Community Partnership Heritage Heights, Lake Chelan Arts Council

March art show now in progress

SUBMITTED BY WENDY ISENHART, HERITAGE HEIGHTS BOARD MEMBER

CHELAN - The long-planned renovation of Heritage Heights at Lake Chelan began on March 1, starting at the entrance with a fresh coat of welcoming, warm, peachy white paint for the reconfigured lobby. Soon to follow will be new carpeting and upscale amenities that will continue throughout the two-story, 32-unit complex, apartment by apartment, until the entire facility, including its commercial kitchen, is refreshed and renewed, inside and out. It may take a few years to complete, but work is underway.

"We're a 501c3 nonprofit and operate close to the line, but we have enough saved and strong community support for getting started while our board members are applying for every grant available," said Deseria (Des) Bare, Heritage Heights' Executive Director.

But that's not the best part of this story. The redesigned entry is welcoming local artists to display their work on a 25 foot art wall viewed by everyone entering and leaving Heritage Heights. The showings, sponsored by the Lake Chelan Arts Council, will feature one local artist each month in a revolving showcase of visual arts. Painters, potters, photographers, weavers and quilters have a place to introduce their work and all who pass by have a chance to learn about the very active group of creative people living in the Lake Chelan valley.

Dan Crandall, who chairs the arts council, said his organization and Heritage Heights were brought together many years ago by Barb Koenig when a loved one needed an assisted living environment where cooking, cleaning, bathing and other daily activities are provided by a licensed, professional staff.

lery and was a huge supporter of local artists and making sure we extended our art programs to older and younger members of our community. Ever since, the council has taken a special interest in seniors and youth," Crandall explained.

Crandall kicks it off for March with a showing of celebrity portraits and landscapes done in watercolor. His sense of humor shows through the paintings of familiar faces in familiar roles that will bring smiles to viewers.

The Arts Council meets the last Friday of the month at 1pm in a conference room provided by the Chelan Chamber of Commerce on Woodin Avenue.

"Our meetings are always open to the public," Crandall said, and we welcome artists and appreciators of art. We want to get to know each other."

The Heritage Heights Art Wall is also open to public viewing unless the facility is in quarantine. Call ahead to make sure at 509-682-1998 and let them know you're coming. Donations are accepted and donors may earmark special projects.

WCOG sues the Washington State Redistricting Commission

WA Redistricting Board ordered to pay over $137k in legal fees and fines

SUBMITTED BY GEORGE ERB, WCOG SECRETARY AND JULI BUNTING, WCOG EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

OLYMPIA - The Washington Coalition for Open Government (WashCOG) has agreed to settle its lawsuit with the state of Washington and its Redistricting Commission for violating the state Open Public Meetings Act. The Commission today voted to accept the settlement, as well.

The parties reached an agreement on a consent decree to present to the Thurston County Superior Court for approval. That agreement includes open government principles that ensures future Commissions will not continue to act secretly, which was WashCOG's goal.

Elements of the agreement include:

The Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) applies to the Commission and its Commissioners.

The Commission and its commissioners violated OPMA and the Commission's corresponding rules regarding transparency.

A commitment to implement rules so that commissioners no longer negotiate in private.

A stipulation that all future commissioners and staff shall complete open government training within thirty days of hiring or appointment.

Before the Commission considers any motion to approve a final redistricting plan, the Commission shall make that plan publicly available, including any proposed Congressional or legislative district maps.

The Commission shall open for public comment any motion to approve a final plan prior to voting on the motion.

Penalties of $500 per commissioner and payment of legal costs and fees for the plaintiffs.

Under the settlement, the Superior Court would deny

WashCOG's request to invalidate the redistricting plan and district maps the Commission transmitted to the state Supreme Court on Nov. 16.

The Supreme Court's had already issued an order December 3, 2021, affirming that plan. The Supreme Court's decision said that "the primary purpose of achieving a timely redistricting plan would be impeded, not advanced, by rejecting the Commission's completed work."

Subsequently, the Supreme Courts declined original jurisdiction to hear WashCOG's complaint and the Legislature adopted the Redistricting Plan as amended on February 8, 2022.

