Stacked parking: bringing more space and supports efficient land use

By KALIE DRAGO Echo Reporter

Circling the lot and willing a car to ease out of a spot is a common occurrence, especially during the summer months with visitors piling into town, and the city of Leavenworth has implemented a new idea to quite literally pile everyone in. Permit stacked parking went into effect June 25.

"The stacked parking regulation was primarily drafted to address the limited parking availability in the commercial zones," said Lilith Vespier, Development Services manager at the June 11 public hearing regarding stacked parking.

This is an innovative approach that is a little different than the usual suggestion of a parking garage - it is a mechanical structure that can move the vehicle either vertically or horizontally to a vacant a parking spot.

"I think what we will mostly find in the city of Leavenworth because of the costs of putting in these mechanical parking devices is just a one or two tier. However, it can be expanded and the code as its drafted right now would allow for a parking garage to be all mechanical. But it does need to be enclosed in a structure, so that helps protect the Bavarian theme we strive for." be enclosed in a building structure.

"The regulations can be used for new development within the commercially zoned parcels or for new residential uses. Due to the cost of these type of devices, it is anticipated that we will see new stacked parking in the commercial zones or associated with larger multifamily development," said Vespier in a later interview. "New parking could be used for visitors or employees. We are excited for more parking options for developers and users."

The new parking regulations will have benefits beyond employees and tourists but also residents will reap benefits from the stacked parking option. It is also a nod in the right direction for efficient use of land within Leavenworth.

"Benefits to the community may include more parking close to the related business and/or in the commercial zone keeping pressure off residential parking areas and freeing up the public parking lots," said Vespier. "The stacked parking regulations will support efficient land use within the compact footprint of Leavenworth. While we cannot anticipate all pros or cons, the intent of the regulation is to support additional parking and pro-

Lynn O. Watson strives for inclusivity

By KALIE DRAGO Echo Reporter

A local man that has called Leavenworth home for 47 years has thrown his hat in the race for the upcoming election. Lynn O. Watson is running against Jason Lundgren for a seat on council and is coming with solid goals - particularly getting communication to flow from all angles of the community.

"I've grown up here so I've seen how the parks are important, the pool is important. I learned to swim at the pool, my kids learned to swim at the pool. My family has the oldest business downtown, Alpen Haus Gifts," said Watson.

His attachment and familiarity with the town make recognizing the needs and wants of residents easy - and now he wants to actively be able to contribute to fulfill those needs and wants.

"I see the business side of it, I've seen the city grow. I think it's just gotten better with the growth. There's a lot more here than there was," said Watson, clearly proud of his hometown and its achievements.

After being a long time Leavenworth resident paired with being a member of the family who owns the oldest business downtown, he's decided its time for him to wedge a more active position in his local government.

"I'm concerned and want to be a part of what happens in Leavenworth at this point in my life," said Watson.

His number one issue he wants to zero in on would be the communication gap between the city government and residents. Watson emphasized while the city delegates goals and makes strides to achieve them, the public is often out of the loop on what could be unfolding.

"I think the number one thing that needs to happen is better communication within the city, businesses and community," said Watson. "Every January, which the city I'm sure has their long term goals for the year, but nobody really hears about the long time goal enough. So people can actually read and understand what's going on. Because the city is working on long term goals but the community doesn't really hear about those things - until it happens."

While big on communication, Watson says other hot button topics fall into his realm of concern. He mentioned noise, parking, property rights, traffic and growing in Leavenworth.

His inclusiveness applies to opening communication avenues, but also literally stretching the city limits. Watson wants to envelope in the subunits of the community that are members of the Leavenworth community, but left out on the map due to not being within city limits.

"I think we can still annex in some more parts of the community that feel like they're not part of the city and it's tried to happen in the past," said Watson. "A lot of people feel like they're not being heard and they don't feel like they're apart of the city because they're not in the city limits so maybe we grow the city."

Watson's council narrative seems to fit around making sure everyone's included and everyone's voice is heard in order to accomplish productive actions for the city.

"I might not always agree with it, but they should be heard. If it's best for the city, even if its not what I want to do, I want to do what's best for the city and the people that live here," said Watson.

Watson is approaching the election hopeful and armed with ideas that he thinks will improve and progress the community while maintaining its celebrated attributes. He summarized in a brief, but clear statement what he wants to bring to the council chambers.

