

Rotary Youth Exchange welcomes new students

By KATIE LINDERT
Ward Media Staff Reporter

CHELAN – Each year Lake Chelan Rotary hosts students from all over the world as part of their Rotary Youth Exchange program.

This year, Lake Chelan Rotary is hosting two students, both age 16 and juniors in high school. Sarai Villa joins Chelan High School from Gualleco, Chile, and Sota Watanabe joins Manson High School from Kanda-Miyako-gun, Japan.

Two local students are a part of the exchange, too. Shane Orton, from Manson, is with Watanabe's family in Japan, and Luke Christopherson, from Chelan, is in the Netherlands.

Students interested in becoming a part of the Rotary Exchange Program can pick up to three location preferences and are usually granted their first or second choice, but must be willing to travel wherever placement is found for them. They typically live with two to three host families during the school year. Those who choose to travel as seniors often enter the program with a willingness to sacrifice social experiences, potential exposure for college recruitment, and sometimes even the ability to graduate with their classes.

Villa's introduction to the Rotary Youth Exchange program was not intended, but serendipitous.

"I was searching for opportunities, and I was scrolling on Instagram one day, and I saw a post of Rotary's," Villa said. "They were telling people they are given a scholarship for making an exchange here...it was, 'maybe I'm going to apply, maybe no. I don't know.' The 27th of December, one day before my birthday, they call me and say, 'Hi, you're our new exchange student!' It was my gift."

Villa is an avid reader of books in English, currently plays volleyball for CHS, and hopes to become involved in Interact club (Rotary International's youth service club), Future Business Leaders of America, and CHS Med Club.

She enjoys music, and is a fan of English pop artist, Dua Lipa, and Korean boy band, BTS. Her favorite Chilean food is Porotos con Riendas, a Chilean bean stew. Her favorite American food is macaroni and cheese. Her favorite classes are cooking and ceramics.

School is different here than in Chile for Villa. More technology is available to students here, which makes information more accessible, she said.

At her school, in Chile, there are typically 30 students in each class, and teachers come to the classroom instead of students walking from class to class. They have the same amount of time at school, but more time in between classes for resting and socializing.

Villa wants to attend college in the U.S. but is not sure what she wants to study yet. She is open to what the exchange experience brings.

"One person say to be like the waves that happen, be like a sailing boat," she said.

Watanabe previously attended a boarding school in Saga, Japan where he studied general education. He wants to be a teacher after high school, and, like Villa, to attend college in the United States. He also stays with one group of students throughout the day in Japan, having a designated desk in place of a locker, and he shares Sarai's experience in that teachers come to his classroom.

Watanabe's favorite class in Japan is P.E., which he is not currently enrolled in here, but he enjoys his shop and art classes at MHS.

Watanabe played basketball in the past and plans to play for Manson this winter. He also hopes to be involved in the Chess club as well.

As a baseball fan, attending his first Mariners game was the highlight of Watanabe's experience so far. He loves movies, and the t.v.

CHELAN – In a recent press release from the Lake Chelan School District (LCS), data released by the state Office of the Superintendent of Public

The latest figures indicate that nearly 45 percent of Chelan students showcased proficiency on last spring's Smarter Balanced Assessment, achieving passing scores on the exam. This marks a notable 2.7 percent increase compared to the previous year, building upon an impressive 8.4 percent increase over the preceding two years. The Smarter Balanced Assessment is mandated for all Washington students in grades 3 through 8 and grade 10.

"Literacy is the foundation of learning and something we invest in and monitor frequently,"

PUD Commissioners back $4 million increase to Public Power Benefit Fund

Ward Media / Lake Chelan Mirror

WENATCHEE – The Chelan County Public Utility District (PUD) commissioners expressed their unanimous support on Monday for a one-time funding increase of $4 million to the existing Public Power Benefit fund, currently standing at $6 million, for the upcoming year, 2024. This pivotal decision, set to shape the region's future, is scheduled for formal voting in October.

The proposed augmentation is intended to empower the PUD to embark on five significant community-oriented projects while maintaining an open door for additional proposals. These initiatives include:

Expanded Fiber Network: The additional funding will expedite the expansion of the PUD's broadband network, aiming to extend access to an impressive 85 percent of Chelan County customers by 2026.

Fiber Expansion Design: Allocation of funds for developing preliminary designs and cost estimates for the next phase of expanding the wholesale fiber network. These designs will serve as a vital resource for the Fiber department and commissioners in making informed decisions.

Stehekin Reliability: The proposal seeks to explore solutions to enhance electrical capacity in the remote community of Stehekin in alignment with the region's growing and evolving energy demands.

Manson Parks Connection: This initiative envisions the creation of a connection between PUD-owned Manson Bay Park and the Old Swim Hole through the construction of an elevated boardwalk, ensuring safe and uninterrupted access and safeguarding the delicate riparian area.