WashCOG President Mike Fancher said, "We concluded the Supreme Court and Legislature had no interest in invalidating the plan and maps so close to the 2022 elections. We took no position on maps, but pursued an outcome that ensures this Commission and future Commission will not repeat the same mistakes. We feel this outcome achieved that aim."

The Commission has agreed to clarify its rules and never again vote on a "framework" rather than a redistricting plan in final form with actual maps in recordable form made public prior to its vote. The Commission agreed to forgo private negotiations and bring its working conversations or deliberations into the public forum moving forward.

"The Commission has taken these matters seriously as shown by their stipulation to individual penalties and covering the costs and attorney's fees incurred in enforcing open government protections," he said.

Washington's Open Public Meetings Act requires "All meetings of the governing body of a public agency shall be open and public and all persons shall be permitted to attend any meeting of the governing of a public agency, except as otherwise provided in this chapter." RCW 42.30.030

The Washington Coalition for Open Government is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization founded in 2002. We are an independent, broad-based advocate for public records, open meetings and informed citizens.

CHELAN- After a year's hiatus, due to the restrictions of the Corona Virus, the directors of the Miss Lake Chelan Program presented the 2022 pageant on Saturday, March 5 at Sigillo Cellars. The selection day format was slightly modified to accommodate a smaller candidate field and pandemic constraints.

The Miss Lake Chelan Program has been part of Chelan's history since the first Princess Chelan, Henrietta Kelsey, was selected from the senior class in 1926.

At the core of the program is an opportunity for young women of our community to gain skills in leadership, public speaking and volunteerism while serving as an ambassador for her hometown. The addition of scholarship awards in the 1970's helps the program to draw some of the brightest and most talented young women in our schools.

Miss Lake Chelan 2022 was chosen from three lovely young women who challenged themselves to run for the title: Miss Itzel Martinez, Miss Rocio Italia Sevilla, and Miss Jacqueline Jimenez. The three candidates are all members of the senior class at Chelan High School.

In addition, the three young ladies had the opportunity to receive a portion of $4,400 in scholarship money for their post-secondary education.

The 2022 Manson Apple Blossom Festival royal court of Queen Cara Hutton, Princess Raven Pope, and Princess Emely Valencia-Suarez attended the pageant.

Miss Jacqueline Jimenez

Candidate number 3 was Miss Jacqueline Jimenez. Jacqueline is the oldest and only daughter of Jose Jimenez and Yanela Guzman. She won first place in Poise and Grace, first in Self-Expression and the Spirit of Miss Lake Chelan Award.

Miss Itzel Martinez

Candidate number 1 was Miss Itzel Martinez. Itzel is the daughter of Jesus Martinez and Lucia Bautista. She won the Miss Congeniality Award, first place in Scholastic Achievement and second place in the Interview Award.

Private Ranch Pheasants

BY JOHN KRUSE, THE WASHINGTON OUTDOOR REPORT

As far as I'm concerned, there are few things more enjoyable in life than watching a dog catch the scent of a pheasant, track that bird down and then watching that rooster explode out of the brush into the air in front of you. As for knocking the bird down? That's a big bonus too, though I struggled in that regard during my recent trip to the Cooke Canyon Hunt Club near Ellensburg. I went to this hunting club at the invitation of member Mike Carey, the man behind Northwest Fishing Reports TV and the NWFR Reel Life magazine. Also with us was well known writer and editor Jason Brooks. He spent the morning following the two of us and Mike's springer spaniel, Duke, with his camera from flush to flush, laughing merrily every time I shot holes into the sky.

