

City unveils the latest parking study

By IAN DUNN

PART ONE OF TWO

Perhaps there have been parking studies in Leavenworth before, some of which likely just sat on the shelf. But this latest study to address the significant parking problems in Leavenworth appears to be a different animal altogether.

On May 2, Rick Williams Consulting presented their findings from their study of the parking issues on a several typical busy summer days. Some of the results will surprise no one, but other results might raise some eyebrows.

Rick Williams Consulting, based in Portland, Oregon, has been in business for 30 years. They've done parking management plans for over 100 cities. In his public presentation at the Festhalle on May 2, Williams said they worked with the stakeholder advisory committee to come up with some guiding principals, which are really important in parking management because there must first be priorities before decisions can be made.

"We want to make decision based upon statement of intent, where we want to go. Who should park? Who has priority to park on the street? Where should employees park? Where should residents park? Should there be a time limit on streets? What is the role of the city? If we have those priorities, how and when do we make a decision?," Williams said. "If we don't have those types of statements, it's hard to say this will work or won't work. The reason we're doing this is it facilitates and supports guiding principal number one, two or three."

The data, Williams said, pertains to most everyone, because when it comes to parking, nearly everyone is a professional.

"When you are parking consultant, you're always working with people who park cars. That is why data is important because parking is as much perception as reality. We have the guiding principals, but do we have data that says we really have problem? Where is the problem? Do employees really do X?," Williams said. "We get a lot of feedback from stakeholder committees, but if you don't have data, we're just talking back and forth. So you have guiding principals and objective data, then we can make decisions."

Williams said he wanted the public to understand the priorities and how the system works. How will this problem be solved? How will Williams recommend the problem be solved?

In terms of assessing capital needs, Williams said they are only looking at the current operations of parking, which he felt were great, in terms of financial stability. He said the city was doing a great job of managing its capital.

"That's a good thing for the future, but they're also beginning to run analysis about the future. What do we need in the future? We'll have that in June/July as well," Williams said.

In terms of public engagement, the Festhalle meeting was the initial public house, but Williams promised to come back with strategies, which the public may or may not like. Finally, they'll write a report to give to the mayor and council to see if they can get it adopted through a public process.

The operative term in a parking management plan is "management," he said.

"You could have a great parking plan but it sits on the shelf. For all of us in the room, if we think parking in Leavenworth is an issue which it appears it is, it means the status quo needs to change because parking management is to address issues of change," Williams said. "Our firm is really concerned that when we do a product like this that it is implementable and it focuses on the word 'management.' It's not a parking plan, it is a parking management plan, which means it's moving forward and active. This is going to be about change in the future."

He called it a big study area, stretching from Ski Hill Drive and Third Street on the west to 14th Street on the east, Evans, Birch and Poplar on the north and Commercial Street on the south. They identified every on-street parking stall, by location, by block face in every block face in this zone.

They also identified every off-street parking site available in this zone, whether it is public or private. In terms of the guiding principals, Williams highlighted several.

"On street in the commercial zone, the highest priority are customers and visitors. A customer and visitor is defined as someone who lives in Leavenworth and comes downtown to shop. It's someone who lives in Portland and comes into town to visit and attend an event," he said. "It's basically anybody who is not employed in the commercial zone. That is the highest priority for on-street parking."

For any street zoned for residents, the highest priority is the residents and their guests. For the off-street system, every property owner should have the highest priority for their customers and their employees on their lots.

There are 71 separate parking sites in Leavenworth, some have available supply, which could be shared, he said. "Employees are the responsibility of businesses. The city can be a partner. The city can't

Despite recent snowmelt, danger remains at Eightmile Lake

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

With the flooding danger still possible at Eightmile Lake, the Washington Department of Ecology is installing sensors at the dam to provide a potential warning if there were dam failure.

"The Department of Ecology is handling this stuff. We took their guy up there on April 9. He was checking for satellite reception from up there so he could send out signals. We did find a satellite we could talk to up there," said Tony Jantzer, Icicle and Peshastin Irrigation District manager. "Right now, they are in the process of gathering up all the equipment they need. My assumption is they will have monitoring telemetry up there by about May 15. They have a video camera, rain gauge and hook into the depth."

There is already a transducer at the lake which senses depth. Jantzer said they've been using it for the past couple years, but there has been no way to broadcast that information. Their only choice was to hike up there and read it.

The WSDOE will hook into that transducer, he said, and also put a flow monitor in the creek below the lake and also possibly at the trailhead. Jantzer believes the information will be available on the WSDOE website.

