Lady Goats to be honored Dec. 7

The Chelan Lady Mountain Goat Volleyball team is back-to-back state champions after the state tournament held at the Yakima Valley SunDome earlier this month. The Goats won all four state tournament games 3-0 and rarely trailed throughout the weekend. The state tournament championship caps off a remarkable season which included a regular season Caribou Trail League title, District 6 1A title, and the state championship. The Championship Game featured the Lady Goats vs Lynden Christian. The Goats dominated the first set with a 25-12 win, second with a 25-23 win, and third set with a 25-21 win. The Chelan Athletic Department will be honoring and celebrating the Lady Goats on Tuesday, December 7, during halftime of the boys varsity basketball game against the Cashmere Bulldogs. That games begins at 7:15 p.m. The girls varsity basketball team plays at 5:45 p.m. Tournament Stats from Coach Abby Phelps: As a team, we had 11 aces, led by our Junior setter Juliana Perez with 5 aces. Morgyn Harrison led the team with 18 digs. She was absolutely phenomenal defensively for us, and she played her best volleyball all year during that weekend. She will continue her career next year with Western Washington University. Olivia Strandberg led us offensively with 24 kills, supported by Makenzie Griggs and Ally Williams who both had 6 kills and an extremely high hitting percentage. Overall, I was incredibly proud of the way the team played last weekend. We definitely ended up playing the best volleyball we had played all year, and they did it when they most needed to. We did not drop a set all tournament, and I think that is a testament to not only their skill, but the mental toughness and incredible teamwork that all of the student athletes showed. However, the thing that I am most proud of is not the win/loss record, the amazing stats that they collectively put up, or the fact that at the end of the day we got to hold the big trophy. The thing that I am the most proud of is the incredible growth that I saw in each of these young ladies from the beginning of the season. They have all matured into confident, selfless, team-oriented young women, and that took a lot of hard work on their part. The thing that I will remember most about this season is the amount of love and support that these girls have for each other, and how they just went out there and had fun. Each girl made it "not about them," and I truly believe that that is the main ingredient to our success. More photos on A2

Reclamation is one step closer to transfer federal water facilities to Washington irrigation district

Transfer includes Howard Flats Unit

SUBMITTED BY U.S. BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

CHELAN – The Bureau of Reclamation is closer to transferring title of some of its federal water facilities to the Greater Wenatchee Irrigation District, following a 90-day Congressional review that was completed on Nov. 3, 2021. The district is located in central Washington along the Columbia River Valley, and once agreements have been signed, this transfer will be the first of its kind in the State of Washington executed under the John D. Dingell Jr. Conservation, Management and Recreation Act (P.L. 116-9). The Act expedites the title transfer process for eligible projects, such as dams, canals, and other water-related facilities.

“There is significant behind the scenes staff work invested by Reclamation and the Greater Wenatchee Irrigation District to achieve this major milestone,” said Marc Maynard, Ephrata Field Office manager. “I can’t thank everyone enough for the hard work and collaborative spirit, which was critical to completing this title transfer,” added Maynard.

The district comprises three separate units: East Unit; Brays Landing Unit; and Howard Flat Unit. The East Unit is located east of the Columbia River within Douglas County in the city of East Wenatchee. The Brays Landing Unit also is located in Douglas County. The Howard Flats Unit is located within Chelan County, west of the Columbia River.

The title transfer covers all federally owned facilities within the water conveyance and distribution system and includes approximately 82 acres of land necessary for the district to permanently provide irrigation water to its patrons. The transfer includes all improvements and appurtenances to the federally owned facilities and lands, including but not limited to buildings, pumps, diversions, control structures, fixture, improvements, drains, laterals, pipelines, waste ways, wells, ponds, and roads.

Construction of the GWID was authorized May 5, 1958. The United States holds title to irrigation facilities serving district water users and other lands and rights supporting operations. On Jan. 1, 1972, operations and maintenance responsibilities were transferred to the district, and most of the relevant project construction costs, in accordance with its existing construction contract, have been repaid.

