Drought Effects News Release

SUBMITTED BY ANTHONY D. JANTZER SECRETARY, MANAGER, Icicle & Peshastin Irrigation Districts

The Icicle & Peshastin Irrigation Districts believe that they will have to start prorating water deliveries to the water users that receive water from the Peshastin Main Canal soon if things continue on their current course.

This means that we will reduce the maximum instantaneous delivery flow from 6.75 gallons per minute (GPM) per share (acre) to 4.5 GPM. It is hard to know when this will happen.

Peshastin Creek does not currently have enough water in it to meet current water demands. We can and are bringing water from the Icicle Creek and delivering it into the Peshastin canal.

The pipe that takes water from the Icicle Canal to the Peshastin canal can handle about 15 Cubic Feet Per Second or about 6700 GPM and is currently transporting about 10 CFS

Once that pipe is maxed out and the end of the canal goes dry, we will have to cut water use on the canal to make sure that we can get an equal amount to all water users.

Our farmers are doing a good job with their water use. We would normally be using about 48 CFS at this time and are currently only using about 36 CFS.

If they were trying to use their normal amount of water, we would already by rationing water.

The better job they do, will push back the need for prorating. especially those serviced by the Peshastin Main

Canal to conserve water. This is a critical time for crops, and we all need to do our best to make sure that water gets to where it is needed.

We do not believe that we will have to prorate any of the other water users. We have started releasing water from the reservoirs.

The reservoirs started out about 2000-acre feet below full this year (approximately 20,000 AF max capacity).

Eight Mile Lake was not allowed to fill all the way due to the condition of the dam and the water shed above it; Snow Lake did not fill due to the lack of snow above it.

The water sheds in our area are tracking at about 70 percent of normal.

The Icicle & Peshastin Irrigation Districts have a facebook page that we post things like this.

If you have questions feel free to call the office at 782-2561 or the manager at 433-4064.

Classic cars cruise through Leavenworth on their way to Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance.

By Brandi Charles

Billed as the "ultimate road trip for enthusiasts with automobiles" the Pebble Beach Motoring Classic made a pit stop in Leavenworth on Tuesday, August 5.

Starting near Seattle, the classic covers approximately 1,500 miles winding through a multitude of terrains including mountains, beaches and countryside on it's way to Pebble Beach automotive week.

Twenty-eight parking spots downtown were cleared to make viewing for spectators and participants safe and convenient and also as a way to view these automotive spectacles from all angles Leavenworth was featured as one of the 12 highlights of the tour that included such marvels as Crater Lake, Mount Hood and the Golden Gate Bridge.

Dan and Monica Rodriguez were visiting town from Seattle and were glad to come across the tour.

"I never would have expected to see something like this up here," Dan delighted as he checked out a vintage gray Mercedes, "this is very impres-

While Monica confessed that she could hardly be called a car enthusiast, she admits that the show was one of the highlights of their trip to Leavenworth, "Dan's definitely the motorist of the family, all I know how to do is fill up the gas tank and kick the tires."

One thing that is clear is that to participate in the Pebble Beach Motoring Classic, one has to be much more than just a vintage car enthusiast.

The love and dedication that it takes to upkeep not only the appearance of the vehicle, but to keep them in working order for the 1,500 mile journey takes true passion and the price tags are nothing to scoff at.

The total cost of participating in the Classic starts at $13,000 for 9-Day

Salmon Spawning Starts New Generation at Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery

SUBMITTED BY JULIA PINNIX

August is an exciting month at Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery This is when our next generation of salmon gets its start. This year, 472 females and 469 males await their opportunity to spawn in the next few weeks.

We raise 1.2 million spring Chinook salmon every year for release into Icicle Creek. Releases happen in April, and the young smolt swim 500 miles downstream, through seven dams, and out into the Pacific Ocean.

Half will die before reaching the sea. The other half are on their own, heading north to the Bering Sea to feed and grow for another one to four

Leavenworth fish are very faithful: they find their way back to the Columbia River when they feel the urge to spawn, and travel all the way upstream and through those seven dams to reach Icicle Creek and enter our holding ponds, following their acute sense of smell and their memory of the journey out. Leavenworth's stray rate is

Spring Chinook are named for their habit of returning in spring, even though they won't actually spawn until exceptionally low.