The mostly earthen dam was built in the 1920s to provide additional water to Icicle Creek for irrigation. The dam is managed by the Icicle Irrigation District.

The Jack Fire last fall burnt the watershed above the lake, making a rapid melt off a distinct danger. The resulting flood could rise the Icicle Creek to above historic flood levels. An emergency declaration has been made because of this.

Jantzer said he's been going up to the lake every two weeks, but now more often due to the rapidly melting snow.

"The lake is basically full. There is about two feet of water going through the notch in the dam, which is a designed spill," Jantzer said. "The water was just starting to go over the earthen part of the dam, where it is not supposed to go."

The snow around the lake, which is posing the danger, has been melting, especially during the recent hot spell. "The north facing hillside is probably still covered with 80 percent snow. The south facing hillside is probably about 80 percent melted off," Jantzer said. "We've lost a lot of snow. There's probably 50 percent snow left up there. That is why the lake filled up. I would characterize the water coming into the lake is more than is going out of the lake."

The lake will continue to rise, he said. Jantzer said he has seen water going over the earthen section of the dam before, which did not cause any problems. It has been eroding over 20 years, so it hasn't really changed.

"If it stays down in that realm, we'll be okay. I don't anticipate, given our weather pattern the next couple weeks, that it will be any high risk. But if we do get a big storm to come in and the lake is already a foot or two going the earthen section, and increase that dramatically, we could have a problem," he said.

The biggest concern right now is the increasingly hot weather, which will cause the snow to continue to melt and fill up the lake, which should be okay. Jantzer believes the dam will handle that, but if that changes to a big rain event, then the runoff could inundate the lake.

Jantzer said they are considering two possibilities for dam.

"We're really trying to get to the point where can replace the entire dam. We really want to do that this year. We are working towards that," he said. "If we don't think we can get that done, we do have some plans for interim fixes to the dam, harden the dam, make a bigger spillway to get the dam to where it can come out of this emergency situation."

The irrigation district will not be able to end the emergency declaration until they have made some physical changes to the dam. Plans are to take an excavator up there as soon as the snow allows.

Jantzer has been going up to the lake via aircraft, since hiking to the lake would be pretty arduous in the snow.

"I have a friend who lives locally and has a plane designed for doing this type of thing. He gives me rides when he's available. Otherwise, I fly up there with a helicopter from Valley Helicopter out of Ellensburg," Jantzer said. "Until we get the monitoring equipment up there, we're trying to get up there as often as we feel the conditions warrant. Right now, we want to get up there once a week to look at it."

Once the monitoring equipment is in place, he believe they won't have to go up there much unless there is some kind of incident. The plan is to get things ready to prepare for whatever they can do.

Park study: Data shows many off-street parking spots empty

make employees do anything, but their employer can. We want businesses to say this is a partnership. The majority of parking in Leavenworth is in private ownership," Williams said. "The priority on-street is customers and visitors. We need to work with businesses so they know they are responsible for their employees."

Turnover in the downtown should be high. The system should provide enough time for customers to park, but also a high level of turnover that allows increased capacity of the system throughout the day.

If a person parks all day on street, the capacity of that stall is one, he said. The average turnover rate for a stall in any retail core is five.

"If I can get the right person to the right stall, I can either get one parking stall for every long term parker or I get five more trips into that at no extra charge. Turnover is very important because we want to get all the capacity we can out of our system," he said.

Williams said great infrastructure is already in place, but the signage could use some work. There should be a clear picture of where customers and employees should park and how to park.

Use of bikes, transit and shuttles can be part of the parking system. Williams said one of their key metrics is the 85 percent rule. When should you pull the trigger? When do you make decisions? He said they use the 85 percent rule.

"If part of the supply is consistently over 85 percent occupancy, we have to at least have the discussions about getting your occupancy below constrained parking," Williams said. "The 85 percent rule becomes our decisions trigger."

Market research tells that when a visitor comes into town and the parking is in excess of 85 percent occupancy, literally their angst level goes up. Their experience is heavily impacted. On the map presented, the 85 percent was indicated by red coloring.

"And you may be at a point where you're behind the eight ball for planning. Because if you're over 85 percent, you may already be in a deficit.

It takes two to three years to bring new supply online," he said. "The one to shoot for is to get into the middle, that orange box. The 75-80 percent during the peaks hours means you always have some available. You have flex in your system to accommodate seasonal adjustments, flex in the system to accommodate employee growth, flex in the system to accommodate visitor and residential growth."

