Council approves 'Adventure Park' property annexation, again

Editor

Due to a procedural error, the city of Leavenworth was forced to go through the process again to annex the 10.5 acre parcel at the west end of town, which could be the site for the future Adventure Park.

A public hearing was held on May 22 at the Leavenworth City Council meeting. At the first public hearing, numerous people spoke in opposition to the Adventure Park, which was actually off topic, but the council heard it anyway.

It was a packed council chambers with many likely hoping to speak about the Adventure Park. Mayor Cheri Kelly Farivar read a statement before the meeting which kept many from speaking.

"Before anybody speaks, I would like to say this, tonight's public hearing about the city council consideration of the annexation of 9342 Icicle

At a later date, you will be offered an opportunity to comment on any future development of that site at hearing examiner hearing sometime in the future after an actual application for development is filed with the city," Farivar

Steele said once the city annexes the property, it will start a transition many will come to regret.

'Many of those who signed the petition warning against this were dismissed as having no valid say as the city administrator implied in a newspaper article, because they do not live within the city limits. But the many hundreds who signed that petition are clearly sending you a message that Leavenworth and it's wonderful surroundings must not be degraded into an amusement park destination,' Steele said.

Farivar tried to caution Steele about talking about the Adventure Park, but Steele just kept reading and speaking louder.

"Is it likely to be permitted under Chelan County? Yes, this acreage is under the commercial recreational

We live in an area of great natural wonder and I believe this annexation will enhance that.

After years of negotiations, city officials are closing in on an agreement with the WSDOT on this parking property, which has been used over the years by RVs and big rigs.

City close to acquiring WSDOT parking lot at west end of town

By Ian Dunn EDITOR

After years of negotiating with the Washington State Department of Transportation to purchase the dirt parking lot at the west end of town, it appears now to be coming to fruition.

The city council discussed the matter at the May 8 study session. The current plan would have the WSDOT keep a portion of property for their needs, but sell the remainder to the city.

"When the WSDOT came to us, they had a couple options. The first option was just to purchase this part along the fence. The second option was to move the fence. We opted to move that fence," said City Administrator Joel Walinski. "The way the fence is set up, the WSDOT would like us to put that out for bid and take care of the fence, then deduct a portion of the fence cost from the purchase price."

The city has used the dirt lot for the past 25 years. Mainly big rigs, campers and RVs have parked there.

"The big rigs that have parked there. They don't like that anymore. Once upon a time, the WSDOT, conscience of liability and the perception that is meant to be parking for big rigs. They changed their thinking, where they would rather have all their own area completely fenced and no outside parking,"said Mayor Cheri Kelley Farivar. "It is public use as their maintenance facility, but they do see a conflict there, so that is why there is a new fence line.'

Walinski said the bigger question is, what is the use

"This area does get a lot of use. Does the city have a responsibility to provide for big rig parking overnight? RV parking overnight?," Walinski said. "Right now, a lot of this is being used as a park and ride, for both Stevens Pass and Link. Definitely on some of the bigger weekends, Oktoberfest and festival parking weekends, it does get packed. This is an overflow lot.

The cost to the city for the property is $480,000 minus the cost of the fence. Councilman Jason Lundgren asked if there had been an appraisal to determine highest and best use for the property. Farivar said the appraisal was conducted and highest and best was parking, but it does not have to be used for that.

Lundgren said he was surprised the highest and best use for property fronting U.S. Highway 2 would be parking.

"Because it is municipal. It came to the state under a grant from railroad which requires it remain in public use," Farivar said. "I believe it will always be on the title. There is a reversionary clause probably. If you were to use it for something else, you would have to pay the railroad or give it back to them."

Councilman Elmer Larsen said he doesn't like the idea of RVs trying to squeeze in downtown or on outside

"I think if we have something of this size, we should try to set something up for bigger rigs. There are people coming in with a boat trailer. Where do they go?," Larsen said. "I think we have smaller rigs up front, then in the back with the bigger rigs, along

Annexation: Council approves annexation by a 5-2 vote

This is the second annexation the city has done since 1997, when the Safeway property was annexed. For commercial properties, this is number two. The rest of the annexations have been residential," Pate said. "We don't annex commercial property very often. Be aware, this is in the Urban Growth Area, which is an area where the city should annex and grow. The UGA has not changed since 1994. The statute states we can't annex anywhere outside the UGA.'