Updated 2021 Washington Apple Harvest Estimate

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON TREE FRUIT ASSOCIATION

YAKIMA – The Washington State Tree Fruit Association (WSTFA) released its updated estimate of the 2021 Washington state fresh apple crop. The August forecast estimated the Washington state apple harvest to be 124.85 million standard forty pound boxes of fresh apples. After receiving updated data from WSTFA members who have picked a majority of the crop, that estimate has decreased by 5.3%. “Apple harvest is still wrapping-up for some Washington varieties, but based on volumes harvested so far our members are expecting a decrease to 118.255 million boxes,” said Jon DeVaney, WSTFA President. “Our members are reporting smaller crops of some varieties including Honeycrisp, Galas, and Red Delicious. High heat earlier in the season affected what was ultimately picked in some cases. The organic crop is still projected to be over 15 million boxes. In spite of the smaller harvest, we are seeing high-quality fruit and consumers can expect delicious Washington apples throughout 2022.” This report is based on a survey of WSTFA members, and represents fruit picked so far through October 31st and a best estimate of what is still to be harvested. It represents the harvested total volume of apples that will eventually be packed and sold on the fresh market (excluding product sent to processor).

The torch changes hands at the Main Street Gallery Boutique and Fine-Art Arcade in Chelan

After 15 years, new owners take the helm of successful downtown retail store

SUBMITTED BY TERRY J. LABRUE, APR LABRUE COMMUNICATIONS

CHELAN - Following a whirlwind re-freshening and a truckload of new merchandise, the Main Street Gallery reopens Veteran's Day week in its long-term location at 208 Woodin Avenue.

It all came together quickly and with much excitement according to April Marcel and Lacy Boosinger, the mother-daughter team that took the helm of the stylish 2,000 sq. ft. women's fashion boutique and gallery.

to own a boutique one day and share my passion for fashion," said 23-year-old Lacy. "I started working part time at Main Street Gallery when I was only fifteen and fell in love with the process of helping customers, discovering new styles, and pull-together outfits that make our customers feel attractive and confident."

"I am constantly in awe of the power of fashion. It brings excitement and inspiration to a wide range of people" Boosinger added. "It is my goal to offer accessible clothes that are inclusive for women of all ages, shapes, and sizes, as well as to provide them with a fun shopping environment."

Lacy's mother, April Marcel, is also an enthusiastic fashion maven and experienced business woman. "When we learned the Main Street Gallery was available after 15 years, we jumped at the chance to bring different styles to local customers and tourists alike. In the past few years, the fashion scene in the Chelan Valley has changed for the better in spite of the Covid-19 pandemic."

"We traveled to the fashion market in Las Vegas and discovered a beautiful line of South Sea pearl jewelry that can spice up many outfits. Plus, we selected some chic dresses, coats and flattering sportswear that truly fit the Chelan lifestyle. Once we have everything unpacked and displayed, customers will find labels such as Blu Pepper, POL, and Papillon." Marcel predicted.

On the fine-art gallery side, which will expand to the boutique's mezzanine, Main Street Gallery features new artists, new arrangements, and a new attitude. Specific pieces include paintings, photography, lithographs, sculptures, and carvings. "We are honored to feature some notable artists in the gallery including John Ebner, Diane Paton-Peel, and Phil Skochilich," Marcel added.

Main Street Gallery is the largest fine-art gallery in Chelan and features pieces retailing from a just a few dollars for a lithograph print to original paintings worth hundreds.

"As the saying goes, a thing of beauty is a joy forever." Marcel remarked. "Our gallery artists range from local painters and photographers to some well-known creative people from Western Washington. Many local collectors look to the Main Street Gallery to add the finishing touch to their homes and offices. The artworks also make a memorable and lasting gift for the upcoming holidays. We are additionally bringing in art experts to help curate future presentations and special art shows. Through this process we have discovered a wealth of creative talent in Chelan."

"It's obvious this is a family endeavor, with my son Luke assisting with the new POS system, store website, and social media sites. Lacy will be heavily involved in merchandising where she excels," Marcel said. "Especially during the past 18 months, a new emphasis on email, phone and internet communications has been realized."