If you have 45 percent use and 55 percent empty, Williams said they've found that hurts downtowns. There is not enough traffic volume to support quality retail businesses.

Williams said they spent three days in Leavenworth, walking the streets. They found the on-street system to be very robust particularly in the core. It is almost always constrained.

"The average duration of stay of people parking on the street is less than three hours. If we were to take out employees who were parking on the street, the average time would be closer to two hours," he said. "What it means, people come to hotels, leave their cars and walk into town. Your turnover is actually good, but have a lot of people parking longer than five, six to seven to eight hours."

Private lots have a large supply, Williams said, but it needs a high level of coordination to bring that supply onto the shared use system. Remote lots present an option. The P6 lot on the west end of town has a lot of supply that is not connect to downtown, he noted.

Some employees are seen moving around all day. Some employees are seen parking in the same stall all day. In terms of priorities, Williams said the system needs to be aware of that, one person parking in one stall all day.

He felt there is a good skeleton of signage, but it is not well placed. It needs to be pre-communicated before downtown. The biggest issue downtown is no regulation.

"Anybody can park anywhere for as long as they want. That's very unusual for a town promoting visitor-tourists. That's something to think about, particularly if you're over 85 percent. It might have been a good idea in the past, but is it a good idea for the future having no controls? You need to get the right car to the right place," he said. "We need to take control and think about what happens after the reshuffle."

There are 2,600 total stalls, 846 on street and 1,700 off street, the majority of which are in private ownership. There are 1,600 stalls on 70 sites.

"We survey all the on-streets stalls every hour, 10 hours a day on the entire 846 stalls for on-street parking. We know what's happening every hour. Off-street, we were able to sample 86 percent of the off-street supply. We couldn't get it all. We had 13 lots outside the study zone which are potential opportunity sites," Williams said. "On-street, there are 846 total stalls. 826 of those have no limit. That is really unusual. There are only 20 stalls of controlled parking downtown. If we are constrained, we need to do something about that. That is very unusual for a town seeking to attract visitors."

The peak parking time is the midday, which is traditional, he said. At the peak hour on the weekday, there were 343 empty stalls somewhere in the on-street system. On the weekend, 73 percent are occupied.

On the peak hour of the weekend, there are still 246 stalls available in the on-street system. Williams said they've located them, now they have to say if it is feasible for someone to park there.

The average duration stay on the weekday is 2-hours-46 minutes. The average stay during the weekend was 2-hours-53 minutes, which Williams said the downtown doesn't need all day, unregulated parking.

"The parking industry says, if you have a high volume retail core, you want to promote and attract high volumes of trips, then your minimum turnover rate should be five. That guarantees the business a high level of turnover," he said. "You could say, let's give everybody 1-hour parking. That wouldn't suit. It would be much more beneficial to businesses in downtown Leavenworth if they were getting 1.37 more cars a day in front of their store."

Other than four block faces, the downtown core is 85 percent or red from 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on the weekends. However, he said there are still 200 empty stalls.

"On weekends, the occupancy on-street in over 100 percent. Starting at 11:30, 88 percent so we're already in the red. By 1:30, 104 percent. How can you get to 104? People are parking illegally. They want parking so bad, they're parking in front of fire hydrants, in front of curb cuts, no parking zones," Williams said. "We have information about time stays, the number of people parking longer the five hours. We have good information on the off-street system where stalls are empty."

Williams said they have good information that there are number of people parking longer than five hours. They also have good information there are empty stalls in the off-street system. On the weekdays, half the off-street stalls are empty, which means there are 600-700 stalls in the off-street system, recognizing it is privately controlled.

"On the weekends, it drops, but there are still 400 stalls in the off-street system. That number doesn't include the 13 lots we saw outside the zone. That is a lot of parking. If you were to multiply the 400 parking stalls by what it cost to build a garage. That is $16 million of value. You should at least try to capture it," he said.

Data conclusions

The core zone is heavily utilized on weekdays and weekends. The problem identified is the on-street in the core zone. No limit parking in the core is not consistent with customer need.

"The unlimited parking is creating problems for us, because were over 85 percent. If you were 45 percent occupied, I would say, keep going. There's no need for timed parking. No one will be denied a stall," Williams said. "Can we say to ourselves, if visitors and customers are our priority, that aren't some conflicts between visitors and customers in other uses."

Williams said they should at least consider time limits in the core zone. The opportunity for shared parking should be pursued. He felt there is a lot of opportunity out there that is empty.

"It may not be available, it may never become available, but we need to look at it and pursue it first."

