Local grad reveals the secrets of the Cascade Wall

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

Back in 1983, voters decided to merge the Peshastin-Dryden and Leavenworth School Districts. A new Cascade High School would be constructed. At the time, local artist Richard Caemmerer approached the school board about doing something to honor the merger, especially since his two sons were in school.

“He wanted to do something special, so he offered to do the big Cascade mural. He laid out an image and mock up for the school board and said he wanted all sorts of stuff with the big block lettering, which is there, but he also to put some Martin Luther King quotes, Gandhi quotes, maybe some Beatles lyrics and some other stuff. He also wanted to put the names of prominent members of Leavenworth and Peshastin-Dryden,” said Richard’s son, Mike Caemmerer, a 1983 Leavenworth High School grad.

The school board said they loved the mural idea, but not so much the extra words in there. Caemmerer agreed to leave the extra words out.

“My dad said, sure, that is totally fine. He did the mural and put the names in anyway. He just hid them. My dad, throughout his life, he was known for this kind of legend or myth. There was all this stuff he did that we never really knew if it was true or not,” Mike Caemmerer said. “Like he actually designed the Budweiser label in the late 1950s. He was an intern at the ad agency that did it. He couldn’t take credit for it, because he was just an intern. So he hid his name in there.

That was the legend. We never found it.”

There are lots of amazing things that that he has done, Mike Caemmerer said, some of which they know are true and some hard to believe. The legend of the Cascade Wall is there is hidden stuff up there. Richard Caemmerer passed away two years ago and maybe the secrets with him.

His son feels, even if asked, he would only have provided a cryptic answer.

“I never knew myself if it was true. With the school construction happening, that wall will be torn down. I wanted to find out if stuff was really hidden up there,” Caemmerer said. “I had Erin Nash, who graduated from Cascade is 2007. She is a film maker. I asked Erin if she would help me figure out what was up there. We got up on a lift and she shot images of the whole wall.”

First, Nash made some shots with her cell phone to see if it was worth doing the project. She sent the pictures to Caemmerer and it looked clearly like there were some letters up there. He opened Photoshop and stretched the whole thing out, because those lines are six-foot tall and only four-to-five inches apart.

“I stretched the whole thing out and saw some obvious letters like an ‘R’ and a ‘Y’ and an ‘F.’ Knowing what I thought might be up there. It said Mike Rayfield. If that is Mike Rayfield...did he just put up the 1983 basketball team, which is kind of legend team?,” Caemmerer said. “Did he do that? Was he thumbing his nose at the school board? Maybe he thought, I will just do my son’s team and put it up there. It kind of seems like that is what he’s done.”

Nash went back up there and shot images of the whole thing. Caemmerer said he did not try to decode them.

“Erin and I went to Cascade High School and we gave all the images to Teara Dillon’s art class. They put them on the computers to try and decode them. I said, I think this is who is on here, the basketball team,” he said. “They found all the names of the basketball team. There are a couple sections of the wall that were not members of the basketball team but we can’t figure out what they are. There are a couple things I’m trying to dig into.”

Caemmerer figures his dad was pretty certain somebody at some point was going to try and figure it out, so he really hid stuff in there. The kids were trying to decode one section and found an ‘H’ and an ‘A,’ but no one on the team’s name starts with those letters.

“They finally figured out it was Eric Styles and he just put the ‘H’ and ‘A’ in there to mess with anyone trying to figure out what it said. The kids were great. Some of them stuck out a bit and some were really hard to uncover,” he said. “Sam Wilsey’s name was in there. He was the coach of the team. There are 13 names in all. It’s the team that went to the state tournament in ‘83. There is still potentially some other stuff in there, so I’m still digging around.”

Back in the ‘80s, Richard Caemmerer was a figure around town. People knew him. When he made the offer to paint the mural, it wasn’t out of the blue. He started the Grünwald Guild in Plain back in 1980. He formerly had done a huge mural on the ceiling of the Village Center at Holden Village.

After the Cascade mural, he also painted the inside walls and ceiling on the Faith Lutheran Church.

The mural at CHS is pretty high up there, perhaps it was unlikely anyone could closely examine it.

“The rumor was there were things up there, but no one

County assessor forcing city to do a ‘do-over’ on Adventure Park annexation

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

With much consternation, the city of Leavenworth must go through the annexation process again with the Langstan property at the west end town, which is proposed to become an Adventure Park.

The issue was first discussed at the April 10 study session. City Development Manager Nathan Pate said they had been corresponding with Chelan County Assessor Deanna Walter. To this point, the assessor had not transferred the taxing information to the city.

Pate said Walter believes the annexation was out of sequence.

“The city was satisfied, but with some of the parameters, she might have a point. The property owner agreed to annexation. The property is the single property owner. The commitments of the city was conveyed to that property owner and agreed to,” Pate said. “She wanted a certification of property ownership prior to the hearing. The city staff believed we could move forward and capture that confirmation at a later date because there is only one property owner.”

To start an annexation, an area must come to the city representing 10 percent of the owners in the proposed annexation district. At that point, the process would require 60 percent of ownership signing the petition.

In this particular annexation, there was only one property owner.

“We know the property owner. We know there is 100 percent ownership. Those are facts. The assessor believes that step still needed to be conducted prior to the hearing,” Pate said. “Although we’ve checked all the boxes for certification of ownership, ownership agreement commitments...all those things necessary for a hearing with the appropriate public notice. The assessor has still not been willing to transfer (the taxing authority).”

Councilman Elmer Larsen wondered how much legal authority Walter has over another elected body.

“We’re going to give the assessor time to make a decision on this. We had a conversation with her last Thursday and yesterday to follow up, we believe by the end of the week, we’ll have a determination. We have talked to Thom (Graafstra, city attorney). The soft approach is what he is recommending at this point in time,” said City Administrator Joel Walinski.

Councilman Clint Strand asked how “ticky tack” was this objection.

“In her world, she is in control of her world. It’s hard to say the reasoning behind all of it. The point of annexation is the property owner agrees, the city agrees. Two parties. In my world, that is the priority, not necessarily making sure her certification of ownership was prior to the hearing,” Pate said.

Is it ticky tack? Pate said he is a procedure person and also ticky tack so he wants to give Walter some grace. He said they need to handle this procedural issue.

“I said the same thing. This is BS. We need to just push on through. Joel brought me back. When legal challenges occur to a project or annexation, the issues are always procedural. We need to handle this procedural issue,” said

Park annexation: Another public hearing must be held

Mayor Cheri Kelley Farivar.

Councilwoman Margaret Neighbors asked if they would have to vote again. Walinski said they would and have another public hearing.