"I hope I can make a difference, it's as easy as that," said Watson.

A new leader for Cascade School District

By KALIE DRAGO Echo Reporter

Officially stepping into her new role on July 1, Dr. Tracey Beckendorf-Edou will be taking the reigns and being the face of Cascade School District - she will be the new Cascade School District Superintendent as former superintendent Bill Motsenbocker has retired. "To me I feel like I'm coming home," said Beckendorf-Edou. "I think that this community is probably the most beautiful place in the entire country. I've been coming here since I was a little girl." Though Beckendorf-Edou is a Washington native, with ties to Chelan County dating back to 1904, she is migrating back to the Evergreen State from her former position in Tennessee at Oak Ridge Schools. "Looking into the data and the information available (about Cascade School District) I could tell this was a really good school district, there's great community support and I also really like the multilingual aspect of the student population," said Beckendorf-Edou. While familiar with the valley and the mountains, Beckendorf-Edou has been observing the school district over the span of months since she accepted the offer for the position. Cascade School District caught Beckendorf-Edou's eye and when she immersed herself in the community, it was love at first sight.

"When you are in a district this size, it's really possible to build good relationships with staff, parents, students and community members. I think that's the best kind of place to work," said Beckendorf-Edou. "The first thing I want to do is get to know everybody. Getting to know different people, different stakeholders, different viewpoints so I better understand the community, the school district, the schools, the needs and the strengths of the school district so that moving forward we can work in sync together." Beckendorf-Edou has many qualities that make her an ideal superintendent and she seems that she will fit into Cascade School District seamlessly.

said Vespier.

This parking system is limited to all commercial zoning district and if they are accessory use, such as an apartment complex, they are permitted in residential zoning districts. Again, the parking system must vide more options for infill development."

As of July 1, there is no request in the works to create stacked parking, but with the regulations in effect the city of Leavenworth has made this new land use opportunity an option.

Small Peshastin train fire

By KALIE DRAGO Echo Reporter

Between summer wildfires and July 4 firework ban, fires have been a hot topic this summer.

On July 1, a Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway locomotive originally from Seattle and heading to Chicago, caught fire that morning, according to Gus Melonas, Public Affairs director.

"There were no injuries and no damages," said Melonas. "We're investigating further for what caused the fire."

The locomotive was a general freight with containers and was taken to Wenatchee for a mechanical assessment.

According to Melonas, the train was stopped for an hour and a half and delayed four other trains.

Local responders were on site.

"It's very obvious that the community is very supportive of public education Pictured is the new superintendent, Tracey Beckendorf-Edou.

here, definitely can see that in the world class facilities. The community has been instrumental in building and renovating," said Beckendorf-Edou.

"You can also tell there's a really good board of education through the work they have done with the school district and community. So all of these things just make it a great place."

She surveyed the new buildings, staff and students with great admiration and is eager to dive in contribute to the successful school district with her own ideas and goals in mind.

Her background in education provides her ample experience to guide her into this new role.

She has rotated through many positions across the board for education: a teacher, a math coach, Albert Einstein Distinguished Educator Fellow and a senior project manager for federal STEM education programs.

"I'm a good listener, I'm very thorough, I'm really very good at decision making in a collaborative way," said Beckendorf-Edou.

"I like to work together to make decisions that are in the best interests of students."

Beckendorf-Edou is no stranger to being a leader in the education realm as she has

Cascade Medical CEO named Grassroots Champion

Press Release

Diane Blake has a soft spot for the underdog. As CEO of a rural, critical-access hospital, she's often at the front lines of sweeping policy changes in healthcare, in Olympia as well as Washington D.C.

"There are distinct challenges in sustainably delivering healthcare services to rural communities, challenges which are often not fully understood by our urban lawmakers," Blake said.

On Wednesday (June 26), the American Hospital Association honored Blake with the 2019 Grassroots Champion Award at the Rural Hospital Leadership Conference in Chelan. The award recognizes a leader from each state who carries out their hospital's mission by building broad community support and effectively working with elected officials.