Fifth Street Redevelopment: The proposed funding will facilitate the creation of an internal road and sidewalk within the Fifth Street campus in accordance with the community's redevelopment vision, ensuring a cohesive connection between separate parcels.

The Public Power Benefit program, Initiated in 2015, is focused on improving the quality of life in Chelan County. Approximately $6 million is allocated annually to support projects within the PUD's jurisdiction as a public utility. Funding is contingent upon the utility fulfilling its financial obligations.

Chelan PUD encourages customers and partner agencies to submit their project proposals each year. In 2023, 12 applications were evaluated by a team comprising two commissioners and several staff members. The assessment considered various factors such as cost, timeline, and project management.

our students, staff, and families to see a marked increase in the state testing results, including many of our students who are not native-English speakers." In addition to ELA, the state assessment also evaluates math proficiency. Although the gains in this area were somewhat smaller, at just 0.5 percent, educators are buoyed by the prospects of the newly adopted K-8 math curriculum. LCSD teachers dedicated extra time to training in August and have begun implementing the curriculum in classrooms. A noteworthy highlight in the assessment data was the performance of LCSD juniors on the Washington Comprehensive Assessment of Science (WCAS). The statistics revealed that 46 percent of Chelan's juniors achieved level 3 or 4 scores, surpassing the state average by a significant nine-point margin, which stands at only 37 percent. These scores underscore the district's unwavering commitment to STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) educational opportunities for students across grades K-12. This includes summer and after-school programs that receive support from the district's Educational Programs and Operations (EP&O) levy. "Standardized test scores are only one way student success is measured in the LCSD," Superintendent Wilson added. "Our school board of directors and district leadership continue to place a high value on student achievement. In fact, our newly adopted theme for everyone in our system is: Achieve, Believe in their potential, and Contribute compassionately to their community. It's as simple as ABC." Lake Chelan School District, established in 1892, serves approximately 1,265 students, boasting a remarkable 97 percent graduation rate within four years. Furthermore, over 50 percent of high school students are enrolled in no-cost, college-level coursework, according to OSPI data. For more information and updates, you can follow LCSD on Facebook, Instagram, or visit their website at www.chelan-schools.org.

OBITUARIES

Bonnie (Cederblom) Aston

Bonnie (Cederblom) Aston of Chelan, Washington passed away February 26, 2023 at home with her three daughters by her side. Bonnie was born January 5, 1938 in Coeur d' Alene, Idaho to Les and Blanche Cederblom. In 1938 the Cederblom family moved to Omak, Washington. Bonnie was very gifted on the piano and played for various organizations. She was versatile and played drums in the high school band. Even though the family did not own horses, Bonnie became Omak Stampede Princess in 1956 on a borrowed horse. She graduated from Omak High School in 1956.

She married Emmitt Aston Jr. on June 15, 1957 in Omak, Washington. The newlyweds started a family in Seattle while Emmitt finished pharmacy school at the University of Washington. In May of 1960, they made beautiful Lake Chelan, Washington their home, where they raised three daughters. In May of 1967, Bonnie and Emmitt bought Kier Drug in Chelan and changed the name to Aston Drug Center. It was a family operated business where Bonnie and Emmitt worked side by side for 24 years.

During this time in Chelan, Bonnie was active in the Aqua Junior Women's Club. She also worked on the election board for the City of Chelan and was a board member for the Lake Chelan Chamber of Commerce. Bonnie enjoyed sewing and cooking for her girls and passed these skills on.

As the family's love of animals grew, they all joined the Chelan Rustlers. Bonnie was very involved with the Chelan Rodeo and the Chelan Caballeros 4-H club where she was a 4-H Leader. Her involvement expanded when she became a board member on the Chelan-Douglas County 4-H Leaders Council. There were many good memories for Bonnie taking the 4-H members to horse shows, riding clinics, trail rides and various county fairs.

In June of 1973, the family bought a ranch 12 miles north of Chelan. They all enjoyed the ranch life and had fun raising various animals to include: dogs, cats, horses, sheep, goats, pigs, chickens and the list does not end there!

Bonnie and Emmitt sold the pharmacy in June, 1991. The business was transformed into Aston's Gifts Cards Etc. where Bonnie enjoyed working until her retirement in 2010.

One of the highlights of Bonnie's life was becoming a grandmother. The first, a granddaughter was born in April 1994 followed by twin boys two years later. Over the years, she collected toys, childrens furniture and decorations that she kept at the store waiting for the day she became a grandmother. She sure loved to talk about her grandchildren.