Even if the city does not annex this property, it is still zoned tourist commercial. Councilman Elmer Larsen pointed out. He said condos and hotels could be built on that site, which the city would have to provide water and sewer, even thought the site was in the county.

"We don't know what the project was going to be, but since it was zoned tourist commercial, there are a number of things that could be done outright without any say," Larsen said. "The project proposed is at least a conditional use and we have some options. We have some things we can require like parking or signage. Things we would not have if it was a hotel or condos. We could have condo on top with a tram going to the top.

Larsen said he would rather have the city have some say in how the property is used and developed rather than just having the county take of it. He felt that was a risky position because that land is at the entry point of Leavenworth so the city should have Councilwoman Carolyn Wilson said it scares her a little bit what ultimately may end up there. She said the city would have no control over it unless it was annexed.

"What we're saying, we want it to be logical as much as we can by annexing it. We don't know what is going in there and what the county will allow. It makes us nervous as a city. We would at least like to have some say. We don't want the county have the final say,' Wilson said.

Councilwoman Sharon Waters said she voted no on annexation last time, feeling the process was being rushed, and there was not enough time to get information.

"I have struggled back and forth with this whole project. I feel whatever goes over there, if it's the county, none of the city codes, noise, will be able to make that a decent place,' Waters said. "Let's say the annexation goes through, then what happens after that?"

Pate said a developer could come in with a project that might be permitted outright, but could also require a Conditional Use Permit.

'CUPs are usually the highest level of permitting that is in our realm for construction and development. Right now, there is the possibility of a CUP. There is public hearing for it. That is venue for receiving comments and concerns associated with development itself," Pate said. "Bring your concerns to those venues where it is part of the governing process.'

Councilwoman Mia Bretz said she has struggled with this issue, even though the annexation is rather straightforward. She said it is a commercial zone in the city's growth boundary. If someone wants to annex into the city, she didn't know if the council has ever said no.

with dump station for RVs." A dump station may not be possible, Farivar said.

"It could be serious expense. Coles Corner has one. KOA has one. You can use the dump station for a fee. Whether we do that would be a function of the cost versus the benefit," Farivar said.

Councilwoman Mia Bretz asked if there were more pecific plans after the sale. Walinski said it would be good to get the parking study completed because then they will have some parking strate-

"Then, I also think it is important to see what Link does, because if you do have a shuttle option coming down the highway, that opens the door to this being used differently," Walinski said. "Employees could park in here. Some downtown employees could park here using the shuttle. That changes things. I think there are two or three pieces to talk to you about. Maybe a shower building or laundry type stuff. Can a portion be set aside to have a private company come in and have a erty was parking, she said.

"Whether it is parking for employees or RVs, we've never really nailed that down. When we had our city engineer, we had him draw a plan of what this might look like as a parking lot so we could determine how many spaces it would hold and ingress and egress,' Fariyar said. "So we do have quite a bit of history on this parcel and it's all parking."

Larsen asked if the Port

We said, we want to continue using it as a parking lot, but we want to improve it. We want pave it, line it, stripe it and have parking control," Farivar said. "But in order to do that, we have to charge for parking, which we are not allowed to do now. Charging for parking on a WSDOT lot is not permitted. Those negotiations concerns and worries people have," Bretz said.

Councilman Clint Strand said he was concerned about the lighting and sound issues from the site.

"A move to annex would give us a seat at the table to address those concerns to make sure they are mitigated as much as possible," Strand said. "It would be far from the truth if the developer went with the county. It's in our UGA, it makes sense to guide that development as much as possible. It is our responsibil-

Councilman Jason Lundgren said this meeting was a dream come true because the first time he voted to annex, he did not sleep that night. He wished he had put the brakes on like Waters, which he thought was wise.

"Planning is great, essential for a town like ours. It should never be followed blindly. This is part of our job to look at the planning and how it fits with our community desires. I get the sense our community doesn't want this facility on the landscape," Lundgren said. "We're being tasked with making a decision which affects our future. This is not a restaurant that can be converted and repurposed when things change. This is something extremely unique. I'm going to have to default with what I hear from the community because that is what I think I'm here to do.

'Yes, it fits with the urban growth. Yes, it is appropriate, according to our codes, but I'm never going to take the people part out of the decision making process.'

