Powering up next year

Courtesy Chelan County PUD

ABOVE: Construction of the Chelan County PUD North Shore Chelan Substation on Henderson Road began in February of this year and the PUD anticipates serving customers by the spring of 2024. Construction activities at the substation site this month are: earthwork at the site is complete; main power transformer has been delivered and placed - this is the heart of the substation; concrete foundations inside the substation footprint will be constructed; steel structures (towers to support equipment inside the substation) will be assembled. Construction activities on underground distribution line installation: Underground conduit and vaults are being installed along Highpoint Lane, and sections of Crystal and Westview drives; and wire will be pulled through the conduits and connected to equipment later in 2023 or early 2024. Later this year: transmission tap - a modified transmission pole and a short wire span - will be constructed this summer; and PUD crews will take over work at the site this fall. On underground distribution line installation: after major equipment and trucks are done at the substation site, a PUD contractor will install underground conduit and equipment along Henderson Road from the substation site to Boyd Road; wire will be pulled through the conduits and connected to equipment later in 2023 or early 2024; and underground conduit and equipment installation is expected to begin on Boyd Road, toward the intersection with Hwy. 150 - the schedule for this section of the project will be updated later this year. ABOVE RIGHT: A map of the area showing time lines for different projects on the site.

Hi there!

What to do if you find a deer fawn

Editors Note: This information is taken from the Washington State Department of Fish and Wildlife website

Every spring, wildlife managers and wildlife rehabilitators receive calls about "orphaned" fawns lying alone in the woods or in someone's yard. The callers often think these fawns have been abandoned. But unless you are certain the mother is dead or the fawn is clearly sick or injured, please leave it alone.

The mother is usually foraging nearby and will return to take care of her fawn once you move away. For the first few weeks of the fawn's life, the doe keeps the fawn hidden, except when suckling. A fawn will instinctively lie low not moving while waiting for its mother to return.

The doe may feed and bed down a considerable distance from the fawn's safe site. This way, even if a predator detects the doe, the fawn may still have a chance of avoiding detection. Fawns do not give off an odor at this young age and will go undetected by a predator.

When to call a permitted wildlife rehabilitator
Contact a wildlife rehabilitator:

- When you are certain the mother is dead.
- When a fawn appears weak, ill, or injured, or its mother does not return the following day.

Do not handle a fawn until you have called a wildlife rehabilitator. If you have handled a fawn, rub an old towel in the grass and wipe the fawn to remove human scent. Using gloves, return the fawn to where it was found. Fawns can often be returned to their mothers if taken back to where they were found within 24-48 hours.

Bus accident memorial updated

Courtesy Lake Chelan Historical Society

The Lake Chelan Historical Society adopted a new project last fall, committing to clean up the area around the bus memorial location. The school bus tragedy of November 26, 1945, claimed 16 lives. Watson's Haverene Resort provided seed money to place interpretive signs at the site that tell about the school bus accident and the search for the students and the bus. Society president Dave Clouse and his wife, Sue, have spearheaded the improvements. Marci Hale, whose two older brothers lost their lives, helped write the story. The Department of Transportation placed historical marker signs on both sides of Highway 971. The site is uplake on the south shore, six miles from Chelan.

Highway designation honors Vietnam veterans

Douglas County stretch earns WWII label

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

TONASKET – A dedication held just prior to Memorial Day designated Highway 20 in Okanogan County as “Vietnam Veterans Memorial Highway.” The renaming was spearheaded by veterans from Oroville American Legion Post 82 and Tonasket Post 84 who initiated a signature-gathering effort in support of the change.

It’s just the latest in a number of similar designations that have been conferred upon sections of highway in this state and other parts of the nation. In October 2021 we carried a story about a campaign to name the portion of U.S. Highway 97 in Washington State “World War II Veterans Memorial Highway.”

That proposal met with some success earlier this year when the Washington State Transportation Commission (WSTC) named U.S. 97 from Odabashian Bridge near Wenatchee to Beebe Bridge near Chelan “World War II Veterans Memorial Highway.”

The U.S. 97/WWII campaign originated in Oregon in the early 2000’s by the Bend Heroes Foundation, a nonprofit that worked to rename other Oregon highways honoring U.S. war veterans. Among their successes:

- U.S. 395 – WWI Veterans Memorial Highway.
- U.S. 97-State Route 126 – WWII Veterans Historic Highway.
- Interstate 5 – Korean War Veterans Memorial Highway & Purple Heart Trail.
- Interstate 84 – Vietnam Veterans Memorial Highway.
- U.S. 101 – Persian Gulf, Afghanistan and Iraq Veterans Memorial Highway.