This timing may seem odd

– until you take a walk beside Icicle Creek right now and have a look at the low water level. Now is not the time to migrate into the high, cold streams Chinook salmon prefer. A spring arrival means there is plenty of water, and the fish can get well up into the headwaters of their preferred home stream. Then they find a cool pool, and wait.

Why not lay eggs in spring? Because summer is coming, with its high water temperatures and shallow depths. That's a lousy time to be an egg. Laying eggs in August instead means the salmon

What has happened to the Democrat Party?

The Democrats have always been the party of the left. The party of "progressive" ideas. The party that promises to look out for the little guy, the working people. At least, that is how they describe themselves. While that is what they claim to be, the current crop of political hopefuls are totally focused on bribing voters or threatening Armageddon if voters don't return them to power.

Let's just take a look at the list of characters.

Leading candidate Joe Biden is proposing to expand Obamacare, embrace the green new deal, and reform the justice system. He's short on details and long on gaffs. Someone is going to begin to question Joe's age and stamina but he is the most seasoned and well known Democrat on the campaign right now. The big question for Democrats is, can he win against Trump?

Behind Biden are two extremely left candidates who are in a dead heat for second place both polling at about 20 percent. As of last Friday, Elizabeth Warren was polling at 19 percent and Bernie Sanders is at 20 percent. Both seem to be competing for who is the farthest left. Both are promising single payer health care through a program they call "Medicare for All." Both are promising free college including free tuition for illegal aliens. Both want significant restrictions to gun ownership. Warren has even proposed creating her own government owned drug manufacturing company to compete with private industry and she would ban all private insurance companies.

Behind these two candidates California Senator Kamala Harris is currently polling at 9 percent of Democrats. Harris is followed by the Mayor of South Bend Indiana, Pete Buttigieg who is polling at 8 percent. After that is a bevy of other candidates who are struggling to poll more than 1 percent each including Washington's own Governor Jay Inslee.

Nearly all espouse an ever growing list of free stuff, a takeover of more of America's latest unpopular private industries and more regulation of our daily lives. This is an old Democrat scam to win elections by bribing voters or pandering to those who feel victimized by the established American system.

The other Washington has been grabbing more and more control over our lives for decades. Democrats and many of their Republican partners are sensing a growing loss of control. Having been defeated by an outsider who is unraveling the established DC order, they are reverting to their time tested methods of regaining it.

The problem is they never examine the effectiveness of their current programs. They create huge bureaucracies that are continually expanding control of our daily lives while never being held accountable for their failures.

Let's just look at one example of the failure of the Federal Bureaucracy – Education. The Federal government took over education in this country with the formation of the Department of Education. Ask yourself, has education improved as a result?

I would posit that our young people today are less informed on issues of how our system of government works or even basic scientific principles than at any time in our history.

Today our youth willingly attack the American concept of freedom of speech demanding that we must never say anything that could hurt someone's feelings. Today our young people see the Electoral College as an impediment to our elections. Today our young people push for socialism despite obvious examples of how it has never worked and has often ended badly.

Today our youth buy into the concept of a dying planet despite growing scientific arguments that suggest Global Climate change is nothing more than a political hoax. They readily dismiss any evidence from true environmental scientists that challenge the concept of carbon dioxide as a pollutant that must be eliminated, as the ranting of greedy corporate sycophants.

Many of our youth have become so indoctrinated by the educational establishment about the coming end of the world that they are declining to have children. This should be considered a national tragedy.

I do not fault the young people who have become rabid environmentalists for their enthusiasm in supporting a cleaner natural environment. I fault an educational system that has failed to teach them to be critical thinkers.

President Eisenhower once said, "beware the military industrial complex." Today we should be saying, "Beware the government education complex."

What we truly need is more competition in our educational system. We need to abolish the government monopoly of education. We need school vouchers and we need to shut down the Federal Department of Education. It has become a propaganda machine for the Federal government.

