The city prepares to transition trash service

By KALIE DRAGO
Echo Reporter

The scraps from Sunday's dinner, banana peels and empty cans you should've recycled instead of thrown away – all of the garbage that is overflowing from the bin will now be an entity outside of the city's responsibility.

After months of presentations from Waste Management employees, discussed at length during several city council meetings and just on the heels of the neighboring Cashmere partnering with the service – the city of Leavenworth has crafted together a contract with Waste Management that will soon become effective.

The official date for the transition will be on Monday, Feb. 4 as a weekly trash collection service and every other week recycling service.

"It's a pretty expensive business to be in. We already serve the city with recycling. This is a way to combine the services and have one provider for residents," said John Chelminiak, senior manager for Waste Management.

According to a Waste Management press release, there is no action to worry about for garbage services and recycling will remain an optional service.

If one is already a recycling customer, no action is needed for that either. However those who want to go green and weren't using the recycling services prior, contact (877)-466-4668 after Feb. 1. Recycling collection is available for a fee of $10.98 monthly for residents. The first day for recycling collection will fall on Feb. 11.

"The city only offered one level of service, the 64 gallon size, and we're offering three levels at different prices so you can get a smaller or bigger cart, depending on how much the resident needs," said Chelminiak.

Three different sizes, each with a different price tag attached, will be available: 35, 64 and 96 gallons. The current carts being used are 64 gallons and will be billed at the 64 gallon rate. Those who think a smaller

Cashmere Valley Bank helps out federal employees

By KALIE DRAGO

Many of us eye our bank accounts eagerly when we expect the direct deposit from our 9-5. However on Friday, January 11 federal employees missed the first pay day due to the government shutdown.

Federal workers currently on hiatus, due to the infamous wall and the debate surrounding it, is not breaking news and in fact has become a staple in the media – however, the bank many locals use for their own direct deposits, Cashmere Valley Bank, has stepped up to offer aid to those federal employees in limbo. "For any of our customers that are federal employees and their pay is automatically deposited, we will advance their automatic paycheck, only needing a signed form," said signed form, no fees or interest and the backup pay that will come eventually covers the payment.

"We limited this to our customers only because it made it simple. To do this for everyone, there's too many regulatory issues," said Oakes.

This is a way to lessen the harshness for those federal employees anxiously eyeing their bank account – and more than that, it emphasizes the degree that Cashmere Valley Bank is willing to support their customers beyond replacing lost debit cards or helping set up a new checking account.

"This allows us to really support our customers and community," said Oakes.

Cashmere Valley Bank president, Greg Oakes. "When they get back pay, it will cover the advance."

Mike Worden taking the reins of Seattle traffic control

By KALIE DRAGO
Echo Reporter

We've all been stuck in a gridlock, sandwiched between vehicles, fingers drumming on the steering wheel impatiently with exasperated sighs being the only soundtrack playing in the car.

In cities like Seattle traffic jams are a matter of fact way of life with that many people residing and working there.

In other words, traffic is as common in Seattle as rainy days and coffee shops. However, with the closure of Alaskan Way Viaduct starting January 11 at 10 p.m., there needed to be some form of intervention to help traffic not move seamlessly, but lessen the harshness of consequences due to the closure. That intervention came in the form of Mike Worden.

Seattle Mayor Jenny Durkan has chosen the Leavenworth based retired U.S. Air Force Major General Mike Worden for the position. According to the Office of the Mayor's prepared statement, Durkan crafted the Director of Citywide Mobility Operations herself and Worden will be the first ever to fill the shoes.

"(I think I was chosen because I) believe she wanted an outsider that could get things done more quickly," said Worden. "I am honored to continue to serve the people."

His extensive background in the military has paved a sturdy foundation for him to find his footing with this new role. Worden served in the Air Force for over three decades and is no stranger to crisis planning, operations leadership and logistics coordination.

Opinion

The persecution of Tim Eyman continues

If you are going to challenge the political system be sure you have a lot of money and the help of a major law firm. Otherwise, you are in for a fight you cannot win.

It appears Attorney General Bob Ferguson continues his legal persecution of political activist Tim Eyman. Last week he requested the court declare Eyman's attorney unqualified to represent Eyman.

It seems the AG has invoked the nuclear option by convincing the court to declare no individual practitioner can keep up with the army of lawyers employed by the state. So only hours before he was to appear in court Eyman found himself without legal council.