My mentor in parking said fill up what you have first. There are 401 empty stalls on peak weekends. That is the lowest number of empty stalls with a value of $12-15 million," Williams said.

Remote lots and shuttles are positive. He noted the city is working with Link now. They may need a system of shuttles for employees so they can park remotely.

"Some cities we're working with, in their path they have with their downtown business association, parking is a condition of employment. Here's your salary, vacation, health benefits, here's where you park. If you don't, it's a disciplinary event," he said. "It's something to think about. If employers are not working with us, it's not going to work. It's the employers responsibility in partnership with the city, not the city's responsibility."

Williams said to begin planning for future growth. At some point, he said the city will expend all the opportunities and new parking will be necessary.

"We need to start planning now. It's important to be planning now to determine what funding opportunities there are, sites that would be feasible, how much to build. We need to have all those conversations first," Williams said. "You can't step back and say, we're not going to manage parking. We have parking management plan to get us there."

In part two, we'll review some of the public input provided to Williams during the open house on May 2 in Fest-halle.

ICICLE CREEK THIS WEEK

BE THE FIRST TO SIP INSIDE BLUE SPIRITS' NEW BUILDING

JAMIE HOWELL

We're calling it the BLUE SPIRITS SNEAK PEEK, and I can't think of a better way to toast the launch of Icicle Creek's annual fundraiser: CHEF FEST 2018!

Owner and spirits architect Jeff Soehren has invited Chef Fest-goers in for a very special tour of their brand-new distillery and an evening of tantalizing cocktails (which you'll also learn to make) - before it's open to the general public. Soehren and his team have been working hard to ready the new facility on Highway 2 across from Dan's Food Market in Leavenworth (the former Burger King location) and you get to be the first ones in with the BLUE SPIRITS SNEAK PEEK.

You'll learn to make three different bespoke cocktails using the sophisticated (and sometimes cheeky) spirits Blue Spirits has become renowned for producing. Pair that with hors d'oeuvres and some lovely tunes from sultry songstress Rhia Foster and you've got an evening not to be missed.

It's the first night in a string of four Chef Fest events, all raising funds to support the non-profit Icicle Creek Center for the Arts in its mission to provide arts education and performance to the people of NCW.

Come raise a glass with us at the BLUE SPIRITS SNEAK PEEK. Tickets and more at icicle.org.

Red Bull Pump Track World Championship highlights weekend of biking events

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Red Bull Pump Track World Championship event highlights a series of biking related events around Leavenworth on Memorial Day weekend. The Red Bull Pump Track World Championship takes place on Saturday, May 26, in Leavenworth.

Meg Zapalowski, owner of Infinity Cycling in Leavenworth, has created some other biking events to coincide with the Red Bull event over the weekend.

"The Bavarian Battle of the Bikes celebration of everything involving two wheels, specifically bicycles. The concept was developed around the Red Bull Pump Track World Championship event coming to Leavenworth," Zapalowski said. "I met with the Blue Lotus Foundation, which helped bring the event to town and proposed an idea on creating events around the Red Bull Pump Track event. Let's create some additional events that celebrate the use of a bicycle."

The idea was to have a bike related film festival on Friday, May 25 and then a criterion bike race at Ski Hill on Sunday, May 27. Zapalowski said the main focus for these events in year one would be fundraising and giving back to the community.

"I wanted to create events that would bring people and that would help support current foundations and organizations in our community that we would like to see grow and flourish. That's why I chose Iceicle Bicycle youth mountain bike development program for the Trails in Motion Mountain Bike film fest," Zapalowski said.

The Trails in Motion film will be presented at the Feste-halle, with the doors opening at 6 p.m. and the film at 7 p.m. The event on Sunday is called the Dirt Digger Criterion. The event at Ski Hill would benefit the Leavenworth Winter Sports Club, she said.

"That will require five loops in waves of people to see how face they can do a .08 mile loop on flat bar bikes. They can have to have either a mountain bike or fat bike in order to compete. A Dirt Digger Crit is designed as a fun event, not highly competitive. It's something that gets people together," Zapalowski said.

The Dirt Digger Crit starts at 8 a.m. and last all day. There will be food, beer and music. To get the word out, Zapalowski said it has mainly been social media, but also emails and some direct cycling contacts in Seattle and central Washington.

"Lots of grass roots marketing. It's been really cool. The biggest thing for me, being new to town, I am overwhelmed and grateful for the amount of support and trust and excited that this community has already embraced. I couldn't be more excited," Zapalowski said.

The main event of the weekend is the Red Bull Pump Track World Championship which will attract pro athletes from all over the country. Amateurs are also welcome to participate.