Bonnie was preceded in death by her loving husband of 65 years Emmitt and her two brothers Conlyn and Merwin Cederblom. She is survived by her three daughters, Cindy Aston Coonfield, Laura Ruess and Michele Aston Lockrem, her sister Nancy Koller, three grandchildren Laurel Williams, Conrad and Emmitt Ruess and two great-grandchildren Ivy and Stetson Williams and numerous nieces and nephews.

The family would like to thank Confluence Health Hospice, Dr. Tobe Harberd of CVCH Chelan and Valueplus Medical Supply Wenatchee for their tender care.

A Celebration of Life for Bonnie Aston and her brother Merwin Cederblom will be held October 7, 2023, at the Chelan Senior Center, 534 East Trow Ave., Chelan starting at 2 p.m. In Lieu of flowers, donations to any humane society, animal rescue group or animal fostering program is welcome.

THE WASHINGTON OUTDOOR REPORT

By JOHN KRUSE
Press Release
The Washington Outdoor Report

STATE FISHERIES BIOLOGIST DIES IN TRAGIC ACCIDENT:

On September 13, a 31-year-old fisheries biologist working for the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife drowned while snorkeling in the Wind River near Carson. Contacted a week after the incident, WDFW media representative Becky Elder declined to release the identity of the employee. However, the Skamania County Sheriff's Office, who responded to the scene, did release the name of the victim who is Erin Peterson from Ridgefield, Washington.

In a press release from WDFW, Agency Director Kelly Susewind stated, "She (Peterson) was an extraordinary woman and colleague. Her commitment and dedication to her work as a fish and wildlife biologist was exceptional. Our hearts are with her family and all who knew and worked with her."

Peterson was participating in a survey of summer steelhead when she became entrapped and drowned. These surveys are done to count the number of adult fish and their redds (where eggs are laid) in rivers around the Northwest.

Matt Krumdiak and Tag Watson, winners of the Old Farts Bass Tournament.

In their press release, WDFW stated they have now canceled snorkeling surveys until further notice.

A GREAT DAY OF FISHING LANDS US IN LAST PLACE:

MarDon Resort at Potholes Reservoir was the host of the annual Marathon Dock Tournament that took place between Friday evening the 15th thru Sunday morning the 17th at the resort marina. A full field of 148 anglers paid $40 each to participate and the individuals who caught the biggest two fish from any of the ten species available here took home some money ($400 for first place and $135 for second place). Some of the biggest fish caught off the docks included a 14 plus and 13 plus pound carp brought in by K. Goss along with a 9.7-pound channel catfish reeled in by Nicole Nelson.

Meanwhile, 20 boats participated in the Old Farts Bass Tournament on the 16th and Rusty Johnston and I were onboard one of them. We had a great day of fishing, reeling in over 30 bass and four walleye. Unfortunately, only one bass was a quality one (3.5 pounds) and Rusty lost a 4+ pound smallmouth bass just as we were about to net it. At the end of the day, we weighed in a limit of five bass weighing just under 11 pounds, putting us dead last among the 20

Choosing the right cleaning solution

What do you reach for when cleaning a kitchen cutting board or caring for a scratch? A disinfectant, antiseptic, or an antibiotic?

Disinfectants and antiseptics are chemical compounds with the power to either completely destroy organisms that cause disease or keep them from multiplying. These compounds can be effective against bacteria, fungi, viruses, and other microorganisms like amoebae that live in water.

There are two main types of disinfectant chemicals and disinfecting procedures: sanitizers (sanitization) and sterilizers (sterilization).

Ask...
Dr. Louise

Sterilization is a procedure meant to destroy all life forms on a surface. At the same time, sanitizing is less complete, killing most of the organisms it touches and reducing the number left down to a safe level.

Surgical instruments are sterilized with a two-step process. They are first soaked in a disinfectant solution of a particular concentration for a specific time, called cold sterilization. This is followed by heat sterilization by exposing them to very high temperatures inside a pressure cooker-like appliance called an autoclave.

Heat sterilization procedures are used in home canning. You immerse empty canning jars in boiling water for a set time to prepare them for your food. After filling the jars, they are further exposed to heat, with either more time in boiling water or inside a pressure cooker.

Sanitizing kills organisms that cause disease. A disinfectant is a compound used to clean inanimate surfaces like kitchen cutting boards and bathroom fixtures. Cleaning a wound effectively requires something that can kill microorganisms without damaging living tissue: an antiseptic. Antiseptics include antibiotics that target bacteria, antifungals that attack fungi, and antivirals that work against viruses.

An effective disinfectant or antiseptic works against various microorganisms, kills on contact and acts quickly. One beneficial characteristic is the ability to penetrate cracks and crannies where microbes can lurk.

Some bacteria can form a tight layer over a surface. This is called a biofilm. When bacteria form these layers, they become much harder to kill. The ability of a compound to penetrate into a biofilm and destroy it is a valuable characteristic.