It has been said that anyone who chooses to represent himself in court has a fool for a client. The problem is Eyman did not choose to represent himself he was forced to by the very people who have filed the actions against him.

Of course he lost the hearing on procedural grounds that he didn't follow proper court procedures. Of course he didn't. Eyman is not an attorney.

The goal of all of this appears to be nothing more than an attempt to silence Eyman. A blatant attempt to strip Eyman of his civil rights under our Constitution.

OPINION

Ferguson is using the Campaign Finance Laws to persecute Eyman. Claiming Eyman did not file proper reports with the Public Disclosure Commission. The suit is for $2.1 million dollars and a lifetime ban from participating in any political activity. It has forced Eyman to file for bankruptcy.

The problem is the penalty far outweighs other suits by the AG's office for similar violations of Campaign Finance law. A review of the Attorney General's website regarding enforcement action against campaign finance law violations shows the action against Eyman is remarkable. Only one other claim exceeds the amount sought against Eyman. That was against the Grocery Manufacturers Association for $19.1 million. The next closest claim was against the Washington Education Association for $975,000. The other 32 cases listed averaged $74,609 including AGO costs for prosecuting the cases.

In December of 2017 The Spokesman Review ran a story about how Campaign Finance complaints were becoming the newest political weapon in Washington politics. Bob Ferguson's assault on Tim Eyman is moving that weapon from the big money politics of labor unions and political parties to individual citizens who are simply seeking to petition their government for redress of their grievances.

That is unconstitutional. As the chief legal officer for the state, Attorney General Robert (Bob) Ferguson should know that.

There is another political activist who has promised to bring suit against Ferguson for violation of the very Campaign Finance laws he is charging Tim Eyman with violating. Glen Morgan of WeTheGoverned.com has filed 14 claims of violation of Campaign Finance Laws by Ferguson according to a story on his website.

There is no reason that individual citizens should need to hire a major law firm to represent them when they are simply exercising their Constitutionally protected rights.

It is time for political activists and organizations that claim to support holding government accountable to come together to support Tim Eyman. Organizations like Glen Morgan's WeTheGoverned and The Freedom Foundation need to call on Ferguson, Governor Inslee and both political parties to end this travesty.

The suit needs to be dropped. The state needs to agree to pay for Eyman's current legal costs and Attorney General Bob Ferguson needs to resign. It is the only fair solution to this egregious abuse of an ordinary citizen.

In light of the Supreme Court Decision in Citizens United there is some question about the legality of the entire Campaign Finance Law and the Public Disclosure Commission. That law was passed as a result of a citizen's initiative but now is being used as a political weapon not a tool for citizens to make more informed decisions.

In light of the travesty being perpetrated on Tim Eyman as a result of this law it may be time for an Initiative to disband the PDC.

Gov. Inslee wants state to spend $10B more, paid for by $4B in taxes against 'the haves'

Why must it always be thus – the “haves” versus the “have nots”? In this case it is vice versa. Big government, i.e., the state of Washington, wants more tax revenue so it can spend more money.

The “Tax and Spend” Democrats are flying their colors high indeed. Governor Jay Inslee wants $10B more in spending, but his new taxes would cost nearly $4B.

This chunk of cash includes mental health and orca recovery.

Orca recovery?

So now whales are more important than fiscal stability? Please God, end the madness. I love cats, dogs, horses, even whales and many other critters, but my brethren goes homeless, without medicine or food and we are paying a billion in tax money for orcas!

There are kids without shoes and single moms and the “working poor” but oh no, to heck with humanity, spend it on the whales.

We've got an opioid epidemic and local kids in gangs, water issues and fire issues and... the list goes on.

To pay for this largesse towards our giant aquatic buddies Inslee, as if purposely trying to portray the stereotypical tax and spend liberal, is doing exactly that. It is a kick in the teeth for any hope of a serious rainy day fund being augmented by higher year-end revenues.

Just remember how we squandered all this money the next time we have a disastrous fire season as in recent years, costing us billions.

Inslee wants a capital gains tax on high income folks. He wants an increase in the business and occupation tax on professional services.

Is our Governor a drunken sailor on leave after a year at sea with more money than sense? Paraphrasing Sarah Palin – you betcha.