"I can see the rationale if you have 100 people and you make sure you have the appraised value. That is the trip wire. In this case, there is no dispute like that. Frankly, I don't know who would have standing to appeal," Larsen said.

"They wouldn't have standing to appeal the annexation but any citizen group could come forward with an appeal. And we do have some contentious feelings about this. The bottom line here, we're going to give her the benefit of the doubt. We feel pretty good about it," Farivar said.

At the April 24 city council meeting, the council was asked to set another hearing for the annexation on May 22. Pate said the city had gone through the process already.

"This is an ordinance that is going to need to be repealed and replaced with a new ordinance. As discussed in our study session, this assessor's office brought to our attention there is a sequence of events and they were studying it to see if the sequence of events cause heartache or consternation," Pate said. "We got word back from the assessor's office that they will not transfer the taxes to the city until such time as we go through this hearing after the petition was signed. Although the city was very satisfied knowing this is a single property owner."

The property owner received and understood his commitment, Pate said. Still, the assessor felt the sequence needed to be very precise. Pate said they are going to do that.

Graafstra said the assessor is just reading a statute, which says that whenever a 60 percent petition is filed with a legislative body, then the legislative body may entertain the same and fix a date for a public hearing.

"As I understand the fact sequence here, we received that petition, remember we moved the hearing from a March date to a February date. The petition didn't arrive before the February date. It would have been timely for the original March date," Graafstra said. "So we got caught in one of those circumstances where we had a set of facts that didn't literally match the requirements of the statute."

Farivar said this is essentially a procedural error the city must fix. Neighbors asked if this would have a negative effect on the developers. Pate said he did not believe so.

"They are still in the process of getting their packet together for submittal. It takes time to get the traffic impact analysis required by SEPA, the geotechnical report and evaluation, the engineering... all those things that are necessary for the application to proceed for the conditional use permit," Pate said. "The applicant is very aware of this and doing his due diligence. He's not ready yet."

The last public hearing on this featured a number of people speaking against the proposed Adventure Park. Farivar said that will not be case again.

"When we do set this annexation hearing, what we're going to hear from the public is comments on the annexation only and nothing else. We will not have the same free-for-all meeting we had on our first attempt. We've already done this once. You know the drill," Farivar said.

Leavenworth Parkinson's group celebrates one year anniversary

SUBMITTED BY JUDI LITTLE

The "Leavenworth Parkies" (people with Parkinson's Disease) support group celebrated its first birthday earlier this month. The group was the brainchild of Judi Little, who had attended a vibrant support group when she lived in Mill Creek. Once she moved to Leavenworth, she was introduced to Katherine Degel, and together they discussed the need for a local support group. They decided to hold their first meeting last April during National Parkinson's Awareness Month.

To date, they've had a guest speaker at nearly every meeting, which has included speech and occupational therapists from Cascade Medical Center, a chiropractor, a yoga instructor, and a massage therapist, to name a few. The primary goal of our group is to introduce Parkinson's patients to available local resources plus provide an opportunity to spend time with others in our community that live with PD.

The Leavenworth Parkinson's support group meets on the second Tuesday of each month at 11 a.m. at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (10170 Titus Road). The next meeting will be held on May 8 and is open to anyone who has the disease, as well as caregivers and friends. If you are interested in being a guest speaker or just want

ICICLE CREEK THIS WEEK

CHEF FEST 2018 PROMISES FOOD AND FUN FOR A CAUSE

JAMIE HOWELL

I'm proud of this one - because it's so much fun! Three years ago, Icicle Creek dispensed with its standard chicken dinner gala in favor of something new - a foray into the culinary arts called CHEF FEST.

Now in its third year, CHEF FEST has expanded to four nights of delicious fun that brings in amazing chefs from across the state for a friendly cooking competition in which we get to be the judges! Here's the full event schedule:

- BLUE SPIRITS SNEAK PEEK: Learn to make bespoke cocktails in the new distillery before it's open to the public! Wed., May 30
- SUDS & SLIDERS NIGHT: Amazing pairings with brewmaster Grant Stoebner. Thurs., May 31
- HOT STOVE SOCIETY: Seattle's famed cooking school comes to Icicle Ridge Winery. Fri., June 1
- THE MAIN EVENT: Six chefs paired with six local wines and beers compete. Sat., June 2

Presented in partnership with Confluence Health, this is Icicle Creek's big fundraiser for the year. The money raised puts artists into local schools, provides summer camps for kids, performances for the community and so much more. Tickets are on sale now and going fast. Find out more at icicle.org!

knew. In 1985, when he finished it, there were rumors there were names up there. The school asked him to come talk to the student body. He did this whole presentation. He never acknowledged there were things up there. He just told people to look carefully," Caemmerer said. "I'm going to be talking to Bob Stroup. He got in touch with me. I'm going to talk to him about it. I guess he is pretty fired up about it. He knows the whole story."

For Nash and Caemmerer, part of their effort is to see what's on the wall, but also to try and reconnect people.

"It's a new transition for the Cascade School District. Sadly, the whole thing is coming down," he said. "When the school was talking about the bond two years ago, I wondered if the wall would be coming down. Bill Motsenbocker said probably. Two years ago is when I first started to look into it."

They did not start taking pictures of the wall until last fall. They had to use a lift, which was really hard, he said. Caemmerer said they are trying to get an accurate representation of it, so that it can be reproduced into a six-foot long image, which can be printed and given to the school.

"We want to reproduce the whole thing. The wall is about 18-feet tall and 100-feet long. That is a pretty wide ration. We thought we could do a 6-8 foot image, which would be about foot high. That would be cool thing for the school to have. We're trying to see if we can get the quality of images to do that. We think we'll be able to do it. It probably stitching 40-50 images together," he said.

The idea for the movie is first to preserve the history, also to interview the characters behind it. As you would imagine, it is personal for Caemmerer. It was his dad and his team. He thinks it's also part of Leavenworth history.

"It was almost like shutting the town down to come watch the state tournament game in Tacoma. Jim Ward gave us his Limos, so we drove over in those. We finished third and paraded through town. Everybody put up signs," he said. "It was a big deal at that time. The tourist industry hadn't exploded so much they couldn't do something like that. You couldn't get a ticket to a basketball game. They were always sold out."

Caemmerer said he wants to recapture that history.

"You look at the people who were part of that team, Robert Parton, Doug Parton, Nick Waters, Mike Rayfield, Mark Pulse. You looking at people who are still here making a big impact on the community in one way or another," he said. "I think it would be fun to capture that. See the stories of the people whose names are up there. That is the documentary piece. We just looking to create a short form, 10-15 minute kind of thing that recaptures what people remember."

It is something the school could hold onto, helping to preserve the history. Right now, they are trying to fund-raise so they can afford to do it. Check out www.indiegogo.com/projects/30-feet-up-#/ or www.thecascadewall.com.