The council voted 5-2 to annex, with Waters and Lundgren voting no.

asked for assistance. Fariyar said they wanted to get things nailed down first. She said when you go to the Port, they want some information about specificity and cost.

Since the Port is one of the partner in the parking study, Walinski said they will probably want the parking study finished. Councilwoman Sharon Waters said she would like the lot used for the bigger vehicles, so they don't park at the pool parking lot.

'I would like to see us investigate cultural resources before we buy it. If we get money to develop it, it will probably be state or federal. I would hate to find out after we owned there could be no ground disturbance. That would really limit what we could do," Lundgren said. "Before we spend a $500,000 on a property, seems like doing the cultural resource stuff up front. It's not a huge expense, but it would be an insurance policy for us. That is my recommendation."

A cultural resource study would be required if state or federal money were involved, but Walinski said they only place he could see getting money for this was the Port. Farivar said the state or federal money isn't available for building parking lots.

'We're going to be exploring a range of options. What if we build some sort of public facility there? Community center. I don't want to jump to that conclusion. Historic preservation surveys are not that expensive," Lundgren said.

Larsen said a community center shouldn't be put on the highway.

"I'm not saying that is best idea for the site. I don't want it to be a forgone conclusion about what we're doing with the site when we haven't gone through any real brainstorming," Lundgren said.

Larsen said the city has been dealing with this for 25 vears. Farivar said previous councils have spent countless hours brainstorming about this property, but not this council.

"As long as I've been with the council, this has been an issue. At first, we were looking at ways to get the logging trucks out of the neighborhoods. Since then, it has been let's get RVs or rigs with trailers a place to park," Larsen said.

The city wanted to improve the lot so it functions better as a parking lot and they only way to do that is to acquire it, Farivar said, so the city can charge fees, so the upgrade pays for itself.

If the site is being upgraded with public dollars, Lundgren felt getting cultural resources study is like inspecting a car before you buy it. Walinski said there have been cultural resource studies on Pine Street and Commercial Street which found nothing. The study costs about $7,000.

Even if an issue was found, Farivar said she would still buy it, saying this could be the best place for employee

"I think the insurance concept. If we buy this for parking, then find out we could do more with it, then that's a win. If we are able at some point, sell it to commercial development. that is a win. If nobody is able to really develop it and it stay parking, that is still a win, said Councilwoman Mia Bretz. "I feel like no matter what a cultural resource study would say, I think in our hands, there is not really a loss.'

The property can never be sold for commercial development, Councilwoman Margaret Neighbors said.

"The WSDOT has looked at and figured the path of least risk for them is to say that public use is sale to the city of Leavenworth. When the city gets to some point in time, the city attorney and city council will have to decide on the definition of public use and the definition of how stringent that is," Walinski said.

"This is delivered to us by a quit claim deed not a statutory warranty deed. That is how municipalities transfer deeds back and forth to each other. That is frankly one of the reasons for the price being as low as it is," Farivar said. "They are divesting themselves of responsibility to the city of Leavenworth. That is really the bottom line."

It is also possible the WS-DOT moves their maintenance facility to their property at the Big Y, Larsen said, which would set the city up to buy the rest of the property.

'That is not far in the offing. It is being studied by the WS-DOT, the consolidation of the maintenance facilities. They don't move very fast. It is on the table and under discussion. Get us into position for first right of refusal," Farivar said. "WSDOT always sells to the abutting property. That is the first option. We can always have the cultural study done, but we are on the five-yard line. We need proceed with the negotiation and purchase and then if you want to come in with cultural resource study, fine, but please don't bring it up to the WSDOT."

ICICLE CREEK THIS WEEK

WHY CHEF FEST?

JAMIE HOWELL

This week marks the third running of Chef Fest, a local fundraiser for Icicle Creek Center for the Arts. When it began in 2016, there were some valid questions as to whether or not it would work and why a non-profit arts center should be hosting an annual culinary event.