"We can truly succeed with our new attitude: 'A boutique to inspire, offering wearable and fine art of all kinds,'" Marcel observed.

The Main Street Gallery is located at 208 Woodin Avenue, Chelan. Telephone 509-682-9262, Email mainstreetgallerychelan@gmail.com. Open Monday through Thursday 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Friday and Saturday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., closed Sundays. Website: mainstreetgallerychelan.com

State Department Building International Network to Counter Domestic Terrorism

The Department of State in Washington on Jan. 6, 2020.

KEN SILVA

The State Department's counterterrorism bureau has started an intelligence-sharing initiative with the governments of other countries to combat domestic terrorism—a system likened to the department's international coordination against groups such as Hezbollah.

Chris Landberg, the State Department's acting principal deputy coordinator for its Bureau of Counterterrorism, told lawmakers about the program at a Nov. 17 House Foreign Affairs Committee hearing. The new initiative follows recent revelations that the FBI has allegedly used counterterrorism tools to track threats by parents and other individuals against school board members—sparking criticism among conservatives that the Biden administration is using national security tools to chill dissent.

Landberg said his department, the FBI, and the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) will hold a forum with their international counterparts to “share information about trends and then coordinate our activities” to combat what the administration has termed “racially or ethnically motivated violent extremists.”

“We've started something we modeled on a successful program in countering Hezbollah ... where we bring together law enforcement partners—especially in countries like some of our European partners—to focus on trends and sharing information,” he said.

The State Department has coor-ordinated similar programs against international terrorist groups. In September, the United States and Qatar worked together to sanction a Hezbollah financial network based in the Persian Gulf.

But according to the FBI and DHS, most right-wing domestic terrorism is conducted by “lone wolves” with no transnational ties, making it unclear what information would be shared under the State Department's program or what international actions would be taken.

Landberg made references to sanctions and watchlisting of domestic terrorist groups in his opening statement, but he didn't provide more details about the program. He said he would brief the committee on all of his department's counterterrorism activities at a closed-door hearing in December.

The State Department didn't respond to a request for comment by press time.

Landberg did say that his division has seen “growing transnational linkages” among racially motivated extremists.

“There's communication, which is hard to track. There are efforts to train and share information between these groups. So, this growing transnational connectivity is what we're most focused on,” he said.

Thus far, the State Department has designated one group as a racially or ethnically motivated violent extremist group: the right-wing Russian Imperial Movement based in St. Petersburg, Russia.

is part of the Biden administration's National Strategy to Counter Domestic Terrorism strategy announced in June. Other prongs of the government's domestic counterterrorism efforts have received significant criticism from conservatives and civil libertarians—most notably Attorney General Merrick Garland's directive to launch a counterterrorism investigation into threats being made at school board meetings.

Garland's Oct. 4 decision followed a letter sent by the National School Boards Association (NSBA) to the Biden administration days earlier, characterizing protesting parents as domestic terrorism threats and calling for the FBI to use statutes such as the Patriot Act.

The NSBA has since apologized and rescinded the letter, but the federal probe continues. Garland said at an Oct. 27 congressional hearing that the NSBA's follow-up apology letter “does not change the association's concern about violence and threats of violence.”

The attorney general has disputed the characterization of his probe as a counterterrorism operation, but allegations made by an apparent FBI whistleblower this week suggest otherwise.

Documents allegedly sourced from the FBI whistleblower include an email sent by Carlton L. Peeples, who serves in the bureau's Inspection Division, stating that the Counterterrorism and Criminal Division “created a threat tag, EDUOFFICIALS, to track instances of related threats.”

Republican lawmakers say the whistleblower documents prove that the government is acting “at the behest of left-wing special interest groups against concerned parents.”

According to DHS, there's no evidence of a spike in violence against educators.

OSHA Suspends Implementation, Enforcement of Vaccine Mandate

ISABEL VAN BRUGEN

The Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) says it has suspended the implementation and enforcement of the Biden administration's COVID-19 vaccine mandate for private businesses.

The announcement came shortly after a U.S. appeals court rejected a challenge by the Biden administration on Nov. 12 and reaffirmed its decision to put on hold OSHA's mandate, which requires that businesses with 100 employees or more ensure that workers either be vaccinated against COVID-19 by Jan. 4, 2022, or be tested weekly and wear a mask.