For more information, contact Mike or Erin at thecascadewall@gmail.com. They would love to hear from more people.

Might there still be Beatles lyrics or Ghandi quotes in the wall?

"There's part of the wall about 10-feet long with a bunch of stuff going in it. It looks like there are letters in it. It was helpful to know the names of the basketball team were in there. I'm a little less certain of what to look for in the rest of it," he said. "That is part of a cool piece too. We won't ever know exactly what is up there. We have until June 15 to capture everything we want. We don't have a whole lot of time."

Morel mushroom harvesting permits on sale in May

SUBMITTED BY ROBIN DEMARIO

Permits went on sale May 1 for commercial harvesting of mushrooms from the Jolly Mountain fire area in Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest. Permits will be sold at the Cle Elum and Naches ranger stations and the forest headquarters office in Wenatchee.

People must have a commercial permit if they plan to collect or possess more than five gallons of mushrooms per day or if they intend to sell mushrooms. A two-day permit costs $30, a 30-day permit is $80 and a season permit is $100; the season runs from May 1 through July 31. Permits must be in the harvester's possession when collecting mushrooms.

Commercial harvesting information sheets, translated in five languages, and a map showing the general location of the burned area and commercial harvester camps are available online and at these national forest offices.

Two areas will be designated as commercial mushroom harvester camps--Salmon La Sac and North Fork Teanaway on the Cle Elum Ranger District. Commercial mushroom harvesters will be directed to use these locations when staying overnight in the national forest.

"There are some areas where commercial harvesting is prohibited," said Cle Elum District Ranger Michelle Capp. "These areas include congressionally designated Wilderness areas, research natural areas, administrative sites, botanical areas, scenic corridors, developed recreation sites, campgrounds, and those places under area closures," she said.

No commercial use mushroom harvesting will be permitted in portions of the Uno Peak fire near Manson, Diamond Creek fire near Mazama, Jack Creek fire in the Alpine Lakes Wilderness, and the Norse Peak and American fires in the William O. Douglas Wilderness northwest of Naches.

The restriction on personal use collection in the Uno Peak fire area is due to hazards from potential debris flows. Often called mudslides, debris flows are water-saturated landslides that travel rapidly downslope carrying trees, rocks and other debris threatening people in their path and cutting off roads with little or no warning.

Harvesting mushrooms for personal use, up to five gallons per person per day, is free but collectors must carry a copy of the Free Incidental Use Mushroom Information Sheet with them while harvesting. This information sheet can be printed off the forest website at <https://go.usa.gov/xQ3YJ> and is also available at local national forest offices.

The growing season for morel mushrooms begins as soon as snow melts and continues through July depending upon elevation, slope aspect and precipitation. The exact start date for harvest will depend upon when mushrooms begin to appear in the fire area.

For more information about commercial or personal use mushroom harvesting please contact any Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest office during business hours 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, or go to the forest website at www.fs.usda.gov/goto/okawen/mushroom

Cascade school buses now on good path for replacement

BY IAN DUNN
EDITOR

Cascade School District Transportation Director, Tim Bentz, said for several years he had been requesting the school district buy a new bus every year. At the Feb. 26 Cascade School Board meeting, Bentz thanked the board for finally doing this.

The school district has a fleet of 25 buses.

"You can imagine if we don't buy a new bus every year, and we haven't traditionally in this district bought a new bus every year," Bentz said. "Sometimes we have buses that were 30 years old. That is really old. Imagine your vehicles, unless they are classics, being 25-30 years old. You're still patching them together and keeping them going. That is what we've done."

Bentz said buying a new bus every year will help immensely over the life of the fleet. The year he joined the district, Bentz said the district bought five buses, which is great. The problem is those buses all go off the depreciation cycle at the same time.

"Then, they cease generating dollars for us when they all go depreciation schedule. That is one problem with buying a whole bunch of buses at one time. Those were all financed. If we can buy a bus every year, it helps avoid that big problem where it hits us all at once," Bentz said.

Christmas Lighting Snow Train

"A lot of you have read the articles the Echo about the problems with the Snow Train. There was a lot of erroneous information in that article with regard to the issue being caused by Cascade School District buses, that our buses delayed traffic for an hour. That is just ridiculous,"

Bentz said. "Tom Keziah really spoke to the issue well. The reality is Cascade School buses probably delay traffic maybe 10 minutes of that hour. There's not really a lot we can do about it. We have 1,000 people to get to the train."

The reason he is bringing this up, Bentz said, is they've been told the city will no longer pay for the police officers to run interference to get the buses out. He said the city has threatened they might follow through this year.

He said the chamber doesn't want to pay for it and obviously neither will the school district. Bentz said it is very costly to have those sheriff's deputies running interference, getting the buses across the highway and then back down to get more people.

"I've made it very clear to Alki (the snow train tour company), the city, the chamber, that if we don't have those officers running interference, we're done. We won't do it. It's not worth it. It's hard enough, having all the police help we do have. It would be next to impossible to try and do it without that," Bentz said. "Alki knows. I don't know what we'll end up with come Christmas time, but they all know, if the police go away, so does Cascade School District. They can find another school district to transport people to and from the train. We just can't do it without that."

Substitute Bus Drivers

Bentz said they are having a hard time finding substitute bus drivers. He puts part of the blame on the Department of Licensing commercial driver requirements, which he says are making it harder and harder on the school district.

"They get more stringent, more anal. It's ridiculous, the requirements they put on these drivers."

For instance, they have to quote back their pre-trip inspection. If you don't use the exact words they want you to use, regarding a piece of equipment on a bus or whatever, you get marked off. You might fail your test. You have to learn that thing verbatim," Bentz said.

Bentz said they recently lost someone who had been training with them for months, thanks to the DOL in Wenatchee. He said this person was trained and ready to go. He had been issued a you just took and passed. After that, he said, he was done. He's a guy we spent months on, and lost because of the inefficiency at DOL."

That is the kind of stuff they are running into, Bentz said.

"If you know anybody that wants to drive school bus, we start at $18 per hour. We'll train ya. We're looking for substitute bus drivers. Please send people our way. We'd love to have you," he said. "Most of our routes are 3.75 to six hours a day. Most fall in between that. Great hours. We have a lot of kids in a particular area, they would pay you more money for under-loading your buses," Bentz said. "We had greater revenue for having lightly loaded buses. That all went away with the new system."

The school district generates a lot of revenue because of the amount of territory they cover, he said. Cascade is one of the largest school districts, geographically, in the state. He said the school district is about the size of the state of Rhode Island, in terms of the square miles they cover.

