Dystopia, mayhem and mockumentary

Three one-act plays bring parady from alternate universes to CHS

By Kalie Drago Echo Reporter

Cascade students, families and the surrounding community can find some warmth from the chilly weather, along with finding some comic relief from the usual spooky, scary Halloween-esque season.

Featured in the new Cascade auditorium, Cascade High School will present an evening of 3 comedic one-acts on November 2, 3, 8, 9 and 10 at 7 p.m.

"I enjoy doing fall plays around Halloween because there are some scary theatrical possibilities," said Mandi Wickline, District Drama Instructor.

The main one-act is a parody of several dystopian, well known, pop culture fixtures that have hit the big screen in recent years, such as Hunger Games, Divergent and Maze Runner — "Dystopia! The Hungry Maze Game of Divergent Avette Demoor is shocked by the action within the play.

Death.

"Writer Don Zolidis — my favorite author — has been a high school drama teacher and really understands writing for high school students," said Wickline.

The other one-acts, both by David Ives, are "Time Flies" and "The Mystery at Twicknam Vicarage." Most of the time most of us find flies more annoying than amusing but not in "Time Flies", a humorous piece about two mayflies that return from a party to put on a David Attenborough nature documentary. Wickline assures that many surprises occur during the two flies performance. As for "Twicknam", which may sound familiar to some who are regular attendees of Cascade productions, this piece is a take-off on the silliness of British murder mysteries. This will be a good natured mocking of the Sherlock Holmes style, 'who dunnit', mystery.

"We did this play several years ago and it was so much fun, we decided to bring it back," said Wickline.

While still staying in the spirit of the Halloween season with a "Twilight Zone" theme, Wickline also incorporates humor and music to

Small Ports seminar held in Leavenworth

By Kalie Drago Echo Reporter

Tourists hurriedly flocking to make it to the last Oktoberfest weekend were not the only ones visiting the Bavarian Village last week. The 2018 Small Ports Seminar was hosted this year at the Enzian Inn located on Highway 2.

This yearly event occurs every October; however, this year the seminar was just a few steps away.

On Oct. 18 and 19, the Enzian Inn was overrun with eager members of a variety of ports across Washington State ready to learn and participate in the seminar.

The seminar was directed at helping smaller ports, such as the Port of Chelan County, reach goals.

Washington, as close to home as Chelan County and Douglas County to stretching to places a little further like, South Whidbey Island.

With 211 people in attendance along with 20 association member groups represented — there was a lot of give and take for the attendees to take notes and return home to better their individual ports

The opening remarks featured a brief sentiment from one of Chelan County's Commissioners, JC Baldwin and then the seminar launched into a variety of helpful points and notes.

During the two day long seminar, there was a variety of lectures and hands on activities for the groups to engage in learning how to better benefit the economic development of their concentrated areas.

Several items on the agenda touched on preparing for emerging issues and discussing new resources along with going in depth on recent changes to Washington Law and what that means for managing procurement at ports.

The abundance of information and contact development at the seminar was intended to overlap with better benefitting the small ports across Washington State.

Targeted farm loan funding reminder

By Kalie Drago Echo Reporter

Old McDonald had a farm and the USDA offered him farm loan funding — if he was an underserved applicant or a beginning farmer or rancher.

The United States Department of Agriculture sent out a news release to remind producers that the Farm Service Agency (FSA) offers fiscal help if applicable.

In the past fiscal year, the Washington Farm Service Agency provided over $34 million in loans to beginning farmers and ranchers along with underserved borrowers.

Farmer Service Agency sets aside a portion of loan funds just for the purpose of aiding those who fit the requirements.

Since farming and ranching is a capital intensive business, the FSA strives to help producers both start and maintain their individual agricultural operations. So whether one is just beginning to put down roots or if one falls into a class that has been historically marginalized — whether that be racial, ethnic or gender prejudice — then they are eligible for a loan.

According to the release, the USDA considers underserved groups to be women, African Americans, American Indians, Alaskan Natives, Hispanics, Asians and Pacific Islanders.