"Diane is a tireless advocate for rural hospitals and health systems," said CheleneWhiteaker, Senior Vice President for Government Affairs at Washington State Hospital Association (WSHA). "She has been a key leader in public policy at both the state and federal level, and her work has made a true difference in the lives of rural Washingtonians."

Blake is chair of WSHA's Rural Hospital Committee. WSHA recently appointed Blake to an officer-elect position on their board of trustees. Blake also serves as chair of the board for the Association of Washington Public Hospital Districts.

Cascade Medical's board of commissioners, says the award was no surprise to himself and the other four elected board members. "She has a great combination of intense mission focus, strong intellect, high values and a warm, caring personality," Williams said. "She brings these same attributes to working outside Cascade Medical. She is an articulate and passionate advocate for Cascade Medical, our patients and our community."

Blake grew up on a farm near Bridgeport, the youngest of two children. Her family moved to Leavenworth in 1989. She went on to earn a degree in Finance from Gonzaga University. Her first job in healthcare was at Cascade Medical, delivering supplies from the basement. The leadership at the time noticed that Blake had a natural curiosity about finance and good ideas on how Cascade Medical could improve. Over the years, Blake was promoted to Accounting Director, Controller and then Chief Financial Officer. She became CEO in 2013.

"It is a joy to be part of the Cascade Medical team," Blake said. "This is a group of people who inspire me everyday with their care of one another and the many people we serve."

Cascade Medical is a nonprofit, community-owned, critical access hospital that delivers extraordinary healthcare by taking more time with each patient and their families. Centered around primary care, the medical center also provides lab and screening services; physical, occupational and speech therapy; ambulance service; emergency and acute care, and inpatient rehabilitation.

Should the Fed cut interest rates?

BRAD BLACKBURN Financial Opinion

Since 1977, the Fed has operated under what's called their "dual mandate:" They aim to achieve the lowest possible unemployment rate and encourage stable prices (inflation).

The unemployment rate is the lowest it has been in 50 years, and inflation is low and steady. So, based on that standard, the Fed should be taking a victory lap.

However, that hasn't stopped the financial world from overwhelmingly expecting the Fed to cut interest rates at their next meeting.

It also hasn't stopped President Trump from repeatedly pushing the Fed to cut rates.

So why does everyone want the Fed to cut interest rates – and should the Fed give in to the pressure?

Although President Trump wouldn't frame it this way, the biggest reason for the Fed to cut rates is our slowing economy.

Job growth this year is the soon. While the economy is clearly slowing, the fundamentals are still solid.

Earlier this year, I called our economy "The Obama Economy," and I think that still makes sense. Over a 15-month stretch through 2014 and 2015, our GDP averaged nearly 4% growth (including a 6-month stretch at 5%!).

However, after that strong growth, we fell back into the familiar routine of slow and steady growth. Rather than a steep dive into a recession, that may all be that's happening now.

So, what message would it send to the economy if the Fed panicked and lowered rates? Further, would it even help anything? Low interest rates are supposed to help the economy by encouraging borrowing and lending. But how many people are going to refinance their house that didn't already do it three years ago?

Similarly, how many businesses are going to borrow money to invest in software and equipment that haven't done it already?

I truly struggle to understand how lower rates would help the economy or the stock market at this point. In fact, I think lower rates could actu-

Self-Immolation of the Left

Martyrdom is often a desirable state of consciousness in the eyes of the True Believers of Karl & Vladimir. One who aspires and then attains this essence of victimhood, meant as one's public façade, can be said to have reached the Ganges of the Faithful – and that's where they burn bodies.

Let us have Bernie in Wonderland and Kamela Braveheart Harris show America how to bankrupt itself while simultaneously becoming the world's largest and greatest newly formed Communist nation.

Isn't it ironic that the Left wing and many in the middle, have hated, pilloried and investigated Donald Trump for years now because he was friendly towards another Vladimir – Putin.

Yet our incredible experiment in democracy is about to become a much deadlier experiment in revolutionary politics pitting the extreme GARY BÉGIN Managing Editor

Whether it's gun rights, abortion, free health care, free education, LBTGQ issues or the environment, the Democrat Party has taken a sharp left into Commie Territory while the rest of us "cling to guns or religion or antipathy to people who aren't like them" (Barack Obama).

