobacillus and helping restore a healthy balance of vaginal microbes.

When used for yeast or BV vaginal infections, boric acid is NEVER taken by mouth because at that dose, it's poisonous. Boric acid containing capsules are inserted into the vaginal tract, much like a suppository. Ready-to-use boric acid capsules can be hard to find; you can look for them at a compounding pharmacy or make them yourself at home. Start with empty size 0 gelatin capsules, available either online or at a pharmacy or veterinary supply store. Sprinkle a thick layer of boric acid powder on a clean flat surface and pick up the shorter of the two halves of an empty gelatin capsule. Turning it upside down with the opening toward the powder, push down into the powder like you are cutting biscuits from rolled out dough. Lift up the capsule and repeat until the capsule fills up with powder, then pick up the empty other half of the capsule and push it over the powder-filled half. Done!

To treat a yeast infection, insert one boric acid capsule vaginally twice a day for 2 weeks. If treating BV, insert one capsule vaginally 1-2 times daily for 2 weeks. Some women may need long-term treatment, usually as one capsule vaginally twice a week at bedtime for several months. Keep boric acid capsules in a cool, dry place and well separated from your other medicines to avoid accidental poisoning from swallowing them.

As of the date of the filing of a copy of this notice with the court, the notice agent has no knowledge of any other person acting as notice agent or of the appointment of a personal representative of the decedent's estate in the State of Washington. According to the records of the court as are available on the date of the filing of this notice with the court, a cause number regarding the decedent has not been issued to any other notice agent and a personal representative of the decedent's estate has not been appointed. Any person having a claim against the decedent must, before the time the claim would be barred by any otherwise applicable statute of limitations, present the claim in the manner as provided in RCW 11.42.070 by serving on or mailing to the notice agent or the notice agent's attorney at the address stated below a copy of the claim and filing the original of the claim with the court in which the notice agent's declaration and oath were filed. The claim must be presented within the later of: (1) Thirty days after the notice agent served or mailed the notice to the creditor as provided under RCW 11.42.020(2)(c); or (2) four months after the date of first publication of the notice. If the claim is not presented within this time frame, the claim is forever barred, except as otherwise provided in RCW 11.42.050 and 11.42.060. This bar is effective as to claims against both the decedent's probate and nonprobate assets.

DATE OF FIRST PUBLICATION: August 21, 2019

The notice agent declares under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of Washington on 21st day of August, 2019, at Wenatchee, Washington, that the foregoing is true and correct.