"There will be two participants at one time. We are the qualifying event for Switzerland. First place for men and women get all expenses paid trip to Switzerland for the championship event. Second, third and fourth also qualify, but they do not get the financial assistance," she said.

There are currently 77 registered riders from all over the country. Zapalowski said they expect that number to go up. "It's open to anyone to give it a shot. People think this is a bunch of Red Bull sponsored riders that are coming to race, but anyone can enter," she said.

Of course, parking is limited at Enchantment Park, where the pump track is located. Zapalowski said they have been posting on social media about parking.

"The great thing about being a bike festival is we are encouraging people to ride their bikes. Hopefully, individuals coming to the event will want to ride your bike," she said. "We have tons of volunteers that will help with traffic and parking. We're making sure we are mindful of the community and people who live near the park."

There has been a parking plan worked out with the city, she said, which encourages people to ride their bikes to the event. There will be concessions at all three events plus other amenities.

"We're having an expo style where bike brands, gear and food can all be available for people to look at. It's going to be great for not just the participants but also the spectators," Zapalowski said.

You can sign up for the events through social media, www.facebook.com/bavarian-battleofthebikes/. For info on the Red Bull event, go to www.redbull.com/us-en/red-bull-pump-track-world-championship-on-tour.

Cooking With Teri

FOOD = FRIENDSHIP

The weather this week has been awesome. Like many of you I have been spending as much time outside as possible. We have opened our fruitstand, and have wonderful asparagus from Quincy as well as apples and pears from last harvest. If you like free range eggs we have chicken and duck eggs. My daughter Rachel has been hatching chicks and she was fortunate enough to hatch two Duo Lap Toulouse Geese. Finding the geese eggs and hatching them is quite a fete. They will grow to about (3) feet tall. As far as geese go they are very mellow and get along well with the chickens and ducks. This year I have added more raised beds to my garden and I am very excited about that. A variety of lettuce, spinach, pak choy (choy) and radishes will be coming soon. Last year, I purchased some very rare seeds from an Amish family and for the most part they did quite well. This year I ordered more tomatoes, peppers and lettuce from them. The Amish collect and save seeds from all over the world. They have literally saved thousands of plant species for future generations. Besides the unusual I have planted the more common place vegetables and flowers. Besides cherry tomatoes are the easiest things to sell at our fruitstand.

We have out of area customers call and reserve eggs and some of our more unusual crops before they come over. Our customs come from all over the world, many of whom now live and work in Western Washington. Some of our customers bring us food from their culture, such as Indian, Pakistani, Ukranian and Russian. The Ukrainians and Russians buy a lot of apricots from us, several have brought us back jars of pickled apricots and lemons. I must admit that those that bring me homemade pickles are extra special.

The sharing of food is a cultural and spiritual experience that we all share regardless where we are from. Meeting new people and hearing their story is an added benefit.

So break bread and uncork a bottle of wine and get to know your neighbors. This week's recipe is for one of my favorites, grilled flank steak. Enjoy!

CITRUS MARINATED FLANK STEAK

Juice of 1 orange
Juice of 2 limes
¼ cup extra virgin olive oil
2 garlic cloves, roughly chopped
1 tablespoon chipotle chili powder
3 tablespoons chopped cilantro
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon salt
2 pound flank steak

1. With a small, sharp paring knife score the steak on both sides.

2. Combine the orange juice, lime juice, olive oil, garlic, chili powder, cumin and salt in the bowl of a food processor or blender; puree until smooth. Place the steak in a large, resealable plastic bag and pour the marinade over it. Press out the air, seal the bag and marinate at room temperature for at least 2 hours.

3. Prepare the coals on the grill until they are glowing red with a white ash around them. Drain and discard the marinade and place the steak 4 inches over the coals; sear quickly, about 3 to 4 minutes on each side.

4. Move the steak away from the direct heat, cover the grill and continue to cook until the internal temperature reaches 135 degrees F, about 7 to 10 minutes longer. Remove the steak from the grill and allow to rest for 10 minutes before slicing and serving.

Seven Cascade High School DECA students and their advisor, Todd Pehowski, returned tired but satisfied from a six-day event in Atlanta, Georgia on April 25. In the previous article, it was misstated that they were attending a national business leadership competition, when, in fact it was the DECA International Career Development Conference (DECA ICDC), with students hailing from the 50 states and also Canada, Spain, Germany and Honduras, among others.