Perhaps the "anti-fa's" (anti-fascists) of the world don't truly understand that the country will rebel and there will be blood in the streets if this moral minority attempts to co-opt the nation's legislation towards the "all things free to everyone" mentality. Please America, don't hand your credit cards to these drunken sailors, with apologizes to both sailors and drunks.

One day Little Johnny was handed a huge bag of candy. By the end of the day he was so full he couldn't even move and just moaned as he sat on the couch watching TV.

Eventually Little Johnny became addicted to this free candy and did nothing much but eat and lie around. America has become full of Little Johnnies ... and now the wolves are at the door.

Alas, porky and atrophied, LJ couldn't even run from the menace and was devoured as were his porky and atrophied neighbors.

Finally one day, after all the fat was cleared from the land, a man with a rifle appeared from the mountains and shot all the wolves and the country eventually regained normalcy. To be continued ...

Similarly, retail sales and home sales are down, as are many other economic numbers.

Recently, Fed Chairman Powell signaled that he would be willing to lower interest rates if needed.

That's not the kind of thing that happens when the economy is booming. In fact, JP Morgan recently predicted our 2nd quarter GDP would be merely 1%.

However, none of that means a recession is coming ally backfire by convincing everyone that the economy is worse than it really is – which could cause families and businesses to clutch their wallets a little more tightly. Given all that, I appreciate the Fed's patience. Although the President and the stock market desperately want and expect an interest rate cut, I hope the Fed continues to resist that pressure. Kevin graduated from Wenatchee High School in 1984. After high school, he went on to pursue a career in the United States Navy, however, an injury early on ended his career in the military, which he would regret the rest of his life. that would be his true match in life, Kelli French. Kevin and Kelli were married in January of 1994 welcoming son Kyal Lewis later that year. Kelli encouraged Kevin and renewed his life long love of learning. 1n 1999 Kevin graduated in social sciences from Wenatchee Valley College. Later that year with encouragement from Kelli and his college mentor, an EWU alum, the family moved to Cheney for Kevin to pursue a degree in education. Expecting to stay only a couple of years they soon found out that Cheney and EWU were where they belonged. Kevin really found his niche in the DSS department where he was director at the time of his death.

While finishing up his senior year at EWU, Kevin decided that their family was still missing someone. While student teaching and still working in the DSS of-fice, Kevin and Kelli greeted their youngest daughter, Bridget Lizbeth to the family. Seven years younger than her older brother, she soon captured the hearts of the family and Kevin would discover later she could match his wit

Kevin completed his education degree along with a teaching certificate in 2001 and a Masters in Social Work in 2011. He was also near completion of Licensure in Counseling at the time of his death.

In 2012, Kevin had an unexpected addition to the family when he happily connected with his son Brandin from a previous relationship.

Kevin exposed the family and the community to his sense of lumor, love of history and scie fiction as well as his love for his favorite holiday ... HALLOWEEN. Many neighborhood children have been exposed to the trick in trick or treat as Kevin invented various costumes to sneak around the outside of the house and surprise the unsuspecting victims. He got to put this to use playing a

CHS volleyball player Emma Kampen Palmer is moments away from serving the ball

BY AL STOVER

Leavenworth residents or visitors who jog or walk near Icicle River Middle School on certain mornings may notice a couple of volleyball nets set up in the grass, with athletes on both sides serving, passing and spiking a ball.

These athletes make up a portion of the Cascade High volleyball team 2019 roster and are playing a few scrimmages and other drills. These outdoor practices are just one way the Lady Kodiaks are gearing up for the 2019 season.

Cascade ended 2018 with a 7-2 conference record and a second-place finish in the conference standings. The team also lost eight starting seniors from graduation, leaving many open positions for the upcoming season.

During a July 2 grass volleyball practice, athletes split into two five-player teams and played back-to-back sets, before entering another match scenario where they rotated servers and defenders. The team ended practice with another set.

The sets were similar to a live game, only the score went to 15 points instead of 25, players acted as their own officials and there were no spectators, other than the occasional bird zipping past the net.

Despite playing outdoors, the team displayed solid offense and defense, as well as communicating with one another, whether it was reading the hitters or providing encouragement to one another.

While playing volleyball outdoors is a slower pace of play compared to competing on a court, Savannah Akers, one of the returning Lady Kodiak players, said the summer practices and workouts have gone well so far for the team. Akers explained the grass while her teammates look on.