The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans stated in an opinion that OSHA's mandate is “staggeringly overbroad,” and ordered it to “take no steps to implement or enforce the Mandate until further court order.”

The court had previously issued a temporary halt to the mandate on Nov. 6, pending litigation.

The Labor Department affirmed in a statement in recognition of the court's ruling: “The court ordered that OSHA ‘take no steps to implement or enforce’ the ETS ‘until further court order.’ While OSHA remains confident in its authority to protect workers in emergencies, OSHA has suspended activities related to the implementation and enforcement of the ETS pending future developments in the litigation.”

At least 27 U.S. states, as well as private employers, religious organizations, and other groups, have sued the Biden administration, claiming that it's exceeding its authority in issuing the mandate.

In the 5th Circuit Court's reaffirmation on Nov. 12, it stated that the Biden administration's vaccine mandate “raises serious constitutional concerns” and “likely exceeds the federal government's authority.”

Biden administration officials didn't immediately respond to a request by The Epoch Times for comment.

Meanwhile, White House officials have continued to call for employers to adhere to the vaccine mandate for private businesses, after the initial Nov. 6 ruling.

“We think people should not wait,” White House principal deputy press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre told reporters on Nov. 8, responding to a question on whether employers should hold off on requiring employees to be vaccinated after the court put the mandate on hold.

“We say: Do not wait to take actions that will keep your workplace safe,” Jean-Pierre said. “It is important and critical to do, and waiting to get more people vaccinated will lead to more outbreaks and sickness.”

Employers “should not wait” for legal matters to be resolved before adhering to Biden's vaccine requirement, she said.

“They should continue to go—move forward and make sure that they're getting their workplace vaccinated.”

FDA Asks Court for 55 Years to Fully Release Pfizer COVID-19 Vaccine Data

IVAN PENTCHOUKOV

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) asked a federal judge on Nov. 15 to give it until the year 2076 to fully release the documents in its possession tied to the approval of the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine.

The FDA's request was made in a filing as part of a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) lawsuit by a medical transparency group. The government told the court it has 329,000 pages of documents responsive to the FOIA request and proposed releasing 500 pages per month to allow for redactions of exempt material. At that rate, the FDA would fully release the records in question in just under 55 years.

The plaintiff, Public Health and Medical Professionals for Transparency (PHMPT), is a group of doctors and scientists, including Harvey Risch, a professor of epidemiology at the Yale School of Public Health.

The group filed the lawsuit after the FDA denied their request to expedite the release of the records. The plaintiff and the defendant, unable to reach an agreement on a disclosure schedule, are seeking a hearing to argue their cases before the judge, who may eventually make a decision in that regard.

“The FDA's promise of transparency is, to put it mildly, a pile of illusions,” Aaron Siri, whose firm is representing PHMPT in the lawsuit, wrote in a blog post on Nov. 17.

“It took the FDA precisely 108 days from when Pfizer started producing the records for licensure to when the FDA licensed the Pfizer vaccine,” Siri continued. “Taking the FDA at its word, it conducted an intense, robust, thorough, and complete review and analysis of those documents in order to assure that the Pfizer vaccine was safe and effective for licensure. While it can conduct that intense review of Pfizer's documents in 108 days, it now asks for over 20,000 days to make these documents available to the public.”

The FDA did not respond to a request for comment.

The FDA licensed the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine under the Comirnaty label on Aug. 23, 2021, less than four months after Pfizer began submitting documents for full approval of the drug. The FDA approval of the license in late August led to an avalanche of vaccine mandates in the private and public sectors.

COVID-19 is the disease caused by the CCP (Chinese Communist Party) virus, commonly known as the novel coronavirus.

One of the companies involved in the trials of the Pfizer vaccine earlier this month said it was investigating alleged problems brought to light by a whistleblower who told the British Medical Journal (BMJ) that the trial was riddled with issues, including the falsification of data.