Do not take this as an indictment of teachers. They are victims of the monopoly. The problem here is education has been politicized. Our system

Democrats today are saying no one, even the president is above the law. So my question is, how come illegals are?

will continue to drift more toward socialism until we remove the power of the federal government to influence the curriculum through their control of funding.

The answer to what has happened to the Democrats is they have become drunk with power. They will do anything to get it back. They will destroy this great republic and bankrupt the country with their schemes to increase their power over us.

In the current election it is most likely that either Sanders or Warren will win the primary as the other candidates, who will be unable to command a dominant lead, will swing their support to one of them. Old Joe will most likely fade as the socialists begin to attack him as the status quo.

The American people must reject the insanity being offered by the Democrats. They are not going to see the light of their out of touch ideas until they have been thoroughly rejected - numerous times.

School starts soon... be aware of kids

It may be a tired old cliche, but it is always a word to the wise - school starts soon so watch out for kids. That includes watching out for school buses, traffic monitors and safety patrols as well as speed limits in school zones.

While school gun violence dominates the news, the quiet statistics of student deaths due to car accidents should always be top of mind. Our rush-about society has always been wary of pedestrians, but this time of the year it is even more important to be cautious of the little kids who aren't necessarily used to walking in high traffic

It is unfortunate so many parents choose to drive their kids to school, causing much more congestion than needed. Taxpayers pay for school buses, not exactly a cheap purchase, so more parents ought ride them. Riding the bus is another way of "socializing" your children. Call it tough love or whatever you want, the more children are insulated from their fellow students, the easier it is to become alienated from them which could eventually lead to anti-social behaviors such as violent acting out.

I am not a "shrink", but I play one in this column. Think about this, Little Johnny spends his entire life being "protected" from other Little Johnnies until one day they are forced to actually meet each other. This interaction should not look like a man among Martians, but simply as one child to another sharing interests and ideas, heroes and villains.

Constantly protecting your child will only lead to that child having an unwarranted fear of the rest of the world even if only from lack of interaction. Lack of familiarity with anything is an easy way to breed fear due to simple ignorance. We all want Little Johnny to grow up one day to be Einsteinlike, then let them explore the world and discover things for themselves. The good, bad and ugly. Eventually this will lead to an ability to make sound judgments as to right and wrong. At least that's the theory.

To make matters worse, many teens and adult drivers are habitually texting and/or talking on their cell phones, thus not paying full attention to pedestrians, especially the smallest among us. Perhaps these drivers too, were overprotected as youngsters? Ignoring the reality of driving a car because of the false reality of a "must have" conversation is inherently dangerous.

Washington state passed a law against "distracted driving" and the citizenry best pay attention. Just as in the old days when seat belts were first introduced, many drivers ignored the need for them. Finally laws were passed and tickets were handed out to violators.

The same thing will start happening to those addicted to texting and/or talking while driving. No parent, sibling or grand parent wants to attend a funeral this coming school year. It should be a time of celebration and achievement for all our students, not hospital

Drivers who speed through school zones are committing "attempted murder" via vehicular homicide, but these are unnecessary crimes against the most innocent.

Just as in Smokey Bear advertisements, "only you" can prevent student/car incidents by paying attention to what you're doing behind the wheel. The future of America is literally in your hands when you take the wheel and drive in a school zone. Govern vourself accordingly.

Mountain Sprouts builds growth through art and nature

Mountain Sprouts Children's Community (MSCC) is the brainchild of a small and determined group of Upper Valley parents that desired an option for full and partial child care for their children and also appreciated the value of a preschool education.

After researching and realizing that what they were looking for was not available to them, they set out to create a program that fit their needs themselves.

The group wanted learning to be art, nature and motionfocused and to be overseen by experienced and certified instructors. Once they had the basic overview of what they wanted the school to be, the next task was to find a setting where students could explore their environment and learn through interaction with

Since Mountain Sprouts was to be a "children's community" and not just a school, the founders knew that location was not only important for the growth and development of the children, but also to the success of their grand vision.

After securing a space at Tierra Learning Center's "Art Barn," next came the work of attaining state licensing, which these determined parents were able to attain in record time.