The excitement of DECA ICDC began with a bang. Twenty-thousand students assembled in the glitzy new Mercedes Benz Stadium. They watched a version of an Olympic parade of nations as each chartered organization had a delegate march with a flag to boisterous cheering. The keynote speaker, a top designer from Men's Wearhouse, encouraged them to make the most of the conference.

The following day, the only time when the sun would peek out of the clouds, the students visited Six Flags Over Georgia. Ryan Everest said, "Those long lines for the rides went by fast with Mr. P. telling jokes." "We practiced scenarios in line too," said Rylee Jacobson, "like what it would take to market a real Jurassic Park."

Preliminary tests occurred the next day, with competition in full swing by the 22nd. None of the CHS students made it to the finals in their competition categories. Competition was certainly stiff (about 180 competitors in each category with 20 finalists), and there's a bit of luck involved too. The first round of judging occurs in heats, so if you find yourself in a tough heat, you have less chance of advancing to the finals. "I look forward to receiving my scores to see how close I got," D'Andre Vasquez said. The scores will be sent out soon, giving the students a chance to see where they excelled and where they have room to improve.

Although competition drives the energy of the conference, these students took away a lot more. They networked with students from other emmy, were chosen because, as Vasquez said, "We saw a lot of potential in them, and we are investing in the future of our DECA chapter."

parts of the country. "I even met someone from Minnesota who had vacationed in Seattle and visited the nearby small Bavarian-style village," said Jacobson.

Through conversations with other chapters, there are chances to think about how this young chapter can grow and change in the future. Everest said, "We talked about student based enterprises and could see, for instance, how others used specials certain times of the week to help increase sales in the student store." Ideas for events could be shared too, like how their Father/Daughter Dance was a concept that Mr. P. heard about from another school in Washington.

Anna Russell and Jose Valdez, who didn't compete but attended the Leadership Acad-

The students felt gratitude for all the sources of funding they received, including sponsorship through the Career and Technical Education (CTE) department. "Members from other chapters paid a lot more than we did to attend DECA ICDC," said Jacobson.

The conference is past now, but DECA will continue to be present in these students' lives. "We will talk to the eighth graders soon," Everest said. They want to explain the opportunities of DECA to these upcoming freshmen to help recruit more members. In addition, Vasquez looks forward to speaking in front of an audience of business leaders at a state organized fundraising luncheon. "I hope to tell our school's story and articulate what DECA can do for students."

Kodiak soccer falls short in bid to repeat as league champs

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Cascade Kodiaks needed to beat Chelan on May 1 to repeat as Caribou Trail League champions. Chelan upset the Kodiaks 2-1 on April 12 in Leavenworth. Both teams were 6-1 coming into the game.

"We hadn't played well in our first meeting, so this was time for redemption. Unfortunately, the game didn't fall the way we wanted. We came out with a lot of energy and put pressure on them right away," said Cascade Head Coach Pete Spiegel.

Arturo Avila and Efrén Guerrero were relentless trying to score, to no avail. The Kodiaks had six or seven good scoring chances but could not convert. At halftime, the score was 0-0 even though the Kodiaks were dominating.

Guerrero was brought down in the box and injured his knee. Sadly, the injury ended his promising season. Not long after, Jose Rivera jumped on a bounding ball from 12-yards out and nailed it with his left foot to put the Kodiaks up 1-0.

Chelan scored the equalizer on a defensive miscue. With 10 minutes left, a Chelan player slid behind the defense and scored on a breakaway to put the Goats up 2-1. In added time, Cascade pressed for the equalizer.

Finally, it came as Jose Valdez had a free kick from 35 yard out. He found Avila on the far post, who tied the game at 2-2, sending it into overtime.

"Overtime proved to be our undoing again versus Chelan. One of their players was able to control the ball and engaged two of our defenders. He found his teammate 8-yards out who was unmarked. He slotted the ball past our goalie to claim the victory, 3-2," Spiegel said.

Chelan won league with a 7-1 record, dropping Cascade to 6-2. Chelan earned a bye in the first round of Districts, but Cascade was forced to play Manson on May 4 in Leavenworth.

Cascade had beaten Manson 3-1 on April 23, so they were familiar with them. Cascade put a strong pressure on them right away. Avila opened the scoring with a shot from the left side, which pushed the goalie outside, leaving a path for Will Piers, who took one dribble and found the net.

The second goal came off a corner kick, which Cascade has struggled with all season.

"Raul Mata took the kick. The ball ricocheted off a player and fell to Daniel Sandoval who was lurking at the 18. Danny drilled the ball. The goalie had no chance. It remained 2-0 as we went into the half," Spiegel said.