A section of WSTC policy and procedure outlines the steps necessary for the non-legislative naming process. It reads:

To initiate the naming process without a legislative Joint Memorial being enacted, an interested party must contact the Commission to establish their interest in seeking a naming. The requesting party shall provide sufficient evidence to the Commission indicating community support and acceptance of the proposal. Evidence of support and acceptance may include things such as:

1. Letters of support from state and federal legislators representing the area of the facility;
2. Resolutions passed by local, publicly elected bodies in the area of the facility;
3. Department support;
4. Supportive action by letter from local organizations such as local chambers of commerce or service clubs.

Retirements

Lori Jenkins
Middle/High School Teacher
36 years

Impacting students really is what Mrs. Jenkins has been doing at Chelan Middle School and Chelan High School (CHS) for over three decades. Her work at the middle level helped lead to state recognition in English

Vicki Hoffman

Language Arts back in the WASL days, and her contributions as a CHS English teacher helped lead to an unprecedented number of students earning college English credit. She also advised the drama club for years. It's going to be different without Mrs. Jenkins around — we will all need to pick up the slack and heed her advice to, "Lead, follow, or get out of the way!" Thank you Lori Jenkins.

Joe Harris

Vicki Hoffman
Music Assistant
33 years

Mrs. Hoffman is Chelan Band. She played in it herself, her children performed in it, and she has assisted in shepherding its growth in size and achievement over the years. She accompanied the band to Disneyland on two occasions, and ensured that all members returned as well. We will miss her ability to grow our young musicians, her smile and her kind words to every student and staff member she encounters. We will all do our best to remember what Vicki says: "Don't be afraid to learn from your students!" Thank you Vicki Hoffman.

Anna Fernandez

Joe Harris
PE Teacher/Coach
32 years

Joe Harris is synonymous with Chelan's basketball program, 500 plus wins, numerous trips to the state tournament, the 1998 state title, and an induction to the Washington Interscholastic Basketball Coaches Association Hall of Fame. As a P.E. teacher, he gave just as much energy and encouragement to his students, and received a WA state Middle School Physical Educator of the Year award. While we might not miss the '80s rock blaring over the gym speakers, we are going to miss Mr. Harris' energy in the gym every single day. Remember his mantra: "Don't count the days, make the days count!" Thank you Joe Harris.

Amanda Mattingly

District Employees of the year

Anna Fernandez
Certified Employee of the Year

Anna is a Migrant Paraeducator, and has made an incredible impact on students at MOE. Her empathy and patience for students really helps them achieve new learning, build an intrinsic belief in themselves and allows them to contribute in an equitable way in their classroom.

Amanda Mattingly
Certified Employee of the Year

Amanda is a high school teacher and also leads the FFA club. She works to make our agriculture education program accessible and appealing to students of all backgrounds, and contributes her time and talents to the Chelan community as well through volunteer activities.

Tips for homeowners to improve safety, sustainability

STATEPOINT - You may not realize it, but building safety has a huge impact on our everyday lives.

According to InjuryFacts.NSC.org, about 16 out of 100 people were injured in a home or community venue in 2021. The leading causes that contribute to these injuries, such as drowning, fire smoke, and general home maintenance, can be prevented by acting ahead of time.

As the leading global source of model codes, standards and building safety solutions, the Code Council is passionate about educating homeowners on fire safety, home maintenance and sustainability practices. Here are some safety tips from the Code Council to help prevent accidents and keep your family and community safe:

- Fire Safety Tips:
- Put a smoke alarm on every level of your home, outside each sleeping area and inside every bedroom. Test each smoke alarm regularly and replace it every 10 years.
 - Install home fire sprinklers. They are relatively affordable and can increase property value and lower insurance rates.
 - Make an escape plan with a meeting place outside so everyone knows how to get out fast.
- Fire Safety Tips:
- Keep anything that can burn at least three feet away from portable heaters.
 - Keep all items that can burn away from your home. Remember to clean leaves from your gutters and clear dead leaves and branches from shrubs and trees surrounding your home.
- Home Maintenance Tips:
- Never overload electrical cords or power strips.
 - Don't use appliances that have damaged cords.
 - For mold prevention, watch for leaky pipes, condensation and wet spots, and fix sources of moisture problems as soon as possible.
 - Keep in mind that there are several materials and items that should never be flushed down the toilet, including medication, disposable wipes, coffee grounds and more.
 - To prevent your pipes from freezing in the winter, drain water from the swimming pool and water sprinkler supply lines following the manufacturer's or installer's directions.