My pat answer that the culinary arts count as "the arts," too, is a bit facetious. The truth of it is that, over the past four years, Icicle Creek has become something entirely new and it needed a new fundraiser to support it. Here are just a few of the changes:

- MORE EVENTS: In 2013, Icicle Creek produced 14 events. By 2015, we were producing more than 125 annual events.
- MORE STUDENTS: Icicle Creek's summer camps used to reach between 200 and 300 kids each year. Today, the arts-focused education programs reach more than 6,000 local children annually.
- GREATER NEED: As the offerings grow, so does the need to raise funds. Icicle Creek now administers 20 separate programs, reaches 16,000 people a year and hands out more than $50,000 in scholarships and $60,000 in other community donations.

Icicle Creek is truly becoming the community asset its founders intended. That's what Chef Fest is designed to support. Plus, it's great fun. Hope you'll come!

There are still a few tickets available for Chef Fest 2018, four days of food and fun in support of the arts.

Please support arts education in NCW

Goehner: The long time county commissioner seeks state office and understand how their actions impact the functions of local government. Unfunded mandates are not supposed to exist, but each session brings more expectations of new services without funding to carry out the new laws

NCW: Are there certain policy areas of the District that you feel need "fixing"?

Goehner: There are several areas that need to be focused on because of their long-term effects. Forest health issues are getting a lot of attention, but the work that needs to be done is slow in materializing. To avoid catastrophic fires like we have seen, we must be aggressive in reducing fuels and thinning trees for a healthier and more productive forest. Even though the Hirst issue was resolved, water availability will continue to be an issue of great concern for the 12th District. As we continue to grow and attract new businesses, we must assure that water supply will be predictable. We need to continue to pursue storage as an option for water availability.

Consistent transportation funding must be established.

There are too many variables in the current funding process. We are typically dependent on new transportation funding packages in order to move significant projects forward.

NCW: Agriculture & Tourism are the main "industries" in the District so are you thinking of introducing any ideas to help the farmers/orchardists and tourism venues in Leavenworth & Chelan?

The 12th District is blessed to have committed farmers and business minds who have adapted to changes in their industries and are the most competitive and creative in developing their businesses. The key is to not burden a business with taxes and regulations that impede its development and expansion. Agriculture has been and continues to be the cornerstone of the 12th District's economy so it is critical to ensure labor supply is sufficient to harvest crops in a timely manner. Recent decisions at the State level relating to agriculture have created more burdens and obligations for farmers. There is still great potential for expanding tourism, but the hospitality industry needs to be encouraged to plan for more housing opportunities for guests. We need to address traffic flow issues to accommodate the increase in tourism-related NCW Media: How will you help the construction industry and development in general if you get elected?

Goehner: Affordable housing continues to be a topic of concern, but the State continues to modify standards that add costs to the price of construction. Within County comprehensive plans and zoning densities there should be allowances for greater utilization of the land. The "one size fits all" of GMA has proven that there are wavs that we can accomplish the intent of the act while taking advantage of creative planning opportunities. I would support tax incentives and bonus densities, in certain situations, to encourage lower cost housing.

NCW: How do you feel about the marijuana industry and does it have a place in the District considering the economic impact of the workers and grower's investments?

Goehner: The marijuana Industry has created zoning which was not anticipated, but it has generated significant revenue for the State. Within the district, there has not been much revenue returned to cities and counties even though local jurisdictions are left to deal with the negative impacts. As the commercial aspects of the industry evolve, I am hopeful that the conflicts we see today will be NCW: What was your thinking regarding the Hirst decision at first and now that it has been modified?

Goehner: Initially, I was amazed how the Court seemingly went against long-established water law and legislation that had established instream flow targets and water allocations. The mitigation was helpful, but there will still be court challenges to determine who has senior rights and municipal supply.

NCW: Congressman Dave Reichert is not running - Are parts of Douglas under his district & if so do you support anyone?

Goehner: There is part of the 8th District that is in Douglas County and I am supporting Dino Rossi.

NCW: Do you feel you have allies in Olympia and/or in Congress that will protect the 12th District family and rural way of life?

Goehner: There are numerous individuals who are our allies to protect rural lifestyles. As commissioners, it is always interesting to see how similar the 12th District is to other rural districts irrespective of the East-West divide. Rural areas share values and mindsets that the more urban districts have a hard time relating to. On the Congressional level. we have worked diligently to make sure our concerns are being addressed by all of our elected officials. Our allies are typically in other states with similar issues.

NCW: Regarding Congressman Dan Newhouse - any ideas or any thoughts about forming an alliance between the new Reichert replacement and/or Newhouse?