"Because of that, we generate a lot of dollars. In the 2015-16 school year, our transportation allocation was $740,000. Our expenditures that year were $700,133 for a difference of $40,000," Bentz said. "We operated within our budget. We generate a lot of money but we spend a lot of money. A lot goes towards driver's wages but also the upkeep of an aging fleet. Each year, we manage to work within our means."

In the 16-17 school year, the revenue was $766,000 and expenditures were $742,000. This year, the allocation is $786,000.

"We've gone up each year, which is good. I fully expect we'll operate within our budget. That always hinges on ridership. I've been pleased with our ridership numbers this year," he said.

New radio system

Bentz said they put in a new radio system this year, which includes a repeater about 10 miles up Chumstick.

"We can talk to our buses if they are up Stevens Pass, upper end of Lake Wenatchee, Chiwawa Loop, Ponderosa," Bentz said. "We actually have more problems talking to buses down at PD and that is the truth. We can talk to the

CDL permit.

"He didn't quite get everything done in time to where he could take his tests. When they renewed his permit, they failed to put the courses he already passed. Through a big series of phone calls to Olympia, they finally agreed they would put those back his temp license, if he took two other tests they failed to offer him when he took his CDL test," Bentz said. "He went ahead and took those. They said, the system isn't working. You're going to have to take all the tests over, including the two have a good fleet of buses."

State Transportation Allocations

Bentz said the way transportation is funded has changed a lot in the 37 years he's been involved. He said he used to do his ridership reports on tracing paper over county maps. Now, they use GPS, where every stop is mapped precisely. He said that is much more efficient.

"They used to actually reward us for being inefficient. In district like ours and you go long distances and you don't

Plans moving forward for Front Street Park upgrades

BY IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Leavenworth City Council has approved a contract with J.A. Brennan for the creation of a Front Street Park masterplan. City Administrator Joel Walinski said, in working with the Downtown Steering Committee, one of the things they've been looking at the past couple years is quite a bit of deferred maintenance in Front Street Park.

"In Front Street Park, we have curbs, sidewalks, lighting. There has always been the possibility of a walking plaza and what that looks like. We've also talked about Front Street Park in terms of the chamber of commerce and people that use the park for their various events, added electricity is needed," Walinski said at the April 10 city council meeting.

Walinski said some of the Birch trees downtown are quite old and need to be replaced. The sound system also needs to be improved. Also, the Front Street restrooms are overloaded and need to be expanded.

There are also some concerns about the sledding hill, which not only degrades the grassy hill downtown each winter, but is also dangerous when the conditions are icy.

"The sledding hill, the grassy area there is something that has been talked about in terms of the best use for that. It is a fun activity. People enjoy that activity. But in the same breath, they say, should that be going on there? We need to talk about that," Walinski said.

The scope of work in the masterplan would have a plan for phasing that, he said, and also a cost estimate so those improvements could be made, not necessarily all in one year, but maybe over the course of two or three years.

J.A. Brennan has been used by the city before.

"They've actually done a lot of work in eastern Washington. One of the things I like about them, they do a lot of work for smaller cities. A lot of their work goes about how you fund things, because that is always a question," Walinski said. "You can have the nicest plan in the world, but if you don't have a plan to pay for it, then it usually doesn't get built. That is one of the reasons we like them."

The J.A. Brennan company also knows the downtown masterplan, Walinski pointed out.

"They know the type of landscape design we appreciate. That knowledge moves us to a point where they can put together this masterplan for the downtown Front Street Park at a cost not to exceed $35,000," Walinski said. "We had set aside some design money and money for the Front Street restrooms. The downtown steering committee felt it was a better use of those funds to use for the overall masterplan for Front Street Park rather than just expanding the restrooms."

Mayor Cheri Kelley Farivar asked how the data would be collected on the sledding hill. Interviewing people? Walinski said he didn't think they would do that.

"The Downtown Steering Committee has had a number of conversations with a lot of various people. I don't think you make determination on that. I think what they saw, you have a drop in elevation, even though not huge, it does get icy and slippery," Walinski said. "How do you go about addressing those? One of the ways is to lower that elevation and make it more people friendly. I don't think it will disappear. What will happen is they'll manage it differently so it is not as big a potential Farivar said, partly in jest.

Councilman Elmer Larsen said they tried to address the sledding hill back in 1990.

"They came with the idea of long walk traversing that slope to encourage kids to rolls down it. Maybe sit and watch activities," Larsen said. "One alternative might be to terrace portions of it. You might reduce some of the liability."

Farivar said she wants to be interviewed about the sledding hill.

"That is where this is going. I want somebody to hear what I think about that sledding hill for those very reasons. I will find a way to give my opinion," impacts of sledding or restrict sledding to certain areas."

Councilwoman Margaret Neighbors suggested doing some sort of memorial for Bob Rogers and Ted Price in Front Street Park, particularly since nothing has been done on the proposed plaza downtown for buses on the far end of the district crystal clear. We try talk to the buses at PD and it's scratchy and garbled."

Route Changes

Board member Kristen Wood asked if there has been any discussion on the changes in the routes which in some cases mixed younger kids with older ones.

"At the very beginning, we had a few folks we were a little concerned because we were running some K-5 routes and some older kid routes in certain areas of district. We had some parents because now their younger children are going to be exposed to the older kids, who sometimes have potty mouths," Bentz said.

Bentz said they are still working through that at times.

"There is nothing you can do to make everything 100 percent safe. There's nothing we can do to 100 percent sure things aren't going to happen that parents are unhappy with," Bentz said. "We work at and do a good job at it. We get very few complaints from parents about those issues. It's really worked well. We were pretty much forced to go to the system because of efficiencies required by the state. If we hadn't done that, we've have to come up with a whole lot of money that wasn't funded."

Superintendent Bill Molsenbocker asked if there was any progress adding a Lake Wenatchee bus for the kids near Winton.

"We probably need to talk about that more. It would probably be one of those things that would not fund itself. It will generate some funds, but probably not pay for itself," Bentz said.

Betty Mayrand Sather

Betty Mayrand Sather is called by the Lord Jesus Christ into His Glory

Psalm 116:15 "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints."

On April 23, 2018, Betty Mayrand Sather, at the age of 98, entered the presence of Christ, whom she loved and followed with great faithfulness, grace and goodness. With her pastor husband, Otto, Betty served in gospel ministry for 26 years at Plain Community Church in Plain, Washington. She and Otto also served another 26 years at Samish Island Memorial Chapel in Skagit County.

Betty was a dedicated and skilled teacher. With a degree in education from Western Washington University and previous studies at Washington State University, she taught at Warm Beach Christian School, prior to her marriage to Otto Sather. Teaching the Bible was her passion. She taught countless Sunday school classes, especially to teenagers, and also for years taught the Scriptures to women's groups. Very many came to follow Jesus through her teaching. Betty also trained many of her students to themselves become teachers of God's Word.