State Representative Bruce Chandler, ranking Republican on the House budget committee in Olympia, mocked Inslee saying, “If you're an orca, a criminal, or someone who voted for the failed carbon tax... you probably like this budget. If you're a small business owner... or the average citizen trying to make ends meet, you probably don't.”

A wise man indeed. Clothe the naked among us before feeding the fish. Is that too much to ask? Take the whale money and use it on medicine and housing and job training and highways and bridges.

Inslee also attacks “flat real estate excise rates” making them into graduated rates to pay for the court-ordered removal of barriers to fish passage.

Again with the fish thing. Those with an interest in the real estate industry, agents, home buyers and sellers alike, will be footing the bill.

He also goes on the record as being anti-success since those among us with a little gelt are penalized for their entrepreneurial spirit by taxing capital gains including sales of stocks, bonds and other assets subjecting them to a nine percent tax.

His operating, capital and transportation budgets ask for $1B on orca recovery efforts. Let that amount sink into your head for a bit. Billion is a real number, a really large number and chances are good that investing $1B in whales will not pay taxpayers back in our lifetime and maybe not even our grandchildren's.

I look forward to hearing from Representatives Keith Goehner, Michael Steele and Sen. Brad Hawkins about all this taxing and spending. Do they agree with Chandler? Exactly what are they thinking? Stay tuned to The Bottom Line.

Mike Worden taking the reigns of Seattle traffic control

“(The part of my experience that I think will help me in this position is) experience in building relationships to accomplish goals in the face of crisis,” said Worden.

His job is far from simple – but the simplistic way to put it is that he will be holding the single point of contact for 29 Seattle departments.

“My role is to being responsible to ensure all government departments and agencies related to supported the safe flow of traffic throughout Seattle. Working together to ensure people and goods get to their destination,” said Worden.

This is to ensure that there will be a coordinated response to challenges that may arise from the closure.

This includes conducting incident response, making sure that there will be no obstruction on delivery of emergency services and managing the right of way, according to the Durkan's prepared statement.

Worden says he expects some problems to arise in the form of insufficient numbers of commuters using mass transit, insufficient numbers of employers allowing flexible work hours and governments not providing adequate planning and resources.

Despite the strain from the closure, Worden will be working to keep the exasperated sighs to a minimum for the people of Seattle. Worden started on January 2.

ICICLE CREEK THIS WEEK

Icicle Creek new operator of Leavenworth Ale Fest

JAMIE HOWELL

My old band, Fathappy, had the happy task of performing at the very first Leavenworth Ale Fest way back in 2007. The event was founded by and served as a fundraiser for The Leavenworth Nutcracker Museum and, well, it was a fine idea and darn good time.

What great good fortune, then, when the Nutcracker Museum board decided recently to pass the event on to us here at Icicle Creek. We've been working ever since on ways to freshen up the event and, ideally, turn it into a vital source of support for the Arts and arts education across NCW in the years to come.

Here are a few of the changes we have in store:

- More breweries: We're increasing the number of breweries from 24 to no less than 40 this year.
- Single day: Saturday only this year, with one session from 6:30-10:30 p.m. and VIP tickets that allow early access starting at 5:30 p.m.
- Make Ale for the Arts Home Brew Competition
 A new sanctioned competition for all those DIY artisans to see how their brews stack up.

Entries are open and tickets are on sale now. Check out the new website at leavenworthalefest.com or send an inquiry to me directly at jamie@icicle.org.

Time to celebrate National School Board Recognition Month

By KALIE DRAGO
Echo Reporter

The calendar is littered with celebrations of certain dates, such as nationally observed days like Labor Day or Memorial Day. There are even months dedicated to a variety of things from July being National Baked Bean Month to October being Breast Cancer Awareness Month. And January is National School Board Recognition Month, making the audience at the Monday, January 14 school board meeting a little more reflective of the hard work the school board puts in for the Cascade School District.

In fact, one former educator, tax payer and audience member – Bob Stroup – spoke up at the meeting to recognize some of the hard work the school board and Superintendent Bill Motsenbocker has put into the Cascade School District.

“My observation, strictly from the outside, I can't wait to get in the rest of the facilities when they get done, is very positive. I think we've built something here that's going to be here for a long time,” said Stroup.

Motsenbocker then passed out certificates of recognition from Washington State School Directors Association for each board member. He also gestured toward the posters in the back that highlighted the support from the students within the school district as well.