Achieving non-profit status in June 2011, MSCC has operated as such ever since. Now housed in a new location at tute, MSCC is able to provide programs emphasizing the cultivation of curious minds, strong spirits, growing bodies and caring hearts by utilizing the natural world.

The philosophy of the organization is: "We envision a community where children learn experience and exploration. Children have a natural curiosity and drive to understand the world around them. As parents and educators we aim to be guides on their journey to adulthood to promote their innate abilities and interests. We dream that all children in our community will have this support through their education and development." Mountain Sprouts Chiloffer three distinct programs to serve the needs of the students and their caregivers.

Understanding that many families cannot afford to hire in-home help, may lack confidence in the curriculum of traditional early education programs and probably don't have the luxury of having Grandma and Grandpa near by, the Evergreen program is a flexible option.

"The full-day program supports working families. With long days for young students we flex our indoor and outdoor time depending on the season, the day and the feel of the students."

The Evergreen program includes a pre-school class for potty-trained children aged for children aged two and up.

Another offering from MSCC is the Willow program, described as their "in town, drop in style, nature immersion program."

Emphasis on the changing of the seasons directs the activities of this curriculum. Instructors use a hands-on method to encourage the children to create their own art projects, plant gardens and examine the surrounding flora and fauna.

Options for the Willow program include a preschool class for potty-trained (unless prevented by disability) children aged three to five as well as a class for kindergarten and first graders aged five to seven.

A special addition to this program is the free "Family Explorers" class, where adults joining a child are treated to the experience of learning how a nature immersion education works. Finally, the Mountain Sprouts Children's Community offers a summer camp.

New for Summer 2019, it "hosts fun, educational camps, where kids get to be kids, in the only place to spend summer... OUTSIDE!!"

With different camps and classes with titles such as "The Food Lab," Buggy World" and "3-2-1 Blast Off," campers are afforded instruction in a variety of topics and subjects to explore, ensuring that the children will always be entertained and their caretakers won't have to hear those five dreaded words "I don't 'wanna go back!'

Nason Creek Restoration Field Trip Scheduled

Nason Creek is considered the top priority for habitat restoration the the Wenatchee sub-basin.

Learning about a critical floodplain reconnection project

SUBMITTED BY WRI

Wenatchee River Institute and Jennifer Hadersberger, Senior Natural Resource Specialist for Chelan County Natural Resources Dept., will lead a field trip to the Nason Creek Floodplain Reconnection Project on Sat., Sept. 7, 9 am-12 noon.

During the late 1950s, approximately 1-mile of Nason Creek, located south of Lake Wenatchee, was constricted into a narrow channel to protect Chelan PUD power lines to the north, and the BNSF railroad to the south.

The Nason Creek Floodplain Reconnection Project removed ½ mile of this river levee, relocating 1400 feet of the main stem into a new meandering alignment, and reconnected 30 acres of the channel migration zone. Site restoration of the more than 10-acre work area included seed collection within the Nason Creek watershed from over 15,000 native plants.

"This project is very unique because infrastructure has actually been moved out of the Nason Creek floodplain. Typically, projects like this try to work around infrastructure – not move it, in order to restore critical habitat. We were able to secure the funds for this project and Chelan Co. PUD was a willing partner." explains Hadersberger.

The restoration project's primary goalis to reconnect historic habitats. This will improve and increase salmon habitat, as well as the abundance and productivity of ESA-listed Upper Columbia River spring Chinook salmon and steelhead.

The Upper Columbia Region Biological Strategy and Recovery Plan have identified Nason Creek as the top priority for habitat restoration in the Wenatchee sub-basin.

About the magnitude of the Nason Creek project Hadersberger said, "It is really something to see a project that took 8-10 years of planning, a project that we worked on for so long and with a lot of >> stakeholder cooperation. We are already seeing changes in channel morphology (changes in river channel shape and direction over time)."

During the field trip the project will be explored, while Hadersberger recounts the story behind it all.

This visit may coincidewith fishspawning in the new channel (as they did last fall) and the appearance of redds (fish egg nests). Join us to watch and learn!

2019 Washington Apple Harvest Predicted to be 137.3 Million Boxes

State Tree Fruit Association (WSTFA) released its forecast for the 2019 Washington state fresh apple crop today.