Betty was an accomplished musician with the piano, organ, accordion and bass viol. She used her musical gifts at the churches she and Otto served, and elsewhere. She generously shared her talent with the many youth in these churches, giving lessons in all of the instruments she played, as well as choir leading.

Betty was known for her quick wit, delicious meals and along with Otto were renown for their extraordinary hospitality. They invited family, friends and strangers—seemingly never too busy to take time to be hospitable and to share the Good News of the Gospel, helping others in their questions and struggles. She was a godly and wise counselor.

Betty will also be remembered for the beauty of her flower gardens, appearing and blossoming wherever she lived, gracing her home and the churches she and Otto served. The beauty her gardens brought was symbolic of her beauty of spirit and life of service.

Interment will be held Friday, May 4, 2018 at Floral Hills Cemetery, 409 Filbert Road, Lynnwood, WA, phone 425-672-1800. Viewing will begin at 9 a.m. and burial service at 12 p.m.

At 11 a.m. on Saturday June 9, 2018 there will be a memorial service at Camano Chapel (the church where she and Otto were married 66 years ago), 867 South West Camano Drive, Camano Island, WA, 360-387-7202.

UPPER VALLEY NEWS SINCE 1904

Kodiak baseball team falls to league's top teams, Okanogan, Cashmere

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Cascade Kodiak baseball team took their lumps against Okanogan and Cashmere last week. This season, the only win in league for the Kodiaks has been a forfeit from Omak. On April 24, Cascade finished up their home schedule against Okanogan.

The Bulldogs took advantage of Cascade mistakes to win 9-1.

"They had Justin Stanley pitching, who is a good guy for them, a senior. He threw a great game. We were putting the ball in play, hitting it right at them. We were able to scratch together just one run," said Mike Kelly, Cascade head coach. "That was more a great pitching performance by Justin Stanley. We went with JJ Hall to start the game. We just couldn't get it going for him. Good Okanogan team."

Last Saturday, Cascade played a doubleheader at Cashmere. In the first game, they faced Cashmere ace Lance Chipman on the mound.

The Kodiaks lost 13-0 in five innings.

"He's a great kid. Obviously, when you are in the mid-80s, it's not something the kids see on a regular basis. You find the kids stand in awe. He is such a good competitor and he was good on that day," Kelly said of Chipman. "Mason (Kelly) had a double the first pitch of the game. That ended up being the only hit in the game."

Conrad Hasse started well for the Kodiaks but ran into trouble, lasting only 3.2 innings. Of a nine runs he gave up, only one was earned. It was combination of walks, hit by pitch and five errors.

The Kodiaks lost the second game 10-3. Tyler Miller got the start over TJ Thompson, who was nursing a sore arm.

"JJ Hall came out after two innings. He did pretty good until giving up five runs in the sixth. Only one error in that game. Made some great defensive plays," Kelly said. "JJ was sharp and good but ran out of gas. The kids did the best they could but came up on the short side of it."

Cascade is 1-8 in league and 5-12 overall.

Cascade plays at Chelan (6-4, 10-7) on Friday. Then finishes the league schedule on Saturday with a doubleheader at Omak (0-9, 1-13).

"The next three games are important, especially in Chelan. We played them well in the double header, but couldn't pull it off. I expect it to be a good game and competitive. If we can play a good, clean game, we have a good shot to win. It would give us a real boost going into Omak the next day," Kelly said.

Winning the final three games would give them a boost going into the district tournament, Kelly said.

"We beat Chelan last year 11-0 despite being swept by them in the regular season. We have to potential to wreak havoc in the playoffs if we have confidence," Kelly said.

Cascade softball team wins big rematch against Okanogan

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

On April 24, the Cascade softball team played at Okanogan with perhaps the Caribou Trail League championship on the line. The two teams were tops in the league, having split the season series. Cascade and Okanogan were both 7-1.

Cascade took the lead in the third inning as four Kodiaks reached base with two out. Colby West's grounder with the bases loaded went under the second baseman's glove for an error which scored two runs.

"The fielding error allowed Maddie Scheifelbein and Sarah Paulson to score. Though we had runners in scoring position in four different innings these were the only runs we were able to manufacture," said Cascade Head Coach Todd Gilbert.

Okanogan had at least one runner in scoring position each inning except for the seventh. The Bulldog's only run came in the sixth. The Okanogan batter drew a walk, then continued on to second base, resulting in a pickle. The Bulldogs were able to score and the runner was safe at first.

"While this could have been costly, keeping the runner to 1st base was crucial. She was later thrown out at home plate on a double to right-center. Kaija Lovelady gunned the ball to the relay, Sarah Paulson, who sent the ball home where Andrea Sorensen applied the tag to the potential tying run," Gilbert said.

Cascade won 2-1, in what Gilbert called the definition of a nail-biter.

"Though it was a low scoring game, both teams were constantly getting runners in scoring position but couldn't get that key hit bring in some runs. There was a lot of good pitching and defense. Fortunately for us, the one Okanogan error came in a bases loaded situation and resulted in two runs. If you keep putting the ball in play, eventually good things happen," Gilbert said.

Gilbert said it was a big win, not only because it gives them sole possession of first place, but it also came against a tough team on the road.

"There were also several scoring threats in the game that were answered by a key strikeout by Paulson or a good defensive play to bring the inning to a close. This type of win really shows how far this team has come defensively," Gilbert said.

Cascade needed to win two of the next three league games to clinch at least a share of the league title and host the district tournament on Saturday, May 12.

a welcome site to see us hit the ball the way we did today. We now need to get ready for a trip to Omak on Friday. If we win both we are league champs. If we split we are co-league champs. So, we still have some work to do and won't be looking past our next game," Gilbert said.

Cascade is 9-1 in league, 12-5 overall.

On April 18, Cascade beat Omak 11-1. The Kodiaks finish up the league schedule with double-header at Omak on Friday. Next Wednesday, May 9, they play a makeup game at Sultan. The District Tournament is May 12 at the CTL number one seed.

Sarah Paulson had another great outing in the circle, pitching 7 innings, giving up 1 earned run with 10 strikeouts and 2 walks. Okanogan's Bauer pitched 7 innings, giving up no earned runs on 5 hits with 5 strikeouts, 2 walks and 2 hit batters.

On April 27, Cascade played at Cashmere, winning 21-4. The game was called after four innings. Gilbert said he wasn't given an explanation. The 10-run mercy rule applies after five innings.

"It was great to see our team come out and hit the ball well today. Several errors helped out, but we hit several balls hard today resulting in 16 hits over the four innings played. We have shown improvement all year long on defense," Gilbert said.