Goehner: Since we will be needing all of the support we can get on federal issues, I will be committed to keeping both Congressmen apprised of our issues so they can present a unified voice in addressing our concerns.

NCW: Once in Olympia, how will you try to work with Democrats on key issues?

Goehner: Should I be elected, I will make every effort to seek out those that I may initially disagree with. Respectful building of relationships and clear communication are critical to being effective. Olympia has become increasingly polarized and on key issues, resolution must have meaningful dialogue. There will be times when there will be a need to agree to disagree, but it needs to be done in a manner that does not alienate the other person. I hope to develop relationships on both sides of the aisle.

Navy veteran and former congressional staffer JD Greening enters race for District 12 State Representative

SUBMITTED BY LAUREN LOEBSACK

Wenatchee native JD Greening announced today that he is running for District 12 State Representative as a Republican candidate to be the voice for our district in the State Legislature.

"I have worked hard to get where I am today, and without a doubt would not be where I am without the people of this community supporting me. Serving overseas and working in the State Legislature, as well for Congress in Washington D.C. has given me the right tools and the knowledge of how to truly be a representative for the people, and now it's time to put that to work for you," said Greening. "I believe that our greatest local resource is the people of this region and I want to be a champion for my community as your 12th District Representative in Olympia.'

Greening said the protection of our natural resources, proper funding of public infrastructure, including state recreation and local fire wise programs as well as veteran affairs, mental health and affordable housing are top priorities for the district.

"District 12 is so diverse and needs a representative who will hold all our interests in Olympia," said Greening.

Greening, 28, is no stranger to public service. After graduating high school in 2008 he enlisted in the United States Navy, serving multiple deployments overseas in Operation Iraqi Freedom, Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation New Dawn. After his Honorable Discharge in 2012, he attended Eastern Washington University, and earned his B.A. in Political Science with a minor in Sociology.

"Leaving the military was a tough decision, there was job security and I enjoyed traveling the globe. The people I had met and served with were amazing however, at the end of my enlistment I realized there are other ways I can be of service and other goals I needed to achieve." said Greening. "I am a first-generation college graduate so getting my degree was not only important to me but to my parents. They worked themselves to the bone every day to provide for my sister and me. I earned my degree and my success is their success."

Greening says that he found his passion for public service in legislation when he started working for the Washington State Legislature. There he served as a legislative assistant in the non-partisan Office of Program Research with House of Representative members that made up the Capital Budget committee. Following his work at the State Legislature, Greening moved to Washington, DC and started a fellowship through the Office of the Chief Administrative Officer as a Military Congressional Fellow.

His experience in Washington. DC solidified his desire to serve the great state of Washington and his community in a greater capacity and he returned home to enroll in Eastern Washington Uni-

Administration.

In his free time, Greening loves to hike outdoors with his dog Rocky and run in marathons and other races on behalf of St. Jude's Children Hospital and Flags for the Fallen, because it gives him a chance to connect with people that push themselves in all sorts of ways and an opportunity to raise money for those in need. He also serves on the Eastern Washington University Alumni Board of Directors.

"I am excited about the prospect of being your Representative and I know my experiences in the military and working at the State and Federal levels of the legislative process makes me the right person to serve you."

Cascade golf team gets valuable state experience

By Ian Dunn EDITOR

The State 1A Golf Tournament was held on March 22-23 at the Liberty Lake and Hangman Valley golf courses in Spokane. Golfing for Cascade was senior Tim Wells, freshman Isaac Cortes and sophomore Emma Neilson.

Wells finished 33rd out of 80 golfers, Cortes shot 98 and Nielson 124, both missing the cut. Wells has participated in state three times. Last year, he finished 37th.

'This year he was hoping for a much higher finish but just couldn't put it all together at the tough and long par 70 Liberty Lake Golf Course. He shot an 85 on the first day to qualify by three strokes. The second day cut was 88," Alex-

On the second day, Wells was just one-over after five holes. Alexander said it appeared he was offer to stellar round, but then he plunked one into the water on the Par 5, 7th hole and ended up with a double-bogey. He shot 42 on the front, then 46 on the back for a total of 88.