In addition to the outdoor practices, the Lady Kodiaks have morning workouts three days a week. Cascade also competed in the High School Volleyball Tournament Camp at Central Washington University tournament from June 15-16. The team will attend two additional camps, as well as play games against local teams, such as a July 10 grass volleyball match against cross-town rivals Cashmere.

Although the summer workouts and practices have helped the Lady Kodiaks refine their skills, player Emma Kampen-Parker said the time has also helped bring the team closer before the season starts.

Kampen-Parker also feels the summer will set the pace for a solid 2019 season for the Lady Kodiaks.

Cascade Booster Club hosts annual open golf tournament

BY AL STOVER

Teams of four golfers are invited to compete in a fun day of golf and raise money toward a good cause.

The Cascade Athletic Booster Club is hosting the fourth annual Cascade Open tournament at the Leavenworth Golf Club on July 12.

Tournament organizer Angela Reinhart said she and

"Anyone can play, you do not have to be an avid golfer, and handicaps are not required," she added.

The top team will receive prizes while the coveted second-to-last place trophy will be awarded to the team who finishes second to last.

Registration for the tournament is $90 per person. The registration fee covers 18 holes of golf, a barbecue dinner and giveaways. After tournament play, golfers can enjoy a barbecue dinner catered by Wild Huckleberry. There will be a raffle during the meal with several prizes such as golf gear, wine baskets, gift cards, overnight stays and prize packages for Gamble Sands and Palouse Ridge golf courses. The Booster Club will also be selling memberships during the event. Reinhart said organizers hope to fill the course with teams, and are seeking hole sponsors. The cost to sponsor a hole is $100, and sponsors will have their business name and logo displayed on one of the blocks. The tournament is also seeking more items for the raffle.

In the last couple of years, tournament organizers have partnered with the CABC and the Cascade Open became an official booster club sponsored event. Several businesses within Wenatchee Valley have also helped sponsor the tournament as well.

"Over the past few years the Cascade Open has raised thousands of dollars for our student athletes," Reinhart said.

Big Chill quenches thirst

With the sun beating down and the temperatures not budging any lower than 70 degrees in the afternoon, the Big Chill Ciderfest is an ideal way to quench the thirst and beat the heat. The second annual Big Chill Ciderfest is on July 20 and hosted at the Riverside Center and the Riverside Yard, sponsored by Cascade Farmlands.

"Cascade Farmlands, the event sponsor, is dedicated to showcasing artisan food and beverages, especially those crafted from local growers," said Rhona Baron, Executive Director of Cascade Farmlands. "Almost all the 13 cideries in the Big Chill source from local, multi generational family orchards. These orchards grow apples, pears and cherries."

Anyone who takes a look around North Central Washington can see orchards far and wide - this event is an opportunity to showcase the hard cider producers that surround the local area and highlight the wide and unique variety of ciders Chelan County churns out.

"Pear ciders are rare in America. Besides dry to sweet apple ciders, The Big Chill will provide tastes of over a dozen pear ciders," said Baron. "Ciders can be as complex as wines and Chelan County is on the verge of becoming one of the best, most concentrated regions to produce premium Local cider shops participating come from right down the street in Cashmere, neighboring Leavenworth, Wenatchee and East Wenatchee along with Manson and Chelan. Some Yakima cider shops have decided to join in on the fun this year - Independent Cider, Union Hill and Tieton Cider. "Many of our cider makers are creating fusion flavors including hops, ginger, cherry, vanilla and other natural additional flavors to build variety and complexity. People will be surprised by the variety and complexity of the flavors and the sophistication of tasting high quality hard ciders," said Baron.

Many residents will be familiar with vendors and options at the event, giving those in attendance a chance to get a hands on encounter with local businesses with special offers.

up inside the Riverside Center. Cascade Farmlands is selling over 40 local flavors in one shop for one day. You can't find this anywhere else, all year long," said Baron.

Along with that, the Cashmere Museum will have an opportunity to get hands on with their display of how cider is made along with local orchard history. Local Yokel, Leavenworth restaurant that has their own large organic garden, will be a food vendor for those that want to pair a bite of food with their cider.