“The board is that governing body that makes no money, costs you a lot of time, a lot of energy and have to deal with conflict on occasion,” said Motsenbocker.

Following this upbeat recognition was to review emergency response plans that are in place for Cascade schools.

After kissing Sue on the forehead and double checking Johnny didn't forget his lunch on the counter, parents send their kids off to school with trust that the school will keep their child safely tucked behind a desk.

In order to keep all of the Cascade students and staff safe, there has to be plans designed, practiced and ready in case of emergency.

“We are dealing with a lot of different things than we ever dealt with in past history as far as having to be prepared for school shooting situations. We've worked over the last semester working on those plans,” said Motsenbocker.

Emergencies can range from not only school shootings, but student suicides, environmental hazards, seizures and even a nearby cougar. The Cascade School District has prepared an emergency plan with many layers that make it transparent a lot of time and commitment was concentrated on ensuring students safety. Motsenbocker went over the steps, the team, possible outcomes, individual crisis plans and even explained the reunification center in the aftermath for parents and students (Icele Creek Center for the Arts is the spot).

Motsenbocker touched on hard and soft lockdowns, the incident command flow chart to follow in case of emergency and explained possible scenarios that would induce lockdowns (i.e. drug dogs coming through the hallways or a student suffering from a seizure).

“We've been pretty busy with this type of thing, to have good plans,” said Motsenbocker.

Carrie Sorensen, school board vice chair, pointed out that last year Stroup had asked about the safety plan in place at a board meeting a year ago which had somewhat triggered the start of crafting a more formal safety plan.

“We had a rough, there were pieces in place but that question started conversations that led to some of things that went into place. So this process is important and you as the public to come and show up and ask questions. So thank you because your question prompted discussions that put a whole cycle of events into place,” said Sorensen.

Worst case scenarios do sometimes come to fruition and Cascade School District appears to be prepared.

The new year brought three new employees to the district: an additional Cascade High School Wrestling coach, Colin Sternegal, a Peshastin-Dryden Special Education Para who is a dad in the district, Phelan Piestrup and a Cascade High School auditorium coordinator, James Mitsuyasu. There was also one resignation: Anne Conrad is leaving her position as the choir director for 6th grade through 12th in the Cascade School District and a certified music instructor from Wenatchee originally.

“She's doing a great job and we're very, very fortunate to have somebody at her capacity be able to be available,” said Motsenbocker.

Some other business attended during the meeting:

- Several policies previously discussed at meetings were approved.

- A review of five board goals that have been met or are in the process of being met.

- The meeting circled back to the realm of student safety to approve the School Resource Officer contract.

or bigger cart better suit trash needs, can also call the number listed above to make the change. If satisfied with the current 64 gallon cart, no action is needed.

“I think the biggest difference people will notice is just the day of service. We'll be serving all of the residents on the same day (Mondays),” said Chelminiak. “It'll be a nice advantage, because everyone will know the day their trash will be picked up. It will also help with number of trips trucks will be making in the city.”

Bear resistant carts, bulky waste collection and three yard containers for small residential clean ups are also an option for an extra cost.

Low income residents, senior and disabled residents have special rates offered and should contact the city of Leavenworth to apply 548-5275.

“We're thrilled to take over the service. We've got a long relationship with the area and we're excited to have Leavenworth join the Waste Management family,” said Chelminiak.

We are here to serve families in Kodiak wrestler Jace Seely successfully breaks down Aaron Guerrero before a pin attempt.

Cascade tears through Cashmere and Omak in league dual

By AL STOVER

The Cascade High School wrestling team continued to claw their way to a Caribou Trail League championship on Jan. 17 after wins over Cashmere and Omak in a conference double dual.

The Kodiaks began the evening with a 63-12 win over the Bulldogs.

After Cameron Barnes and Hunter Reinhart recorded forfeit wins, Juan Martinez scored a pin over Erick Rodriguez. Axel Martinez pinned Myles Chapman while Daniel Sandoval earned a forfeit.

Jace Seely scored an 11-4 decision over Aaron Guerrero. Head Coach Jesus Sandoval said he knew Guerrero was going to be a tough match for Seely, and "it was nice for him to him to get that 'W'."

Adian Arceo, Austin Curry, D'Andre Vasquez and Eric Rosario all picked up pins. Isai Claros scored the final points for the Kodiaks with a forfeit. Cascade continued their momentum with a 74-6 win against Omak.