"We feel Tim was just trying too hard to make something happen and it just wasn't his day. Tim has been a fierce competitor since his first year and has been a leader all year. He will be missed," Alexander

It was the first state competition for Cortes and Nielson. Cortes is a three-sport athlete from a golfing family. He put his best foot forward at Liberty

"He struggled with his short game during the day. He shot a 51 on the front and recovered nicely with a 47 on the back for a total of 98. Your short game needs to be sharp on this tough course. There are so many sand traps everywhere. Your sand game better be dialed in also," Alexander said of his grandson.

Alexander said he and assistant coach Ken Baumann are looking forward to working with Cortes over the next few years, feeling he could be

The girls played at Hangman Valley. Alexander said Nielson, who has really improved over the course of the season, had a good practice round.

"I could tell she was a little nervous on the first tee. There is always a gallery there. And I felt she did very well for a first timer. I don't ever recall a first year golfer making it to state. She did and I am very proud of her," Alexander said. "She didn't play her best on this day, a 124, but I could tell by the smile on her face that she had fun. It was quite a hike, and was sure she slept well that night. It was a good day.'

Conservation groups and local community forge partnership to protect a cherished landscape at Lake Wenatchee

Western Rivers Conservancy, Chelan-Douglas Land Trust, and the Lake Wenatchee Community team up to protect recreation and habitat across a spectacular mountainside over Lake Wenatchee opportunity," said Curt Soper, executive director of CDLT, "The Land Trust has been working since 2000 to conserve this property and support public access. Weyerhaeuser has made the exemplary decision to sell these lands to Western Rivers Conservancy so our forests can stay standing, healthy and utilized. The challenge we now face is raising the money needed to make it happen. When we do, we will protect not just a forest, but a river, a lake, a cherished recreational resource, and the very fabric of our community.'

A network of trails crisscross the property and are used year-round by hikers, mountain-bikers, cross-country skiers and other recreationists from north-central Washington and beyond.

The property is equally important for its conservation values. Its southern reaches flank Nason Creek, which has been a focus for fisheries restoration for years and supports eight cold-water fish species, including spring Chinook, summer steelhead, bull trout, sockeye, cutthroat trout, rainbow trout and mountain whitefish. Nason Creek flows into the Wenatchee River just downstream from Lake Wenatchee and provides critical cold water and prime habitat for important fish species.

The property's northern mountainside above Lake Wenatchee, from just above the lakeshore to the ridgetop, and forms a crucial part of the viewshed for Lake Wenatchee State Park and homeowners along the lake. "This project has everything WRC looks for when we set out to conserve a property," says Sue Doroff, president of WRC, "It will benefit multiple species of wild fish, critical wildlife habitat, and the people of Lake Wenatchee by safeguarding local recreation in an area that people from all over Washington have come to cherish. We are thrilled that Weyerhaeuser has decided to work with WRC to protect this important place." In addition to conserving river habitat, the project will protect prime habitat for diverse wildlife, including mountain goat, Rocky Mountain elk, pine marten, northern spotted owl and other important species.

About the project

Partners

Western Rivers Conservancy acquires prime river lands along the West's best rivers and streams to conserve habitat, protect key sources of cold water and provide public access for all to enjoy. It is the West's only organization dedicated exclusively to saving rivers through land acquisitionan approach that is effective, tangible and permanent. Its motto is "Sometimes to save a river, you have to buy it." In Washington, WRC has conserved dozens of miles of river land along the Hoh, Skagit, Columbia, Big Sheep Creek and Icicle Creek. It created Robe Canyon Historic Park on the South Fork Stillaguamish and recently protected a critical hillside above Nason Creek, upstream of the Nason Ridge property. WRC has protected hundreds of miles of frontage on other great rivers around the West, including the John Day, North Umpqua Klamath, Gunnison, Salmon, Yampa, Snake and Madison. To learn more, please visit westernrivers.org. Chelan-Douglas Land Trust works with local organizations, businesses, and individuals to protect what we all hold dear: beautiful natural areas, a strong economy, clean air and water, abundant wildlife, and the freedom to enjoy it all. The Chelan-Douglas Land Trust started in 1985 as a volunteer organization made up of Wenatchee Valley residents with a vision of a healthy and prosperous future for Chelan and Douglas Counties. Since then it has grown to over 2,500 members committed to preserving the region's natural areas. Learn more at cdlandtrust.org.