The 2019 forecast is for a fresh pack crop of 137.3 million standard forty-pound boxes of fresh apples.

This is an 18 percent in-lion box crop.

"WSTFA members are expecting an ample 2019 apple crop with a good mix of varieties for today's market" said Jon DeVaney, WSTFA President.

"Favorable summer growing weather means that pecting a crop with excellent quality and finish."

Consumers will have many varieties of Washington apples to choose from. Gala is projected to be the most numerous variety in 2019 at 23% of production, with Red Delicious at a projected 20%.

by Fuji at 13% and Granny Smith at 12% of total produc-

This year Honeycrisp is forecast to come in at 12% of the total crop and Cripps Pink at 5%. Organic apple production is forecast to be 13% of the total, or 18.3 million boxes.

Although it should be noted that typically not all organic production is ultimately packed and marketed as organic.

This forecast is based on a survey of WSTFA members, and represents a best estimate of the total volume of apples that will eventually be packed and sold on the fresh market (excluding product sent to processor).

Apple harvest typically begins in August and continues into November, and as a result this forecast is still subject to several months of variable weather which can affect the final harvest total.

Heather Winthrop and her family decided to mirror their American summer vacation on the route of the Classic by checking it out at a few stops along the way.

"My husband and my boys really love all things automotive so we decided that this year we would have a bit of a different holiday than we would normally take."

Even though they wouldn't be going to the typical holiday stops like amusement parks, she explained that she was very happy with the decision "I've always wanted to see Seattle and the Golden Gate bridge, this really is a trip we'll never forget."

Heather also added that they were very happy to have discovered Leavenworth, "It's a great little town, one we wouldn't have even heard of if it weren't for the classic."

will hatch in autumn, a better time for them to survive as temperatures cool and fall rains raise the river levels.

Our hatchery fish are almost ready to lay their eggs. On Tuesday mornings in the second half of August, the entire staff turns out to help with spawning. Unlike their wild brethren, hatchery fish will have their eggs collected in bowls.

Each bowl will be fertilized with milt from two male salmon, ensuring a high degree of fertilization. The bowls are carefully driven to the nursery, where the eggs are washed and each bowl is emptied into trays designed for incubation.

Staff from the Mid-Columbia Fish and Wildlife Conservation Office (MCFWCO) take data on the spawned fish. Measurements, genetic samples, and scales are used to describe the

Additionally, each fish is put through devices that detect two types of tags that were implanted into the juvenile fish months before they were released. Coded wire tags, the width of a mechanical pencil lead, are collected and read under a microscope. Then the code is entered into a huge database that covers the entire Pacific Northwest.

Passive integrated transponder (PIT) tag information is also collected. These tags can bounce back signals and help us track our fish in real time as they return.

In addition, Fish Health veterinarians and staff take measurements and biological samples. For example, liver samples can indicate whether a female salmon was infected with bacterial kidney disease (BKD). BKD can be passed down to the eggs.

Since every female's eggs are kept in a separate tray, we can go back later and remove any unhealthy eggs without infecting the other batches.

Leavenworth's hatchery program is monitored and evaluated by the MCFWCO to make sure we get the best possible results. We want our hatchery fish to come back to our hatchery and not interbreed with wild fish.

Our production staff watches over them

closely, reporting any issues at once to our on-site Fish Health staff and working together to solve health problems rapidly. We support tribal hatchery programs by supplying space at our site and providing eggs during spawning season to be raised in other locations. When ocean conditions cooperate, our salmon offer commercial, tribal, and sport harvest as well as being a source of food for wildlife.

The fisheries of the Columbia River Basin are challenging to manage.

Hydroelectric and irrigation dams provide low-cost electricity for industry and residents, and water for millions of acres of agricultural land, forming the backbone of our economy and keeping the cost of living among the most affordable in the nation.

The economic infrastructure and our growing population put enormous pressure on our natural resources. Keeping salmon in our rivers is not easy and not without risk or cost; but it is a task that multiple partners – federal, state, and county agencies, tribes, public utility districts, cities, and communities - all work together to support.

We are proud to be part of this effort. And we welcome visitors to the hatchery to learn more and, if your timing is right, to watch the spawning and welcome the next generation of salmon to Leavenworth.