"Come to the Big Chill to be refreshed and to experience the debut of the next wave of local beverages - hard ciders, hand made in the heart of the apple capital of the world," said Baron.

How to treat Heat Rash • I have a heat rash from the hot weather we've been having recently. What's the best way to get rid of it?

In her seventies, Donna developed redness and itching in her groin area during a recent heat wave. She tried applying Gold Bond® powder but it didn't seem to help. She came into our pharmacy, asking what else she could do for it.

Heat rash, also called prickly heat or miliaria can happen to anyone with active sweat glands. It's estimated that at least 40% of infants will get a heat rash at one point. Heat rash also afflicts people who are physically active and sweating in the summer heat doing strenuous physical work, performing sports or exercise, even gardening.

Prickly heat or heat rash is caused by clogged sweat glands. When sweat builds up under your skin it can become trapped, causing your pores to swell and rupture. This creates small red, raised lesions that burn or itch that cluster in small clumps or spread out over larger areas. Outbreaks can occur anywhere you tend to sweat: your armpits, chest, upper back, belly, and groin. If the blockage is severe enough it creates inflammation, pustules, or a yeast infection.

Heat rash or prickly heat can also happen to people who have been treating their dry itchy skin with heavy creams or ointments which work great during the winter months but during a hot, sweaty summer can plug up their hard-working sweat glands.

The first key to relieving the itching and burning of prickly heat to keep your skin dry. One of the best ways to do that is by maximizing airflow to the skin to discourage excess sweating. Wearing loose, lightweight clothing during hot weather is critically important, along with using fans to improve air flow. Fevers can cause profuse sweating and should be treated with appropriate doses of acetaminophen

The second key to treating heat rash is to avoiding applying oils, heavy creams or ointments to your overworked sweat glands in areas that perspire heavily like under your arms, your chest, around your groin, behind your knees and under any folds of skin.

The third key to treating prickly heat is to avoid applying either medicated or plain powders to red, broken or irritated skin. Powders can clog inflamed pores and sweat glands, so it's best to stay away from them entirely until your skin has calmed down.

Heat rash can cause intense itching and an almost uncontrollable urge to scratch. Scratching feels good but only provides short-term relief and instead triggers more inflammation and itching. Instead, apply cloths dampened with cool water along with a nonprescription steroid cream containing 1% hydrocortisone.

broken skin or larger areas of unbroken skin in adults but avoid putting it on broken skin of children or infants.

Be sure to avoid using hydrocortisone ointment because ointments can block your sweat glands. If these strategies don't help the itching and irritation of heat rash, contact your doctor as there are other conditions that may look like heat rash at first but need to be treated differently.

Here are 6 Tips for Treating Prickly Heat or Heat Rash:

1. affected area. Wear lightweight, loose clothing or no clothing at all. House fans can help circulate air over your skin.

2. Lukewarm sponge baths increase evaporation, helping to cool and dry the skin. Avoid hot water for showers or baths, which can increase inflammation.

help soothe irritated skin. • Avoid using skin pow-● • ders like Gold Bond[®], especially on broken skin. Because powder can clog your sweat glands, avoid them until the acute symptoms of redness and itching subside.

4. Benadryl® cream or Avoid using topical spray and use 1% hydrocortisone cream instead. Although Benadryl® (diphenhydramine) capsules and liquid can help relieve itching, diphenhydramine cream or topical spray should be avoided. Benadryl® can be absorbed into the bloodstream from areas of broken skin, and when combined with the capsules or liquid can cause drowsiness and confusion.

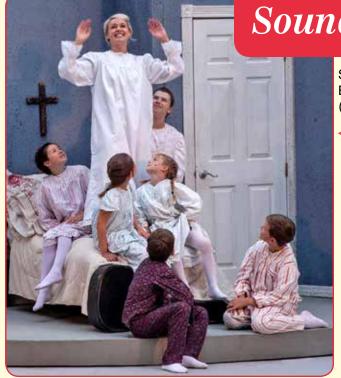

∂. creams and ointments that can trap moisture. Keep your armpits, groin, and chest plus any skin folds as dry as possible. Tucking a light cloth like a pillowcase between skin folds and changing it frequently absorbs perspiration. Cool it before you use 0 • it. For additional soothing power, refrigerate your hydrocortisone cream or aloe vera gel before applying it.