Letters to the editor

Shame on you Hill Street LLC

I just read the article regarding The Hill Street LLC to oppose the fire department expansion. I am certainly surprised that anyone in our community would so strongly object to the Fire Dept. wanting to expand their facility in the future. It makes perfect sense for the fire dept. to try to acquire the vacant, unused 5.5 acres that the School District is considering selling to them. The land improvements are already there, thus making any future expansion plans far less expensive. Mr. Bottoms asked if folks in Plain would want this facility in their back yard. I say"absolutely yes." Most fire stations and their surrounding property are impeccably maintained. I would prefer that to weekend property owners who let their property go to weeds.

I am not surprised that Mr. Bottoms is spreading misinformation to promote their "cause." (A jail, indeed!). The few property owners that purchased on Hill Street knew that there was an existing school and fire station next to the road that leads to their homes. Mr. Bottoms stated that it was not the intention of the LLC to file lawsuits and I say that is exactly what will occur. I don't understand how a small group (less than a dozen) would oppose a future expansion to a existing fire station, in a community that also will continue to grow. Any plans for a building will undoubtedly be more pleasing to the eye than the aged current metal building.

Chief Lamar has been very open and honest with our community about the potential acquisition of the school's unused 5.5 acres. He is heavily involved in this community and I wish to say "thank you for your service" Our firefighters put their lives on the line for us every time they respond to a fire both locally and in other communities. Please support their vision for our community going forward. Shame on you Hill Street LLC

Obituaries

On Monday morning, June 12, 1922, near the coal mines in Phillipsburg, Montana, John E. Weins was born to James and Grace Weins, the second of three children.

As a child, John was known to his family and friends as "Jackie." Eventually everyone came to know him as "Jack", "Grampa Jack" in recent decades.

He attended school in Phillipsburg, Montana, until his family moved to Washington state, where he graduated from Republic High School in 1941.

In 1948, he determinedly won the affections of young and petite Geniece Moore, in Chelan, Washington, and they married on March 15.

John E. Weins

They soon moved to the Cashmere, where they raised four sons; Mike, Jim, Russ and John.

Jack began a concerted study of the Bible with Jehovah's Witnesses in 1948, and soon both he and Geniece were attending meetings at the Kingdom Hall regularly. They were baptized as Jehovah's Witnesses in Wenatchee, Washington in 1950. That commitment became the overriding impetus for their entire life-course.

Jack worked hard to provide for his family, as a millworker, a freight driver, and eventually as a sign painter. Having a strong artistic sense, a famously steady hand, and a fast adherence to honesty and personal integrity, he thoroughly enjoyed sign painting until his retirement in 1988.

Grampa Jack fell asleep in death on Thursday morning, May 10, 2018, about 30 days before the 96th anniversary of his birth. He was preceded in death by his parents, his sister Jo, his brother Jim, his eldest son Mike, and his third grandson Ephron. He is survived by his wife of 70 years, Geniece, three sons, seven grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Claudia Rae Fay

Claudia Rae Fay (Ashby), 97, of Leavenworth, Washington passed away on October 5, 2017, surrounded by her loving family. Claudia, daughter of Ila (Batey) and Claude W. Ashby and sister to Pauline, Roger, Raul and Tootsie was born on January 13, 1920 in Hartford, Connecticut. Claudia was the loving wife of Robert J. Fay (Bob) and mother of Robert S., Patrick, and Michael Fay. Claudia was preceded in death by Robert, her loving husband of 74 years, and her son Michael. She is survived by her two sons Robert S. and

Patrick, 13 grandchildren, and 23 great-grandchildren. Claudia taught home economics, English and art at Skykomish High School until she and Bob retired in 1982. After retiring, Claudia and Bob moved to Leavenworth, Washington. She enjoyed golf, gardening, and quilting. She especially enjoyed quilting, and many of her quilted wall hangings hung in the local Catholic Church in Leavenworth, where she volunteered as a Eucharistic Minister and made many beautiful floral arrangements for the church. Claudia will be greatly missed by her family and friends.

There will be a Catholic mass at Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic Church, 145 Wheeler Street, Leavenworth to honor and remember Claudia on Friday, June 1, 2018 at 2 p.m. Please join us for light refreshments and sharing of memories following the mass.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that a donation be made in Claudia's memory to Children's Hospital Seattle or Evergreen Hospice.