A beginning farmer is defined as an individual or an entity that has operated a farm for less than ten years and all direct farm ownership applicants must have participated in the business operations of the farm for at least three out of the ten

Along with that, if the applicant is an entity, the members have to be related by blood or marriage, with all entity members being eligible as beginning farmers.

Those who cannot receive commercial credit from a bank are able to apply for either direct loans or guaranteed loans from FSA.

Direct loans are directly from FSA; whereas, guaranteed loans are made by lending institutions who arrange for FSA to guarantee the loan. So in one situation, the FSA is the middle man; and in the other, it serves as a direct source.

The release states that the direct and guaranteed loan program offers two types of loans, farm ownership loans and farm operating loans.

Judge Kristin Ferrera: A nonpartisan candidate

Chelan County Voters: It has come to our attention that Judge Kristin Ferrera's appointment for Chelan County Superior Court Judge and now her bid to be retained for that position, has been called into question by her opponent.

Judge Ferrera's opponent is implying that as an appointee of Governor Jay Inslee, she must somehow be aligned with him politically. Judge Ferrera's opponent is hoping that the concept of being appointed means alliance, and he is hoping that idea will gain traction in this county — thinking those first two sentences can be shaped

This concept is not accurate. Judge Ferrara's appointment had nothing to do with her political viewpoint.

We believe those kinds of comments have been made to mislead the voters into questioning Judge Ferrera's alliance with the Democratic party and Governor Inslee.

As an attorney and partner at Jeffers, Danielson, Sonn and Aylward for 10 years, Judge Ferrera has chosen to remain politically neutral.

Kristin Ferrera has been a declared Independent for the 10 years of her legal practice.

Kristin Ferrera has numerous endorsers from both parties, who are working actively on her campaign.

The judicial positions are all non-partisan by law, and it seems improper for any party endorsement.

When Judge Alicia Nakata announced her retirement from Chelan County Superior Court, Attorney Kristin Ferrera along with 11 other attorney's in Chelan County made application for the Superior Court position being

The application form for attorneys interested in applying for the judgeship is a six-page general application addressing education, background, kinds of law practiced, etc. with no mention of political affiliation.

Judge Ferrera's application was reviewed and addressed by the local Bar Association. They made comment on each applicant, then passed it on to the Washington State Judicial Application Committee, who also pared the list of applicants down to two applicants.

Both Judge Ferrara and her opponent had an interview with Governor Inslee.

It is our belief that our Superior Court Judge needs to be politically neutral and Judge Ferrara is that.

Judge Ferrara has said "the current, bi-partisan, political war at the higher levels of our court system is not taking place at the local level courts. The local Superior Courts do not make law or change law. They merely apply the existing laws to the situation."

Our families are supporting Kristin Ferrara's candidacy for Chelan County Superior Court Judge. We have known Judge Ferrara as an attorney for our mother and our family for four years. We can absolutely speak to her integrity, ethics, legal skills and fairness.

Donald Trump: A man for the people

Something wrong with the Democrat party not with all democrats, but with the leaders.

Why are they so far left? I think it's safe to say that they are all radicals and everything they say must be carefully analyzed or we will all be fooled.

It's clear we are being fooled by people who have been voted out of leadership positions and can't stand it. They can't believe that they were beaten by a stupid, dumb, New York businessman that knows nothing about running a nation.

They can't accept the fact that Trump is eliminating liberal policies put into effect through deception and trickery (Obamacare).

They cannot believe he is beating them by getting rid of corrupt bureaucrats and others in leadership positions.

Trump's actions are stopping the leftward movement of things they love like bigger government, higher taxes, and liberal policies. Therefore, they believe hM must be removed from power no matter how — by hook or by crook.

Their illegal and corrupt attempt at overturning the 2016 Presidential election results are still ongoing.

They manufactured the Russian collusion ruse by using the FBI and Department of Justice operatives to "investigate" Trump activities. After 18 months of searching, they have found nothing to hang on Trump, but they're still trying.

Fortunately, Congress uncovered their "slick" activities. Many of the culprits have been fired and others are being investigated for their possible crimes.

The Democrats have long used our judicial system to legislate policy items they can't push through Congress. Roe vs. Wade and gay marriage are prime examples. That's why they are so adamant in their opposition to Judge Kavanaugh. They are losing control of the courts and that cannot be tolerated.