Hunter Reinhart and Juan Martinez scored first-period pins to put the Kodiaks on the board. Axel Martinez secured a technical fall to give Cascade a 17-0 lead, and the team never looked back.

The dual also marked senior night for Cascade. Prior to the dual, Ricardo Barragan, Axel Martinez, Daniel Sandoval, Jose Valdez and D'Andre Vasquez, were honored for their contributions to the Kodiak wrestling program.

Head Coach Jesus Sandoval said Cascade appeared solid and focused in both matches. He is also proud of how their hard work in practice translated to the mat.

Days after sweeping Cascade and Omak, Cascade traveled to Prosser on Jan. 19 to compete in what Coach Sandoval referred to as one of the toughest tournaments in the state.

The Kodiaks finished ninth as a team with 118 points at the Rumble In the Valley tournament, which featured some of the top wrestling teams in the state. Of the Cascade wrestlers who competed at the event,

Cascade boys drop league games to Cashmere, Okanogan

By AL STOVER

The Cascade High School boys basketball team continued the search for their first Caribou Trail League victory against two of the top teams in the conference.

The Kodiaks endured a 80-54 CTL loss against Cashmere on Jan. 15.

The Bulldogs jumped to 33-14 lead in the first quarter. The Kodiaks gained some offensive momentum in the second quarter, outscoring Cashmere, 16-9, bringing the scoring gap to 42-30 at halftime.

The Kodiaks continued with double digits in the second half, scoring 12 points both the third and fourth quarters.

"It was the first time playing in front of a home crowd this season, the atmosphere was good," Head Coach Paul Fraker said. "Once we got through the first quarter jitters, we played well in the second quarter."

Fraker said there were moments in the game where the team's defense became stagnant and Cashmere capitalized on the opportunity to score.

"I know we can do it, we just need to put four quarters together to be an upper level team," Fraker added.

Cole Warnaca led the Kodiaks in scoring with 12 points while Kurt Fraker added 11.

Cascade traveled to Okanogan on Jan. 18 where they lost to the Bulldogs, 65-38.

The Kodiaks (0-8 CTL and 4-11 overall) began a busy week with a nonleague game against Warden on Jan. 22.

Lady Kodiaks snap four-year conference game losing streak

By AL STOVER

The Cascade High School girls basketball team finally secured what had eluded them all season – their first Caribou Trail League victory.

The Lady Kodiaks defeated fourth-ranked Okanogan, 51-42 on Jan. 18.

The win not only avenged Cascade's two previous losses to the Bulldogs, but also snapped the team's 36-game losing streak in conference play. The last time Cascade had won a conference game was the 62-42 win over Chelan on Jan. 20, 2015.

The game also marked the first time the Lady Kodiaks scored over 50 points in the season.

Before the victory over Okanogan, Cascade endured a 62-6 CTL loss to Cashmere on Jan. 15.

The Lady Bulldogs jumped out to a 21-3 lead in the first quarter. Kaija Lovelady scored three points to put Cascade on the board.

In the second quarter, Cashmere boosted their lead with 18 points to take a 39-3 lead in the first half.

The Lady Bulldogs maintained their lead into the sec-three made it to the podium.

Reinhart was one of Cascade's two tournament finalists, finishing second in the 285-pound weight class.

He tore his way through his first two matches, scoring a 44-second pin over Colville's Justin Finley and a fall against Wapato's Eduardo Mendez in the first period. In the finals, he lost to Othello's Isaiah Perez, who pinned him in the first period of their match.

Axel Martinez was the other Kodiak wrestler who reached the finals, finishing second in the 113-pound bracket. His journey to the finals consisted of a second-period pin over Wapato's Jesse Guizar in the semifinals. In the finals, he suffered a 17-0 technical fall loss to

Healthy Living

Q: One of my neighbors swears that rubbing DMSO really helps his arthritic joints, while my sister-in-law keeps insisting that MSM is the same thing as DMSO but without the smell. Which one is right?

DMSO is the abbreviation for dimethyl sulfoxide, a powerful solvent that is produced when processing wood pulp into paper and paper products. DMSO is widely used as an industrial-strength degreaser and as a solvent for many products, including antibiotics, herbicides and fungicides.

In medicine, DMSO is commonly used as a cryopreservative for tissue samples, protecting the cells as they are frozen, and also used by veterinarians on horses to reduce swelling from trauma.