Truh Merriman pitched 3 innings, giving up 3 earned runs on 6 hits with 2 strikeouts and no walks. Paulson pitched one inning, giving up no runs, no hits with 1 walk. Merriman was 4-for-5 with 4 RBIs. Lovelady was 2-for-4 with 4 RBIs.

"The offense has been slower to come along, so it was

Kodiak track and field team getting set for postseason

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Cascade track and field team finished off a busy week on the track. The team participated in three meets, at Cashmere on April 24, the Rieke Invite on April 27 and the NWC Invite in Wenatchee on April 28.

According to Head Coach Bill Davies, the highlights include the performance of his two pole vaulters, Julia Armstrong and Gianna Pistoresi, who have been dominating.

"They continuously win the pole vault and high jump. Julia and Gianna both hold the school record and the Reike Invite record in the pole vault at a height of 11 feet," Davies said.

Senior Ashley Parton continues undefeated in the 100 and 300 hurdles. The girls 4x200 relay team of Lauren Richardson, Emily Gaines, Kascia Muscutt and Ashley Parton placed in all three meets.

Muscutt also won the 400 and continues to improve each meet.

"For the distance girls, Josie Brennan and Zoe McDevitt are dominating the 800, 1600 and 3200. Both these girls should easily qualify for state," Davies said.

On the boys' side, freshman Landon Davies continues to dominate the 1600 and 3200.

Davies said it is fun to watch him beat a field of upper classmen by big margins.

"Caleb Payne won the 800, and Jace Seely won the 400. Both these boys continue to run faster at each meet. Teague Duncan placed third in the 200 and second in the 100. This week, we will be training and getting fine tuned for League on May 9," Davies said.

Next up for the Kodiaks, the CTL Championship in Peshastin on May 9. The District 6 1A Championships are May 17 in Cashmere.

Kodiak golfers enjoying play on their home course, finally

By IAN DUNN
EDITOR

The Cascade golf team played the first of five straight home matches on April 24 against Okanogan. The Bulldogs only had four boys, so only the boys' match could be scored. Tim Wells was the medalist as the boys won 390-428.

Wells' 81 was his best round of the year. Freshman Isaac Cortes shot his best ever score, 93.

"His game is starting to really come around hopefully the scores will keep coming down. Stefan Zucktriegel shot 99, Gavin Dwyer 117 to complete the scoring. Ledger Parrish 123, Michael Whitehead 131, and Austin Curry 138 finished up the boys scoring respectively," said Head Coach Randy Alexander.

Alexander credits assistant coach Ken Baumann for coaching up the boys.

"We have three weeks to shine up our game for districts and then the state qualifier. It will come down to Cascade and Chelan for the league and district title. The Chelan team whacked us pretty good on their course a couple weeks ago," Alexander said.

The girls' team played 18 holes with top scorer Maddie Hontou sitting out with a knee strain. Emma Halseth had a personal best 96 to win medalist, beating Jacelyn Bain by one stroke. Emma Nielson had a 126, Natalie Craig 136, and Anlyn Flake, played her first 18 holes of the year, had a 139.

"We have seen all the teams in the CTL and we are the front runners at this time. Chelan is the only team that is able to score against us. We went up there shorthanded a couple weeks ago and didn't score. We saw them up at Gamble Sands last week and beat them by 60. So we will see," Alexander said.

On April 26, Cascade hosted Omak. The boys won 392-461. Wells shot 87 to take medalist honors.

"It was a hard fought day for Tim, he had problems getting off the tee and struggled the whole round. Hats off to him though, it could have been worse. He worked hard all day, am sure he slept well that night or maybe he didn't sleep well, he may have lost sleep thinking his game needs extra work this late in the season," Alexander said.

Zucktriegel shot 91, Cortes 99, Gavin Dwyer 115.

Omak only had three girls, so not enough to score. Hontou was medalist with an 89, which is her best round at Leavenworth. Bain shot 99, Nielson 110, Craig 133 for a 411 score.

"It was a good day. Some kids still have some work to do but most are focused and preparing for the end of the season qualifying tournaments. Alta Lake on May 7 is an all CTL match on the course where the state qualifier will be held. We will be ready for that,"

Cascade hosted Chelan on April 30 and Warden on May 1. Results were unavailable before press time. A CTL practice round is set for May 7 at Alta Lake in Omak. The 1A District 6 golf tournament is May 14 at Alta Lake. Ian Dunn can be reached at 548-5286 or editor@leavenworthecho.com.

Independent Diamond wants to unseat Condotta for District 12 post

By Kyra Planetz
Staff writer

As many of us are familiar, elections for the Washington State House of Representatives will be held later this year in November. Our region, Legislative District 12, is currently represented by Republican incumbent Cary Condotta, who has held the position since 2003. This year, Condotta, who usually runs unopposed, will run against independent Dr. Ann Diamond of Methow Valley for position one.

Last Monday, April 16, Diamond held a town hall meeting at the Wenatchee Valley Museum here as a chance to meet some of her constituents. Cashmere Valley Record Staff Writer Kyra Planetz sat down with Diamond after the event and asked her to respond to the following questions:

CVR: Why did you want to run for this position?

Dr. Ann Diamond: I don't feel like I'm being represented and that also plays into why I'm running as an independent. Often times I hear a party response, something that sounds like its crafted somewhere else, instead of relating to what's happening on the ground here in this region. As a physician, probably the strongest reaction I had early on was to repeal and replace because so many people here rely on the Affordable Care Act to have access to healthcare. I am also intrigued by the issue of critical access hospitals in our area, which have stayed open directly because of the Affordable Care Act. That's what got me started, I put together an advisory committee of doctors and hospital administrators to meet with one of our state representatives who didn't seem to know exactly what was going on. He refused to face the facts and continued to talk about hospital closures that didn't exist. At that point you realize you're wasting your time and you can either shut up and go back to work, or you can step up and try to represent what you know is happening in healthcare in the region.

CVR: What issues are you passionate about and what are you hoping to change if elected?

Diamond: Certainly healthcare, but I also love that there's more collaboration for work on public lands and the effort to decrease fuels. My region has been well the entire region, has been affected by mega fires and we need to reduce fuels and also use it to our economic advantage by harvesting timber that otherwise will burn. If we want people to live here than we need to find a way that they will survive. I'm also interested in affordable housing and workforce housing. I think housing is going to be a big part of how we're able to recruit businesses and technology, and certainly other you or affect your decision making?

Diamond: I want to work in health and wellness, I feel like I have credibility as a physician, I think if you're going to do policy about healthcare it'd be nice to have a healthcare professional involved. In terms of independent, I think it'd be very difficult if we had a state house that was all republican or all democrat but we don't, so I think one vote matters. As an independent, I would like to try to pull together a bipartisan caucus of some sort. Hopefully on issues there will be bipartisan support and not just party support. I'm excited, I think an independent could make a difference, otherwise I wouldn't do it.