- Make sure all pedestrian gates in the barrier fence of your swimming pool are self-closing and self-latching.

According to the Center for Climate and Energy Solutions, the average U.S. family can spend $2,000 a year on energy bills. This means that reducing your home energy use is the single most effective way to save money and reduce your home's contribution to greenhouse gasses. The Code Council recognizes that for many people, it's unclear where to start, and suggests the following tips to help communities forge a path forward.

Energy and Sustainability Tips:

- Install water-saving shower heads and low-flow faucet aerators and use your water meter to check for hidden water leaks. These steps can improve water conservation.
- To prevent stormwater runoff pollution, never dump anything down storm drains.
- Change the filters in your home's heating and cooling system regularly to increase energy efficiency.
- Replace your light bulbs with LEDs, which use up to 90% less energy and last up to 25 times longer than traditional incandescent bulbs.
- Build green and design your home with materials that are easily recyclable, reusable, renewable, durable, affordable, and low maintenance.
- Build a rain garden to capture roof drainage and divert it to your garden or landscaping to recycle non-potable water. Be sure to check your local rules on rainwater harvesting prior to installation.

Payroll tax for long-term care program starts July 1

By Rep. Mike Steele

OLYMPIA - The WA Cares Fund, a new state-run, long-term care insurance program, will begin payroll deductions on July 1. Originally set to take effect in January 2022, the Legislature voted to delay the payroll tax by 18 months. For those eligible, WA Cares provides up to $36,500 for nursing care and other services.

The cost: Most workers in Washington, including part-time and temporary workers, will pay up to 58 cents on every $100 of their earnings for this new program. That means, for example, someone making $50,000 per year the new tax will pay $24.17 monthly or $290 yearly.

Background: In 2019, the Long-Term Care Act, House Bill 1087, was approved by the majority party and signed into law by the governor. Republicans voted "no" on this measure for several reasons, including its deep unpopularity with voters.

Nearly 63% of Washington voters said the long-term care payroll tax should be repealed with Advisory Vote No. 20 in 2019.

What about exemptions? Two deadlines in 2021 and 2022, set in state law, were offered for those looking to opt out of the program. If you purchased a qualifying long-term care insurance plan by November 1, 2021, and applied for a permanent exemption from the WA Cares Fund, you are not subject to the new payroll tax.

The deadline for applying for this exemption was December 31, 2022.

Although some people could take advantage of this exemption, many others couldn't find a private plan in time, and countless others simply didn't know about the new payroll tax.

The Long-Term Services and Supports Trust Commission makes recommendations regarding criteria for determining who is a qualified individual, minimum provider qualifications, service payment maximums, actions needed to maintain Trust solvency and monitoring of agency expenses.

Beyond the private insurance exemption, there are a few, very limited, exemptions that exist in state law:

- Live outside of Washington state.
- Are the spouse or registered domestic partner of an active-duty service member of the U.S. armed forces.
- Have non-immigrant work visas.
- Are veterans with a 70% service-connected disability rating or higher.

More on the Long-Term Care Act

When the program was originally debated, members of my caucus repeatedly offered amendments to further open exemptions for those unable to meet the deadlines listed above, which were rejected by the majority party. If denied an exemption, this program will force those who want nothing to do with it to pay the payroll tax. It's unfair to lock Washingtonians into a state-run program with no further options.

As a legislator, I understand the Washington State Long-Term Care Act aims to provide a public long-term care insurance program to residents. However, I have several concerns about the viability and effectiveness of the program.

First, the Long-Term Care Act imposes a state mandatory payroll tax for current and future workers, without exemptions, including those who may not require long-term care in the future or already have private long-term care insurance. This approach places an additional burden on individuals, especially low-income workers, who may struggle to afford the tax.

Second, the benefits provided by the Long-Term Care Act are extremely limited and may not adequately cover the costs associated with long-term care services. The maximum benefit of $36,500 is wholly inadequate and may give a false sense of security about future long-term needs. This could leave individuals and families with significant out-of-pocket expenses, defeating the purpose of having long-term care insurance in the first place.

Additionally, the Long-Term Care Act does not provide flexibility for individuals to choose their preferred long-term care services or providers. It establishes a one-size-fits-all approach, limiting the freedom of choice for residents. This lack of flexibility may not align with the unique needs and preferences of individuals and their families, leading to problems with the quality and type of care received.