Progressives will do anything, legally or illegally, to maintain power. If anything or anybody gets in their way, they will act to eliminate the opposition. Remember Bork and Thomas and now they have tried again with Kavanaugh.

President Trump has made great changes in his first two years. He has been the most effective president we have had in my lifetime (85 years).

Tax reduction, improved economy, increased energy output, lower unemployment and higher wages are all improvements he has made, and he has just started.

His optimistic approach has given us a feeling of great pride in America and has overturned the pessimistic feeling of the Obama years.

We must avoid any chance of losing the gains made by Trump. To do this, all men and women who love our country, all who value our Constitution, all who believe that fairness to all is as important as our right to free speech, should understand that these things are under attack. Certainly, there are moderate democrats and independents among us who recognize that this threat is real and we must stop it.

The ballot box is the answer. We must elect people who value our freedom and will put policies into effect that do just that.

Washington State Democratic Party that suggests Dino Rossi raised property taxes by supporting last year's McCleary fix. What it doesn't say is that those property taxes come back down in

As the Seattle Times says, "last year, in a move Democrats reluctantly agreed to, lawmakers hiked the state property-tax rate for every homeowner in 2018 by about 80 cents per $1,000 in assessed valuation. Then, the plan caps and lowers local property taxes collected by the state's 295 school districts beginning next year. Many homeowners ultimately are expected to see an eventual overall tax decrease."

The mailer also shows a family with sad looks on their faces with a caption that says, "My family can't afford higher taxes, but that's exactly what's going to happen to pay down $1.9 trillion to the national debt."

The Washington State Democrats imply that taxes on middle class families will need to be raised to compensate for lost revenue from last year's tax cuts passed by Congress. They suggest that — since Dino supports the tax cuts — Dino will also support raising taxes on the middle class to pay for those tax cuts; and therefore, we shouldn't vote for him. The mailer might as well say "Dino supports tax cuts; so therefore, he might raise your taxes." It makes no logical sense.

Also, attacking Dino Rossi on taxes is absolutely astonishing given the fact that his opponent Dr. Kim Schrier supports a state income tax, a carbon tax, repealing last year's tax cuts, and "strengthening" the death tax (estate tax).

I would've laughed at this ridiculous mailer if it didn't make me so angry. Educate yourselves before you vote.

Now while I don't personally know anything about the Judge's guilt or innocence, I am not prejudging. However, whenever I have anyone talking about honorable and forthright Judge that they knew, I can't help but think about the misguided people who only "knew" Jim Jones', David Koresch's, or Ted Bundy's "good" persona.

So, now we have the draft dodger-in-chief addressing the U.N. — the same group he once called ineffectual and outdated. You can only inquire how impressed the heads of states will be with him.

When he says the whole world is laughing at us he's probably right there. He's just confused (as usual) as to why.

Kodiaks' tackle last home game and end with a win

By Kalie Drago Echo Reporter

Football season is soon to be wrapped up — Friday, Oct. 19 was the final home game against the Okanogan Bulldogs.

Regardless of who was going to score the most touchdowns, Friday was also Senior Night for the players, which gave halftime a lighthearted break from the tough game.

It was a difficult notch added to the Cascade Kodiaks final stretch to close out the season with another win tacked to their record.

The first quarter both teams yo-yoed back and forth between each other's end zones with no dice despite great plays and performance.

Although Teague Duncan ran the ball for 26 yards and scored a touchdown — this was discarded and the scoreboard returned to 0 - 0.

However the Kodiaks' came back with a pass by Cole Warnaca to Isaiah Dayton and Dayton made the first touchdown of the game in the second quarter.

The Kodiaks walked on the field with record of 4-3; whereas, Okanogan had a record of 6-1, with no losses in the Caribou Trail League conference.

However, by the end of the game, the Kodiaks left the field with an additional win to tack on to their record and Okanogan headed home with their first loss to a team within the league.

After a big win last week against the Okanogan Bulldogs in overtime, the Cascade Kodiacks are ready to trounce the Cashmere Bulldogs in this week's match up breaking a several year losing streak. Above, the ball is hiked to Cole Warnaca, No.12 in the Oct. 19 game against Okanogan.