Manson came alive in the second half putting more pressure on the defense, but the Kodiak defenders were up for the challenge. One their players broke through the back line and was fouled in the box.

On the penalty kick, Cascade goalie Jose Mendoza guessed right and snuffed out the attempt.

"We practice PKs a lot, so Jose gets a lot of practice. The team has a ton of confidence in Jose. Last year, he was a third team all-state goalie. This year, he might be the best in the state. This save changed the complexion of the game. Instead of being up only 2-1, we were still two goals up," Spiegel said.

With 10 minutes left, Rivera headed the ball in for the final goal as Cascade won 3-0.

Cascade played at Brewster on May 8. Results were unavailable before press time. The Kodiaks beat Brewster 4-1 on March 31. The winner earns a state berth and a spot in the District Championship against either Chelan or Bridgeport. The loser will be out. So the stakes are high.

Cascade baseball to face Okanogan in district playoffs

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Cascade Kodiak baseball team finished up the regular season taking a couple forfeits from Omak, which was not able to field a team for any of their games against Cascade this season. As it turns out, the only notches in the win column for the Kodiaks in league were those three forfeits to Omak.

The Caribou Trail League was fairly top heavy with Cashmere, Chelan and Okanogan. Cashmere was the outright champ at 11-1, but Chelan snuck into the number two spot in the last week with a key win over Okanogan. Both those teams were 8-4. Cascade was 3-9 and Omak was 0-12.

Cascade Head Coach Mike Kelly was disappointed his team could not play Omak last week.

"It really couldn't be any worse. Because they are league games, they count against our 20 game match, so I can't replace those with replacement games. They are just forfeited games. Not having three games in the season was unfortunate, but there's nothing we can do about it," Kelly said.

Kelly would have liked to have those games to tune up for Districts.

"I think that is six or seven more at-bats for each of the kids and 10-14 innings of pitching and three games worth of team chemistry. For all the above, it's unfortunate we didn't get those games," Kelly said.

The only game Cascade did play last week was at Chelan on May 4. Junior southpaw Conrad Hasse retired the first two batters, but then ran into trouble, giving up five runs. Kelly had to replace him before the end of the first with TJ Thompson-just to get the final out.

"We were in a 5-1 hole after one and ended up losing the game 8-2. TJ did excellent over the next 6 innings. They are extremely strong this year with Cashmere, Chelan and Okanogan. All three are very good. Take away that first inning, like most games this season, it is a contested ball game," Kelly said. "I was excited the way the guys kept fighting and battling. It was good ball game after that."

Kelly said he wasn't surprised Chelan snuck into that number two seed.

"They have been playing really well. They beat a great Brewster team last week. Beat Okanogan 5-4. They got the series win over Okanogan. I would like for our guys to be more involved with that battle on top. We just weren't this year," Kelly said. "We will certainly be next year. All three of those teams are talented in different ways. Cashmere has a senior dominated lineup with a bunch of confidence. They have a couple high quality high school 1A arms. Chelan is mostly juniors, playing well together."

With Okanogan dropping to third, that means Cascade must play Okanogan on Thursday in Ephrata in a loser out district game. Cascade lost to Okanogan this season, 7-5, 11-5 and 9-1.

"I'm excited. I don't care who we play. I know that is what coach's say, but whether it is Okanogan, Chelan or Cashmere, our guys are right there. We're ready to break through. It could be this game," Kelly said. "We are absolutely led by our young guys, TJ, Mason Kelly had two hits and played outstanding defense. Ben Sunitsch was outstanding, throwing out a couple runners. Those three are sophomores. They are the leaders of our team. They are doing it they way they are playing."

Kelly said he's excited to see what his team can do against Okanogan.

"All the games have been competitive except for the big inning. If we can minimize that, we can compete," Kelly said. "If we win that game, we're automatically into the crossover. We have the chance to continue on and back to the state tournament, where we lived for so long."

The only reason the district games are in Ephrata is because league coaches did not like Cashmere always hosting the tournament, feeling it was too much of an advantage. Kelly did not agree with the decision to move the games to Ephrata.

"It doesn't make any sense why the decision was made to move the game to Ephrata so the one seed doesn't have the advantage. But why not? Why shouldn't the one seed have home field advantage? That's the way it's always been," Kelly said. "It doesn't matter for us. We're not carrying around a tremendous fan base at 7-13. It doesn't really affect us greatly."

Cascade defends league title with sweep of Omak

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Cascade Kodiak softball team repeated as league champions with a dominating sweep of Omak on May 4. Cascade finished 11-1 in the Caribou Trail League, just ahead of Okanogan, which finished 10-2.