The Washington outdoors report

By John Kruse - Host of Northwestern OUTDOORS RADIO AND AMERICA OUTDOORS RADIO

Summer is slipping away. If you have a family and haven't gotten out to fish, hike, paddle or camp do so before the kids head back to school!

Saltwater fishing:

Crabbing is a great option and you don't need a boat to get in on the action. The marina at Westport is a fun place to go crabbing and several of the local fishing charter offices will rent out crab rings and sell you bait. Crabbing is open every day along the ocean coast year-round. In Puget sound you can crab off of any number of public piers at state, county and city parks north of Edmonds but crabbing in much of the Middle to South Sound from Seattle to Olympia (Marine Areas 10, 11, 13 and part of Marine Area 12) is closed for the summer and no crabbing is allowed anywhere in Puget Sound on Tuesdays or Wednesdays. Check the WDFW regulations for more details.

Freshwater fishing:

COLUMBIA RIVER–Early reports from guides fishing around Buoy 10 at the mouth of the river indicate there are good numbers of Chinook and Coho present and anglers are having success despite challenging tides the first few days of the season which opened August 1st.

WESTERN WASHINGTON-The crowds have thinned at Baker Lake where the sockeye salmon run this year is shaping up to be 25 percent lower than the last two years and much lower than the healthy runs seen in 2015 and 2016.

CENTRAL WASHINGTON-Heather Cruz at Bonaparte Lake Resort in Okanogan County says early morning has been good for tiger trout including an eightpound brute that was reeled in. Lots of smallmouth bass are being caught too including several three-pound bass caught off the resort dock.

EASTERN WASHINGTON-WDFW reports fishing is slow at SE Washington's Tucannon Lakes due to warm summer temperatures but Sprague Lake off of I-90 is fishing "really well" in the morning and late in the day for largemouth bass up to six pounds. There is also "pretty good" fishing for rainbow trout up to 22 inches long.

Hunting:

Several hunting seasons open up in September and now is the time to sight in your rifle, break some clay pigeons at your local skeet & trap club, or practice shooting that bow. It's also a good time to contact landowners and ask permission to hunt on their private property. Consider bearing gifts, offering to help with chores or promise to share the harvest in return for the privilege to hunt on their private land. It also helps to have references who will vouch for you being a good steward of the land you hunt on.

Hike/bike/paddle of the week:

HIDDEN LAKE near Lake Wenatchee in the Central Cascades may be the easiest mountain lake you'll ever walk to and is a great introduction to hiking for those who haven't done it before. From the trailhead near the south shore of Lake Wenatchee (Forest Service Recreation Pass required) you'll hike ¾ of a mile through towering pines and cedars to the outlet creek and the small woodlined lake. Cross the creek and walk a few yards to some large rocks near the water's edge which are perfect for a picnic or go left where you'll find an area used by overnight campers at the south end of the lake. Six things you need to know about vaccinations (STATEPOINT) misinformation continues to spread about vaccines, medical experts are reminding parents and the general public that vaccinations save lives.

"Overwhelming scientific evidence shows that vaccines are among the most effective, safest interventions to prevent illness and protect public health," says Dr. Patrice A. Harris, president of American Medical Association (AMA).

To help dispel misconceptions about vaccinations, the AMA is offering answers to six commonly asked questions.

1. Are vaccines safe? Yes, vaccines prevent individual illness and protect the health of the public. Currently, the U.S. has the safest vaccine supply in its history, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The most common side effects are typically very mild, such as pain or swelling at the injection

2. Is it true that if everyone else is vaccinated, my family doesn't need to be? No. Vaccines not only protect the child or adult who receive them, but also the health of their communities. Some people cannot be vaccinated -including very young children, cancer patients and those who are immunosuppressed. When immunization rates are high, people in these categories are protected because they're less likely to be exposed to the disease. As evident from recent measles outbreaks in several states, when individuals aren't immunized as a matter of personal preference or misinformation, they put themselves and others at risk

Be sure to check your immunization status and stay up-to-date with vaccines for you and

3. What vaccinations do my children need? Children should be vaccinated according to the recommended schedule of the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, which is designed to protect young children before they're likely to be exposed to potentially life-threatening diseases and when they're most vulnerable to serious infections. For the latestrecommendedchildhood vaccination schedule, visit cdc.gov/vaccines/schedules.