OBITUARY & MEMORIAL POLICIES

An obituary is a way for family member(s) to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the larger community of the deceased. Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data Memorials are another way of letting the community know about the life and memories of the person who has died. A Memorial is different from an obituary. An obituary is usually current while a memorial can be written later. Obituaries and memorials need to be typed and emailed no later than Friday by 4:00 p.m. to be placed in the next available issue(s). Please call for cost of an obituary and which NCW paper(s) that it will be placed in to. Cost of the obituary/ memorial is due at the time of placement. Funeral homes and chapels can submit obituaries by Noon on Monday, unless a holiday. For information 509-548-5286. Or contact editor@leavenworthecho.com cient. It is currently posted for both weight and height restrictions.

The proposed project involves the complete demolition of the old bridge, construction of a new bridge in the similar alignment, construction of a new connection between Goodwin Road and Hay

Canyon Road using bridge ramps down to Hay Canyon Road with a roundabout, modifications to the existing intersection of Highway

2 and Hay Canyon Road, stormwater and utility improvements, and other safety improvements including striping, guardrail, and signage. The completed bridge will have a roadway section that will consist of two 12-foot lanes, two 5-foot shoulders and a sidewalk on one side for a total width of 42 feet. The project is scheduled for

Cascade Medical Foundation set for annual golf fundraiser

By Ian Dunn

The Cascade Medical Foundation is hosting their 16th annual Golf Classic on June 18 at the Leavenworth Golf Club. It is presented by Marson and Marson, a division of Tuma-Lum Lumber. The tournament is annually the biggest fundraiser for the Foundation, which raises money for needed items at Cascade Medical.

This year, they are raising $66,000 toward purchasing a blood gas analyzer, polarizing microscope and blood analyzer. Foundation member Bob Adamson, whose late father Jim Adamson, was a longtime foundation member, said they asked Cascade Medical CEO Diane Blake what was needed.

'She went to the lab, which said they have some stuff that needs some updating. That worked out," Adamson said. The foundation started in 1992, the golf tournament 10 year after that. Adamson said the tournament is always their biggest fundraiser.

Twould say 70-80 percent. Home and Garden Show has a pretty nice share. We also did a Charm Walk this year as a fundraiser. I think it will catch on. It was really a lot of fun. We had 80 people participate, include 20 merchants. We had ladies night out. We do some benevolent nights," Adamson Turnout at the golf tournament has been solid, from a high of about 110 to a low of 60. They are averaging about 80 participants. The golfers are mostly local, but also from Seattle and Yakima.

Adamson they are well on their way to raising the

'We'll do fine with the golf tournament. We have a lot of sponsors that are pitching in. We've raised over $30,000 in sponsors just from the golf tournament. We have a raffle and silent auction hosted by Brad Blackburn," Adamson

Registration for the tournament starts at 11 a.m. and there is still time to register.

"If you need help finding a group, we can help you put one together. You can register through our website, cascademedicalfoundation.org,' said Emily Groby, foundation coordinator. "You'll see the golf classic right there. You can sign up and pay online. If you don't play golf, you can bring your significant other and participate in our auction and raffle. We have some great wines this year. Really excited about our mystery wines.'

The mystery wines have been around for awhile, she said, but now they have the wineries on board.

"The wines they are giving us are fantastic. We have no bottle under $35. The money directly benefits the hospital. That's the great part about giving back. You can directly see the return," Groby said.
The tournament is popular because the golfers are treated to a nice day with golf, meals and prizes.

We have really great tee prizes. You get lunch, then start on the putting and chipping contests. The best ball scramble starts at 12:30 p.m. You play the 18. On almost every ĥole, there is a prize. You can win a nice bottle of wine. You can win a car," Groby said. "All four par 3s have a big time prize for hole-in-one, but a småller prize for closest to the pin. We have the beat the pro, longest drive contest, closest to the pin. Every foursome gets a photo at the end of the night.

There will also a be a photographer roaming the course for some casual shots. Everyone gets a mulligan and a dropsy. Mountain Meadows will be there with cookies and lemonade. There is a commemoration to the late Louie Wagoner, a longtime Cascade Medical supporter, on the 18th hole.

One of the many fun things to do at the Cascade Medical Foundation Golf Classic is the putting contest.