Cascade hosts the District Tournament, which is Saturday at Dryden. Cascade plays Okanogan at 11 a.m. for the District Championship. The winner earns a trip to state, while the loser must play a consolation game, then move onto CTL/NEA crossover to earn a trip to state.

Omak and Chelan play in the other semifinal. Cascade split a doubleheader at Okanogan on March 31, winning 12-2 but losing the second game 4-3. On April 24, Cascade edged the Bulldogs 2-1. Expectation are for another close game on Saturday between the two teams.

On May 4, Cascade played a doubleheader at Omak. Cascade won the first game 11-0 in five innings.

Sarah Paulson was again very strong in the circle throwing the two-hit shutout, picking up 8 strikeouts along the way. Paulson pitched 5 innings, giving up no runs, 2 hits with 1 walk and 2 hit batters.

Truh Merriman was 1-for-2 with 2 RBI and 2 runs. Paulson was 2-for-1 with 2 RBI. Kayla Bittle was 2-for-3 with an RBI. Alondra Acevedo was 1-for-2 with 2 RBI.

Cascade won the second game 13-3.

"The team did a great job of showing up focussed and ready to play. It was little unusual for us traveling that far for a double header on a weekday, but the girls handled it well. Whenever the focus looked like it might be leaving us they got it back together and made plays," said Cascade Head Coach Todd Gilbert. "This has been a very good regular season for this team that has consistently gotten better as the year has progressed. Now it is time to get ready for the second season, the post season."

Merriman pitched 6 innings, giving up 1 earned run on 7 hits with 6 strikeouts and 1 walk. Paulson pitched an inning, giving up no runs with 2 strikeouts.

Merriman was 3-for-5 with 3 runs, 3 RBI, HR. Kaija Lovelady was 1-for-3 with 2 RBI and a triple. Maddie Schiefelbein was 2-for-2 with 2 sac bunts.

Kodiak boys' golfers fall short against Chelan by single stroke

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

After losing to Chelan earlier in the season, the Cascade Kodiak boys' golf team was confident they could defeat the Goats in the rematch. Unfortunately, the Kodiaks fell short by a single stroke, 368-367 on April 30 in Leavenworth.

"Chelan had put a whipping on us up there last month. We were hoping to return the favor. We played our hearts out with some personal best scores but it just wasn't enough. Awesome day for golf. Conditions were perfect for low scores," said Cascade Head Coach Randy Alexander. Cascade's Tim Wells was the medalist with a solid 79.

Isaac Cortes shot a season's best 88, matching Stefan Zuckriegel. Michael Whiteside shot 113.

"We all played good, but Chelan's team came to play and there depth of golfers showed. They had four golfers that broke 100 and it was just barely too much for us," Alexander said.

The Cascade girls' golf team improved to 5-1 in league with 426-475 win over Chelan. Maddie Hontou was the medalist with a 94. Natalie Craig shot her best score, 107.

"Maddie continues to play well in getting ready for post season play. Natalie just continues to never give up. She wants to improve and work hard on her game and now the scores are finally coming down. Jacelyn Bain is down with a knee strain and may be out for a week and Natalie stepped up this day," Alexander said.

Emma Halseth, who is coming off the flu, shot 117.

"Emma is another one whose scores are coming down, great timing to be playing well," he said.

Cascade finished up the regular season with a boys' victory over Warden, while the girls had to forfeit. Only three girls could make the match, so not enough to score as a team. The boys won 376-449. "Stefan Zuckriegel leads the way again to this victory, and medalsit, with his best score ever of 82. Isaac Cortes continues his hot shooting with a personal best 85. Tim Wells struggled a bit on his round with a 99. Tim is playing a little with his swing and sometimes it takes a little time to get dialed in. Tim is still focused and am sure he will be ready by next week," Alexander said.

Whitehead shot 110.

Halseth was the medalist for the girls with a 99. Craig shot 106 and Neilson 117.

"Maddie Hontou was off nursing a knee sprain and Jacelyn Bain the same. I am pretty sure these girls will be ready for the District/State qualifier on Monday, May 14 at Alta Lake. That will give us a pretty strong group for the next couple weeks and to prove we are the best girls team in the league," Alexander said.

The team played a practice round at Alta Lake on May 7 in preparation of the upcoming District Tournament.

"This just an all CTL team match. Doesn't mean too much, but is a practice round for the week following on which is the District and State qualifier for District 6. We will be ready," he said.