CVR: What is your strategy for beating 15-year republican incumbent, Cary Condotta?

Diamond: My strategy is to learn this district; hear what people have to say, as much as I can, and running independent I really want to hear from people who may or will not agree with me. I will change my mind if somebody can convince me that there's a better way of doing things. But I also believe there's common ground and if we can find what that common ground is, we can pull in the same direction instead of in opposition to one another. One of things about eastern Washington is that it's very small-town community oriented, people are accustomed to getting along and accomplishing things with people they don't necessarily agree with. We need to get back to that instead of playing party politics.

Editor's Note: Washington's 12th Legislative District is one of forty-nine districts in Washington state for representation in the state legislature. The mostly rural 12th District in north central Washington contains all Chelan and Douglas and parts of Okanogan and Grant counties.

BRAD BLACKBURN
Financial Opinion

Over the last month, the tariff tussle between China and America has heated up. So far, all the action has been confined to big words and big threats, which is where Trump really shines. But what will happen next? If the result is that China opens its economy to more American products and stops stealing our technology – the whole world will benefit. In other words, this has the potential to be a wonderful thing for the global economy and stock market. However, that potential reward comes with a lot of potential risk. Trump claims that China has more to lose than us in a trade war. In a way, he's right. China sells a lot more stuff to us than we do to them (which is part of the problem of course). Therefore, we have more targets to hit with tariffs. However, China has advantages too. The biggest one might be the tough negotiating position Trump is in. The tougher he talks, the more he scares the business world and stock market. Already, Trump and his economic advisors have softened and assured the world that this is all just a negotiation – which isn't a particularly effective way to negotiate. The problem is that Trump can't afford to cause much economic pain because there's a mid-term election coming up, and a Presidential election in 2020. On the other hand, Chinese President Xi Jinping is essentially President for life. So, China can make a short-term sacrifice. In addition, China's economy is growing at nearly 7%, so they can afford a little economic pain. For that reason and more, this trade war (or negotiation) will not be easy to win. However, Trump should get some credit for his courage.

For years, China has crossed the line with their trading policies, and Trump is the first President willing to make a fuss about it. He has brought this issue to a head. In the coming months, it's going to go one way or another. If I had to make a prediction, I think it will work out okay. China knows they've been pushing the limits, and I think they are ready to change - although Trump may push them to do it more quickly. China's economy has matured, and they aren't as focused on selling cheap stuff to the world. In fact, they are aiming for a much more "America-like" economy built on consumers. So, I think Trump might have picked the right time to pick this fight with China. ### Comment on Leavenworth's Downtown Parking Study

Mayor and City Council Members, I think I represent a number of neighbors who wonder about downtown parking and about proposed growth that drives it. We are concerned that the City's intentions to supply future parking needs to satisfy growth do not reflect what we, the residents want or need. We see that our town is growing and preparing for future growth automatically! There are no apparent growth controls, at least none that seem to be working. We see the City Council allowing and encouraging more and more hotels and more special events. And inevitably, the City is now seeking parking solutions to support growth that no one talked about or voted for or controls. Below is an excerpt from the document "Proposed Guiding Principles for Downtown Parking Management October 2017 (v2)".

6. PLANNING FOR FUTURE SUPPLY

a) Planning & Funding. Planning for future supply growth will be strategic and routinely evaluated to ensure the City is ready to respond to growth, recognizing that assembling funding for new growth takes time and will require a varied package of funding resources (and partnerships). The City must plan for its supply growth needs and initiate long-term planning efforts to assemble funding and partnerships necessary to that growth. We see that our City is promising to "ensure the City is ready to respond to growth". And that "The City must plan for its supply growth needs". But why are we doing this? Why does the Council assume that we, the residents, want more people, more traffic and air pollution, more crowds? And most importantly, there will be less Public Safety should there ever be any situation that requires immediate evacuation or extensive medical response. Public Safety is the primary responsibility that you were elected to maintain and enhance. Have you weighed that carefully as you prepare for further packing of more weekend tourists into our densely crowded City? Why invite us to tonight's presentation on the Downtown Parking Study, why spend tens of thousands of dollars on it, when you haven't taken into account that we don't want more "growth"? We fear that you are destroying the very "family friendly, small town feel" (also excerpted from the same document) that we value and want to sustain at all costs. That excerpt is small comfort given the plans that we fear are in the making. Lastly, if you are considering a dedicated parking structure, I represent many folks who are absolutely against it, an affront to any small town. Your consultants may say that it is the most "efficient" and "least expensive" etc. But it is a Number One crime magnet. And it will be vastly underutilized for the majority of the time. Why build one when we only need it a few weekends a year – when planning for events differently, to be more spread out over time and across our area, could solve that problem? Why not engage us, the City residents, in a conversation about whether we want to "grow" or maintain our small-town status instead – even and especially, on weekends? Sincerely, Ann Crosby Leavenworth worth billions of dollars. Not only do private individuals donate land but taxpayers give billions of dollars in grants to help them acquire all this land. Because NGO's are not a government organization, we the people no longer own or control it. Being a non-profit just means they have to use all the money up. You are supporting their causes with your taxes. If they received no grants and paid taxes to support their causes, what would that do to your taxes? To funds for police, fire, hospitals, schools, running local government? To the national debt? Private property rights are the basis for all our other rights. How do land trusts affect the value of your land? Your ability to not be taxed out of your land? Growth management laws restrict a county and city's ability to control land use. The GMA is one reason we have the affordable housing shortage now. By getting rid of the GMA and stopping the cities and counties from using zoning to decide where you can build and what you can build, more affordable housing would be built. It's not about people in the planning committee deciding what they want, it's about providing for the people who need housing now. If you are trying to provide a lot of housing in a short period of time, single family dwellings do not make sense. Apartments can be built quicker and more economically than a series of single family dwellings. Land trusts limit the supply when the demand is huge. How much does the Opal Community Land trust spend on affordable housing and how much does it spend on salaries, pensions, & professional service contracts? There will always be those who seek to exploit a situation for their benefit or for the benefit of the people they represent. Maybe we need to start over and use local people to solve the affordable housing problem. Why do we always get an expert from somewhere else to fix our problem. We elected locals to represent us. They need to find locals with skin in the game to fix our problems. Keep our money local. Our community needs good paying jobs too. Connie CooperSmith Chelan

Democracy or Demagoguery?

In response to the diatribe by Bill Cowles in the 4/26/18 issue of The Leavenworth Echo, I must ask: does this guy get paid by the column inch?