Not just a solvent, DMSO has a unique and interesting quality: it penetrates through skin and travels into your muscles and bloodstream.

Not only does DMSO easily move through your skin, it will carry other chemicals or medicines into your body along with it. DMSO was marketed for relief of muscle soreness and arthritis because it was used in horses and dogs to help decrease pain and swelling of muscles after an acute injury. Because of its ability to pass through the skin, veterinarians are cautioned to use rubber gloves when applying DMSO.

In humans, DMSO is used to treat a painful condition called interstitial cystitis by putting a solution containing it directly into the bladder. DMSO also helps decrease tissue damage from certain cancer drugs that cause severe tissue damage if they leak out of your vein into the surrounding tissues, causing intense pain as they eat away your nerves, blood vessels and muscles.

DMSO travels rapidly through the skin to dilate blood vessels, helping to flush away the caustic chemotherapy drug and reduce the risk of permanent tissue damage.

DMSO has been used in topical products to help reduce the burning and tingling pain caused by shingles, called post-herpetic neuralgia. This effect may be from its ability to interfere with a certain type of nerve transmission called C-type fibers that send pain messages to your brain.

One of more unusual characteristics of DMSO is that concentrations of 80-100% will penetrate your skin quickly and easily, traveling through your muscles and into your bloodstream.

This effect can enhance the action of some medicines, like insulin. DMSO is also one of the main ingredients in the prescription medicine Pennsaid®, the other ingredient in medicine very similar to ibuprofen, applied to the skin of painful knee joints twice a day.

Although most creams and lotions don't cause side effects, DMSO is an exception, because it travels through your skin into your bloodstream and throughout the rest of your body.

Common side effects from using DMSO include drowsiness, headache, dizziness, dry skin, a garlic-like taste in your mouth, and a garlic-onion body odor.

The garlic taste and body odor are from the sulfur part of the DMSO molecule, which is believed to encourage cartilage formation. When using DMSO, some of it is changed inside your body into a closely related compound called methylsulfonylmethane, or simply MSM.

MSM is widely marketed as an analgesic and anti-inflammatory supplement for osteoarthritis, although there is little solid scientific evidence that it works. Although DMSO or MSM may only offer only modest pain relief, it still may be enough to help you. MSM is usually a better choice than DMSO because it has fewer side effects and no garlicky taste or body odor. The usual dose of MSM is 500 mg to 1000 mg taken 2 to 3 times a day for relief of pain and stiffness and it's often combined with glucosamine or chondroitin.

Here are 5 Tips on Using DMSO Safely:

1. Use the purest and most concentrated

Ask...

Dr. Louise

form of DMSO. The liquid industrial solvent can have impurities that can be absorbed into your body; use the 100% gel instead.

2. Apply DMSO only on clean dry skin, washing your hands well before and after applying it. Applying DMSO on wet skin can cause a chemical reaction that creates a lot of heat, which can burn you.

3. Avoid contact with fabrics or plastics, which can be damaged by concentrated DMSO.

4. Avoid DMSO completely if you take insulin. Applying DMSO to skin can increase the effect of your insulin dose, causing a potentially dangerous drop in your blood sugar.

5. Keep a symptom diary. Because no supplement works in everyone, the best way to find out if either DMSO or MSM is helping you is to keep a "symptom diary" of your discomfort level, beginning 1 week BEFORE you start taking it.

place match, Seely lost to Kiona Benton's Keaton Covington.

Curry finished 2-2 in his bracket before being eliminated from the tournament. Arceo, Juan Martinez and Valdez went 1-2 in their weight divisions.

Cascade (6-0 CTL, 6-1 overall) continued their quest for a CTL conference title on Jan. 22 when they traveled to Okanogan to compete against the Goats (4-2, 4-3) and Bulldogs (0-6, 0-6) in the final double dual of the regular season.

If the Kodiaks won both they will finish with an 8-0 league record and secure the conference title. In the event that Cascade loses both matches, and Chelan sweeps their opponents, the two teams would be tied for first in the conference standings.

Coach Sandoval said he hopes the Kodiaks can have a wrestler represented in each weight class at the dual and at the district tournament, giving them a better chance at scoring at both events.

He noted there are at least 6-7 wrestlers who he believes could end in the finals of districts.

"We're going to have to stay tough and get in the mindset of bringing our best game to districts," Coach Sandoval said.