It's that time of year again Kodiaks and Bulldogs go head to head

By Kalie Drago Echo Reporter

The deeply rooted rivalry between the neighboring communities is a timeless tradition for both the Cashmere Bulldogs and Cascade Kodiaks — the two teams will go head to head in the annual Pear Bowl on Thursday, Oct. 25.

"This game is always a big one each year on the schedule as the towns are so close to one another and both communities really get into it," said Cascade Kodiak's head coach Dominique Coffin. "It makes for a very fun atmosphere to play in each year for the kids."

The Kodiaks are bringing a record of 5-3 to the Cashmere home turf where the game will be held, whereas the Bulldogs are at an even 4-4 record for the season.

Regardless of the standing wins and losses, both teams have put up impressive numbers on the scoreboard and both teams have suffered setbacks on the field.

"Every year this game has been a battle no matter where each team is in the league and what is on the line. I expect it to be the same this year as well,"

Both teams beating Chelan and losing to Omak solidified that the game could possibly once again be a close one, in terms of performance. Cascade won against Okanogan whereas Cashmere lost to Okanogan — this was also a defining factor for how the game may possibly unfold.

"Cashmere has a bit of a different look this year being a passing team," said Coffin. "This has been one of our areas of weakness this season, so it will be a great test for our defensive backs."

The tradition of the Pear Bowl traces back long over time, revealing a constant yo-yoing cycle of wins and losses between the two teams.

Cole Warnaca, No. 12, keeps hand out to keep Okanogan player off as he rushes the ball in last week's game against Okanogan.

"It will be an incredible environment. Both teams have playoff implications on the line, and I expect both teams to play with energy and emotion," said Cashmere Bulldog's head coach, Bryan Bremer. "I am really excited to see Cashmere Football Stadium packed out and see how the Bulldogs respond."

In recent years, before the 2017 Pear Bowl, the win hasn't been a landslide. Both 2016 and 2015, Cashmere won by the skin of their teeth with only a point or two deciding the winner.

"Our team needs to continue to develop into a more disciplined football team. In past week's we have made too many mental mistakes and a team like Cascade will capitalize on those mistakes," said Bremer.

After the disappointing loss to the Bulldogs last year, finishing the game with a somber 29-6, the Kodiaks are striving for redemption in this year's match up.

On the other hand, it is Cashmere's head coach, Bryan Bremer's first season leading the Bulldogs in the Pear Bowl; so a win against the Kodiaks will be a nice check mark on his first year to do list as head coach.

"It will be a little weird this year not having Z on the other sideline, but Bryan has been doing an awesome group with his kids over there and it will be another exciting Pear Bowl," said Coffin.

Both teams seem to be coming into the game with no hesitation nor any arrogance based on last year's results. This will be the last game of the season before playoffs if qualified and will be played at Cashmere High School.

The Cascade Kodiaks line up for the next play. This week, they hope to end a losing streak against rivals the Cashmere Bulldogs. The last time Kodiaks won the Pear Bowl was in 2014 on Cashmere's home turf.

"There's a lot of music in this show, giving it a cinematic feel, and every play is like it's own little alternate universe. All three of the shows have fabulous twists and explore many types of humor," said Wickline. "They are absurd but have a lot to say about the joys and perils of life."

A total of nineteen actors involved and several other students providing helping hands behind the scenes — the production is an opportunity for the community to not only find some local entertainment, but also recognize the theatrical talent within the Cascade High School walls.

Six seniors, several of whom are seasoned veterans and have been involved with drama since elementary school, are taking the stage for their last fall performance. Look for these featured seniors during the performance: Kelsea Turner, Nathan Hagan, Zane Priebe, Duncan Allen, Mia Lopez and Lochlan Roach.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for seniors, kids, and students with ASB. According to Wickline, students ages 10 and up will probably appreciate the humor more than the little ones.

What's the difference between enriched and fortified foods, and how did they get that way?

Starting in the 1920s, the federal government addressed several diseases caused by nutritional deficiencies by encouraging food manufacturers to add certain nutrients to specific foods.