To be most useful, antiseptics and disinfectants must be able to be used safely with other commonly used cleaners. They also should not have toxic fumes and be economical to use. Finally, disinfectants shouldn't create any pitting, corrosion, or staining of instruments or surfaces, and antiseptics must not damage living tissue.

Some examples of commercial disinfectants include hydrogen peroxide, sodium hypochlorite (the ingredient in household bleach), phenol, and formaldehyde. Although bottles of hydrogen peroxide and laundry bleach are everyday household items, they are used in higher concentrations when used as commercial disinfectants.

Antiseptics include compounds that reduce the spread of certain organisms or kill them outright. They can suppress the general growth of microbes or be only effective on specific microorganisms, like antibiotics, antifungals, and antivirals. Some anti-infectives should only be used on intact skin, like when used just before surgery. At the same time, others can be applied to wounds or given internally.

A compound containing mercury and bromine called Mercurochrome® was widely used in the 1960s as a topical antiseptic. Like many kids then, my mother painted it on my cuts. After stinging like mad, it left a bright reddish-orange stripe that would take days to fade.

Unfortunately, mercury can be absorbed through broken skin. Mercurochrome® is no longer used because it isn't considered effective enough to be worth the risk of being exposed to mercury. Mercurochrome® was replaced with Merthiolate®, a different form of mercury called thimerosal.

Thimerosal is much safer because it "locks" mercury to prevent it from being absorbed into your body. In the past, thimerosal has been used in vaccines as a preservative. Today, most vaccines are distributed as single-dose syringes without the need for preservatives. This avoids potential exposure to mercury from vaccination.

Iodine is helpful as tablets to decontaminate water for drinking and as a solution called povidone-iodine (Betadine®) to clean skin before surgery.

Silver is used on the skin as silver sulfadiazine, an antibiotic widely used in burn victims. Silver nitrate works to cauterize wounds and reduce bleeding.

Hand gels containing at least 60% alcohol work as hand sanitizers, significantly reducing the number of bacteria and viruses on your hands. Parabens and benzalkonium chloride interfere with the growth of microbes and are widely used as preservatives in eye drops and nose sprays.

For kitchen cutting boards, household chlorine bleach sanitizes well.

Hydrogen peroxide helps clean scratches, but you should avoid applying it after the initial cleanse because it destroys new tissue, preventing wounds from healing.

Who were the winners? That would be the repeating championship team of Tag Watson and Matt Krumdiak who weighed in a 21-pound limit of bass, earning them a $1560 paycheck. The big fish of the day was hauled in by Jake Boomer, a hefty 5.47-pound largemouth bass worth $500. Boomer and his partner Mike Bess came in second place at the event, weighing in just over 19 pounds of bass, receiving a check of $730 (plus the big bass bonus).

The Old Farts Tournament is put on in mid-September every year by the Banks Lake Bass Club. It is a low-key, fun event and the club does a great job putting it on. DID WASHINGTON STATE PARKS CANCEL THANKSGIVING?

I was reading the September Washington State Parks e-newsletter which covered the remaining free days available for day-visitors to enter and park in Washington's State Parks without a Discover Pass. One of those dates is the day after Thanksgiving, Friday, November 24th. I was curious why the State Parks and Recreation Commission chose to not call it a Thanksgiving or Day after Thanksgiving free day and emailed the media department to ask them why.

Having not received a response right away, I began researching this and found the day after Thanksgiving was first made a free day to enter state parks in 2017 where it was called, Autumn Free Day. It remained as Autumn Day through 2021 but in 2022 the free day after Thanksgiving got a new name, Native American Heritage Day. However, in 2023, the late November free entry day was once again designated, Autumn Day. Is this all about wokeness and cancel culture towards Thanksgiving? Did someone object to it being called Native American Heritage Day?

I did receive a reply from State Parks media staff shortly before this column went to press stating, "Washington State Parks and the departments of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) and Natural Resources (DNR) have offered a Discover Pass "free day" the day after Thanksgiving for several years. The free day is not associated with Thanksgiving. It is the last free day of the year and coincides with autumn and school vacation for many families."

So perhaps I'm mistaken about cancel culture though the reply doesn't answer the question as to why they changed the name from Native American Heritage Day back to Autumn Day for 2023. Maybe it's just the way things are done by our state agencies in Washington these days. A great example is the Hungarian partridge, nicknamed the "Hun" for short, which saw its name changed to the completely non-offending and uninspiring name, gray partridge a few years ago by WDFW. Autumn Day falls into the same category. Afraid to offend any one person or groups of people, you just change the name to something that won't offend (or inspire) anyone.

Of course, that's just my personal opinion. However, no matter what it's called, November 24th would be a good day to get outside into one of our state parks instead of spending the day inside of big box retail stores or in front of a computer all day shopping online.