And finally, and most importantly, the implementation of the Long-Term Care Act raises serious concerns about the sustainability and financial viability of the program. The act's funding mechanism relies solely on payroll taxes, which may not be sufficient to sustain the program in the long run. This could result in increased taxes or reduced benefits in the future, further burdening taxpayers and undermining the effectiveness of the program. In the coming session, I expect several more efforts to amend this program.

Governor appoints longtime Wenatchee port commissioner to state Transportation Commission

Will begin term on the board on July 1

Submitted by WSDOT

OLYMPIA - Gov. Jay Inslee has appointed Janet "JC" Baldwin of Wenatchee to fill an open seat on the Washington State Transportation Commission. Baldwin is a small business owner and longtime elected port commissioner, serving on the Chelan Douglas Regional Port Authority since 2005.

Baldwin, whose six-year term starts on July 1, brings to the commission the expertise of working in the tech sector as chief executive officer and co-founder of GTC Technical Support in Wenatchee. In addition to her experience as a business owner and elected official, Baldwin brings to the commission extensive experience in the areas of public infrastructure and economic development, amassed from service on a range of boards including the state Community Aviation Revitalization Board, the state Public Works Board and the Washington Public Ports Association Executive

JC Baldwin

Committee.

Baldwin said her service with the Chelan Douglas Regional Port Authority, combined with the other roles she has served in, gives her a unique perspective and valuable insights that will support the development of statewide transportation policy. Among its responsibilities, the commission advises the state Legislature and the governor on transportation policy matters. This summer, it will begin the work of updating the Washington State Transportation Plan, an endeavor taken on every four years.

"Ports serve a critical role in our state's economy, and the linkage between transportation and ports is undeniable," Baldwin said. "An efficient and accessible transportation system is vital to enabling the movement of freight and goods in and out of ports and will be a priority of mine as I work with my fellow commissioners in authoring the update of our state's 20-year transportation plan."

The commission also serves as the state tolling authority, setting toll rates and ferry fares, and provides annual guidance to lawmakers on statewide funding and fiscal matters.

"I look forward to supporting the advancement of viable approaches to creating long-term, sustainable funding for transportation so that our entire statewide system is able to carry our state into the future and meet the diversified needs of our citizens," Baldwin said.

Baldwin replaces Commissioner Jerry Litt of Grant County, who served two terms on the commission for a total of 12 years. She will be one of three commissioners appointed from east of the Cascade Mountains. The other four are from the west of the mountains, per requirements in state law.

Local nonprofits awarded $65,000 in consulting grants

Submitted by Jennifer Dodge, Community Foundation of NCW

NCW - The Community Foundation of NCW in partnership with Icicle Fund, Thriving Together NCW, and Methow Valley Fund, has awarded $65,000 in Strategic Consulting Grants to 13 nonprofits across the NCW region. The grants provide nonprofits with a consultant to help guide them through their organizational strategies and planning goals for long-term growth and sustainability.

"We know how challenging it can be as nonprofits to find the time, money, and human resources to work with a consultant on strategy and planning work" said Claire Oatey, director of community grants for the Community Foundation. "Organizations are working hard to keep up with the needs of our communities. This funder collaborative gives local nonprofits an opportunity to invest in themselves, including their resiliency and effectiveness, which we know will ultimately benefit all of us and make our region stronger."

Since 2008, the Community Foundation of NCW has been partnering with the Icicle Fund through the Non-profit Practices Institute (NPI) - a collaborative effort to offer affordable and accessible capacity-building and training opportunities. Last year, NPI piloted the Strategic Consulting Grant, which was a success for those organizations who received direct consulting.

"We have seen the prior recipients of this grant take great leaps in growth and sustainability as a result of this program" said Christine Morgan, executive director of the Icicle Fund. "The Icicle Fund is pleased to partner with the Community Foundation of NCW and Thriving Together NCW to help strengthen another 13 organizations in our community."

Recently, the Foundation began partnering with Thriving Together NCW, another organization that offers funding and opportunities to build communities.

"We recognize that having access to fulfilling jobs with meaningful work is crucial for the development of thriving communities which is why we are grateful for the opportunity to collaborate on this initiative" said Thriving Together NCW. "We know these grants will help our nonprofit partners to be better equipped to achieve their goals and we look forward to celebrating their successes."

There will be one more opportunity for Strategic Consulting Grants in February 2024. For more information, visit <https://cfncw.org/strategicconsultinggrant>.