The earliest example of adding something to a food product to address a public health issue was adding iodine to table salt.

In the late 1890s, between 26 percent and 70 percent of children living in the Great Lakes, Appalachian, and the Pacific Northwest regions suffered from enlarged thyroid glands due to goiter, a disease caused by iodine deficiency. Called the "Goiter Belt," the soils of these regions contain little or no natural iodine, and livestock in these areas were also suffering from goiter.

In the 1830s, a French chemist observed that goiter was less prevalent in areas in France that consumed salts that naturally contained iodine, leading to the discovery that iodine treated and prevented it.

Doctors first tried giving iodine as drops given to children, but accidental overdoses created problems; but adding a small amount of iodine in the form of iodide to salt would treat and prevent goiter of both children and livestock.

In 1922, the Michigan Medical Society set up a committee to implement the addition of iodine to table salt, working with salt suppliers to create a market for this new, "iodized" version.

By 1924, iodized salt became available at groceries across the state and country and over the next decade, the incidence of goiter plummeted.

Today, table salt is available in both iodized and non-iodized versions sitting side-by-side on your grocery shelf. Every box of iodized salt is can be identified by the presence of a statement "this salt contains iodide, a necessary nutrient.'

Curiously, iodine is also present in today's cow milk and dairy products due to the use of sterilizing agents contain-

Cow's milk is another food fortified to address a nutritional deficiency. In the 1930s, many children suffered from rickets, a nutritional deficiency of vitamin D that causes bones to become soft, causing leg deformities in children and broken bones in adults.

Because most children drank cow's milk, it was decided to try adding vitamin D to it. One approach was to add cod liver oil to milk, which made it taste "fishy." Another approach was irradiating the milk, converting an inactive form of vitamin D present in the milk into its active form. Eventually, a simpler process of adding vitamin D concentrate to milk prevailed, creating today's "fortified" milk.

In the 1930s and 1940s, nearly 7,000 people died every year in the United States from pellagra. Pellagra and another nutritional deficiency, beriberi, became rampant when new techniques in milling grains stripped off the tough outer covering of wheat, corn and rice.

This process produced white rice from brown rice and resulted in a much finer wheat flour that was much preferred by bakers and consumers for making bread and other baked goods.

Those outer coverings of grains were good sources of vitamins B1 (thiamine), B2 (riboflavin), B3 (niacin) and iron,;and when removed from grain during the milling process, contributed to an alarming rise in nutritional deficiency

Pellagra is caused by a deficiency of niacin, while beriberi is from a lack of thiamine.

In 1940, there was a disturbing incidence of poor nutritional status among young men enlisting for service during World War II; and in May 1941, President Roosevelt's National Nutrition Conference for Defense recommended that flour and bread be enriched with vitamins B1, B2, B3 and iron. By the middle of 1942, 75 percent of white bread in the United States used this new "enriched" flour.

Today, most flours, cereals and cereal products, corn products, breads, noodles and macaroni/pastas are made with enriched flour. The B vitamin folic acid (folate) was added to the official description of enriched flour in 1998 due to concerns that inadequate folic acid intake during early pregnancy can cause serious birth defects like spina bifida.

In 2016 the FDA approved the addition of folic acid to corn masa flour, used in tortillas, tortilla chips and

2 Final Facts About Food Fortification in the U.S.:

1. 1. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not require mandatory fortification of food. Non-fortified versions can be sold as long as they are not labeled as fortified or enriched.

2.. Calcium fortification of food is not standardized like enriched flour or fortified cow milk. Extra calcium can be found in calcium-fortified orange juice and several types of milks, such as dairy,

On Friday, Oct. 19, a concerned student approached Cascade High School administration about a social media post that referenced a vague "CHS" and involved school safety.

With social media lessening physical distance and creating a communication platform that allows anyone's voice to echo across the World Wide Web, the possible safety infringement for "CHS" could have applied to any number of CHS's across the country.

However, better than safe than sorry is the motto for these kind of circumstances and Cascade School District didn't leave anything to

The notice also stated that — though confident the safety issue doesn't involve CHS — law enforcement was still strongly active in Cascade, Cashmere and Chelan high schools in order to supervise and babysit a possible safety threat.