4. I don't want my children to get vaccine-preventable diseases. What's the earliest age they can be vaccinated? Children can receive their first flu vaccine starting at 6 months old. The recommended age for the first dose of measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR) vaccine is 12 to 15 months of age. If you live in a community experiencing an outbreak, or if you travel internationally, your baby may be vaccinated as early as 6 months of age. Talk to your pediatrician for additional information about when early vaccination may

5. I'm an adult, do I need to get vaccinated? Yes, adults need vaccines too. Sometimes immunity from childhood vaccines can wear off over time. Adults may also need vaccinations because of their age, job, travel and health conditions. Talk with your doctor to determine which vaccines you need, and visit www2a.cdc.gov/nip/ adultimmsched for an online assessment tool.

6. Hasn't the U.S. eradicated the major diseases that require vaccines? One of the country's greatest public health success stories is the remarkable decrease in infectious diseases as the result of vaccines. Unfortunately, that success has led some parents to stop vaccinating their children against diseases like measles, meningitis, polio and diphtheria. However, these diseases still exist, and can still debilitate and kill. If people stop getting vaccinated, diseases that were once considered eradicated could reemerge -- which is what's been happening with measles outbreaks across the U.S.

More information can be found at cdc.gov/vaccines.

Want to keep your family healthy and your community safe? Be sure to check your immunization status and stay up-to-date with vaccines.

Three ways to kick your plastic habit this summer

(STATEPOINT)- Summer is the perfect time of year to take stock of the way you quench your thirst, whether in the backyard, at the beach, around the campfire or in route to your next adventure.

Unfortunately, society has become addicted to the convenience of plastic, especially when it comes to the way we hydrate. Globally, 1 million singleuse plastic water bottles are purchased per minute, and on average, Americans purchase 50 billion water bottles per year, equating to about 13 bottles per month for every U.S. citizen.

Think all that plastic gets reused? Think again -- 90.5 percent of plastic has never been recycled; a figure that was International Statistic of the Year in 2018 according to the Great Britain's Royal Statistical Society.

Besides being an eyesore, plastichurts the environment, wildlife and human health. Virtually every piece of plastic ever made still exists. as it takes between 500 to 1,000 years to degrade. Much of it has changed shape over time into microplastics -small pieces less than five millimeters in diameter that end up in waterways, ground water and marine life and have been shown to absorb toxic chemicals linked to cancer and other diseases.

So, what can you do to help turn the tide on your own plastic consumption? This summer, consider upgrading your hydration habits in the following ways:

1. A plastic-free pour. In the pursuit of always having a source of great-tasting, healthy water at home, many families stock their fridge with single-use water bottles. That adds up to a lot of plastic! For a far more sustainable solution, use a water filter pitcher, such as the LifeStraw Home, which is the only pitcher to filter microplastics (in addition to other contaminants including bacteria, lead and mercury). Made from shatterresistant glass, it's ideal for everyday use or even when entertaining guests on the back patio.

2. The last straw. If you're an iced tea or iced coffee lover, you know that plastic straws quite literally suck. In fact, half a million straws are used globally each day, and they're tough to recycle. Skip the straw entirely or bring your own reusable straw with you on coffee runs.

3. Hydrate safely anywhere. Whether you're trekking up a mountain or running around town doing errands, the hot summer weather will make you extra thirsty. Be prepared to hydrate on the go with a reusable water bottle that features a filter and is designed for travel. For example, the LifeStraw Go (and the LifeStraw Play for young children) filters out microplastics, bacteria, protozoa and other toxins and contaminants found in many water supplies; a good choice for when traveling domestically or internationally. Why LifeStraw? LifeStraw products are the only water filters tested to remove microplastics and, they also make a global impact -- every product purchased provides a child in need with safe drinking water for an entire year.

A few simple changes to your at-home and onthe-go hydration routine can help you reduce your plastic use and protect the environment.