The Cooke Canyon Hunt Club is a non-profit club north of Ellensburg with 1,000 acres to hunt. Doug and Alice Burnett are the affable owners and they are assisted by several friendly employees who will plant pheasant or chukar you pay for in a designated 80 to 100 acre-plot you and your party will exclusively hunt. This is nice because you are not competing with other hunters like you often do hunting on public land or state pheasant release sites. The birds come in packages of either five roosters, seven hens or seven chukar though you can add on to those packages with more birds if you choose too. A dog is required and many of the hunters here, including Mike, use the hunting club as a way of training their dogs to be better hunters before taking them to places where they'll hunt wild pheasants during the regular season. Steel shot is also required and if you don't have a dog, you can hire a guide with a dog so that you can hone your shooting and hunting skills. There are real advantages to private ranch pheasant hunting, especially in Washington State where wild pheasant populations cratered due to habitat loss and changing farming practices. Whereas you might walk several miles with your dog and maybe flush a pheasant on public land, here you are assured of several flushes at close range during a hunt that usually lasts two or three hours. The terrain at Cooke Canyon is good too. It's not a big open flat field. Instead, where we hunted, there was a of different types of brush for the birds to hide in and for you to navigate through as well as a creek and two draws separated by a ridge. Much to my surprise, we actually covered close to three miles hunting back and forth behind the dog. Another big advantage to private ranch hunting in Washington is that you can go after pheasants both before and after the regular hunting season which runs from mid-October thru mid-January in Eastern Washington. At the private hunting preserves, the season starts September 1 and continues until March 31. I am happy to report that despite my shooting woes we did end up hitting a couple of birds during our morning hunt. I had to leave after that but Jason and Mike went out for an afternoon shoot after lunch where there was a lot more hitting than missing and several tasty pheasant ended up going home for supper. If you are looking for a Central or Eastern Washington pheasant hunting opportunity on a private ranch near you here are a few options: Cooke Canyon Hunt Club - Ellensburg - www.cookecanyon.com - 509-933-1372 Hidden Ranch Outfitters - Coulee City - www.hiddenranchoutfitters.com - 509-681-0218 Miller Ranch - Cheney - www.millerranch.com - 509-990-6575 Double Barrel Ranch - Rockford - www.uplandbirdranch.com - 509-270-5518 Limits Game Farm - Mesa - www.limitsgamefarm.com - 509-265-4578 Private ranch pheasants. Don't turn up your nose at this opportunity. If you enjoy hunting pheasant this can be a productive training experience for your dog as well as a fun day for you and your friends. March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month

My first colonoscopy was 11 years ago, at age 55. I was due for another one 10 years later, in early 2021. Due to the COVID pandemic, the clinic doing colonoscopies in my community was forced to cancel all but the most urgent procedures. When I saw my family doctor last month, he mentioned I was overdue for my next colonos-copy. "They called me last week to schedule it, but I haven't called them back." He reminded me that by avoiding getting tested, I was gambling with my life. March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. Colon and rectal cancers are the second leading cause of death from cancer in the United States, behind lung cancer. According to the National Cancer Institute, nearly 150,000 new colon or rectal cancer cases were discovered last year. That's one out of 23 men and one out of 25 women. Colon and rectal cancers are often lumped together and called colorectal cancer or CRC. CRC is the cause of 10% of all cancer deaths. Colorectal cancer was rare in 1950 but is now the fourth most commonly diagnosed cancer in the United States. You are more likely to develop CRC if you are older, smoke cigarettes, are obese, get minimal exercise, or eat a diet high in meat and refined carbohydrates and low in fiber. Colon cancer is more common among women, but rectal cancer is more common in men. The incidence of CRC increases starting at age 40 and peaks between 60 and 75 years of age. 20% of CRC cases are related to genetic factors. Having ulcerative colitis and Crohn's disease increases your risk of developing CRC. Polyps are clusters of cells that grow on the inside lining of your colon. Colorectal cancer can occur when the tissue clump called a polyp turns normal cells into cancer. Without polyps to change into cancer cells, there's no colorectal cancer. When should screening for colorectal cancer start? It depends on estimating your risk of developing this reasonably common cancer. If you have an average chance of getting CRC, screening tests should begin at age 50 and continue until age 75. What type of screening is best? A colonoscopy is considered the "gold standard" for screening for colorectal cancer. If no polyps are found, it should be repeated in 10 years, sooner if you have other characteristics that increase your risk of developing CRC. During a colonoscopy, your surgeon looks for polyps by inserting a tiny camera mounted to the end of a long, narrow, flexible tube. This tube snakes through your rectum and up and around your colon and intestines, inspecting the tissues as it goes by. For a successful colonoscopy, enough fecal material must be flushed out so that the lighted scope can see the inside of your intestines clearly. Small and medium-sized polyps are removed during the procedure by the surgeon. Larger polyps can require additional surgery. Another option for CRC screening is a sigmoidoscopy. Less invasive than a colonoscopy, it checks just the lower part of your colon instead of its entire length. The third CRC screening option doesn't require a procedure. Called a fecal immunochemical test or FIT test, it involves testing a sample of your feces for blood. Since no polyps were found at my last colonoscopy, my doctor said I could do a FIT test at home instead of waiting for another procedure. "I don't have to chug a gallon of weird-tasting liquid? Count me in!" Smiling, I carried home my FIT test packet: a small squeeze bottle with tape wrapped around it. Following the instructions, I dropped off my sample last week. Whoo-hoo! Here are 4 Final Facts about Colorectal Cancer Screening: 1. Don't put it off. Despite advances in the treatment of colorectal cancer, the rate of survival and percentage of people cured has remained the same. This is why screening is so essential to detect cancer at the most curable stage. 2. Watch for bleeding from your rectum. Rectal bleeding when going Number 2 is the most common initial symptom of colorectal cancer. Don't assume it's from your hemorrhoids. 3. Chill out. Mix up your gallon of colonoscopy preparation fluid the day before, and chill it overnight. Drinking it cold reduces the "soapy" taste reducing the "yuk" factor. 4. Don't fall behind. Keep to the schedule of drinking your liquid colonoscopy preparation. I fell asleep, then tried to catch up by drinking a double dose. If I thought it tasted weird going down, it tasted even worse, coming back up! CDC Under Fire for Not Publishing All COVID-19 Data It Collects