The whistleblower, Brook Jackson, alerted the FDA and was fired within hours. Jackson was working for Ventavia Research Group, which operated several of the Pfizer trial sites in the fall of 2020

According to BMJ, one of the oldest medical journals in the world, the FDA did not inspect Ventavia's trial sites, despite being alerted about the issues.

The FDA told The Epoch Times in an email earlier this month that while it can't comment on the Ventavia matter, it “has full confidence in the data that were used to support the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine authorization and the Comirnaty approval.”

As of Nov. 14, more than 256 million doses of Pfizer's COVID-19 vaccine have been administered in the United States.

Bank Regulator Nominee Tries to Detach From Her Bank Centralization Ideas During Hearing

ANNA MONEYMAKER/GETTY IMAGES

PETR SVAB

Saule Omarova, nominated by President Joe Biden for the role of one of the top banking regulators, on Nov. 18 tried to portray her recently published proposal to centralize banking as merely an outline of one among many options to consider rather than her own preference.

Her proposal, outlined in an October paper titled “The People’s Ledger,” would have the government take all bank deposits and put them in the Federal Reserve, which would then be able to control who does and doesn’t get a loan. This would drastically expand government control over finance and exacerbate a number of problems, several experts previously told The Epoch Times.

During her Nov. 18 confirmation hearing for Treasury’s comptroller of the currency, Omarova said her paper was written in the context of “academic debate” around digitizing the dollar “because this seems to be an inevitable solution.”

“The paper seeks to address the implications of that step for the entire financial system,” she said, arguing that it was her job to “expand the boundaries of academic debate and outline potential options for Congress to consider.”

However, ranking member Pat Toomey (R-Penn.) pointed out that that isn’t how she framed her ideas in the paper.

“This Article ... advocates full migration of demand deposits onto the Fed’s balance sheet,” he quoted from the paper. “Are you now saying you’re no longer for that?” he asked. “Senator, what I’m trying to clarify here is the problem this paper was trying to solve,” she replied, making a point that digitization of currency would hurt community banking and give an advantage to the Big Tech and institutional players on Wall Street.

Her paper does mention digitization proposals as well as the idea of allowing people to open Fed accounts without abolishing private banking, Toomey acknowledged. But he stressed that she portrayed the centralization idea as the preferable option in the paper.

“This is what you recommended, and it doesn’t seem to be a coincidence that every one of these thought experiments or academic ideas—every one of them—involved dramatic expansion in the power and control of the central government to allocate resources, to control banking, and a corresponding diminution in the freedom of individual Americans and institutions,” he said.

Omarova also addressed her previous statements, in which she said: “The way we basically get rid of those carbon financiers is we starve them of their sources of capital,” and “We want them to go bankrupt if we want to tackle climate change.” During the hearing, she said “that was a poor phrasing” and that she was actually talking about “helping workers in this sector to transition

The paper seeks to address the implications of that step for the entire financial system.

Saule Omarova, nominee for comptroller of the currency to high-paying jobs if we’re looking into the future and the rise of new technologies.”

John Berlau, senior fellow at the free-market Competitive Enterprise Institute, was skeptical of that explanation.

“For someone who chooses her words very carefully, it’s hard to buy that she misspoke,” he told The Epoch Times, noting that Omarova has a record of advocating for such ideas.

Omarova said her previous jobs at a banking law firm and in the Treasury taught her “the invaluable lessons about how financial sausage is made and how that can lead to devastating financial crises.”

She said she would work “to guarantee a fair and competitive market where small and mid-sized banks that invest in neighbors’ homes and small businesses can thrive, and where every community, regardless of wealth geography or history, has access to safe and affordable financial services.”

She stressed that it was up to Congress to decide whether or not to implement her ideas.

Toomey addressed that argument in his opening statement.

“I suspect Prof. Omarova may claim that as comptroller, she wouldn’t have the power to act on all of her radical views. But the truth is the comptroller is a powerful regulator. It wields enormous powers through bank chartering, regulation, enforcement, and especially through its opaque supervision process. The comptroller is also a member of the FDIC [Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation] Board and the Financial Stability Oversight Council, America’s financial super-regulator,” he said.

He called her ideas “a socialist manifesto for American financial services.”