Then there's Bill Forhan, who advises us to bury our Congressional leaders with "letters of protest." How quaint.

The "Bills" appear to be in fine form these days. Enjoy it while you can, boys, because the "bill" will eventually come due.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO MEXICO

Every one's favorite Mexican holiday is on the horizon, you know it as Cinco de Mayo. Technically I believe the Day of the Dead is more popular, but then who needs a reason to eat Mexican food. My favorite food is good old Southern food and my next favorite is Mexican.

I have eaten homemade Mexican food at friends, Taco Wagons, Mexican restaurants and everything in between in Mexico. When we travel to Mexico we typically go to the local restaurants where local people eat. We have never had a bad meal or service in Mexico. The only thing in Mexico that I do not care for is Mexican wine. But then who goes there for wine, when you can have the best Tequila on Earth. Yes I like Tequila and it always taste better in Mexico. We have over the years traveled to Tequila factories from the tiniest to some pretty good size places. Besides Tequila I love the fresh seafood that you find in coastal resort towns, the shrimp is to die for, and the Mexicans seem to have more ways to prepare it than anyone. Last year in Cabo I had one of the best meals I have ever had any where, it started with a shrimp cocktail, jumbo shrimp prepared three ways as the main course, a shrimp Caesar salad prepared at our table, and flan for dessert. It was an amazing amount of food all cooked to perfection. The service was impeccable. As we were eating an older couple came in, the gentleman wearing a "Portland, Oregon" shirt and asked what we were eating and how was it. After a few minutes of small talk we asked them if they are from Portland, and they responded "yes", we told them where we were from and the women responded that she was originally from Washington. We asked her where in Washington was she from and she said from a small town that we probably had never heard from. Okay, so she has our interest now and we ask where, and her response was a little town near Leavenworth called "Peshastin". Well you can only imagine our expressions, my husband asked what her maiden name was, and to make a long story short she grew up less than 1/2 a mile from us and was a Peshastin High School graduate. She still has family in the Valley and visits from Portland at least once a year. They were as awestruck as we were to be several thousand miles from home in a tiny Mexican restaurant and to run into someone from your home town. It was a great evening and they were lovely people who like us love the Mexican culture and people, not to mention their beautiful country. I know most of you have read about the narco cartels and the violence that has hurt so many people in Mexico, you have also read about violence in this country. But Mexico by in large just like the United States is a safe and wonderful place to visit.

I strongly recommend getting to know our neighbors and beautiful country that is our southern border. Happy Cinco de Mayo!

BREAKFAST CASSEROLE

- 3 cups of 100% agave silver tequila (I used Jose Cuervo)
  - 2 cups orange liqueur (I use Cointreau)
  - 1 cup fresh lime juice
  - margarita salt and lime wedges (to garnish)
- Pour the tequila, liqueur, and lime juice into a half gallon pitcher.
- Add ice to the pitcher and stir to combine.
- Rub glasses with lime juice and dip in margarita salt.
- Pour margaritas into the glasses and serve

Q: What can you recommend for jock itch?

The 45-year old man approached me, asking in a low voice, "What can you recommend for jock itch?" "What have you already tried?"

Handing me a tube of Lamisil® AF, he replied, "I've been using this cream, but it only helps for a while... can you suggest anything stronger?" "Well, this should work just fine, but it can't do the job all by itself. The most important thing you can do is to keep that area as dry as possible. Are you doing anything else for it?"

"I'm using Gold Bond® medicated powder every day, and it helps some, but after a few hours the itch always comes back." Nearly 1 out of every 5 Americans suffer from a fungus infection of their skin or nails, called tinea. Tinea thrives in places that are warm, moist and dark, so people tend to get infections from tinea in places that are tightly covered and sweaty, like the feet and groin area. The medical name for which particular type of tinea infection depends on which area of your body is afflicted: a foot infection with tinea is called tinea pedis ("athlete's foot"), while tinea in the groin area is called tinea cruris ("jock itch"). The fungus that causes the itching loves dark, warm and moist areas. Applying an antifungal cream to it is not enough to kill it without addressing the issues of excess warmth and moisture. I advised him, "If your feet were affected with this fungus, I'd recommend you avoid tight shoes, change your socks frequently and wear sandals as much as possible. Having your feet open to the air reduces sweating and the sun shining on them discourages the fungus. With your situation, however, you need to keep your groin area as dry as possible to help the cream do its job."

"What do you suggest?" "First, avoid wearing fitted underwear. Instead, wear thinner, looser briefs or switch to boxer shorts. At night, keep your bed as cool as possible and wear loose, lightweight pajama bottoms or none at all. Using powder helps reduce moisture and itching. Gold Bond® and other "medicated" powders contain menthol, which creates a cooling sensation and helps relieve itching, but unlike powders specifically designed to treat athlete's foot, it doesn't attack the fungus directly. Most over-the-counter antifungal creams sold for athlete's foot are effective against jock itch, but they can't do the whole job by themselves. Controlling moisture is the absolute single most important thing you need to do to stop the itching."

Here are seven tips to treating "jock itch" (Tinea cruris) successfully:

1. Keep the affected area as dry as possible. Fungus loves a warm, moist and dark environment. Always dry your groin area well after bathing or swimming and wear loose fitting pants and underwear. Minimize sweating at night by avoiding sleeping in overheated rooms, avoid or reduce the temperature setting on heated blankets or mattress pads, and wear either very loose, light PJs or none at all.
2. Change your underwear frequently. Washing cotton briefs or boxers in very hot water also helps kill off tinea fungus, reducing the opportunity to reinfect you.
3. Avoid applying any creams, gels or ointments to damp skin, which traps moisture and encourages fungus to grow. Using a hair dryer on low to medium heat can help dry genital surfaces completely without the irritation of rubbing the skin dry with a towel.
4. When treating an active infection, make sure you are using an antifungal cream or gel, not just a "medicated powder" like Gold Bond®. Most Gold Bond® products labeled as "medicated" only contain menthol.
5. Apply your topical antifungal treatment twice a day for a minimum of two weeks, or until your symptoms completely go away, plus one week. After that you can switch to a maintenance program to keep it from coming back. If your symptoms don't completely resolve in 2 weeks, continue treating the area twice a day, keeping it as dry as possible.
6. Use powder daily to control moisture and avoid relapse. Consider using an anti-itch powder or spray powder like Gold Bond® 1-2 times a day as moisture control. If it does come back, re-treat it with an antifungal cream or gel, then switch to an antifungal powder labeled for athlete's foot and use it 1-2 times daily for maintenance.
7. If you don't notice any improvement within 2 weeks or if your symptoms worsen, please consult your doctor. It may be a yeast infection instead of fungus, or something else entirely.