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention headquarters in Atlanta on Sept. 30, 2014.

ZACHARY STIEBER & PETR SVAB

A top U.S. agency is under fire for withholding some of the COVID-19 data it collects.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) confirmed to The Epoch Times that it hasn't published some of the data it has collected on COVID-19 reinfections.

The spokesperson said the agency dropped plans for publishing a paper based on the data "given other response priorities" and because part of the same data was already presented in a published manuscript. An agency representative told The New York Times that it has also withheld other information, including details on how COVID-19 vaccine booster doses have affected young people.

The data hasn't been released or has been released slowly because it takes time to make sure that "it's accurate and actionable," the representative said, noting that there are fears that the information might be misinterpreted.

Multiple experts say the CDC should make all data available.

Dr. Robert Malone, who helped create the messenger RNA technology used in some of the vaccines, said the CDC's actions are a type of fraud.

"Withholding data, key data, is scientific fraud," Malone told The Epoch Times.

Dr. Jay Bhattacharya, a professor of medicine at Stanford University, said the CDC shouldn't "withhold information in order to manipulate behavior."

The agency should "help Americans understand the data in context and provide guidance to improve the lives of all Americans," he wrote on Twitter.

Paul Mango, a former official at the Department of Health and Human Services, said the CDC's role should be collecting and disseminating data, not analyzing it itself.

"The CDC just doesn't have the capacity to conduct research as quickly as the pandemic is moving," Mango told The Epoch Times.

As one example, the Cleveland Clinic has been publishing papers since mid-2021 on the natural immunity that many of its employees enjoy after recovering from COVID-19. The CDC didn't publish a major study on the subject until January.

Mango, whose book on his time with Operation Warp Speed will be published soon, said the federal government would have done things differently if the role of natural immunity was better known in the wake of the COVID-19 vaccines being autho-alized. Instead, the government led efforts that resulted in many people who had immunity getting some of the early doses, ahead of people who were more at risk.

The CDC has been collecting data on so-called breakthrough infections—COVID-19 cases among the vaccinated—a spokesperson told the NY Times, but the agency hasn't published the figures because people may interpret them as the vaccines not performing effectively—the same reason given by Scottish health officials recently in halting the publication of some data.

On April 30, 2021, the CDC published data on breakthrough infections for the last time. The data show that at least 9,245 people had suffered breakthrough infections and that 132 of the patients had died.

Those numbers were reported by 46 U.S. states and territories but were described as a likely undercount because the reporting system is passive and doesn't require reporting, in addition to the jurisdictions

[The CDC should] help Americans understand the data in context and provide guidance to improve the lives of all Americans.