“These are exactly the kind of socialist ideas that have failed everywhere in the world they’ve been tried,” he said.

Chairman Sherrod Brown (D-Ohio) defended Omarova as “one of the most qualified nominees ever for this job.”

In his opening statement, he criticized some Republicans who questioned Omarova’s college thesis on Marxist economics during her studies at Moscow State University. He pointed out that, though born in the Soviet Union, she “renounced her communist citizenship and became an American.”

Sheriffs Call on Biden to Fire Homeland Secretary Mayorkas Over Lack of Border Control

CHARLOTTE CUTHBERTSON/THE EPOCH TIMES

CHARLOTTE CUTHBERTSON & ZACHARY STIEBER

BRACKETTVILLE, Texas—Sheriffs in 17 states are calling on President Joe Biden to fire Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas, urging the president to replace him with somebody who will reestablish control over the United States’ southern border.

The Western States Sheriffs’ Association (WSSA) said in a position paper obtained by The Epoch Times that “a great deal of progress was made” in enforcing the U.S.–Mexico border under the Trump administration but that sheriffs are now witnessing “a complete and total breakdown” of enforcement efforts.

The number of illegal immigrant apprehensions at the border under Biden has set multiple records already, including the top yearly total. Apprehensions dropped in October, but the number marked the highest ever for the month.

Nearly 1.7 million illegal immigrant arrests have taken place this year. The government projects that total to rise above 2 million by the end of 2021. An untold number of others have evaded arrest or detection and are inside the country.

WSSA said that Mayorkas was appointed to uphold U.S. laws and secure the border, but that the policies he’s enacted “continue to dismantle the security of our country and the enforcement effort of the hard-working federal officers assigned to an extremely difficult task.”

Sheriffs are in disbelief as the southern border has “turned into an invisible line in the sand,” according to the paper, raising concerns about the human and drug trafficking and crimes committed by illegal immigrants once they make it into the United States.

“After witnessing this disaster over the past several months and listening to the continued rhetoric and intellectual dishonesty from Secretary Mayorkas, The Western States Sheriffs Association, and its membership must emphatically state our position of having NO confidence in the ability of the Secretary Mayorkas, and his leadership within the Department of Homeland Security, to affect any positive outcome on this matter,” the sheriffs stated.

They called on Biden to remove Mayorkas and appoint a new homeland security secretary “who recognizes, respects, and will enforce the rule of law.”

DHS and the White House didn’t immediately respond to requests for comment.

Yuma Sheriff Leon Wilmot said the crisis is worsening in his area on the Arizona border.

“All signs show an increase in crossings here, we are averaging 750 apprehensions every day,” Wilmot told The Epoch Times. During the fiscal year that just ended, agents in the Yuma sector apprehended illegal aliens from more than 107 countries—17 of which are special interest countries with ties to terrorism, Wilmot said.

He blamed Mayorkas for “restricting law enforcement from making arrests” and not prosecuting illegal aliens.

“Hardly any Border Patrol agents are working the border as they are stuck processing. All of his advertised policies are contrary to enforcing the rule of law,” Wilmot said.

The sheriffs’ association paper stated that many illegal immigrants arrive in the United States indebted to the Mexican and South American drug cartels.

“For some, reaching the United States marks the beginning of years of drug distribution, slavery, and prostitution in order to pay back the drug cartels for the privilege of being brought to the United States,” the paper states.

Mayorkas told members of Congress during a Nov. 16 hearing that the U.S. government has more control of its borders than it did during the previous administration and that the Biden immigration agenda is starting to work.

“I think rebuilding a broken immigration system and rebuilding a dismantled one takes time, and we’re on the road to success,” Mayorkas said.

He gave himself an “A” for effort.

Republicans largely disagreed. “When you run DHS like it is an ‘abolish ICE’ fan club, you shouldn’t be surprised when you have an immigration crisis on your hands,” Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-Iowa) said.

Sen. Tom Cotton (R-Ark.) said the “open borders” policies implemented by Biden and Mayorkas have attracted the growing number of illegal immigrants, making the southern border “more open than it ever has been.”