Dr. Jay Bhattacharya,

that didn't report any data.

The CDC kept reporting hospitalizations and deaths among the vaccinated, but it transitioned from publishing raw numbers in the fall of 2021 to reporting rates of cases, hospitalizations, and deaths.

As of Oct. 18, 2021, jurisdictions reported more than 30,200 hospitalizations and more than 10,800 deaths among the vaccinated.

Breakthrough infections and reinfections are important to check because they're barometers of how strong immunity is against the CCP (Chinese Communist Party) virus, which causes COVID-19.

A CDC spokesperson told The Epoch Times that it's holding unpublished data on reinfections that it received from the Emerging Infections Network, a group made up of roughly 3,000 medical professionals.

More Nuanced

The CDC didn't provide a response to the criticism by press time, but some experts say the agency is working under constraints and has already published a lot of data.

"The fact is that the CDC website and publications have extensive information, and many of the limitations reflect the reality of working in the U.S. health care and public health systems," Dr. Tom Frieden, a former CDC director who's now president and CEO of Resolve to Save Lives, told The Epoch Times in an email.

Dr. Roger Klein, a health policy expert who has advised the CDC and other federal health agencies, said transparency is a good idea, but information conveyed by agencies needs to be accurate and put into proper context.

Holding back incomplete datasets is appropriate, according to Peter Pitts, a former Food and Drug Administration associate commissioner.

Mango believes the CDC should move to release the data while emphasizing which numbers agency experts feel comfortable with and which numbers they don't.

Poison Control Centers Warn About Toxic Chemical in At-Home COVID-19 Test Kits

JACK PHILLIPS

Some at-home rapid COVID-19 tests contain a toxic chemical that may be harmful to both children and adults, according to health officials.

The Cincinnati Drug and Poison Information Center reported an uptick in accidental exposures to a possibly toxic substance, sodium azide, in at-home COVID-19 test kits, according to a blog post. Meanwhile, the National Poison Control Center issued a warning about the chemical.

"It is important to know that the extraction vial in many rapid antigen kits includes the chemical sodium azide as a preservative agent," the center said. "The BinaxNow, BD Veritor, Flowflex, and Celltrion DiaTrust COVID-19 rapid antigen kits all contain this chemical."

Sodium azide is a colorless, odorless powder that testers dip cotton swabs into. The chemical is found in herbicides, pest control agents, and airbags for cars.

"Small doses of sodium azide can lower blood pressure, and larger doses may cause more serious health effects," an advisory from Health Canada also said. "ProClin is also found in many kits. It contains chemicals that can cause skin and eye irritation, as well as allergic reactions."

Some hospitals around the United States say they have received a surge in phone calls about exposures to the chemical.

"We started getting our first exposures to these test kits around early November," said Sheila Goertmoeller, pharmacist and clinical toxicologist for the Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center. "It was, really, all ages."

"Mostly, I've been very worried about our young children."

Accidental exposure is occurring among both children and adults, said Dr. Kelly Johnson-Arbor, with the National Capital Poison Center in Washington, told WNEP over the weekend.

"People might mistake them for eye drops. Children might drop it onto their skin. Adults will sometimes mistakenly put them into their eyes," she said.

"You don't want to leave it on the skin because it could potentially cause an allergic reaction or a skin rash.

"If someone drinks the solution, it's really important to contact poison control right away. The solutions have different ingredients. Some have non-toxic ingredients and others have more dangerous ingredients."

Officials told WNEP that there's no need to throw away the test kits, Rapid at-home COVID-19 test kits are distributed in Chelsea, Mass., on Dec. 17, 2021.

but people should be mindful when using them.

"Use them properly, dispose of them properly, and it won't cause an issue," Dr. Jeffrey Jahre, with St. Luke's University Health Network, told the outlet.

If you suspect you or someone you know has ingested the chemical, officials recommend not to make the person vomit. For eye exposures, rinse the eyes for 15 to 20 minutes with warm water. For skin exposures, rinse the skin well with tap water. Immediately check the Poison Control Center's online tool for guidance or call poison control at 1-800-222-1222, the website says.
